Admiralty Chief Declares War Will End Only When Führer "Has Had Enough"—Terms Russia "Riddle Wrapped In Mystery"

OCT 2 1939

[By the Associated Press]

London, Oct. 1—Great Britain's King summoned another 250,000 young men to the colors tonight as his First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill, boldly declared the European war would end only when the Allied forces were convinced that Reichsführer Adolf Hitler "has had enough."

The Admiralty chief, in an empire broadcast, declared "Russia has warned Hitler off his eastern dreams" in creating an eastern front which Nazi Germany "does not dare assail." But he added that he could not forecast Russia's next move, terming it a "riddle wrapped in mystery inside of an enigma." The U. S. S. R., he said, has pursued a "cold policy of self-interest."

Expects U. S. Good Will

Shortly before the speech, in which Churchill said Britons believe "we are entitled to the respect and good will of the world and particularly of the United States," King George VI called to armed service all British men between the ages of 20 and 22 years "with certain exceptions."

Some 240,000 youths aged 20 were called up last June. Today's proclamation applies to those in the 21-year age group and those who have become 20 since June.

Peace Not Up To Hitler

Churchill told the empire "it was for Hitler to say when the war would begin, but it is not for him or his successors to say when it will end."

How soon the war ends, he said, depends upon "how long Herr Hitler and his group of wicked men whose hands are stained with blood and sticky with corruption can keep their grip upon the docile, unhappy German people."

Churchill said "three important things" had occurred in the first month of the war: "Poland has been overrun but will rise again; Russia has warned Hitler off his Eastern dreams; and the U-boats may be safely left to the care and constant attention of the British navy."

Lead Nation In Prayer

King George and Queen Elizabeth meanwhile led the nation in a day of prayer, attending services at St. Paul's Cathedral. Tonight the King held a Privy Council meeting attended by Ernest Brown, Minister of Labor, who had announced the second conscription measure.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is expected to give the House of Commons tomorrow the official Government reaction to the German-Soviet partition of Poland and his weekly war review on Tuesday.

Churchhill ignored in his broadcast a set of questions asked by a German-speaking voice which interrupted a British Broadcast Corporation program about 8 P. M., with a request that he reply in his address at 9.15 P. M.

Questions Listed

Churchill was asked to answer these questions:

"Where is the British aircraft carrier hit by a German bomb in the North Sea?

"What caused the sinking of the Athenia?

"Why did Churchill say a U-boat commander who had sent an SOS to him had been captured when the commander in question had returned to Germany?"

Nearly two hours after Churchill's speech, a German giving his name as Hans Fritsche broke into a B. B. C. broadcast and attacked the Admiralty head for failing to reply to his questions.

Frequently Interfered

A B. B. C. spokesman said the wave length of a station at Cologne, Germany, was very near that of the B. B. C. and frequently interfered on some receivers.

In his broadcast, Churchill warned that "we have not yet come at all to the severity of the fighting which is to be expected."

Going into greater detail about submarine warfare, mentioned in the third point of his summary of the first month of war, Churchill declared:

"A week has passed since a British ship alone or in convoy has been sunk or even molested on the high seas" and "it would seem that the U-boat attack upon the life of the British Isles has not so far proved successful."

Expects Sub War

"We must, of course, expect that the U-boat attack upon the seaborne commerce of the world will be renewed presently upon a greater scale," the war-wise Churchill warned.

His prediction had warned all British merchant shipping to be on guard against "an immediate change of policy in German submarine warfare."

It said such a change was indicated by a German broadcast that U-boats had been attacked by British merchant ships and that "Germany will have to retaliate by regarding every vessel of the British merchant navy as a warship."

[Editor's Note—In Germany some sections of the Nazi press said that armed British merchantmen would be treated "as warships" by German submarines, but official quarters remained silent on the German Government's attitude.]

Voices Optimism

"We hope, however," Churchill continued, "that by the end of October we shall have three times as many hunting craft at work as we had at the beginning of the war; and by the measures we have taken, we hope that our means of putting down this pest will grow continually. We are taking great care about that."

Speaking of Russia, Churchill asserted is could not be in her interest "that Germany should plant itself upon the shores of the Black Sea, or that it should overrun the Balkan states and subjugate the Slavonic peoples of Southeastern Europe."

Fall In Same Channel

The Admiralty chieftain said that "here the interests of Russia fall into the same channel as the interests of Britain and France," and "through the fog of confusion of uncertainty we may discern quite plainly the community of interests which exists between England, France and Russia to prevent the Nazis carrying the flames of war into the Balkans and Turkey."

Touching on the neutrality of Italy—Britain's ally in the World War—Churchill said: "Misunderstandings and disputes have arisen" since 1914, "but all the more do we appreciate in England the reasons why this great and friendly nation of Italy, with whom we have never been at war, has not seen fit to enter the struggle."

He did not elaborate on his reference to "reasons."

Warns Of Ordeals

Warning that "great ordeals may be coming to us in this island from the air," Churchill continued:

"We shall do our best to give a good account of ourselves, and we must always remember that the command of the seas will enable us to bring the immense resources of Canada and the New World into play as a decisive ultimate air factor beyond the reach of what we have to give and take over here."

Answering "reproaches of those who wish to throw themselves into the fight," Churchill reiterated Britain's determination to press the war "until decisive victory is gained."

"Meanwhile patriotic men and women and those who understand the high causes in human fortunes which are at stake must not only rise above fear, they must also rise above inconvenience and boredom," he warned.

Repeats War Aims

Churchill repeated Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement of Britain's war aims: "To redeem Europe from the perpetual and recurring fear of German aggression, and enable the peoples of Europe to preserve their independence and their liberties."

Sounding a note of high confidence, Churchill said Britain and France "together are 85,000,000" against Nazidom's "no more than 85,000,000, of which at least 16,000,000 newly conquered Czechs, Slovakians and Austrians are writhing under their cruel yoke and have to be held down by main force."

"We have the oceans," he continued; "we have the freely given, ardent support of the 20,000,000 of British citizens in the self-governing dominions of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. We have the heart of moral convictions of India on our side.

Entitled To Respect

"We believe we are entitled to the respect and good will of the world and particularly of the United States."

In another reference to America, Churchill said Britain "may take good heart" from the American Civil War, when "all the heroism of the South could not redeem their cause from the stain of slavery, just as all the courage and skill, which the Germans always show in war, will not free them from the reproach of Naziism with its intolerance and brutality."

Churchill told those impatient for action "a large army has already gone to France. British armies upon the scale of the effort of the great war are in preparation."

Warns Against Subs

Scoffing at the suggestion that shipping was safe for a week because "all the U-boats have gone to tell their master about their exploits," Churchill said: "That is not true, because every day we are attacking them at the approaches to the British Isles."

He added: "I hope the day will come when the Admiralty will be able to invite ships of all nations to join the British convoys."

Another British official, Air Marshal Sir John Salmond, in a speech at Eastbourne, said "there are great signs the war may not be as long as some people expect," because Germany "has of itself rejected in great measure, though not on the surface but underground, the principles Hitler has forced on them."

Text of Winston Churchill's Radio Address

OCT 2 1939

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 1—Following is the text of a radio speech tonight by Winston Churchill, First Lord of the British Admiralty:

The British Empire and the French Republic have been at war with Nazi Germany for a month tonight. We have not yet come at all to the severity of fighting which is to be expected; but three important things have happened.

First, Poland has been again overrun by two of the great powers which held her in bondage for 150 years but were unable to quench the spirit of the Polish nation. The heroic defense of Warsaw shows that the soul of Poland is indestructible, and that she will rise again like a rock which may for a spell be submerged by a tidal wave but which remains a rock.

What is the second event of this first month? It is, of course, the assertion of the power of Russia. Russia has pursued a cold policy of self-interest. We could have wished that the Russian Armies should be standing on their present line as the friends and allies of Poland, instead of as invaders. But that the Russian Armies should stand on this line was clearly necessary for the safety of Russia against the Nazi menace.

Eastern Front Created

At any rate the line is there, and an Eastern Front has been created which Nazi Germany does not dare assail. When Herr von Ribbentrop [German Foreign Minister] was summoned to Moscow last week, it was to learn the fact, and to accept the fact, that the Nazi designs upon the Baltic states and upon the Ukraine must come to a dead stop.

I cannot forecast to you the action of Russia. It is a riddle wrapped in mystery inside an enigma; but perhaps there is a key. That key is Russian national interest. It cannot be in accordance with the interest or safety of Russia that Germany should plant itself upon the shores of the Black Sea, or that it should overrun the Balkan states and subjugate the Slavonic peoples of Southeastern Europe. That would be contrary to the historic life interests of Russia.

But here these interests of Russia fall into the same channel as the interests of Britain and France. None of these three powers can afford to see Rumania, Yugoslavia, Bulgarian, and above all Turkey, put under the German heel.

Through the fog of confusion and uncertainty we may discern quite plainly the community of interests which exists between England, France and Russia to prevent the Nazis from carrying the flames of war into the Balkans and Turkey. Thus, at some risk of being proved wrong by events, I will proclaim tonight my conviction that the second great fact of the first month of the war is that Hitler, and all that Hitler stands for, have been and are being warned off the East and Southeast of Europe.

Submarines Have Failed

What is the third event? Here I speak as First Lord of the Admiralty and with special caution. It would seem that the U-boat attack upon the life of the British Isles has not so far proved successful.

It is true that when they sprang out upon us and we were going about our ordinary business, with 2,000 ships in constant movement every day upon the seas, they managed to do some serious damage.

But the Royal Navy has immediately attacked the U-boats, and is hunting them night and day, I will not say without mercy—because God forbid we should ever part company with that—but at any rate with zeal and not altogether without relish. And it looks tonight very much as if it is the U-boats who are feeling the weather, and not the Royal Navy or the world-wide commerce of Britain.

A week has passed since a British ship, alone or in convoy, has been sunk or even molested by a U-boat on the high seas, and during the first month of the war we have captured by our efficient contraband control 150,000 tons more German merchandise—food, oil, minerals and other commodities—for our own benefit than we have lost by all the U-boat sinkings put together.

In fact, up to date—please observe I make no promises, we must deal in performances, not in promises—we have actually got 150,000 tons of very desirable supplies into this island more than we should have got if war had not been declared and if no U-boat had ever cast sailormen to their fate upon the stormy seas. This seems to be a very solid, tangible fact which has emerged from the first month of the war against Nazidom.

Attack Shifts to Neutrals

We are told that all the U-boats have gone home to tell their master about their exploits and their experiences. But that is not true, because every day, even on Sundays, we are attacking them upon the approaches to the British Isles. Some undoubtedly have preferred to go off and sink the unprotected neutral ships of Norway and Sweden. I hope the day will come when the Admiralty will be able to invite ships of all nations to join the British convoys and insure them on their voyages at a reasonable rate.

We must of course expect that the U-boat attack upon the seaborne commerce of the world will be renewed presently on a greater scale. We hope, however, that by the end of October we shall have three times as many hunting craft at work as we had at the beginning of the war; and by the measures we have taken we hope that our means of putting down this pest will grow continually. We are taking great care about that.

Therefore, to sum up the results of the first month, let us say that Poland has been overrun, but will rise again; that Russia has warned Hitler off his Eastern dreams; and that the U-boats may be safely left to the care and constant attention of the British Navy.

Now I wish to speak about what is happening in our own island. When a peaceful democracy is suddenly made to fight for its life there must be a lot of trouble and hardship in turning over from peace to war. I feel very keenly the reproaches of those who wish to throw themselves into the fight but for whom we cannot find full scope at the present time. All this will clear as we get into our stride.

To Make Maximum Effort

His Majesty's Government is unitedly resolved to make the maximum effort of which the British nation is capable, and to persevere, whatever may happen, until decisive victory is gained. Meanwhile patriotic men and women, especially those who understand the high causes in human fortunes which are at stake, must not only rise above fear, they must also rise above inconvenience and, perhaps most difficult of all, boredom.

Parliament will be kept in session and all grievances or muddles or scandals can be freely ventilated there. In past times the House of Commons has proved itself an instrument of national will power capable of waging stern wars.

Parliament is the shield and expression of democracy, and Ministers of the Crown base themselves upon the parliamentary system. You have seen the power of Parliament manifested in the last week, when a budget, gigantic in its burdens, a budget which would have infuriated everybody a year ago, has been accepted with prompt and stolid resolve.

In other fields our work goes forward. A large army has already gone to France. British armies upon the scale of the effort of the Great War are in preparation. The British people are determined to stand in the line with the splendid army of the French Republic, and share with them, as fast and as early as we can, whatever may be coming toward us both.

Air Attack Expected

It may be that great ordeals may be coming to us in this island from the air. We shall do our best to give a good account of ourselves, and we must always remember that the command of the seas will enable us to bring the immense resources of Canada and the New World into play as a decisive ultimate air factor beyond the reach of what we have to give and take over here.

Directions have been given by the government to prepare for a war of at least three years. That does not mean that victory may not be gained in a shorter time. How soon it will be gained depends upon how long Herr Hitler and his group of wicked men, whose hands are soiled with blood and corruption, can keep their grip upon the docile, unhappy German people.

It was for Hitler to say when the war would begin, but it is not for him nor his successors to say when it will end. It began when he wanted it, and it will end only when we are convinced that he has had enough.

The Prime Minister has stated our war aims in terms which cannot be bettered, and which cannot too often be repeated: "To redeem Europe from the perpetual and recurring fear of German aggression and enable the peoples of Europe to preserve their independence and their liberties." That is what the British and French nations are fighting for.

How often have we been told we are the effete democracies whose day is done, and who must now be replaced by various forms of virile dictatorship and totalitarian despotism. No doubt at the beginning we shall have to suffer, because of having too long wished to lead a peaceful life. Our reluctance to fight was mocked at as cowardice. Our desire to see an unarmed world was proclaimed as the proof of our decay.

Now we have begun: now we are going on; now with the help of God, and with the conviction that we are the defenders of civilization and freedom, we are going to persevere to the end.

Man Power Is United

After all, Great Britain and France together are eighty-five millions, even in their homelands alone. They are united in their cause and convinced of their duty. Nazidom, with all its tyrannical power, controls no more. They, too, have eighty-five millions, but of these at least sixteen millions, new conquered Czechs, Slovakians and Austrians, are writhing under their cruel yoke and have to be held down by main force.

We have the oceans, and the assurance that we can bring the vast latent power of the British and French Empires to bear upon the decisive points. We have the freely given, ardent support of the twenty millions of British citizens in the self-governing dominions of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. We have the heart and moral convictions of India on our side.

We believe we are entitled to the respect and good-will of the world, and particularly of the United States.

Better Than in 1914

Here I am in the same post as I was twenty-five years ago. Rough times lie ahead; but how different is the scene from that of October, 1914! Then the French front, with its small British army fighting in the line seemed to be about to break under the terrible impact of German imperialism. Then Russia had been laid low at Tannenberg. Then the whole might of the Austro-Hungarian Empire was in battle against us. Then the brave, war-like Turks were about to join our enemies.

Then we had to be ready night and day to fight a decisive sea battle with a formidable German fleet.

We faced those adverse conditions then. We have nothing worse to face tonight. In those days of 1914 also Italy was neutral but we did not know the reason for her neutrality.

It was only later on that we learned that by a secret clause in the original treaty of the Triple Alliance Italy had expressly reserved to herself the right to stand aside from any war which brought her into conflict with Great Britain.

Much has happened since then; misunderstandings and disputes have arisen but all the more do we appreciate in England the reasons why this great and friendly nation of Italy, with whom we have never been at war, has not seen fit to enter the struggle.

Strength Not Doubted

I do not underrate what lies before us; but I must say this: I cannot doubt we have the strength to carry a good cause forward and to break down the barriers which stand between the wage-earning masses of every land and a free and more abundant daily life.

Of all the wars that men have fought in their hard pilgrimage none was more noble than the great Civil War in America nearly eighty years ago. Both sides fought with the high conviction, and the war was long and hard. All the heroism of the South could not redeem their cause from the stain of slavery, just as all the courage and skill which the Germans always show in war will not free them from the reproach of nazism with its intolerance and brutality.

We may take good heart from what happened in America in those famous days of the nineteenth century. We may be sure that the world will roll forward into broader destinies. We may remember the words of old John Bright, after the American Civil War was over, when he said to an audience of English working folk:

"At last after the smoke of the battlefield had cleared away, the horrid shape which had cast its shadow over the whole continent had vanished and was gone forever."

HITLER IN SECRET PARLEY WITH CIANO PREPARES FOR 'FINAL PEACE OFFENSIVE'

OCT 2 1939

Duce Believed Cast For Role Of Chief Mediator With Allies

Tri-Power Desire To End "This Purposeless Conflict" Stressed

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Monday, Oct. 2—Italian Foreign Minister Count Galezzo Ciano arrived in Berlin yesterday and plunged immediately into secret conferences believed to hold the key to Führer Hitler's next move in the European war.

Ciano conferred first with Hitler and the German Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, in a meeting from which secretaries were dismissed and which lasted an hour and a half. Later he talked informally with von Ribbentrop alone.

The talks were held amid increasing indications that Premier Benito Mussolini might be about to step in as principal mediator for a "final peace offensive" by the Reich.

Emphasis On End To War

Informed quarters placed increasing emphasis on what was called the German-Russian-Italian desire to end "this purposeless conflict" at once.

It was noted that semi-official comment stressed the "European mission" of Mussolini, possibly hinting that he might take some initiative.

The Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, which often predicts what the Foreign Office is about to do, called Mussolini "the herald of the peoples who today constitute the real peace front."

Concrete Proposals Indicated

There were indications that Hitler was formulating some concrete proposals for communication to the Reichstag this week.

Official quarters said that Count Ciano's visit might last two days. After the conference with Hitler and von Ribbentrop in the Chancellery, Ciano was guest of honor at a dinner given by von Ribbentrop at his Dahlem suburban home. Only a limited number of guests attended, and after dinner informal discussions between the two Foreign Ministers were resumed.

Little Fanfare About Visit

There was little fanfare about Ciano's visit, and conferees got down to business immediately.

The Italian Foreign Minister wore a Fascist militia uniform with the Great Cross of the German Eagle when he arrived to be met by Heinrich Himmler, chief of the German secret police, and other high Nazis.

After a brief stop at Bellevue

Castle, where the Government lodges its official guests, Ciano hastened to the Foreign Office, where he conversed with von Ribbentrop for fifteen minutes before going to meet Hitler.

In official quarters the only positive statement forthcoming was that all angles of the German-Soviet accord of last week were being discussed, including the partition of Poland and the changed European situation resulting from German military and diplomatic moves.

The phrase "peace front" based on German-Soviet collaboration was heard increasingly. Observers held that Italy certainly would be a benevolent collaborator if not an actual member of any such front.

Hela Peninsula Falls

On the military front, the German high command reported the last center of Polish resistance had raised the white flag of surrender on Hela peninsula, which extends into the Baltic northwest of Danzig.

The report said Polish representatives had emerged after weeks of German siege to arrange for capitulation.

While Hitler, von Ribbentrop and Ciano were conferring, other German leaders were shaping policy toward Britain's arming of merchant ships. There were indications which some interpreted to mean Germany would regard all British ships as warcraft which might be sunk without warning.

Safety First In Sea Warfare

A spokesman said any vessel loses her civilian character when she has cannon aboard and said it would be too risky for any submarine commander to rise to the surface before launching a torpedo.

He emphasized, however, that Germany's official policy had not been determined yet.

One well-informed German said that for reasons of personal safety German submarines hardly could be expected, under the circumstances, to approach British vessels to ascertain whether they were armed before firing torpedoes.

He expressed the private opinion that submarine commanders, taking no chances, probably would try to sink any merchantman which flies the British flag.

Authoritative quarters said Ciano would stay in Berlin tomorrow, and possibly longer.

OCT 2 1939

Hammering On Peace Note

Comment in the officially inspired German press hammered away at the "hopelessness and senselessness" of France and Britain continuing their war on Germany now that Poland had been conquered.

Hitler's Völkischer Beobachter declared "the Moscow agreement not only is shouldered by the almost 300,000,000 people united in the great German Reich and the Soviet Union but it also finds approval from two other great powers (Japan and Italy) together with most of the neutrals. . . .

Confidence Rises In Germany

"Germany fought for her rights in the Polish war and now she fights beside the Soviet Union for peace."

Nazi quarters expressed the opinion that Germany and Russia had shown the way to peace but that if England and France failed to respond, Germany "is secure in the feeling that her unconquerable strength has nothing to fear."

Success of the German lightning war against Poland, the sinking of the British aircraft carrier Courageous and Soviet cooperation, which Germany said nullified the British naval blockade, have unleashed a surge of confidence throughout Germany.

Emphasis On Air Warfare

The only feature of the German army communique today was continued emphasis on aerial warfare in the fighting against Britain and France.

"Two French and ten British airplanes in the West and two British airplanes over the North Sea were brought down," the communique said. It acknowledged the loss also of two German planes. "Enemy artillery fire" near Saarbrucken was said to be "stronger."

The Polish defenders of Warsaw continued their disarmed exodus to German prison camps preparatory to German occupation of the city tomorrow. More than 100,000 Polish soldiers were said to have moved out of Warsaw already.

Speech To German Mothers

In a radio broadcast to German mothers, Hitler's chief deputy, Rudolf Hess, declared that "thanks to the army, German women and mothers with children can live securely in the Reich."

His speech was made in connection with the award of Nazi honor crosses to prolific mothers.

He said Germany's safety and a "guaranteed peace" were Hitler's aims and the reason the Führer had demanded sacrifices from German mothers.

"As far as we can see into the future, bloody fighting never again will occur on our eastern frontier," Hess declared. "The Führer took care that peace never again will be broken irresponsibly there.

"Never in history was such an immeasurable success achieved (as in the Polish campaign) with such little loss."

(Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill, told the House of Commons on Sept. 26 that British merchantmen were being armed. Saturday night the Admiralty said the German radio had broadcast an announcement that Germany now considered every British merchant vessel a "warship." It said it interpreted this as meaning possibly that there would be "an immediate change of policy in German submarine warfare."

(The 1936 international submarine convention, signed by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop for Germany in 1937, made no distinction between armed or unarmed merchant ships, and pledged that the signatories would not sink such vessels without first putting their passengers, crew and papers in a safe place.)

"Final" Peace Offer Seen

ROME, Oct. 1 (AP)—The belief that Premier Mussolini would transmit a "final offer" for peace from Chancellor Hitler to Britain and France increased today as Italy awaited the outcome of Count Ciano's visit to Berlin. Officials declared they regarded Italy as one of the "friendly powers" that Germany and Russia said they might ask to join efforts to settle the war.

Some diplomats expressed the opinion that an offer from Herr Hitler might have some unusual feature, since both sides seemed to agree there was not the slightest hope that Britain and France would accept peace overtures on the basis of Poland's partition.

Italy is concentrating on taking advantage of the war situation to make trade gains and build up her gold reserves. At present, supplying Britain and France with needed equipment seems the easiest way to get gold, and Italy's industrial efforts appear to be turning in that direction.

The Fascist press acclaimed new taxes, imposed to meet military expenses, as "tax paying mobilization" and a natural sequence to industrial mobilization for keeping the nation ready for all eventualities.

The new taxes were the second major step of the year by the government to get more ready money. The first was a general wage increase of from 6 to 10 per cent, ordered for all workers last Spring. A week after the increases, however, compulsory social insurance premiums were imposed on workers, which in most cases almost equaled the pay raises.

Social insurance benefits correspondingly were increased but these payments will not be made for many years. Augmented reserves of the government-controlled social security organizations are available for government borrowing.

As if to prepare Italians for participation in the German-Soviet collaboration, the newspaper Messaggero published an article today saying Italy had nothing to fear from Russia or pan-slavism.

Latvian Foreign Chief Off Today for Moscow Talks

Ports Likely To Be Discussed; Trade Increase Expected

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 1 (AP).—Latvia's Foreign Minister William Munters, is leaving for Moscow tomorrow to enter negotiations for clarification of Latvian-Soviet Russian relations, it was learned today.

Munters will seek to adjust new relations resulting from the Russian-Estonian pact of Sept. 28 which gave Russia air and naval bases at Baltiski and on the islands of Saare Maa and Hiluma, dominating the Gulf of Finland and the Gulf of Riga.

Increase in Trade Seen

Reliable Latvian sources at Helsingfors, Finland, reported the Soviet-Latvian negotiations were expected to result in a greatly increased exchange of goods.

The Latvian trade centers, Ventspils (Windau) and Liepaja (Libau), it was reported, were likely to be among the principal topics of negotiation. Windau is a port near the Gulf of Riga, now dominated by Russia's air and naval bases at Saare Maa. Libau is a Latvian commercial center on the coast near the Lithuanian border.

In the Estonian-Soviet pact, Estonia gave Soviet Russia important transit privileges to her ports. Observers have speculated whether Soviet Russia might not seek similar privileges in Latvia, if she wished to extend her influence in the Baltic now that an important advance has been made through Estonia.

Reds and Turks Confer On Status of Black Sea

Moscow, Oct. 1 (AP).—Soviet Russia, believing she holds the balance of power in Europe, resumed negotiations with Turkey tonight in the mile-a-minute diplomatic developments here which have startled the world.

Having effected close relations with Nazi Germany in a pact which notified the Western Powers of the "settled fate" of Poland, and having acquired a dominant position in the North Baltic through a trade pact with Estonia which allows Russian air and naval bases there, U. S. S. R. diplomats turned their attention to the Balkans and the Black Sea in the South.

Follows Hitler Envoy.

Sukru Saracoglu, Turkey's Foreign Minister, who had waited impatiently while German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop concluded a pact for "peace" in Poland, entered the Kremlin at 6 P. M. (11 A. M. New York time).

He came for a conference with Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff.

Tass, Soviet news agency, said the conversation, in which Josef Stalin participated, lasted for more than four hours.

Other participants were Vice Comissar Vladimir Potemkin and the Soviet Ambassador to Turkey and the Turkish Ambassador to Moscow.

The meeting delayed the previously scheduled departure of the Turkish envoys, who met with French and British envoys here yesterday in a mysterious conference.

[A report from Riga said Latvia's Foreign Minister, William Munters, also would leave tomorrow for Moscow to discuss Latvian-Russian relations needing clarification since Estonia gave permission to Russia to set up air and naval bases on two of her islands and in one of her ports.]

Diplomatic circles said Russia was seeking an agreement with Turkey to strengthen the Soviet position in the Black Sea. They said Russia would strive to prevent Ankara from reaching any agreement with Great Britain and France that would leave the Dardanelles, entrance to the Black Sea, open to their warships in the event of conflict with Russia.

Reports that neither the Russian nor Rumanian capitals would confirm said Rumania's Foreign Minister, Grigore Gafencu, would arrive here within the next two days. Should he arrive, diplomatic quarters expected Russia to present a plan to keep the Balkans neutral, under the leadership of the Kremlin, and calling for the return of Bessarabia to Russian rule. The territory, which contains rich oil fields, was awarded to Rumania after the World War.

Far from showing any concern over developments on the Soviet diplomatic front, British and French foreign quarters asserted they would be pleased if the jockeying resulted in localizing the war to western Europe.

Reports indicated that Russia had begun an anti-religious campaign on the newly-won Polish Ukraine and White Russian territories. "Pravda," the only Moscow newspaper published today, gave prominence to a speech by Emelyan Yaroslavsky, head of the "Godless League," in which he said the Polish landlord class had forced religion on the peasant workers. He declared the areas were kept in a form of "medieval oppression." More than 11,000,000 have been "liberated," Yaroslavsky said.

"Priests for twenty years told lies about the Soviet Union, where freedom of religion exists," he declared, "but we must explain to the liberated peasants and workers the church has never done anything for them in their fight for liberty."

The staff of the Polish Embassy, which has remained here during hostilities, hoped to leave on Tuesday.

Sikorski Hopes To Recruit 200,000 Poles In U. S. And Canada

They're "Our Last Card, We're Going To Play It," Says Ge[illegible]

Paris, Oct. 1—Gen. Wladislaw Sikorski, new Premier of the Polish Government in exile, declared today he hopes to raise an army of 200,000 Poles in the United States and Canada to fight against Germany.

"There are 5,000,000 Polish citizens in Canada and the United States," General Sikorski said in an informal interview. "These Poles are our last card and we are going to play it.

"We hope to raise from eight to ten divisions of from 15,000 to 20,000 men each in Canada and the United States."

At $1.25-A-Day Hotel

General Sikorski, noted as a military tactician, was named Premier yesterday after Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz was given the oath of office of President of Poland in succession to Dr. Ignace Moscicki. He also is commander-in-chief of Polish forces in France.

The interview took place in the general's modest hotel in the Left Bank quarter.

He said frankly he was staying at the small hotel a block from the Seine because "it only costs me 55 francs (approximately $1.25), everything included, and in its present condition I don't think the Polish Government could stand very much more than that."

Bayonets And Cowardice

A widely known writer on the strategy of modern mechanized warfare, General Sikorski paid a tight-lipped soldier's tribute to the Polish troops' resistance against the Germans.

"An infantry which attacks with bayonets certainly is not an infantry of cowards," he declared.

Sikorski said he personally ordered large numbers of Polish officers to remain in the country to organize guerrilla warfare.

He said enough trained officers to man five or six divisions had escaped and were on their way to France.

already have been raised in France, he asserted, and more are being organized.

General Sikorski planned to confer tomorrow at the French War Ministry with Premier Daladier on the length of the new Government's stay on French soil. He gave the impression he expected the Government to remain for the duration of the war.

The Premier sent a letter to Ignace Jan Paderewski, noted pianist and former Polish Premier, now in Switzerland, asking for his support of the new Government.

Berlin Takes Bucharest To Task Over Moscicki

Bucharest, Oct. 1 (AP)—Diplomatic sources today reported Germany had protested to the Rumanian Government for permitting Dr. Ignace Moscicki to resign the Presidency of Poland and name a successor while a refugee on Rumanian soil.

The German protest was said to have charged that the former Polish President's action violated Rumanian neutrality, since it enabled a legal Polish Government to be set up in Paris.

Moscicki resigned yesterday and named Wladislaw Raczkiewicz as his successor. The former President had been kept in "limited" domicile after fleeing to Rumania before Germany's advancing armies, but following his resignation Moscicki departed for Paris yesterday.

At the same time the German consulate at Constanza, Rumania's main Black Sea port, was reported to have prevented 150 Polish army officers from departing, presumably for France.

Though the Polish officers' papers were in order Rumanian officials were said to have halted their sailing upon complaint by the German consul.

A report of an attempted personal attack by an enraged officer on Poland's field marshal, Edward Smigly-Rydz, in their internment hotel at Craiova was brought to Bucharest by foreign witnesses. The man was restrained by fellow officers.

Smigly-Rydz Tragic Figure

The foreign observers said the marshal was a tragic, broken, lonesome man in exile, who eats at a separate table and is left almost entirely to himself.

Poland's Foreign Minister, Col. Josef Beck, was reported in "protective custody" at Slanic.

The refugee arrivals from Craiova said the field marshal and other ranking officers of the Polish General Staff are restricted to residence in the city's largest hotel. They are permitted to use the dining room and lobby under the eyes of plain-clothed guards.

Marshal Smigly-Rydz rarely joins other members of the staff in conversation either in the lobby or in their rooms, the refugees said.

Many Shun Their Ex-Chief

Many Polish officers were reported to shun their former supreme commander because they hold him responsible for the quick demoralization and rout of the Polish armies under the attacks of the German invaders.

Others were said to be outspoken against the field marshal because of his flight to Rumania while shattered and badly battered Polish units were still in Poland, surrounded and doomed but fighting desperately.

Many Polish refugees here said they could not understand why the commander in chief did not join one of the fighting units around Warsaw or Lwow of fly to France to reorganize the Polish legion.

Rumanian Government officials are maintaining a strict prohibition of political activities by the refugee Polish leaders.

Over 12,000 Interned

Besides the leaders, approximately 12,000 other Polish army officers and men are interned by the Rumanian Government. Also held by the Rumanians were a large number of planes and other army equipment brought over the border. Approximately 5,000 of the refugees are Air Corps officers and personnel.

It was reported the planes and equipment would be taken over by the Rumanian army and credited against expenses incurred by the Rumanians in providing quarters for the officers and men.

French "Improve Positions" With Attack In Saarelouis Section

OCT 2 1939

[By The Associated Press]

Paris, Oct. 1—French military circles studied reports tonight that the number of German troops on the Western Front had been doubled in the four weeks since the war began.

German front-line strength in the west was now estimated by observers in Paris at fifty divisions, or well over 1,000,000 men, at least.

These reports were given scrutiny as military dispatches described how the French had improved their positions in the salient west of the German city of Saarelouis—which is the western jaw of the pincers the French General Staff hopes to clamp onto Saarbrücken.

The unexpected attack in the sector, dotted by rugged hills some of which are 1,200 feet high, was said to have gained new positions without great difficulty.

Reserves Massed Behind Lines

In addition to the 1,000,000 or more Germans in the front lines, military circles said, there were large numbers of reserves grouped in concentration centers from thirty to fifty miles behind the lines.

The prevailing opinion of French military commentators was that the heavy reinforcements of the Siegfried Line were more in fear of a possible large-scale French attack than in preparation for a German drive.

The Nazi command, these reports said, was moving men into Siegfried Line positions in increasingly large numbers every night under cover of darkness.

Each Side Warily Waiting

But each side appeared to be waiting warily for the other to strike the first heavy blow.

The French attack west of Saarelouis was described by the French General Staff as a local operation which "improved our positions."

The night communique added tersely, however, that except for artillery fire it was a "calm day."

Apparently this meant the French had succeeded in the more or less delicate operation of widening their Saarelouis salient without provoking a serious German reaction.

A study of the map shows that the present French positions along the almost mile-long shelf which drops abruptly to the Saar river in this sector would be difficult to attack if the last German stronghold on it has been cleaned out.

Forward Wedge Widened

The French first opened up the salient September 16, with a drive down the Nied River Valley. Throughout the last two weeks they held a narrow point in the angle where the Nied flows into the Saar river, strengthening their positions meanwhile.

Last night's attack reportedly drove the Germans out of their pillboxes and widened the French forward wedge to some 1,500 yards.

The French said they now held a "balcony position" overlooking Saarelouis, Pachten, Dillingen, Roden and Wallefrangen, towns along the Saar river, which runs parallel to the French border about five miles inside Germany.

War In Air Intensified

Air battles for the last two or three days, French military circles said, have been growing in intensity, with a maximum number of twenty planes engaged in a mass flight high over the lines Saturday.

The French said their pilots distinguished themselves by individual feats of valor. One French flyer said he was unable to pull out of a dive and was forced to land, but took off immediately and shot down his opponent, who had been circling overhead.

Another French pilot whose plane was shot down said he jumped with his parachute and made his way back to his squadron. He took off on a flight the next morning in a new plane and shot down a German Messerschmidt, he reported.

Parley At War Ministry

Premier Edouard Daladier today held another military conference at the War Ministry, attended by Generalissimo Maurice Gustave Gamelin and Gen. Joseph Vuillemin, chief of the air force.

OCT 2 1939

The new Polish government, established on French soil after the resignation in exile of President Ignace Moscicki, attended mass in the Polish church in Paris, where the priest asked divine aid to "deliver the fatherland from invading barbarian hordes."

Heading the group of Polish officials was President Wladislaw Raczkiewicz, who was appointed by Moscicki as his successor. Others present included the new Premier, Gen. Wladislaw Sikorski, and the Polish Ambassador to Paris, Julius Lukasiewicz.

2,000 Sing Polish Anthem

The church was hung with Polish flags and thronged by Polish residents of Paris and members of the volunteer legion which is to fight with the British-French forces against Germany. The volunteers wore regulation French army uniforms except that Polish eagles decorated their caps.

After the religious service, the priest followed the new Government leaders out to the church steps where he led the congregation in three cheers for the new President. Then the assembled crowd of 2,000 persons sang the Polish national anthem.

Reporter Sees Red Army Swarm Into Poland, a Million Strong

Declares Three-Fourths of Invaders Are Asiatics and Advance Resembles United States Civil War Armies; Political Commissars Share Command

OCT 2 1939

By Melvin K. Whiteleather

Associated Press Correspondent

BREST-LITOVSK, Russia, Oct. 1.—I have passed two and a half days with the marching Red Army in Polish White Russia, drinking vodka for breakfast, tea for lunch and dinner and eating hardtack. Incidentally, I got a sidelight on what many statesmen would like to know—how powerful is the Red Army?

I am going to fly with this story to a communication means from the marshland of what until Sept. 17 was eastern Poland. The only communication abroad from this section is a military telephone with Moscow.

Since Sept. 24 I have traveled 900 miles in Poland, part of it behind the Russian lines. Soviet Russia appeared to be pouring well over one million men with full equipment into her share of the partitioned Polish state. Some estimates were nearer two million men, which would seem to mean that Russia must have an army exceeding five million in all.

The Communist troops are literally swarming over stony, dusty roads. They are marching day and night, division after division, from the interior of the U. S. S. R., giving the impression of an endless chain of human beings plodding toward some mecca. I saw troops who had marched 200 miles and yet were comparatively fresh. They lolled along roadsides, in fields or bivouacs and slept in wagons as they moved.

Soldiers gnawing hard black bread and drinking tea around campfires at night, with guns stacked near by and supply trains resting with horses feeding gave a picture similar to descriptions of American Civil War armies. Such sights are never seen in Nazi Germany's almost 100 per cent mechanized armed forces.

The army looked as if it were three-fourths Asiatic and one-fourth European. The army I saw was Asiatic in its tremendous man power, the number of horses, including cavalry, in the lack of specialization and motorized infantry. It was western in its motorized heavy artillery—of which there were large quantities drawn by tractors—in the standardization of equipment and plentiful modern anti-tank guns. But these latter were horse-drawn. It was also western in the tank and armored car equipment, which were of different construction than the German, French and British.

Supply trains were lightly loaded and chiefly horse-drawn. This and the fact that the infantry was not motorized accounted for the slow advance toward Russia's new western frontier.

Fleets of trucks modeled after the lightest types in the United States preceded the main army with supplies. They carried gasoline, of which there apparently was a plentiful supply.

In sixty hours I saw more broken-down machinery either lying along the roads or being towed than I had seen in the German Army altogether from the Saar occupation in 1935 through the remilitarization of the Rhineland, the annexation of Austria, the occupation of Bohemia-Moravia and the Polish war. Bad roads may be responsible for this.

Tanks, armored cars, trucks and wagons screamed for grease on the dusty highways.

Remarkable also was the Red Army discipline. Troops marched quietly and seemingly without great curiosity. Officers are few, and no one appears to give orders. Yet there is a sort of automatic discipline that contrasts sharply with the stern Prussian brand.

There are no generals—just commanders. And salutes are few and far between. Russian soldiers are not obliged to salute commanders, but can do so if they wish.

Privates Eat With Commanders

In Brest-Litovsk, headquarters for ten divisions, a night club has been turned into a restaurant where any member of the Red Army may eat—providing he can pay for the meal. There privates and commanders eat together. At meantime, it is filled with men and women who want more than the army rations, although the latter appeared sufficient with soup, meat, potatoes, stewed fruit, tea, butter, black bread when the men are not on the march. When marching, they have soup, tea, black bread and korschik, or hardtack.

The commanding officer of an army group is not the master in his own house. Beside him is a political commissar who nods assent before anything not strictly strategic can be carried out. The political commissar remains at the elbow of the commander even at the front. Before the latter would permit his picture to be made. He obtained the consent of the political comrade.

The Russian army has not had to fight to win back White Russia and the Ukraine, which were given to Poland after the World War. The troops have marched along main roads, taking more than 100,000 prisoners.

The fixing of the new Polish-German boundary some distance to the east of the earlier limits of the military demarcation line will not impose a hardship on the red army, for it has gotten beyond the new frontier at only a few points.

Poles Take Pot-Shots at Reds

Wherever the military line was reached and the greetings were exchanged with German officers, it was only a small detachment that had advanced that far.

Off the main roads, bands of Polish soldiers still are roaming, taking pot-shots at the Russians. Some have donned civilian clothes. As a disguise, they wear red arm bands as do local militiamen and officials who have climbed aboard the Communist band wagon. Five Russian soldiers were shot last Friday in this vicinity by such Poles. The Russians thought they were local Communists. Sniping in the villages and towns also is taking a small toll. The automobile in which I was riding was fired upon from a window in the cented of Brest-Litovsk.

Contrary to the German practice, the Russians are releasing Polish soldiers taken prisoners. Haggard groups, aided by tree branches as walking sticks, plug along all day long on roads leading to the west from Brest-Litvosk. The soldiers are released unconditionally, but Polish officers must sign a paper stating they have no weapons and will not take up arms against Russia. Ten thousand were freed in one day from one camp.

RED ARMY IN POLAND HAS WOMEN'S FORCES

Units Consist Mostly of Aviators and Chauffeurs

WHITECHAPEL

BREST-LITOVSK, In Russian-occupied Poland, Oct. 1 (AP)—Ruddy-cheeked Communist women are included in the Red Army forces sent into Poland in the Soviet Russian invasion from the east.

Joseph Stalin dispatched part of the women's forces in the army to help occupy this former Polish section of the White Russian Ukraine. The women are chiefly aviators and chauffeurs.

Seven women aviators and a number of chauffeurs are stationed in the sectional army headquarters here.

OCT 2 1939

They have separate quarters and wear two types of uniforms—one of regular Red Army style and the other with a skirt. The women fliers were said to perform their duties of flying bombing planes, bombing and machine-gunning under war conditions as competently as their military brothers.

This correspondent was driven about the streets of Brest-Litovsk by a broad-faced, red-cheeked, smiling girl of about 19. She wore a regular uniform. Her army cap fitted neatly over her clipped hair.

She handled the automobile as expertly as she did the cigarette stuck in a corner of her mouth. She appeared capable of handling the revolver strapped about her waist equally well.

Despite the equality which governs the Red Army, the feminine corps receives a little more attention than the men.

French Censors Do Not Bother U. S. Reporters

OCT 2 1939

They Write as They Please on War, but News Sources Are Dry, Front Is Closed

OCT. 1 CASSIDY

PARIS (Correspondence of The Associated Press).—American correspondents are writing pretty much as they please about the European war. Military censorship has been in effect since Aug. 28, a week before Germany invaded Poland and France and Great Britain declared war on the Reich, but for the Americans it has been very lenient.

Without going through the formalities of having their dispatches stamped by a censor, they send their stories directly to New York. So far as headquarters is concerned, they may express opinions or comment freely on the general staff communiques.

Only in case of mention of specific locations or operations is there a hitch. Then the French operator may ask that the article be submitted to censors before he transmits it. These cases are few.

The real censorship lies at the sources of news, which have dried up rapidly. No correspondent has yet been permitted to go to the front. All news from the Ministries has been centralized with the censorship. The French news agencies carry only officially authorized reports.

Censorship has become a "big business" of this war. The main office, with a large staff, is installed in a Paris hotel. There is a branch at the Ministry of Post, Telegraph and Telephone. At the top of the set up is the General Information Service, headed by Jean Giraudoux, author and diplomat. His service is divided into seven departments.

The fourth division is the press censorship. It is headed by Col. de Massignac, who served as liaison officer with the British troops in France and later with the French troops in Italy during the World War. Short and sandy-haired, he wears a blue reserve uniform.

Under Col. de Massignac are sixty censors, retired army officers, former prefects, lawyers and other professional men, who read half a dozen languages and have a wide knowledge. They pass on French newspapers before they appear, censor all but American dispatches before they are sent abroad and read copies of the American articles, after they have been sent, to keep a check on news appearing in the United States.

For dispatches going through the censorship, the system works in this manner:

A cyclist, with a special pass, carries four copies of each story to the censorship headquarters. The story is taken by a guard to a central office. A secretary relays it into the censor's room. The censor blue-pencils out material which he decides should not be sent, keeps three copies of the article, stamps the fourth and returns it to the cyclist to be carried to the transmission point.

It takes anywhere from fifteen minutes to two hours for a story to go through. The Associated Press dispatches, free from this routine, reach the New York office soon after they are written in Paris.

THE FRENCH PRESS, WHICH ONCE PROVIDED A FUND OF INFORMATION FOR FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS, IS CENSORED SEVERELY. GAPING WHITE SPACES APPEAR IN THE NEWSPAPERS. SOME OF THE PAPERS EXPLAIN TO THEIR READERS BY INSERTING IN THE EMPTY COLUMNS A SKETCH OF AN OLD LADY WITH A PAIR OF SCISSORS HELD OPEN AND READY TO SNIP.

PARIS-OCT-1-CASSIDY'S

AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS ARE LITERALLY WRITING ON THEIR HONOR.

CENSORSHIP HEADQUARTERS HAS MADE CLEAR THAT THEIR PRESENT FREEDOM WILL BE LOST IF DISPATCHES GO BEYOND THE BOUNDS OF MILITARY SECRECY. BUT IN THE FIRST WEEKS OF THE WAR THERE HAVE BEEN NO COMPLAINTS AND THE SYSTEM APPEARS TO BE DEFINITE.

OCT 2 1939

THE PERSONS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE CENSORSHIP ACKNOWLEDGE PRIVATELY THAT THEY ARE PLEASED WITH THE RESULTS. THEY SAY THEY FEEL THAT THEIR "PRESS" IN THE UNITED STATES HAS BEEN MORE FAVORABLE THAN IF THEY SUBMITTED EVERY DISPATCH TO SCRUTINY.

Torpedo Sinks Danish Ship; 11 Of Crew Killed

OCT 2 1939

Report of U-Boat's Attack Comes as Nazis Capture 6 Other Neutral Vessels

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 1 (AP).—Ritzaus, Danish news agency, said tonight a submarine had sunk the Danish steamship Vendia in the North Sea yesterday, killing eleven of her crew. The agency said the attack took place near Hanstholm and off the northwest coast of Denmark. Survivors said the attacking craft was German.

The Vendia, a 1,150-ton vessel belonging to the Associated Coal Importers, of Copenhagen, was empty. She was bound for Clyde, Scotland, for coal.

The Vendia was believed to have been the first Danish ship to be torpedoed in the present war. Six survivors arriving in Copennagen tonight brought the first word of the sinking. They had been rescued by the submarine and later transferred to another Danish ship which the U-boat halted.

The news agency said the U-boat fired two warning shells over the Vendia's bow and then, when the ship turned broadside, fired a torpedo which struck the engine room. The ship sank immediately. The eleven men lost were believed to have been killed by the explosion.

The sinking of the Vendia came on the same day that the Germans, operating in the Kattegat, a stretch of sea between Denmark and Sweden forming an entrance to the Baltic, seized three Danish steamships carrying butter and bacon to England. They were taken to a German port. A fourth Danish steamship, the Lynas, bound for the Netherlands with wood pulp, also was seized.

Ritzaus also reported from Helsingfors that German warships had seized the 4,000-ton Finnish steamship Orient yesterday and had taken her to the German port of Cuxhaven. Carrying wood pulp, the Orient was bound for South America, but was scheduled to call at Antwerp, Belgium.

Ship Hits Mine; Six Die

THE HAGUE, Oct. 1 (AP).—A naval officer and five seaman were killed today when the Netherlands mine sweeper Jan Van Gelder struck a floating mine near the island of Terschelling, off the northern coast of Holland.

A government press service announcement said the 525-ton ship was damaged severely and that four of her crew were injured, three seriously. Two bodies were recovered. The sweeper was towed into West Terschelling harbor.

The Netherlands sweeper Willem Van Ewijck was sunk by a mine in the same area on Sept. 8 with a loss of thirty men.

ANTWERP, Oct. 1 (AP).—The Shipping Council of Antwerp announced tonight that the 5,965-ton Belgian motorship Alex Van Opstal, sunk off Weymouth, England, on Sept. 15, struck a mine and was not torpedoed.

The ship, which was en route from the United States, was one of the best in the Belgian merchant marine.

Scot Runs for Commons On 'Stop-War' Platform

GLASGOW, Oct. 1 (AP).—Andrew Stewart, twenty-seven-year-old pacifist, announced his candidacy today on a "Stop the war" platform for a Commons vacancy caused by the death of L. MacNeill Weir, Laborite.

The major parties recently announced a political truce not to contest by-elections during war time.

Stewart's candidacy was approved Sunday night at a meeting here of the Scottish Anti-War and No-Conscription League Council.

gave practical, if not final approval, to a draft of a new proposal opposing inclusion of foodstuffs and clothing, not intended for the actual conduct of hostilities in belligerent contraband lists.

The proposal is to be forwarded to the permanent neutrality committee which would make specific recommendations to each nation.

The neutrality sub-committee, after a long night session, approved a Mexican proposal that another consultation meeting be held in Havana in October of next year.

Chile was urging that a fifty-mile zone be drawn about the American continent as a "safety band" for American commerce, to be patrolled by naval ships.

And that may not be the end. Officials predict that if the war continues for a long period the price of rubber will advance further. Cotton, on the other hand, is not expected to advance much, if any, above current levels. Some fear the price may drop because of huge world supplies and prospects for a slump in consumption in Europe.

Actual Exchange

First steps will be taken next week to effect the actual exchange of the cotton and rubber. Two British ships are to load 40,000 bales of cotton at New Orleans. American boats are expected to pick up the first shipment of rubber at Singapore about October 15.

The object of the barter was to help each nation build up a reserve supply of strategic war materials for use in case of conflict. Inasmuch as Britain is at war, that nation is free to use the cotton now. The United States, however, cannot dispose of the rubber, except with the consent of the British Government, until seven years after date of the agreement unless this country, meantime, goes to war.

These limitations on use of the exchanged products were designed to avoid disturbance of markets during peacetime.

arms embargo have objected to permitting any credit whatsoever to belligerents. On the other hand, Senator Adams (Dem., Col.), who has announced he will vote to do away with the embargo, demanded today that the finance and transport restrictions apply only to purchases of war materials.

"There is no reason why those provisions should apply to wheat and other products like that," Adams declared. "If we want to put a cash-and-carry system into effect for arms and war materials, that is all right. But we have spent millions of dollars building up the American merchant marine and now we propose to intern practically every American ship."

As reported by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the bill would forbid American ships to carry any supplies to belligerents. Sponsors of this provision contend that keeping American shipping out of the danger zones in the European war will eliminate one of the chief potential causes for American involvement—the sinking of American ships.

Senator Pittman (Dem., Nev.), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, is expected to bear heavily on this point when he

Revision Is Essential, Smith Informs Nation

U. S. Urged To Back President On Neutrality Because "He Is So Clearly Right"

OCT 2 1939

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Oct. 1—Alfred E. Smith appealed to Americans tonight to "stand solidly behind" President Roosevelt in his effort to amend the Neutrality Act because "he is so clearly right."

Speaking over a nation-wide radio network, Smith added:

"I urge this with all the sincerity I possess, with the profound conviction that I speak for the good of and sound judgment and of patriotism," Smith asserted, "that only those who lack an understanding of the issue will oppose them."

Doesn't Want Quibbling

Smith said he was not interested personally in arguments for a return to the principles of international law, since "there is no respect for international law at this time."

Similarly, he said, he took no stock in "quibbling over constitutional questions in connection with the proposed substitute for the present Neutrality Act."

OCT 2 1939

"I am not the least bit interested in the language of any of the acts so far suggested, nor for that matter in any act that may hereafter be suggested, as to its details," Mr. Smith continued. "What I am interested in, however, is that course which is best calculated to keep us from being drawn into the European war.

Calls For Prompt Action

"This is no time for technicalities. We should have a prompt decision by Congress on the merits. In a crisis there is no time for legalistic hair-splitting. Let Congress go straight to the real issue and let Congress decide it, because, after all, Congress speaks for all the people of the country; that is my understanding of democratic, representative government.

"The Neutrality Act as it stands today prevents the sale to a belligerent nation of any completed implements of war, but it allows the sale of many types of uncompleted implements of war, as well as all kinds of general materials and supplies.

"These words are taken from the speech of the President of the United States when Congress convened last week.

Panama Conferees Accept General Outline, Meet Today to Chart Details

PANAMA CITY, Oct. 1 (AP).—Delegates of all the twenty-one American republics represented at the inter-American neutrality conference here reached full agreement tonight on the general phases of neutrality proposals to shield the western hemisphere from the European war.

The neutrality decisions, creating the most sweeping common policies ever adopted for the twenty-one American republics, are to be ironed out in detail at sub-committee meetings tomorrow and submitted to a final public plenary session Tuesday afternoon.

Sumner Welles, Under Secretary of State and head of the United States delegation, said that the mechanics of all proposals had already been agreed upon. After tonight's sessions of the neutrality and preservation of peace sub-committees a "remarkable" harmony enabled all the republics to make surprising headway toward agreements, Welles said.

The United States proposal to bar submarines from American ports was expected to be placed on an individual country basis, instead of continental. The Argentines favored admission of submarines provided they are afloat and flying their national flag.

Rubber Value Increased Sharply, While Cotton Prices Decline

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Oct. 1—Uncle Sam's agreement to swap 680,000 bales of surplus cotton to John Bull for 82,000 tons of rubber is beginning to look like a clever Yankee trick. At current prices, Samuel already has a $20,000,000 advantage.

When the agreement was signed last June 23, those quantities of cotton and rubber were of about equal value in world markets. But the war has changed that.

Rubber, being a highly important war material, has increased in value by more than thirty per cent. since the deal was made. The New York price has advanced from 15.48 cents a pound to 21 cents. On the other hand, cotton has declined from 9.58 cents a pound to 8.85.

Rubber Worth More

Agriculture Department officials said that on the basis of prices prevailing at New York Friday, the rubber the United States will get is worth about $9,052,000 more than when the trade was made while the cotton that Great Britain will get is worth about $10,344,800 less.

Irish Prelate Says Finish Fight Would Hamper It

LONDONDERRY, Ireland, Oct. 1 (AP).—Joseph Cardinal MacRory declared today there was more hope for a "just peace now than if the war were fought to a finish."

The Cardinal said in a sermon: "Poor Poland's plight is a great difficulty to peace now, but it will be almost as great a difficulty in three or four years, hence there seems to be more hope for a just peace now than if the war were fought to a finish, because then it would be in all probability a victor's peace."

OCT 2 1939

He prayed that all Ireland would do nothing to damage the country's peace and urged: "All good Christians should pray that the war be brought speedily to an end and followed by a just peace."

Arms for Credit Splits Both Sides On Embargo Bill

OCT 2 1939

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1 (AP).—A growing chorus of criticism of the credit and carry provisions of the Neutrality Bill indicated today that these sections might be even greater points of contention than the arms embargo when the Senate begins debate at 1 P. M. tomorrow.

Both sides on the question of repealing the ban on arms shipments to warring nations already have split over the proposal to grant 90-day credits to belligerents and to require them to provide transportation for their purchases.

Some supporters of the Administration's request for repeal of the

When Pittman has concluded, Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho) will outline the opposition's viewpoint. He is expected to base much of his argument on the contention that repeal of the embargo would be the first of a series of steps likely to lead this country into war.

As both sides prepared for the opening of what is expected to be the nation which we all love."

Breaks His Silence

It was the Happy Warrior's first public utterance favoring an Administration policy since he "took a walk" from the Democratic party in the 1936 Presidential election and campaigned against Mr. Roosevelt, his former close personal and political friend.

The 1928 Democratic Presidential nominee declared bluntly "the present Neutrality Act does not work."

30.24-3783

"He further says that the present law allows such products of industry and agriculture to be taken in American ships to bellierent nations and he concludes that herein lies the definite danger, not only to our neutrality, but to our peace.

World War Cited

"I am unable, in the light of history, to understand how that statement can be successfully disputed.

"Let us go back into history. Many reasons were advanced as the cause of our entering the World War nearly twenty-two years ago.

"Nobody can truthfully say, in the light of history, that Woodrow Wilson was anxious to plunge this country into the World War. In fact, he leaned in the directly opposite way.

"In the latter part of January of 1917 Germany announced to the United States that she was going to begin on February 1 unrestricted submarine warfare in the zone around the British Isles, and undertook to specify the route which a restricted number of American ships might take through this zone.

Reaction Of Wilson

"When the secretary to the President brought that Associated Press bulletin to the White House and showed it to the President, he said: 'This means war. The break that we have tried so hard to prevent now seems inevitable.'

"Here we are, under the present Neutrality Act, facing that exact situation. The law as it now stands allows supplies to a belligerent country to be carried in American ships; supplies which will be needed for the prosecution of the war, although not named in the Neutrality Act.

"But all of that seems to be beside the question in view of the attitude of the German Government as shown by the destruction of two Swedish steamships. The attitude of Berlin to the sinking of these two ships clearly indicates that the German Government does not recognize any difference between the goods covered by the American embargo and the goods that are not covered by the embargo.

Danger To Shipping

"That means that anything delivered to belligerent nations in American ships puts the ship in danger of destruction, and means the loss of the lives of American seamen.

"I believe that we should prevent the transportation in American ships of any goods of any kind, war goods or other goods, contraband or non-contraband, or any passengers to the warring nations.

"It is undoubtedly the absence of such a law in 1917 that brought us into the World War.

"There is only one way of avoiding a repetition of this experience, and that is by keeping American ships and American passengers out of trade with belligerents.

"The distinction between contraband and non-contraband, war material and non-war material, is essentially the bunk. As a matter of fact, the Swedish boats were carrying lumber and that was declared to be contraband of war because it is used for shoring in coal mines which produce fuel necessary for the production of war materials.

Stand By Germans

"As I have said, in this war the Germans have already declared there is no such distinction as far as they are concerned. They take the position—if I read the papers aright—that everything routed to the British Isles is contraband of war, and they put it upon the ground that no belligerent can afford to buy anything at the present time that is not absolutely necessary to the prosecution of the war.

"In view of this, and in the light of the German attitude to the sinking of the Swedish ships, those who oppose amendment to the present Neutrality Act are compelled to take the position let them sink the ships. Those who desire the Neutrality Act amended take the position that we will not let the ships go where they can be sunk.

"Under these circumstances we should keep American ships and American passengers out of the export business and let the purchasers come and get what they need by paying cash and carrying it away in their own ships.

Two Courses Open

". . . The question before Congress is which of the two measures is better calculated to keep us out of war—the present Neutrality Act or the amendments suggested by the President.

"It is because I firmly believe in my heart and soul that the amendments suggested by the President are best calculated to save us from the scenes that we witnessed in 1917, when our American boys were starting for France, that I am at this microphone tonight, appealing to the American people to stand solidly behind the President, because he is so clearly right, so obviously on the side of common sense and sound judgment and of partiotism that only those who lack an understanding of the issue will oppose him.

"I urge this with all the sincerity I possess, with the profound conviction that I speak for the good of the nation which we all love." ✱

WASHINGTON, OCT. 1-(AP)-THE INDUSTRIAL MOBILIZATION PLAN--THE NATION'S BLUEPRINT FOR WAR-HAS BEEN SIMPLIFIED AND BROUGHT UP TO DATE.

A COPY OF THE 1939 EDITION, WHICH IS UNDER SCRUTINY OF THE NEWLY-CREATED WAR RESOURCES BOARD, SHOWED TODAY THAT IT DIFFERED FROM RECENT PREVIOUS PLANS IN THESE RESPECTS:

IT IS BRIEFER, MORE DIRECT AND LESS DETAILED IN CHARTING METHODS OF PUTTING THE COUNTRY'S RESOURCES BEHIND THE ARMY AND NAVY IN THE EVENT OF WAR.

OCT 2 1939

IT STRESSED GENERAL PROCEDURE AND PRINCIPLES, RATHER THAN DETAILED PLAN OF ACTION.

IT PLACES INCREASED EMPHASIS UPON USING EXISTING PEACETIME GOVERN-MENTAL AGENCIES FOR WAR WORK.

HOWEVER, THE OBJECT OF THE PLAN REMAINS THE SAME, NAMELY, TO PROVIDE THE ARMED FORCES WITH AN ADEQUATE AND CONSTANT SUPPLY OF MUNITIONS AND TO SUPPLY CIVILIANS WITH AMPLE SUBSISTENCE, WITHOUT UNDULY DISLOCATING THE SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC SYSTEM.

IN THE EVENT OF WAR, THE PRESIDENT WOULD SUMMON THE RECENTLY CREATED WAR RESOURCES ADMINISTRATION TO SERVE AS A "SUPERAGENCY" IN CONVERTING INDUSTRY TO A WAR-TIME BASIS. THIS BOARD, WHICH WAS SET UP LESS THAN TWO MONTHS AGO IS HEADED BY EDWARD R.STETTINIUS, JR., CHAIRMAN OF THE UNITED STATES STEEL CORPOR-ATION.

CONTROL OVER INDUSTRY AND COMMERCE, TO DIRECT THE FLOW AND VOLUME OF NEEDED WAR GOODS, WOULD BE EXERCISED BY MEANS OF PRIORITY ORDERS ON SHIPMENTS, AND BY LICENSES, EMBARGOES, PRICE CONTROL AND FOREIGN TRADE CONTROL MEASURES.

WITHIN THE ADMINISTRATION WOULD BE CREATED DIVISIONS TO PROVIDE THE WAR INDUSTRIAL MACHINE WITH SUFFICIENT PLANT FACILITIES, RAW MATERIALS, POWER, FUEL AND TRANSPORTATION. A COORDINATING DIVISION WOULD MAINTAIN LIAISON WITH GOVERNMENTAL AND PRIVATE AGENCIES THAT MIGHT COOPERATE IN THE WAR EFFORT.

OTHER EMERGENCY ADMINISTRATIONS, WHOSE FUNCTIONS WOULD BE PERFORMED INITIALLY BY THE WAR RESOURCES AGENCY, WOULD BE: PUBLIC RELATIONS, SELECTIVE SERVICE (DRAFT), FINANCE, TRADE, LABOR AND PRICE CONTROL.

FREIGHTER IS LOST OFF BRAZIL; BRITISH AIR FORCE OVER BERLIN

OCT 3 1939

Clement, 5051-ton Craft, Sunk by Warship of Unknown Class.

WAS IN NEW YORK IN AUGUST

Commerce Raider May Be One of Nazi Vessels Which Left South American Ports.

LONDON, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The Ministry of Information announced today that an armed raider had attacked and sunk the 5,051-ton British ship Clement of the Booth Line in the South Atlantic.

The five-year-old Clement had called at New York on August 29.

"The raider has not yet been identified, but the correct steps are being taken," the Ministry said.

The attack on the Clement was interpreted here as a German move to re-open a world war phase of sea attack. Starting early in 1916, the Moewe, converted from a cargo boat to an auxiliary cruiser, ran the British blockade, sank or captured 60,000 tons of Atlantic shipping and was responsible for sending forty-two allied vessels to the bottom.

The See Adler of Capt. von Luckner carried out similar raids after slipping through the blockade line disguised as a Norwegian lumber schooner.

She ranged far into the Pacific before she broke her back on a reef in the Society Islands.

The Clement's attacker was believed by some to have been either a cruiser or a "pocket battleship."

Call Captain Captive.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Unconfirmed reports reaching here from Maceio said that eleven survivors of the British freighter Clement had landed at Maceio in a lifeboat.

OCT 3 1939

The reports said that the captain and engineer of the Clement were taken by the German raider which sank the Clement and that at least twelve members of the crew were rescued by the Brazilian steamship Itatinga.

The Maceio reports said that one of the crew reaching there had a bullet wound.

The Itatinga is scheduled to arrive at Bahia tomorrow.

The reports said that the attack on the freighter took place off the Brazilian town of Pedras, in the State of Alagoas, a short distance northeast of Maceio.

The captain of the Swedish passenger ship Argentina, which arrived in Rio de Janeiro yesterday, said that he saw a German cruiser headed in the direction of Africa when he was nearing Pernambuco.

Shortly afterward, he said, he saw a British freighter sinking and then a German submarine passing by. Like the cruiser, the submarine was headed east, he said.

Hear All Are Safe.

[Capt. Harris and the crew of forty-nine landed safely at Bahia, according to word received today at the offices of the Booth Steamship Company, Ltd., 17 Battery Place. The announcement contained no details of how the crew got to land.

[The freighter Clement left New York on August 29 on its regular run to Brazilian ports, the Booth American Line said today.

[She carried a crew of forty-nine under the command of Capt. Fred C. P. Harris and six passengers who disembarked at Para. The line said that the Clement left Pernambuco last Friday for Bahia and must have been near that port when attacked.

[Her cargo consisted of 20,000 cases of kerosene for Bahia and a general cargo of radio equipment, auto tires, flour, air brake equipment, building cement, black pepper, truck chassis, refrigerators and pumps. The cargo came from New York and Philadelphia.]

Torpedoed Off Jutland.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The Swedish steamer Gun, 1,198 tons, was torpedoed today off Hanstholm, Jutland, and her crew of eighteen was rescued.

The vessel, built in 1891, was bound for Antwerp. Her home port was Gothenburg.

Swedish Ship Seized.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The newspaper Ekstrabladet in a dispatch from Stockholm said that the Swedish freighter Algeria had been seized in the Baltic Sea and taken to Kiel, Germany.

The 1,617-ton ship was bound for Genoa with a cargo of woodpulp and iron. The German Government has declared wood pulp contraband.

Another report said that the Finnish four-masted schooner Baltic sank at Stevns just north of a German mine field. The crew was rescued. The cause of the sinking was not determined.

Meantime V. Steen-Christenson, director of the company which owned the Danish steamer Vendia, sunk by a submarine in the North Sea with a loss of eleven men, said today that the captain stopped promptly for the raider but was torpedoed.

The director issued this report:

"The captain stopped promptly for the German U-boat, responding to its order with flags and signals of acquiescence. Nevertheless a torpedo was launched. The captain expressed the opinion that the eleven seamen were not drowned, but were killed by an explosion. The weather was fine and clear and the reason for the torpedoing is still unclear."

Tell of Ramming Attempt.

BERLIN, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The German Naval High Command announced today that the Danish steamship Vendia was sunk by a German submarine on September 30.

OCT 3 1939

Apparently there was loss of life, for the communique mentioned the rescue of survivors.

The High Command said that the Danish steamship tried to ram the submarine. The communique said:

"The forenoon of September 30 the Danish steamer Vendia was ordered by a German U-boat to stop for examination of cargo and establishment of nationality. The steamer increased her speed in an effort to escape. The U-boat headed off the steamer, which then made an effort to ram the submarine. In response to this flagrant act of hostility, the U-boat immediately resorted to force of arms, the steamer being sunk by a torpedo. Survivors of the crew were picked up by the submarine and set aboard another Danish steamer which was passing."

May Be the Cap Norte.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Shipping circles here, speculating on the identity of the German raider which sank the British freighter Clement, recalled today that at least half a dozen German merchantmen have left Brazilian and Argentine ports since the war began and are still unreported.

Among these was the speedy liner Cap Norte, which shipping men said would serve admirably as an armed raider if she possessed or obtained armaments. She sailed more than a week ago from Recife, heavily loaded with fuel and accompanied by two German freighters, likewise carrying fuel and foodstuffs.

The Cap Norte, a 13,615-ton passenger boat, is one of the fastest liners in the South Atlantic service.

Dutch Stop British Ship.

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—A Netherlands naval guard boat, the Z7, was disclosed officially today to have fired warning shots to stop the 1,004-ton British ship Lindisfarne last night after they had collided in Netherlands territorial waters off the Hook of Holland.

The Lindisfarne ignored a summons to stop, the official report said, whereupon the patrol boat used gunfire and compelled the British merchantman to return to port at the Hook of Holland.

After an official record was made of the collision and the alleged attempt to elude a Netherlands warship, the Lindisfarne was permitted to proceed. The announcement said the Z7 apparently was not damaged and the Lindisfarne only slightly.

A New Sort of Torpedo.

OSLO, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The master of the sunken Norwegian freighter Solaas said today he believed the ship was the victim of a new torpedo technic.

He said no explosion was heard in what he described as a new-style torpedoing of the Solaas Thursday.

OCT 3 1939

"The Solaas was stopped in high seas, preventing the Germans from coming aboard," he said. "Five enginemen heard a hissing sound, then felt a bump.

"The submarine disappeared and five minutes later the Solaas began sinking from holes in the engine room and bunk room, indicating that a new device penetrated the ship's hull without an explosion.

French Consolidate Lines.

PARIS, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—French military reports said today that the French forces had consolidated their positions and cleaned up thousands of land mines left behind by the Germans on the western front.

They said further that the French had taken advantage of the absence of heavy fighting and that only localized encounters continued.

Officers estimated that the French had exploded 6,000 mines in one area, and declared that one shell alone set off a string 1,000 meters (3,280 feet) long.

The French also announced the capture of a number of prisoners, from whom valuable information on the German defenses in advance of the Siegfried Line was expected.

Meanwhile today it was stated in semi-official quarters that French troops thrusting into Germany had captured more than sixty Nazi villages during the first month of the war, and that French guns now dominate the industrial valleys of the lower Saar, Blies and Lauter rivers.

British Tommies were reported flowing eastward, matching the German re-enforcements said to be en route to the west.

Tonight the French High Command issued the following communique:

"Local enemy attacks have been repulsed to the south of Saarlouis and in the region east of the Saar. In this latter region enemy artillery fire was reported on German localities behind our line."

[The Supreme Army Command at Berlin issued a communique today in which it declared: "In the west, there was merely local artillery and reconnoitering activity. A British scouting plane was shot down east of Padeborn."]

OCT 3 1939

Aerial Warfare.

Unusual aerial activity marked the past few days, it was asserted, with Nazi flyers making stiffer efforts to turn back allied reconnaissance flights.

An account of a battle fought over German territory on Saturday, disclosed today, said that three French and five German planes were shot down. The account said that two French reconnaissance planes and nine protecting fighters were attacked by fifteen German planes. After a "long" fight, eight of the French ships returned, it was said, bringing "valuable" photographic information concerning the German positions.

Army reports said that the crew of one of the French planes shot down was observed descending in parachutes.

[The British Ministry of Information announced at London today a battle back of the Siegfried Line in which five ships of the Royal Air Force engaged fifteen German planes for half an hour yesterday. The British admitted the loss of three of their planes and the escape of the remaining two.]

Calls on Poles Everywhere.

The reconstructed Polish Government, exiled to France, called upon Poles throughout the world to join a Polish army to fight beside the British and the French. Officials said they hoped to recruit at least 200,000 volunteers from Polish ranks in the United States and Canada.

The new soldier Premier, Gen. Wladislaw Sikorski, said that remnants of the shattered Polish army would fight on as guerrillas in their Fatherland where Germany and Russia are dividing the spoils.

A 'Balcony Position.'

French reports said that French troops were threatening Zweibruecken, Saarbruecken, Saarelouis and other cities scattered throughout the area where they said an advance toward the Siegfried Line was being strengthened. The French said they held a "balcony position" overlooking the Saar River towns.

The gains made by the French were ascribed by militarists to a series of "shoulder blows" delivered in small, steady, local fights along the 100-mile front between Luxemburg and the Maginot "hinge" near Lauterbourg. These strokes were usually carried out, authorities said, by a battalion or less of French troops preceded by heavy artillery fire, tank thrusts and aerial reconnaissance.

Unworried by Italy.

French military reports said that the number of German troops on the western front had been doubled during the past month and the Nazi front-line strength was estimated by Paris observers at fifty divisions, or more than 1,000,000 men. Large numbers of reserves were said to be concentrated in centers from thirty to fifty miles behind the lines.

Paris commentators expressed the belief that the Siegfried Line re-enforcements were called in more in fear of a possible large-scale French attack than in preparation for a German drive.

The visit of the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Ciano, to Berlin was interpreted in France as due to Italy's desire to ascertain what was going on between Germany and Russia. Assuming that Germany and Russia have offered Italy a share in the Balkan sphere of influence, French observers declared it would be only a "marginal interest" and that Premier Mussolini knew it. They expressed the belief that Italian neutrality would continue with Germany trying to get supplies through that Southern door.

An indication of French intentions to spurn German "peace" diplomacy was seen in yesterday's War Council, which, under the direction of Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, Commander-in-Chief of the Anglo-French forces, examined the allied strategy. French land, air and naval chiefs attended the conference.

London, Oct. 2—The British Government tonight coupled an announcement that the Royal Air Force had reconnoitered at night over Berlin with a warning that German bombers attempting to raid London would "get the reception they deserve."

At the same time a new menace to British shipping appeared in an Admiralty announcement that an armed raider had sunk the 5,051-ton British freighter Clement in the south Atlantic off the coast of Brazil.

The attack was viewed here as meaning that Germany had started a new phase of sea warfare after a lull in the submarine campaign.

Cruiser Or Battleship

The Admiralty said the raider had not been identified, "but the correct steps are being taken." It said it believed she was either a cruiser or one of Germany's fast, hard-hitting "pocket battleships." The possibility also was advanced that the raider might be an armed merchantman.

Sinking of the Clement brought total British losses since the war's start to at least thirty-two and was the first reported since the 4,646-ton freighter Hazelside was shelled and torpedoed off the Irish coast September 24.

The British, who have made elaborate preparations against possible air raids on London, heart of the empire, have sought to emphasize the "ease" with which the Royal Air Force has been able to make reconnaissance flights over Germany.

Day And Night Flights

Today's communique said successful air reconnaissances had been carried out over Germany by day and night, the night flights including one over Berlin and Potsdam, the first to be announced since the war started.

The British Press Association said Royal Air Force planes dropped propaganda leaflets over Berlin and Potsdam.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—In Berlin responsible German quarters laughed at the report. "Citizens of Berlin and Potsdam must have slept soundly," one official said, "because no one heard the motors."]

Accounts of the flight over Berlin and Potsdam noted it was 600 miles from London to Berlin, and asserted that British planes to reach the German capital would have to fly more than 400 miles over enemy territory.

The warning to German bombers in event of attempted London flights was made in Parliament by R. A. Butler, Foreign Under Secretary. He was replying to a question from Laborite Josiah C. Wedgwood, who asked for reports from British officials returned from Poland on the effects of bombings there so as to get "some idea of what it would be here."

Butler said such reports were not yet available. Sir Howard Kennard, British Ambassador to Poland, arrived today, however, and was expected to provide full details.

Attacker Is Said to Have Taken Captain Aboard; Britain Calls It Piracy

By The Associated Press

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 2.—The Brazilian government news agency Agencia Nacional, reported tonight that the 5,051-ton British freighter Clement had been sunk by a submarine.

This account differed from Recife-Pernambuco advices, based on an account of survivors, that the freighter had been attacked by the guns of an armed German raider and from official British reports that a cruiser or "pocket battleship" had made the attack.

The Swedish captain of the passenger ship Argentina, which arrived here yesterday, said he saw a German cruiser headed in the direction of Africa near Recife. Soon afterward, he added, he saw a German submarine going in the same direction.

Although first reports said eleven survivors in a lifeboat had landed at Maceio aboard the Brazilian ship Itatinga, the Agencia Nacional did not mention any arriving lifeboat.

The agency's dispatch from Maceio quoted the survivors as asserting the attacker was a submarine. The ship was said to have been sunk after the crew entered lifeboats at the order of the German commander. The submarine fired twenty shots. The commander of the Itatinga related that he searched fruitlessly for other lifeboats after picking up one boatload.

The dispatch said British and Brazilian authorities had boarded the Itatinga at Maceio, and the ship sailed yesterday afternoon for Bahia, taking the survivors, who will be placed in care of the British Consul there. The dispatch said the rescue took place yesterday morning.

Captain Reported a Prisoner

RECIFE, Brazil, Oct. 2 (AP).—The shelling and sinking of the British freighter Clement by an armed German raider sixty miles off the Brazilian coast was reported today in dispatches received here. At least a score of sailors were not accounted for.

The reports said Capt. Frederick C. P. Harris and the chief engineer, W. Bryant, of the five-year-old Clement had been taken aboard the German ship, whose name was not ascertained.

Fifteen members of the crew of forty-nine and a pilot were reported picked up by the Brazilian steamer Itatinga, which heard the Clement's SOS and sped to the scene. From Maceio, about 300 miles northeast of Bahia, came word that eleven survivors of the Clement had landed there in a lifeboat. The sailors aboard the Itatinga said they did not know the fate of the remainder of the crew of forty-nine aboard the Clement.

The Itatinga survivors reported the German raider had fired two shells into the Clement while she sailed seventy miles north of Maceio, off Porto de Pedras.

The Clement, whose home port was Liverpool, England, was steaming south from Recife to Bahia. She had been regularly in service between the east coast of the United States and South American ports, and had sailed from New York on Aug. 29.

Swedish Planes Save Steamer From Warship

Reports Its Warning Shots Drove Off German Craft Halting Neutral Freighter

OCT 3 1939

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 2.—Swedish fighting planes were reported today to have fired warning salvos at a German warship which halted a Swedish steamer, and to have driven the warship away.

The report said the planes, patrolling the Baltic coast, observed the warship hailing the steamer in Swedish waters and dived between the ships, firing warning machine-gun shots. The warship moved away and the steamer continued on her course.

The master of the Swedish steamer Gun, 1,198 tons, sunk fifty-three miles off Hanstholm, Denmark, asserted today that the commander of the German submarine which dynamited his ship had told him he had also sunk a British submarine which appeared on the scene while the German crew was placing dynamite in the Gun's hold.

The master of the Swedish ship said the German U-boat dived while he and two other Swedes were aboard it, staying down from 5 p. m Saturday until 4 a. m. Sunday, during which time three torpedoes were fired.

The English apparently did not attack the German submarine, the Swedish captain said, because they had learned from the Gun's crew that he was aboard the U-boat. Eighteen members of the Gun's crew were rescued by a Danish steamer.

The Swedish captain said the German commander who held him captive also sank the 1,150-ton Danish ship Vendia, torpedoed Saturday in the North Sea with the loss of eleven men.

At Copenhagen, V. Steen-Christensen, director of the Associated Coal Importers, of Copenhagen, which owned the Vendia, said the captain "stopped promptly" when hailed by the submarine, but the freighter was torpedoed just the same.

(A German naval high command statement said the Vendia was sunk after it attempted to ram the submarine.)

Indications that the Germans were concentrating their activities against neutral ships in the central Baltic were seen in reports that eight Swedish cargo ships were hailed east of the Island of Oeland, Sweden. The commander of the Swedish minefields there messaged Malmo that a German armed trawler had captured the eight vessels.

The Swedish Admiralty reported that the eight ships were taken to German harbors. German planes participated in the seizure. As a result of German naval activity in the Baltic, all Swedish ships were ordered to stay within territorial waters.

Observers said they believed Germany was seeking to control the Baltic between the Islands of Oeland and Gotland, Sweden, pointing out there is heavy Swedish and Finnish traffic there where it is easier to hail and capture ships than in the North Sea. The German dispatch boat was patrolling those waters.

It was reported at Stockholm the Swedish Minister at Berlin had protested against the capture of the Lettish steamer Imanta in Swedish waters Sunday and the flying of a German plane over Swedish territory.

The Copenhagen newspaper Ekstrabladet said the Swedish freighter Algeria, 1,617 tons, had been captured in the Baltic and taken to Kiel, Germany. She was bound for Genoa, Italy, a non-belligerent, with woodpulp and iron. Germany has declared woodpulp on its contraband list.

Another Copenhagen report said the Finnish four-masted schooner Baltic was sunk at Stevns, just north of a German mine field. The crew was rescued.

Hel Fortress Defenders Gain Swedish Haven

Fugitive Poles Reveal How They Dodged Nazi Ships in Escape Over Baltic

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The Polish patrol boat Batory arrived today at the Swedish island of Gotland with Polish military men from the surrendered Polish fortress of Hel Peninsula, who told an exciting tale of playing hide-and-seek with German ships in the Baltic.

Several times after they left Hel Sunday the Batory was chased by German ships, but managed to escape capture.

The Polish refugees included eighteen military men, mostly officers, among them the commander of the Hel fortress.

[Hel, last center of Polish military resistance, surrendered Sunday after holding out through four weeks of German siege.]

On Sunday, the fugitives said, they learned that they would have to undergo a renewed German attack the following day, and decided to attempt to get through the German navy blockade and mines.

Two smaller boats loaded with Poles departed from Hel at the same time, but their fate is unknown.

Until they talked to Swedish Coast Guard officers, the Poles did not know Warsaw had surrendered. Tonight the Polish fugitives stayed at the town of Klintehamn.

SOVIET NOW CALLS ON LATVIA TO SIGN ANTI-WAR TREATY

Russian Army Is Reported on Border as Talks Begin at Moscow.

OCT 3 1939

MOSCOW, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Soviet Russia summoned Latvia's Foreign Minister to Moscow today for the purpose of negotiating a "non-aggression" pact, informed persons said, giving Russia military and naval concessions similar to those she recently obtained from Estonia.

[A German news agency report reaching Berlin from Kaunas today said that Foreign Minister Juozas Urbsys of Lithuania would follow the ministers of Estonia and Latvia to Moscow for conferences on the changing Baltic line-up, and that Mr. Urbsys is expected to depart by plane tomorrow on the invitation of the Soviet Government. Meanwhile the Lithuanian Cabinet met again today to consider a reorientation of Lithuanian policy as a result of the Soviet pacts with Germany and Estonia.]

The Latvian Foreign Minister, William Munters, and two secretaries of the Latvian foreign trade commission landed at the Moscow airport tonight and were met by Foreign Office officials and the staff of the Latvian legation.

Troops at the Border.

Unofficial reports from abroad said that Russia had shifted twenty divisions of troops from the Estonian border to the Latvian frontier, but there was no confirmation of these rumors here.

The Latvian legation here said merely that Mr. Munters was coming "to clear up the situation created in the Baltic by the Russo-German and Russo-Estonian pacts."

Latvia, which has excellent harbors—some of which are fortified—on the Gulf of Riga and on the Baltic, provides a natural trade outlet for Russian shipments to the west. An agreement with Latvia similar to the one Russia already has with Estonia would strengthen further the Soviet's position in the Baltic.

Announcement of the Latvian Minister's impending visit was coupled with indications that Russia is seeking to bolster her position in the southeast by formulating a plan to keep the Balkans neutral under the leadership of the Kremlin.

The presentation of this plan, it was expected, would be accompanied by demands upon Rumania for the return of Bessarabia, the rich oil region which Russia lost after the world war.

The Dardanelles.

The Russian program, diplomats believed, calls for an agreement with Turkey designed to strengthen the Soviet position in the Black Sea. Moscow, they declared, seeks to prevent Turkey from reaching any agreement with France and Great Britain that would leave the Dardanelles, entrance to the Black Sea, open to Allied warships in the event of conflict with the Soviet.

This situation, it was believed, was the subject of a four-hour conference at the Kremlin last night between the Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu, the Russian Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotov, and Joseph Stalin. Also participating in the conference were Vice-Commissar Vladimir Potemkin, the Soviet Ambassador to Turkey, and the Turkish Ambassadir to Moscow.

The meeting delayed the scheduled departure of the Turkish officials, who had met with the French and British envoys here in a mysterious conference on Saturday.

Meanwhile reports which neither the Russian nor Rumanian capitals would confirm said that Rumania's Foreign Minister, Grigore Gafencu, would arrive here within the next day or two. It was expected that Russia would make his visit the occasion for presenting a Balkan peace plan as well as for demanding return of Bessarabia.

In British and French quarters in Moscow no concern over these developments was shown, instead it was indicated that the Allies would be pleased if the negotiations resulted in confining the war to western Europe.

Meanwhile, just as a Soviet military and engineering delegation arrived in Tallinn to put into effect the pacts which gave to Russia military and naval concessions in Estonia and which provided for trade increases between the two nations, Molotov and Foreign Minister Karl Selter of Estonia today exchanged messages of thanks and congratulation over the Russo-Estonian pacts concluded last Thursday.

Mr. Selter thanked Molotov, and through him Stalin, "for wise guidance in the political and economic negotiations" which brought agreements "aiming at further development of peaceful collaboration." In his reply Molotov expressed his "conviction that our new agreement will create favorable opportunities for the development and flourishing life of the peoples of Estonia and the Soviet Union."

Godless League in Poland.

There was no officaal comment here on developments in Poland, but there were indications that Russia had begun an anti-religous campaign in the newly won Polish Ukraine and White Russian territories.

Pravda, the official newspaper, gave prominence to a speech by Emelyan Yaroslavsky, head of the Godless League, in which he said that the Polish landlord class had forced religion on the peasant workers.

"We must explain to the liberated peasants and workers that the church has never done anything for them in their fight for liberty," he declared.

Yaroslavsky said that the areas had been kept under "medieval oppressions" and that the "priests for twenty years told lies about the Soviet Union, where freedom of religion exists."

The staff of the Polish embassy, which has remained here throughout the hostilities, was expected to leave tomorrow.

OCT 3 1939

Rumania Worried.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The Rumanian Government, mindful of the fate of Poland, nervously watched the Moscow talks today between the Russian leaders and Sukru Saracoglu.

It was learned that Premier Grigore Gafencu, who had planned to leave today for Moscow, had decided to postpone his trip, preferring to await Saracoglu's visit here on his way back to Istanbul.

Mr. Gafencu, it was said, may yet change his mind, however, depending upon a report from Saracoglu, who is acting as unofficial spokesman for the Balkan nations.

Whatever results from the Moscow talks, foreign diplomats here freely predicted, it can hardly add to Russo-German friendship.

With Russia apparently determined to gain control of the Black Sea and its bordering nations, the result, foreign observers said, can only curb German influence in this part of the world—influence which the Nazis counted as all-important for obtaining food and war supplies.

The emergence of Russia as Germany's partner in the partition of Poland has changed Turkey's role in the Near Eastern affairs and with Turkey's, that of other Balkan nations, since Turkey controls the Dardanelles.

Finns May Be Next; Turks Still on Hand

Russians Pressing Drive to Tighten Their Grip on Baltic and Balkans

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Oct. 2.—Josef V. Stalin and other Soviet officials held a two-hour conference tonight with Foreign Minister William Munters of Latvia, as Soviet Russia intensified her diplomatic moves in the Baltic, the Black Sea and the Balkans.

Diplomatic observers agreed that the conference probably meant an attempt to strengthen that Soviet control of the northern Baltic and the Gulf of Finland which was gained last week through a treaty with Estonia.

No announcement was made of the purpose of the conference, however, and official interpretation likewise still was lacking of negotiations that are proceeding with the Turkish Foreign Minister, Sukru Saracoglu, who is in Moscow.

Besides Munters, invited here for the conversations, was the Latvian Director of Department of Treaties, M. Kampe. The Soviet Minister to Latvia, I. S. Zotov, and the Soviet trade representative in Latvia, M. Terentyev, arrived with Munters. The central airport was decorated with Soviet and Latvian flags for the arrivals.

Reception Is Cool

Participating in tonight's conversations were Stalin, Viacheslav M. Molotov, Premier and Foreign Commissar; Vladimir Potemkin, Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs; Zotov, Munters and M. Kocins, Latvian Minister at Moscow.

Munters was received in diplomatically correct fashion, but his reception contrasted with the effusive welcomes that have been given others in the stream of foreign diplomats arriving in Moscow in recent weeks.

The reception for the Latvians was markedly different, for instance, from that which greeted Joachim von Ribbentrop German Foreign Minister, last week. There were no Latvian banners, no guards of honor, no brass bands. Potemkin, usually the official greeter, was absent.

It was reported unofficially that the Lithuanian Minister at Moscow, Dr. Jurgis Baltrusaitis, had left here for home and that the Lithuanian Foreign Minister would be summoned to the Soviet capital after dealings with Latvia had been concluded.

Offer to Lithuania Reported

[In Berlin the German official news agency, D. N. B., reported from Kaunas (Kovno) that Foreign Minister Juozas Urbsys of Lithuania would follow the Ministers of Estonia and Latvia to Moscow for conversations on the changing Baltic line-up. D. N. B. said Urbsys was expected to go to Moscow by plane on Tuesday in response to a Soviet invitation. The Lithuanian Cabinet was in session again on Monday.

[According to The United Press, a Berlin radio announcement said Moscow had offered Lithuania a "friendly agreement" which would not be a mutual assistance pact such as was concluded with Estonia. Direct dispatches from Kaunas spoke of intensified Communist activity in Lithuania, including circulation of handbills demanding resignation of the government.]

Finland came into the field of speculation in diplomatic quarters

here, some sources remarking on the possibility that Finland "would be next" in Soviet Russia's drive to strengthen her naval and military position on the Baltic.

[Reports that Finland had received an invitation to send a representative to Moscow were authoritatively denied at Helsingfors.]

It was understood that British Ambassador Sir William Seeds and the French Counselor of Embassy, Jean Payart, again called on the Turkish delegation today, but the British refused to confirm or deny the report.

Diplomatic circles took it for granted that the Soviet government would make demands upon Latvia similar to those which have led her neighbor, Estonia, to grant to Russia nicreased trade concessions and the right to establish naval and air bases on two Estonian islands and at one port.

A Riga dispatch by Tass, official Soviet new agency, announced over the radio tonight said the Latvian government realized that "conditions n the eastern part of Europe are greatly changed" and that therefore Latvia had decided to go to Moscow for negotiations.

Latvia, whic hhas excellent harbors, some of these fortified, on the Gulf of Riga and on the Baltic, provides a natural trade outlet for Russian shipments to the west. Unofficial reports from abroad said that Russia had shifted twenty divisions of troops from the Estonia border to the Latvian frontier, but there was no confirmation here of the reports.

OCT 3 1939

N. Session for Turks

The Turkish delegation, which is headed by Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu, failed to see Molotov today as expected. The Turks apparently were awaiting instructions from home. It was considered likely the Turks would be received tomorrow at the Kremlin, where so many vital negotiations have been concluded recently.

Some diplomatic quarters, particularly the British and French, argued that Russia's latest moves were designed to block Germany both in the Baltic and the Balkans. Other sources considered this view "wishful thinking." In effect, these observers said, Russia's high-speed diplomatic pressure seemed directed against both the Allies and the Reich, being, naturally designed primarily to improve Russia's own position.

The Russian program, diplomatic circles said, calls for an agreement with Turkey designed to strengthen the Soviet position in the Black Sea Moscow, they declared, seeks to prevent Turkey from reaching any agreement with France and Great Britain that would leave the Darwanelles, entrance to the Black Sea, open to allied warships in the event of conflict with the Soviet Union.

This situation, it was believed, was the subject of the four-hour conference last night at the Kremlin of Saracoglu, Moloton and Josef V. Stalin.

Notice that the Communist International was calling on workers throughout the world to fight against capitalist "war mongers" was given in a speech by V. Florin, a member of the presidium of the executive committee of the International. He said that the Communists were working against the capitalists "no matter in what disguise" and that the workers "must conquer in capitalistic countries if war is to be eliminated."

HITLER-CIANO TALKS COVER THREE POINTS

What Italy May Expect and Spheres in East Are Discussed.

ALSO EFFECT OF PEACE NOW

Italian Foreign Minister Returns to Rome After Spending Day in Berlin.

OCT 3 1939

BERLIN, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Reichsfuehrer Hitler sent today to Premier Mussolini what Nazis said were the three main points of his conversations with Il Duce's son-in-law, the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

These points were given authoritatively as:

1. The possibilities of the future in Europe, including Italy's share in what will or may happen.

2. Germany's conception of various spheres of interest in Eastern Europe.

3. The possibilities of giving effect to the German thesis that the European war should be ended now.

It was intimated further that Herr Hitler, in his speech before the Reichstag some time this week, would give the world Germany's conception of the peace possibilities.

Count Ciano left Berlin today for Rome, concluding the first conversations between the Rome-Berlin axis partners since the outbreak of the war.

Agreement Reported.

Although there was no official comment on the result of Count Ciano's conversations with Fuehrer Hitler and German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, the speed with which they were concluded indicated to observers that both countries were in complete agreement regarding future moves. Count Ciano arrived here only last evening.

Italian circles said they believed the conversations had resulted in full clarification of questions arising from the present European situation, especially the new relations between Germany and Soviet Russia.

Some observers saw in Count Ciano's visit a new reason for believing that Premier Mussolini may assume the role of mediator in a "final peace offensive" by the Reich.

Escorted to Station.

Ciano left Berlin by train at 12:02 P. M. (6:02 A. M., Eastern standard time). He was accompanied to the station by Herr Von Ribbentrop, the staff of the Italian embassy and numerous high ranking Nazi officials.

The latter included Col.-Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, a member of the secret cabinet council and chief commander of the German armed forces as secretary of war; Heinrich Himmler, chief of the secret police; Robert Ley, Hitler's trade union commissioner, and Dr. Hans Lammers, a member of the wartime ministerial council.

Observers speculating on Mussolini's possible assumption of the role of mediator noted that semi-official comment in Berlin stressed the "European mission" of Il Duce.

A well-informed person, when asked to comment on the outcome of Count Ciano's visit, said:

"The visit speaks for itself—no interpretation is necessary. There will, however, be a final communique later."

It was said that the ground had been thoroughly covered in the conversations between Hitler and the two Foreign Ministers last night, and that Herr Von Ribbentrop's appearance with Count Ciano this morning, therefore, was purely a matter of courtesy.

Operations in Poland.

A brief communique issued this morning by the German High Command said that the Hela Peninsula, the last zone of Polish resistance, had surrendered yesterday as Nazi land and naval forces were preparing to launch a joint attack.

The Polish force holding the peninsula, which juts out into the Baltic Sea, was composed of fifty-two officers and 4,000 men under Gen. Von Unruh, the communique said.

The High Command declared that the first German troops had moved into Warsaw yesterday and that occupation of the city was proceeding without incident.

OCT 3 1939

Praise for Mussolini.

The Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, which frequently forecasts action of the German Foreign Office, referred to Signor Mussolini today as "the herald of the peoples who today constitute the real peace front."

Informed quarters placed increasing emphasis on what they termed the German-Russian-Italian desire to end "this purposeless conflict."

Speculation regarding the outcome of the conversations between Hitler and Count Ciano was accompanied by indications that the Fuehrer is preparing concrete proposals for presentation to the Reichstag this week.

No date for convening of the Reichstag has been set, but reliable informants said that time would be allowed to observe French-British reaction to the German-Soviet overture for peace based upon the partition of Poland.

Hint at Axis Expansion.

Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter hinted at possible expansion of the Rome-Berlin axis if Nazi-Communist peace overtures are rejected by Britain and France.

"The Moscow agreement is shouldered not only by almost 300,000,000 people united in the great German Reich and the Soviet Union, but it also finds approval from two other great Powers (Japan and Italy), together with most of the neutrals," it said.

Text of German Communique

BERLIN, Oct. 2 (AP).—The German supreme army command issued today the following communique:

"Yesterday forenoon the first German troops moved into Warsaw without incident. The occupation of Praga (a Warsaw suburb) was completed yesterday.

"The last point of Polish resistance, the fortified Hel Peninsula, surrendered unconditionally yesterday before an attack prepared jointly by the Army and Navy even could be carried out.

"The garrison of fifty-two officers, among whom was the Polish navy chief, Rear Admiral von Unruh, and 4,000 men will surrender arms this forenoon.

"In the west there was merely local artillery and reconnoitering activity. A British scouting plane was shot down east of Padeborn (a German city ninety miles east of the Dutch frontier and 200 miles northeast of the French frontier)."

POLISH MARSHAL SHUNNED IN EXILE

OCT 3 1939

Smigly-Rydz Described as 'a Broken Man.'

BUCHAREST, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The once proud Field Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, commander of Poland's vanquished legions, was described by refugees today as a broken exile, shunned by his fellow officers who coldly regard him as a general who deserted his doomed but fighting army.

The Field Marshal, along with a number of other Polish officers, is interned at a Craiova hotel.

Refugees from Craiova said that Smigly-Rydz and other ranking officers were allowed to use the hotel dining room and lobby under the surveillance of guards but that he seldom joined the other members of the staff in conversation and that he ate alone at another table.

Many Polish officerse were reported to avoid their former commander because they held him responsible for the quick demoralization of Polish armies under the German onslaught. Others asserted they could not understand why he did not join the fighting forces around Warsaw or Lwow or help reorganize the Polish Legion in France.

In addition to the leaders, some 12,000 Polish officers and men are interned in Rumania. About 5,000 of the refugees are air corps personnel. A large number of planes and other army equipment also are held.

Germany was reported, meanwhile, to have protested to Rumania because rufugee President Ignace Moscicki of Poland was allowed to resign and name a successor while on Rumanian soil.

Moscicki resigned on Saturday and named Wladislaw Raczkiewicz, who is in Paris, as his successor. He had geen kept in "limited" domicile, but left for Paris after resigning.

Complete Germanization Expected for Slovakia

OCT 3 1939

Tuka, Pro-Nazi Extremist, May Be Premier; Tiso Under Cloud

BRATISLAVA, Slovakia, Oct. 2 (AP).—Sources high in the Slovak government said today that an impending Cabinet shake-up would put in leaders favoring complete Germanization of Slovakia, already under German military protection.

Interior Minister Bela Tuka, regarded as an extremist in the pro-German wing of the Hlinka party, the only surviving political machine in Slovakia, was expected even by his opponents to become Premier this month. The present Premier, Josef Tiso, who followed Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's policy last March 14 by arranging for Slovakia to break off from Czecho-Slovakia but who now is described by the pro-German element as "not very trustworthy," will became first President of Slovakia, according to present plans. The Presidency, it was said, would be a position cloaked with symbolic power but little authority.

[A short-wave broadcast from Berlin heard by the Herald Tribune last night said that the first Slovak state President would be elected on Oct. 2, and "since according to the Slovak constitution the president of the Hlinka party must also be state President, Premier Dr. Tiso, who was elected Sunday as party president, will consequently be also the first Slovak state President." The broadcast added that Professor Tuka was being "mentioned" for the Premiership.]

Both Tiso and Foreign Minister Ferdinand Durcansky were said to be under a cloud because the Slovak Minister to Poland, Julius Szatmary, and the Slovak Consul in London, Milan Harminc, turned against Slovak-German policy in public attacks last month during the German conquest of Poland. Szathmary was Tiso's choice for the Warsaw post, and Durcansky sent Harminc to London over the protest of pro-Germans.

BRITISH STAND ON NAZI-SOVIET PACT EXPECTED

Commons Meeting to Hear Chamberlain Message on Official Policy.

250,000 MORE TO REGISTER

England Hears Churchill Declare Hitler Started War, but Britain Will Finish It.

OCT 3 1939

LONDON, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Great Britain strengthened herself today for hostilities on the world war scale, apparently intending to ignore any Nazi-communist peace offer.

The first official reaction to the report that Hitler would propose through a neutral Power that the war be called off on the basis of the partitionment of Poland came from fiery Winston Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, who told the nation last night that "we are going on to the end."

Prime Minister Chamberlain was expected to amplify the Government's stand in a message to the House of Commons today on the Russo-German treaty of amity. Mr. Chamberlain will give the House his fifth war review at another session tomorrow. But no further statement from the war Cabinet was expected before the British Government learns the details of Hitler's plan.

Meanwhile, the Government assured the House of Commons today that any enemy planes which try to raid London "will get the reception they deserve."

R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, made the statement in reply to questions from Col. Josiah Wedgwood, Laborite, who sought detailed reports from British officials formerly in Poland on the effect of German bombings there. Col. Wedgwood said that such reports would give "some idea of what it would be here."

The Under-Secretary said that detailed reports were not available at this time.

Prof. Carl J. Burckhardt, League of Nations High Commissioner for the former Free City of Danzig, now reincorporated within Germany, arrived from Geneva last night and arranged for a conference today with Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax.

250,000 More Recruits.

Meanwhile, King George's first proclamation under the armed forces act approved by Parliament at the outbreak of war, called up for service about 250,000 additional soldiers, summoning all youths between the ages of 20 and 22 to register for military service at a date to be set later.

At the same time authoritative persons said that no further demands would be made on Great Britain's man power until the new year.

About 240,000 youths who reached the age of 20 before June 3, last had already been registered under the conscription act adopted before the war started.

An Information Ministry communique told of a dogfight yesterday over Germany's Siegfried Line between five Royal Air Force planes and fifteen German air fighters. It acknowledged that three British war planes were shot down during an intense battle of more than half an hour and that another made a forced landing. But it said that eight of the twelve men in the British crews were observed escaping by parachute.

The British squadron leader, the communique said, finished his reconnaissance assignment by dodging and banking while a gunner in the tail of his plane poured a steady fire into pursuing German craft.

It said further that two German planes were shot down and that the others, "shaken by the gunner's steady and accurate fire," gave up the fight.

Churchill's Speech.

The nation heard its red-haired First Lord of the Admiralty broadcast in a voice that burned with defiance.

"It was for Hitler to say when the war would begin," Churchill declared, "but it is not for him or his successors to say when it will end.

"It began when he wanted it, and it will end only when we are convinced that he has had enough."

Mr. Churchill told the nation that "a large army has already gone to France" and that "British armies upon the scale of the effort of the great war are in preparation."

How soon Great Britain might achieve victory, he asserted, depended on "how long Herr Hitler and his group of wicked men, whose hands are soiled with blood and corruption, can keep their grip upon the docile, unhappy German people."

After One Month.

Mr. Churchill summed up three outstanding events of the first month of conflict:

1. "Poland has been overrun but will rise again."
2. "Russia has warned Hitler off his Eastern dreams."
3. "The U-boats may be safely left to the care and constant attention of the British Navy."

Mr. Churchill dwelt on how British warships were running down German submarines. He said that they were being hunted with zeal—"and not altogether without relish."

Russia, he said, had followed a cold policy of self-interest, but the Red Army had created a line on the Eastern front which the Nazis would not dare attack.

Discussing the Russian "enigma," Mr. Churchill said that "through the fog of confusion and uncertainty we may discern quite plainly the community of interests which exist between England, France and Russia to prevent the Germans from carrying the flames of war into the Balkans and Turkey".

He also made this friendly gesture to Italy: "We appreciate in England the reasons why this great and friendly nation of Italy, with whom we have never been at war, has not seen fit to enter the struggle."

Of Great Britain's own position, Mr. Churchill declared: "We believe we are entitled to the respect and good will of the world and, particularly, of the United States." He described British forces as "the defenders of civilization."

He drew a parallel between the present conflict and the American civil war, declaring that "all the heroism of the South could not redeem their cause from the stain of slavery, just as all the courage and skill, which the Germans always show in war, will not free them from the reproach of Nazism with its intolerance and brutality."

Mr. Churchill ignored the challenge to answer questions raised by a voice in German which broke into a British Broadcasting Corporation program before his speech. The questions were: "Where is the British aircraft carrier hit by a German bomb in the North Sea?" "What caused the sinking of the Athenia?" "Why did Churchill say a U-boat commander who had sent an S O S to him had been captured, when the commander in question had returned to Germany?"

Two hours after the Churchill speech a German giving his name as Hans Fritsche broke into another BBC broadcast and attacked Mr. Churchill for not answering the questions. The first German voice had promised a Germany reply if Mr. Churchill answered.

ITALY FEARS NAZIS WILL DEMAND AID

Rome Thinks Nation May Be Forced Into War.

OCT 3 1939

ROME, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Italian and foreign diplomats expressed a growing concern today lest Italy be forced into the European war, if Great Britain and France turned down a peace offer by Adolf Hitler.

Officials were silent regarding Foreign Minister Count Ciano's visit to Berlin, but many Italians said they thought that Hitler was asking Italy to present a peace proposal by Der Fuehrer—and be ready to enter the war in the event of its rejection. Newspapers indicated that such an offer might include a proposal to create a new Poland, much smaller than the old, and with a government similar to Slovakia's.

Il Messaggero published a dispatch from Berlin saying that some observers there felt that the frontier agreed on by Germany and Russia for their occupying forces was not necessarily final and that a [illegible] might be arranged.

OCT 3 1939

Through the Russo-German declaration in Moscow last week, Hitler has implied that if Great Britain and France did not come to terms, he would unloose a severe war. In such event, it was regarded likely here that he would insist on Italy fulfilling her obligations under the Italo-German military alliance and going to Germany's assistance.

The possibility that the Hitler-Ciano meeting might produce a German "final offer" of peace and that Premier Mussolini would transmit it to Great Britain and France was given much consideration. Among Italians, it was believed widely that Il Duce might suggest a five-Power peace conference.

Reliable informants said that the invitation to Berlin was addressed to Premier Mussolini, but that he declined, because of an Italian cabinet meeting for tomorrow and sent Count Ciano, his son-in-law. This varied from normal diplomatic custom which would have required the German Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, to come here because Count Ciano went to Salzburg, for the last meeting with Hitler and Von Ribbentrop in August.

Italy Expected To Lead Peace Drive on Allies

OCT 3 1939

Ciano Speeding Back From Berlin, Presumably With Request to Present Plan

ROME, Oct. 2 (AP).—Foreign circles reported tonight a growing feeling that Fuehrer Adolf Hitler had asked this end of the Rome-Berlin Axis to lead a "peace offensive" against the Allies. Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano was speeding back from Berlin bringing what diplomatic observers believed to be a request from Der Fuehrer that Italy present proposals to end the European war, now that Poland has been conquered.

Italy's desire to stay out of the conflict, however, was as apparent as ever. Informed circles said that they expected Italy to remain in her present non-belligerent status as long as possible, and, in any event, for some time to come.

Even if Hitler should ask aid eventually under the Italo-German military alliance, these sources thought such a request would be made only when help actually was needed since a call on Italy for help now, they said, would be interpreted as a sign of German weakness.

Today the final Italian casualty list from the Spanish Civil War was published, bringing the total to about 4,000 dead and 15,000 wounded.

Newspapers in Rome refrained from bellicose utterances in noting the fourth anniversary of the day Premier Benito Mussolini called the Italian people into a civilian mobilization to hear that a campaign in Ethiopia had begun. The possibility that Il Duce might again convoke his followers to hear a new decision of the Italian position in the present war was indicated by the newspaper "Il Lavoro Fascista," which said: "All wait with calm discipline to hear his voice."

Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist writer, warned today in "Il Giornale d'Italia" that Europe was at a "decisive point."

"Two currents, one constructive and the other destructive, are apparent here and there among the belligerents in the West," Gayda said.

"Il Tevere" discussed the possibility that Russia might realize ambitions for expansion toward the Indian Ocean. Asserting that British opposition had been a factor in checking Russian expansion toward the Mediterranean and the Far East as well as toward the Indian Ocean

"What direction is it now likely to take?" the newspaper said. "Logic causes one to presume it would take the line of least resistance. Certainly this it not represented by the East, and even less by the West. In both directions it would encounter solid dams difficult to pass over. But if it should press on toward Persia, Afghanistan, Baluchistan in order to find an outlet on the Indian Ocean, what resistance would Russia encounter?"

"Time-honored interests of peoples, not ideologies, are at stake at present.

"The consultations between Russia and Germany, which are provided for under the treaty signed by them in event war continues, may even settle the time-honored conflict between Russia and England."

Red Mission in Estonia To Carry Out New Pacts

Engineers and Army Experts Arrive at Tallinn

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 2 (AP).—A Soviet military and engineering mission arrived here today to put into operation the new Soviet-Estonian pacts, which have given Russia important concessions in Estonia. Fourteen officers and ten army aircraft technical experts were included in the mission, under direction of Gen. Meretskow.

The pacts, concluded Thursday, provided for increased trade between the two nations and granted to Russia military and naval concessions in the territory of her little Baltic neighbor.

Russia Communizing Poland; Equipment Is Failing Troops

Propaganda Trucks Follow the Soldiers—Workers Take Over Factories—Big Estates Will Soon Be Divided.

The first foreign correspondent ever permitted to get an inside view of the Red Army on the march, Melvin K. Whiteleather of the Berlin Bureau of the Associated Press, tells here how Soviet Russia is taking over eastern Poland. Last Saturday Mr. Whiteleather was the first American correspondent to enter Warsaw since its surrender.. He previously had followed the German Army into Poland.

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER.

BREST-LITOVSK, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Soviet Russia is communizing eastern Poland as fast as the Red Army advances into the partitioned Polish State. Supported by truckloads of communist literature and large pictures of Joseph Stalin, Communism is being brought nearer Central Europe.

One of Nazi Germany's favorite pieces of strategy is to send soup kitchens behind the army in an effort to win over the population in occupied territories—but the communists send propaganda trucks with the army and start right in converting the populace.

Local governing committees are being set up, militias are being formed to police towns and villages, and factories are now in the workers' hands, with one Russian on each factory committee. Smaller workshops, however, have not been touched.

Will Divide Large Estates.

The partition of large estates, of which there are many belonging to Polish noblemen, is expected to start soon.

The trucks carrying communist literature and Stalin's pictures halt at the towns and villages to preach the Bolshevist gospel. I saw several of them during two and one-half days as the guest in this section of the Red Army.

During that visit I got a sidelight on the army's strength. Russia appeared to be pouring over 1,000,000 men with full equipment into eastern Poland. Wearing dust-colored uniforms, the communist troops are literally swarming over stony, dusty roads. They are marching day and night, division after division, from the interior of Russia.

Army Mostly Asiatic.

The army looked as if it were three-fourths Asiatic and one-fourth European. It was Western in its motorized heavy artillery, in the standardization of equipment and plentiful modern anti-tank guns. It appeared overwhelmingly Asiatic in its tremendous man power, preponderance of horses and sparse mechanization.

Many pieces of mechanized equipment had broken down. Disabled machinery alongside roads or being towed totaled more pieces than I had seen immobilized altogether from the Saar occupation in 1935 through the remilitarization of the Rhineland, the annexation of Austria, the occupation of Bohemia-Moravia and the Polish war.

Since the only communication from this section is a military telephone with Moscow, it was necessary for me to fly with this story to a communications point. Since September 24 I have traveled 900 miles in former Poland.

As Russia penetrates what once was Poland, the inhabitants of this region are wearing bits of red cloth in buttonholes or pinned to their sleeves to signify allegiance to the new order. Small improvised red flags made of any sort of material and cut to a point hang from houses.

Red Banners Everywhere.

Red banners with pictures of Stalin and signs in Russian reading "Welcome" are stretched across the streets for the Red Army to march under.

Charcoal drawings of Stalin and Marshal Klementi E. Voroshilov, Russian Defense Commissar, hang askew in the assembly room of the Polish District Government Building, now a Russian Army headquarters. Militiamen with bayonets fixed on Russian rifles patrol the towns and villages. They wear red arm bands.

Food is scarce and most stores are closed, but some are open for a few hours daily. Long lines wait before them. In order to get one meal for fifteen persons at Beresa Kartuzka the Red Army had to send an automobile through surrounding villages within a radius of six miles. Sausage was requisitioned from one village, tomatoes from another, bread from another and cheese from the fifth, while fifteen waited.

Hotels also are closed. I slept in private homes with three or four snoring persons in the room. I spent one night in the library of the Polish District Governor's home among encyclopedias, books on Pilsudski and stacks of translations of American novels

Germany's Furthest East.

The Polish Governor fled when the Germans reached Brest-Litovsk on September 17. His home was seized and was used as quarters first by the Germans and now by the Russians. The city was the easternmost point reached by the German Army before Russia entered Poland.

Between here and the old Russian frontier there is no destruction beyond ruined railway stations and airports, bombed by the German flyers. This is the only section of Poland where trains are running.

Brest-Litovsk itself was shot up in fighting around the citadel for several days before the Poles surrendered. The airport is pockmarked with bomb holes and twenty burned Polish planes lie by a caved-in hangar.

Communist laborers' committees are working to get life back to normal. Communist newspapers already are being printed in White Russian here, at Wilno and at Baranowicze.

BUDAPEST NAZI ROW

'Little Fuehrer' Warns of What 'May' Happen.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Kalman Hubay, "Little Fuehrer" of the Hungarian Nazis, writing today in Virradat (Dawn), demanded that the Government remove all restrictions on his party and restore it to full rights.

The article by Hubay, who on Saturday challenged Baron Laszlo Vay, Government party leader, to a duel over political issues, appeared with his picture in a column paralleling a photograph of Hitler and quotations from the German Fuehrer's speeches.

Hubay demanded specifically the termination of police surveillance of Hungarian Nazis and the release of interned members of the party—including "Big Fuehrer," Major Ferenc Szalasi.

Commenting on his action on Friday, when he walked out of Parliament with approximately thirty other Nazi deputies, Hubay said that some critics considered them "stupid."

"But who knows," he asked, "to what heights our stupidity may carry us?"

Paderewski Supports Poland's New Regime

In Switzerland, He Sends a Letter to Exiled Premier

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Oct. 2 (AP).—Ignace Jan Paderewski, the pianist and former Premier of Poland now living here, sent his secretary to Paris today with a letter giving his support to the new Polish government headed by Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz as President in exile.

In deference to the Swiss neutrality rule that any foreigners living in Switzerland must abstain from political activity, Paderewski declined to release the contents of the letter. Through his secretary, Michel Stracacz, however, he left no doubt that he would support the new government, established on Saturday on French soil after President Ignace Moscicki resigned.

The letter was in reply to an appeal for such support from Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, new Polish Premier in exile in Paris.

Archbishop of York Says 'Nazi Tyrants' Bar Peace

Urges 'No Humiliation' of Germans in Final Terms

LONDON, Oct. 2 (AP).—The Most Rev William Temple, Archbishop of York, in a broadcast address said tonight: "We can make no terms with Herr Hitler or his colleagues, because Hitler's government is utterly untrustworthy."

OCT 3 1939

"The terms which we make with an honorable German government," he asserted, "should be arrived at in such a way as to show that we have sought no kind of advantage for ourselves and no humiliation of the German people.

"Let us determine and declare that when the fighting stops, terms of peace shall be drawn up in a true congress of nations, in which Germany, freed from Nazi tyrants, shall take her place among the rest, but in which also the rights of the Czechs and Poles shall have first claim to consideration."

Swiss National Front Party Gives Up Ghost

Semi-Weekly Organ Announces Leaders Will Not Participate In Council Elections

Zurich, Oct. 2 (AP)—The struggling little National Front Party, the closest thing Switzerland has to a Nazi party, virtually gave up the ghost today.

OCT 3 1939

Its semi-weekly news organ announced that the party directorate had decided not to participate in Swiss elections this fall, thereby abandoning the party's lone seat in the National Council of 187 members.

Although the organ was somewhat vague as to why the decision was reached, few Swiss doubted it was because the party had not a chance of reelecting even its one member.

Biddle Calls on Raczkiewicz

PARIS, Oct. 2 (AP).—Anthony J. Drexel Biddle jr., United States Ambassador to Poland, today paid his first formal call on the new Polish President in exile, Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz.

Biddle was received by Raczkiewicz soon after word reached Paris from Washington that the new Polish government formed in Paris Saturday was recognized by the United States.

The French Ambassador to Poland, Leon Noel, also paid his respects to the new President.

Jan Stanczyk, former Socialist deputy, was named Minister of Social Insurance in the new Polish cabinet.

Paderewski Supports Poland's New Regime

In Switzerland, He Sends a Letter to Exiled Premier

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Oct. 2 (AP).—Ignace Jan Paderewski, the pianist and former Premier of Poland now living here, sent his secretary to Paris today with a letter giving his support to the new Polish government headed by Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz as President in exile.

In deference to the Swiss neutrality rule that any foreigners living in Switzerland must abstain from political activity, Paderewski declined to release the contents of the letter. Through his secretary, Michel Stracacz, however, he left no doubt that he would support the new government, established on Saturday on French soil after President Ignace Moscicki resigned.

The letter was in reply to an appeal for such support from Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, new Polish Premier in exile in Paris.

Archbishop of York Says 'Nazi Tyrants' Bar Peace

Urges 'No Humiliation' of Germans in Final Terms

LONDON, Oct. 2 (AP).—The Most Rev William Temple, Archbishop of York, in a broadcast address said tonight: "We can make no terms with Herr Hitler or his colleagues, because Hitler's government is utterly untrustworthy.

"The terms which we make with an honorable German government," he asserted, "should be arrived at in such a way as to show that we have sought no kind of advantage for ourselves and no humiliation of the German people.

"Let us determine and declare that when the fighting stops, terms of peace shall be drawn up in a true congress of nations, in which Germany, freed from Nazi tyrants, shall take her place among the rest, but in which also the rights of the Czechs and Poles shall have first claim to consideration."

Swiss National Front Party Gives Up Ghost

Semi-Weekly Organ Announces Leaders Will Not Participate In Council Elections

Zurich, Oct. 2 (AP)—The struggling little National Front Party, the closest thing Switzerland has to a Nazi party, virtually gave up the ghost today.

OCT 3 1939

Its semi-weekly news organ announced that the party directorate had decided not to participate in Swiss elections this fall, thereby abandoning the party's lone seat in the National Council of 187 members.

Although the organ was somewhat vague as to why the decision was reached, few Swiss doubted it was because the party had not a chance of reelecting even its one member.

Biddle Calls on Raczkiewicz

PARIS, Oct. 2 (AP).—Anthony J. Drexel Biddle jr., United States Ambassador to Poland, today paid his first formal call on the new Polish President in exile, Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz.

Biddle was received by Raczkiewicz soon after word reached Paris from Washington that the new Polish government formed in Paris Saturday was recognized by the United States.

The French Ambassador to Poland, Leon Noel, also paid his respects to the new President.

Jan Stanczyk, former Socialist deputy, was named Minister of Social Insurance in the new Polish cabinet.

Chocolate Also Put On List Pending Determination Of New Prices And Taxes

Copenhagen, Oct. 2 (AP)—Sales of cigars, tobacco, liquors, chocolate and sugar in Denmark has been forbidden pending an inventory and determination of new prices and taxes.

Holland May Guarantee Not to Resell Imports

Licensing Bureau May Speed Up Blockade Inspection

THE HAGUE, Oct. 2 (AP).—Establishment shortly of a "General Netherlands Import Bureau" empowered by the government to license all imports with a guaranty that they would not be resold to belligerents was predicted in informed quarters today.

Long delays to Netherlands shipping, including passenger liners from America, imposed by the British blockade for contraband inspection are causing serious repercussions in the Netherlands.

It was understood that creation of the bureau was among subjects under discussion in London by a Netherlands trade delegation.

Nazis Invite Tourists To Beautiful Warsaw

BUDAPEST, Oct. 2 (AP).—Large tourist posters inviting inspection of the beauties of Warsaw and Krakow appeared in a window display of German travel agencies here today.

As background for the posters, formerly used as Polish tourist propaganda, there was a large map to remind passers-by that the cities now are part of German tourist territory.

The posters, definitely pre-war, promised splashing fountains and softly shaded architecture, not an opportunity to see what war could do.

Luxemburgers Flee Nazi Shots

BRUSSELS, Oct. 2 (AP).—Villagers took to their cellars today when firing along the Moselle river valley endangered field workers in neutral Luxemburg. Most of the firing was from machine guns on the German side and appeared directed against low-flying French planes.

Reich Cuts Broadcasts To Criticize the British

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 2—German radio broadcasts from time to time are interrupted by brief aspersions on Britain. Early this afternoon, for instance, a government announcer asked listeners to reflect for a moment whether they could name any great British generals.

"There are none," he said.

Then after a pause:

"And I will tell you why: England always had others do her fighting, hence she developed no military genius."

"But wait a moment—what about Marlborough and Wellington?"

He then proceeded to explain that Marlborough owed his success to the Austrian Prince Eugene and Wellington to the Prussian Marshal Bleucher.

Holland Demobilizing And Calling Up New Men

The new class which starts a six months' training period numbers about 16,000. The nation has 450,000 men under arms.

Two submarines of the training ship left the Leader Naval Base for the Dutch West Indies. Another submarine is to be sent to the East Indies by way of the Panama Canal.

The decline of jobs was attributed to the curtailment of hotel services, entertainment and sports events because of the war.

BRITAIN'S NEW SONG

It's 'Hang Out the Washing on the Siegfried Line.'

LONDON, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—A catchy ditty—"We're Going to Hang Out the Washing on the Siegfried Line"—is being plugged in London night clubs and vaudeville as a war song.

With a tune reminiscent of "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag," the chorus goes:

"We're going to hang out the washing on the Siegfried Line;
"Have you any dirty washing, mother dear?
"We're going to hang out the washing on the Siegfried Line
"'Course the washing day is here.
"Whether the weather may be wet or fine,
"We'll just rub along with a care.
"We're going to hang out the washing on the Siegfried Line
"If the Siegfried Line's still there."

The song was written by Michael Carr and Jimmy Kennedy, both of Irish extraction.

Delousing Seized Poles Big Problem for Nazis

Army Seeks Health Officers to Aid Fight on Typhus

BERLIN, Oct. 2 (AP).—The delousing of Polish prisoners to avoid the danger of typhus is now the greatest tactical problem facing Germany's eastern army, military sources declared today.

German authorities said they had found some Polish regiments infected, and that it had been necessary to remove lice in order to safeguard other prisoners from disease.

Health officers have become more in demand than army surgeons and physicians, these sources said. Immediately after the military advance into Poland came health officers with apparatus containing hot air chambers for delousing clothing and hot shower baths for prisoners.

When captives began to mount into the hundreds of thousands, German army equipment proved unequal to the task. Therefore ordinary farm motors were seized and used to work up steam for the delousing. Germans said their job was completed so thoroughly, however, that two weeks after the capture of large sections of the Polish Army the soldiers were put to work on German farms without danger of spreading disease.

SHAPE NEUTRALITY OF THE AMERICAS

Delegates at Panama Agree on Final Agenda.

PANAMA, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Agreed on sweeping neutrality proposals to secure the Western Hemisphere against European war, the Inter-American Neutrality Conference today framed the measures for final action at a plenary session tomorrow. Phases to be ironed out include:

1. Definition of uniform neutrality rights and obligations of neutrals and belligerents.

2. Fixing of limits of a zone around the Americas in which belligerent actions would be prohibited. The zone would be patroled by all American navies when necessary, with the United States bearing the brunt of the work.

Regarded by observers as a keynote of the meeting was an Ecuadorean proposal approved by a subcommittee holding improper any expansion founded on violence and condemning treaty violations and the invasion of weaker nations.

A proposal by the United States that submarines be barred from American ports was expected to be left to the discretion of each country. Argentina favored admission of the submarines if they entered ports on the surface and flying their national flag.

The inclusion in belligerent contraband lists of foodstuffs and clothing not intended for use in actual hostilities was opposed in a measure indorsed by a subcommittee. The neutrality full committee approved a Mexican proposal that another consultation be held by the conference in Havana next October.

Undersecretary Sumner Welles of the United States asserted that the unusual speed with which most agreements were reached was due to remarkable harmony among the twenty-one nations represented. After the closing session, expected tomorrow, a reception for the delegates will be held by Major-Gen. David Stone, commanding general in the Canal Zone.

ARGENTINA RENEWS CLAIM TO ISLANDS

Does Not Recognize British Rights To Falklands, Off Her Coast

[By the Associated Press]

Panama, Panama, Oct. 2—Argentina's century-old claim to the Falkland Islands, a British Crown colony 250 miles off the Argentine south coast, was renewed tonight in a statement issued by the Argentine delegation to the Inter-American Neutrality Conference.

The Statement, issued by Leopoldo Melo, delegation head, said that "within the waters adjacent to the South American continent in the territorial extension of coasts corresponding to Argentina in the zone delimited as free of any hostile act (the safety zone for merchant shipping agreed upon by the neutrality conference), the existence of any colonies or possessions of European countries is not recognized by Argentina."

Reserves Rights

The declaration added specifically that Argentina "reserves and maintains intact the legitimate titles and rights of the Argentine Republic to islands such as the Mavlinas (the Falkland Islands) and any other Argentine lands which may be located within or outside the line."

Argentina steadily has claimed the Falkland group, which have a total area of about 6,500 square miles, since the British established permanent rule there in 1833.

Britain steadily has rejected the claim, most recently in April, 1935, when the British Government protested issuance of an Argentine stamp showing the islands as Argentine possessions.

PAN AMERICAS SET BROAD ZONE OF SEA SAFETY

21-Nation Patrols Up To 730 Miles Off Shore Approved At Panama

Neutrality Declaration Is Termed "Complement To Monroe Doctrine"

[By the Associated Press]

Panama, Panama, Oct. 2—A full plenary meeting of delegates of the twenty-one American republics tonight approved the declaration of Panama proclaiming a broad safety zone in American waters for inter-American shipping and a general declaration of neutrality in the European war.

Rushing to completion the entire neutrality program for protection of American interests, the delegates asserted the declaration was a "complement to the Monroe Doctrine" and established for the first time a "continental American seas."

The declaration said each American Government, by common consent, will serve notice on belligerents in Europe's war of a fixed neutral zone within which belligerent activities will be regarded as a danger to American peace.

Corollary Doctrine

A corollary doctrine included in the general neutrality declaration fixes uniform standards, rights and obligations of neutrals with belligerents.

The measures are to be reinforced by a general economic program to be formulated by a permanent advisory committee in Washington.

Upon the motion of Sumner Welles, United States Under Secretary of State, the conference tonight unanimously requested President Juan Demostenes Arosemena of Panama to communicate the declaration of Panama to all the belligerent nations in Europe.

Solidarity Declaration

The session approved a continental solidarity declaration in which the American nations:

1. Reaffirmed "the declaration of solidarity among the peoples of this hemisphere proclaimed at the Lima conference in 1938."
2. Pledged themselves to conserve and strengthen peace and harmony among the American republics.
3. "Formulated fervent hopes for cessation of the deplorable state of war" in Europe and for "a new reign in the world of peace, not of violence but of justice and right."

The declaration of "general neutrality" gave each country the righ tot decide its own way of making it effective. It said the nations will make their "rights and positions as neutrals fully respected and observed by all belligerents."

Provisions Made

It provides that the American nations:

1. Shal lnot permit their respective territories, land, sea or air, to be used as a base for belligerent activities.
2. Shal lnot permit inhabitants of their territories to affect the neutral positions of the American nations by their activities.
3. Shall not permit enlistments or preparation of expeditions in favor of the belligerents on their soil, or the outfitting [illegible] for hostilities or establishment of radio or other belligerent communications [illegible].
4. Shall not admit belligerent warships to neutral ports of waters in numbers of more than three at a time and for not longer than twenty-four hours.
5. Shall demand that belligerent ships and aircraft seeking hospitals in American zones respect neutrality laws and regulations over the rights and duties of neutrals and belligerents.
6. Shall regard flight of belligerent aircraft over American territory as an infraction of neutrality.
7. Shall be authorized to place guards aboard merchant vessels of belligerents in American ports. Excessive delays in port are to bring internment.
8. Shall permit transfer of a belligerent vessel to a neutral American republic provided it is done in good faith and without a resale.
9. Shal lnot permit armed merchant vessels in their ports to carry more than 4 6-inch cannon on the prow. Such vessels shall not have reinforced sides or other equipment for effense.
10. May exclude belligerent submarines or admit them under the condition they enter afloat flying their flag.

Argentine Viewpoint

This last point was in accordance with the Argentine viewpoint. The United States had proposed that they be barred from American ports.

Another solution approved provided that the neutrality committee shall study the question of contraband lists. It expressed opposition to inclusion on contraband lists of foodstuffs, clothing and articles intended for civil populations of belligerents.

The "safety zone" for shipping excludes the territorial waters of foreign possessions in the Americas. The Argentine delegation in this connection reserved its long-proclaimed right to sovereignty over the Falkland Islands, a British possession.

Approved After Study

Subcommittee approval followed detailed study of a map submitted by the United States showing the geographical area in which belligerent activities such as raiding of commerce would be barred by American naval patrols, if necessary.

The safety zone was understood to begin at Passamaquoddy Bay, at the Canadian-United States border in the Atlantic, embrace the Caribbean area and Panama Canal approaches in both the Atlantic and Pacific and to cover commercial shipping lanes of the entire South American continent.

In the Pacific it reaches out to include the Galapagos Islands, 730 miles off the coast of Ecuador, and Guadalupe Island, 200 miles off the coast of southern California, and extends westward along the North American coast as far as the Juan de Fuqua Straits at the United States - Canadian boundary.

The zone excludes only the territorial waters of foreign possessions in the Americas.

Minor modifications narrowed the zone near some South American coasts, but did not affect the principle which provides that nations may establish coastal patrols when necessary.

Minor Changes Made

Some delegates said only minor changes were made in the preamble of the general declaration of the conference's aim which last week set up the principle of a coastal patrol in American waters to avoid incidents threatening neutrality of the New World republics.

The report of the shelling and sinking of the freighter Clement by a German raider sixty miles from the coast of Brazil was received as the delegates studied the safety-zone proposals advanced by various delegations. Some ranged to points near the coastline to at least 300 miles out in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

"The sinking of the Clement shows the safety zone must be more than sixty miles," delegates said just before the committee acted. "We will bear that in mind."

Neutrality Draft Approved

Immediately after the safety-zone decision, the delegates met in a private plenary session, at which they approved a declaration of neutrality framed by a subcommittee at a two-hour session earlier in the day.

Luis Lopez de Mesa, Colombian Foreign Minister and chairman of the subcommittee, said his group "worked like mad to complete the enormous task" of drafting the declaration of twenty articles. The declaration includes a provision which would allow each nation to decide whether to admit submarines to its ports.

Other provisions call for establishment of a permanent neutrality committee of seven experts in international law; asks belligerent nations to respect the laws of neutrality; opposes contraband lists by belligerents, and provides uniform standards of neutrality with liberty of action for each nation in accord with its own laws.

Approval of the safety zone came after a study of a map showing the geographic area affected by the restriction of activities of the belligerent. It was understood the approved project did not include any mandatory provisions in accord with the principle of consultation, which provides that individual and collective action be determined by each country on the basis of the best interests of the continent and itself.

A MEXICAN PROPOSAL FOR ANOTHER CONSULTATION OF FOREIGN MINISTERS OF THE REPUBLICS IN HAVANA ON OCT. 1, 1940, ALSO WAS APPROVED.

CARLOS MARTINS, BRAZILIAN AMBASSADOR TO WASHINGTON AND HEAD OF HIS COUNTRY'S DELEGATION, TOLD THE PLENARY SESSION IT WAS URGENT FOR THE NATIONS TO UNITE IN ONE ALL-AMERICAN POLICY "SAFETY OF THE CONTINENTAL SEAS."

IDAHOAN OPENS SENATE BATTLE AGAINST REPEAL

Fears Shipment of Arms Will Force U. S. to Send Troops Later.

PITTMAN DEFENDS NEW BILL

Charges Present Law Aids Nazis, Since They Can Buy From Various Neutral Nations.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, asserted today that if Congress lifted the arms embargo to Europe's warring nations, he did not see how the United States could refuse to send armies to help the allies "in their hour of greater need."

The veteran Idahoan took the Senate floor to voice the views of the opposition to the administration's neutrality bill to repeal the arms embargo after Senator Pittman, Democrat, of Nevada, had asserted that retention of the present law's embargo was "a discrimination in favor of Germany." Mr. Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, was the first speaker in the momentous neutrality discussion.

Reading a lengthy prepared address, Senator Borah charged that the Administration bill to revise the neutrality law had been accepted in Europe as an attempt to aid Great Britain and France in their struggle with Nazism. Repeal of the embargo, he contended, would be likely to put this country in the position where it could not deny further help to the democracies.

"Can we," he demanded, "under the program we are now adopting and the reasons for adopting the same, stay off the battlefields of Europe with our young men?

"Having changed our laws and our policies that we may, as openly and repeatedly declared, send there in aid of the allies our arms because of their urgent call, will we, can we, in the hour of greater need, should that hour unfortunately come, refuse to send our armies?"

Borah Says Present Law Works.

"Having put our hand to the ploy and declared the reason therefor when the furrows are comparatively smooth, will we turn back when we come to the roots and stumps of impending defeat?

"I do not see how we could. I doubt most seriously if we would. The only way I see that we can stay out of this war, having taken the first steps and the reasons for taking them, is for the war to end before we get there."

Mr. Borah departed from his prepared address to say:

"This law was not intended to prevent war in Europe. It was to prevent the sale of arms and ammunition to warring nations of Europe. It is the law of the land and no arms have gone to Europe."

Referring to former Gov. Alfred E. Smith's assertions that the "law has not worked," the Idaho Senator said:

"It is working. It is preventing profits out of the sale of arms.

"How has it not worked?" he asked.

"We know," he said, "that the manufacturers of arms and munitions are quite active in a desire to repeal the existing law. Why? Because it is working."

Pittman Opens Debate.

Speaking as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, Mr. Pittman offered the administration's neutrality bill to repeal the arms embargo as "the most important legislation that has ever been proposed to Congress" and said it was designed "for the purpose of keeping us out of a European war."

Long before the Nevada Senator opened debate for proponents of new neutrality legislation, crowds had ignored a cold rain to throng the Capitol and overflow the Senate's galleries. They were drawn by prospects of a debate expected to rank high among historic Senate discussions.

The administration bill would wipe out the present embargo against the sale of armaments to warring countries, would require belligerents to take title to goods purchased in this country before shipment, would require that American goods be carried to belligerents in non-American vessels. In addition, the President would be authorized to designate combat areas which American vessels and citizens could not enter.

Sees Crisis Gravest In History.

Senator Pittman told his colleagues that "no such grave situation has threatened the world in all history" as the current conflict abroad. He said these developments abroad had aroused a feeling "of fear and distrust in the minds of all people," but added:

"There would seem to be, fortunately, no sufficient grounds for fear of being drawn into this war as we were forced into the world war, so long as we conform to the admitted precepts of international law and prevent our citizens from subjecting themselves to destruction in the mad war raging in Europe."

The Rev. ZeBarney Phillips, chaplain, opened the session with a prayer for peace.

Vice-President Garner warned the galleries against conversation, packed though they were, with spectators lining the walls. Casual visitors helped fill the diplomatic section.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, arose to urge members to keep their discussion "on a high plane befitting the United States Senate." Mr. Barkley said he felt he was not exaggerating in saying that "this debate may go down in history as one of the historic discussions of the United States Senate."

Five Hours of Debate Daily.

He said he hoped that all members would co-operate in "speedy, prompt and yet deliberate consideration of this measure," and added that the Senate would meet daily at noon for approximately five hours of debate.

Replying, Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, said all that the Republicans desired was the opportunity for legitimate discussion of the bill. He said his group would co-operate to keep the debate on a high level.

Senator Gillette, Democrat, of Iowa, offered two amendments to the administration bill. One would require citizens of belligerent governments to pay cash for any armaments purchased in this country. There would be no interference with the provision permitting belligerent governments to obtain credits up to ninety days.

The second amendment would prohibit belligerent governments from selling any securities in the United States. The bill as it stands would forbid the sale of only those securities issued after the act had been invoked.

Johnson Leads Fight on Floor.

A group of Senators opposed to the administration measure met just before the session to discuss strategy for their fight. Senator Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, reported afterward that Senator Johnson, Republican, of California, would act as floor manager for the opposition.

About seventy Senators were in their places when Mr. Pittman began speaking.

The Nevada Senator said opponents of the legislation had contended that repeal of the arms embargo would favor France and Great Britain, because they presumably would control sea commerce with the United States.

"We might put it the other way," Mr. Pittman argued, "and say that the maintenance of the embargo is a discrimination in favor of Germany, because it prevents Great Britain, which is surrounded by water, from purchasing in our market arms, ammunition and implements of war, whilst Germany, being a land power, has access to arms, ammunition and implements of war that may be manufactured in Russia, Italy, Rumania, Yugoslavia and other countries."

Mr. Pittman said that under the existing law Germany could get American goods through such neutral countries as Russia, Italy and Rumania.

Has Confidence in President.

The speaker said he had "every confidence" in President Roosevelt's declaration that he intends to do everything possible to keep the United States out of war. Also, he said, he was confident Mr. Roosevelt would not misuse any discretionary powers granted him by neutrality legislation. In this connection, however, Mr. Pittman said many mandatory provisions had been written into the bill because authority should not be delegated "where it is unnecessary, to the President or any other single man or group of men. We know that the delegation of such authority is not only unnecessary but unwise."

"Isn't it evident," he continued, "that we cannot through . . . artificial laws with reference to imports by belligerent countries maintain either neutrality or equity?"

Citing the proposed prohibition against transportation of goods to belligerents in American ships, Mr. Pittman contended that "if our vessels cannot carry on commerce with belligerents and the belligerent Powers know it, there will be little excuse, if any, for the destruction of American vessels on the high seas with the inevitable loss of the lives of our seamen."

He expressed the opinion that "it was the inhuman and illegal killing of our seamen on the high seas" which was responsible for this country's entry into the world war.

"Is there any doubt," he asked, "that if Germany, under its contention that submarines cannot safely rise to the surface and search and seize contraband on a merchant vessel, will eventually pursue the same policy as it pursued in March, 1917? Is there any doubt that if the war lasts long enough and the situation of countries becomes desperate enough, they will resort to any form of destruction of contraband and vessels carrying contraband?"

Cites Japan's Purchases.

Senator Pittman said many people believed that a prohibition against the sale of American armaments to belligerents "will entirely eliminate us from any part in the destruction of human lives during war."

"How mistaken and unfounded is this conception," he said. "We are participating in mass murder by the Japanese in China today."

The Senator contended that Japan now was purchasing raw materials in the United States and using them to manufacture arms for the war in China.

Mr. Pittman supported a provision of the bill, sharply criticized by Senators opposed to the legislation, which would permit belligerent governments to obtain credits up to ninety days on purchases in this country. He said ninety-day credits were considered cash payments in international dealings.

"In the very nature of things," he said, "it requires some time for a draft or a check upon a foreign bank received by American citizens to be transmitted through banking channels to the foreign drawee before the seller can get actual credit for the money due him."

Mr. [illegible] argued that the credits would not conflict with the Johnson act, which prohibits nations defaulting on their war debts from floating loans in the United States. He said Attorney-General Cummings had ruled in 1934 that the Johnson act would not affect ordinary commercial dealings with defaulting countries.

Effect on Our Merchant Marine.

Discussing effects of the legislation on the American Merchant Marine, Mr. Pittman agreed that the prohibition against the use of American ships in trade with belligerents would be "injurious to some extent."

He said American vessels could pick up additional shipping in the Pacific and the South Atlantic, however, and added:

"No matter what the effect may be on our merchant marine . . . no patriotic citizen will oppose making such sacrifice and if a great sacrifice is made it is better that our Government as a government should assume such losses than that our merchant vessels should be permitted to engage in commerce with belligerents.

"This commerce must and shall be discontinued during the war."

Mr. Pittman deviated from his prepared speech several times, once to criticize "some thoughtless persons" who, he said, "are saying that Woodrow Wilson led us into war and that Franklin Roosevelt is leading us into war."

Borah Confers During Speech.

Asserting that it was the loss of lives of American seamen and not the destruction of American ships that caused the United States to go to war in 1917, Senator Pittman declared:

"Yet we hear men in high places charging today that Woodrow Wilson led us into that war. It was the country that took the Congress of the United States into that war."

Senator Borah listened with interest, but occasionally left his seat to confer with other foes of the administration bill. Many Senators remained on the floor through the usual luncheon hour in order not to miss any of Mr. Pittman's address.

Hull Asserts U. S. Won't Recognize Seizure Of Poland as Changing Legal Government

Secretary of State Calls Republic the Victim of Force.

ENVOY WILL REMAIN HERE

Count Potocki Still Accredited as the Representative of Regime in Paris.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (A. P.).—The United States refused today to recognize the disappearance of Poland, which Secretary Hull termed "the victim of force used as an instrument of national policy." Secretary Hull said that "mere seizure of territory does not extinguish the legal existence of a Government."

The United States, therefore, he added, "continues to regard the Government of Poland as in existence, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of Poland."

The Secretary of State read the statement to his press conference. He said that this Government would continue to recognize Count Jerzy Potocki as Polish Ambassador to Washington, and that the American Ambassador to Poland, Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, would remain near the Polish Government, which has moved to Paris.

Unilateral Declaration.

A reporter recalled that the Soviet Government had informed the United States of its occupation of Polish territory and asked whether that made any difference in this Government's attitude. The Secretary replied that the Soviet announcement was a unilateral declaration, meaning that it was not concurred in by the American Government.

Secretary Hull's statement follows:

"More than twenty years ago the United States recognized, and has since maintained, diplomatic relations with the Polish Government.

Victim of Force.

"Poland is now the victim of force used as an instrument of national policy. Its territory has been taken over and its Government has had to seek refuge abroad.

"Mere seizure of territory, however, does not extinguish the legal existence of a government. The United States, therefore, continues to regard the Government of Poland as in existence, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution of Poland, and continues to recognize Count Jerzy Potocki as its Ambassador to Washington.

"For the present, at least, Mr. Biddle will remain near the Government to which he has been accredited."

Attitude on Recruitment.

The Secretary's statement was interpreted by officials to mean also that the United States recognized the legality of the transfer of powers from former Polish President Ignace Moscicki, who resigned in Rumania after fleeing Poland, to the former President, Wladislaw Raczkiewicz, who is in Paris.

Secretary Hull was asked what would be the attitude of this Government toward a statement made by the new Polish Premier, Gen. Wladislaw Sikorski, that an army of 200,000 Poles would be recruited in the United States and Canada. He referred inquirers to the law on this subject.

The President's first neutrality proclamation forbade the enlistment of American citizens in belligerent armies, but the act specifically excepted citizens of a belligerent nation who, being transiently in the United States, enlist in the service of their own country. An informed official said, however, that it was doubtful that the United States would permit organized enlistment on a large scale on American soil.

Germany Warns U. S. Shipping To Avoid All 'Suspicious' Acts

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Germany warned United States merchant ships today against "suspicious behavior" in waters around Britain and France.

A note to this effect was received by the State Department and transmitted to the Maritime Commission. Both the commission and the Navy Hydrographic Office forwarded the warning to American merchant vessels and port authorities.

The German note advised against such suspicious acts as change of course, use of radio on sighting a German warship, zigzagging, screening lights, failing to obey a demand to stop and accepting convoy by British or French naval forces.

A State Department official said the warning was, in effect, an acceptance of the decision by President Roosevelt that American merchant vessels should not be convoyed or zigzag, but should show their true colors and at night have all lights burning.

The German note read as follows:

"Neutral merchant vessels have repeatedly attempted in the waters around France and England to evade the exercise of the rights of German naval forces granted by international law of stoppage and search. Besides they have repeatedly aroused suspicion of attack or unneutral acts by improper behavior.

"The government of the Reich therefore begs to call the attention of American merchant vessels traveling into the waters mentioned to the fact that in their own interest and in order to prevent confusion with naval or auxiliary ships of the enemy, especially at night, they should avoid any suspicious behavior, particularly a change of course and use of the radio apparatus upon sighting German naval forces, zigzagging, screening lights, failing to obey a demand to stop and acceptance of convoy by naval forces of the powers at war with Germany."

Five Athenia Survivors Arrive Aboard U S. Liner

Yonkers Couple Knocked Flat by Explosion of Torpedo

BOSTON, Oct. 2 (A).—Five additional survivors of the torpedoed steamship Athenia arrived today aboard the United States liner American Importer, which brought 210 passengers here from Manchester, Liverpool and Belfast. The Importer docked a few hours after the American Export liner Excalibur brought in 156 passengers from Mediterranean ports. A third trans-Atlantic arrival was due tomorrow the American Banker with 108 passengers.

The Athenia survivors aboard the American Importer were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Insch, of 14 King Avenue, Yonkers, N. Y., and their daughter, Elsie, thirteen; William Johnston, of New York City and Mrs. Sarah McRoberts, of Mineola, N. Y.

The Insches said they were knocked down by the force of the explosion that sank the Athenia off the Hebrides. When finally they got into a lifeboat, it fell thirty feet into the water, they said, and one woman passenger drowned. The boat remained afloat, however, and a British destroyer picked up its passengers.

SAYS CARDINAL FAVORED PLAN OF ROOSEVELT

Bishop Sheil Calls On Catholics to Support Neutrality Change

[By the Associated Press]

Chicago, Oct. 2—Bishop Bernard J. Sheil—in what he termed the "last message" of the late George Cardinal Mundelein—made a bid tonight for support of President Roosevelt's proposed to revise the Neutrality Act.

The bishop, speaking over the radio 12½ hours after the death of the prelate, reported that the cardinal, who died this morning, had "specifically authorized and approved" the address during a conference Sunday.

Strengthen President

"We must do everything in our power to strengthen the President in his mighty task of guiding America to safety," Bishop Sheil said.

In the unusual speech, he asserted:

"A few days ago you perhaps saw reprinted in your papers an editorial from Osservatore Romano, the official newspaper of the Vatican. Every American Catholic must glow with pride at the commendation which that editorial . . . gave to President Roosevelt's message to Congress recommending changes in the so-called Neutrality Act and the identity that editorial established between the views of the Holy Father and the views of our own President.

Quotes Vatican Paper

"Let me read you just one sentence. "'It is impossible,' says that editorial, 'not to perceive the almost literal identity of the essential points enumerated by the head of state of one of the most powerful and modern nations of the world and the principles enunciated by the supreme religious leader with the highest spiritual authority in the world. For the august Pontiff, preaching springs from revealed truth; for the [illegible] it comes from [illegible] experience.'

"And in particular the editorial praises the President's message for its 'noble appeal to religion.'"

Leaders Think Alike

Bishop Sheil, senior auxiliary bishop of the Archdiocese, continued in the address:

"The recognition that the two greatest leaders of the world think alike on the greatest problem in the world—and that both these leaders are our leaders—should make American Catholics feel not only proud but safe. It is a matter of particular joy to us that at this time of crisis these two great sources of inspiration are flowing in one direction.

Should Give The Key

"And it is in the spirit of the warmth and gladness of the Vatican's response to the President's message that we members of the Catholic faith in the United States must do everything in our power to strengthen the President in his mighty task of guiding America to safety.

"That should give the key to the attitude of American Catholics on the recommendations of the President now before Congress to keep the country out of war."

Talked With Cardinal

The bishop told how he had discussed the broadcast yesterday with Cardinal Mundelein and explained:

"What he authorized me to say was controversial—something he would not have wanted to have said for him—except that he felt that others had created a situation which might be mistaken to compromise the position of the Catholic clergy toward the Congress—and toward his great friend, the President of the United States, in this hour of great decision on national policies affecting his beloved youth."

The bishop had been scheduled to speak before the national conference of the Catholic Youth Organization in Cincinnati, but after the Cardinal's death decided to broadcast from Chicago.

PARIS, OCT.2-(AP)-FRENCH AND BRITISH TROOPS ON THE WESTERN FRONT CONTINUED PRESSURE AGAINST GERMAN LINES TODAY AS THE WAR ENTERED ITS SECOND MONTH WITHOUT MAJOR CHANGE IN BATTLE POSITIONS.

ALTHOUGH THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT WATCHED GERMAN DIPLOMATIC MANEUVERS TO REACH A PEACE SETTLEMENT, ADOLF HITLER'S EFFORTS APPARENTLY HAD NO EFFECT ON THE MILITARY SITUATION.

THE FRENCH HIGH COMMAND IN A COMMUNIQUE TONIGHT SAID "LOCAL ENEMY ATTACKS HAVE BEEN REPULSED" NEAR SAARLOUIS AND EAST OF THE SAAR.

THE COMMUNIQUE REPORTED THAT GERMAN ARTILLERY FIRE OVER THE FRENCH POSITIONS WAS FALLING "ON GERMAN LOCALITIES BEHIND OUR LINE."

TACTICS OF THE HIGH COMMAND SEEMED TO BE KEEPING A STEADY PRESSURE ON GERMAN LAND LINES WHILE NAVAL FORCES PRESSED THE ECONOMIC BLOCKADE AT SEA.

AT THE SAME TIME, HOWEVER, FRENCH TROOPS CONSTANTLY ARE SEEKING

TO IMPROVE THEIR POSITIONS ON GERMAN TERRITORY SO THAT THE NAZI COMMAND WILL HAVE THAT MUCH HARDER A JOB IF IT DECIDES TO LAUNCH AN OFFENSIVE.

MILITARY OBSERVERS IN PARIS REPORTED IT LIKELY THAT WHEN THE NAZIS SEE THEIR EFFORTS TO MAKE PEACE HAVE FAILED AND THE BLOCKADE BEGINS TO BE FELT THE GERMAN ARMY PROBABLY WILL BE ORDERED TO STRIKE IN FORCE ON LAND AND IN THE AIR IN AN EFFORT TO BREAK THE SIEGE.

DIPLOMATIC OBSERVERS SAID THEY CONSIDERED THAT GERMAN MANEUVERS FOR PEACE AFTER THE COLLAPSE OF POLAND ALREADY HAD FAILED IN VIEW OF THE STRONG POSITION TAKEN BOTH BY FRANCE BRITAIN EVEN BEFORE ANY FORMAL OFFER HAS BEEN MADE.

MAIN FRENCH INTEREST SEEMED TO BE IN WATCHING THE METHOD GERMAN DIPLOMACY IS USING AND THE EFFECT IT IS LIKELY TO HAVE ON THE GERMAN PEOPLE. FRENCH OBSERVERS SAID THEY WERE CONVINCED THAT HITLER KNEW HIS PEACE PLAN WAS FOREDOOMED TO FAILURE BUT THAT HE WAS CARRYING ON WITH IT TO BOLSTER A THESIS AT HOME THAT FRANCE AND BRITAIN WERE AGGRESSORS.

AFTER THE BERLIN VISIT OF ITALY'S FOREIGN MINISTER COUNT GALEAZZO CIANO, SOME FRENCH OBSERVERS CONSIDERED IT POSSIBLE THE ITALIAN AMBASSADORS TO PARIS AND LONDON EVENTUALLY WOULD SUBMIT A PEACE PLAN.

MILITARY AUTHORITIES SAID THAT ASIDE FROM BROAD STRATEGICAL REASONS FOR THE SLOWNESS OF THE ADVANCE INTO GERMANY, THERE WERE EQUALLY GOOD TACTICAL ONES RESULTING FROM THE NATURE OF THE NO MANS' LAND IN FRONT OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE AND THE EXTENT OF GERMAN FORTIFICATIONS.

FOR EXAMPLE, THE FRENCH MORE OR LESS "OCCUPIED" WARNDT FOREST SECTOR OPPOSITE THE GERMAN CITY OF SAARBRUECKEN, IN ONE OF THE FIRST OPERATIONS OF THE WAR ALMOST A MONTH AGO.

THEY HAVE BEEN ROOTED TO THEIR FIRST POSITIONS IN THE 6,000-SQUARE YARD FOREST WHILE TRAINED ENGINEER DETACHMENTS CAUTIOUSLY CLEANED OUT MINES PLANTED THERE BY GERMANS.

THE FRENCH ANNOUNCED TODAY THAT THEY ALREADY HAD FOUND APPROXIMATELY 3,000 SUCH MINES IN THE WARNDT FOREST ALONE, EACH OF WHICH HAVE TO BE SOUGHT OUT INDIVIDUALLY AND EXPLODED.

IN OTHER SECTORS, ARTILLERY NOW IS BEING USED IN AN EFFORT TO EXPLODE A MAJORITY OF THE MINES BEFORE THE FRENCH START ANY NEW ACTION. FRENCH OBSERVERS NOTED NUMBERS WERE EXPLODED IN EACH SECTION BY AN ARTILLERY SHELL WHICH SET OFF A STRING OF MINES ALMOST 1,000 YARDS LONG.

ADOLF HITLER'S REICHSTAG ADDRESS THIS WEEK.

NAZIS SAID TODAY IT WOULD REQUIRE AN EQUALLY BROAD-MINDED ACCEPTANCE TO STAVE OFF A WORLD WAR EVEN NOW; HAGGLING ABOUT DETAILS WOULD NOT DO, THEY DECLARED.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI WAS REGARDED BY GERMANY AS HAVING RENDERED AN HISTORIC CONTRIBUTION TO EUROPEAN PEACE THUS FAR BY HIS EFFORTS TO LOCALIZE THE CONFLICT.

FROM THIS APPRECIATION OF THE ITALIAN LEADER AND THE FACT THAT HIS FOREIGN MINISTER, COUNT GALEAZZO CIANO, WAS INVITED HERE SUDDENLY TO LEARN ALL ABOUT THE GERMAN-RUSSIAN RELATIONS, OBSERVERS SAID THEY REGARDED IT AS CERTAIN THAT IL DUCE WOULD BE KEPT BUSY UNTIL THE REICHSTAG CONVENES IN ELUCIDATING THE GERMAN POSITION ONCE MORE TO BRITAIN AND FRANCE.

THE DATE OF THE REICHSTAG MEETING STILL IS TO BE ANNOUNCED.

THROUGH COUNT CIANO, WHO LEFT HERE AT NOON AFTER A VISIT OF LESS THAN 24 HOURS, AUTHORITATIVE SOURCES SAID MUSSOLINI WOULD HAVE IN DETAIL WHAT HITLER THINKS ABOUT THE POSSIBILITIES OF FUTURE DEVELOPMENTS IN EUROPE, WHAT HIS CONCEPTION IS REGARDING SPHERES OF INTEREST IN EASTERN EUROPE, AND HOW THE WAR CAN BE STOPPED AT THIS STAGE.

OCT 3

IT WAS HELD THAT IT MAY BE TAKEN FOR GRANTED THAT THE FUEHRER ALSO WAS INFORMING IL DUCE WHAT FORM OF EXISTENCE THE PURELY POLISH SECTIONS OF EASTERN CONQUERED TERRITORY SHALL HAVE--- WHETHER PROTECTORATE, BUFFER STATE OR WHAT.

GERMAN GOVERNMENT CIRCLES WOULD NOT COMMIT THEMSELVES ON THIS, SAYING THAT WAS LEFT UP TO HITLER TO DIVULGE. THEY INSISTED, HOWEVER, THAT GERMANY HAD NO DESIRE TO "GERMANIZE" PEOPLE NOT OF GERMAN ORIGIN.

FROM THIS OBSERVERS SAID THEY DEDUCED THAT SOME FORM OF CULTURAL AUTONOMY WOULD BE GRANTED THE POLES.

THESE OBSERVERS FELT IT WAS EQUALLY OBVIOUS, FROM THE SLIGHTING WAY IN WHICH GERMANS SPOKE OF POLISH ADMINISTRATIVE ABILITY, THAT THE NAZIS INTENDED TO "RUN" THEIR ALLOTTED SHARE OF POLAND.

THE ALLIED AIM OF FIGHTING HITLERISM OFFICIALLY WAS DECLARED DOOMED TO FAILURE FOR TWO REASONS.

FIRST, BECAUSE THE PEOPLE AND THE REGIME ARE ABSOLUTELY AS ONE.

SECOND, BECAUSE THE ALLIES ONCE BEFORE SUGGESTED THE REMOVAL OF THE KAISER AND ALL WOULD BE WELL---BUT THEN IMPOSED THE VERSAILLES TREATY AND TREMENDOUS BURDENS ON THE REGIME WHICH FOLLOWED.

HAD THE ALLIES DEALT FAIRLY WITH REPUBLICAN GERMANY, THE NAZIS SAID, THERE WOULD BE SOME POINT TO "THIS FORM OF ALLIED PROPAGANDA," BUT NOW IT WOULD NOT WORK.

WHILE SHE WAS STATED TO BE WILLING TO MAKE PEACE WITH THE WESTERN POWERS EVEN WITHOUT CONTINUING TO FIGHT FOR COLONIES, GERMANY EVIDENTLY IS NOT READY TO RENOUNCE WHAT SHE REGARDS AS HER LEGAL RIGHT TO COLONIES.

OCT 3

IN OTHER WORDS, REGAINING OF LOST COLONIES IS NOT A WAR AIM BUT WILL EVER CONTINUE TO BE THE AIM OF PEACEFUL NEGOTIATIONS.

FOREIGN MINISTER JOACHIM VON RIBBENTROP'S DECLARATION AT MOSCOW LAST WEEK OFFERING PEACE TO THE WESTERN POWERS WAS MADE IN THE NAME OF THE GERMAN AND SOVIET GOVERNMENTS, IT WAS AUTHORITATIVELY SAID, WHEREFORE THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE WORLD SHOULD TAKE IT AS SERIOUSLY AS THEY WOULD A FORMAL DIPLOMATIC NOTE. IT MUST NOT, HOWEVER, BE REGARDED AS A SIGN OF WEAKNESS, IT WAS DECLARED.

GERMAN DIPLOMATS, MAKING AN EFFORT TO LEAVE NO DOUBT IN THE MINDS OF INQUIRERS THAT HITLER AND MUSSOLINI SEE EYE TO EYE, EMPHASIZED THE BELIEF THAT IF THE FUEHRER'S PLEA FOR PEACE WAS REJECTED THE WORLD COULD ANTICIPATE A LONG WAR.

WITH COUNT CIANO'S VISIT OUT OF THE WAY AND THOROUGH CLARIFICATION SAID TO HAVE BEEN ESTABLISHED BY THE AXIS PARTNERS ON EUROPEAN ISSUES, IT MAY BE TAKEN FOR GRANTED THAT HITLER BEGAN WORKING AT ONCE ON HIS REICHSTAG ADDRESS.

COUNT CIANO CONFERRED LAST NIGHT WITH HITLER AND VON RIBBENTROP. THE SPEED WITH WHICH THE CONVERSATIONS WERE CONCLUDED INDICATED TO OBSERVERS THAT BOTH COUNTRIES WERE IN COMPLETE ACCORD ON FUTURE MOVES AND ON QUESTIONS ARISING FROM THE PRESENT EUROPEAN SITUATION, INCLUDING THE NEW GERMAN-SOVIET RELATIONS.

WH353PES

RELIABLE SOURCES INDICATED MUSSOLINI WOULD INTENSIFY HIS SOUNDINGS FOR PEACE WHILE HITLER WEAVES HIS SPECH.

THE SPEECH, ACCORDING TO ALL SIGNS, WILL BE INTENDED MORE FOR FOREIGN CONSUMPTION THAN AT HOME, AND WILL, IT WAS BELIEVED GENERALLY IN INFORMED CIRCLES , ONCE MORE AND FOR THE LAST TIME OPEN THE DOORS TO PEACE FOR BRITAIN.

ONE INDICATION OF HITLER'S DESIRE TO SPEAK TO THE WORLD AT LARGE WAS DISCERNIBLE IN THE FACT THAT A STAFF OF EXPERT LINGUISTS HAS BEEN ORDERED READY TO TRANSLATE HIS ADDRESS INTO PRINCIPAL FOREIGN LANGUAGES AS SOON AS IT IS WRITTEN.

THE HAMBURGER FREMDENBLATT, ATTEMPTING TO FORECAST THE WEEK'S EVENTS, SAID THAT "A WEEK FILLED WITH MOMENTOUS DECISIONS HAS BEGUN. UNLESS ALL SIGNS MISLEAD, IT WILL BRING THE FINAL ANSWER TO THE PEOPLES OF THE EARTH WHETHER THE EUROPEAN WAR WITH ALL IT IMPLIES IS TO BE A BLOODY REALITY OF THE IMMEDIATE FUTURE."

"AS YET THE DIE IS NOT CAST," THE PAPER WENT ON."X X X A PEACE OFFENSIVE IS STILL ON THE MARCH. X X XTHE GERMAN PEACE OFFENSIVE SUPPORTED BY SOVIET RUSSIA AND IN TUNE WITH ITALIAN JUDGMENT CONCERNING THE SENSELESSNESS OF THE PRESENT CONFLICT WILL REMAIN THE DOMINATING IMPULSE OF THE ENSUING DAYS."

MEANWHILE, GERMANY'S ARMED FORCE CONTINUE TO CONSOLIDATE HER POSITION. THE HIGH COMMAND ANNOUNCED THAT HELA PENINSULA, THE LAST CENTER OF POLISH RESISTANCE, SURRENDERED AND THAT AMONG THE PRISONERS TAKEN WAS THE COMMANDING REAR ADMIRAL VON UNRUH, 52 OFFICERS AND 4,000 MEN.

LATER CIANO WAS GUEST OF HONOR AT A DINNER GIVEN BY VON RIBBENTROP IN HIS DAHLEM SUBURBAN HOME. INFORMAL DISCUSSIONS BETWEEN THE TWO FOREIGN MINISTERS WERE RESUMED DURING THE EVENING.

INFORMED QUARTERS SAID THAT CIANO'S VISIT, MARKING THE FIRST DIRECT CONSULTATION BETWEEN THE AXIS PARTNERS SINCE HITLER, CIANO AND VON RIBBENTROP MET SEVEN WEEKS AGO AT SALZBURG TO ANNOUNCE "A UNITED COURSE OF ACTION," MIGHT LAST TWO DAYS.

THE ONLY OFFICIAL STATEMENT ON THE CONFERENCES SAID THAT ALL ANGLES OF THE GERMAN-RUSSIAN ACCORD OF LAST WEEK WERE BEING DISCUSSED, INCLUDING THE PARTITION OF POLAND AND DIPLOMATIC PROBLEMS IT CREATED.

RELIABLE POLITICAL SOURCES, COMMENTING ON CIANO'S VISIT, DECLARED, HOWEVER, THAT "DIRECT PERSONAL CONTACT BETWEEN THE FOREIGN MINISTERS OF THE AXIS POWERS ALWAYS TOOK PLACE WHEN DECISIVE DEVELOPMENTS BEARING ON THE INTERNATIONAL SITUATION MADE DISCUSSIONS ON FURTHER PROCEDURE NECESSARY."

ADVICES FROM WARSAW SAID THAT POLISH TROOPS WERE MOVING OUT OF THE CITY ON SCHEDULE AND THAT POLISH LABOR SQUADS HAD BEGUN CLEARING AWAY DEBRIS RESULTING FROM THE GERMAN SIEGE.

AS YET, HOWEVER, THE DATE ON WHICH NAZI TROOPS WILL MARCH INTO THE FORMER POLISH CAPITAL HAS NOT BEEN SET.

IN A RADIO ADDRESS, RUDOLF HESS, HITLER'S CHIEF PARTY DEPUTY, DECLARED THAT "NEVER IN HISTORY WAS SUCH AN IMMEASURABLE SUCCESS ACHIEVED WITH SUCH LITTLE LOSS" AS IN THE POLISH CAMPAIGN.

HESS, WHO MADE HIS SPEECH IN CONNECTION WITH THE AWARD OF NAZI HONOR CROSSES TO PROLIFIC MOTHERS, SAID THAT "AS FAR AS WE CAN SEE INTO THE FUTURE BLOODY FIGHTING NEVER AGAIN WILL OCCUR ON OUR EASTERN FRONT."

"THE FUEHRER TOOK CARE THAT PEACE NEVER AGAIN WILL BE BROKEN IRRESPONSIBLY THERE," HE ADDED.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, THE HIGH COMMAND SAID IN A SUNDAY COMMUNIQUE, "ENEMY ARTILLERY FIRE IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD OF SAARBRUECKEN WAS STRONGER, BUT OTHERWISE THERE WAS NO FIGHTING WORTHY OF MENTION."

THE COMMUNIQUE DECLARED THAT 10 BRITISH AND TWO FRENCH PLANES HAD BEEN SHOT DOWN OVER THE NORTH SEA. GERMAN AIR LOSSES WERE PLACED AT TWO PLANES.

OFFICIAL QUARTERS MADE NO COMMENT ON THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT'S ATTITUDE TOWARD THE BRITISH ANNOUNCEMENT THAT ENGLISH MERCHANT VESSELS WERE BEING ARMED, BUT SOME SECTIONS OF THE NAZI PRESS SAID THAT SUCH SHIPS WOULD BE TREATED "AS WARSHIPS" BY SUBMARINE COMMANDERS.

(SATURDAY NIGHT THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY SAID THE GERMAN RADIO HAD BROADCAST AN ANNOUNCEMENT THAT GERMANY NOW CONSIDERS EVERY BRITISH MERCHANTMAN A "WARSHIP." WINSTON CHURCHILL, BRITAIN'S FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY, HAD TOLD COMMONS SEPT. 26 THAT BRITISH MERCHANTMEN WERE BEING ARMED.)

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

THERE'S MORE BLOOD ON EUROPE'S HARVEST MOON.

WE ARE RAPIDLY NEARING THE END OF THE ASTONISHING PHASE OF COMPARATIVE INACTIVITY IN THE WAR BETWEEN HITLER AND THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES, AND THE IMMEDIATE FUTURE SHOULD SEE THE LID BEGIN TO ROCK.

THE NAZI CHIEFTAIN HAS BEEN HOLDING HIS HAND IN HOPES OF GETTING PEACE AS SOON AS HE HAD CRUSHED POLAND.

THE SPARRING WILL FINISH WHEN HE OFFICIALLY RECOGNIZES (WHAT HE ALREADY KNOWS) THAT THERE ARE NO BUYERS FOR PEACE AT HIS PRICE.

ONCE THAT PROSPECT IS WRITTEN OFF THE BOOKS IT IS LIKELY THAT THE "COMPLETE WAR"--WHOLESALE BOMBINGS AND INTENSIFIED SUBMARINE ACTIVITY--WHICH THE NAZIS HAVE BEEN THREATENING WILL GET UNDER WAY.

HITLER IS PERSISTING RIGHT UP TO THE ELEVENTH HOUR IN HIS EFFORTS TO END THE WAR TO HIS OWN SATISFACTION. THIS IS DUE TO TWO REASONS:

1. HE FRANKLY WANTS TO AVOID A MAJOR CONFLICT WITH THE ENGLISH AND FRENCH.

OCT 3 1939

2. HE WANTS TO REGISTER WITH WORLD-OPINION THE CLAIM THAT HE IS A MAN OF PEACE AND THAT THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES ARE THE AGGRESSORS. THE COROLLARY TO THIS IS THAT IF HE IS DRIVEN TO DESPERATION, HE WILL BE JUSTIFIED IN USING DESPERATE MEANS FOR DEFENSE.

THE BELIEF THAT SIGNOR MUSSOLINI MIGHT BE CALLED IN TO ACT AS HERR HITLER'S PEACE SALESMAN WAS FURTHER STRENGTHENED BY THE VISIT OF ITALIAN FOREIGN MINISTER CIANO TO HITLER IN BERLIN OVER THE WEEK-END. IT WAS GENERALLY UNDERSTOOD THAT CIANO'S MISSION WAS TO DISCUSS PEACE PROSPECTS AND WHAT PART HIS CHIEF MIGHT PLAY.

MEANTIME, OF COURSE, THE NAZIS ARE HOLDING OVER THE ALLIED HEADS THE THREAT THAT RUSSIA MAY JOIN GERMANY IN WAR UNLESS THE ALLIES AGREE TO PEACE.

ENGLAND LAST NIGHT GAVE A SWEEPING ANSWER TO HITLER THROUGH ITS MASTER MANIPULATER OF WORDS, THE GREAT WINSTON CHURCHILL, RECENTLY APPOINTED FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY. CHURCHILL IS A LONE-WOLF,

BUT WHEN THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT GETS IN A JAM IT ALWAYS SENDS FOR HIM.

"WE ARE GOING ON TO THE END," DECLARED CHURCHILL IN A BROADCAST.

HOW LONG WILL IT TAKE ENGLAND TO WIN? WELL, SAYS CHURCHILL, THAT DEPENDS ON "HOW LONG HERR HITLER AND HIS GROUP OF WICKED MEN, WHOSE HANDS ARE SOILED WITH BLOOD AND CORRUPTION, CAN KEEP THEIR GRIP UPON THE DOCILE, UNHAPPY GERMAN PEOPLE."

THAT COLORFUL SENTENCE SUMMED UP ONE OF BRITAIN'S CHIEF AIMS--TO CAUSE A REVOLT AMONG THE PEOPLE OF GERMANY. AND AT THE SAME TIME, CHURCHILL REACHED OUT THROUGH THE AIR TO CONTACT GERMAN LISTENERS.

THE ADMIRALTY LORD GAVE THE FIRST OFFICIAL INFORMATION OF HOW BRITAIN FEELS ABOUT THE NAZI THREAT OF BRINGING RUSSIA INTO THE MELEE. HE SEEMED TO DISCOUNT THE POSSIBILITY WHEN HE SAID:

"THROUGH THE FOG OF CONFUSION AND UNCERTAINTY WE MAY DISCERN QUITE PLAINLY THE COMMUNITY OF INTEREST WHICH EXISTS BETWEEN ENGLAND, FRANCE AND RUSSIA TO PREVENT THE GERMANS FROM CARRYING THE FLAMES OF WAR INTO THE BALKANS AND TURKEY."

MR. CHURCHILL, WHO LONG HAS BEEN AN ADVOCATE OF CLOSER RELATIONS BETWEEN AMERICA AND ENGLAND, ALSO HAD THIS TO SAY:

"WE BELIEVE WE ARE ENTITLED TO THE RESPECT AND GOOD-WILL OF THE WORLD AND PARTICULARLY OF THE UNITED STATES."

WHATEVER RUSSIA MAY DO ABOUT LENDING MILITARY SUPPORT TO GERMANY, SOVIET LEADER STALIN CONTINUES TO PULL PRIME FEATHERS OUT OF THE NAZI GOOSE.

THE MUSCOVITES TODAY SUMMONED LATVIA'S FOREIGN MINISTER FOR A CONFERENCE. INFORMED QUARTERS SAID THE PURPOSE WAS TO NEGOTIATE A "NON-AGGRESSION" PACT GIVING RUSSIA MILITARY AND NAVAL CONCESSIONS IN LATVIA SIMILAR TO THOSE SHE OBTAINED LAST WEEK FROM LITTLE ESTONIA.

THIS WOULD FURTHER STRENGTHEN RUSSIA'S POSITION IN THE BALTIC, AND WOULD BRING LATVIA UNDER VIRTUAL CONTROL OF THE SOVIET. THUS HITLER SEES AN IMPORTANT ZONE OF INFLUENCE SLIPPING FROM HIM.

AT THE SAME TIME STALIN CONFERRED WITH TURKISH REPRESENTATIVES, AND DIPLOMATS IN MOSCOW BELIEVED HE WAS FORMULATING A PLAN TO KEEP THE BALKANS NEUTRAL UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF THE SOVIET.

INFORMED QUARTERS ALSO EXPECTED MOSCOW WOULD DEMAND THAT RUMANIA RETURN BESSARABIA, THE RICH OIL AREA WHICH RUSSIA LOST TO RUMANIA AFTER THE WORLD WAR.

World War Premier Opposes Any Action That Would Alienate Italy and Russia.

OCT 4

LONDON, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Chamberlain declared today that Great Britain would "examine and test" any German peace proposals, but added that "no mere assurances from the present German Government can be accepted by us."

Britain and France, the Prime Minister told a wildly cheering House of Commons, will not yield to what he termed a "scarcely veiled threat" of Soviet-German collaboration.

"No threat would ever induce this country to abandon the purpose for which we have entered upon this struggle," he said.

Replying to the plea of David Lloyd George that the Government not be in too much of a hurry to reject any serious peace proposals and thereby alienate Italy and Russia, Mr. Chamberlain said:

"I entirely agree. I see no reason why we should be in a hurry to give an answer to a proposal which really requires serious consideration."

Chamberlain Is Skeptical.

Mr. Lloyd George envisaged the possibility of detailed peace proposals relayed to Britain from Germany by Italy or Russia, which might embrace a broad solution of all of Europe's troubles.

He urged careful consideration of any such proposals and said that if a peace conference were held "it would be a first class mistake to enter into one unless you invited not merely Russia and Italy but also the United States."

Mr. Chamberlain said that "no such proposal has yet come to us, and at this stage it would be premature to build any hopes on the likelihood of such a proposal being made, although the House will realize that no man would welcome more wholeheartedly any proposal which I could really feel achieved the aims described as the aims of this Government and this country in entering this war."

The House cheered this declaration.

Mr. Lloyd George's speech drew an instant charge from Alfred Duff Cooper, former First Lord of the Admiralty, that it would go out over the world as a "suggestion of surrender."

Mr. Lloyd George rose and cried: "This is the first time I have been charged with surrender, and Mr. Duff Cooper may live to regret it."

Fears Effect in Germany.

Sir Morris Jones, Liberal supporter of the Government, added: "I almost tremble to think of what the effect will be in Germany."

On the other hand, George Buchanan, Independent Laborite, praised Mr. Lloyd George for his "courage," saying that he "never saw in 1914 anything like the hostility for the war that I find today."

Cries of "No! No!" almost drowned his words.

The Rev. James Barr, Opposition Laborite, said millions of lives would be lost if the war was fought to the bitter end, and added:

"Some of my friends almost seem to say not 'Peace at any price' but 'War at any price.'

Praises Ex-Premier's Speech.

Sir Charles Gayzer, Conservative, praised Mr. Lloyd George's speech as "gallant and courageous" and said that he, a veteran of the world war, and thousands like him would like to know "exactly what we are to fight for."

He added that Adolf Hitler already had lost by making Russia "the dominant power in Europe" and appealed to Mr. Chamberlain, "the great peacemaker, even at this last moment to endeavor to obtain for Europe that peace which alone can save our civilization."

The Prime Minister's speech retorted to the Russian-German agreement which partitioned Poland and made a peace gesture with the alternative of Nazi-Soviet "consultation."

He declared "no mere assurances" from the German Government could be accepted because that Government "too often in the past have proved that their undertakings are worthless when it suits them that they should be broken."

He then added that "if, therefore, proposals are made we shall certainly examine and test them in the light of what I have just said."

Maisky Listens Pensively.

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, was beside the Prime Minister on the Treasury bench as he spoke. Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky hunched pensively over the rail of the diplomatic gallery.

Mr. Chamberlain told the House that the Soviet-German agreement by no means meant that Germany would receive any lasting benefits and contained nothing to swerve Britain from "what we are doing now—mobilizing all the resources of the British Empire for the effective prosecution of the war."

Bitterly, Mr. Chamberlain assailed the Russian-German statement that if the Western Powers refused peace offers they would bear the war guilt.

"The responsibility for the war rests upon those who have conceived and carried out this policy of successive aggression and it can neither be evaded nor denied," he said.

As he spoke, Premier Mussolini and his Cabinet in Rome were receiving from Foreign Minister Count Ciano what was presumed here to be an outline of Germany's plan for a quick peace.

Coincidentally the arrival in London of a Turkish military mission and British attentiveness to Spain showed the intensity of the diplomatic struggle over Europe's neutrals.

Opposition Backs Premier.

The House roared its approval of Mr. Chamberlain's avowals that Britain could not be threatened into peace and that she would examine peace proposals in the light of Germany's past record.

Labor and Liberal leaders concurred. Laborite Clement Attlee said "we must carefully examine every kind of a proposal for peace, but we must deal with realities, and it is no good saying there is peace when there is no peace.

"A mere reversion to the situation of the last year or so would not bring the world back to peace."

Liberal leader Sir Archibald Sinclair said: "So long as Germany is governed by Hitler and the people who surround him, we will constantly be confronted with a choice between submission to his will and the dread alternative of war.

"This country wants peace, but it is not prepared to buy it at the price of freedom and the moral values of civilization."

White-haired Mr. Lloyd George, speaking in Commons for the first time since the war's start, declared:

"If peace depends on the word of Hitler we shall have no alternative but to proceed until we get some other and more assumed guaranty."

Friendly Word for Italy.

Referring to the German "discussions" with Italy, "at the invitation of Herr Hitler," the world war Premier added:

"I do not think [illegible] Mussolini has shown much hostility to this country in the last few days—he has on the whole shown a friendly disposition."

Mr. Lloyd George continued that "it is clear that somebody is going to submit detailed terms for the consideration of this Government.

"I think it is important that we should not come to a too hurried conclusion. It needs very careful consideration.

"If there comes a document from the Italian or Russian governments it is vital that we should regard them as neutrals. We do not want to double our enemies."

Mr. Chamberlain said that a passage in the Soviet-German declaration, which mentioned an alternative of Nazi-Communist "consultation" if hostilities continue, "seems to convey the suggestion of some proposal for peace with a scarcely veiled threat as to the consequences if the proposal should be refused."

"I cannot anticipate what the nature of any such proposal might be," Mr. Chamberlain said.

"But no mere assurance from the German Government could be accepted by us.

"Nobody desires the war to continue for one unnecessary day, but the overwhelming mass of opinion in this country and France is determined to secure that the rule of violence shall cease and that the words of the Government—once pledged—must henceforth be kept."

"I see nothing in what has happened that should lead this country to modify the attitude which it has felt it right to take. There is nothing in the agreement between Germany and Russia that should cause us to do anything other than what we are doing now," said the Prime Minister.

'Fundamental' Cause of War.

He asserted that the Soviet-German agreement had changed the position of Poland, "but it by no means follows that the arrangement will endure to the ultimate advantage of Germany, and still less should it affect the aims of his Majesty's Government."

The invasion of Poland, he said, was not the "fundamental" cause of the war.

"That cause was the overwhelming sense in this country and in France of the intolerable nature of a state of affairs in which the nations of Europe were faced with the alternative of jeopardizing their freedom or of mobilizing their forces at regular intervals to defend it."

He reiterated that Britain's war aim was to "put to an end the successive acts of German aggression which have menaced the freedom and the very security of all nations of Europe."

Reporting on the conduct of the war, Mr. Chamberlain said that on the western front "some further progress has been made by the French which has enabled them to secure useful points for observation over the German positions." He added that a "large British army" was taking its place alongside the French.

He told of day and night reconnaissance flights by Royal Air Force units and said "there have been encounters with enemy fighter aircraft."

Says U-Boat Menace Dwindles.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the submarine menace was dwindling and that trade was flowing to and from British ports in increasing volume.

"Advantage has been taken of the light of the moon to continue the relentless hunting of submarines during the night hours," he said. "A number of U-boats have been sighted and attacked."

Between September 11 and September 20, 1,485 ships with a gross tonnage of 3,679,000 had entered or cleared British ports, Mr. Chamberlain reported. During that period, he asserted, only 1.25 per cent of those ships and 1.75 per cent of the total tonnage was lost by submarine attacks or by mines.

Since September 25, he said, no British ships had been reported sunk by enemy submarine action.

The Prime Minister spoke of the German raider which sank the British freighter Clement in the South Atlantic and added: "This fresh menace will be dealt with according to prearranged plans."

Speaking of attacks on units of the German fleet by British bombers, the Premier said: "We suffered some losses, but the Germans have admitted that two of their attacking fighters were shot down."

He said that Germans have claimed sinking of the aircraft carrier Ark Royal and subsequently modified their claims, but that "the facts are that no British ship was damaged and that all of them, the Ark Royal included, are carrying out their normal duties." He added that in the action the only casualties suffered were by German airplanes of which four crewmen were British prisoners.

German submarines, Mr. Chamberlain said, were being driven to "far distant waters." He continued: "[illegible] and more disaster developed [illegible] of the U-boat warfare is the announcement by Germany that she will regard every vessel of the British merchant navy as a warship. If this means anything it means that she will pursue an unrestricted submarine campaign.

"Further evidence of unrestricted submarine warfare is to be found in the number of neutral merchant ships Germany has sunk. Since the outbreak of war the total of these sinkings amounts to seven ships of a gross tonnage of 13,194. In addition, eight ships with a gross tonnage of 27,765 have been sunk by mines or bombing."

Both Mr. Lloyd George and Sir Archibald Sinclair urged a secret session of Parliament to consider Britain's future course. Mr. Chamberlain, however, replied that such a session would be of "no practical value."

Mr. Lloyd George pleaded for serious consideration of any peace proposals which were "specific, detailed and broad, which exclude nothing but which review all subjects which have been the cause of all the trouble in the past few years."

"A mere patched up peace will not be of the slightest use. Therefore all problems menacing world peace will have to be considered, including the claims of Italy," he said.

Lloyd George Urges Caution.

He also declared that any real peace must include a disarmament plan. But he declared the Government should make no hasty decision on forthcoming peace proposals and added: "We having nothing to lose and perhaps everything to gain by taking time."

Again Mr. Lloyd George stressed his point that Italy and Russia "within the limits of neutrality can make all the difference in the world between being helpful, friendly neutrals and hostile neutrals.

"The fate of this war may depend not upon Britain, France and Germany, but upon the attitude of neutrals. Italy has proclaimed herself neutral and so has Russia.

"Don't you rule that out in too great a hurry."

New Deal on News.

Mr. Chamberlain announced that a review of the Information Ministry and censorship difficulties had resulted in a decision to return to direct contacts between the press and Government departments—the system in effect before the war.

Sir Walter Monckton has been placed in charge of censorship, Mr. Chamberlain said, and arrangements for central communication of news through a revamped and curtailed Ministry of Information will be continued.

Mr. Chamberlain [illegible] that the responsibility of the Information Ministry had not extended beyond the means of communications news to the press and that heads of departments now would be responsible for news affecting their departments.

Sharing the attention given to Mr. Chamberlain's speech was the cordial welcome given a Turkish military mission which, according to the Ministry of Information, will "discuss military matters of common interest to Great Britain and Turkey."

The military mission from Turkey, key Power of the Near East, was met today with an elaborate display of British cordiality.

Field Marshal Lord Birdwood, who led the British world war campaign against Turkey at Gallipoli, headed the welcoming party at the railway station. Since the days of Gallipoli Lord Birdwood has become an ardent advocate of Anglo-Turkish friendship. He represented King George at the funeral of Kemel Ataturk.

Today he was flanked by representatives of the Foreign Office, the Royal Air Force and the navy as well as French military attaches.

Gen. Kiazim Orbay headed the Turkish delegation, which came to "discuss matters of common interest."

Texts of the Chamberlain and Lloyd George Statements in the House of Commons

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 3—Following are the texts of Prime Minister Chamberlain's declaration in the House of Commons today, David Lloyd George's speech and Mr. Chamberlain's reply:

By Mr. Chamberlain

In the last week events of great importance have occurred in the international field. On Sept. 26 the German Foreign Minister (Von Ribbentrop) paid a visit to Moscow and on Sept. 28 the results of this visit were proclaimed.

These results were threefold. In the first place, a fourth partition of Poland has been attempted and an agreement has been signed recognizing as final the frontier between Russia and Germany. The line agreed upon was considerably more favorable to Germany than the provisional line of military occupation which had previously been laid down.

In the second place, the German and Soviet Governments have declared that their agreement has finally settled the question arising out of the collapse of the Polish State and has created a solid foundation for lasting peace in Eastern Europe. In their opinion the liquidation of the present war between Germany and England and France would be in the interests of all nations.

Both governments, they go on to say, will endeavor to achieve this object as quickly as possible. They assert that should their efforts prove unsuccessful England and France will bear the responsibility for the continuation of the war and they add that the German and Soviet Governments will then consult together as to the measures they should take.

Denies Need for New Policy

In the first place, an economic agreement between Germany and Russia is foreshadowed under which Russia will supply raw materials to Germany and Germany will supply industrial goods produced over a lengthy period. There has been in some quarters a demand that His Majesty's Government should define their attitude in the face of these developments, but I see nothing in what has happened that should lead this country to modify the attitude which it has felt it right to take.

The agreement between Germany and Russia and the subsequent partition of Poland between them has, of course, changed the position in Poland but it by no means follows that the arrangement will endure to the ultimate advantage of Germany, and still less should it affect the aims of His Majesty's Government.

There is nothing in that agreement that should cause us to do anything other than what we are doing now—mobilizing all the resources and all the might of the British Empire for the effective prosecution of the war. The reason for which this country entered the war has been frequently proclaimed. It was to put an end to the successive acts of German aggression which menaced the freedom and the very security of all the nations of Europe.

The immediate cause of the war was the deliberate invasion of Poland by Germany, the latest but by no means the only act of aggression planned and carried through by the German Government, but if Poland was the direct cause of war, it was not the fundamental cause. That cause was the overwhelming sense in this country and in France of the intolerable nature of a state of affairs in which the nations of Europe were faced with the alternative of jeopardizing their freedom or of mobilizing their forces at regular intervals to defend it.

Refuses to Yield to Threats

The passage in the Russo-German declaration about the liquidation of the war is obscure, but it seems to combine a suggestion of some proposal for peace with a scarcely veiled threat as to the consequences if the proposal should be refused. I cannot anticipate what the nature of any such proposal might be, but I can say at once that no threat would ever induce this country or France to abandon the purpose for which we have entered upon this struggle.

To attempt—as German propaganda does—to saddle us with the responsibility for continuing the war because we are not prepared to abandon the struggle before this purpose is achieved is only another instance of German war technique. The responsibility for the war rests upon those who have conceived and carried out this policy of successive aggression and it can neither be evaded nor excused, and I would add one thing more: No mere assurances from the present German Government could be accepted by us.

For that government have too often proved in the past that their undertakings are worthless when it suits them that they should be broken. If, therefore, proposals are made we shall certainly examine them and we shall test them in the light of what I have just said.

Nobody desired the war to continue for an unnecessary day, but the overwhelming mass of opinion in this country, and I am satisfied also in France, is determined to secure that the rule of violence shall cease and that the word of governments once pledged must henceforth be kept.

These events in the international field and our reactions to them are necessarily uppermost in our minds today. The House will, however, wish me to give them a brief summary of the progress of the war since I last spoke.

War Gains Are Reviewed

On the Western Front some further progress has been made by the French which has enabled them to secure useful points for observation over the German position.

A large British army has been transported to France and is taking its place alongside our French allies. We have reason to be proud of the efficiency with which this complicated movement has been carried out.

Reconnaissance flights both by day and by night are being made by the Royal Air Force units in France, and there have been encounters with enemy fighter aircraft. An account of the heroic combat above the Siegfried Line in which five battle aircraft fought fifteen Messer-Schmidt fighters has already been made public and has attracted the warm admiration of our French allies.

Aircraft of the coastal command have continued, throughout the week, to carry out anti-submarine and other routine patrols, escort work, and special reconnaissances, and advantage has been taken of the light of the moon to continue the relentless hunting of submarines during the night hours. A number of U-boats have been sighted and attacked.

As already announced, attacks were made on units of the German fleet by aircraft of the bomber command on the 29th September As a result of one of these attacks, prosecuted in the teeth of fierce opposition, both from anti-aircraft gunfire and from enemy fighters, we suffered some losses, but the Germans have admitted that two of their attacking fighters were shot down.

Finds War on U-Boats Pressed

At sea the war against the submarine has continued with unabated vigor. On the 20th September last I expressed in this House the opinion that the rapid increase in the numbers, power and efficiency of our hunting craft, together with the employment of the convoy system, would cause the submarine menace to dwindle no less rapidly. I am happy to say that events have shown my confidence to be justified.

Trade is flowing to and from our ports in an ever-increasing volume. As I speak, hundreds of vessels are moving over the great ocean routes. They are protected both by convoy and by the unremitting and relentless action of our anti-submarine forces.

Between the 11th and the 20th of September 1,485 vessels of a gross tonnage of 3,679,000 tons entered or cleared the ports of the United Kingdom. During that period only 1.25 per cent of these ships and 1.75 per cent of the total tonnage was lost by U-boat attacks or by mines. No ship has been lost in convoy.

Between the 20th and 24th of September three British ships of an aggregate tonnage of 7,627 tons were sunk by German submarines. Since then, that is to say for a period of over a week, no British ship has been reported sunk by enemy submarine action.

This may in part be due to the fact that the U-boats at sea at the beginning of the war are now being relieved by others putting out from German ports. But there is ample evidence that submarines are still operating round our coasts. The absence of sinkings therefore is, in the main, due to the successful measures adopted by the navy.

The U-boats are being hunted from home waters where our shipping must inevitably congregate and where in consequence it is most vulnerable. German submarines, therefore, in their efforts to avoid our warships are being driven to operate in far distant waters. In those seas their menace cannot be so great; but until they can be found and destroyed they may be an embarrassment.

Another and more sinister development of the U-boat warfare is the announcement by Germany that she will regard every vessel of the British merchant navy as a warship. If this means anything, it means that she will pursue an unrestricted submarine campaign. The right to arm merchant ships for self-defense is one of the well-established principles of international law.

Since the war commenced our merchant shipping has been subjected to attack without warning or in circumstances which put their crews in jeopardy by forcing them to take to the boats often miles from land or rescue, a procedure directly contrary to international maritime law. These illegal attacks only serve to underline the importance of providing our shipping with adequate defensive equipment; and we are pressing on with this with the utmost possible dispatch.

Further evidence of unrestricted submarine warfare is to be found in the number of neutral merchant ships Germany has sunk. Since the outbreak of war the total of these sinkings amounts to seven ships of a gross tonnage of 13,194 tons. In addition, eight ships with a gross tonnage of 27,765 tons have been sunk by mines or bombing.

Evidence has been received that a German raider is operating in the South Atlantic. One of our ships has been sunk and the crew has been picked up by a neutral ship. This fresh menace will be dealt with according to pre-arranged plans.

German North Sea Claims Denied

The reiterated misstatements of the German broadcasts have given prominence to the action in the middle of the North Sea on Tuesday, 16th September, between German bombing planes and certain units of the Home Fleet. The Germans have claimed the sinking of the aircraft carrier Ark Royal, later changed to Glorious or even Furious, and severe damage to battleships without loss to themselves.

The facts are that no British ship was damaged and that all of them, the Ark Royal included, are carrying out their normal duties sublimely unconscious of these rumors. The only casualties incurred in that action were suffered by the German aircraft themselves. Four of the crew of these aircraft are prisons in our hands.

The preparations of the Dominions to which I have referred in previous statements are continuing and I should like this week to tell the House of the splendid help we are receiving from two other parts of the Empire, Newfoundland and Southern Rhodesia. In Newfoundland arrangements are already being made to recruit for the Royal Navy some hundreds of men from the Newfoundland fishing fleet.

The House will recollect the magnificent service rendered by Newfoundland men in the last war. Southern Rhodesia has mobilized its forces and is giving us very welcome assistance by providing officers and men for service both on land and in the air, outside the borders of this self-governing colony.

There is little that I need say today about developments on the home front. As the honorable members know national registration day was fixed by order as Friday, the 29th September. During the week beginning 17th September the local officers in charge of the enumeration mobilized their enumerators; and on the 24th September these enumerators, totaling 65,000 in Great Britain, began delivering schedules for the purpose of the returns due to be made on the 29th. Enumerators are now making their rounds for the collection of schedules and the setting up and issue of identity cards.

Blackouts Caused Delay

The difficulties usually experienced by enumerators in finding people at home to receive or deliver the schedule were greatly increased by the present unusual family distribution and the blackout conditions at night. I am glad, however, to be able to say that so far as reports are available the whole machine appears to be working well and smoothly.

Finally, I have a statement to make about a matter which has attracted considerable attention and given rise to anxiety in the House and the country—the work of the Ministry of Information. As I stated on Thursday last, the responsibility of the Ministry for news has not extended in any way beyond the provisions of means for its communication to the press. A review has now been made of the arrangements for the distribution of news, including the question of direct contact between the press and the departments. The subject has been fully discussed with the representatives of the press with a view to meeting their convenience in the matter.

As a result, it has been decided that there shall be a reversion to the practice existing prior to the outbreak of war whereby the press representatives had direct contact with the various government departments, those departments themselves furnishing the press with all official communications in such manner as was found most appropriate. Each department will therefore now make its own arrangements for communicating news to the press representatives.

Will Use Old Facilities

It has, however, been represented to the Minister that the mechanical facilities provided in the building occupied by the Ministry for the receipt and distribution of government communications have proved of great convenience to a large section of the press. There is no present intention to do away with these facilities, which will continue to be utilized as a channel by which official communications will be issued to the press.

In any case in which official communications are made direct by departments, the same communications will be issued simultaneously through the central channel.

I should add that some difficulty must be expected in connection with the supply and distribution of news in time of war; the revised arrangements now proposed are intended to reduce difficulties to a minimum, and I feel sure that I can rely upon the press to cooperate in their smooth working. The new arrangements will come into force on Monday morning next.

As regards the censorship, which is at present housed at the Ministry of Information, the responsibility for censorship must rest, like the responsibility for news and its distribution, upon the departments which are concerned with the subject-matter. Departments will, of course, exercise their own control as regards the news that they give out. The central censorship, which is concerned with material or messages by the press (voluntarily in the case of matter for use in this country), will as before be operated by censor officers guided by the directions of the departments.

In the event of questions arising as to any particular censorship operation, the Minister in charge of the department affected will answer for it in Parliament.

Sir Walter Monckton has been appointed Controller of Censorship; he will at the same time supervise the arrangements for the central communication of news to the press.

By Mr. Lloyd George

I rise not so much to continue the debate but to ask a question or two of the Prime Minister. At the beginning of his very interesting statement he stated his difficulty with regard to the consideration of any proposals of peace that came from Herr Hitler. He has very good reasons for doubting his good faith.

I quite sympathize with the Prime Minister's attitude. If the whole situation with regard to the question of peace were dependent upon the word of Herr Hitler, I am afraid we should have no alternative but to proceed until we got some other and better and more assured guarantee.

It is quite clear that the combined statement issued last week of the Russian and German Governments with regard to the agreement they had arrived at was only a provisional one. They were not putting forward any terms of peace. It was a proposal which we certainly could not contemplate.

It is quite clear from what has appeared in the press—I got it from our own press and they derived it from other sources, notably Italian sources and perhaps also Russian sources—that there has been a discussion between the parties concerned, Russia, Germany and Italy, of more detailed terms of peace.

There is a good deal we do not know. We do not know, for instance, what is proposed to be done with the Poles. That is a very vital matter. I was very glad that the First Lord of the Admiralty in his powerful broadcast on Sunday night drew a distinction between the attitude of the Russian Government and that of the German Government.

I could give many reasons—but this is not the opportunity of doing so—for treating the partition of Poland, in so far as the Russian part is concerned, in a totally different spirit from that part which appertains to Herr Hitler and the German Government. Whether the part of Poland they have annexed is truly Russian is a matter for discussion. It certainly is not Polish. Since the announcement that it was proposed, there has been a detailed discussion in Moscow between the German Government and Mr. Stalin.

Expects Detailed Peace Terms

There have been discussions at the invitation of Herr Hitler with the Italian Government who, I do not think, have shown any hostility to this country during the last few days and who, on the whole, have shown a friendly disposition. We do not therefore know what has really passed, but it is quite clear that somebody is going to propose, whether formally or otherwise, detailed terms for the consideration of this government.

I think it is very important that we should not come to a too hurried conclusion. It needs a very, very careful consideration. I am with the government and with the statement of the Prime Minister entirely that if we were to accept the conquest of Poland as an accomplished fact and enter into peace on those terms we should be dishonest, but it is quite clear that you are going to get something which goes far beyond that.

I have nothing on which to base this opinion except that which has appeared in the British press. There are questions which will have to be considered. Not merely of Poland, but there is the question of Czecho-Slovakia, which in many ways, I think, is a better case. At any rate that is a question that has got to be considered. Not a word has been said about it by Herr Hitler or by any other government.

There is that very important question of the colonies, which I have no doubt will be raised and on which the House might express general opinion for the instruction of the government. I do not propose to do anything to weaken the hands of the government, but I ask the House and the government to pause and not to be in a hurry in coming to a conclusion.

If this document comes from the Italian Government or the Russian Government, which, as far as we are concerned, are both neutrals, I hope the government will treat them both as neutrals. The First Lord of the Admiralty certainly did so on Sunday night and it is vital that we should.

We do not want to multiply our enemies. We have got as much as we can do to conquer one without adding one or two more. Let us take heed of what we are doing because we are entering on something which involves the whole life of this empire and the whole future of our people. What I want to ask the Prime Minister is this:

Supposing we get a document of that kind. It makes a difference in two respects. First of all, it comes from neutral countries. In the second place they will be just as involved as we are in seeing that whatever terms are come to are implemented.

It will not be dependent merely on the word of one government. You will have the signatures of at least two more.

Disarmament Vital for Peace

Another question is that of disarmament. No peace will be permanent unless it involves some agreement with regard to disarmament. That might involve bringing in the Far East for the simple reason that you could not have disarmament as long as there were great armies in the Far East attacking a friendly nation.

Then there would be the question of whether the United States of America should not be brought in. In my judgment, if you had a conference, it would be a first-class mistake to enter into it unless you invited not merely Russia and Italy but the United States of America as well because you have there a great power whose interests are not European interests and which has not been involved in any of these disputes and quarrels.

I should like to ask the Prime Minister whether he does not think it desirable, when he gets a more detailed proposal—a proposal which is less suspect at any rate than the present one, more detailed and less tainted—whether he does not think we ought to have a discussion in this House. There have been too many hasty decisions, in my judgment, and whatever we do, do not let us make that mistake. We have nothing to lose but perhaps everything to gain by taking time.

I would also urge on the Prime Minister quite earnestly the suggestion made by Sir Archibald Sinclair that our discussions made on such a proposal should be in a secret session. We had three secret sessions during the Great War and not a syllable got into any newspaper.

A mere patched-up peace is not of the slightest use. You have to settle all the problems that are menacing the peace of the world, including the claims of Italy, and my reason is this: the fate of this war may depend not upon Britain and France and Germany, but upon the neutrals.

Who are neutrals? Italy has proclaimed herself neutral. Russia has proclaimed herself neutral. The United States is neutral. The fate of this war may depend upon the attitude of these three powers.

There are three things which they can do. One is take sides. It would be a real peril if we had to face two great powers instead of one, but without taking sides they can be either friendly or unfriendly neutrals. It makes all the difference in the world. We know that of the United States and the United States knows it. They can help us as neutrals, and when you come to Russia and Italy, within the limits of neutrality they can make all the difference in the world between being helpful friendly neutrals and hostile neutrals.

My questions to the Prime Minister are these: Will he give the House an opportunity, if there are any detailed declarations in the course of the next few days—something more to go upon than we have at the present moment—an opportunity of discussing them? He has had very solid support from the House of Commons, and he may therefore depend upon it that whatever discussion we had here would be from the point of view of people who are sincerely anxious to help the government to establish right, freedom and justice in the world.

The second question is whether he does not think it advisable that we should have a secret session when everybody could get up—well, when those who felt they had a real contribution to make would be able to do so without feeling that when they said it it might perhaps be distorted into something that might be of value to the enemy?

By Mr. Chamberlain

Mr. Lloyd George, who is the "Father of the House," speaks with such authority in circumstances like this that I believe I shall have the leave of the House in rising to reply to the appeal he has made.

I will speak first on his second question as to whether I agree that we should have a secret session of the House. I confess I am not yet convinced of the value of a secret session.

Two different views have been put forward as to the reason for a secret session—one that the government might tell the House what they would not venture to tell the House and that members might tell the government what they would not venture to tell them if they were not in secret session. Surely there are opportunities for members to say what they like to the government that is of advantage to the country and if they cannot do it in public, they can say it in private.

I believe as much substantial ground for asking for a secret session is the impression that the government will be able to reveal in secret session things which the House would like to know but which we would not like our enemies to know.

Even if the press themselves were not trusted—and I am sure they could be—there is the censorship. What would be much more dangerous would be if something were telegraphed from here to a foreign country and we should be told that if it had been published in a foreign country there was no need to conceal it here.

Speaking for myself, I do not feel I should have sufficient confidence in the secrecy of a secret session if there were something of real importance that I thought it was essential should not get to the ears of the enemy. Therefore, as at present advised, I do not feel disposed to think that a secret session would be of any particular value.

The much more important matter which was raised by Mr. Lloyd George and which culminated in his first question was based upon a good many hypotheses. It is true that at present all we have had is an indication that some proposal might be made. As I said in my statement, I could not anticipate what the nature of that proposal might be. Mr. Lloyd George has anticipated it. I am not complaining. We can all, of course, speculate as to what the nature of such proposals might be.

All I wanted to say was that at present we have received no such proposals and I think it is too soon to assume that we are going to have a proposal of such a detailed and comprehensive character as Mr. Lloyd George suggests. On the other hand it is quite possible that the offer might prove to be one which no self-respecting government would consider at all.

In such circumstances, I think it will really be wrong for me to say what the government would do in circumstances which have not yet arisen.

No Reason for Hurried Answer

I would only say this: Mr. Lloyd George says, "If such proposal were put forward do not be in a hurry to give it an answer." I quite agree. I see no reason why we should be in a hurry to give an answer to a proposal which appears to require serious consideration.

Mr. Lloyd George has complained before that we have taken decisions without consulting this House, but I would remind him that we have had to take these serious decisions because we have not time to come down here and put the case to the House.

When we gave the guarantee to Poland the matter was imminent. We did not know that Poland might not be invaded, in a term that might be measured by hours and not by days, but in a case of this kind it is different. I see no reason at all why the House should not have ample opportunities for seeing any proposals that might be put forward, for considering them, and for hearing from the government what they recommend the House to approve by way of an answer.

That is my reply to Mr. Lloyd George, but let me once more repeat that no such proposal has yet come to us and I think it would be premature to build any hopes on the liklihood of any such proposal being made, although the House will realize that no man would welcome more wholeheartedly than myself any proposal which I could really feel had achieved the aims which I have described as being aims of this government and this country in entering this war.

French Report Nazi Attacks in North Repulsed

Spreading Raids on Western Front Beaten Off; Paris Claims Air Superiority

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Oct. 3 (AP).—Spreading German attacks along the northern flank of the western front were reported tonight by the French high command to have been repulsed. It was reported that some enemy surprise attacks were repulsed to the east of the Moselle and Saar Rivers and artillery action in the same areas was reported.

"Great activity" by patrols was reported during the night and military observers, reading between the lines of the official communiques, said it was apparent the Germans were increasing their pressure on French advance positions and rapidly shifting their point of attack.

French sources reported that France had lost only eight fighting planes in aerial combats over the western front compared to twenty-eight German planes they said had been shot down. This information, which well-informed quarters described as "exact," added that the French lost "several" scouting planes in addition to the eight fighters.

These French sources said that in the first two aerial battles of the war over the western front, the French—thanks to training and planes—among which are included some 200 American-built Curtisses—had shown "evident superiority." They added, however, that the German Messerschmidt fighters were not to be underestimated and that the German pilots were well-trained and "of obvious bravery."

French scouting planes, these sources said, had flown deep over German territory through heavy anti-aircraft fire, but despite this, they "never failed" to carry out their assigned missions. The Germans, on the other hand, the French said, had made "not a single" scouting flight over France. Numerous air-raid alarms sounded in French cities during the first month of the war, the French indicated, were caused by German planes which had crossed the frontier, but had been forced back.

The Germans, who yesterday were reported by the French to be attacking on both sides of Saarbruecken, central key to the northern flank of the front, today struck new blows at the extreme northeastern end of the flank down the Moselle River Valley, which parallels the Luxembourg frontier.

The high command issued the following communique at 8:35 p. m.:

"Some enemy surprise attacks were repulsed to the east of the Moselle and to the east of the Saar.

"Activity of the two artilleries in the same regions."

The War Ministry issued the following communique at 10:06 a. m.:

"Great activity by patrols on both sides during the night."

Tempting Offer Forecast

PARIS, Oct. 3 (AP).—The Havas (French) news agency, in a review of European diplomatic activity today, asserted, on the basi of information received in Paris and from neutral capitals, "We must not exclude the possibility of a (German) peace offer which might carry appearances of acceptability."

The agency, which has close relations with the French government, said it seemed possible that Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano might have taken back to Rome the German opinion that "it is desirable that an initiative be taken by Italy with a view toward mediation."

"It is reported that it was Mussolini himself who had been invited to go to Berlin, but the head of the Italian government delegated his Minister of Foreign Affairs," Havas said.

"Again, if at the start the peace offensive launched in Berlin had seemed menacing, and was presented like an ultimatum to France and Britain, it seems to result from diplomatic activity undertaken by agents of the Reich, as much in Italy as in Holland, Belgium and other capitals, that we must not exclude the possibility of a peace offer which might carry appearances of acceptability.

"Neutral persons would present the desire of Hitler to make peace as a victory for the democracies. The Polish fait accompli would have to be, according to this information, accepted as success for France and Britain.

"But in reality, whatever happens, the position of France and Britain, clearly defined and affirmed several times by Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain, has not changed."

Long-Drawn Siege Of Reich Expected

No Blitzkrieg Here, but Professional Fighters Feinting for Openings

By The Associated Press

BASEL, Switzerland, Oct. 3.—Heavy reinforcement of German garrisons along the upper Rhine River north of Basel, and mysterious night activity along the riverfront, led tonight to reports that the Germans were planning an attack against northeastern Alsace.

Troop trains which heretofore had passed through Baden now were said to be depositing thousands of soldiers, many of them veterans of the Polish campaign, at bases in the forts of the Black Forest and the upper Rhine valley.

Quantities of equipment sent from Austrian and Bohemian factories to the Rhine valley included large pontoons.

Carefully shielded lights were observed over the shallow water of the German side of the river at Germany's "Rhineland Gibraltar" of Istein, where the Rhine rushes into rapids.

The Germans, if they should strike from the Istein area, would cross to that part of Alsace lying between Mulhouse and the Swiss frontier, which forms the threshold of the great Burgundian gate between the Vosges and Jura mountains before Belfort.

This for centuries has been the pathway of armies invading France from the east. Now, however, forty land miles between Istein and Belfort are heavily fortified by the French.

FRENCH MAKING NAZI PILL BOXES INTO DEFENSES

Engineers Getting Ready for Combined Aerial and Land Attack.

HEAVY FIGHTING PETERS OUT

Paris Believes German Army Is Under Orders to Avoid It Pending Peace Drive.

OCT 4 1939

PARIS, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Semi-official reports today said that French engineering units were feverishly digging in on German soil to resist a land and air drive expected to come with the fading of Hitler's "peace offensive."

Aside from constant localized parrying efforts the Germans showed little activity, it was reported. This led military observers to believe they had orders to restrict their fighting to purely defensive operations, while Berlin concentrated on diplomacy.

The French estimated that they now held about 150 square miles of German territory, containing about sixty-five villages, but the Germans were still holding strong frontal positions immediately before Saarbruecken, it was reported in clarification of previous advices that this capital of the Rich Saar industrial basin was three-fourths encircled.

Meanwhile today Premier Deladier called a meeting of the Council of Ministers under the chairmanship of President Labrun for 10 A. M. tomorrow.

Using Nazi Forts.

Working against time and under the constant threat of German artillery, particularly in the Saar Valley sector, the French engineers were said to be turning to their own use captured German fortifications on the outer fringe of the Siegfried Line. As fast as French patrols obtained strategic points the engineers moved up and started digging in against the possibility that one day they might have to defend them against a major offensive.

Liaison lines were immediately established with the French rear, across the border, at points along the northern half of the front, where the French have made advances, and raiding parties constantly sought German prisoners for questioning, to add to the store of military information on the Germans.

No Heavy Fighting.

The latest official advices from the front reported no heavy fighting in the offensive zone between the Rhine and the Moselle.

The War Ministry issued the following communique today:

"Great activity by patrols on both sides during the night."

[In a communique issued at Berlin this morning the German High Command stated: "In the West there was only minor artillery and airplane activity."]

The French were said not to have given battle before Saarbruecken, preferring the tactics of encirclement to a frontal movement. Moreover, the encirclement operations have been anything but precipitate, it was said, because the French feared isolation for their advanced winys on either side of advanced wings on either side of the city.

Some French military writers in analyzing the French defensive power, argued that the Germans could not stand inaction for long, in view of the quick decision required to counter the British blockade.

Berlin to Consult Moscow

Reich and Soviet to Confer if Offer Fails —Il Duce Out of Peace Role.

BERLIN, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—The authoritative service, Dienst aus Deutschland, expressed the belief today that Germany and Russia would consult each other again just as soon as the Western Powers declare their attitude toward the Moscow declaration, which Germans consider an offer of peace.

This commentary service said: "The impression prevails here that the Western Powers are assuming the attitude of declining the offer although they appear to be remarkably uncertain of themselves."

According to Dienst aus Deutschland no new German peace offer is in the offing, nor is Italy likely to make another effort at mediation at the present.

It regarded it possible, however, that the Western Powers would make inquiries in Rome after Ciano's visit. Thus the possibility of further mediation was suggested.

The commentary further thought it possible that Hitler in his Reichstag speech this week "may state in what form the consolidation of peace and new political conditions in the East is contemplated by the Reich Government."

Chamberlain's Address.

Berlin awaited Mr. Chamberlain's scheduled address before the House of Commons today with apparent conviction that it would affect profoundly the future of Europe.

Mr. Chamberlain's attitude toward the German peace gestures, it was said, would go far toward determining the tenor of the address which Hitler plans to deliver before the Reichstag later in the week.

In any circumstances, however, it appeared certain from the Nazi point of view that any peace proposals Hitler may make must be predicated upon the condition that Germany and Soviet Russia alone shall determine the fate of Poland.

While Government officials have no commitments, they insisted that Germany had no desire to Germanize people not of German origin, an assertion which led observers here to believe that some form of cultural autonomy would be granted the Poles.

Commenting on German-Russian peace gestures, the Essen National Zeitung, which has connections close to Field Marshal Goering, emphasized that they must not be regarded as "the peace offers of war-tired States."

Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter expressed the belief that Europe, on the completion of the Polish campaign, had "arrived anew at a crossroads—the most serious, perhaps, in many years."

NAZIS BELIEVED READY TO HIT HARD AND FAST

Expected To Move Against Allies After Hitler's Speech This Week

Make It Clear That U-Boats Will Attack All Armed Merchantmen

OCT 4 1939

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER
Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Oct. 3—Adolf Hitler and his aides tonight gave "serious" consideration to Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech today which Nazis interpreted as setting forth Britain's determination not to halt the war now.

The Nazi regime also followed closely the progress of the neutrality debate in the United States Senate and awaited a full report on the Panama conference at which twenty-one American republics outlined a Western Hemisphere safety zone to insulate them from the European war.

The text of Chamberlain's statement to the House of Commons was rushed to Hitler, who studied it with Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

Must Be Studied Closely

"Several passages in Chamberlain's speech must be examined closely before authoritative reaction can be given from Germany," a Nazi official said.

It was obvious, however, that a grave view was taken of Britain's attitude and that Germany has made up her mind to strike hard and fast after Hitler explains to the Reichstag later this week that Germany has obtained what she wants from Poland and therefore sees no reason why the war should continue in the west.

Nazis professed "complete inability" to comprehend the British stand. They said Britain does not want to quit and yet does not want to fight.

Mean Real Attacks

By fighting, they said they meant forthright attacks on German soil, not just an effort to shut off Germany's raw material supplies through a trade and war blockade.

That German submarines would attack every armed merchantman was made clear.

"The German navy not only will be entitled to, but will be obliged to, break the resistance of such ships with all possible means," the semi-official commentary Dienst aus Deutschland said.

"None regrets more than Germany that the English method is leading to unnecessary enlargement of the number of persons exposed to the dangers of war."

U. S. Opinions Quoted

The statements of three American international lawyers to the effect that armed merchantmen must be considered war vessels were published widely here today.

The opinions quoted were those of Prof. Edwin Borchard, of Yale University; Prof. Charles Cheney Hyde, of Columbia University, and John Bassett Moore, former Assistant Secretary of State.

The newspaper Boersen Zeitung said their opinions were "confirmation of Germany's right, if necessary, to sink armed merchantment without warning."

Long Debate Held Good Sign

Indications that the United States Congressional debate on the neutrality issue would last about three weeks were taken as a good sign in German official quarters.

"All traps involved in lifting the embargo thus can clearly be brought out for the American people," one source said.

"It eliminates the possibility of railroading proposals through without the people knowing what they are being let in for."

Nazi officials said comment would be withheld on the decisions of the Panama conference until a full report is received.

"Nothing We Can Do"

Word of continuing recognition of the Polish Government by the United States was received here with a shrug.

"There's nothing we can do about it," informed quarters commented.

The Washington statement concerning Poland was not considered "specific" in these quarters as to whether it recognized the new Polish Government formed in Paris Saturday or the old one.

One result of Chamberlain's speech was expected to be the speeding up of negotiations with Russia to increase raw materials moving into Germany.

A visit to Berlin by Soviet Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff was held to be "quite probable."

Berlin Reports Warsaw Entry

BERLIN, Oct. 3 (AP).—The high command issued the following communique this morning:

"In the course of Oct. 2, German troops marched into the fortress of Modlin.

"The counting of war prisoners as well as the sorting of the large stock of weapons and other war material captured at Warsaw and Modlin is continuing.

"In the west, there was only minor artillery and airplane activity."

FINLAND NEXT, MOSCOW PRESS STRONGLY HINTS

Izvestia Indicates Intention to Demand Military and Sea Bases.

OCT 4 1939

WON'T HAVE NAVY BOTTLED UP

Campaign to Align Lithuania and Latvia in Russian Sphere Goes On at Kremlin.

MOSCOW, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—A strong hint that Soviet Russia is preparing to make demands for military and naval bases upon Finland as well as the smaller Baltic States was printed today in the Government newspaper Izvestia, which gave the first intimation of Russia's decision to march into Poland last month.

The newspaper, tracing relations of the Soviets with Finland, Estonia and Latvia since 1920, said "aggressive European countries that concealed themselves under the mask of 'peace loving' have tried to convert these countries into their vassals and into a zone of operations for completion of their aggressive plans in the basin of the Baltic Sea."

Izvestia in another article said an agreement between Sweden and Finland upon fortification of the Finnish-owned Aaland Islands in the Baltic this year was concluded "without any legal grounds and was not planned for the pacification of the Baltic basin and the security of sea borders of adjacent countries."

Russia opposed the Scandinavian proposal to fortify the strategic islands, holding it was a threat to Russia's position in the Baltic and Gulf of Finland. The islands command the entrances of the Gulf of Bothnia and the Gulf of Finland into the Baltic.

Many observers believed Russia was preparing to demand from Finland a share in control of the islands.

Lithuania Minister Expected.

This latest campaign for more concessions in the Baltic area opened while the Latvian and Turkish Foreign Ministers were here and Lithuania's Foreign Minister, Juozas Urbsys, was en route here. Izvestia's article failed to mention Lithuania, but that country was expected to receive demands along with Latvia and similar to those made upon Estonia.

Lithuania's Foreign Minister arrived at the Moscow airport at 5 P. M. (9 A. M., Eastern standard time).

Conversations with Latvian Foreign Minister William Munters began last night.

Finland and the Baltic States were Russian prior to the world war, but the Finns had a large measure of autonomy. Observers felt that the Finns, bitterly anti-Soviet, might put up more of an argument to Soviet demands than the smaller Baltic States.

[Reports that Finland had received an invitation to send an envoy to Moscow were authoritatively denied in Helsinki.]

Izvestia said "the 'peace-loving countries,'" apparently referring to Britain and France, had seized control of the markets of Finland, Estonia and Latvia for "economic exploitation" and "are maintaining reactionary and adventuristic cliques inside these countries with the aid of which they hope to submit their interior and exterior policy to their control."

"Finally they will try by all possible means to push these countries to a disastrous course by trying to bring a split in their relations with their real friend—the U. S. S. R.," the article went on. "Particularly they aim to use strategically important places on territory of the above mentioned countries as their naval bases in anti-Soviet adventures which are being plotted at present by some governments' general staffs and admiralties."

Direct Mention of Britain.

Izvestia charged these countries were trying to "block up" the Soviet navy in a "Finnish swamp," meaning the Gulf of Finland, and prevent the Soviet fleet from having access to the Baltic.

In the only direct mention of Britain the newspaper said "leading maritime circles" [illegible] to equip a base for the British navy on the Islands of Hiju-Maa (Dago) and Saare Maa (Oesel) in the Baltic on which the Soviet gained permission to build bases in last week's pact with Estonia.

Izvestia called on other Baltic countries to follow the "worthy example" of Estonia, asserting the "Red-bannered Baltic navy is receiving strong strategical positions that are not only guaranteeing defense of the entry to the Finnish and Riga gulfs but the possibility of active operations in the Baltic against any possible aggressors and violators of peace as well."

Germany was not mentioned, but foreign observers were convinced the Soviet moves were directed against any German thrust into the Baltic as well as against Britain and France.

Soviet technicians were understood to be already at work creating naval and air bases in Estonia and the Estonian Islands.

The possibility of diplomatic moves affecting the situation in the Black Sea hovered in the background, meanwhile, as Turkey's Foreign Minister, Sukru Saracoglu, remained in Moscow for further conferences.

Reception of Mr. Munters.

No comment was forthcoming on a two-hour conference which Joseph Stalin and other Soviet officials held with Mr. Munters immediately after his arrival here last night.

Invited to Moscow with Mr. Munters was the Latvian Director of the Department of Treaties, M. Kampe. Also in the party were the Soviet Minister to Latvia, I. S. Zotoff, and the Soviet Trade Representative in Latvia, M. Terentyev.

Although Mr. Munters was received in correct diplomatic fashion, his reception contrasted with the effusive welcomes that have greeted some of the foreign diplomats arriving in Moscow in recent weeks. The Central Airport was decorated with Soviet and Latvian flags, but there were no brass bands and no guards of honor, such as marked the visit of the German Foreign Minister, oachin von Ribbentrop, last week.

Vladimir Potemkin, Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs, usually the official greeter, was not present to welcome Mr. Munters, but he participated in the conversations which followed.

Diplomatic persons took it for granted that the conversations were aimed at obtaining from Latvia concessions similar to those obtained from Estonia.

Rumanian's Visit Not Yet.

There was no indication here whether a visit might be expected in the near future from the Rumania Foreign Minister, Grigore Gafencu, who has been reported planning a trip to Moscow.

[In Bucharest, it was said that Mr. Gafencu had decided to postpone his visit to Moscow, possibly until the Turkish Foreign Minister stops in Bucharest en route to Istanbul.]

It was understood that the British Ambassador, Sir William Seeds, and the French Counselor, Jean Payart, called on the Turkish delegation yesterday, but the British declined to confirm or deny the report.

German Sphere.

HELSINKI, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Informed persons suggested today that the question of Wilno's return to Lithuania might [illegible] an important part in the conversations at Moscow between the Russian leaders and the Lithuanian Foreign Minister, Juozas Urbsys.

Vilna, the former capital of Lithuania, was seized by Poland in 1920 and given to Russia in the Russo-German partitionment of Poland last Friday.

Usually reliable informants in Kaunas, at present capital of Lithuania, said that Mr. Urbsys's visit to Moscow was the cause of some apprehension there, as Lithuania had been considered within the German sphere of influence. The German colony here expressed the hope that a mutual assistance pact between Lithuania and Russia was not involved.

The Helsinki newspaper, Uusi Suomi, asserted that reports from Berlin gave no reason to believe that Russia would make demands on Finland similar to those made upon Estonia. In German diplomatic circles it was said that they regard Finland as enjoying a special status.

Commenting on rumors that Russia might demand the British island of Holland off the Soviet coast, informed Finns said that this involved an old question which had been the subject of previous diplomatic discussions. Russia, they said, had already offered rich timberlands in exchange. Some observers believed that an exchange might be negotiated sooner or later, pointing out that such a move would be mutually advantageous.

Estonia Ratifies Pact.

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Exchange of ratifications of the new Russian-Estonian pact was expected to take place [illegible]

President Constantin Paets ratified the act last night after a discussion with the Cabinet and ordered its promulgation. Earlier the Foreign Affairs Commissions of both chambers of Parliament were reported to have advised ratification as imperative.

other than those provided for in the original Moscow agreement of last Friday. These were to have been on the islands of Dagoe and Oesel and at the mainland port of Baltiski.

New Demands Opposed.

Estonia, it was reported, vigorously opposed all the new Russian demands.

It was believed here that the difficulties in the Estonian negotiations probably were the result of less sweeping demands made upon Latvia and Lithuania in negotiations now under way in Moscow.

Stalin Parleys With Minister From Lithuania

By WITT HANCOCK

MOSCOW, Oct. 3 (AP).—Pursuing a course of expanding Soviet influence in the Baltic, Joseph Stalin and other leaders tonight had the Lithuanian Foreign Minister as their guest for a two-hour conference.

Besides Stalin, Foreign Commissar Molotoff, Vice-Commissar Potemkin and the Soviet Charge d'Affaires in Lithuania participated in the discussions for Russia. Foreign Minister Jouzas Urbsys and the Lithuanian Minister in Moscow participated for Lithuania.

Observers felt the demands upon Lithuania would be lighter than those made upon Latvia and Estonia and would be concerned primarily with Russian transit rights. Lithuania already has a non-aggression treaty with Germany.

A strong hint that Russia might turn to Finland after having concluded her negotiations with the Baltic states was given in an article in the government newspaper Izvestia, which in effect accused Britain of trying to use Finland and the Baltic states as a springboard for an attack on the U. S. S. R.

Finland and the Baltic states were Russian before the World War. Observers felt the Finns, who had a large measure of autonomy under the Czar, might put up more of an argument to Soviet demands than the Baltic states.

(In Helsinki there were authoritative denials to the export Russia had invited Finland to send an envoy to Moscow).

The Turkish delegation, which arrived eight days ago expecting to remain but three days, was still here and spent the day seeing the sights of Moscow.

Soviet-Estonia Pact Snagged

Stockholm, Oct. 4 (Wednesday) (AP).—Ratification of the Russian-Estonian mutual assistance pact has been unexpectedly delayed, it was learned here today, despite the fact that today was the deadline for the formality.

A Russian military commission which was sent to Estonia has returned to Moscow without reaching an agreement on the Soviet naval and air base question.

Reliable reports here said that differences arose over Soviet demands that Estonia supply bases

CIANO BACK HOME; ITALY WON'T URGE PEACE AT PRESENT

Il Duce Reported Unwilling to Lend Himself to a Futile Gesture.

ROME, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Well-informed Italians said today that it was unlikely that Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano's conversations with Adolf Hitler would lead to any immediate peace move on Italy's part.

They said that the Italian Government would not lend itself to a futile gesture which promised no success under present conditions. They asserted that it was difficult to conceive of any German peace proposals which would be acceptable to France and Great Britain.

Count Ciano returned by train from Berlin before noon today and immediately motored to Premier Mussolini's office, where he conferred with Il Duce. Then he attended a Cabinet meeting.

In Italian quarters the next move was expected to come from Hitler who, it was thought, would outline his peace proposals through his Reichstag speech this week.

The Only Winner.

Meanwhile, an authoritative person said that Italy would still seek to limit the war by every possible means, while watching for a practicable opportunity to promote peace. This policy, the informant said, was based on the conviction that in a prolonged war the most likely winner would be Bolshevism.

In this regard, Hitler's alleged intention to create a small buffer State in Poland was reported by Gaecano Polverelli, correspondent for Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia. Polverelli reported that Hitler had revised the boundary between the Germans and Soviets in order to create such a Polish State of "territory inhabited entirely by Poles."

He recalled that the line was originally fixed along the Vistula River so as to cut Poland in two. Then it was changed to run along the Vistula and Bug rivers, leaving territory to be assigned to a new Polish State within the region west of the new line controlled by Germany, he said.

The Russians agreed to the new boundary, Polverelli reported, in return for a strategic position in the Baltic which they were able to obtain by accord with Estonia.

Mere Sounding Out.

Because of the faint hope held out here for a peace project, foreign observers doubted that the Italians would do much more than sound out London and Paris through diplomatic channels on the official British and French attitude. This belief was strengthened by the presence of the Italian Ambassador to London, Giuseppe Bastianini, when Count Ciano drove to Mussolini's office at the Palazzo Venezia.

Count Ciano was believed to have brought back Hitler's idea of what role Italy should play as Germany's ally in the event of British and French refusal to accept the "peace offensive."

The concensus of foreign and Italian observers alike was that Ciano probably brought a proposal from Mussolini's axis partner that Il Duce intercede with the British and French for acceptance of the Hitler offer of peace based on the Russo-German partition [illegible] of Poland.

The Italians had been told not to "disturb the pilot" and to keep their silence until Mussolini chose to enlighten them. The morning papers were full of press comment from other nations, but first editions contained nothing about Italy's intentions.

No Hint to People.

Privately eager to know whether Germany had demanded that Italy immediately fulfill her military pledges to Germany, the Italian people received no hint from the published accounts of Ciano's weekend visit to Berlin. About all they knew was that he went, talked and returned—but they drew some tentative conclusions from the fact that no new military measures had been announced.

Italy's desire to keep clear of the war seemed as strong as ever. Informed persons said they expected Italy to keep her present non-belligerent status as long as possible and at least for some time to come. They expressed the belief that a call by Germany for Italian help would come only when aid was actually needed, and that such a request now would be a sign of German weakness.

Question of Colonies.

Some diplomats said that an attempt would be made to persuade Great Britain and France that they would lose colonies to Germany and certain advantages in Africa to Italy, if they refused peace now and lost the war.

[A dispatch from Berlin said that the recovery of colonies lost by Germany in the world war was not a German war aim, but would continue to be the objective of peaceful negotiations.]

The authoritative Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, wrote yesterday in Il Giornale d'Italia that the European powers were at a "decisive point." Gayda spoke of "Friend Germany," and other Fascist editorials mentioned the word "Axis" after a month of disuse. However, the press refrained from any bellicose utterances.

The newspaper Il Lavoro Fascista said that Italians waited with "calm discipline" to hear Mussolini's voice, while La Tribuna commented that they were "ready to respond up to the extreme sacrifice to the signature and orders of Il Duce."

The final Italian casualty list from the Spanish war [illegible] published yesterday, bringing the total to about 4,000 dead and 15,000 wounded.

Cabinet Silent on War.

If the Cabinet discussed the war situation today nothing was said about it. The ministers approved numerous measures of domestic policy, including the procedure for cutting about 1,235,000 acres of big Sicilian estates into 20,000 farms at a cost of about 2,500,000,000 lire ($125,000,000).

Mussolini had a busy morning discussing aviation problems with Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Chief of the General Staff, and several aviation technicians. He also discussed further economic development of Ethiopia with Fascist officials.

Il Duce received Marshal Badoglio, his brother Paolo, an airplane manufacturer, and two technicians, with whom he discussed "the empire's defensive autarchy and recent mission in Spain," the official announcement said. Mussolini gave them orders for higher development of research and further development of "cultural and industrial understandings" which his callers have started with Spanish organizations.

This was the first report of efforts to establish close relations between Italian and Spanish war industries.

Mussolini also received Gen. Aurelia Liotta, former air attache at Berlin, "praising him for his work while in the German capital."

Japanese informants said that Gen. Count Juichi Terauchi's mission to Berlin was completed. The general, who went there on September 16, was expected to return to Rome tomorrow to take the liner Kashima Maru from Naples on October 8 for Japan via London and New York.

Rome Avoiding Any Tie to Nazi Peace Program

Feels Berlin Must Accord May Only Aid Bolshevism, Plans to Keep Hands Off

By The Associated Press

ROME, Oct. 3.—Italy appeared likely today to remain aloof for the present from German-Russian peace maneuvers.

Well informed Italians said they expected Fuehrer Adolf Hitler to make some peace proposals in his Reichstag speech this week, but doubted they had any chance for success. These persons said Italy, sincerely desiring to have peace reestablished, feared a prolonged war would make Europe the prey of Bolshevism, but she would not, however, involve herself in proposals predestined to failure.

Fascist sources also indicated that the Italian government, which asserted in justification of its intervention in the Spanish civil war that it was an anti-Bolshevik crusade, was not yet inclined to follow Germany in co-operating with her late enemy, Russia.

Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano informed Premier Benito Mussolini of his week-end conversations with Hitler immediately upon his return to Rome today, but no information was published here on the tenor of the talks. The Fascist press even refrained from its practice of describing the great cordiality of the meeting.

Armistice Plea Forecast

Some Italian correspondents in Berlin forecast that Hitler would propose the creation of a small ethnologically homogeneous Polish state under German protection with guaranties to Hungary and Rumania, and an armistice during which German colonial claims and the general European situation might be discussed.

Italian dispatches from London, on the other hand, uniformly presented Britain as unwilling to consider any peace terms which were not based on elimination of Hitlerism and restoration of independent Poland and Czecho-Slovakia.

Well informed Fascists and foreign diplomats expressed the opinion that French and British refusal to accept peace proposals of the sort Hitler might be expected to make would not alter the Italian policy, at least for the present. Caution was the dominant characteristic of this policy, an authoritative informant said, and any revision would come only after a careful study of the events.

An indication of the government's determination to remain on the war's sidelines some time longer was seen in the listing of Italian passenger ships sailing to New York, South America and the Far East as far ahead as Dec. 9.

Only the strongly pro-Nazi "Regime Fascista," edited by the former Fascist secretary, Roberto Farinacci, interpreted Count Ciano's Berlin talks as foreshadowing a possible change in Italian policy. The meeting, it said, had disillusioned those who "hastened to spread the report" that Italy passed bag and baggage into the opposite camp.

"France and England must be persuaded that a lasting peace must be achieved only through Rome," the paper said. "If these efforts by Italy should be in vain after the Berlin conference their governments and peoples will assume responsibilities before God and history. We still believe in peace but not exclusively. For this reason the Italian youth has a single duty: to mobilize its spirit even more than ever and keep its arms close and at hand."

FRANCO OFFERS AID TO TERMINATE WAR

But Spanish Leader Sees Need of 'New Formulas.'

BURGOS, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Generalissimo Francisco Franco declared today that Spain stands ready to do whatever is possible toward restoration of European peace. He made this declaration in an interview outlining Spain's attitude.

Franco said the nation would strive "to be always ready to do whatever we can without limitations or reserve to reconcile the countries which today are fighting against each other."

He added he was hopeful that peace might be effected, but added that new formulas must be advanced as a working basis.

"From the time Russia signed a non-aggression pact with Germany," Franco said, "I saw a great danger. . . . Germany could form a strong barrier in eastern Europe."

Franco declared that the basis of hope for a quick, decisive victory in the European conflict was nonexistent and added: "I firmly believe it possible to save Poland, but at the cost of great sacrifices."

The Generalissimo termed the entry of Russia into the conflict in the east of "deep gravity" for the peace of Europe.

Scandinavians Roused by Nazi And Red Moves

U-Boat Seizes Swedish Ship; Finland Denies Russia Has Demanded Sea Bases

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Uncertainty rimmed the Baltic Sea tonight as the Scandinavian countries worried over Germany's intense campaign to rid the Baltic of shipping which might carry contraband to her enemies and regarded Russia's aims and motives with increasing anxiety.

Foreign reports that Russia had demanded naval and air bases on two Finnish islands in return for a concession in the Karelian frontier district between Finland and Russia were denied by the Finnish Foreign Office, which said there had been no communications of any kind from Russia recently.

A new element was added to the already puzzling situation in the Baltic by reliable Stockholm business circles. These sources said a number of Swedish and Finnish shipping firms had been queried by the Russian chartering central, "Exports," about prices for shipping timber from the White Sea to various English ports.

All previous reports indicated that Russia had abandoned timber exports to England. No authoritative interpretation of the reports could be obtained, but shippers were asking with interest whether Russia was planning to supply Britain with timber, which the new Soviet partner, Germany, has been treating as contraband.

[According to the United Press the Stockholm newspaper "Allehanda" described today a "sensational offer" by Russia to rent eight Swedish steamers for lumber transport, asking a quick decision because the White Sea will be ice-bound about Nov. 1. The paper surmised the Russians intended to "break the German blockade and ship lumber to England" and wanted six ships for service to England and two to France. The offer had been received by several Swedish shippers, the paper said, but no decision had been made by them.]

The Swedish admiralty announced the capture by Germans of the Swedish steamship Themis, near the Danish Island of Bornholm. The Themis (a 724-ton ship out of Stockholm, according to Lloyd's Register) was bound for Norway with a cargo of grain and was in international waters, as the commander of the Swedish destroyer Dale was informed by the German commander when he attempted to go to the assistance of the Themis.

At the same time the Admiralty said that eight neutral ships captured yesterday included no Swedish vessels, but rather five Finnish, two Estonian and one Norwegian. The Admiralty had announced yesterday they were all Swedish. (Five Swedish ships already have been sunk.)

Intense activity against spies continued here, but no announcements were made of arrests. A special staff of police "spy hunters" was at work over the country, seeking to halt the passing of information on ship movements.

Reports from competent observers at Riga, Latvia, said the return of the Latvian Foreign Minister William Munters after talks with Soviet officials at Moscow was calmly awaited by the Latvian people, who were confident the government would be able to safeguard Latvian interests. Reports from Helsingfors, Finland, said, however, that new, surprising developments concerning both Latvia and Lithuania might be expected within forty-eight hours.

Both Latvia and Lithuania have been discussing "trade agreements" with Russia, and Russia was expected to demand air and naval bases in Latvian waters to strengthen her influence on the Baltic. Moscow already has obtained bases in Estonian waters.

The Karelian district mentioned as the location of a possible concession to Finland is a strip of Russian territory running along the Finnish border to the White Sea, rich in timber and, the Finns say, inhabited largely by Finnish-speaking people.

Sweden Considers Convoy.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Sweden strove desperately today to continue her sea commerce and at the same time maintain her precarious neutrality.

As Nazi sailors tightened their grip on the Baltic, apprehensive Swedish officials studied the world war convoy system. In those days, Sweden escorted her ships to Norway, where Great Britain took over the duties.

Consideration was given the possibility of shipping by rail to Gothenburg, on the Kattegat, an arm of the North Sea, and completely avoiding Baltic Sea lanes.

The Admiralty ordered all Swedish vessels not to venture into the open sea, but to follow coastal waters. Ships bound for the North Sea were expected to pick up convoys off the western coast of Norway.

The order followed upon reports of yesterday that Germany had seized eight Swedish ships and had interfered with a ninth inside Swedish territorial waters.

The Admiralty announced today that none of the eight was a Swedish craft, but that five were Finnish, two Estonian and one Norwegian. Four were carrying lumber consigned to England.

The Admiralty said one Swedish ship and a sixth Finnish ship had been stopped, but it was not known what happened to them.

German activities have been particularly intense since Sunday between the Swedish islands of Oela and Gotland, a course followed by many ships carrying timber and woodpulp from eastern Sweden to England.

Swedish fighting planes were reported yesterday to have fired warning shots at a German warship which halted one of their boats in Swedish waters. The warship was said to have moved away and permitted the ship to continue on her course.

In addition to her sea troubles, Sweden was reported bothered by spies. A special staff of police spy hunters was at work over the country, seeking to halt the passing of information on ship movements.

Danish Ship Is Sunk.

BERLIN, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—A communique issued today announced that the Danish steamship Vendia had been sunk by a German submarine on September 30. The communique, which said the ship tried to ram the U-boat, described the rescue of survivors.

The Vendia's owners in Copenhagen said the ship was sunk with the loss of eleven lives, although the captain ordered it stopped immediately on a signal from the submarine.

Survivors Call Nazi Raider the Admiral Scheer

Say Plane Strafed Clement, and Pocket Battleship Sank Ship After Shelling

By The Associated Press

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 3.—Survivors of the 5,051-ton British freighter Clement were quoted today in dispatches from Bahia, Brazil, as saying their vessel had been machine-gunned by an airplane before a German warship fired twenty-five shots and finally sank the vessel with a torpedo.

A dispatch to the Meridional news agency said the warship was the fast 10,000-ton "pocket battleship" Admiral Scheer, which can catapult two planes from her deck. This account coincided with official British reports of an attack by a cruiser, although earlier reports here had described it as an attack by a submarine.

The Booth-American Line, owners of the vessel, said in London that all the forty officers and men of the Clement were safe except the captain and chief engineer, who were taken prisoner by the raider.

But the Rio de Janeiro newspaper "O Globo," in a dispatch from Bahia, asserted that sixteen others of the crew had been seized by the Germans and that two of the Clement's four lifeboats had been found empty. The occupants of the third had been rescued by the Brazilian ship Itatanga, and the fourth not found at all, the paper said.

The Itatanga brought the seventeen occupants of the third boat to Bahia today. (Previous advices had said sixteen were aboard the Itatanga, including the pilot.)

The paper also quoted one of the survivors as saying the Admiral Scheer was the raider and that the first attack was by a plane.

The British cruisers Ajax and Exeter, main units of Great Britain's south Atlantic squadron, are in these waters, but they are light cruisers whose guns, according to naval experts here, would be unable to cope with those of a "pocket battleship" such as the Admiral Scheer.

Despite the presence of Nazi warcraft in the south Atlantic, the 10,132-ton French liner Jamaique, which left Le Havre on Sept. 9, arrived at Rio de Janeiro with thirty passengers. The 14,135-ton British liner Highland Chieftain also arrived at Rio de Janeiro to take on passengers and cargo.

Latin America turned attention today to the possibility of keeping her shipping lanes free of conflict under the "safety zone" declaration at Panama.

A study of the Buenos Aires port register for August and September showed Britain's blockade against German shipping already was drastically effective. The question was whether Germany would strike back again in South American waters.

In September, the first month of the European war, three German ships entered the port here and ten departed, compared to twenty-three arrivals and twenty departures in August. Of the ten Nazi vessels leaving, five went only to Montevideo, Rosario and other South American ports. The other five apparently attempted to run the British blockade. Three German freighters were sunk off South America during the month.

In contrast to the virtually complete suspension of German shipping, sixty-three British ships arrived at Buenos Aires and sixty-two left during September, compared with sixty-five entries and sixty-five departures in August.

A similar situation exists in Brazilian and Uruguayan ports. Many German ships are tied up in the neutral water of those countries to avoid becoming possible targets of the British cruisers Ajax and Exeter, main units of Britain's South Atlantic squadron.

Numbers of British ships, loaded with meat, wheat and other foodstuffs, are plying the South Atlantic, offering a rich hunting ground for German raiders. The possibility that Germany might be getting ready to attempt to halt Britain's South Atlantic commerce was seen in the sinking of the 5,051-ton British ship Clement.

The 10,132-ton French liner Jamaique, which left Havre Sept. 9, arrived today at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, with thirty passengers. The 14,135-ton British liner Highland Chieftain also arrived at Rio de Janeiro to take on passengers and cargo.

GERMANY MAKES A THREAT TO SINK THE MAURETANIA

British Admiralty Set to Take Care of Cunard White Star Ship

OCT 1939

LONDON, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—The London Daily Mail declared today a veiled threat to sink the new 35,700-ton Cunard-White Star liner Mauretania was contained in the English news bulletin broadcast from Hamburg last night.

The announcer mentioned, the Daily Mail said, that the Mauretania sailed from New York Saturday with only a few passengers and with three guns mounted on her decks.

"The British Admiralty," the Mail quoted the broadcaster as saying, "no doubt will accept responsibility for this action."

Meanwhile the British press, commenting on the reported sinking of the 5,051-ton British freighter Clement off the coast of Brazil yesterday, speculated on the possibility that one of Germany's speedy pocket battleships might have been turned loose on the sea lanes.

The sinking was attributed by the Admiralty to an armed raider, and there was no official confirmation of reports that the raider was a regular warship.

Say Plane Joined in Attack.

[Dispatches received today in Rio de Janeiro from Bahia, Brazil, quoted a group of survivors from the Clement as declaring that their vessel was attacked by an airplane firing machine-guns as well as by a German warship. A dispatch to the Meridional news agency said the warship which sank the vessel off the Brazilian coast was the Admiral Scheer, fast, new 10,000-ton cruiser. The Admiral Scheer carries two airplanes which are catapulted from her deck.

[The accounts quoted the survivors—who reached Bahia aboard the Brazilian coastal vessel Italinga—as saying that a plane flew back and forth over the Clement firing machine guns, but the crew remained with the ship until the warship arrived.

Meridional said that thereafter the warship fired approximately twenty-five shots without sinking the Clement, finally firing a torpedo which sent her down. The agency declared that the captain of the Clement was taken from one of the lifeboats as it passed close to the warship and was made prisoner.]

British Have Lost Thirty-two.

Sinking of the Clement brought maritime losses since the start of the war to at least thirty-two vessels. The loss was the first reported since the 4,646-ton freighter Hazelside was torpedoed off the Irish coast September 24.

There were indications that the British Home fleet had suffered no losses since the sinking of the aircraft carrier Courageous. Capt. Alan G. Kirk, United States Naval Attache, said last night he had visited the fleet Sunday and the normal force, including every one of the capital ships, was present.

Capt. Kirk also said he had attended religious services aboard the aircraft carrier Ark Royal, which German officials had hinted might have been destroyed by Nazi planes.

Berlin officially announced last week that German planes had attacked the British fleet in the North Sea and destroyed an aircraft carrier. A subsequent German broadcast asked British officials if they could account for the Ark Royal.

Germans Won't Tell.

BERLIN, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—German military authorities declined to comment today on the British admiralty's report that a German surface vessel sank the British freighter Clement in the South Atlantic.

"If we have vessels so far away from the home base naturally we don't propose to tell the world where or what they are," a Government spokesman said.

The new 34,000-ton Cunard White Star liner Mauretania left New York last week end heavily camouflaged and carrying two anti-aircraft guns and a six-inch gun on one of her lower decks.

Painted a muddy gray color, standard dress for all British merchantmen, she averaged, on her last trip here, 22.15 knots.

Passengers on her last trip over said they had sighted a submarine but Capt. J. C. Townley denied this.

The Mauretania, carrying forward one of the most famous names in shipping, arrived here on June 24 on her maiden voyage.

Although not the size or tonnage of the Queen Mary, the Mauretania, in three classes had accommodations for 1,500. Newest of the Cunarders, she was air-conditioned throughout.

Her arrival here in June was signalized by several great social affairs in her sumptuous dining rooms, with toasts to the old Mauretania, queen of the seas for twenty-two years whose record crossings the newer Mauretania has yet to equal.

The older boat of the name was broken up for scrap.

Says U-Boat Peril Is Waning

LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the House of Commons today that the submarine menace was dwindling and that trade was flowing to and from British ports in increasing volume.

"Advantage has been taken of the light of the moon to continue the relentless hunting of submarines during the night hours," he said. "A number of U-boats have been sighted and attacked."

Between Sept. 11 and 20, 1,485 ships with a gross tonnage of 3,679,000 had entered or cleared British ports, Mr. Chamberlain reported. During that period, he asserted, only 1.25 per cent of those ships and 1.75 per cent of the total tonnage was lost by submarine attacks or by mines. Since Sept. 25, he said, no British ships had been reported sunk by enemy submarines.

Speaking of attacks on units of the German fleet by British bombers, the Prime Minister said, "we suffered some losses, but the Germans have admitted that two of their attacking fighters were shot down."

He said that Germany had claimed to have sunk the aircraft carrier Ark Royal and subsequently modified their claim, but that "the facts are that no British ship was damaged and that all of them, the Ark Royal included, are carrying out their normal duties." He added that in the action the only casualties suffered were by German airplanes, of whose crews four men were British prisoners.

German submarines, said Mr. Chamberlain, were being driven to "far distant waters." He continued:

"Another and more sinister development of the U-boat warfare is the announcement by Germany that she will regard every vessel of the British merchant navy as a warship. If this means anything, it means that she will pursue an unrestricted submarine campaign.

"Further evidence of unrestricted submarine warfare is to be found in the number of neutral merchant ships Germany has sunk. Since the outbreak of the war the total of these sinkings amounts to seven ships of a gross tonnage of 13,194. In addition, eight ships with a gross tonnage of 27,765 have been sunk by mines or bombing."

CLEMENT

RIO DE JANEIRO, OCT. 3-(AP)-DISPATCHES FROM BAHIA, BRAZIL, TODAY QUOTED A GROUP OF SURVIVORS FROM THE SUNKEN BRITISH FREIGHTER CLEMENT AS DECLARING THAT THEIR VESSEL WAS ATTACKED BY AN AIRPLANE FIRING MACHINE-GUNS AS WELL AS BY A GERMAN WARSHIP.

A DISPATCH TO THE MERIDIONAL NEWS AGENCY SAID THE WARSHIP WHICH SANK THE 5,051-TON VESSEL OFF THE BRAZILIAN COAST WAS THE ADMIRAL SCHEER, FAST, NEW 10,000-TON CRUISER. (THE ADMIRAL SCHEER CARRIES TWO AIRPLANES WHICH ARE CATAPULTED FROM HER DECK.)

SAYS HE SAW BREMEN

Sailor Reports the New York Is at Murmansk Too.

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—A sailor arriving here from Murmansk asserted today that he saw in that Russian Arctic port not only the big German liner Bremen, but also the German liner New York, three smaller German liners and fifteen German freighters.

He said that 800 members of the Bremen's crew and 400 of the New York's had gone to Germany by way of Russia.

The $20,000,000 [illegible] Bremen sailed from New York August 30, only thirty-six hours before war started in Poland and four days before Britain declared war on Germany. Whereabouts of the 51,731-ton German flagship have been a mystery since then.

The 22,337-ton New York sailed from New York August 28, ostensibly for Hamburg.

Reporter Paying Visit to Western Front Finds Tactics of American Indians Used

OCT 4 1939

Sees French Skirmishing in Forests and Raiding Villages in Saar Basin Like Fighters in Early Days Here.

By HENRY C. CASSIDY.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Under front line shellfire I have just seen French forces attacking in the Saar Basin of Germany.

I also entered captured German ground with advance troops in the Warndt Forest, west of Saarbruecken, and went through subterranean galleries of France's Maginot Line on the first authorized trip of accredited war correspondents to the western front.

Everywhere the impression that French officers and troops gave was that they were carrying on the fight to the finish and that while they were not making any very extensive territorial gains they were taking positions of high strategic importance.

The war on the western front thus far is a cautious sparring match, with the French doing the leading.

There have been no big battles. The troops are not even in trenches. They are skirmishing in forests and raiding villages like the old American Indian fighters. But despite the mildness of the action as compared with the gigantic battles of the world war, this is serious business.

Sees Direct Hit Scored.

From a front line observation post, with both French and German shells screaming overhead, I saw a French battery score a direct hit on the heights of Berus just west of Saarbruecken which constitute the present objective of French attacks.

Soon afterward I saw [illegible] rustic horse-drawn carts carrying bodies out of the Warndt forest, east of Berus, where I was told a counter-attack by a Germany infantry patrol had been repulsed.

French officers estimate the total German casualties on the west front since the war started a month ago at about 3,000, of which 500 to 600 were believed to have been killed. French losses were described as less.

French strategy has been one of strictly local attacks to rectify their own lines, obtain information on the opposing forces and cripple the Saar coal and steel industry. In these they consider they already have achieved important successes.

There were no indications that any general offensive was in prospect from either side in this heavily fortified region.

PRAISE AMERICAN PLANES

French officers said that one of the sensations of the war for them had been the performance of the Curtiss pursuit planes bought in the United States.

One estimated that the Curtiss planes with French pilots had brought down 28 German planes with a loss of only two of their own.

In one combat over the western front, a French officer said, nine Curtiss planes were pitted against 15 German Messerschmidts and brought down five of the enemy, losing two of their own. In another tangle over the Vosges Mountains three Curtiss planes fought three German Heinkel bombers and forced one down.

Everywhere the first question French soldiers asked American correspondents was: "When is the United States going to revise the neutrality act?"

We came to the front just as you would go to a Sunday picnic, getting up early to pack our things and then drive off by automobile. The difference was that the things we packed were steel helmets and gas masks, at the request of French officers, as well as heavy boots, trench coats and field glasses.

Another difference was that the trip was prepared long in advance, with such ritual as signing statements absolving the French army of any responsibility for our lives.

On the previous day French infantry had seized the German frontier station of Uberherrn, a town of 2,500, in a surprise attack just south of the Berus Heights. They also had taken St. Oran, a tiny German settlement of two farms and a chapel, north of Berus.

On the Berus crest, French guns pounded a German pillbox observation post controlling the heights. French [illegible], under cover of woods on the valley edge, were carefully swinging east in an effort to cut around to the town of Berus behind the heights.

As I watched, French guns fired rhythmically, with each detonation sending echoes through the valley. A white stone tower which once marked the heights already had been destroyed. Smoke rose at every hit. At the close of a half-hour barrage, one gray pillar of smoke marked a smash at the very point of the German observation post.

Then, after a brief pause, came what French military communiques call German "reaction." There was a faint bumping noise from the opposing lines, a shriek in the air, and German shells fell in the hills behind us. The German barrage was brief.

Driving south from the Berus battleground into the Warndt Forest, we were forced to cross a bare ridge in sight of German batteries. The five cars of our party separated and raced at top speed into a clump of trees covering the road ahead of us.

The caravan was not fired on.

PATROLS REPULSE NAZIS

As we reached a French border post in the recently captured Warndt Forest another engagement characteristic of this war had just taken place. A French patrol came in to report they had met and turned back a German patrol. For evidence they carried a blood-spattered German helmet, two machine guns and an assortment of hand grenades and other [illegible] of victory.

OCT 1939

Behind them came a party carrying two German dead lying head to head with their eyes still open, their field gray uniforms and heavy boots still fresh. They were young, blond infantrymen. Around them, not with animosity but with the curiosity of youth, crowded young French troops.

OCT 4 1939

BY HENRY C.CASSIDY

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, OCT. 3-(AP)-IT'S A "WHITE WAR" THEY ARE FIGHTING ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

IT IS A CAUTIOUS CAMPAIGN OF MEN PRESSING STEADILY BUT CAREFULLY ON THEIR ADVERSARY.

THERE ARE FEW WOUNDED AND FEWER DEAD, IN STRIKING CONTRAST TO THE HEAVY LOSSES OF THE WORLD WAR. BUT ADVANCES INTO THE SAAR BASIN VARY FROM A FEW FEET TO SEVERAL MILES AND THE FRENCH COMMAND CONSIDERS THEM IMPORTANT BOTH STRATEGICALLY AND ECONOMICALLY.

A MONTH AFTER THE FRENCH AND BRITISH DECLARATION OF WAR, I HAVE JUST HAD A FIRST-HAND VIEW AND ACCOUNT OF TWO TYPICAL OPERATIONS OF THIS WARFARE.

FIRST UNDER ARTILLERY FIRE WITHIN 600 YARDS OF THE GERMAN LINES I SAW FRENCH GUNS ATTACK THE HEIGHTS TWO MILES INSIDE GERMANY CONTROLLING THE ROAD TO SAARBRUECKEN, 12 MILES TO THE EAST. COLUMNS OF SMOKE ATTESTED TO HITS SCORED ON THE CREST.

AGAIN, DRIVING A MILE AND A HALF THROUGH THE WARNDT FOREST TO THE CAPTURED GERMAN TOWN OF LAUTERBACH, I MET FRENCH TROOPS WHO SAID THEY HAD JUST REPULSED A GERMAN PATROL.

OUT OF THE FOREST ON A CART CAME THE BODIES OF TWO GERMAN SOLDIERS AS EVIDENCE OF THE LOCAL VICTORY. THAT IS THE WAY THE FRENCH ARE FIGHTING THE WAR, SPARING MEN BUT USING GUNS TO CLEAR OUT OBJECTIVES THEN HOLDING THE GROUND AGAINST LOCAL COUNTER ATTACKS.

THE GERMAN REACTION IS SLIGHT. IN REPLY TO THE FRENCH ARTILLERY ATTACK WHICH I SAW, GERMAN GUNS TOSSED BACK ONLY A FEW SHELLS.

OCT 4 1939

THE FOREST ENCOUNTER LASTED ONLY A MATTER OF MINUTES, WITH THE GERMANS QUICKLY WITHDRAWING. THE ONLY FIGHTING SO FAR HAS BEEN ON GERMAN SOIL. GERMAN BOMBERS HAVE BEEN ATTACKING THE FRENCH ONLY AS FAR AS THE BORDER.

BUT THE FRENCH MAKE PLAIN THAT THIS IS A REAL WAR. THE GENERAL IMPRESSION FROM SEEING THEM IN ACTION IS THAT THEY MEAN TO CARRY ON THE WAR ALONG THIS LINE UNLESS AND UNTIL THE TIME WHEN THE GERMANS MAY TAKE THE INITIATIVE.

THE MOST IMPOSING SIGHT OF ALL WAS THE MAGINOT LINE PIVOT FROM WHICH THE FRENCH ARE SENDING OUT ATTACKS AND MAINTAINING DEFENSIVE BASES.

DOWN A RAMP, 150-FEET INTO THE EARTH, I WALKED INTO ONE OF THE FORTRESSES OF THE LINE, A SELF-SUFFICIENT CITADEL WITH STOCKS TO HOLD OUT ALONE FOR THREE MONTHS, IF NECESSARY.

LIFE LOOKED COMFORTABLE THERE. AT THE HEART OF A MAZE OF GALLERIES WAS AN ELECTRIC POWER PLANT WITH FOUR DIESEL MOTORS. NEAR IT WAS AN ELECTRICALLY EQUIPPED KITCHEN WITH THREE GREAT STOVES COOKING BEEF STEW FOR THE TROOPS. IN THE SLEEPING QUARTERS, LIKE CREW QUARTERS ON A WARSHIP, THE MEN SLEEP IN DOUBLE-DECK STEEL BUNKS. THEY SLEEP IN SHIFTS.

GAS MASKS WHICH ARE COMPULSORY FOR THE PARIS CIVILIAN POPULATION AREN'T NECESSARY FOR TROOPS IN THE FORTRESS. THEIR POSITION IS AIR CONDITIONED AND EVEN GUN APERTURES ARE AIR TIGHT.

ALONG THE MAIN CORRIDOR RUNS A SMALL ELECTRIC TRAIN. STEEL DOORS DIVIDE THE GALLERIES AT INTERVALS. THERE ARE PHOSPHORESCENT SIGNS TO GUIDE THE MEN IN CASE LIGHTS ARE EXTINGUISHED.

OUTSIDE AT THE INNOCENT-APPEARING ENTRANCE WHERE IT WAS NECESSARY TO GIVE A SPECIAL PASSWORD WITH THE AUTHORIZATION OF GENERAL MAURICE GUSTAVE GAMELIN, THE ALLIED COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, BEFORE ENTERING, THERE WAS ONLY A LITTLE KNOB OF THE LOOKOUT'S PILLBOX ATOP THE HILL TO MARK THE PASSAGE THROUGH THE CAMOUFLAGED CONCRETE WALL.

OCT 4 1939

BUT AFTER SEEING THE SUBTERRANEAN WORKS AND EMERGING INTO THE DAY-

30.24-3819

LIGHT, I COULD SEE THE TOP OF THE GREAT ARTILLERY TOWER AT THE BACK WITH GAPING CASEMATES BELOW IT DOMINATING THE APPROACH UP THE SLOPING HILL. IN THE DISTANCE, KNOBS OF ADJOINING FORTRESSES COULD BE SEEN.

THE COUNTRYSIDE BACK OF THE FRONT IS DESERTED. AT A CROSSROADS NEAR ONE FORT, I FOUND A STEAMING LUNCH IN THE OFFICERS' MESS. I PICKED A ROSE FROM A GARDEN ABOVE THE MAGINOT LINE. FIELDS WHERE CROPS HAVE BEEN HARVESTED ARE EMPTY. ON THE ROADS THERE IS NO EVIDENCE OF TROOP MOVEMENTS. THE PEOPLE HAVE MOVED OUT OF THE VILLAGES.

THE REGION BEHIND THE FRONT IS ORGANIZED IN BROAD STRIPS WITH TROOP CONCENTRATIONS FAR IN THE REAR. THEN COMES A VACANT AREA ACROSS THE MAGINOT LINE TO THE ARMY WHICH IS HOLDING THE MAIN FRONT. AIRPLANES, TOO, ARE HELD FAR IN THE REAR.

THAT IS A LESSON LEARNED FROM THE GERMAN CAMPAIGN IN POLAND WHERE ADVANCED AIRBASES WERE DESTROYED.

I SAW ONE MECHANIZED DIVISION ENCAMPED IN RESERVE, BUT READY TO REACH THE FRONT IN LESS THAN A DAY.

EVEN THE FRONT ITSELF, AT FIRST GLANCE, HAS THE SAME DESERTED APPEARANCE AS THE REAR. ONLY ON CLOSE INSPECTION DO YOU SEE THAT THE HOUSES OF BORDER VILLAGES ARE CRAMMED WITH MEN AND THE BARNS FILLED WITH BOTH VEHICLES AND HORSES, WHICH DESPITE THEIR ECLIPSE BY MECHANIZED CAVALRY ARE USED EXTENSIVELY FOR TRANSPORT.

ON THE ACTUAL FRONT, THE WOODS TEEM WITH YOUNG MEN LIVING MUCH LIKE AMERICAN YOUTHS IN SUMMER CAMP. BEHIND THEM ARE ARTILLERY BATTERIES. AHEAD OF THEM ARE THE ADVANCE PATROLS WATCHING LEST THE GERMANS IN THE WOODS OPPOSITE TRY A RAID.

IN THE WARNDT FOREST, I VISITED THE FRENCH LINES INSIDE GERMANY WITHIN SIGHT OF A WOODED RIDGE AHEAD HELD BY THE GERMANS. IT WAS NEAR THERE THAT THE GERMAN PATROL HAD JUST BEEN REPULSED. THE PREVIOUS DAY A GERMAN FORCE WITHDRAWING FROM A FRENCH PATROL WAS REPORTED BY THE MEN TO HAVE STUMBLED ON ONE OF THEIR OWN MINES, KILLING FIVE OR SIX GERMAN SOLDIERS.

THE OCCUPIED TOWN OF LAUTERBACH IN THE FOREST, WAS FOUND FULL OF MINES, TRAPS AND HIDDEN FORTS, SO THE TROOPS WERE ON THE ALERT. I SAW ONE STOP ON A FOREST ROAD NEAR THE TOWN, PICK UP AN OBJECT SUSPICIOUSLY. IT WAS A CHILD'S TOY TIN TANK, CRUSHED BY MAN'S WAR.

DB558PES

THE FRENCH PATROL OF 15 SAID THEY ENCOUNTERED 30 TO 40 GERMANS IN THE FOREST, DROPPED INTO POSITION AND FIRED AS THE GERMANS ADVANCED. TWO GERMANS WERE KILLED IMMEDIATELY, ONE JUST AS HIS BULLET-CLIP WAS MOVING THROUGH A MACHINE-GUN. TWO OTHERS WERE WOUNDED GRAVELY AND THE REST WITHDREW LEAVING THEIR DEAD, WOUNDED AND EQUIPMENT. THE FRENCH HAD FOUR WOUNDED SLIGHTLY.

THE WARNDT FOREST, WHICH HAS BEEN ONE OF THE MAIN THEATERS OF ACTION, IS ONE OF DEEP PINE WOODS, WITH WIDE LANES RUNNING THROUGH. FOR A MILE AND A HALF I DROVE THROUGH IT TO THE GERMAN TOWN OF LAUTERBACH, WHICH WAS ONE OF THE FIRST TOWNS TAKEN BY THE FRENCH.

THERE FRENCH TROOPS NOW STAND ON GUARD. THAT PART OF THE FRONT IS NOW QUIET, WITH THE GERMANS HOLDING THE RIDGE EAST OF LAUTERBACH.

BUFFALO,N.Y., OCT.3-(AP)-PLANES NOW BEING BUILT FOR THE UNITED STATES ARMY SURPASS THE CURTISS PURSUIT SHIPS DESCRIBED BY FRENCH OFFICERS ON THE WESTERN FRON AS "ONE OF THE SENSATIONS OF THE WAR," AN AUTHORITY ON WARPLANE MANUFACTURE SAID TODAY.

THIS SOURCE, WHO PREFERRED TO REMAIN ANONYMOUS, SAID A LATER CURTISS PURSUIT DEVELOPMENT NOW IN PRODUCTION AT THE CURTISS AEROPLANE DIVISION FACTORY IS BELIEVED CAPABLE OF A SPEED "AT LEAST 20 MILES AN HOUR IN EXCESS" OF THE TYPE BUILT FOR THE FRENCH ARMY.

NEARLY $14,000,000 WORTH OF THE NEW TYPE, KNOWN AS THE P-40, ARE BEING MANUFACTURED FOR THE UNITED STATES ARMY CORPS, BUT THE EXACT NUMBER HAS BEEN KEPT SECRET. THE FRENCH PLANES OF WHICH 200 WERE BUILT HERE, WERE DESCRIBED PREVIOUSLY AS CAPABLE OF ATTAINING SPEEDS "IN EXCESS OF 300 MILES AN HOUR."

IT WAS IN A PLANE OF THE FRENCH TYPE, KNOWN AS THE HAWK 75-A, THAT H. LLOYD CHILD, CHIEF CURTISS TEST PILOT, TRAVELED FASTER THAN ANY PREVIOUS HUMAN BEING LAST JAN.23 BY DIVING AT MORE THAN 575 MILES AN HOUR.

THE HAWK 75-A IS A LOW-WING, ALL-METAL, SINGLE PLACE PURSUIT MONOPLANE, POWERED WITH A TWIN-ROW PRATT AND [illegible] 14-CYLINDER ENGINE DESIGNED TO DEVELOP APPROXIMATELY 1,000 HORSEPOWER, AND IS EQUIPPED WITH A CURTISS ELECTRIC CONTROLLABLE PITCH PROPELLER.

IT IS SIMILAR IN DESIGN TO THE P-36 DEVELOPED BY THE UNITED STATES ARMY AIR CORPS, WHICH HAS MORE THAN 200 OF THAT TYPE IN USE.

THE NEW UNITED STATES ARMY P-40 IS SIMILAR IN GENERAL DESIGN TO THE HAWK 75-A AND THE P-36, BUT IS POWERED WITH A LIQUID-COOLED V-12 ALLISON ENGINE.

THE BELL AIRCRAFT CORPORATION OF BUFFALO ALSO IS BUILDING FOR THE UNITED STATES ARMY A NEW INTERCEPTOR PLANE WITH TRICYCLE LANDING GEAR, WITH A TYPE OF MOTOR SIMILAR TO THE P-40.

THE GOVERNMENT ORDERED NEARLY $3,000,000 WORTH OF THESE SHIPS, BUT THE NUMBER INCLUDED IN THE ORDER WAS KEPT SECRET.

ENGLISH INTERN HANFSTAENGEL

Former Hitler Friend Was Voluntary Exile.

LONDON, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Dr. Ernst (Putzi) Hanfstaengl, American-educated publicist and one-time close friend of Adolf Hitler, was said today by acquaintances to have been interned by the British Covernment.

His case, it was said, would be reviewed by one of the special tribunals created by the British home office to deal with enemy aliens.

Hanfstaengl, former, former head of the Nazi Press Bureau, left Germany in 1937 and had been living since then in voluntary exile in England, ignoring official invitations to return to Berlin.

The special tribunals, before one of which Hanfstaengl's case would come, have been charged with the task of investigating the cases of an estimated 60,000 aliens.

Sir John Anderson, head of the new ministry for home security, has explained to the Commons that the tribunals would be aided by committees which have been assisting central European refugees.

The Government has explained that in the event of a satisfactory report the way might be opened for aliens desiring to participate in civilian defense activities or other wartime enterprises.

Hanfstaengl's Son Not Upset

Harvard Freshman Who Played With Hitler Knew English Would Intern Father.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Egon Hanfstaengl, who as a boy "played soldiers" with Adolf Hitler, had "expected" the news he received from London today that his father, Dr. Ernst F. S. Hanfstaengl, exiled former Nazi press chief, had been interned in England.

The strapping, eighteen-year-old Harvard freshman, who proudly boasts American citizenship, said he had no fear for the safety of his father who, he added, hoped eventually to come to the United States. At the same time, he said he had been unfavorably impressed by what he described as a change in the German Chancellor and asserted that Hitler had become "harsh and more aloof."

Of his father's internment, Mr. Hansfstaengl said, in an interview: "I had a shrewd suspicion of what would happen, as I have had no direct news from him since I left England a month ago."

Declaring that he was an American citizen, because he was born in the United States, Mr. Hanfstaengl said he intended to remain in this country "for good."

Fled Germany in 1937.

The Hanfstaengls fled Germany in 1937, the young man said, "because my father openly opposed excessive persecution of Jews and churches and the gangster policy of Hitler toward England and America."

Mr. Hanfstaengl said his father planned to spend all his time doing historical research, making a survey of the seventeenth century.

"He has absolutely severed all connections with the Nazis," the young man said, "and has no intention of ever returning to Germany."

Telling how as a boy, in 1925, he had "played soliders" with Hitler, he said that at that time the Nazi leader was "exceedingly charming." That was shortly after Hitler's release from prison.

"In 1934," Mr. Hanfstaengl said, however, " I regarded him very unfavorably. He had changed, presumably because of the pressure of duty."

Mr. Hanfstaengl, who said he was once a member of the Nazi Youth Movement, spoke softly, without sign of emotion and with only a slight accent. He intends to go out for the Harvard track team and crew, if it does not interfere with his studies.

After Hitler's rise to head the German Government, Mr. Hanfstaengl said, he became "harsh and more aloof"; for weeks he would be "very inactive and almost lethargic, and listen to his subordinates. Then he would unleash a burst of energy and orders would fly."

Mr. Hanfstaengl said he was somewhat surprised that Germany went to war as "I thought Hitler would give up pursuing his technic of blackmail."

War, the Harvard freshman said, is "ghastly." He was silent a few moments and then mused: "I had a brother who died, I believe, on account of the fact that my mother was weak from lack of food as the effects of the previous war."

RUMANIA AGAIN DENIES WAR AIM

But Appeals to People to Aid Military Preparations.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Rumania, pressing her own military preparations and surrounded by armed neighbors, announced to the world again today her desire to maintain strict neutrality.

The Government, issuing an "appeal to the people," declared:

"We have no claims. We heartily hope for and desire peace. But we cannot allow ourselves to be placed in a subordinate position. We know requirements lie heavy on our towns and cities, but scaling down our military activities at the present moment is not possible."

The appeal ended with the statement: "We hope to be able to conquer our difficulties in our own way and to avoid war. We hope to maintain strict neutrality."

MOSCICKI TO LIVE IN SWITZERLAND

Ex-President of Poland Finds Refuge There.

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—The Federal Council today granted permission to Ignace Moscicki, resigned President of Poland, and his wife to come to Switzerland to live.

Moscicki, formerly a professor at the University of Fribourg, Switzerland, obtained Swiss citizenship in 1908 and never relinquished it, although he took Polish citizenship on the creation of the post-war state.

The Moscickis were reported today to be in Bucharest. (The official Hungarian news agency quoted an unidentified member of Moscicki's retired refugee government as saying Moscicki was going to a Swiss sanatorium, where he would meet a famous physician who treated him two years ago.)

It was announced the Moscickis would reside at Chandon in the Canton of Fribourg. Like every other foreign political refugee admitted by Switzerland, Moscicki automatically accepted a prohibition against political activity of any kind while here.

Britain Starts Drive For Home Gardeners

LONDON, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Britain's Minister of Agriculture, Sir Reginald Dorman Smith, called for 500,000 new home gardeners tonight in a broadcast speech emphasizing the "Dig for Victory" campaign.

PRINCE RADZWILL KILLED IN POLAND

Wolhynia is in the Russian-occupied zone.

Nazi Girls Gather Leaves for Herb Tea

BERLIN, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—German girls in their teens have found a place in Germany's war organization—as collectors of herbs from which a substitute for tea can be made.

Real tea costs foreign exchange. Hence girls were urged to save the Reich expense by adding collections into the field and gathering, under expert supervision, birch, blackberry, strawberry and other leaves, and pansies and wild briar.

SLOVAKS HARD HIT BY NAZI DEMANDS

But Reckon Fate Is Better Than Czechs' or Poles.'

BRATISLAVIA, Slovakia, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Mobilization of this little country's resources to fill the needs of Germany, her military protector, has resulted in high prices and threatened food shortages.

A scarcity of many necessities is evident. Lard, meat, coffee and chocolate are either unavailable or too costly for the average buyer. The issuance of ration cards is expected soon.

Bratislavia has taken on the appearance of a German town with the presence of many uniformed Nazi officers. They may be seen in the Government buildings, and the principal hotel has become the headquarters of Germany commercial representatives.

Defenders of the German cooperation policy declare that present conditions are preferable to the fate of Czecho-Slovakia or Poland.

"At all costs, we must remain on good terms with our overwhelmingly powerful German neighbor," said one spokesman for this group.

Mexico Will Continue Relations With Poland

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—The Mexican Government, declaring that it [illegible] "not recognizes [illegible] any [illegible] conquest by force," has announced it will continue diplomatic relations with the Polish Government.

Prime Minister Says British Press Will Be Given More Freedom

London, Oct. 3 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain in a new attempt to solve news and censorship problems which have troubled the British Government since the outbreak of war told the House of Commons today the press would be granted direct contact with Government departments as before.

The new chief censor named to take over next Monday is Sir Walter Monckton, 48, friend of the Duke of Windsor and important adviser during the abdication crisis in 1936. He also will have the job of supervising the central distribution of Government news at the Ministry of Information, which will continue on a less all-inclusive scale.

British press demands for direct contacts with Government departments instead of all news being handled through the Information Ministry won recognition i nthe new setup—but censorship now becomes double-barreled.

Three Lufthansa Lines to Resume

BERLIN, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Lufthansa, the German commercial aviation company, announced today that [illegible] would be resumed tomorrow on the Berlin-Stockholm-Copenhagen, Munich-Venice-Rome and Vienna-Budapest-Belgrade lines.

EACH DEPARTMENT HEAD WILL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE NEWS OF HIS DEPARTMENT, ITS CENSORSHIP AND DISTRIBUTION. AT THE SAME TIME THE PRESENT CENTRAL CENSORSHIP WILL BE CONTINUED.

ALL GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCEMENTS WILL BE ISSUED AT THE INFORMATION MINISTRY AS IN THE PAST AND ALSO AT THE VARIOUS DEPARTMENT HEADQUARTERS. CENSORS WILL REMAIN AT THE INFORMATION MINISTRY, BUT EACH DEPARTMENT WILL ALSO HAVE ITS OWN CENSORS IN ITS OWN OFFICES.

AN IMPROVEMENT EXPECTED BY THE BRITISH PRESS IS IN DEVELOPMENT OF MORE NEWS OF GOVERNMENT ACTIVITIES, CONFINED TO AN UNSATISFYING TRICKLE DURING THE FIRST WEEKS OF THE WAR.

CHAMBERLAIN POINTED OUT TODAY THAT THE MINISTRY HAD BEEN RESPONSIBLE ONLY FOR DISTRIBUTING NEWS SUPPLIED BY THE DEPARTMENTS AND NOT FOR DEVELOPMENT OF NEWS.

CLEMENT ATTLEE, OPPOSITION LABOR LEADER, COMMENTED THAT THE MINISTRY WAS WRONGLY ORGANIZED AT THE START AND THAT THE NATION "NEEDS A GREAT DEAL MORE INFORMATION."

THE WHOLE QUESTION OF CENSORSHIP, HE SAID, REQUIRED DISCUSSION ADDING, "I AM NOT VERY PLEASED WITH THE PRIME MINISTER'S STATEMENT THAT THERE ARE TO BE A LOT OF SEPARATE CENSORSHIPS OF THE DIFFERENT DEPARTMENTS."

HOOVER SAYS ALLIES CANNOT BE DEFEATED

Cites Nations' Superiority Economically And At Sea

Warns Of "Dangerous Emotionalism Diluting American Reasoning"

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Oct. 3—The belief that British-French superiority economically and at sea would make their defeat by Germany impossible was expressed today by Herbert Hoover in an interview with Roy W[illegible]rd, printed in the New York [illegible] Telegram.

The former President, who in a series of high official positions saw much of the inner struggle of the World War at first hand, thus summed up his opinions:

"If one surveys the whole front—sea, land, air and economic resources—I am convinced the Allies can defend their empires.

"The end may be victory for them. At worst it might be stalemate. I do not see any possibility that it can be defeat."

Warns Of Emotionalism

Mr. Hoover's views were given in response to an expression by Howard, who is editor of the World-Telegram, that "a dangerous emotionalism is diluting American reasoning; that the idea is spreading rapidly in certain sections of this country that France and England are facing defeat and that in order to avoid catastrophe to civilization and to save ourselves the United States must sooner or later enter the European war."

To this, Howard reported, the former President responded:

"It is true there is the utmost danger in wartime of emotions overwhelming common sense. The most regrettable thing that could happen to us would be the building up of a war party in the United States, but the premise of the ideas you mention is wrong.

Major Factors Emerging

"The war is only a month old. But the major factors are already emerging. The British and French can, and will, control the seven seas despite submarines and airplanes, and can sit there until their enemies are exhausted.

"By their sea power the Allies can protect England and all the outlying possessions of both empires from invasion. Their man power can defend France unless they blunder into taking wild adventures in military offensives and exhaust their man power. Aerial warfare may be destructive, but that works both ways and, so far as all experience goes, is not conclusive of any war."

Britain and France, Mr. Hoover said, have a naval strength substantially five times that of Germany—2,500,000 tons against 500,000 tons, and, he added:

"Russia, even if she comes in, which is improbable, has a negligible navy. Italy has about 600,000 tons.

"German shipping is already driven off the seven seas in thirty days. Italy would have the same fate if she joined in, which at the present time appears also improbable. I am confident that our naval experts will confirm that this dominance of sea power may be damaged, but cannot be destroyed by aircraft.

"The submarine may be troublesome, but there has been great progress in methods of detecting submarines since the last war, and this type of warfare is less dangerous than formerly. Even in the last war it had no major effect upon naval command of the seas."

As to Russia, Mr. Hoover said that in any event it was "most unlikely" that Soviet troops ever would reach the Western front—because of "transportation difficulties, shortages of materials, internal weakness, a lack of any national purpose for the Russians, together with the risks to the Germans of such a guest."

Suggests Course For U. S.

Mr. Hoover, summing up with the statement that "the slow strangle of sea power will have its effect," suggested this course for the United States:

OCT 4 1939

"We need to keep cool. After all, we must keep out of this war. We would be yielding the last stand of democracy if we go in, win or lose. We would have to yield to dictatorship during the war, and in a quarter of a century of impoverishment afterward we would not get out of dictatorship. We would be destroying the possibility of being of aid in reconstruction of a demoralized world after it was all over."

Sole Point Of Attack

"On the military front," Mr. Hoover remarked at one point in the interview, "the sole point of attack is on continental France."

And here, he said, the French had "very much more powerful fortifications and armies than in 1914," and behind those fortifications the Allies had vastly the greater reserves of man power both for fighting and for producing the necessities of war.

Even if Germany were conceded the superior air power, he asserted, "all experience to date shows air attacks can have no conclusive effect on the capture of a country. That comes from invasion of troops alone."

Economically Poorer

As to economic resources, Mr. Hoover said the Germans were immensely poorer than their antagonists.

". . . The Germans can no doubt meagerly sustain public health," he added, "but at a long distance from the comfortable food standards of the Allied countries.

". . . Germany, except for coal, potash and nitrates, does not possess a full supply of any essential raw material for war. . . . Even with the amounts of raw materials Germany can command from Russia and Central Europe, there will still be large deficiencies in the other raw materials. The Allied blockade will in time reduce these supplies until it hurts.

"The Allies, on the other hand, produce in their own empires ninety per cent. of the needed steel, all their coal, and all the oil, copper, lead, zinc, tin,

FORD BELIEVES WAR IS PHONEY

Asks What Franco-German Fight Is About.

OCT 4 1939

SEES WORLD DISARMAMENT

Forecasts Return to the Soil After Conflicts Cease.

DETROIT, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Henry Ford said today that he believed that world disarmament would come out of the present European upheaval. Complete and permanent conversion of the world's implements of war into plowshares long has been one of Ford's most cherished dreams.

He said in an interview today that he had not changed his conviction that there was something phoney about the conflict on the Franco-German border.

"It has been phoney from the start," he said. "As a matter of fact, what should they be fighting about? Whom should they be fighting?

Embargo Repeal Opposed.

"The peoples of Europe have been regimented so long and so severely that they have presented fertile soil for the seeds of the warmakers—the small group of individuals who profit financially from war."

He added quickly, however, that the average person knows too well the horrors of war to want any part of it. "And," he added, "no country can fight a war if its people are not in a hostile mood. Fortunately, a great many people know that no war ever accomplished anything.

"The war in Europe—what there was of it—is over and chaos remains. It is a chaos out of which will come world disarmament, a thing that every honest-thinking person earnestly desires."

The motor manufacturer reiterated his hope that Congress would not repeal the arms embargo.

"One way to make sure that the war does not continue," he said, "is to retain the embargo as it is written in the present law."

Return to the Soil.

Mr. Ford, who believes that there can be no lasting prosperity based upon restricted production, predicted a growing return to the land.

"That usually follows every war," he said. "Young men—at least those fortunate enough to return physically whole—come back from war to find there are no jobs. Naturally, they turn to the soil.

"I hope to see the day when all idle land will be taxed heavily enough to force it into use.

"There need be no fear of overproduction. There can be no such thing as overproduction if you measure production according to the needs of the earth's peoples."

Mr. Ford repeated his offer to "find a use for everything you can produce from the soil," and added:

"Some day I'm going to make an automobile body out of wheat."

Fix American Neutral Zone

21 Republics Start to Notify All Belligerents of Their Rights.

OCT 4 1939

PANAMA, Oct. 3 (A. P.).—Twenty-one American republics, having outlined a Western Hemisphere safety zone to insulate them from the European war, today started formal notification to belligerents of their action.

At the suggestion of Under-Secretary Sumner Welles of the United States, President Juan Demostenes Arosemena of Panama was requested by the inter-American conference to communicate to warring nations the neutrality declaration adopted last night.

The republics voiced their intention of remaining apart from the European conflict, but declared they would demand their proper rights as neutrals. Some delegates called the declaration of Panama a complement to the Monroe Doctrine. They said it established for the first time continental American seas.

The declaration asserted neutral American republics have the indisputable right to preserve free from all hostile acts the waters adjacent to the American continents.

Failure Would Bring Action.

Failure of belligerents to recognize the zone would bring necessary measures to be decided upon after consultation.

The declaration of general neutrality allowed each country to adopt its own method of making it effective and fixed uniform standards, rights and obligations of neutrals with belligerents.

OCT 4 1939

It provided that American nations should not permit their inhabitants to place in jeopardy the neutrality of the Western Hemisphere by their activities, nor permit enlistments or preparation of expeditions in favor of belligerents on their soil.

Other measures said the nations:

1. Shall not permit their territories to be used as bases for belligerent activities.

2. Shall bar belligerent warships from their ports or waters in numbers of more than three at a time and permit their presence for not longer than twenty-four hours.

Must Respect Neutrality.

3. Shall demand that belligerent craft seeking hospitals in American

NEUTRAL ZONE OF AMERICAS SEEN AS 600-MI. HEADACHE

By ANDRUE BERDING.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3 (AP).—The United States and other republics of the Western Hemisphere may have to rely on diplomatic pressure to enforce their neutrality zone around part of the New World.

The agreement reached by the 21 American Republics at the Panama conference, diplomatic circles pointed out today, will present the governments with many practical problems.

President Roosevelt said these would be faced when they were reached.

Some of Problems.

Students of international affairs are asking, however, what would happen within the neutrality zone, which at some points extends perhaps 600 miles from the mainland, if:

A German submarine attacked and sank a British merchantman.

A German cruiser and a British or French cruiser met and fought it out.

An American destroyer saw a merchant vessel shelling a submarine.

If American battleships should be near a sea engagement between British and German warships within the zone, would they try to stop the fight?

Not by International Law.

International law does not justify any such proceeding, experts say. On the other hand, international law does not provide for any neutral zone extending hundreds of miles out to sea. It recognizes the three-mile limit for territorial waters, and, in some cases, a 12-mile limit.

Within those limits the American republics could do what they liked to stop unneutral activities.

Observers asked whether the new plan would prohibit the British and French from convoying their merchant ships through the neutral zone once they had passed outside the territorial waters of the American republics.

Another Problem.

This further question was raised:

If British and French warships did not take the convoy until their merchant ships passed outside the neutrality zone, and a German submarine sank some of them, would the American republic within whose neutrality zone the sinkings occurred accept responsibility for them? Or would all the American Republics jointly accept responsibility?

Official quarters were reluctant to discuss these questions. It was believed the first effort would be a combined one by the American Republics to obtain assurances from the belligerents that the zone would be respected.

zones respect neutrality laws and regulations.

4. Shall hold flights of belligerent aircraft over American territory to be neutrality infractions.

5. Shall be authorized to station guards aboard belligerent merchant vessels in American ports and intern such ships for excessive delay in port.

6. Shall permit transfer in good faith and without resale of belligerent vessels to neutral American republics.

7. Shall bar armed merchant vessels from entering their ports when the boats carry more than six-inch cannon on their prows. These vessels shall not have re-enforced sides or other offensive equipment.

10. May exclude belligerent submarines, or admit them on the condition they enter afloat flying the flag of their nation.

Reaffirms Solidarity.

A solidarity declaration reaffirmed the 1938 Lima conference's declaration of "solidarity among the peoples of this hemisphere," pledged the participants to strengthen harmony among themselves and "formulated fervent hopes for cessation of the deplorable state of war" in Europe and "a new reign in the world of peace, not of violence, but of justice and right."

All measures adopted yesterday were to be strengthened by a general economic program to be drawn up by a permanent advisory committee to be situated in Washington. A permanent neutrality committee of seven international law experts also was authorized.

The neutrality zone begins at Passamaquoddy Bay at the United States-Canadian border in the Atlantic, takes in the Caribbean area and Panama Canal approaches in both the Atlantic and Pacific.

Foreign Possessions Excluded.

In the Pacific, it includes Guadalupe Island, 200 miles off the coast of southern California, and extends along the North American coast as far as Juan de Fucca Straits at the United States-Canadian border. Territorial waters of foreign possessions in the Americas are not included.

The conference approved a Mexican proposal for another meeting in Havana October 1, 1940.

Argentina brought before the conference its century-old claim to the Falkland Islands, a British Crown colony 250 miles off the south Argentine coast, and said she reserved the "title" to the islands whether or not they come within the neutrality zone. Great Britain always has rejected the Argentine claim.

The session was to close today after speeches by various delegates.

Panama Meet Adjourns, Adopts Safety Zone Plan

Panama, Panama, Oct. 3 (AP)—The neutrality conference of twenty-one American republics adjourned late today with closing speeches stressing again the New World's determination to keep the European war from spanning the Atlantic.

The conference, which opened September 23, adjourned late in the afternoon, the delegates having formulated and adopted a program designed to insulate the Western Hemisphere from the Old World conflict.

The principal feature of this program is the "safety zone" for neutral shipping laid about the continent from the Maine-Canada border around Cape Horn and north in the Pacific to the boundary between Canada and the State of Washington.

This zone is to be patrolled by the American navies—that of the United States necessarily undertaking the chief role—to keep neutral American shipping free from entrance by the belligerents.

OCT 4 1939

Far At Sea

The safety zone which the conference drew up runs far out into the Atlantic—600 miles off Boston, 750 miles off New York, 950 miles off Washington and 1,200 miles off Miami.

After taking in the Caribbean area and the Panama Canal approach the line extends southward 800 miles off Rio de Janeiro, about 1,100 miles off Buenos Aires, around the tip of South America and northward through the Pacific.

It lies 730 miles off Ecuador to take in the Galapagos Islands and 200 miles off southern California to include Guadalupe Island. It runs about 500 miles west of Los Angeles, 400 miles west of San Francisco and 600 miles off Seattle.

Other accomplishments of the conference included the proclamation of a new neutrality policy for the entire Western Hemisphere and the establishment of further economic and neutrality cooperation through the creation of a permanent committee.

GARAY DELIVERED THE FAREWELL ADDRESS. HE SAID THE DELEGATES COULD RETURN HOME "SATISFIED AND PROUD" OF THE TASK DONE HERE "IN FAVOR OF PEACE AND THE SECURITY AND WELL-BEING OF OUR AMERICA."

GARAY ASSAILED INTERNATIONAL "GANGSTERISM."

"LET US REMEMBER," HE SAID, "THAT THE REIGN OF LAW AND ORDER IN THE MOST CIVILIZED CITIES DOES NOT PREVENT THE ABUSES OF APACHES, GANGSTERS NOR THE SINISTER MACHINATIONS OF THE MAFIA. THESE SPORADIC ACTS UNFORTUNATELY SOMETIMES TRANSCEND FROM THE NATIONAL FIELD TO THE INTERNATIONAL."

THE BRAZILIAN DELEGATE DEFINED THE AIM OF THE CONTINENTAL SAFETY ZONE, WHICH HE CALLED AN AMERICAN "TERRITORIAL SEA," HE SAID:

"IF IN EUROPE BLOCKADES, WAR ZONES OR DANGER ZONES ARE ARBITRARILY DEFINED, LET US FIX IN OUR SEA ZONES OF PEACE IN WHICH WE FIRMLY WILL NOT PERMIT METHODS OF DESTRUCTION, ARBITRARY ACTION AND DISTURBING DIFFICULTIES."

THIS COMMITTEE WILL MEET IN WASHINGTON TO MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS TO THE VARIOUS AMERICAN GOVERNMENTS.

DR LEO S.ROWE, DIRECTOR OF THE PAN AMERICAN UNION, SAID HE WOULD CONFER WITH SECRETARY OF STATE CORDELL HULL, CHAIRMAN OF THE UNION'S GOVERNING BOARD, REGARDING A CALL FOR A SPECIAL MEETING TO APPOINT SEVEN EXPERTS ON INTERNATIONAL LAW WHO WILL FORM A SPECIAL NEUTRALITY COMMITTEE FOR THE DURATION OF THE EUROPEAN WAR.

THE UNITED STATES DELEGATION ROUNDED OUT ITS ACTIVITIES HERE WITH A SPEECH BY UNDERSECRETARY OF STATE SUMNER WELLES, THE DELEGATION'S HEAD, HAILING THE FIRM UNION OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS.

"I BELIEVE THAT WHEN THE TIME COMES TO LOOK BACK THE DECLARATION OF PANAMA MAY BE CONSIDERED TO HAVE BEEN AN ADVANCE OF UNUSUAL IMPORTANCE," WELLES SAID IN HIS SPEECH WHICH WAS BROADCAST IN THE UNITED STATES AND RE-BROADCAST TO EUROPE AND CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICA.

OCT 4 19[illegible]

"IF WE ARE ABLE TO HAVE JOINT REPRESENTATION TO PERSUADE THE BELLIGERENTS TO COMPLY WITH ITS PROVISIONS, THE DECLARATION WILL HAVE MADE A THOROUGH CONTRIBUTION TOWARDS THE GOAL WE SO FERVENTLY DESIRE, NAMELY: THAT OUR 21 AMERICAN REPUBLICS SHALL REMAIN FREE FROM THE HORRORS OF WAR.

"THAT THE FOREIGN MINISTERS OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS WERE ABLE IN LITTLE MORE THAN A WEEK TO REACH UNANIMOUS AGREEMENT UPON SUBJECTS OF SUCH OUTSTANDING SIGNIKICANCE AS WERE DEALT WITH AT THIS MEETING, WAS DUE IN LARGE PART TO THE EXTRAORDINARY ATMOSPHERE OF FRIENDLINESS AND COOPERATION, THAT COURTEOUS CONSIDERATION WHICH MARKED EWCH AND EVERY ASPECT OF THE DELIBERATION."

IT WAS RECALLED THAT A SIMILAR ATTEMPT TO CONCLUDE A NEUTRALITY ACCORD AMONG THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS FAILED DURING THE WORLD WAR 24 YEARS AGO.

A SPECIAL INTER-AMERICAN COMMITTEE MET THEN BUT ITS EFFORTS WERE FOUND UNACCEPTABLE BY MANY OF THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENTS. A COSTAL PATROL, SIMILAR TO THE ONE ADOPTED HERE, WAS PROPOSED AT THAT TIME AND SET OFF A BITTER CAMPAIGN OF INVECTIVE AGAINST THE UNITED STATES.

THE UNITED STATES DELEGATION LEFT LATE TONIGHT FOR CRISTOBAL TO BOARD THE GRACE LINER SANTA ELENA, WHICH WILL TAKE WELLES AND HIS ADVISERS HOME.

PANAMA, OCT.3-(AP)-AN ENGLISH TRANSLATION OF THE OFFICIAL SPANISH TEXT OF THE INTER-AMERICAN CONFERENCE DECLARATION ON NEUTRALITY FOLLOWS: (1,000)

OCT 4 1939

THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS GATHERED IN PANAMA HAVE RATIFIED SOLEMNLY THEIR POSITION AS NEUTRALS IN THE CONFLICT WHICH SHATTERS THE PEACE OF EUROPE, BUT AS THE PRESENT WAR MAY TAKE UNEXPECTED DEVELOPMENTS THAT BY THEIR GRAVITY MAY AFFECT THE FUNDAMENTAL INTERESTS OF AMERICA NOTHING CAN JUSTIFY THAT THE INTERESTS OF BELLIGERENTS PREVAIL OVER THE RIGHTS OF NEUTRALS, CAUSING CONFUSION AND SUFFERING TO PEOPLES WHO BY THEIR NEUTRALITY IN THE STRUGGLE AND THEIR DISTANCE FROM THE ARENA OF DEVELOPMENTS SHOULD NOT SUPPORT ITS FATAL AND SORROWFUL CONSEQUENCES.

THE ATTITUDE ASSUMED BY AMERICAN REPUBLICS HAS SERVED TO DEMONSTRATE THEIR UNANIMOUS INTENTION TO MAINTAIN THEMSELVES APART FROM THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT.

IT IS DESIRABLE TO REINFORCE THEIR DECLARATIONS BY CONDUCT CONFORMING TO INTERNATIONAL LAW, AND THAT THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS PROPOSE TO CONTINUE IN ACCORD WITH INTERNAL LEGISLATION TO MAINTAIN THEIR POSITION AS NEUTRAL STATES AND FULFILL THE DUTIES OF NEUTRALITY, ALSO TO DEMAND RESPECTATION OF THEIR PROPER RIGHTS IN THIS SITUATION.

DURING THE WORLD WAR FROM 1914 TO 1918 THE GOVERNMENTS OF ARGENTINA, BRAZIL, CHILE, COLOMBIA, ECUADOR AND PERU PRESENTED, OR SUPPORTED, INDIVIDUAL PROPOSITIONS OUTLINING IN PRINCIPLE A DECLARATION OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS THAT BELLIGERENT NATIONS ABSTAIN FROM REALIZING HOSTILE ACTIVITIES A PRESCRIBED DISTANCE FROM THEIR COASTS.

THE CHARACTER OF THE PRESENT CONFLAGRATION, DESPITE ITS ALREADY LAMENTABLE PROPORTIONS, WOULD NOT JUSTIFY ANY HINDERING OF AMERICAN COMMUNICATIONS WHICH, DEVELOPED BY THE NEEDS OF IMPORTANT INTERESTS, CLAIM ADEQUATE PROTECTION. THIS REALITY COUNSELS THE DELIMITATION OF A SAFETY ZONE INCLUDING ALL NORMAL MARITIME ROUTES WHICH SERVE COMMUNICATION AND INTERCHANGE AMONG THE AMERICAN COUNTRIES.

FOR THIS, IT IS NECESSARY AS A FORMULA OF IMMEDIATE NECESSITY, TO ADOPT URGENT DISPOSITIONS BASED ON SUCH PRECEDENTS AND ON THE GUARANTEE OF THESE INTERESTS, WITH THE OBJECT OF AVOIDING REPETITION OF THE DAMAGES AND SUFFERINGS EXPERIENCED BY THE AMERICAN NATIONS AND THEIR CITIZENS DURING THE SAID WAR OF 1914-1918.

OCT 4 1939

THERE IS NO DOUBT THAT THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS SHOULD FORSEE THESE DANGERS AND AS A PROPER PROTECTIVE MEASURE INSIST ON THE PROPOSITION THAT IN THEIR WATERS AND TO A REASONABLE DISTANCE FROM THEIR COASTS, NO HOSTILE ACTS SHALL BE PERFORMED BY PARTICI-

PANTS IN THE WAR IN WHICH THE SAID GOVERNMENTS ARE TAKING NO PART.

FOR THESE CONSIDERATIONS THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS RESOLVE AND BY THESE PRESENTS DECLARE THAT:

1. AS A MEASURE OF CONTINENTAL PROTECTION THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS, AS LONG AS THEY MAINTAIN NEUTRALITY, HAVE THE INDISPUTABLE RIGHT TO PRESERVE FREE FROM ALL HOSTILE ACTS ON THE PART OF ANY NON-AMERICAN BELLIGERENT NATION, THOSE WATERS ADJACENT TO THE AMERICAN CONTINENT WHICH THEY CONSIDER OF PRIMORDIAL INTEREST AND OF DIRECT UTILITY FOR THEIR RELATIONS, WHETHER SUCH HOSTILE ACT SHALL BE ATTEMPTED OR REALIZED FROM LAND, SEA OR AIR.

2. THESE WATERS ARE DESCRIBED AND DETERMINED IN THE FOLLOWING MANNER; ALL WATERS WITHIN THE LIMITS SPECIFIED BELOW EXCEPT THE TERRITORIAL WATERS OF CANADA AND UNDISPUTED COLONIES AND POSSESSIONS OF EUROPEAN COUNTRIES WITHIN THESE LIMITS:

BEGINNING AT THE END OF THE FRONTIER BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA IN PASSAMAQUODDY BAY TO 44 DEGREES 46 MINUTES AND 36 SECONDS LATITUDE NORTH AND 66 DEGREES, 54 MINUTES AND 11 SECONDS LONGITUDE WEST;

FROM THERE EASTWARD ALONG THE PARALLEL 44 DEGREES, 46 MINUTES AND 36 SECONDS TO A POINT 60 DEGREES WEST OF GREENWICH;

FROM THERE DIRECTLY SOUTH TO A POINT 20 DEGREES LATITUDE NORTH; FROM THERE ALONG THE LOXODROMIC LINE TO A POINT FIVE DEGREES LATITUDE NORTH, 24 DEGREES LONGITUDE EAST;

FROM THERE DIRECTLY SOUTH TO A POINT 20 DEGREES SOUTH; FROM THERE ALONG THE LOXODROMIC LINE TO A POINT 58 DEGREES LATITUDE SOUTH AND 27 DEGREES LONGITUDE WEST;

FROM THERE DIRECTLY WESTWARD TO A POINT 80 DEGREES LONGITUDE WEST; FROM THERE ALONG THE LOXODROMIC LINE TO A POINT ON THE EQUATOR 97 DEGREES LONGITUDE WEST;

FROM THERE ALONG THE LOXODROMIC LINE TO A POINT 15 DEGREES LATITUDE NORTH AND 120 DEGREES LONGITUDE WEST; FROM THERE ALONG THE LOXODROMIC LINE TO A POINT 45 DEGREES, 29 MINUTES AND 38 SECONDS LATITUDE NORTH AND 136 DEGREES LONGITUDE WEST; FROM THERE DIRECTLY EAST TO A POINT IN THE PACIFIC ON THE FRONTIER BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA IN THE STRAITS OF SAN JUAN DE FUCCA.

THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS AGREE ON AN EFFORT TO OBTAIN FROM BELLIGERENTS OBSERVANCE OF THE DISPOSITIONS CONTAINED IN THIS DECLARATION BY JOINT REPRESENTATIONS TO THE GOVERNMENTS WHICH AT PRESENT OR IN THE FUTURE TAKE PART IN THE HOSTILITIES WITHOUT THIS PROCEDURE AFFECTING THE EXERCISE OF INDIVIDUAL RIGHTS OF EACH STATE INHERENT IN ITS SOVEREIGNTY.

3. THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS DECLARE FURTHER THAT WHEN THEY CONSIDER IT NECESSARY, THEY WILL CONSULT AMONG THEMSELVES TO DETERMINE WHAT MEASURES THEY MAY TAKE AS INDIVIDUALS OR COLLECTIVELY TO OBTAIN COMPLIANCE WITH THE DISPOSITIONS OF THIS DECLARATION.

THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS, WHILE A STATE OF WAR EXISTS IN WHICH THEY TAKE NO PART AND WHEN THEY CONSIDER IT NECESSARY, MAY EFFECT INDIVIDUAL OR COLLECTIVE PATROLS AS THEY AGREE BY MUTUAL CONSENT AND EXTEND THE ELEMENTS AND RESOURCES EACH POSSESS IN THE WATERS ADJACENT TO ITS COAST WITHIN THE ZONE ALREADY DEFINED.

LONDON, OCT. 3-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN DECLARED FLATLY TODAY AGAINST TREATING WITH GERMANY ON THE BASIS OF "MERE ASSURANCES" FROM THE NAZI REGIME BUT SAID HE WOULD WELCOME ANY PEACE PROPOSALS WHICH WOULD ACHIEVE BRITAIN'S ANNOUNCED WAR AIM OF ENDING "GERMAN AGGRESSION."

THIS WAS THE REPLY OF THE BRITISH-FRENCH ALLIES TO THE SOVIET-GERMAN DECLARATION LAST WEEK THAT BERLIN AND MOSCOW WOULD HOLD "CONSULTATIONS" IF BRITAIN AND FRANCE FAILED TO MAKE PEACE WITH GERMANY.

MAKING HIS FIFTH WEEKLY REPORT TO THE HOUSE OF COMMONS ON PROGRESS OF THE WAR, CHAMBERLAIN CALLED THE SOVIET-GERMAN DECLARATION A "SCARCELY VEILED THREAT."

THE DRAMATIC SESSION PITTED AGAINST CHAMBERLAIN WHITE-MANED DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, BRITAIN'S WORLD WAR PRIME MINISTER, IN AN EXCHANGE WHICH REVERSED THE ROLES THE TWO STATESMEN HAVE PLAYED IN RECENT YEARS.

THE FIERY WELSHMAN URGED "VERY CAREFUL CONSIDERATION" OF ANY "SPECIFIC, DETAILED AND BROAD" PROPOSALS WHICH MIGHT COME FROM GERMANY THROUGH SOVIET RUSSIA OR ITALY.

HIS POINT WAS THAT ABRUPT REJECTION MIGHT MAKE RUSSIA AND ITALY "HOSTILE NEUTRALS." HE ADDED THAT:

"WE KNOW AND THE UNITED STATES KNOWS THAT THEY CAN HELP US AS NEUTRALS.

"RUSSIA AND ITALY, WITHIN THE LIMITS OF NEUTRALITY, CAN MAKE ALL THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN BEING FRIENDLY AND HOSTILE NEUTRALS.

"WE DO NOT WANT TO DOUBLE OUR ENEMIES."

LLOYD GEORGE SAID IT WOULD BE A "FIRST CLASS MISTAKE" TO ENTER A PEACE CONFERENCE WITHOUT ASKING THE UNITED STATES, RUSSIA AND ITALY TO PARTICIPATE, IF A PEACE PARLEY IS SUGGESTED.

CHAMBERLAIN REPLIED THAT NO PEACE PROPOSAL "HAS YET COME TO US, AND AT THIS STAGE IT WOULD BE PREMATURE TO BUILD ANY HOPES ON THE LIKELIHOOD OF SUCH A PROPOSAL BEING MADE."

HE ADDED, HOWEVER, THAT "NO MAN WOULD WELCOME MORE WHOLE-HEARTEDLY ANY PROPOSAL WHICH I COULD REALLY FEEL ACHIEVED THE AIMS" OF BRITAIN IN GOING TO WAR.

HE SAID THAT PEACE PROPOSALS WILL BE EXAMINED AND TESTED IN THE LIGHT OF THESE TWO FACTORS:

FIRST, THAT THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT "TOO OFTEN IN THE PAST HAS PROVED THAT THEIR UNDERTAKINGS ARE WORTHLESS WHEN IT SUITS THEM THAT THEY SHOULD BE BROKEN."

SECOND, THAT "NO THREATS WOULD EVER INDUCE THIS COUNTRY AND FRANCE TO ABANDON THE PURPOSE FOR WHICH WE HAVE ENTERED UPON THIS STRUGGLE."

SPEAKING WITH UNUSUAL VIGOR AND EMPHASIS THE PRIME MINISTER FREQUENTLY WAS INTERRUPTED BY APPROVING CRIES OF "HEAR! HEAR!" BY THE HOUSE.

OCT 4 1939

THE SOVIET-GERMAN DECLARATION, WHICH ACCOMPANIED THE PARTITION OF POLAND, CONTAINED "NOTHING X X X THAT SHOULD CAUSE US TO DO ANYTHING OTHER THAN WHAT WE ARE DOING," CHAMBERLAIN DECLARED, SAYING THAT COURSE WAS "MOBILIZING ALL THE RESOURCES AND ALL THE MIGHT OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE FOR THE EFFECTIVE PROSECUTION OF THE WAR."

WHILE SOVIET AMBASSADOR IVAN MAISKY LISTENED FROM THE DIPLOMATIC GALLERY, THE PRIME MINISTER ASSERTED THE GERMAN-SOVIET AGREEMENT BY NO MEANS ASSURED GERMANY OF LASTING BENEFITS.

THOUGH EXPRESSING HOPE THE WAR WOULD NOT LAST "ONE UNNECESSARY DAY," HE SAID THE BRITISH AND FRENCH PEOPLE WERE "DETERMINED TO SECURE THAT THE RULE OF VIOLENCE SHALL CEASE AND THAT THE WORD OF GOVERNMENTS--ONCE PLEDGED--MUST HENCEFORTH BE KEPT."

THE VERBAL DUEL BETWEEN CHAMBERLAIN AND LLOYD GEORGE CAST THEM IN ROLES REVERSING THE POSITIONS THEY HAVE TAKEN IN OTHER SESSIONS.

IN THE MONTHS THAT LED TO THE MUNICH SETTLEMENT IT WAS CHAMBERLAIN WHO SOUGHT "APPEASEMENT OF THE ROME-BERLIN AXIS AND LLOYD GEORGE WHO POURED VENOM ON HITLER AND PREMIER MUSSOLINI.

TODAY IT WAS CHAMBERLAIN WHO SCORNED HITLER'S "MERE ASSURANCES" AND LLOYD GEORGE WHO URGED "CAREFUL CONSIDERATION" FOR ANY PEACE PROPOSALS FROM ITALY OR RUSSIA.

LLOYD GEORGE'S SPEECH BROUGHT AN IMMEDIATE PROTEST FROM ALFRED DUFF COOPER, FORMER FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY, WHO DEPLORED THAT IT WOULD GO OUT OVER THE WORLD AS A "SUGGESTION OF SURRENDER."

"I ALMOST DESPAIR TO THINK WHAT THE EFFECT WILL BE IN GERMANY," ADDED SIR MORRIS JONES, LIBERAL SUPPORTER OF THE GOVERNMENT.

LLOYD GEORGE ANGRILY RETORTED THAT "THIS IS THE FIRST TIME I HAVE BEEN CHARGED WITH SURRENDER AND MR. DUFF COOPER MAY LIVE TO REGRET IT."

OCT 4 1939

AN INDEPENDENT LABORITE, GEORGE BUCHANAN, TOOK A DIFFERENT TACK, PRAISING LLOYD GEORGE'S "COURAGE" AND SAYING THAT HE "NEVER SAW IN 1914 ANYTHING LIKE THE HOSTILITY FOR THE WAR THAT I FIND TODAY."

PROTESTING CRIES OF "NO! NO!" ALMOST DROWNED HIS WORDS.

ANOTHER LABORITE, THE REV.JAMES BARR, DECLARED MILLIONS OF LIVES WOULD BE LOST IF THE CONFLICT IS FOUGHT TO THE BITTER END AND ADDED:

"SOME OF MY FRIENDS ALMOST SEEM TO SAY NOT 'PEACE AT ANY PRICE' BUT 'WAR AT ANY PRICE.'"

SAYING THAT THOUSANDS WOULD LIKE TO KNOW "EXACTLY WHAT WE ARE TO FIGHT FOR," CONSERVATIVE SIR CHARLES GAYZER PRAISED LLOYD GEORGE'S SPEECH AS "GALLANT AND COURAGEOUS."

SIR CHARLES DECLARED HITLER ALREADY HAD LOST BY MAKING SOVIET RUSSIA "THE DOMINANT POWER IN EUROPE." HE APPEALED TO CHAMBERLAIN, "THE GREAT PEACEMAKER, EVEN AT THIS LAST MOMENT TO ENDEAVOR TO OBTAIN FOR EUROPE THAT PEACE WHICH ALONE CAN SAVE CIVILIZATION."

CHAMBERLAIN SUBORDINATED MILITARY TO POLITICAL DEVELOPMENTS IN HIS WEEKLY REPORT, BUT HE SAID, NEVERTHELESS, THAT BRITISH FORCES WERE NOT IDLE ON LAND, SEA OR IN THE AIR.

HE CITED THESE AS DEVELOPMENTS:

A LARGE BRITISH ARMY HAS BEEN TRANSPORTED TO FRANCE AND "IS TAKING ITS PLACE ALONGSIDE OUR FRENCH ALLIES."

OCT 4 1939

THE AIRFORCE HAS BEEN ACTIVE IN RECONNAISANCE FLIGHTS OVER GERMANY AND IN ACTUAL COMBAT WITH GERMAN FIGHTERS ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

WAR AGAINST THE SUBMARINE "HAS CONTINUED WITH UNABATED VIGOR." THOUGH A GERMAN RAIDER IS REPORTED IN OPERATION ON THE SOUTH ATLANTIC "THIS FRESH MENACE WILL BE DEALT WITH ACCORDING TO PREARRANGED PLANS."

CHAMBERLAIN ALSO ANNOUNCED A REORGANIZATION OF THE MUCH-CRITICIZED MINISTRY OF INFORMATION BY WHICH DIRECT PRESS CONTACTS WILL BE RE-ESTABLISHED WITH GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS.

BEFORE THE PRIME MINISTER SPOKE A TURKISH MILITARY MISSION ARRIVED TO DISCUSS "MATTERS OF COMMON INTEREST."

OCT 4 1939

AT THE SAME TIME THE LONDON PRESS GAVE ATTENTION TO ITALY WHOSE

30.24- 3831

FOREIGN MINISTER WAS REPORTING TO PREMIER MUSSOLINI ON HIS VISIT WITH HITLER WHICH BRITISH CONSIDERED AS A PRELIMINARY TO A GERMAN "PEACE OFFENSIVE."

DANIEL LIPSON, INDEPENDENT CONSERVATIVE, SAID THERE WAS "NOT ALL THE DIFFERENCE THAT SOME MEMBERS HAVE TRIED TO MAKE OUT" BETWEEN LLOYD GEORGE AND CHAMBERLAIN, BUT THAT THE CLEAVAGE OF OPINIOC IN THE PEACE PLAN DEBATE REFLECTED A SIMILAR CLEAVAGE IN THE COUNTRY.

"I AM WONDERING WHAT ARGUMENT MIGHT BE USED BY THE ISOLATIONISTS IN AMERICA JUST NOW DURING CONSIDERATION OF THE NEUTRALITY ACT IF WE WERE SUMMARILY TO REJECT ANY PROPOSALS FROM THE OTHER SIDE," HE SAID.

"IT MIGHT BE SAID (IN AMERICA) THAT TO REPEAL THE NEUTRALITY ACT WOULD BE HELPING IN CONTINUANCE OF THE WAR AND THAT WE HAD PUT OURSELVES DEFINITELY IN THE WRONG BY REFUSING TO DISCUSS TERMS."

LABORITE JOHN TINKER SAID HE WANTED THE GOVERNMENT TO PROSECUTE THE WAR UNTIL BRITAIN IS ABLE TO GET "BETTER TERMS [illegible] WE WERE LIKELY TO DO AT PRESENT."

LABORITE SAMUEL SILVERMAN SAID THAT "ALTHOUGH THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY HAD NO ENTHUSIASM FOR THIS WAR OR ANY WAR" IT IS ALSO TRUE T

THAT THEY WERE AGAINST ENDING IT IN SUCH WAY THAT THE NATION AGAIN WILL BE "CONTINUALLY STUMBLING ALONG FROM ONE CRISIS TO ANOTHER."

HE DECLARED IT WOULD BE FOLLY TO CAST ASIDE UNEXAMINED ANY PEACE TERMS BUT ADDED THAT BRITAIN SHOULD MAKE KNOWN HER OWN PROPOSALS "SHOWING WHAT KIND OF A WORLD AND EUROPE WE WANTED."

SECOND NIGHT LEAD NEUTRALITY

BY MAX BOYD

(ADVANCE)--WASHINGTON, OCT. 3-(AP)-SENATOR GEORGE NORRIS (IND-NEB), WHO VOTED AGAINST UNITED STATES ENTRY INTO THE WORLD WAR, URGED REPEAL OF THE ARMS EMBARGO TONIGHT, ASSERTING THAT ENGLAND AND FRANCE WERE FIGHTING "THE BATTLE OF HUMANITY AND CIVILIZATION" AGAINST "RUTHLESS AND MURDEROUS" FOES.

SPEAKING TO A RADIO AUDIENCE WHILE THE SENATE'S YOUNGEST MEMBER, RUSH D.HOLT (D-W VA), WAS ADVOCATING OVER ANOTHER NETWORK THAT THE EMBARGO BE RETAINED, THE ELDERLY NORRIS SAID THE GUIDING THEORY OF ADOLF HITLER AND "OTHER DICTATORS" WOULD MEAN THE END OF EXISTING CIVILIZATION IF CARRIED TO ITS LOGICAL CONCLUSION.

NORRIS SAID IT HAD BEEN ARGUED THAT THE ADMINISTRATION-SUPPORTED BILL TOIREPEAL THE ARMS BAN AND FORBID AMERICAN SHIPS TO CARRY ANY GOODS TO THE BELLIGERENTS WOULD FAVOR ENGLAND AND FRANCE, BECAUSE THEY WOULD CONTROL THE SEAS AND PREVENT GERMANY FROM MAKING ANY PURCHASES IN THIS COUNTRY.

"BUT IT IS EQUALLY TRUE," HE CONTENDED, "THAT IF WE FAIL TO TAKE THE COURSE I HAVE OUTLINED, AND THE PRESENT EMBARGO LAW IS KEPT INTACT, SUCH ACTION WILL BE FAVORABLE TO HITLER AND OTHER DICTATORS."

IT WAS FORTUNATE, NORRIS ADDED, THAT "IN FOLLOWING OUR LEGAL RIGHTS AS UNIVERSALLY RECOGNIZED, WE ARE ABLE TO ENACT A LAW WHICH WILL MORE LIKELY KEEP US OUT OF THE WAR AND AT THE SAME TIME PUTS US ON THE SIDE OF HUMANITY AND CIVILIZATION."

HOLT, WHOSE FAMILY WAS ON NORRIS' SIDE IN THE CONTROVERSY OVER

AMERICA'S ENTRANCE INTO THE WORLD WAR (HE RELATES THAT HIS HOME WAS STONED AND HIS MOTHER INJURED BECAUSE HIS FATHER OPPOSED THE COUNTRY'S GOING INTO THE CONFLICT), CONTENDED THAT A "CASH AND CARRY" SYSTEM OF GENERAL TRADE WITH EUROPE'S WARRING NATIONS COULD BE ESTABLISHED BY CONGRESS WITHOUT REPEAL OF THE ARMS EMBARGO. IF THE BAN ON ARMS SALES WERE LIFTED, HE PREDICTED, AMERICAN MONEY AND TROOPS WOULD FOLLOW AMERICAN ARMS INTO THE WAR.

HOLT ARGUED THAT THIS COUNTRY WANTED NO "BLOOD STAINED DOLLARS" FROM ARMS' SALES TO EUROPE'S WARRING NATIONS.

"I CANNOT SUBSCRIBE TO THE THEORY THAT THE POWERS OF EUROPE ARE FIGHTING OUR WAR," THE WEST VIRGINIAN SAID. "TO THE CONTRARY, THEY DESIRE US TO FIGHT THEIR WAR. WE HAVE ENOUGH TO DO HERE. WE HAVE A TASK UNCOMPLETED HERE IN AMERICA, PUTTING THOSE MEN TO WORK WHO LOST THEIR JOBS THROUGH THE EFFECTS OF THE LAST WAR."

HE ADDED THE BELIEF THAT THE COUNTRY WAS NOT "SO DESTITUTE" IN LEADERSHIP THAT IT COULD NOT FIND A WAY OUT OF DEPRESSION EXCEPT THROUGH WAR TRADE.

OCT 4

HOLT'S POSITION THAT A "CASH AND CARRY" SYSTEM COULD BE ESTABLISHED WITHOUT REPEAL OF THE ARMS EMBARGO HAS BEEN TAKEN BY AN INCREASING NUMBER OF EMBARGO SUPPORTERS.

BEFORE HE BEGAN HIS ADDRESS, HOLT TOLD REPORTERS HE HAD HEARD THAT A BILL TO ACCOMPLISH THIS WOULD BE INTRODUCED AS A SUBSTITUTE FOR THE PENDING NEUTRALITY REVISION MEASURE. SOME SENATORS PRIVATELY SUGGESTED OTHER STRATEGY TO ACCOMPLISH THE SAME THING.

THE MOMENTOUS CONTROVERSY WENT ON OVER THE AIR TONIGHT AFTER THE DEATH OF SENATOR LOGAN OF KENTUCKY HAD BROUGHT A DAY'S ARMISTICE IN THE DISCUSSION ON THE SENATE FLOOR.

THE ADMINISTRATION LOST ETC, PICKING UP SEVENTH GRAF FIRST NIGHT LEAD.

THE ADMINISTRATION LOST A SUPPORTER ON THE EMBARGO ISSUE IN THE SUDDEN DEATH OF SENATOR LOGAN, BUT IT APPEARED LIKELY TO RECOVER THIS GROUND QUICKLY. THERE WAS GENERAL EXPECTATION IN THE CAPITAL THAT GOVERNOR A.B.CHANDLER OF KENTUCKY WOULD RESIGN THE GOVERNORSHIP IN FAVOR OF LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR KEEN JOHNSON, AND HIMSELF BE APPOINTED TO SUCCEED SENATOR LOGAN. IN A RECENT INTERVIEW, GRANTED AFTER HE HAD READ PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S APPEAL TO CONGRESS FOR REPEAL OF THE ARMS EMBARGO, CHANDLER SAID HE BELIEVED THE PRESIDENT WAS RIGHT.

THE SENATE MET AT NOON TODAY TO RESUME THE DEBATE WHICH BEGAN YESTERDAY AND WHICH IS EXPECTED BY MANY SENATORS TO CONTINUE SEVERAL WEEKS. SENATOR CONNALLY (D-TEXAS), A VETERAN OF THE SPANISH AMERICAN AND WORLD WARS, HAD BEEN SCHEDULED TO CARRY ON THE ARGUMENT FOR REPEAL OF THE EMBARGO.

BUT CONNALLY KEPT HIS SEAT. INSTEAD, DEMOCRATIC LEADER BARKLEY ROSE TO VOICE HIS SORROW AT THE DEATH OF HIS FELLOW KENTUCKIAN AND TO MOVE THAT THE CHAMBER ADJOURN UNTIL TOMORROW OUT OF RESPECT.

OCT 4

ALTHOUGH DEBATE ON THE SENATE FLOOR WAS THUS HALTED UNTIL TOMORROW WHEN SENATORS CONNALLY AND VANDENBERG (R-MICH) WILL OPPOSE ONE ANOTHER, THE DISCUSSION WENT ON ELSEWHERE IN THE CAPITAL.

SIX DEMOCRATIC MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES WENT TO THE WHITE HOUSE AND TOLD MR.ROOSEVELT THAT REPEAL OF THE ARMS EMBARGO SHOULD BE ACCOMPANIED OR FOLLOWED BY THE IMPOSITION OF A TAX ON "EXCESS PROFITS" DERIVED FROM ARMS AND MUNITIONS.

REP.VOORHIS (D-CALIF) TOLD REPORTERS AFTERWARD THAT A CONSIDERABLE NUMBER OF MEMBERS WOULD HAVE LESS HESITATION IN VOTING TO REPEAL THE EMBARGO IF A TAX WERE APPLIED TO THE COMPANIES WHICH WOULD BENEFIT. ASKED WHAT THE PRESIDENT'S REACTIONS WERE, REP.GEYER (D-CALIF), REPLIED:

"WE WERE NOT DISCOURAGED, ANYWAY."

LATER MR.ROOSEVELT SAID THAT WHILE HE FAVORED PREVENTION OF ABNORMAL WAR PROFITS, HE SAW NO NECESSITY TO DO ANYTHING AT PRESENT EXCEPT STUDY THE MATTER. SO FAR AS HE COULD SEE, HE ADDED, NOBODY HAD MADE EXCESS PROFITS OUT OF THE WAR.

SENATOR MCNARY OF OREGON, THE REPUBLICAN LEADER, ANNOUNCED THAT A STRENUOUS EFFORT WOULD BE MADE TO AMEND THE PENDING NEUTRALITY REVISION BILL SO THAT SALES OF MATERIALS TO BELLIGERENTS COULD BE MADE ONLY ON A STRICT "CASH AND CARRY" BASIS.

HE EXPRESSED THE OPINION THERE WAS "QUITE A BIT OF SENTIMENT" IN THE SENATE AGAINST THE BILL'S PROVISION THAT THE PRESIDENT MAY PERMIT AMERICAN SELLERS TO EXTEND ORDINARY COMMERCIAL CREDITS OF 90 DAYS TO BELLIGERENT PURCHASERS.

OCT 4 1939

CHAIRMAN PITTMAN (D-NEV) OF THE SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE SAID ADMINISTRATION LEADERS HAD NO PRESENT PLANS TO ALTER THE MEASURE TO MEET THE CRITICISM VOICED BY MCNARY.

HOLT, A FREQUENT CRITIC OF ADMINISTRATION MEASURES, TOUCHED UPON THE 90-DAY CREDIT PROVISION IN HIS RADIO SPEECH TONIGHT.

"THAT ISN'T CASH," HE DECLARED. "IF YOU THINK IT IS, GO TO A CASH GROCERY STORE AND TRY OUT YOUR THEORY."

THE 34-YEAR-OLD WEST VIRGINIAN ADDED:

"THE NEUTRALITY ACT CAN BE AMENDED TO PROHIBIT AMERICAN SHIPS AND CITIZENS FROM ENTERING COMBAT ZONES WITHOUT REPEALING THE ARMS EMBARGO. A CASH AND CARRY PROVISION FOR NON-CONTRABAND GOODS CAN BE PUT IN THE BILL WITHOUT REPEALING THE ARMS EMBARGO. WE CAN PLACE ANY SAFEGUARD WE DESIRE WITHOUT TOUCHING THE ARMS EMBARGO."

HOLT CALLED UPON ADVOCATES OF REPEAL TO BE "FRANK ENOUGH" TO ADMIT THAT THE PURPOSE WAS NOT FOR NEUTRALITY BUT FOR ASSISTANCE TO ENGLAND AND FRANCE.

HE SAID HE DESPISED DICTATORSHIPS AS MUCH AS ANYONE, BUT THAT "OUR PARTICIPATION IN THAT WAR WILL NOT STOP HITLER."

"AS A YOUNGSTER, I RECALL HOW WE WERE TOLD WE MUST GO TO EUROPE TO STOP THE KAISER. WE DID. THE KAISER WAS REPLACED. WE NOW HAVE HITLER. X X X

"WE WERE ONCE INVITED TO BE SIR GALAHAD TO RIDE FORTH TO SAVE THE WORLD. WE RODE FORTH BUT WE DID NOT SAVE THE WORLD."

OCT 4 1939

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT REITERATED AT HIS PRESS CONFERENCE TODAY THAT HE WAS NOT ASKING CONGRESS FOR ANY OTHER LEGISLATION UNTIL THE NEUTRALITY ACT WAS REVISED. HE DID NOT USE THE WORD "IF" IN REFERRING TO REVISION, RECALLING THAT HE HAD DELETED A SIMILAR EXPRESSION FROM HIS MESSAGE TO CONGRESS ON ITS OPENING DAY.

HE PARRIED A QUESTION WHETHER A PHRASE IN THAT MESSAGE IN WHICH HE SPOKE OF PURCHASES FOR CASH INCLUDED THE IDEA OF EXTENDING 90-DAY CREDIT TO BELLIGERENT PURCHASERS.

WHEN THE SHIP WAS 300 MILES OFF CAPE CLEAR AT THE SOUTH OF IRELAND A U-BOAT BROKE THE SURFACE, BOYD IS QUOTED AS SAYING, AND THE COMMANDER SIGNALED IN MORSE CODE BY BLINKER LIGHT: "[illegible]EASE FOLLOW ME."

THEN, THE COMMANDER SENT ANOTHER MESSAGE: "I HAVE JUST SUNK A SHIP AND I WANT YOU TO PICK UP TWO LIFEBOATS."

"AN HOUR LATER," THE PAPER QUOTES BOYD, "GUIDED BY THE SUBMARINE, THE FREIGHTER PICKED UP 42 MEMBERS OF THE CREW OF THE INFLUENCE, A BRITISH TANKER WHICH HAD BEEN CARRYING SIX MILLION GALLONS OF FUEL ON ITS FIRST VOYAGE IN THE ANGLO-ARABIAN OIL TRADE. THE CREW HAD BEEN IN LIFEBOATS FOR FOUR HOURS.

"THE U-BOAT STOOD BY, TWO BOAT LENGTHS AWAY, UNTIL TTE LAST MAN IN THE LIFEBOATS HAD BEEN TAKEN ABOARD OUR SHIP. THEN THE GERMAN GAVE THREE 'HEIL HITLERS!'. WE GAVE THREE CHEERS. THE NEXT MOMENT THE SUBMARINE VANISHED."

THE IDA BAKKE LANDED THE BRITISH TANKER'S CREW AT KINSDALE, IRELAND, NEAR CAPE CLEAR, ON SEPT. 15. THEN THE FREIGHTER RESUMED ITS VOYAGE WEST.

"TOWARD EVENING," BOYD IS QUOTED AGAIN, "WE WERE IN THE SAME SPOT WHERE WE HAD PICKED UP THE LIFEBOATS. WE RECEIVED A RADIO MESSAGE FROM THE SAME SUBMARINE, INSTRUCTING US TO PROCEED 75 MILES DUE WEST. WE DID AND FOUND THE WRECKAGE OF THE ANGLO-AMERICAN TANKER, CHEYENNE, CARRYING EIGHT MILLION GALLONS OF GASOLINE.

M "THE CREW OF 38 WAS IN TWO LIFEBOATS, WHICH WERE LEAKING BADLY. WE TOOK THEM ABOARD. CAPT.KERR, WHO COMMANDED THE CHEYENNE, SAID THE SUBMARINE COMMANDER TOLD HIM XXX AFTER THE N SHIP WAS TORPEDOED: 'I'LL COME BACK IN AN HOUR OR TWO. I'LL TRY TO FIND A VESSEL TO PICK YOU UP. IF I CAN'T, I'LL TOW YOU TO IRELAND, BUT BEFORE THEN I'LL GIVE YOU A CUP OF TEA ON MY DECK.'

"THE SUBMARINE RETURNED TO THE WRECKAGE OF THE CHEYENNE AND A BRITISH DESTROYER ARRIVED AT THE SCENE. THEY OPENED FIRE ON EACH OTHER. NO DAMAGE WAS DONE AND SOON THE SUB SUBMERGED.

"WE STARTED BACK FOR KINSDALE WITH T HE SURVIVORS. AT 11 P.M., ALTHOUGH THE DESTROYER WAS IN THE VICINITY, THE SUBMARINE CAME TO THE SURFACE AND ITS CAPTAIN ASKED OUR SKIPPER WHAT HAD BEEN DONE WITH THE CREW OF THE TANKER INFLUENCE AND THEN THE SUBMARINE DISAPPEARED AGAIN."

THE IDA BAKKE PAUSED AT HAVANA A WEEK AGO TODAY. BOYD TOOK ANOTHER BOAT TO NEW ORLEANS AND CAME HERE BY TRAIN.

(ADVANCE)-BOSTON,OCT 3-(AP)-CONVICTION THAT FOUR BILLION UNITED STATES DOLLARS INVESTED IN CANADA WERE "SAFE" WITH THAT COUNTRY AT WAR, AND THAT ORDINARY TRADE BETWEEN "THOSE TWO GOOD BUSINESS NEIGHBORS" SHOULD NOT ONLY CONTINUE, BUT INCREASE, WAS EXPRESSED TODAY BY H.NAPIER MOORE, EDITOR OF MACLEAN'S MAGAZINE, TORONTO.

HE TOLD THE 11TH BOSTON CONFERENCE ON DISTRIBUTION--A SESSION BRINGING TOGETHER NATIONALLY-KNOWN AUTHORITIES ON TRADE, BUSINESS AND ECONOMICS--THAT HIS CONVICTIONS WERE BASED ON THE DECISION, ALREADY MADE, AS TO HOW CANADA'S WAR EFFORT IS TO BE FINANCED--A DETERMINATION TO FOLLOW, "TO THE FULLEST DEGREE POSSIBLE, A PAY-AS-WE-GO POLICY."

ASSERTING THAT THIS NATION'S ECONOMIC SYSTEM WAS BASED UPON A VOLUNTARY EXCHANGE OF GOODS UNDER A PLAN GIVING FREE PLAY TO VISION, INITIATIVE, ENTERPRISE AND RESOURCEFULNESS, HE SAID, IN A PREPARED ADDRESS, THAT:

FIRST LEAD THE WAR TODAY

BRITISH PREMIER CHAMBERLAIN ANSWERED HITLER'S PEACE GESTURES TODAY WITH A DECLARATION TO THE EFFECT THAT ENGLAND WANTS AN END TO WAR BUT WON'T ACCEPT A HITLERIAN PEACE.

HE DID NOT REJECT OUT-REITERATED ANGLO-FRENCH ASSERTION THAT THEY ARE OUT TO CRUSH HITLERISM.

ONE COULDN'T ESCAPE THE FEELING, HOWEVER, THAT THE PREMIER WAS INVITING SOMEBODY TO PROPOSE A PEACE WHICH WOULD BE FREE OF THE HITLERISM WHICH HAS BECOME THE OBJECTIVE OF THE ALLIED DRIVE.

THE EQUALLY SEDATE NOTE OF CONSONE WHICH HE WAS ADDRESSING CHEERED WHEN HE ASSERTED THAT THE ALLIES WOULDN'T YIELD TO A "SCARCELY VEILED THREAT" OF SOVIET-GERMAN COLLABORATION.

HE SAID BLUNTLY THAT "NO MERE ASSURANCES" FROM THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT WOULD BE ACCEPTED BECAUSE THAT GOVERNMENT "TOO OFTEN IN THE PAST HAVE PROVED THEIR UNDERTAKINGS ARE WORTHLESS WHEN IT SUITS THEM THAT THEY SHOULD BE BROKEN."

"IF THEREFORE PROPOSALS ARE MADE," ADDED CHAMBERLAIN, "WE SHALL CERTAINLY EXAMINE THEM IN THE LIGHT OF WHAT I HAVE JUST SAID."

THE ANXIETY OF MOST COUNTRIES FOR PEACE WAS PERHAPS VOICED BY DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, WORLD WAR PRIME MINISTER. WHILE DECLINING TO PLACE RELIANCE ON HITLER'S WORD, THE "LITTLE WELSH NAPOLEON" SAID:

"IT IS CLEAR THAT SOMEBODY IS GOING TO SUBMIT DETAILED TERMS FOR THE CONSIDERATION OF THIS GOVERNMENT. I THINK IT IS IMPORTANT THAT WE SHOULD NOT COME TO A TOO HURRIED CONCLUSION."

COINCIDENT WITH CHAMBERLAIN'S STATEMENT THE HAVAS NEWS AGENCY REPORTED FROM PARIS THAT ON THE BASIS OF INFORMATION RECEIVED "WE MUST NOT EXCLUDE THE POSSIBILITY OF A (GERMAN) PEACE OFFER WHICH MIGHT CARRY APPEARANCES OF ACCEPTABILITY." THE AGENCY ADDED:

JULLIPES

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

HERR HITLER HAS CONTINUED TO PUSH HIS PEACE OFFENSIVE VIGOROUSLY, DESPITE ANGLO-FRENCH REBUFFS, WITH THE RAPID APPROACH OF THE FINAL SHOWDOWN AS TO WHETHER THERE SHALL BE AN END TO THE CONFLICT OR WAR TO THE BLOODY END.

THE GERMAN FORCES ON THE WESTERN FRONT HAVE REMAINED ON THE DEFENSIVE, REFUSING TO ATTACK UNLESS FORCED TO IT, AWAITING THE OUTCOME OF THE PEACE OVERTURES.

YESTERDAY BERLIN'S TONE SOFTENED SUFFICIENTLY FOR GOVERNMENT CIRCLES TO INSIST THAT THE REICH HAS NO DESIRE TO "GERMANIZE" PEOPLE NOT OF GERMAN ORIGIN. THIS ASSERTION CAUSED OBSERVERS TO BELIEVE THE NAZIS MIGHT BE WILLING TO CONCEDE SOME FORM OF CULTURAL AUTONOMY TO THE POLES.

OCT 4

THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT THAT HERR HITLER VASTLY PREFERS PEACE--CHIEFLY ON HIS OWN TERMS--THOUGH THERE CAN BE NO DOUBT THAT HE DOESN'T INTEND TO BEND THE KNEE MUCH TO GET IT.

OBSERVERS INCLINE TO THE BELIEF THAT THE NAZI CHIEFTAIN ISN'T TOO HAPPY WITH THE WAY AFFAIRS HAVE BEEN DEVELOPING.

HIS NEW BUNK-MATE, SOVIET LEADER STALIN, PULLS THE BLANKET OFF HIM.

CERTAINLY THE ADROIT MANNER IN WHICH STALIN TOOK OVER THREE-FIFTHS OF POLAND, AND IS REACHING FOR CONTROL OF EASTERN EUROPE, IS NO OCCASION FOR JOYOUS LAUGHTER IN THE HOUSE OF NAZIDOM.

THERE ALSO IS MUCH SPECULATION AMONG DIPLOMATS AS TO WHETHER ITALY IS GIVING GERMANY AS MUCH SUPPORT AS THE NAZIS REQUIRE FOR A LONG TERM WAR. THE OUTCOME OF ITALIAN FOREIGN MINISTER CIANO'S VISIT TO HERR HITLER IN BERLIN IS AWAITED WITH DEEPEST INTEREST IN ALL CAPITALS.

IT IS DIFFICULT TO SEE HOW ANY PEACE PROPOSALS COMING FROM THE NAZI GOVERNMENT COULD SUCCEED IN VIEW OF THE CATEGORICAL DECLARATIONS OF THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES THAT THEY WON'T QUIT UNTIL THEY HAVE CRUSHED HITLERISM.

BARRING MIRACLES THE WAR MUST CONTINUE. THAT BEING THE CASE ONE WOULD EXPECT THE COMPARATIVELY PASSIVE WARFARE WHICH THUS FAR HAS EXISTED BETWEEN HITLER AND THE ALLIES TO ENTER A MUCH MORE ACTIVE STATE IN THE NEAR FUTURE. AS BRITAIN'S FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY, THE FAMOUS WINSTON CHURCHILL, SAID IN A BROADCAST SUNDAY NIGHT:

"WE HAVE NOT YET COME AT ALL TO THE SEVERITY OF FIGHTING WHICH IS TO BE EXPECTED."

THIS IS TRUE IF FOR NO OTHER REASON THAN THAT HERR HITLER CANNOT AFFORD TO SIT DOWN BEHIND HIS WESTWALL--EVEN THOUGH IT BE VIRTUALLY IMPREGNABLE--AND PLAY A PURELY DEFENSIVE GAME.

THAT WOULD BE TO SUBMIT TO POSSIBLE STRANGULATION OF THE REICH BY THE BRITISH NAVAL BLOCKADE. ALREADY ENGLISH NAVAL VESSELS HAVE SWEPT THE SEAS CLEAR OF GERMAN MERCHANT SHIPPING, ACCORDING TO LONDON.

HITLER MUST TAKE THE OFFENSIVE, ALTHOUGH IT BE A PRETTY THEORY THAT HE COULD DIG HIMSELF IN BEHIND HIS WESTWALL AND LET HIS ENEMIES BEAT THEIR HEADS AGAINST IT.

HIS OFFENSIVE, HOWEVER, NEEDN'T BE AN ASSAULT ON THE POWERFUL FRENCH MAGINOT LINE WITH HIS ARMY. CHURCHILL CALLED THE TURN ON ONE TYPE OF OFFENSIVE WHICH MIGHT MATERIALIZE WHEN HE REMARKED:

"IT MAY BE THAT GREAT ORDEALS MAY BE COMING TO US IN THIS ISLAND FROM THE AIR."

NAZIDOM HAS FOR WEEKS BEEN TALKING ABOUT ITS "INVINCIBLE WEAPON," THE AIR FLEET, AND WARNING THAT IT WILL BE USED IN ALL ITS FORCE IF THE BRITISH PURSUE THEIR NAVAL BLOCKADE WHICH, THE NAZIS SAY, IS CALCULATED TO STARVE WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

A104

THERE IS ANOTHER OFFENSIVE WEAPON WHICH THE NAZIS HAVE BEEN USING WITH CONSIDERABLE EFFECT AND HAVE THREATENED TO EMPLOY MORE INTENSIVELY--THE U-BOATS. THE DANGER OF UNRESTRICTED SUBMARINE WARFARE, SUCH AS GERMANY WAGED SO DEVASTATINGLY DURING THE WORLD WAR, HAS AGAIN ARISEN AS THE RESULT OF BRITAIN'S ARMING MERCHANT VESSELS.

BRITAIN IS BANKING MUCH ON SECURING VICTORY THROUGH THE ECONOMIC STRANGULATION OF GERMANY. THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES FIGURE THAT GERMANY, WHICH LACKS SUPPLIES FOR A LONG WAR, CANNOT OBTAIN SUFFICIENT FOODSTUFFS AND OTHER SINEWS OF WAR FROM EASTERN EUROPE OR EVEN RUSSIA AND MUST COLLAPSE IN THE LONG RUN BECAUSE OF THE BLOCKADE.

THE FRENCH ARMIES WHICH HAVE OCCUPIED GERMAN TERRITORY ON THE WESTERN FRONT ARE BUSY DIGGING IN AS A PRECAUTION AGAINST A GERMAN DRIVE WITH THE FAILURE OF THE PEACE OFFENSIVE.

FRENCH AUTHORITIES ESTIMATE THAT THEY HOLD ABOUT 150 MILES OF GERMAN SOIL, CONTAINING SOME 65 VILLAGES. THIS IS CHIEFLY IN THE RICH SAAR REGION.

PREMIER BARS HITLER-DICTATED PEACE; SENATOR WANTS U.S. SHIPS KEPT HOME

Stands Loyally by Britain in Speech Following Chamberlain's.

INTENSIFIES ECONOMIC WAR

Cabinet Moves to Curtail Food and Credits for Germans— Peace Advocates Seized.

OCT 5 1939

PARIS, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Premier Daladier told the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies today that France intended to continue "the war that has been imposed on us."

Following Prime Minister Chamberlain's declaration in the House of Commons yesterday, M. Daladier let it be known that his Government would stand loyally with Great Britain against any dictated peace.

"France does not wish to live longer in the state of insecurity of these last years," the Premier told the committee in a three-hour session.

"She refuses to bow to violence and accomplished facts. She wishes not a truce between two aggressions but durable peace guaranteeing absolutely her national security within a system of security for all nations."

Presses Economic Moves.

Meanwhile the French Cabinet intensified the economic war against Germany with a decision to attempt to block both food supplies and economic credits destined for the Reich.

A communique issued after the Cabinet meeting in the Elysee Palace under President Lebrun said that the new Minister of Blockade is "allowed to take measures to restrict the arrival in Germany of foodstuffs" and to "hinder arrival of economic credits."

He is also "specifically charged with the conduct of the economic war in collaboration with the Finance Ministry," the communique declared.

The position of Blockade Minister Georges Pernot, who was appointed on September 13, is closely aligned with that of his British counterpart, it was explained.

There was no indication whether any action was taken at the Cabinet session in regard to a possible German peace offer.

Blum Denounces Reference.

Neither was any reference made to those Communist members of the Chamber of Deputies, now under another party banner, who sent a letter to Edouard Herriot, President of the Chamber, backing the Russo-German peace overture and suggesting that Parliament be called into public session to discuss the peace question.

Forty-three of the seventy communist members of the Chamber signed the letter.

The Socialist leader, Leon Blum, called the letter "scandalous."

It brought quick attacks in the press, some newspapers declaring that it constituted proof of "intelligence with the enemy." The newspapers called for action against the new party.

Since the outlawing of the Communist party in France the communist Deputies have formed a new Chamber group which they call the French Peasants and Workers party. It was under this title that the forty-three sent the letter to M. Herriot.

Military Authorities Active.

OCT 5 1939

Any measure depriving the Communist members of the Chamber of their parliamentary privileges must be adopted by the Chamber itself. Mr. Daladier has been in touch with M. Herriot.

Earlier today the military authorities cracked down on persons whose names were signed to an appeal for "immediate peace," arresting two and starting an inquiry against twenty-nine others.

The appeal, in the form of a tract, had been circulated among members of Parliament.

The two men arrested were identified as writers, one named Lecoin and the other Jean Giono. The arrests were made under a decree of September 1 forbidding publication of anything "susceptible of exercising an unfortunate influence on the spirit of the army and the people."

[The French censor deleted from this dispatch the names of the twenty-nine persons against whom investigation was ordered.]

The French press interpreted Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech in the House of Commons yesterday as a "tremendous slap in the face" for Hitler. Emphasis was placed on Mr. Chamberlain's flat declaration against dealing with Germany on the basis of "mere assurances" from the Nazis.

The [illegible] press hailed Mr. Chamberlain's statement that "no threat can persuade our country or France to abandon the purpose for which we have entered the struggle."

This morning's war communique, No. 61, said: "Calm night. Artillery fire from both sides in the region south of Zweibruecken."

This afternoon's communique, No. 62, said:

"Patrols and ambushes on various points of the front.

"The enemy attempted a raid south of Pirmasens and was repulsed.

"One of our submarines captured and brought to port a German merchant ship."

FIGHT TO VICTORY, DALADIER ASSERTS

Declares Nation Does Not Wish To Live In Present State Of Insecurity

Links France With Great Britain In Conflict Against Nazi-Dictated Peace

OCT 5 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Paris, Oct. 4—France will fight on until victorious in the "war that has been imposed on us," Premier Edouard Daladier declared today in a reply to peace overtures from Germany and Russia.

"France does not wish to live longer in the state of insecurity of these last years," the Premier told the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies in a three-hour session.

Thus the French Government was aligned with the stand taken by British leaders concerning peace moves from the opposing camp. Daladier said his Government would stand loyally with Britain against any German-dictated peace.

"Refuses To Bow To Violence"

Daladier declared that France "refuses to bow to violence and accomplished facts. She wishes not a truce between two aggressions but a durable peace guaranteeing absolutely her national security within a system of security for all nations."

German talk of peace, the Premier told the committee, was a "trap" designed for internal propaganda purposes in the Reich.

No concrete proposal has been made to France, he asserted, but should one be made the French Government remained in entire accord with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who declared against a dictated peace.

Tribute To Duce

Answering questions in the long session, Daladier paid particular credit to Premier Mussolini for the Italian's "efforts up to the last minute" to prevent the outbreak of war.

He said France and Great Britain had tried in every way to solve their differences with Germany short of war, adding that Hitler "provoked the war and must shoulder the entire responsibility."

It was announced that Daladier also referred to the United States' efforts to change the neutrality law, but what he said in this connection was not made public.

The semi-official Havas News Agency said, "it goes without saying that on the diplomatic ground, as on the military, financial and economic, Franco-British solidarity remains complete."

OCT 5 1939

Peace Agitators Seized

Further indicative of the French mood was the arrest of two persons and inquiry against twenty-nine others whose names appeared on an appeal for "immediate peace."

Those arrested were a man named Lecoin and another named Jean Giono, identified as writers. The French censor withheld the identity of the twenty-nine.

The Cabinet after a session this morning announced a decision to tighten blockade measures to keep credits as well as foodstuffs away from Germany, showing the importance the French are placing on economic weapons in this conflict.

"The experience of the last war will certainly be put to profit," commented the newspaper Le Temps, which called the blockade "one of the most terrible" weapons at the Allies' disposal.

The paper compared "successful" operations to date with "blunderings" which characterized use of the weapon before.

Rain Keeps Planes Down

Meanwhile on the fortified frontier of Germany and France, the autumnal rains made aerial combat impossible. There were intermittent artillery exchanges in the Zweibrücken region, and semi-official sources said the French guns dominated that city along with the other German industrial towns of Bergzabern, Pirmasens, Saarbrücken, Saarlouis and Merzig.

OCT 5 1939

A general staff communique said there were "patrols and ambushes" on various parts of the front and that a German raid south of Pirmasens was repulsed.

The communique asserted that a French submarine had seized and brought to port a German merchant ship.

In his talk with the Deputies, Daladier declared that, while the immediate cause of war was the German-Polish conflict, Germany's wish to dominate Europe was the underlying cause.

He spent considerable time outlining Hitler's campaign of empire, from the annexation of Austria to the present.

OCT 5 1939

To Issue "Yellow Book"

The French Government soon will publish a "yellow book" giving the origins of the war in detail, he said.

He also commented on the "sincerity" of French relations with Turkey and said he was happy over the progress achieved toward normal relations with Spain and in improving "distinctly" those with Japan.

He spoke of the possibility of "incidents" in northeastern and southeastern Europe as a result of the Soviet-German pact.

Daladier disclosed he had signed an agreement with Stefan Osusky, Czech Minister in France, for reconstitution of the Czech army in France, bringing fresh man power to the allied cause.

Talks To Bullitt

Daladier conferred at the War Ministry this evening with William C. Bullitt, United States Ambassador, but an embassy official said their talk was of "routine matters."

The French Parliament, which theoretically has been in extraordinary session since September 2 but which actually has not met during the war, is being sent on vacation in an official decree to be published tomorrow.

Daladier, however, promised the Foreign Affairs Committee that it would be reconvened if developments required.

By HENRY C. CASSIL

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—This is a very lonely war they're having along the western front.

French officers do not refer to their opponents as the enemy, or even as Germans. They call them "the adversary." Boys in the ranks have dropped the "boche" which their fathers used in the last war. They say "Fritz."

The same unemotional attitude characterizes the combat. For example, the French artillery opens up on the Germans. The guns then cease firing. The French know that forty-five minutes later the German guns will reply. They do, and the exchange ends.

There is as little of romance as there is of high enthusiasm in this war. The troops rarely sing. After a month of war they have still to find a successor to the world war favorite, "La Madelon." One popular song is "J'Attendrai," ("I'll Wait"), but this is a sentimental ballad, rather than a marching song.

'Too Many Memories'

"We could not bring the old ones back," an officer explained. "They revive too many memories."

I attended an afternoon entertainment for soldiers. It was in the theater of a small town just behind the lines. A local priest played the accompaniments, and regimental talent performed before a crude backdrop showing a street scene with balloon-like trees and tipsy buildings.

The most applauded pieces were Schubert's Serenade and a musical comedy sketch by Offenbach. The first composer was born in Austria, the second in Germany.

The troops display considerable interest in war measures and military affairs. If you ask what their war aim is, they reply it is to cut Germany into small States "so they will never bother us again."

In turn, they inquire repeatedly about American public opinion and congressional action on neutrality.

My American steel helmet caused a stir in one unit, and one soldier remarked: "It's too bad you aren't a whole army." They examined the helmet closely, and when I left, were still debating the relative merits of our high-set flat crown with their ridged, rounded cask that coms down on the neck.

Back of the front, we found a deserted countryside. On the roads there is no evidence of troop movements. Fields are empty, and a casual glance at the front itself gives the same impression of desertion.

On close inspection, however, you see that the border village houses are filled with men, and the barns with vehicles and horses.

The wounded and dead in this war are not to be compared numerically with the toll of the world war, but the French command considers its advances into the Saar Basin very important strategically and economically.

Tobey Wants Repeal Held Up Until Vessels Get Their Orders.

VANDENBERG FOR EMBARGO

Speaks After Connally Tells the Senate Germany Is Sure to Sink U. S. Ships.

OCT 5 1939

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Senator Tobey, Republican, of New Hampshire, appealed to the Senate today to delay consideration of administration demands for repeal of the arms embargo until it had acted on the safeguards for American shipping provided in the pending neutrality bill.

He asked immediate action on legislation to bar American shipping from war zones.

"Leaders in the Senate and in the country have agreed," he said, "that the causes which threw us into the last European conflict were the seizure and sinking of American merchant vessels carrying cargoes to the belligerents."

He spoke after Senator Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, had contended that the administration's efforts to repeal the embargo were designed to reach into the existing arena of foreign war to aid one belligerent against another.

Mr. Vandenberg arose to read a speech opposing revision of the neutrality law after Senator Connally, Democrat, of Texas, had predicted that Germany would begin sinking American merchant vessels unless the administration bill was adopted.

The measure would substitute for the present arms embargo a take-title-and-carry system of sales of munitions and other supplies. It would prohibit American ships from carrying any goods to warring nations.

Mr. Vandenberg said that he thought that repeal of the embargo would be "a deliberately unneutral act which may too easily be the forerunner of others when once the habit starts."

'Depart From Neutrality.'

"Consciously or otherwise—but mostly consciously," he said, "we are asked to depart from our neutrality policy in behalf of one belligerent whom our personal sympathies largely favor and against another belligerent whom our personal feelings largely condemn.

"In my opinion, this is the road that may lead us to war, and I will not voluntarily take it."

Mr. Vandenberg called it a "treacherous doctrine" that "we can do a lot of things 'short of war' to help our favorites—as though we might successfully be half in the war and yet stay safely out."

Latvia Reported Yielding Military Bases to Russia

Pact May Also Give Moscow Rail Privileges to Port of Libau; Estonia Ratifies Treaty at Last Minute; Lithuania Studies Demands

OCT 5 1939

By The Associated Press

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 4.—A Russian-Latvian agreement, giving the Soviet Union air and naval bases on Latvian territory, will be signed tonight, it was reported semi-officially here today. Informed sources said the agreement also would give Russia special traffic privileges over the railway to Libau, Latvian port on the Baltic.

Estonian Pact Ratified

TALLINN, Oct. 4 (AP).—The Russian-Estonian mutual assistance pact, which permits Russia to place 25,000 troops at strategic points in Estonia, was ratified here tonight. Letters of ratification were exchanged at the Foreign Office at 11 p. m., just one hour before expiration of the six-day period for ratification agreed upon with the signing of the pact in Moscow last Friday.

The Soviet Minister, M. Likitin, drove up to the Foreign Office with the papers to be exchanged, after a long delay which was reported due to a hitch in delivery of the papers from Moscow. Observers said the pact was ratified as agreed upon in Moscow.

[Reports had been heard in Riga, Latvia, that the delay was due to Russian demands for bases other than those provided for in the pact, and in last-minute disagreement on the number of troops to be quartered at the new bases].

The pact permits 25,000 Soviet troops to occupy the Estonian north Baltic Islands of Dagoe (Saare) and Oesel (Hiiu) and the mainland port of Baltiski, and permits Russia to build air and naval bases at these points. The new bases will allow Russia to control the gulfs of Finland, Riga and Bothnia.

A mixed Russian-Estonian commission working out details of the new arrangement had made no announcement concerning its work at the time of ratification. The commission was reported to include a Russian general and an admiral and an Estonian general.

A trade agreement concluded with the mutual assistance pact provides for an increase in trade between the two countries and gives Russia the right to ship goods through Estonian territory. Estonia similarly may ship across Russia to the Black Sea, and to Murmansk.

SOVIET PUSHES DRIVE IN BALTIC

Latvian President Reported Heading for Moscow.

LITHUANIAN ENVOY IS HEARD

Meanwhile Turks Await Orders From Ankara Government.

OCT 5 1939

MOSCOW, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Soviet Russia speeded the course of her expanding military and economic influence in the Baltic today as the small States which rim that sea awaited the results of talks here between their representatives and the Soviet leaders.

The Latvian Legation declined comment on unofficial reports that President Karl Ulmanis planned to fly to Moscow to join his Foreign Minister, William Munters, in conferences at the Kremlin.

The Lithuanian Foreign Minister, Jouzas Urbsys, conferred at the Kremlin for more than two hours last night with Joseph Stalin and Vyacheslav Molotov, his Premier and Commissar for Foreign Affairs.

Soviet newspapers quoted a Tass (official Russian news agency) dispatch from Helsinki asserting that the Finnish newspapers were emphasizing Russia's important role in the Gulf of Finland and the Baltic Sea.

Many observers believed that the Soviet officials would soon open negotiations with the Finns for rights on Finnish islands in the gulf. This belief was strengthened by an article yesterday in the Government newspaper Izvestia, which in effect accused Great Britain of trying to use Finland and the Baltic states as a springboard for an attack on Russia.

The Turkish delegation was still in Moscow today, having greatly prolonged its stay, awaiting instructions from Ankara before resuming talks on Black Sea-Dardanelles matters.

The Soviet press reported that large shipments of salt, tobacco and matches had been made to the "liberated" Ukrainian and White Russion areas which Russia occupied in Poland, asserting that the natives there had been smoking dried cherry leaves.

Russia Eyes Afghanistan.

MOSCOW, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Unconfirmed reports circulated today in diplomatic circles that Russia, after current diplomatic negotiations with her European neighbors, might turn to Afghanistan with proposals.

Afghanistan, now within the British sphere of influence, lies between the Soviet Union and India. If Russia should gain a foothold in Afghanistan it would place her in a strategic position in relation to its northern frontier of India.

AFGHANISTAN HELD NEXT GOAL IN SOVIET DRIVE

Moscow May Be In Strategic Position In Relation To India

Latvian Pact Expected To Give Russians Air And Naval Bases

By WITT HANCOCK
Associated Press Correspondent

Moscow, Oct. 4—Reports of the conclusion of a Russian-Latvian agreement giving the Soviet air and naval bases in the neighboring Baltic state reached Moscow tonight.

As Joseph Stalin pressed his far-flung diplomatic campaign, foreign quarters advanced the possibility that Soviet Russia also would attempt to strengthen her hand in the Middle East, age-old theater of Russian-British rivalry, once she has completed negotiations with her European neighbors.

May Move On Afghanistan

Diplomatic quarters said that Russia might first try to extend her influence in the Middle East by making proposals to Afghanistan, which lies between Russia and India and now is within the British sphere of influence.

A Soviet foothold in Afghanistan would give the Moscow regime a strategically important position in relation to India's northern frontier.

[Editor's Note—Afghanistan, a nation of about 10,000,000 inhabitants, mostly mohemmedans, is poorly developed, with no railroads and few other forms of communication. Her northern area reputedly is rich in copper, lead and iron. Coal and some oil are found in other parts. Wool and skins are the principal exports.]

The Turkish delegation in Moscow, meanwhile, received new instructions from its Government in reply to what was reported reliably to be Russian insistence upon absolute Turkish neutrality in the European war.

Turkey Told To Choose

Russia, these reports said, told Turkey in effect to "choose between Russia and Britain" and demanded strict neutrality regardless of any pact she might enter with Britain and France.

In addition, the Soviet Government was reported to be demanding that Turkey allow no foreign warships other than Russia's to enter the Black sea through the Dardanelles.

The Turkish delegation, which intended to stay only three days, has been here almost two weeks, its negotiations held up by the Russian-German consultations and the talks with the Baltic delegations.

In Touch With Allies

The Turks have kept in close contact with the British and French embassies. Their Government is allied with Britain and France in mutual assistance pacts in event of Mediterranean war and apparently they have figured in the hitch in negotiations.

Foreign Minister Saracoglu, head of the Turkish delegation, today laid a wreath on Lenin's tomb in Red Square. Tonight he and his associates were guests at a dinner at the Greek Embassy. Turkey and Greece, once bitter foes, have become close friends.

Soviet leaders, negotiating with Latvia and also Lithuania, apparently were unable to get in talks tonight with the Turks but conferences were expected to be resumed tomorrow. The oft-delayed Turkish negotiations had been held up for the last three days awaiting the instructions from Istanbul.

May Ask Transit Rights

Diplomatic quarters expressed the belief that Russia would ask transit privileges through Lithuania, Latvia's southern neighbor. Similar privileges were secured from Estonia.

Although the Soviet press accused Britain of seeking bases in the Baltic, Russia's sudden diplomatic thrusts there primarily were designed to enhance her position against any possible German moves, diplomatic sources said.

Finnish quarters said the occasion might arise for discussion of Finland's problems with Soviet authorities, but that no Finnish official had been invited to Moscow as yet. This was in response to reports Finland would be next to be invited to the Kremlin after Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

Moscow Reported Seeking Naval Base Rights in Rumanian Port.

ISTANBUL, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Turkish uneasiness over the delay in the discussions being carried on at Moscow by Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu found open expression today in the Turkish press.

A cryptic declaration was carried by inspired newspapers that the Balkan nations "are not consenting to the slightest sacrifice impairing their own dignity and honor."

It was reported reliably that Russia was demanding that her Balkan and Black Sea neighbors sign mutual assistance agreements with the Soviet, similar to those being negotiated with the Baltic States.

One report was that the Soviet leaders told Foreign Minister Saracoglu, as unofficial Balkan spokesman, that they must have naval base rights at the Rumanian port of Constanza, as well as the right to send troops through the Balkan countries.

days when he went there more than a week ago, but the appearance of Herr von Ribbentrop and conferences between Soviet officials and Baltic State leaders have side tracked him.

The Polish Ambassador has lodged with the Turkish Government a declaration similar to that handed other governments, particularly Great Britain and France, protesting the partition of Poland between Germany and Russia. There was no indication, however, of the Turkish Government's reaction.

Halifax on Turkish Relations.

LONDON, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Lord Halifax, Foreign Secretary, told the House of Lords today that Britain believed Russian-Turkish relations "need not in any way conflict with the closest relations of this country and Turkey or between Turkey and France."

He also asserted that Britain would "recognize as the legal Polish Government" the government established Saturday in Paris.

A Turkish military mission, welcomed yesterday with an elaborate show of friendship, began conferences today with British Government representatives. The British Press Association said that the talks dealt with "military and other matters of common interest." Gen. Kiazim Orbay headed the Turkish delegation.

HITLER CALLS REICHSTAG TO HEAR HIS PLANS

Expected To Put War Or Peace Up To Britain In Speech Tomorrow

German Press Sees Possibility Of U. S. Involvement Diminishing

By [illegible]
Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Oct. 4—Adolf Hitler tonight summoned his Reichstag for a meeting Friday noon to hear a new German declaration of policy in the European war.

Speculation centered on the possibility whether Hitler in one of his stirring addresses would disclose any new chance to end the conflict.

The German point of view remained that the action in Poland is ended and that action in the west has never started.

Warsaw Trip Believed Off

Indications late tonight were that Hitler would decide not to go to Warsaw tomorrow for a triumphant parade of German troops into the Polish capital.

The need for giving the closest attention to the latest international developments which might have a bearing on his Reichstag declaration was said to be the impelling reason for a decision to stay in Berlin.

While Hitler will talk to the Reichstag, his remarks will be intended for the whole world. In official circles it was emphasized that guessing what he may say was "hazardous and a disservice to everyone."

"Ready For Peace Or War"

Neutral observers, however, looked for no great departure from the frequently asserted German statement that "Germany is ready either for peace or war" and that responsibility for the decision is up to Great Britain.

There were increasing indications that Germany regarded neither Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's address yesterday nor Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax's comment today as "constructive."

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Chamberlain said "mere assurances" from Germany were not enough, and Lord Halifax asserted Britain would examine any peace proposals "with care and we shall measure them against the principles for which we have taken up arms."]

DNB, German official news service, observed that Lord Halifax "stirred up the past," but had "nothing concrete" to offer concerning the future.

Assails British Sea Policy

The semi-official Deutsche Diplomatisch - Politische Korrespondenz, which usually reflects Foreign Office opinion, asserted that British arming of merchant ships was "a transparent effort to continue the war under all circumstances."

The commentary said that Italian Premier Benito Mussolini's speech September 23 and German Ambassador Joachim von Ribbentrop's declaration in Moscow September 28 offered foundations for discussing peace which received a cold reception in Britain and France.

It observed that the possibility of the United States becoming involved in the war had diminished in the last few days.

The call for the Reichstag meeting said merely that it was for the purpose of hearing a Government declaration.

Not Expected To Repeat Terms

Political circles said they did not expect Hitler to repeat the peace proposals made in the German-Soviet statement from Moscow last week, as they were considered sufficiently clear, but they did believe the Führer would assert again that Britain could have peace or war as she desires, that Germany would prefer peace, but is ready to continue the war.

Hitler also was expected in these circles to reassert that the new order in the East, forged by the German and Russian armies in Poland, would not be altered.

Unaffected By Chamberlain

Informed quarters said Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's statement in the English House of Commons yesterday contained nothing to cause Hitler to change the tenor of his Reichstag address.

There was a tendency here to believe that the British people did not want the war to continue and that Chamberlain was having difficulty in keeping the war spirit alive.

Authoritative sources described the Führer as feeling that Chamberlain's speech did not give a clear answer to the German-Russian declaration of Moscow.

It was said that after his Reichstag speech Hitler would await foreign reaction and then consult anew with Russia and Italy.

Pleased Over Panama Trend

Satisfaction was expressed in official quarters over efforts of the Panama conference to keep the Americas neutral. These quarters said Germany saw her own and the world's interest saved if the largest possible number of states remained neutral.

What American countries were doing was compared with what the small European nations were attempting in order to keep their trade routes open.

Each country that insists on her neutrality rights was considered here as one more threat to the efficiency of Britain's blockade of Germany.

The Nazis' counter-blockade against Britain, according to a communique of the high command, has led to the searching of seventy-two vessels since September 30. Some contraband was reported seized for German use.

OCT 5 1939

Hitler Won't Visit Warsaw

Indications late tonight were that Hitler would decide not to go to Warsaw tomorrow for a triumphant parade of German troops into the Polish capital.

The communique issued today by the German Army high command follows:

"In the east mopping up action took place involving fights with shattered portions of Polish troops in the region between the present demarcation line and the newly-fixed German-Russian boundary limiting the spheres of influence.

"In the west there was almost complete calm, except for minor artillery activity by the enemy.

"In maritime warfare, seventy-two additional steamers have been searched by German naval forces since Sept. 30. Some of these were brought to German harbors for carrying contraband goods."

OCT 5 1939

They asserted that Chancellor Hitler expects "a clear political reply" to the Moscow peace gesture. Der Fuehrer, they said, expects responsible heads of governments to take a clear stand.

Statesmen of the western allies apparently will have at least two days more for any further reply to the Moscow stand, before Chancellor Hitler makes his promised statement to the Reichstag.

That will not come before Friday, it was said, and may be Saturday. All indications today were that Der Fuehrer was preparing to go tomorrow to Warsaw to enter the Polish capital as a conqueror.

Officials evaded replying to direct questions as to his plans, but preparations pointed to the Warsaw journey.

OCT 5 1939

To Consult Soviet Further.

After the Reichstag speech, authorized sources said, Hitler will await the reaction in other lands and then enter into new consultations with Russia and re-examine the whole situation with Italy.

German authorities still regard Turkey as not lost to their line-up of nations. They insist that Turkey's ties to Russia are far onger than to Britain and rance.

OCT 5 1939

Informed sources said the German official reaction to the Panama declaration of twenty-one American republics, designed to insulate them from the European conflict, was friendly. They asserted that Germany regards the American continent as "in line with constructive elements in Europe"—by which Germans mean the Reich.

Soviet Russia and Italy—if it insists on maintaining true neutrality.

Tightening of Germany's relations with Soviet Russia was forecast by informed quarters today as a result of Prime Minister Chamberlain's latest speech.

Some sources said a visit to Berlin by the Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov was "quite probable."

Negotiations with Russia to increase the flow of vital supplies to the Reich most certainly would be speeded up, it was said.

"Der Fuehrer, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and a staff of experts were reported to have worked late into the night last night discussing the implications of the British Prime Minister's speech.

Berlin newspapers carried only brief excerpts from Mr. Chamberlain's address, and not a line of comment.

Nazis Prepare to Strike Back.

It was apparent, however, a grave view of Britain's attitude was taken, and that Germany was preparing to strike back at France and Great Britain with the full power of her armed forces.

The semi-official commentary Dienst aus Duetschland made it clear German submarines would attack every armed merchantman.

"The German Navy not only will be entitled to, but will be obliged to break the resistance of such ships with all possible means," it said.

A communique, issued today by the high command, said that seventy-two additional vessels had been searched for contraband by German naval forces since September 30. Some of these, it was said, had been escorted into German harbors.

Some Fighting in Poland.

OCT 5 1939

The communique also reported that German troops, "mopping up" in Poland, had engaged in fighting with "shattered portions" of the Polish Army "between the present demarcation line and the newly fixed German-Russian boundary limited spheres of influence."

The western front was described as calm except for minor artillery activity by the enemy.

Some light on the German reaction to Britain's attitude was given by Reichsfuehrer Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter, commenting upon a radio broadcast Monday night by the Archbishop of York, who said, "We can make no terms with Hitler or his colleagues because Hitler's Government is utterly untrustworthy."

"It is high time," Voelkischer Beobachter said, "that London banishes such childish conceptions from its mind. . . . The destruction of the Hitler regime preached by Winston Churchill and his asociates is a classical example of British arrogance, which constitutes the only hindrance toward European peace."

Following Debate in U. S.

Nazi leaders followed closely the progress of debate on neutrality legislation in the United States Senate, as well as developments at the Panama neutrality conference.

Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, Foreign Office mouthpiece, made the following comment:

"America is far ahead of the Old World in keeping her own house in order, because she has been able to develop in the shadow of the Monroe Doctrine, undisturbed by outside influences.

"But also in Europe," Korrespondenz added, "the desire of nations for peaceful co-operation perhaps never has been so strong as today."

Celebrate Warsaw's Fall.

Nazi flags were flown from building throughout Germany in evidence of public jubilation over the fall of Warsaw and the swift completion of the Polish campaign. Church bells peal daily from noon until 1 P. M. to hail the victory. There were reports that Der Fuehrer would go to Warsaw to review Nazi troops marching into the city, but these were discounted in official quarters.

The Nazi leader paid a personal visit to the Polish front at the time of actual fighting, one Government spokesman said, and "is at present too fully occupied with the important tasks which lie ahead" to visit Warsaw.

News that the United States would continue to recognize the Polish Government was greeted in Berlin with apparent indifference.

"There's nothing we can do about it," it was remarked in informed quarters.

OCT 5 1939

British Expect Stroke Attack.

LONDON, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Britain has left the door open for consideration of any German proposal to end the war, but is charting her course apparently on the assumption that present diplomatic maneuvers are merely a lull before a greater storm of warfare.

Official sources said no formal message relating to the German offer to end the war on Germany's terms had reached London. They added they knew nothing of any impending communications along that line. The German-Soviet Russian agreement to seek, if necessary, the assistance of "friendly Powers" in bringing an end to the conflict upon the basis of a partitioned Poland was reached at Moscow last Thursday.

British public opinion, as expressed through the press, backed up the stand taken by Prime Minister Chamberlain in the House of Commons yesterday—that Britain would test any Nazi proposal in the light of Adolf Hitler's past promises which Chamberlain said had proved "worthless."

The Times of London, which often reflects the Government view, declared that any peace terms offered by Chancellor Hitler must conform to these conditions to be acceptable to the British-French allies:

"They must not require us to condone the act of brigandage committed at the expense of Poland; on the contrary, they must repair the damage already done. And they must give not only to us, but to all Europe adequate assurance that the peace concluded will be durable and will not be disturbed by the continual threat of Nazi aggression."

'Irreducible' Minimum.

OCT 5 1939

The Times declared the first object of examining any peace proposals "must be to discover whether they offer the irreducible minimum—the restitution of the independence of Poland and security for the future peace of Europe."

For an indication of Germany's policy in the immediate future, Britain awaited Hitler's speech before the Reichstag.

A Turkish military mission, welcomed yesterday with an elaborate show of friendship, began conferences today with British Government representatives. The British Press Association said that the talks dealt with "military and other matters of common interest." Gen. Kiazim Orbay headed the Turkish delegation.

Mutual assistance pledges "in case of an act of aggression which might lead to a war in the Mediterranean area" were exchanged between Turkey and Britain May 12 and between Turkey and France June 23, pending conclusion of long-term agreements.

Divided on Lloyd George.

Parliamentary circles expressed sharply divided opinions on David Lloyd George's speech in Commons yesterday in which he suggested a "secret session" to consider Hitler's proposal and urged "very careful" consideration of any "specific, detailed and broad" offers from Germany through Soviet Russia or Italy.

The world war Prime Minister declared that it would be a "first class mistake" to enter any peace conference without asking the United States, Russia and Italy to participate.

The suggestion of a secret session was approved by some members of Parliament, while others attacked such a move as likely to give the impression abroad of a lack of unanimity. Mr. Chamberlain opposed Lloyd George's suggestion.

The conservative London Daily Telegraph commented:

"The Prime Minister is to be applauded for having in his reply to Mr. Lloyd George shown no sign of weakening in the attitude which he so firmly defined in his opening speech."

OCT 5 1939

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Reichsfuehrer Hitler was described by informed persons today as holding that Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech in the House of Commons did not give a clear reply to the German-Russian peace declaration of Moscow.

These informants said that Mr. Chamberlain's statements of yesterday "left unanswered the question of war or peace" and contained nothing substantially new.

TRUCE PLAN CHIEF TOPIC OF LEADERS

Three Groups Of Parliamentarians Hold Secret Meetings

Diplomatic Maneuvering In European Capitals Is Watched By Leaders

OCT 5 1939

[By the Associated Press]

London, Oct. 4—Britain watched with a wary eye tonight the diplomatic maneuvering in European capitals which she believes may foreshadow a "call off the war move" by Adolf Hitler.

The possibility of peace proposals by Hitler and Britain's reaction to them was discussed in secret tonight by three different parliamentary groups.

The midland conservatives, who support the Government, passed a resolution of "abiding confidence" in the Prime Minister.

The second group, the Conservative 1922 committee, described by the authoritative British Press Association as the most influential body in Commons, also held a discussion but no announcement was made of a decision and members were cautioned to say [illegible] of what occurred.

Will Meet Again

[illegible] parliamentary labor party also held a caucus on the proposals but decided to meet again tomorrow.

For the second successive day the possibility that Germany, through some neutral power, may in some way suggest a peace settlement occupied a big share of parliament's attention.

For the second day came a suggestion from a parliamentary leader that Britain should not be too hasty in casting aside such proposals if they are made.

Lord Snell, leader of the labor opposition, told the House of Lords that he hoped that "the Government would never refuse to listen to a real proposal for peace" and that it should show that "in addition to being a nation of shopkeepers, we are also a nation of pathfinders of a way to a durable peace."

A similar suggestion was made in Commons yesterday by former Prime Minister David Lloyd George.

Demands Real Peace

Snell emphasized that Britain was bound "to see to it that when peace comes it is a real peace and not merely a truce during which anybody who wished could rearm and prepare himself to new acts of aggression."

Lord Halifax, Foreign Secretary, told the Lords that Britain "certainly should always be glad to see friendly relations between the two great neighbors, Russia and Turkey, which we believe need not in any way conflict with the closest relations of this country and Turkey, or between Turkey and France."

The Foreign Secretary's remarks came at a time when a Turkish military mission is in London discussing military and other matters "of mutual interests" with the British.

Polish Government "Legal"

OCT 5 1939

Halifax also emphasized that Britain regarded the Polish Government in exile established in France as "the legal Polish Government."

Halifax declared that if Britain receives "peace" proposals, "we shall certainly examine them with care and we shall measure them against the principles for which we have taken up arms."

"It has already been indicated that the proposals may be put forward under a veiled threat, and there is no more perilous proceeding than to negotiate under the threat of force," he said.

Not Be Moved By Force

"Neither this country nor France will be moved by force to surrender the liberties for which they have entered upon this struggle."

It was a common suggestion, said Halifax, "that peace proposals might be made on behalf of the German Government which France and this country could only refuse at the price of being held alone responsible for continuing the war."

"There has, I suppose," said Halifax, "never been a case in history where the responsibility for plunging Europe into war has so plainly attached to a single individual."

Mere Assurances Not Enough

Echoing what Prime Minister Chamberlain said yesterday, Halifax asserted that mere "assurances from the present German Government are not enough" for Britain.

"The first duty remains that of securing conditions under which the rule of violence no longer operates and under which the pledged word of Governments might again be held worthy of honorable trust," he added. "Anything less than that can only at the best afford to Europe an uneasy and uncertain period of armistice."

Value Of Propaganda

The importance Britain is laying on propaganda as a weapon was disclosed by Lord McMillan, Minister of Information, who said the reorganization of his Ministry announced yesterday by Chamberlain would free it to devote time to "the real task," that of propaganda.

"This war in a very special sense is a war of ideas," he added. "It is accepted by our people and allies as a crusade for great principles."

U-Boat Sinks Greek Steamer, Puts Crew Ashore In Ireland

Twenty-Eight Survivors Of Diamantis, Six Injured By Explosions, Landed In Southwest

OCT 5 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Dublin, Oct. 4—The sinking of the Greek steamer Diamantis yesterday off Ireland was disclosed when the crew of the 4,990-ton vessel was landed at Dingle, county Kerry, by the submarine reported responsible for the sinking.

The twenty-eight survivors, who identified the submarine as the German U-35, reported their ship was torpedoed not far from the coast of Cornwall, off the Scilly Islands. They said they were picked up by the submarine shortly after it sent three torpedoes crashing into the ship.

Six Of Crew Injured

The Diamantis, listed by Lloyds as owned by D. J. Pateras, of Chios, Greece was bound from West Africa for Barrow in Furness, England.

Six members of the crew were said to have been taken to a Dingle hospital for treatment of injuries suffered in the explosions.

Members of the crew said they were treated politely by the German of the submarine.

OCT 5 1939

First Landing By Sub

Dingle is in southwest Ireland on Dingle Bay, which opens into the Atlantic. Ireland has expressed her determination to remain neutral in the current European war and under international law belligerent war craft are permitted to enter harbors of neutral countries.

This was the first report of a submarine landing the survivors from a ship it had sunk, although there have been instances in which German submarine commanders directed ships to the rescue of crews of torpedoed ships.

The submarine came up to the pier in broad daylight and put the survivors ashore. The crew of the U-boat waved to bystanders on the shore, and they returned the greeting. After landing the survivors the U-boat immediately turned back to sea.

British Circles Hold Internment Impossible

OCT 5 1939

London, Thursday, Oct. 5 (AP)—British circles appeared satisfied early today that the German submarine which appeared off the coast of Ireland to land survivors of a vessel it had sunk could not have been interned by Irish authorities.

The submarine, described as the U-35, appeared suddenly off Dinglee, lonely spot in County Kerry, Ireland, and hurriedly sent ashore in a collapsible boat the twenty-eight survivors of the 4,990-ton Greek steamer Diamantis, which it had torpedoed and sent to the bottom off Land's End, at the southwestern tip of England.

Authoritative sources said belligerent ships could be interned on entering a neutral port only if there were sufficient forces at hand to detain them.

OCT 5 1939

Guards Too Late

The British Press Association said Irish Civic Guards saw the submarine too late to detain it.

The survivors said they had been on the craft for thirty-six hours.

The press association, after relating that the survivors were sent ashore in a collapsible boat on a lonely part of the Irish coast, continued:

"The commander of the U-boat had obviously been cruising along the Kerry coast for some hours looking for a deserted stretch of coast to land his passengers. . . .

Landed "With All Speed"

"Shortly before 6 P. M. he brought the boat to the surface and drew close into shore. Then the conning tower was opened and the seamen of the Diamantis were landed with all speed.

"Civic guards patrolling the coast saw the submarine on the surface and rushed to the spot, but they were too late to detain the German U-boat. While they were still some distance away the submarine moved away from the coast and started to submerge.

"When the guards actually reached the scene of the landing the only evidence of the daring maneuver of the German U-boat commander was a stretch of frothy sea where the submarine had disappeared and a group of bewildered seamen on the shore."

SOVIET WOULD SELL WOOD TO BRITAIN

Norwegian Ships Asked to Carry Cargoes.

OCT 5 1939

OSLO, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Norwegian shipping brokers announced today they had been asked by the official Soviet Russian export agency to supply ships to carry cargoes of wood from the White Sea to Great Britain and France.

The president of the Norwegian ship owners' association said that Russia could get as many Norwegian ships as she wished.

The disclosure followed closely upon a report that Swedish and Finnish shipping firms had been queried along a similar line, and after German seizure of many wood cargoes, considered contraband by Germany, while they were en route to Britain and France.

Observers in the neutral northern countries hesitated to construe the differing attitudes of Russia and Germany toward such shipments.

Germany delivered a note today warning Norwegian ships to avoid suspicious behavior in British and French waters.

The note apparently was similar to one received Monday night by the State Department in Washington and relayed to American vessels around the world.

Danes Also Get Inquiries.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Danish ship owners reported today that they had received Russian inquiries concerning availability of ships for transporting timber from White Sea ports to European destinations, including France and England.

There was no mention of what cargoes these vessels would be expected to carry back to Russia.

OCT 5 1939

Mine Sinks Freighter.

SINGAPORE, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—British officials announced today the 4,914-ton Norwegian steamship, Hoegh Transporter, sank yesterday after striking a mine in the harbor entrance. Nine members of the crew were hurt.

One of the injured was a deck boy, Ray Edmonds, of Dallas, Tex. He was said to be hurt only slightly. Another American, member of the crew, Sherman Plimpton, of Seattle, a saloon boy, was uninjured.

British Naval Patrol Craft, which rescued the crew, said the ship failed to obey all signals in entering the harbor.

The Hoegh Transporter was built in 1935. Her port of registry is Oslo.

German Ship Strikes Mine.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—The newspaper Aftonbladet reported today that an 8,000-ton German steamship owned by the Stinnes Line but not otherwise identified had struck a mine near the North Sea island of Borkum.

The vessel was said to be carrying a cargo of iron from Sweden.

OCT 5 1939

Nazis Seize 5 Swedish Freighters

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 4 (AP).—The German Navy seized today five Swedish freighters, one of which was bound for the United States, and escorted them to German ports.

An announcement said the 2,647-ton Korsholm, en route to Wilmington, Del., with a cargo of wood pulp, was one of those seized.

Swedish shipowners considered asking Germany to establish control harbors to investigate cargoes and determine whether they carried contraband.

The next largest ship taken was the 1-54[illegible]ton Bure, bound for Aberdeen, Scotland, also with a cargo of wood pulp. The others were the Dera, the Virginia and the Markia, with a total tonnage of about 4,000. The nature of their cargoes was not disclosed.

OCT 5 1939

Five Swedish ships previously had been sunk and one was seized by the Germans yesterday.

The shippers asked the German Legation here if it would be possible to have the legation provide certificates to departing ships which would be accepted by German naval commanders as proof that the cargoes were not contraband. The legation replied that it was without authority to issue such papers.

As a result of the new seizures, shipowners again ordered their masters to follow to the letter regulations laid down by Swedish authorities. The War Insurance Board emphasized that it was the "absolute duty" of the ships to follow territorial waters.

IL DUCE WON'T INITIATE MOVE TOWARD PEACE

Official Rome Statement Bars Any Action Under Present Circumstances.

NEXT STEP NOW UP TO HITLER

Well-informed Italians Assert Axis Diplomacy Is Suspended Pending Reichstag Speech.

ROME, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Italy's present "peace" policy was announced today by the official Stefani news agency, which said that no initiative would be taken to convoke a peace conference.

A communique said:

"Several English newspapers have published dispatches according to which Il Duce is studying plans for a peace conference. There was even given a list of the nations which were to participate.

"This news is without any foundation.

"Under present circumstances Italy will not take any initiative of this sort."

This attitude was forecast earlier today by well-informed Italians who said that any peace proposals Adolf Hitler has to offer will probably be advanced in his Reichstag speech this week rather than through Italian diplomatic channels.

Diplomatic activity along the Rome-Berlin axis, these persons said, has been suspended pending the Reichsfuehrer's address.

Grasping at Straws.

Some Italians seemed to feel that optimism based upon the carefully worded declarations of British spokesmen was no more than grasping at straws in the wind. So disastrous did the prospect of a general European war appear to them, however, that they were inclined to seize upon the slightest grounds for hope.

Fascist informants indicated that while Italy strongly desires to see peace in Europe, she is not yet inclined to follow Germany in co-operating with the forces of Communism, opposition to which she cited as grounds for her intervention in the Spanish civil war.

Italy also was loath, it was indicated, to take part in any German peace gestures which might be deemed predestined to failure.

Chamberlain's Speech.

Analyzing developments in the British House of Commons yesterday, diplomats here were apparently impressed by the stand of the world war Prime Minister, David Lloyd George, who hinted at the influence which the United States, Italy and Russia could exert toward effecting peace.

[Mr. Lloyd George, urging "careful consideration of any peace proposal, said that if a conference were suggested, it would be "a first class mistake" to enter it without inviting the United States, Russia and Italy to participate.]

Negroes in America.

Prime Minister Chamberlain's assurance that any peace plan worthy of consideration would receive careful study also was regarded as encouraging, though well-informed Italians said they doubted that any proposals which might be contained in Hitler's speech to the Reichstag this week would have any chance for success.

Mr. Lloyd George's suggestion that the United States be included in any peace talks provoked considerable speculation, but there was no hint of official reaction. It was recalled by observers, however, that the United States was frequently coupled with Great Britain and France as an object of attacks by the Italian press.

Mussolini's Milan newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, carried a brief editorial today harking back to the treatment of Negroes in America in civil war times.

War Without War.

Foreign Minister Count Ciano's newspaper, Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, said that Mr. Chamberlain "left two important things clearly understood: First, Moscow's intervention is of such extreme importance as to force the democracies to make a new study of their positions; second, any Italian undertaking of some really sincere and conclusive peace proposal would not fall on deaf ears."

Well-informed Italians said that Italy would give cordial attention to any proposal of American participation in a peace conference.

Il Telegrafo said the first impression of yesterday's debate in the House of Commons was that it "might mark an extremely important turning point in this curious, exceptional war without war."

Boulevard Building

Mussolini gave further evidence of Italy's intention to stay out of the war as long as possible. Visiting the new Via Imperiale, the leading site of the Rome Universal Exposition of 1942, he formally started work on a big building program to line the street with imposing hotels, public buildings and apartment houses.

The exposition is designed as a full-fledged city which will accommodate some 40,000 residents when its original purpose has been served. The Via Imperiale, a broad boulevard, is to be the exposition's main link with Rome, four miles away.

Mussolini later received Marshal Rodolfo Braziani, who reported on the two armies under his command. Il Duce had previously conferred with Crown Prince Umberto, who shares the High Command with Marshal Graziani.

BASLE, Switzerland, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Rumors of an impending German thrust at France through Alsace and the historic Burgundy Gate were heard today with reports of the strengthening of Nazi Upper Rhine garrisons and unusual activity along the river.

For centuries the gateway between the Vosges and the Jura Mountains has been a route for armies invading France from the east.

The Germans were said to be concentrating thousands of soldiers, many of them veterans of the Polish war, at Black Forest and upper Rhine forts.

At Istein, Germany's "Rhineland Gibraltar," shielded lights were reported at night over the Rhine shallows on the German side. Pontoons have been shipped into the Rhine valley by the Nazis.

A German blow from the Istein area would probably be routed across Alsace between Mulhouse and the Swiss frontier which forms the entrance to the Burgundy gate.

The French, however, have built strong fortifications along a forty-mile strip between Istein and Belfort. Guns placed along the mountain slopes command the sides of the gate and its path ends under the ominous cannon of the great Fort Belfort.

Nazis Jealous of the Air.

This section has been the locale recently of much air activity, French observation planes drawing heavy anti-aircraft fire as soon as they appear. German planes dart out of the Black Forest bases to aid in driving back the invaders. During the early war days only a few Nazi aircraft were seen in the area.

Swiss observers expressed little concern about the concentration of troops near their borders, believing that any action would be directed against Alsace, not Switzerland.

A number of Germans living in Basle received official notification yesterday of relatives killed or wounded during the Polish campaign.

Baden motorized contingents appear to have carried the burden of the German south wing attacks on the Poles. Thirteen men from Grenzach, a town of a few hundred inhabitants, just across the Rhine from Basle, were reported to have been killed. They belonged to the Baden motorized forces.

War Is Fought By Women and Children, Too

Both Sides Mobilizing All Who Can Work; Housewife Exists on Tiny Allowance

By George W. Turner

Associated Press Staff Writer

When the men in Europe march off to war the women and young children who are left behind do more than "keep the home fires burning"; they do their bit, in myriads of ways, to help win the war.

As in the World War, women and youngsters in the belligerent countries today are mobilized, not only to take the place of men so far as possible in agriculture and industry but to lessen the governmental burden of caring for the aged and infirm, the sick and needy.

But for those who have to stay in the home—where the bread winner is on war duty—they must exist largely on a small allowance from the government. Compared with American standards, this amount seems astonishingly small. Roughly, here's what they receive:

England—49 cents a day for the wife; 15 cents a day for one child.

France—22.5 cents a day for the wife; 11 cents a day for one child.

Germany—92 cents a day for the wife; 65 cents a day for one child.

Allowances Vary

The allowances vary according to the rank of the soldier and the section of the nation from which he comes. City dwellers get more than those in country regions. Based on the lowest pay—with no distinction between regulars and militia—the English soldier's wife thus gets seventeen shillings a week. (A shilling is now about 20 cents.) An additional five shillings is allowed for the first child; three shillings for the second child; two for the third and one for each additional child.

In France, the wife of a soldier in the Department of the Seine and Paris receives 12 francs a day and an additional 5½ francs for each child under sixteen. (A franc is now about 2¼ cents.) In communes of more than 5,000 population the allowance is 8 francs for the wife and 4.50 for each child. For unemployed men called to the colors the wife receives 13 francs; 5 francs for each child under fourteen. No allowance is made to women whose daily revenue is 42 francs.

In Germany, there is no general rule, and conditions vary greatly in different sections. A typical example is shown, however, in the case of a wife and four children, the eldest of whom is seventeen. The state pays 69 marks monthly and varying amounts for the children, to make a total of 166 marks and 50 pfenning. In American terms this is approximately $66.60. In addition, full rent for the home is paid.

Germany Started First

Each nation has its own method of accomplishing complete mobilization of its human power, but the result is the same—every one possible is pressed into some kind of national service.

Germany was better organized to utilize its women than the other powers at war, because it had a head start. During the last summer, before the war clouds broke, the women and youths were called on to do men's work in harvesting bumper crops, for there was a shortage of 1,000,000 hands.

Labor statistics at that time estimated there were 3,500,000 women, single girls and mothers whose children were more than fourteen years old, available not only to fill jobs but to release men for other "more important" work. An appeal was made by Frau Gertrud Scholtz-Klink, women's leader, to volunteer for this work as a duty to the fatherland. College students, home on vacations, were ordered to the fields. In addition, nearly 400,000 young women served an obligatory year in labor service, principally on the land or in households.

Boys Learn Signaling

The electrical, textile, chemical, clothing and paper industries in Germany normally employ large percentages of women, but this summer women took over jobs they had not handled since World War days. They were drafted as postal carriers and as street-car and bus conductors in many cities. Every German housewife received training in fire-fighting in the event of war. Sixty thousand young boys were trained in signaling, topography and similar field work.

On. Aug. 8, the German government ordered registration of every citizen between the ages of five and seventy. Even Jews, object of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's hatred for years, were obliged to register. So, when war came, every one in Germany knew the allotted individual task by simply referring to the registration card.

England and France made similar groundwork plans last summer, but not on such a vast scale. Since the declaration of war, however, systematic mobilization of women and grown children has been steadily in progress. Women replaced men by the thousands in the fields, in shops and factories. Women firemen, policemen and guards are now fairly common. Thousands of women in England and France are training as workers for hospitals or as ambulance drivers.

Britain Trains Women Flyers

The British Air Ministry early organized the women's auxiliary air force, designed to relieve the air force proper of all lighter duties, in order to release more manpower for front-line duty. Marriage was no barrier to entering this service. The women occupied separate training camps from the men. They were trained to do emergency flying, such as flying planes from factories to aviation fields.

Poland's women and grown children were organized along similar lines. Since the German armies swarmed over that stricken land there has arisen the pressing problem of caring for the thousands of refugees whose homes were wrecked and means of livelihood destroyed. The approach of winter will add to the acuteness of the task.

Meanwhile, the Red Cross, the Salvation Army and various relief agencies, church and fraternal societies have intensified their organization for the relief of the distressed.

SOVIET MAY FREE U. S. VICE-CONSUL

Official in Warsaw Held During Occupation.

OCT 5 1939

BUCHAREST, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Reports from Russia today indicated that William Morton, who served as American vice-consul in Warsaw, would reach Rumania tomorrow after having been detained by the Russians since their occupation of southern Poland on September 17. Morton now is in Kiev.

Major William H. Colbern, former military attache of the United States Embassy in Warsaw, has left by motor for his new post as attache in The Hague. He received permission to visit German-held Polish territory on his trip to the Netherlands.

Another who has left Rumania was Gen. Lev Prchala, chief of the Czech legionnaires who fought for Poland. It was reported that he was en route to France to volunteer for a new military assignment against Germany.

Pole Who Killed Vom Rath Would Join Army.

OCT 5 1939

PARIS, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Herschel Grynszpan, the young Polish Jew who fatally shot Ernst vom Rath, secretary of the German Embassy here, last November, has written a letter to Georges Bonnet, Minister of Justice, asking release from prison to join the French army, "so that I could kill some more Germans."

Informed legal sources said his release was highly improbable. He still is awaiting trial, not due before spring.

RUMANIAN OIL DEAL MADE BY HUNGARY

Petroleum-for-steel Pact Announced in Budapest.

OCT 5 1939

BUDAPEST, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Rumanian oil, sought by all the warring nations, will be shipped to Hungary in increasing quantities under a trade treaty announced today.

Rumania agreed to ship to Hungary twice as much petroleum as would be paid for by the steel products she receives from Hungary.

Hungary's rigidly censored press offered striking evidence, meanwhile, of Italy's growing influence in southeastern Europe by its treatment of Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech before the British House of Commons.

While Hungarian newspapers refrained from editorial comment on the address, they printed dozens of dispatches from Rome giving the Italian opinions and reactions. Typical of this comment were assertions that "Mr. Chamberlain has not closed the way to peace."

Until the European war started, Budapest's thirty-five daily newspapers, representing every shade of political opinion, were outspoken in their comment on current affairs. When censorship was clamped down after the opening of hostilities, practically all editoral comment ceased.

Recently, the newspapers have been carrying on almost every page Rome dispatches quoting opinions of the Italian press, high officials and even correspondents. Often, the first stories appearing in Hungarian papers on events occurring in southeastern Europe—or even in Budapest itself—quote news items and editorials from the Italian press.

Fear of discipline by the Government, which has already suspended a number of newspapers for "embarrassing its foreign policy," apparently is partly responsible for this careful policy.

The censors' approval of the steady flow of Rome dispatches, however, is considered significant by students of affairs, who have been watching the rivalry of German, Russian and Italian interests in this area.

LEAGUE MEETING PLANNED

Assembly Session in December Is Expected to Be Set for Today.

OCT 5 1939

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 4 (AP)—After a postponement due to the outbreak of war, a League of Nations Assembly meeting will be called early in December, informed sources said tonight, to consider the creation of a central committee for coordinating the League's social and economic activities.

The United States and other nonmember nations, such as Brazil and Chile, will be asked to participate.

A new plan for such coordination was drafted last August by a committee under leadership of Stanley M. Bruce, Australian High Commissioner to London. Political questions will be barred from the committee's consideration.

Under the proposals twenty-four nations would form a new central committee, which Geneva views as the main hope for continuation of the League in wartime.

REGRETS 'SINISTER' SOUND

Tells Lords Nation Must Paint Picture of Crusade.

LONDON, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Lord MacMillan, Minister of Information, told the House of Lords today that reorganization of his Ministry would free him to attack his "real task"—propaganda.

Effective on Monday, the much-criticized Ministry will be decentralized, returning most of its news dissemination tasks to individual Government departments.

Now Lord MacMillan said he would devote himself to duties "described by the unattractive word propaganda."

"It is unfortunate that the word has acquired so sinister a significance," he said, "since this war, in a very special sense, is a war of ideas."

OCT 5 1939

Terms It a Crusade.

"It is accepted by our people and allies as a crusade for great principles. It is essential that, in season or out of season, at home and abroad, our cause should constantly be presented in its true light."

In addition to gauging the mood of other countries and striving to counteract insidious propaganda, he asserted the ministry must keep open all means of communication with countries abroad and keep a watchful eye on every movement inimical to British interests.

Speaking of criticism of the British Broadcasting Corporation programs, Lord MacMillan said:

"You always have the privilege of not listening, which is one of the greatest privileges I have known in connection with the B. B. C."

DOMINIONS TO SEND ENVOYS TO LONDON

Conference Will Be Held on War Co-ordination.

OCT 5 1939

LONDON, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Anthony Eden, Dominions Secretary, said today that the governments of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa each would send a Cabinet Minister to London "to confer with us as soon as is practicable."

The object of the meeting, he said, was "to co-ordinate to the best advantage the contribution which each of us can make to our common task."

The four dominions joined the mother country in declaring war on Germany.

POLISH JEWESSES PROTEST IN BERLIN

OCT 5 1939

Demand Rabbis Act to Aid Their Men in Camps.

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Demonstrations by Polish Jewish women have occurred several times during the last week in Berlin synagogues, where they demanded that something be done about male relatives held in Sachsenhausen concentration camp.

German rabbis were placed in an embarrassing position, since intervention on behalf of the Polish Jews might be construed as an attempt to give aid and comfort to the enemy.

Contrary to the time-honored practice, synagogues must finish religious exercises by 7 P. M. at the latest, for all Jews must be off the street by 8. The Jewish theater has been closed and the Kulturbund has ceased to operate. In Berlin only one moving picture theater for Jews has remained open—from 3 to 7 P. M.

Reports from various parts of the country received by the Jewish community indicated that Jews have been ordered to surrender bed linens, underwear and clothes, on the ground that they were needed by the army.

Jewish community officials were hard at work to supply complete data by Friday on every Jew's personal financial status and other personal details required by German authorities.

Many Jews have been put to work harvesting potatoes and beets.

German Mothers Told To Have Babies at Home

OCT 5 1939

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (AP).—Expectant mothers whose confinement may be expected to take a normal course should have their babies at home rather than in hospitals as long as the war lasts, the German Ministry of the Interior told physicians today.

Hospital space must be held in readiness for army purposes. The Ministry said that, generally speaking, patients should be discouraged from going to hospitals unless absolutely necessary.

Neutral Ireland Plans Complete Blackout Soon

De Valera Doesn't Want Air Raiders Guided by Lights

OCT 5 1939

DUBLIN, Oct. 4 (AP). — Prime Minister Eamon de Valera told the Irish Senate tonight that a compulsory blackout would be put into effect in Ireland soon, although Ireland is neutral in Great Britain's war with Germany.

At present there is a semi-blackout with street lights shaded. The Senate was told present restrictions were inadequate, however, as Dublin could be seen 150 miles away by planes. A complete blackout would be intended to prevent any belligerent planes from using lights in Ireland as guideposts.

Queen Visits War Agencies

British Bureaus Seek to Solve Personal Problems.

OCT 5 1939

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP).—The 136 "Citizens' Advice Bureaus," established in London by social service agencies to "help solve personal wartime problems," got under way officially today with visits to four of them by Queen Elizabeth.

An account of the visits distributed to British newspapers quoted an official at one bureau as saying the Queen spoke as "woman to woman" to some of the mothers who were seeking advice.

Holland Interns German Pilot

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 4 (AP).—A twenty-five-year-old German military pilot was interned by Netherlands authorities today after he had jumped from a disabled plane near Nieuweschans, in northwest Holland, and landed by parachute. The plane crashed 300 yards over the frontier in Germany. The pilot said he lost his way and his fuel was exhausted.

SEIZE MAN WITH RADIO

Uruguayans Find Him on Rocks Close to Sea.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Police reported today the arrest of a man, described as German or Yugoslav, who they said had been operating a radio transmitter among rocks along the southern coast near Rio de la Plata.

Police investigated the possibility he had been communicating with belligerent ships.

Eton Duffs Toppers To Wear Gas Masks

LONDON, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—The traditional top hats of the Eton boys have been put under a wartime ban, because they won't work with gas masks. Houses caps—much more utilitarian in case of an air raid—will replace the silk toppers.

British Report Seizing 33,000 Tons of Goods

LONDON, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—The Information Ministry announced today that 33,000 tons of goods consigned to Germany was seized by the British contraband control during the week ended September 30. This brought total cargoes intercepted during the first four weeks of the war to 289,000 tons.

The report said that few more cargoes openly consigned to Germany "can now be expected."

It said that while "account will be taken of the bona fide trading needs of neutral countries, all consignments will be carefully watched for any evidence of ultimate enemy destinations."

IMMORAL BLACKOUTS

Auxiliary Army Girls Betray Boys, Officials Say.

CARDIFF, England, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Gray-haired Aldermen of Glamorgan county pondered the moral welfare of Auxiliary Army girls during blackouts today, with special scrutiny of "gossip and goings on" concerning soldiers billeted around farms.

Alderman Hubert Jenkins suggested a nine o'clock curfew and complained that some young men were "not behaving themselves as they should." He said the county had a moral duty to the girls to do something about it.

Alderman David Davies said that good girls needed no looking after and another Alderman, the Rev. D. Thomas, declared: "If you are going to put a barbed wire fence around these girls it will be like the 'trespassers will be prosecuted' sign I saw on the fields when I was a boy. They were the only fields I went in."

The Aldermen finally decided to take up with the Auxiliary Army Authority the question of who was responsible for looking out for the girls after hours.

Country's First Premier Sends Cablegram Urging Support Of New Government

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—Ignace Jan Paderewski, pianist and first Premier of modern Poland, appealed today to American Poles to support the new Government of his country formed in Paris.

A cablegram from the 78-year-old musician, now in Switzerland, to the Polish Information Bureau here, said:

"I am appealing to my dear American Poles to give their full support to the new Polish national unity Government under the leadership of the commander-in-chief of our army, Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski. I am convinced that General Sikorski will fulfill his hard task of rebuilding Poland."

CAPITAL IS SILENT ON LLOYD GEORGE

Sees No Need for U. S. to Sit In on Peace Talk

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Government officials were reluctant today to comment on the proposal of former Prime Minister David Lloyd George that the United States should be included in any peace conference.

They said that he was talking about any proposal made by Russia or Italy, but that none yet had been made; that he was in opposition to the Government and that the speech by Prime Minister Chamberlain yesterday indicated that the British Government was not inclined to entertain peace overtures.

Unofficially it has been said that the United States would refuse to join with Italy or any other Power in proposing peace terms which would leave Poland dismembered. Only two days ago Secretary Hull stated that this Government refused to recognize the disappearance of Poland, which he termed the victim of force used as an instrument of national policy.

With regard to a conference, it is felt here that the decision is up to Great Britain and France and that there is no need for the United States to worry about its participation.

President Roosevelt has said this Government was willing to take part in disarmament and economic conferences, but not in a political conference.

A peace conference, it is generally believed, would include disarmament and economic matters, but it would be essentially political.

NEUTRAL ZONE PUZZLES ARISE

Republics May Have to Rely Upon Diplomacy.

ENFORCEMENT IS PROBLEM

President Says Questions Will Be Answered as They Are Reached.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—The United States and other republics of the Western Hemisphere may have to rely on diplomatic pressure to enforce their neutrality zone around part of the new world.

The agreement reached by twenty-one American republics at the Panama conference, diplomatic circles pointed out today, will present the governments with many practical problems.

President Roosevelt said these would be faced when they were reached.

Students of international affairs are asking, however, what would happen within the neutrality zone, which at some points extends perhaps 600 miles from the mainland, if:

A German submarine attacked and sank a British merchantman.

A German cruiser and a British or French cruiser met and fought it out.

An American destroyer saw a merchant vessel fueling a submarine.

If American battleships should be near a sea engagement between British and German warships within the zone, would they try to stop the fight?

No Precedent in Law.

International law does not justify any such proceedings, experts say. On the other hand, international law does not provide for any neutral zone extending hundreds of miles out to sea. It recognizes the three-mile limit for territorial waters, and, in some cases, a twelve-mile limit.

Within those limits the American republics could do what they liked to stop unneutral activities.

Observers asked whether the new plan would prohibit the British and French from convoying their merchant ships through the neutral zone once they had passed outside the territorial waters of the American republics.

This further question was raised: If British and French warships did not take up the convoy until their merchant ships passed outside the neutrality zone, and a German submarine sank some of them, would the American Republic within whose neutrality zone the sinkings occurred accept responsibility for them? Or would all the American republics jointly accept responsibility?

Would Ask Assurances.

Official quarters were reluctant to discuss these questions. Most quarters here agreed that the effectiveness of the neutrality zone would depend on the vigor with which it was enforced.

It was believed the first effort would be a combined one by the American republics to obtain assurances from the belligerents that the zone would be respected.

Failing such assurances, it was thought, the American republics nevertheless would continue to insist on respect for the zone, and would protest every known violation.

But there was skepticism as to whether warships of American republics would take active measures to prevent violations of the zone. The neutrality patrol, in the opinion of some experts, would function in an informative way rather than in any attempt to stop violations.

On the basis of the patrol's reports the American governments would take joint diplomatic action toward the offending belligerent.

President Warns Smugglers.

President Roosevelt says smugglers had better not attempt to carry supplies from the United States to submarines of belligerents.

Mr. Roosevelt made the statement yesterday at his press conference when his attention was directed to a Philadelphia Record story that smugglers were taking oil, food and drinking water to German submarines off the Atlantic coast.

The President also said that the navy might have to put more reserve warships in commission to re-enforce the neutrality zone established by representatives of American republics at Panama. He said the navy would determine if additional craft were necessary.

Mr. Roosevelt expressed the belief that nothing further than study should be undertaken now on plans to curb war profiteering. He said he had informed a group of Congressmen that he opposed abnormal war profits, but that he believed the subject should be studied more before any action was taken.

Proof of Greater Amity.

PANAMA, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Delegates from twenty-one American republics turned homeward today after concluding the first neutrality accord among nations of the new world.

The fact that the conference, in eleven days, was able to reach agreement upon issues which divided an inter-American committee during the world war, was hailed by speakers as evidence of increased amity.

Observers recalled that proposals for a joint coastal patrol similar to the one adopted here, set off a bitter campaign of invective against the United States twenty-four years ago.

The United States delegation left late last night for Cristobal to board the Grace liner Santa Elena, which will take Mr. Welles and his advisers to New York city.

The Brazilian delegation sailed for New Orleans, where it planned to board a ship for Rio de Janeiro.

British Are Skeptical

LONDON, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—Skepticism as to the wisdom and feasibility of a Western Hemisphere "safety belt" characterized British reaction today to the neutrality declaration adopted Monday by the inter-American neutrality conference in Panama.

"The Manchester Guardian" was the only newspaper to editorialize on the action. There was no official comment.

A first impression in responsible British circles was one of serious doubt that the Americas could inforce such a policy in the huge sea area included, and that any force exerted in police action would raise grave issues.

"The Guardian" inferentially raised the question of whether such a "safety belt" would be compatible with Great Britain's own war interests from a naval standpoint. The editorial concluded: "If in these great (sea) tracts, so hard to oversee, raiders or submarines should still hide, should destroy and not be discovered, could she (Britain) resist the call to defend her shipping with her own warships—that is to say, of course, if the American states did not inforce their edict?"

Extends Monroe Doctrine.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 4 (A. P.).—La Nacion said editorially today the neutrality zone fixed by the Inter-American Conference "is easier to establish than to maintain."

"The declaration stands itself," the newspaper said, "as a complement to the Monroe Doctrine. In reality, it is a step more. It is a continentalization of a doctrine that was high minded, but unilateral."

PANAMA PLAN VIEWED AS AID TO GERMANY

Would Reopen Trade To Tied-Up Nazi Vessels, U. S. Shippers Say

British And French See Inroad To Hitler's Sea Raiders

[By the Associated Press]

Cristobal, C. Z., Oct. 4—Steamship agents representing neutral lines in the Panama Canal Zone said today they feared the Panama inter-American neutrality zone declaration would prove to be impracticable.

They said the work of insuring the defense of the safety zone would fall too heavily on the United States, whose navy would be insufficient to patrol the vast territory and at the same time defend its own coast lines.

Some North American steamship agents said the neutrality zone would permit German ships now in American ports to continue with immunity their inter-American trade, competing with the efforts of the United States companies to take over the business the Germans are losing at present.

Held Boon To German Raiders

Agents of British and French companies were of the opinion the safety zone would permit German ships to reenter with impunity inter-American trade clandestinely and wage warfare against British and French shipping.

One agent said it would be impossible to expect the British and German warships within the safety zone to meet without engaging in hostilities.

Several agents of lines of belligerent countries remarked that "the best protection our shipping has anywhere in the world is our own navy."

Many Nazi Ships Tied Up

More than a score of German freighters still are tied up in Atlantic ports of South America, as a result of the British blockade.

Buenos Aires shipping circles questioned whether British cruisers would allow the German steamers to move freely between South American ports, even within the 300-mile neutral zone, because of the danger that such movements might allow the Germans to render service to submarine and commerce raiders.

A survey of the east coast showed two German freighters at Belem (Para), Brazil; six at Recife (Pernambuco), Brazil; four at Bahia, Brazil; four at Rio de Janeiro; two at Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil; one at Montevideo, Uruguay; two at Buenos Aires and one at Bahia Blanca, Argentina.

Passenger Service Disrupted

Meanwhile, French transatlantic passenger service to South American ports was disrupted and all but halted, and the Royal Netherlands Line announced discontinuance of similar service because of the danger of mined areas overseas.

British agents declared all their ships were running on schedule and this seemed borne out by a steady stream of transits through the Panama Canal.

The camouflaged British ships were arriving and departing without fanfare.

Declaration Transmitted To Paris, London, Berlin

Panama, Panama, Oct. 4 (AP)—The "declaration of Panama," establishing a neutral zone at sea around the Americas with the exception of Canada and foreign possessions, was dispatched today to President Lebrun of France, King George of England, and Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany.

President Juan D. Arosemena of Panama transmitted the messages, as directed by the twenty-one-nation neutrality conference which closed yesterday.

The conference selected President Arosemena as its spokesman.

Coast Patrol Tightened In New England Waters

Boston, Oct. 4 (AP)—Trim destroyers that require even American coastwise vessels to identify themselves tightened their neutrality patrol of New England waters today as five Federal agencies were coordinated in the drive to prevent smuggling of contraband or movement of supplies to raiders of the sea.

Indication of the close scrutiny of all shipping was the brief halting by an unidentified United States destroyer of the Eastern Steamship liner Evangeline on a run between Canadian ports and Boston.

Business Leaders Join Drive on Price Boosts

Administration Enlists Aid of Advisory Council

OCT 5 1939

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP).—Fifty-three leaders in industry and finance enlisted today in the Administration's campaign against "unwarranted price increases." They are the members of the Commerce Department's Business Advisory Council. Specifically, they agreed to act as a liaison between the government and business in keeping watchful eyes on the price situation.

The members include W. A. Harriman, chairman of the Union Pacific Railroad and chairman of the council; E. R. Stettinius jr., chairman of the United States Steel Corporation; S. Clay Williams, chairman of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company; James D. Mooney, vice-president of General Motors Corporation; Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill Company; D. M. Nelson, vice-president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Paul W. itchfield, president of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company; James F. Fogarty, president of the North American Company, and others of similar prominence.

Although the council announced that it would act in a strictly voluntary capacity, the nature of its membership is such that it is in a strategic position to meet business interests which make prices.

Order by Army Doubles Total Of 12-Ton Tanks

329 High-Speed Vehicles, of Type Used by Reich in Poland, Cost $6,000,000

OCT 5 1939

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP).—The Army placed an order for 329 high speed, twelve-ton tanks today and thus doubled the number of such modern fighting vehicles it will have at its command.

A $6,000,000 order was given the American Car & Foundry Company It will be followed by production of a smaller number of heavier and more powerful medium tanks. Deliveries are expected to start early next year. This modernized type of weapon was employed in spectacular fashion by Germany in the invasion of Poland.

When all the tanks are ready in 1941, the Army will have far more in service than at any time since the immediate post-war period. By comparison with European armies on wheels, however, the number will beb small. The six or more Nazi "panzer" or armored divisions are said to have 400 tanks each and several mechanized cavalry divisions have 448 each.

The new American "light" tanks, described by officials as the "world's best," will cost $9,000 each. The medium tanks to be turned out jointly by arsenals and private industry are expected to cost from $40,000 to $50,000 each. The larger tanks weigh from seventeen to twenty tons.

Characteristics of the light tanks were not disclosed but they were described as improved versions of a 1934 standard light tank of eight tons, whose top speed is more than fifty miles an hour carrying three machine guns and a crew of four.

Many of the new light tanks will go to the National Guard. Congress, which voted a $110,000,000 supplemental appropriation last session in addition to regular funds to remedy Army deficiencies in equipment, was told the regular army needed 162 of this type, whereas the National Guard required 324. The guard had only thirty-six in service, officials testified.

The light tanks are employed with infantry, and their larger counterparts against fortified points.

ROME, OCT 4-(AP)-ITALY ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY TODAY THAT SHE WOULD REFRAIN FOR THE PRESENT FROM TAKING THE INITIATIVE IN ANY EFFORTS TO RESTORE PEACE TO EUROPE. OCT 5 1939

A CONTUNIQUE OF THE OFFICIAL STEFANI NEWS AGENCY DECLARED BRITISH NEWSPAPER REPORTS THAT PREMIER MUSSOLINI WAS STUDYING PLANS FOR A PEACE CONFERENCE WERE "WITHOUT ANY FOUNDATION."

"UNDER PRESENT CIRCUMSTANCES ITALY WILL NOT TAKE ANY INITIATIVE OF THIS SORT," THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

THE STATEMENT CONFIRMED THE OPINION PREVIOUSLY HELD BY INFORMED FASCIST CIRCLES THAT ITALY WOULD NOT LINK HERSELF WITH ANY PEACE PROPOSALS UNLESS CONVINCED THEY HAD A REASONABLE CHANCE OF SUCCESS.

WHEN FOREIGN MINISTER COUNT GALEAZZO CIANO RETURNED TUESDAY FROM A TALK WITH ADOLF HITLER IN BERLIN THERE WAS CONSIDER-ABLE SPECULATION WHETHER MUSSOLINI WOULD RELAY PEACE PROPOSALS FROM THE FUEHRER TO BRITAIN AND FRANCE.

ITALIAN PRESS DESPATCHES DESCRIBED PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN'S SPEECH IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS YESTERDAY AS REVEALING A LESSENING OF "BRITISH INTRANSIGEANCE."

FASCIST CIRCLES RECOGNIZED, HOWEVER, THAT THERE STILL MIGHT BE A CONSIDERABLE GAP BETWEEN WHAT HITLER MIGHT PROPOSE AS A BASIS FOR PEACE NEGOTIATIONS AND WHAT THE BRITISH-FRENCH ALLIES MIGHT ACCEPT.

THOSE CIRCLES EXPRESSED BELIEF HITLER MIGHT BE ABLE TO MEET BRITISH CONDITIONS FOR PRESENTING PROPOSALS WITHOUT AN ULTIMATUM CHARACTER, BUT SOME DOUBT WAS INDICATED AS TO WHETHER THE ALLIES WOULD ACCEPT WHATEVER ASSURANCES OR GUARANTEES HITLER MIGHT OFFER.

(CHAMBERLAIN YESTERDAY SAID "MERE ASSURANCES" OF THE HITLER REGIME WERE INSUFFICIENT IN THE LIGHT OF GERMANY'S PAST RECORD.)

SO LIFE DRAGS ON BEHIND THE FRONT. TO THE FOLKS WHO ARE KEEPING THE HOME FIRES BURNING THIS NEW WAR IS NOT ONLY TRAGIC BUT DULL. ALMOST UNBEARABLY DULL. THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

THE QUESTION OF WHETHER FUEHRER HITLER IS SOWING HIS PEACE SEEDS ON STONY GROUND MUST TOWER ABOVE ALL OTHER ISSUES, PENDING A CLARIFICATION OF HIS POLICIES, REPUTEDLY TO BE MADE IN HIS FORTHCOMING REICHSTAG SPEECH WHICH IS EXPECTED ABOUT THE END OF THIS WEEK.

NAZIDOM APPARENTLY HASN'T YET ABANDONED THE IDEA OF PERSUADING THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES TO END THE WAR (ON HITLER'S TERMS) DESPITE BRITISH PREMIER CHAMBERLAIN'S REITERATION YESTERDAY THAT THE ALLIES WOULDN'T ACCEPT A HITLERIAN PEACE.

OCT 5 1939

NOTWITHSTANDING THE DEADLOCK BETWEEN THE COMBATANTS, THE PUBLIC REACTION IN THE VARIOUS AFFECTED COUNTRIES--ON BOTH SIDES OF THE DEBATE--CAN LEAVE LITTLE DOUBT THAT THE MAN-IN-THE-STREET AND HIS WIFE AND HIS YOUNGSTERS ARE YEARNING FOR PEACE.

ONE MIGHT EVEN GO FURTHER AND SUGGEST CAUTIOUSLY THAT THERE MIGHT BE SOME HOPE OF PEACE IF HERR HITLER WERE PREPARED TO TAKE A DEEP ENOUGH DIVE INTO THE WATERS OF RESTITUTION AND GUARANTEED REFORM.

THE ALLIES HAVE DECLARED THEIR INTENTION TO GET HIS SCALP, BUT ONE TAKES THE LIBERTY OF SUSPECTING THEY MIGHT FOREGO THAT PLEASURE IF THEY GOT EVERYTHING ELSE THEY ARE FIGHTING FOR.

THE NAZI CHIEFTAIN, HOWEVER, HAS NEVER ESTABLISHED A REPUTATION FOR DEEP DIVING AND SELF-EFFACEMENT.

THE WORD OF THE DAY IN EUROPE, THEREFORE, IS HOPE BUT NOT OPTIMISM.

OCT 5 1939

A PARAGRAPH IN AN ASSOCIATED PRESS DESPATCH FROM ROME SEEMS TO SUM UP THE PUBLIC FEELING IN ALL COUNTRIES PRETTY WELL IN THESE WORDS:

"SOME ITALIANS SEEMED TO FEEL THAT OPTIMISM BASED UPON THE CAREFULLY WORDED DECLARATIONS OF BRITISH SPOKESMEN WAS NO MORE THAN GRASPING AT STRAWS IN THE WIND. SO DISASTROUS DID THE PROSPECT OF A GENERAL EUROPEAN WAR APPEAR TO ITALIANS, HOWEVER, THAT THEY WERE INCLINED TO SEIZE UPON THE SLIGHTEST GROUNDS FOR HOPE."

WHILE THE BRITISH HAVE LEFT THE DOOR OPEN FOR CONSIDERATION OF ANY LEGITIMATE PEACE-OFFER, THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES ARE GOING AHEAD WITH THE IDEA THAT THE WAR WILL CONTINUE AND IN AN INTENSIFIED FORM.

OCT 5 1939

THE LONDON TIMES, WHICH OFTEN REFLECTS OFFICIAL POLICY, DECLARES THAT ANY GERMAN PEACE TERMS ACCEPTABLE TO THE ALLIES MUST OFFER THE

IRREDUCIBLE MINIMUM OF "THE RESTITUTION OF THE INDEPENDENCE OF POLAND AND SECURITY FOR THE FUTURE PEACE OF EUROPE."

THE FRENCH PRESS ACCLAIMED CHAMBERLAIN'S STATEMENT THAT "NO THREAT CAN PERSUADE OUR COUNTRY OR FRANCE TO ABANDON THE PURPOSE FOR WHICH WWE HAVE ENTERED THE STRUGGLE." IT INTERPRETED THE BRITISH PREMIER'S SPEECH AS A "TREMENDOUS SLAP IN THE FACE" FOR HITLER.

BERLIN DECLINED OFFICIAL COMMENT, BUT THE MIEN OF OFFICIALDOM WAS GRAVE. HOWEVER, HERR HITLER, WHO WORKED FAR INTO THE NIGHT TO STUDY THE CHAMBERLAIN DECLARATION, WAS RELIABLY REPORTED AS HOLDING THAT THE PREMIER'S SPEECH DIDN'T GIVE A CLEAR REPLY TO THE GERMAN-RUSSIAN PEACE DECLARATION OF MOSCOW AND CONTAINED NOTHING SUBSTANTIALLY NEW.

WELL-INFORMED QUARTERS FORECAST A STRENGTHENING OF NAZI-RUSSIAN TIES AS A RESULT OF THE BRITISH ATTITUDE.

IN THE THEATRE OF WAR THE OUTSTANDING DEVELOPMENT HAS BEEN THE APPEARANCE OF DREAD TYPHUS IN POLAND. THIS PRESENTS A GRAVE PROBLEM NOT ONLY TO THE GERMAN AND RUSSIAN ARMIES OF OCCUPATION, BUT TO EASTERN EUROPE AS A WHOLE.

"IT IS IMPORTANT TO NOTE THAT FOLK WHO HAVE BEEN WEAKENED BY LACK OF PROPER FOOD ARE SUSCEPTIBLE TO TYPHUS. INDEED, ONE NAME FOR IT IS THE 'FAMINE DISEASE.' ANY SHORTAGE OF FOOD AS A RESULT OF THE WAR WOULD TEND TO FOSTER AN EPIDEMIC."

Reich Tells U.S. Of Plot to Sink Ship

White House Says Berlin Advises That the Iroquois, Carrying Americans, Will Be Sent Down Like Athenia.

OCT 6 1939

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The White House announced in a statement today that the head of the German navy had informed the United States that the American steamship Iroquois carrying Americans back from Europe, would be sunk when it nears the American East coast.

Before handing the statement to reporters, Stephen Early, a White House secretary, said the matter had been fully discussed at a Cabinet meeting today and it was decided that all of the facts should be made known.

He asserted that the information was given to the United States naval attache at the embassy in Berlin by Grand Admiral Raeder of the German Navy.

The President received it last night.

The statement issued at the White House said that Admiral Raeder had advised the attache "that according to information on which he relied, an American ship, the Iroquois, is to be sunk when it nears our American east coast."

OCT 6 1939

"The sinking of the Iroquois," Admiral Raeder said, "would be accomplished, through a repetition of circumstances which marked the loss of the steamship Athenia."

The Athenia was sunk on the day England entered the war against Germany.

As a "purely precautionary measure," the White House statement asserted, "a Coast Guard vessel and several navy ships from the patrol will meet the Iroquois at sea and will accompany her to an American port."

Mr. Early emphasized that these armed ships would not be an escort in the true sense of the word, since the Iroquois still would be under command of her captain, and would not take orders from the Government vessels.

The captain of the steamship has been advised of the information received from the German Admiralty and has been asked to "make careful search for any possible explosives on board his ship," it was stated.

The whole of this information also has been relayed to the British and French Admiralties, the White House disclosed.

The Iroquois sailed from Ireland on October 2 with what was described as a full list of American passengers. Formerly in the American coastwise trade, she was chartered by the Maritime Commission to pick up in Ireland Americans who had been caught in Europe at the start of the war.

Mr. Early asserted that the Cabinet meeting today had been devoted "practically entirely" to a thorough discussion of the information about the Iroquois.

"The White House," he told reporters, "is not putting it out for the purpose of creating any alarms. We don't believe, as a matter of fact, that many people in the United States will believe the report is true or could be true.

"We can't imagine that any British, or French or other ships would do such a thing as the dispatch states."

The Iroquois, a Clyde-Mallory liner of 8,937 tons, until a few weeks ago was serving West Indies and Caribbean ports. The Government directed that she be taken off the run and sent to Europe to assist in bringing back Americans stranded abroad.

The ship made her first trip to Europe on this commission early last week. Wireless reports earlier today stated that the Iroquois had sailed from Liverpool, filled to capacity with passengers, and that she should reach New York next Wednesday morning.

Flotilla Sent to Meet Ship

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (AP)—A flotilla of United States war vessels raced tonight to protect the American steamship Iroquois after the government received an amazing tip from the head of the German Navy that the vessel would be sunk as she neared this country's shores laden with Americans coming home from Europe.

The tip, as made public by the White House, did not say how or by whom the vessel was to be sunk. But it left the strong implication that Germany was laying the responsibility in advance on England or France.

While expressing incredulity that any one would do such a deed, the White House dispatched several naval ships and a Coast Guard cutter to the side of the vessel.

Stephen T. Early, a Presidential secretary, said that the Cabinet had discussed little else at a meeting with the President this afternoon, and that it had been decided the information should be given the public.

Early's remarks, and a reference in the Berlin warning to the sinking of the Athenia, seemed to support the interpretation that Germany was telling this country, in effect, that Great Britain or France intended to sink the Iroquois and credit the deed to a German submarine.

One question which went unanswered tonight was how Germany had gained the advance information which it claimed to have.

The Navy declined to disclose the number or names of the vessels rushing toward the Iroquois. The position of the liner likewise remained secret.

Not Officially an Escort

Early told reporters the Coast Guard and naval vessels would "accompany" rather than "escort" the Iroquois. When a ship is escorted, he said, it is under command of the convoying vessels. When a vessel is merely accompanied, he said, it remains under orders of her own captain. He said the Iroquois would not be darkened or operated under orders of the warcraft.

Early said the President had received the original dispatch regarding the Iroquois last night. All the information it contained, he said, was included in the White House statement, although it was paraphrased to protect the code in which it was transmitted to this country.

In giving out the statement, he asserted, the White House was motivated also by the knowledge that in one way or another the press would get it soon, anyway. He said the information in the dispatch had been sent to the captain of the Iroquois in international code, which is not secret, and could be picked up by amateur radio operators.

Kennedy Has No Comment

LONDON, Oct. 5 (AP).—United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy said tonight he had no comment on a warning given by German Grand Admiral Erich Raeder that the American liner Iroquois was to be sunk under circumstances similar to the loss of the British liner Athenia.

The Ambassador said that the Iroquois left Cork, Ireland, on Oct. 3 with about 600 Americans, and that only those able to prove United States citizenship had received passage, since the trip was especially to repatriate Americans.

About 4,000 Americans were reported still stranded in Ireland.

LONDON, OCT. 6-(FRIDAY)-(AP)-THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY MAINTAINED OFFICIAL SILENCE EARLY TODAY ON THE WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE HEAD OF THE GERMAN NAVY HAD WARNED THAT THE UNITED STATES LINER IROQUOIS WOULD BE SUNK UNDER CIRCUMSTANCES SIMILAR TO THE LOSS OF THE BRITISH LINER ATHENIA.

President's Statement on Iroquois

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—The text of President Roosevelt's announcement of measures to protect the steamship Iroquois read as follows:

After thorough discussion at the meeting of the Cabinet (this afternoon), and because it is felt that there is no reason for withholding the following facts from the public, this information is given out:

Yesterday the head of the German Navy, Grand Admiral Raeder, officially informed the American Government, through the United States naval attaché in Berlin, that, according to information on which he relied, an American ship, the Iroquois, is to be sunk when it nears our American east coast.

The sinking of the Iroquois, Admiral Raeder said, would be accomplished through a repetition of circumstances which marked the loss of the steamship Athenia.

The S. S. Iroquois, formerly in our coast-wise trade, was chartered by the Maritime Commission recently to go to Ireland to bring back Americans who had been caught in Europe at the outbreak of the war.

The Iroquois sailed from Ireland on Oct. 2 with a full list of American passengers.

This was the chief tenor of the official note sent to us by the head of the German Navy.

As a purely precautionary measure, a Coast Guard vessel and several navy ships from the patrol will meet the Iroquois at sea and will accompany her to an American port.

Furthermore, the captain of the Iroquois has been informed of this official note from the German Admiralty and has been asked to make a careful search for any possible explosives on board his ship.

The whole of this information has also been conveyed to the British and French Admiralties.

adding, "I do not think they have got this apparatus or anything like it."

He pointed out that the threat of its use was sufficient to stop mysterious submarine attacks on Mediterranean shipping some time previously.

The hydrophone, a highly sensitive electrical "ear" fitted to the hull of every warship, has been greatly improved by every world naval power since 1918.

Device Is Accurate.

The great sensitivity and accuracy of this device enabled a submarine-hunting ship to comb undersea sections systematically whereas the world war type "listened" indiscriminately. From the mass of undersea sounds, it then was difficult or impossible to distinguish the presence or location of a submarine.

The Admiralty plans by the end of this month to have in service a submarine-hunting force three times as great as that at the start of the war.

In addition, dockyards throughout Britain are busy placing defensive armaments on hundreds of merchant vessels, harried by undersea boats since the very day Britain declared war.

Crew Of Damaged Sub Saved As Enemy Planes Are Beaten

British Craft Had Been Hit By So Many Depth Bombs Sailors Bet On Time Of Explosions

OCT 6 1939

[By The Associated Press]

London, Oct. 6.—The dramatic rescue of a disabled submarine's crew while warships and aircraft fought off enemy planes overhead was told today in an official "eyewitness" account given to the British press.

The submarine lay at the bottom of the sea with her periscope blown off by German depth charges while the seamen held a "sweepstakes" on when the next explosion would come, the account said. The crew was represented as prepared to blow up their craft rather than surrender to the enemy.

The account said early one morning in her "allotted patrol area in enemy waters" the submarine fixed her position and dived.

"Shortly before breakfast the detonation of a depth charge quite close to her suggested emphatically that she was in the vicinity of enemy forces," it continued.

Next Charge Closer

"Her captain decided to have a look at them through his periscope and put his ballast pump in action (to rise to the surface). Another depth charge promptly exploded much closer.

Explosion Comes At Last

"Then what they awaited happened. A shattering explosion . . . all lights were extinguished. There was everywhere the crash of broken glass and in the silence that followed the sound of water spurting and the hiss of air escaping from the high - pressure system.

"Portable electric lights revealed enough of the catastrophe. One motor and both engines were out of action. From half a dozen leaks in the air system air hissed as from a punctured tire."

The air gradually grew foul, the report said, and the first lieutenant passed around peppermint drops and a bag of candy to his men.

Planned To Fight

When the commander knew by his clock that darkness had fallen, he mustered his men and told them that if ballast tanks held he intended to rise to the surface and "although his ship was as helpless as a log . . . fight to the death."

The men loaded torpedo tubes and prepared ammunition for other guns and "as a last grim measure they prepared a demolition charge to blow their ship to pieces rather than let her fall into the hands of the enemy."

Finally, when all was ready for what they believed would be their "last fight," the crew blew the tanks and rose floundering to the surface.

Pressure At Danger Point

The pressure inside the hull had raised to a dangerous point.

The "lightweight" captain guarded against being literally blown through the hatch when it was opened by having a 200-pound signalman hold him by the legs, the account said, but despite this protection, the force of air blew the captain's binoculars above his head.

"He climbed out and looked anxiously about him. It was a clear night and there was nothing in sight," the account said.

The periscope was gone, the wireless smashed, communicaton pipes crushed and engines disabled.

"The crew lay down to conserve valuable oxygen consumed by movement. During the next hour they counted six detonations as the enemy groped about in search of them with sweep wires, electrically operated bombs and depth charges."

Crew Holds "Sweepstakes"

The account went on to say the submarine could do nothing but remain on the bottom and during this time the crew held "sweepstakes" at sixpence (about 11 cents) a throw on when the next explosion would come.

"The bombardment intensified. For the next hour the explosions averaged one every two minutes. They grew gradually more distant. Then there was a lull.

"About teatime, the strained, weary men in the submarine heard a wire scraping over the after jumping-stay . . . a series of bumps thudded along the hull. . . .

U-Boats Face New Technic

OCT 6 1939

British Navy Feels Confident Devices It Uses Will Crush Submarines.

LONDON, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The British and German navies are locked in a battle of technics. Tied up with it is the British hope of ultimate and possibly early defeat of the German submarine campaign against allied merchant shipping.

Although Admiralty officials will not talk, students of wartime technic give an idea of the nature of the problem and the measures the navy is taking to meet it.

Torpedoes have been improved since the world war, but so have depth charges — main offensive weapon against submarines.

The modern heater torpedo, driven by superheated steam, and equally exploited by Great Britain and Germany, does not leave the objectionable and telltale bubble track that was a fault of the compressed-air type. By watching the bubbles, clever helmsmen were able to dodge after the old-style torpedoes were fired.

OCT 6 1939

Bombs Dropped From Skids.

Depth bombs, shaped somewhat like steel oil drums, are either dropped from skids at the stern of an attacking destroyer or lobbed out about forty yards from the side of the ship by howitzers.

Exploding under water, a nearby depth charge may crush or spring the hull plates of a submarine by a sudden increase in the water pressure.

"The actual distance at which a depth charge must explode from a submarine to crush its hull is a secret," says Lieut.-Commander Kenneth Edwards, a British naval authority, in a standard work. "But even if it does not crush it completely, it is liable to do extensive damage."

Britain has virtually abandoned the anti-torpedo nets slung booms from the sides of ships during the world war. The nets seldom proved strong enough to stop a torpedo, and their weight reduced speed and hampered maneuvers.

Bigger and stronger nets, designed to stop and entangle an attacking submarine itself, now are strung across the entrances to every British port.

OCT 6 1939

Detection Improved.

Britain has improved submarine detection apparatus, details of which have been carefully hidden. Successive Admiralty officials have dropped dark hints in Parliament, however, of a virtually infallible "machine."

Lord Stanhope, then First Lord of the Admiralty, told the House of Lords last August that Britain had such an apparatus and that other countries were aware of its value,

But the crew eventually made sufficient repairs to sail slowly away and send out a wireless for help.

British cruisers and an aircraft carrier appeared just as enemy bombing planes appeared overhead.

OCT 5 1939

Air Attack Failed

"An air attack by the enemy bombing planes crumbled under the anti-aircraft fire of the cruisers and the attacks of fighters sent up by the carrier," the account continued.

When the craft reached a submarine base, the commander found a letter from a rural relative awaiting him which the account quoted as opening with the line:

"We hardly realize there is a war."

Details of the submarine's personnel and her position were withheld.

IRISH FAILED TO HOLD U-BOAT

Submarine Slipped Away Before Capture.

SAVED CREW OF GREEK SHIP

Sailors Were Put Ashore Near Where Casement Landed.

OCT 6 1939

LONDON, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The British Press Association said today that a German submarine which landed twenty-eight men from the torpedoed Greek steamer Diamantis on the Irish coast acted too quickly for guards of neutral Ireland to attempt internment of the U-boat.

The ship's crew was set ashore last evening near Dingle, County Kerry, some fifteen miles from the spot where Sir Roger Casement, Irish nationalist, was landed by a German submarine in a world war anti-British plot.

First reports from Dublin said the submarine exchanged greetings with persons ashore while the Diamantis's survivors were ferried to land in a collapsible boat. The Diamantis, 4,990 tons, was sunk off Land's End on Tuesday.

Irish Guards Too Late.

"Civic guards patrolling the coast saw the submarine on the surface and rushed to the spot," said the Press Association's account, "but they were too late to detain the German U-boat. While they were still some distance away the submarine moved away from the coast and started to submerge.

"When the guards actually reached the scene of the landing the only evidence of the daring maneuver of the German U-boat commander was a stretch of frothy sea where the submarine had disappeared and a group of bewildered seamen were on the shore.

Six of the survivors were taken to Dingle hospital for treatment of injuries sustained in the torpedoing. The others said they had been aboard the U-boat for thirty-six hours and were treated courteously while it cruised off the Irish coast seeking a spot to put them ashore.

Informed sources pointed out that the obligation of a neutral state to intern a submarine in such a case existed only if sufficient force to carry out the internment were available—such as a warship.

Region Is Desolate One.

The region selected for the landing was described by the British as desolate and although it is patrolled night and day only one customs officer happened to be in the immediate neighborhood.

Sir Roger Casement and two companions were landed similarly on the night of April 20, 1916. Their arrival was alleged to have been part of a plan for the Easter week Irish uprising. Sir Roger was executed in London.

President Eamon de Valera told the Irish Senate last night that the country would strengthen her neutrality by making nightly blackouts compulsory to prevent any belligerent planes from using Ireland's lights as guideposts. At present only Ireland's street lights are shaded.

Army Seeks To Bar Possible Nazi Drive Through Neutral Duchy

Paris Is Not Interested In Peace Unless Occupied Poland Is Given Up

By H. TAYLOR HENRY
Associated Press Correspondent

OCT 6 1939

Paris, Oct. 5—French troops capitalized on a lull in fighting on the Western front today to organize new lines in German border territory.

The high command communique tonight said it was "a generally calm day," with "activity of reconnaissance units on both sides on various parts of the front."

A morning communique gave no indication of action along the sixty-mile northern flank, except for sporadic artillery fire, but the French were reported to have strengthened their positions to prevent any possible German drive through the neutral duchy of Luxembourg.

Capture Borg Forest

Semi-official military advices said the French took full possession of the strategic Borg Forest, east of Luxembourg, after a short skirmish with German tanks.

A series of German local attacks of the last few days apparently faded out last night after attempts to filter into the French western positions in the forest-covered Haardt Mountains near the German town of Pirmasens.

While the French awaited tomorrow's session of the Reichstag for possible public German peace bid, their attention turned to naval developments.

Seizure 1,000 Miles At Sea

Yesterday's capture of a German merchant vessel by a French submarine was disclosed to have taken place 1,000 miles out in the Atlantic.

Although the warcraft was not named, the description was seen as applying only to the Surcouf, the world's largest undersea vessel. Janes' "Fighting Ships" credits the Surcouf with a 12,000-mile cruising range, sped up to nineteen knots, and armaments that include twenty-two torpedoes, eight guns and her own small seaplane.

The French said the British fleet had seized almost 300,000 tons of contraband consigned to Germany since the war began and described French seizures as "important," although no figures were given.

This work of the blockading fleet, the French contended, was stimulating a German desire for peace, and from it they themselves were hoping in large part for ultimate victory, they said.

Demand Poland Be Given Up

France maintained the position tonight, however, that she was not interested in German peace proposals unless Germany and Russia yield the occupied territory of Poland and gave guarantees for a permanent settlement of Europe's problems.

Acting on Cabinet authority to clean up remaining elements of the outlawed Communist party, police arrested Florimond Bonte, member of the Chamber of Deputies and secretary general of the Workers and Farmers party, organized when Communists were banned.

OCT 6 1939

Arthur Ramette, 42-year-old president of the party, eluded them, however, having fled Paris as soon as the dissolution of Parliament yesterday removed his immunity as a Deputy.

Evidence Reported Found

Police said a search of both men's homes disclosed evidence to justify charges of "being in communication with a foreign power."

The new drive against Communists came after Ramette and Bonte wrote to Edouard Herriot, President of the Chamber of Deputies, demanding a public session to discuss peace.

Police also today quietly removed the Communist officials of thirty-nine cities and will replace them with appointees of the district police prefects.

TANK MEETS TANK IN BATTLE

Warrants Out for Two Communist Deputies as Daladier Orders Parliament Adjourned

OCT 6 1939

PARIS, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The French Army was reported today to have strengthened its position so greatly by recent gains at the northwestern end of the German front as to minimize the danger of any attempt to turn its left flank by a thrust through neutral Luxemburg.

Military advices said that the French Army had captured, and was in full possession of, the Borg Forest after a brief, close-range battle between French and German tanks. The forest is in the strategic sector between the Moselle and the Saar, just east of Luxemburg.

Tonight the French high command issued the following communique:

"A generally calm day.

"Activity of reconnaissance units of both sides on various parts of the front."

OCT 6 1939

Activity on Political Front.

On the political front, the police were taking action against members of the dissolved Communist party on charges of attempting to put the party into operation under another name. An order was issued for the arrest of two communist members of the Chamber of Deputies, Florimond Bonte, a forty-nine-year-old journalist, and Arthur Ramette, a forty-two-year-old mechanic.

In an official decree, apparently aimed at muzzling Communist deputies who have been urging peace talks with the Reich, Premier Daladier sent Parliament home on vacation. This action stripped the deputies of the parliamentary immunities they have enjoyed since Parliament was summoned in extraordinary session on September 2.

Also today the Official Journal published notice of the suspension of thirty-nine municipal councils throughout France in which communist elements had held power.

Czech Army to Be Raised.

The press acclaimed the speech delivered yesterday before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies by Premier Daladier, who asserted that France would fight until victorious in the war "that has been forced upon us."

The Premier disclosed that he had signed an agreement with Stefan Osusky, still recognized as the Czech Minister here, for the reconstitution of the Czech Army in France, bringing man-power to the Allied cause.

The Catholic newspaper Le Figaro declared editorially that "cutting out the communist abscess is a public health measure; they shot men for less during the last war."

Mr. Daladier conferred at the War Ministry last night with the American Ambassador, William C. Bullitt. An embassy official said the talk was of "routine matters."

Jean Giono, arrested yesterday as one of a group of persons who had signed an appeal for "immediate peace," was identified today as the author of a book, "The Song of the World."

Giono and another writer named Lecoin were arrested under a law forbidding publication of matter "susceptible of exercising an unfortunate influence on the spirit of the army and the people."

Dispute Over Motion Picture.

Jean Giono was known in the United States chiefly for his novel "Harvest," on which is based the French motion picture of the same name. The novel deals with French peasant characters.

The showing of the film was banned by the New York State Board of Censors on the ground that it would corrupt public morals, but the decision was reversed on September 15 by the State Board of Regents.

Giono was born of Italian parentage in 1895 at Manosque in the Basses-Alps.

FRENCH SOURCES, COMMENTING ON A COMMUNIQUE LAST NIGHT ANNOUNCING CAPTURE OF A GERMAN MERCHANT SHIP BY A FRENCH SUBMARINE, SAID THE PRIZE WAS SEIZED MORE THAN 1,100 MILES AT SEA. THE SUBMARINE WAS ONE OF THE LARGEST IN THE FRENCH NAVY, IT WAS SAID.

ON THE GERMAN FRONT, REPORTS INDICATED, FRENCH MILITARY LEADERS WERE STRENGTHENING THEIR LINES IN THE HILLY SAAR AND PALTINATE SECTORS TO MEET THE THREAT OF A POSSIBLE GERMAN ASSAULT.

STEADY "NIBBLING" BY FRENCH PATROLS ALSO WAS REPORTED TO HAVE RESULTED IN GAINS IN THE MOSELLE RIVER SECTOR.

SEMI-OFFICIAL MILITARY INFORMATION SAID THE FRENCH NOW WERE IN FULL POSSESSION OF THE BORG FOREST IN THE POCKET BETWEEN THE MOSELLE AND SAAR RIVERS NEAR THE BORDER OF NEUTRAL LUXEMBOURG.

WHILE A GENERAL STAFF COMMUNIQUE THIS MORNING REPORTED ONLY "INTERMITTENT ARTILLERY ACTIONS AT DIFFERENT POINTS ON THE FRONT," DISPATCHES FROM LUXEMBOURG SAID CAPTURE OF THE BORG FOREST HAD BEEN MARKED BY CLOSE RANGE COMBAT BETWEEN FRENCH AND GERMAN TANKS.

THESE NEW GAINS, IT WAS SAID, PLACED THE FRENCH IN BETTER POSITION TO RESIST ANY NAZI ATTEMPT TO OUTFLANK THE MAGINOT DEFENSES BY ADVANCING THROUGH LUXEMBOURG--A POSSIBILITY THAT FRENCH MILITARY MEN APPARENTLY WERE NOT READY TO DISMISS LIGHTLY. OCT 6 1939

THERE WAS NO EVIDENCE OF ANY IMMEDIATE SPECTACULAR MILITARY ACTIVITY AS THE GENERAL STAFF APPEARED BENT ON KEEPING CASUALTIES TO A MINIMUM AND USING TIME AS AN ALLY TO BRING GERMANY DOWN.

HITLER IN WARSAW TO PROCLAIM END OF POLISH WAR

Pays Triumphal One-day Visit to His Army in Captured Capital.

BERLIN, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Reichsfuehrer Hitler pronounced his Polish campaign complete today after he had reviewed the troops which conquered Warsaw and told his soldiers "I know you are ready for anything."

He also lauded the German forces for rising "to defend our country from Polish attack" in the order of the day to the army issued just after the triumphal review for which he flew from Berlin.

How Hitler Order Reads.

The order read:

"On September 1 you arose at my command to defend our country from Polish attack. In exemplary comradeship of arms among the army, air force and navy, you have fulfilled the task assigned you. You struck bravely and energetically.

"Today I was able to greet the troops who went into action against fortified Warsaw. This day brings to an end a battle carried on in the best traditions of German arms. With me the German people, full of pride, thanks you.

"The nation once again, thanks to you, looks with unshakable confidence to its military organization and its leadership.

"We revere the memory of the fallen who, with the 2,000,000 who died in the world war, gave their all that Germany might live.

"Under flags which wave proudly in all communities of Germany today we stand together more closely and adjust the helmet more securely. I know in your faith in Germany you are ready for anything."

The first word of his activity in dismembered Poland on the eve of his world-awaited Reichstag speech came in a report from Der Fuehrer's field headquarters by DNB, the German official news agency.

Officials earlier had refused to say whether Hitler had gone to Warsaw and his flag still flew over the chancellery.

Makes Trip by Airplane.

Der Fuehrer made the trip by airplane to Warsaw, where high Army officers and Nazis welcomed him. They included Col.-Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, commander-in-chief of the German Army; Col.-Gen. Erhard Milch, general inspector of the Air Force; Col.-Gen. Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt, eastern commander-in-chief, and two men who had leading roles in directing the attack on Warsaw—Col.-Gen. Walther von Reichenau and Col.-Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz. Hitler promoted Von Reichenau and Blaskowitz to the rank of Colonel-General only last Monday.

were Col.-Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, Chief of High Command of the Armed Forces; Henrich Himmler, head of all German police organizations; Dr. Hans Heinrich Lammers, member of the Wartime Ministerial Council as liaison officer between the council and Hitler, and Dr. Otto Dietrich, secretary of state in charge of press relations.

Meanwhile Germans pinned their peace hopes on the possibility that Hitler's Reichstag speech tomorrow would outline a basis on which hostilities might be ended.

Hitler Plans Long Speech.

Tomorrow Chancellor Hitler is scheduled to speak for one and three-fourths hours. It was stated that the rough draft of the speech had been completed, but changes were possible up to the last minute.

Der Fuehrer was scheduled to speak at noon to the members of his completely submissive Legislature, possibly to pronounce some new German attitude toward the Western Powers at war with Germany. But what Hitler intended to say remained a profound official secret and in official circles it was emphasized that speculation on his speech was "hazardous and a disservice to every one."

Even the best informed Berlin newspapers devoted only one sentence to announcing the Reichstag session although they displayed the announcement under their blackest headlines.

Dissatisfied With Britain.

Observers seeking a hint of what German policy may be, knew that in quarters close to the Foreign Office there was dissatisfaction with the attitude of the British Prime Minister, Neville Chamberlain, and with Lord Halifax, his Foreign Secretary, who have declared in Parliament that assurance from Germany would be examined in the light of the German Government's past broken promises and measured against the purposes for which Great Britain entered the war.

Observers here also knew that from inspired sources have come repeated statements that "Germany is ready for either peace or war" and that the choice is up to Great Britain.

Every effort is being made to place the responsibility for the war and for its prolongation upon the British.

The Nazis feel that with the fall of Warsaw the war in the east is finished; that war in the west has never really started.

Accuse Churchill.

That Germany was not in a hurry to start operations in the west was indicated by this morning's communique of the army High Command, which told yesterday's war story in two sentences. In the west, it said, "there was only minor artillery and scouting plane activity"; in the east, a continuation of the mopping up of "shattered remnants of Polish troops."

DNB, official German news agency, said in a communique today that during September German fighting planes and anti-aircraft batteries had shot down forty-five French and twenty-seven British planes on the western front.

DNB said that German pursuit planes had accounted for twenty-three enemy planes on September 30, which was marked by air fighting throughout the day. German losses that day were said to have been five planes.

The agency said that of one group of thirty-seven Franco-British planes which flew over the West Wall eight were destroyed and the rest forced to turn back.

Although neither France nor the French attitude toward the war was mentioned, newspapers prominently displayed the alleged order of the British Admiralty to British merchant ships to "ram every German submarine." The papers hotly blamed Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, for the order.

Meanwhile it was announced today that a German Government commission of twelve, headed by K. Schnurre, foreign office expert, will leave for Moscow Saturday to discuss economic and communications problems raised by the new German-Russian accord. Herr Schnurre signed the German-Russian trade agreement which was announced here August 20, three days before the two countries signed their non-aggression pact.

Polish Frontier Pact Signed.

MOSCOW, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Soviet Russia and Germany have signed an additional protocol to their friendship and border treaty, fixing a precise frontier between them in conquered and partitioned Poland.

The protocol was signed yesterday for Russia by Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and for Germany by her Ambassador to Moscow, Count Friedrich von der Schulenburg.

[The boundary had been set previously in the treaty signed September 28 at Moscow, but was identified only by a map attached to the pact. The line, most of it along the Bug and San Rivers, divides Poland into two nearly equal parts.]

It was agreed that a mixed commission would begin work October 9 placing frontier stones along the boundary of the Nazi and communist "spheres of interest" in conquered Poland.

There was no new announcement of the demarcation line between the two zones.

Lord Halifax's Statement.

LONDON, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—In restating the British war aims in the House of Lords last night, on the eve of a speech in Berlin tomorrow by Adolf Hitler, the Foreign Secretary, Lord Halifax, said that while Great Britain was willing to examine any proposals to end hostilities "we shall measure them against the principles for which we have taken up arms."

His statement was along the line of Prime Minister Chamberlain's declaration in the House of Commons on Tuesday.

Three parliamentary groups in caucus last night discussed the possibility of direct peace proposals. The Midland Conservatives, who support the Government, passed a resolution of "abiding confidence" in Mr. Chamberlain.

The Conservative 1922 Committee, described as the most influential body in the Commons, made no announcement of its decision and members were counseled to keep silent.

Meanwhile the Government announced that youths between 20 and 22 called for military service by a royal proclamation on October 1, would be required to register on Saturday, October 21, under the same system used when twenty-year-old youths were called up last June.

It was estimated that 240,000 were affected by the call, the same number as by the first mobilization decree.

WARSAW PROOF OF NAZI MIGHT, HITLER SAYS

Asserts Wreckage Shows "Criminal Folly" Of Resisting Germany

Fuhrer In Speech Today Expected To Put Peace Issue Up To Allies

[By the Associated Press]

Warsaw, Oct. 5—Adolf Hitler told foreign correspondents who accompanied him on his triumphant entry into Warsaw today that the wreckage of the Polish capital demonstrated how unwise it was to resist German arms.

"You see for yourselves what criminal folly it was to try to defend this city," he said in informal remarks to the newspapermen.

"The defense of this town collapsed after only two days. I wish certain statesmen who are trying to turn all Europe into another Warsaw might have seen what you saw today."

Handshaking And Smiles

Hitler's unscheduled remarks followed a review of his victorious Nazi troops. At the conclusion of the parade he sauntered over to the newsmen, shook hands all around and smiled genially.

He conversed for a moment before stepping into a motor car which took him to his plane for his return flight to Berlin.

All around was the sad evidence which prompted him to comment on the fate of the city which tried unsuccessfully to stand up against the German air force and battering artillery.

Careful observers estimated that eighty per cent. of Warsaw's buildings were wrecked to some extent and that thousands were destroyed by fire bombs.

Hitler Closely Guarded

Warsaw capitulated September 27. Although the city was under siege twenty days, Germans said not until September 25 did they start the general assault which caused the collapse of its defenses two days later.

Hitler was guarded with elaborate care today and it was doubtful whether any Pole so much as saw him as he stood on a platform in the diplomatic quarter to watch the two-hour parade of his troops.

Soldiers with fixed bayonets cleared the streets about the reviewing stand and only soldiers and carefully scrutinized guests of the German army witnessed the elaborate military display.

U. S. Embassy Unscathed

The center of the ceremony was a few blocks from the American Embassy which virtually was untouched in the long German siege. The Embassies of Belgium and The Netherlands also escaped extensive damage, but the Swedish legation lay in ruins.

A tour through the city disclosed the destructive nature of the bombardment which was concentrated with particular violence on the center of the city.

The central railway station and the chief shopping streets were particular targets—the station because of its strategic importance and the main streets because German aviators reported Polish troops used them extensively.

Hitler's Theme Peace Or War, Ribbentrop Hints

Berlin, Friday, Oct. 6 (AP)—The Western democracies must decide soon whether it is to be peace or war, and the choice is up to them, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop said today in an interview with a correspondent of the Tokyo newspaper Nichi Nichi.

Publication of the interview by the German news agency DNB was regarded as a hint in some quarters of what may be the tenor of Adolf Hitler's address to the Reichstag today.

"Germany always wanted peace," von Ribbentrop said. "The war with Poland was forced on the Reich by a Government which refused to accept the Führer's just compromise. Toward the west the Reich entertains peaceful intentions, but nevertheless the Western powers will have to decide soon whether to make serious war or not, and the choice is up to them."

Speech Begins At 6 A. M.

Hitler, back from a triumphal visit to Warsaw, is scheduled to begin his world-awaited declaration before the Reichstag at 6 A. M., Eastern standard time. The speech will last about one and three-quarter hours.

Unusual secrecy surrounded his one-day round trip to Warsaw, but that secrecy was matched by the lack of speculation in the press concerning tomorrow's speech.

In an order of the day issued to the army after his review of his triumphant troops in Warsaw, Hitler said his Polish campaign was finished and his soldiers "ready for anything."

Pays Tribute To Fallen

He said the day "brings to an end a battle carried on in the best tradition of German arms. With me the German people, full of pride, thank you.

"The nation once again, thanks to you, looks with unshakeable confidence to its military organization and its leadership."

The nation, he said, revered the memory of those who died, and today we stand together more closely and adjust the helmet more securely. I know your faith in Germany. You are ready for anything."

Defended "From Polish Attack"

Hitler declared the army on September 1 "arose at my command to defend our country from Polish attack. In exemplary comradeship of arms among the army, air force and navy, you have fulfilled the task assigned you."

A lull in the military operations on the Western front was interpreted as a period of waiting to see whether a peaceful way out of the conflict with the western powers should develop.

Foreign observers said they expected the Führer would attempt to fasten upon Great Britain responsibility for continuing the European war.

The general reaction to speeches by British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Minister Lord Halifax and French Premier Edouard Daladier was that the Allied nations had shown little readiness to avail themselves of a German-Russian peace offer.

Expected To Repeat Stand

Observers asserted they took it for granted, therefore, that Hitler would repeat Germany's determination to fight and win the war if the peace maneuvers definitely were spurned.

Political circles also expressed a belief the Führer would lash out against Britain's arming of commercial ships in the sea warfare.

Naval authorities said Germany's counter-measures would be decided upon in the very near future.

Hitler flew from Berlin to Warsaw for an inspection of the victorious Nazi forces and for a parade.

His Third Triumphal Trip.

It was the third such trip to a capital in slightly more than a year and a half. Before Warsaw there were Vienna and Prague, also the Free City of Danzig.

The usual secrecy surrounding his trip was explained by authoritative sources as necessary for reasons of security.

Up until late afternoon the only account of the visit was a concise dispatch carried from the Führer's field headquarters by DNB, German official news agency.

It said high military and civil dignitaries accompanied him and other leaders met him in the fallen Polish capital.

With Hitler In Warsaw

Those who accompanied him included:

Col. Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of high command of the armed forces.

Heinrich Himmler, head of all German police organizations.

Dr. Hans Heinrich Lammers, close associate of the Führer and liaison officer between him and the wartime ministerial council.

Dr. Otto Dietrich, press officer.

Welcoming officers included the commander in chief of the German army, Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, and two men who achieved promotions this week for their part in the campaign against Warsaw, Col. Gen. Walther von Reichenau and Col. Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz.

Allies' Air Toll Put At 74

The high command's yesterday morning communique asserted mopping-up activities in Poland continued, while on the Western front "there was only minor artillery and fighting-plane activity."

A DNB communique reported forty-five French and twenty-seven British planes had been shot down on the Western front during September by German fighting planes and anti-aircraft batteries.

Latvia Gives Bases to Soviet

Russia's Widening of Baltic Rule Is Seen as Aimed at Reich as Much as Britain.

MOSCOW, Oct. 5 (A. P.)—Russia and Latvia signed today a mutual assistance pact which gave the Soviet vast concessions, including the right to establish several air fields and naval bases at the Latvian ports of Libau and Windau. Russia also received a base for shore artillery "to protect Riga Bay."

The agreement reached after negotiations with William Munters, the Latvian Foreign Minister, which began last Monday—was announced officially in a Soviet broadcast at 10 P. M.

The treaty includes the granting to Russia the privilege to place a "limited" number of Soviet air, naval and land forces in Latvia.

It thus resembled closely the treaty concluded a week ago with another tiny Baltic neighbor, Estonia, which greatly strengthened Russia's military position in the Baltic.

Libau Is Close to Memel.

One of the ports in which the Soviet obtained naval rights is Libau, which is very close to Memel, German territory acquired only last March from Lithuania.

This emphasized the belief in diplomatic circles that the Soviet's strengthening of herself in the Baltic was aimed at Germany as much as Great Britain.

The pact contained six articles as follows:

1. Both parties are to extend military aid in case of aggression.
2. The Soviet is to furnish Latvia with munitions of war at low cost.
3. Three ports are opened to the Soviet as naval bases, to be garrisoned by a limited number of Soviet troops.
4. Neither party will conclude any treaty directed against the other.
5. Each will strictly observe the sovereignty and social system of the other; the new Soviet naval bases will remain Latvian territory.
6. The pact will extend for ten years and ratification will take place in Riga within six days.

Lithuania Comes Next.

Russia, capitalizing on her position following her new partnership with Germany, thus was seen laying the groundwork for formidable naval, air and military bases in the Baltic States.

Negotiations already are under way with another Baltic neighbor, Lithuania.

Tass, the official Russian news agency, said those taking part in the Latvia negotiation on the Russian side included Vyacheslaff Molotov, Premier and Foreign Commissar; Joseph Stalin; Vladimir Potemkin, Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs, and M. Zotoff, the Russian Minister to Riga. [illegible] Kotzins, the Latvian Minister to Moscow, aided his Foreign Minister on the Latvian side.

Etonian Pact Ratified.

TALLINN, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Formal ratification of a mutual assistance pact with Estonia left Soviet Russia free today to quarter 25,000 troops at strategic points in Estonian territory.

The agreement permits Russian forces to occupy the north Baltic islands of Dagoe and Oesel and the mainland port of Baltiski, and to establish naval and air bases at these points. These bases will give Russia control of the Gulfs of Finland, Riga and Bothnia.

The pact also increases trade relations between the two countries, granting Russia the right to ship goods through Estonia and permitting Estonia to ship across Russia to the Black Sea and Murmansk.

An exchange of letters at the Foreign Office last night ratified the pact just one hour before the expiration of the six-day period fixed when the agreement was drafted in Moscow last Friday.

Delay in ratification was reported due to a hitch in delivery of the papers from Moscow. A mixed Russian-Estonian commission still is working out details of the new arrangement.

Lithuania and Wilno.

Meanwhile reports from Kaunas said that the Lithuanian Foreign Minister Jouzas Urbsys, who returned from Moscow by plane yesterday, would make another visit to the Soviet capital soon to resume conversations on subjects of interest to both nations.

At Helsinki, the newspaper Uusi Suomi said that there was a strong possibility that Russia would cede to Lithuania some territory in the vicinity of Wilno, the former capital of Lithuania, which was seized by Poland in 1920.

The paper declared that Mr. Urbsys had received a very friendly reception in Moscow, and that the press in both countries had spoken favorably of Russo-Lithuanian relations. Some observers, it was said, believed a pact might be signed on Saturday.

The Uusi Suomi also reported in a Moscow dispatch that an agreement had been reached on a Russo-Latvian pact which, it was said, would grant the Soviet special traffic privileges over the railway to Libau as well as air and naval bases in Latvian territory.

Turkish Minister to Stay.

MOSCOW, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu, having received instructions from Ankara, was expected to resume negotiations at the Kremlin, possibly today.

[A semi-official Turkish news agency in Ankara said that negotiations with Russia had "progressed favorably" and that Mr. Saracoglu was expected to remain in Moscow for several days more.]

The Turkish Foreign Minister was disclosed also to have seen Marshal Klementi E. Voroshilov, the Soviet Defense Commissar, and A. I. Mikoyan, the Foreign Trade Commissar, two days ago.

On the Baltic diplomatic front, events continued in rapid-fire order.

Foreign Minister Jouzas Urbsys of Lithuania, who came here on Tuesday and returned to Kaunas for instructions, yesterday was reported en route back to Moscow.

Foreign Minister William Munters of Latvia was expected to leave Moscow tonight and to be back at his home capital tomorrow when, it was thought, he might have something to say about the negotiations with Russia.

Unofficial reports circulated that Lithuania was seeking a plebiscite to decide whether Wilno should return to Lithuania.

Thousands of Jewish refugees from German Poland were understood to be jamming Wilno.

LATVIA YIELDS TO PRESSURE FROM MOSCOW

Signs Accord Granting Russia Air, Naval And Army Ba[illegible]

Lithuanian Pact Expected Next—Turkey On Diplomatic Tight Rope

By WITT HANCOCK
Associated Press Correspondent

Moscow, Oct. 5—Soviet Russia extended her influence over a second Western neighbor today and moved a step nearer domination of the Northern Baltic through sweeping concessions gained in a ten-year mutual assistance accord with Latvia.

The pact, resembling closely an agreement reached a week ago with another little Baltic state, Estonia, gave Russia, the right to establish several air fields, naval bases at the Latvian ports of Liepaja (Libau) and Ventspils (Windau), and a base for shore artillery to "protect Riga Bay."

Joseph Stalin joined Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff in driving home the bargain through which Latvia granted Russia the privilege to place a "limited" number of Soviet air, naval and land forces in Latvia.

Lithuania Believed Next

Under the Russian-Estonian agreement, the Soviet Union obtained the right to establish naval and air bases and garrisons for 25,000 soldiers on Estonian soil.

Diplomatic observers considered a similar arrangement to be certain to come from current negotiations with Lithuania, third of the tier of Baltic states on the west.

This would clear the way for Russia, capitalizing on her new found partnership with Germany, to establish firm control of the Northern Baltic.

Turkey Walking [illegible] Rope

Turkey, meanwhile, [illegible] a diplomatic mission in Moscow and a military [illegible] in London appeared to be walking the tight rope between Russian-German influence on the one hand and British-French on the other.

Just what her ultimate stand would be depended largely upon the exact nature of Soviet proposals which were understood to ask assurance of Turkey's complete neutrality in the European war.

A rumor-threaded veil of mystery surrounded the negotiations between Russia and Turkey who, like the Soviet Union, is a vital factor in Europe's remade political structure.

The Turkish delegation, headed by Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu, has been here two weeks, more or less, cooling its heels. New instructions arrived from Ankara yesterday, but the talks with Soviet leaders, interrupted by the Russian negotiations with Germany and the Baltic states, were not resumed today.

More Than Appears On Surface

Baffled diplomatic circles speculated on the status of the Turkish-Russian talks and all agreed there was more to them than the mere question of Soviet rights in the Black Sea and the Dardanelles.

Some reports had it that a hitch had developed over Russian demands that Turkey permit only Russian warships to enter the Black Sea through the Dardanelles, the "back door" to Russia.

If Turkey agreed to such a proposition, it would effectively bar British-French naval help through the Black Sea to Rumania.

Liepaja, one of the Latvian ports in which Russia was given naval rights in today's accord, is close to German-owned Memel, which the Nazis acquired from Lithuania last March 22.

This fact emphasized the belief in diplomatic quarters that the strengthening of the Soviet position in the Baltic might be aimed at any possible further German moves there as well as at Britain.

The pact was signed in the Kremlin by Molotoff and Latvian Foreign Minister William Munters in the presence of Stalin.

Latvian Pact's Provisions

It contained six articles, which in effect provide:

1. Each party is to extend military aid to the other in case of aggression.
2. Russia is to furnish Latvia munitions at low prices.
3. The setting aside of [illegible] terms of [illegible] ports for [illegible] naval bases [illegible] sites for several airdromes; the provision for a "limited" number of Soviet troops in Latvia; granting to the Soviet of the right to a coast artillery base between Ventspils and Pitrage.
4. Neither party is to conclude any treaty directed against the other.
5. Each will observe strictly the sovereignty and social system of the other; the new Soviet naval bases will remain Latvian territory.
6. The pact is to extend for ten years, ratification to take place in Riga, Latvian capital, within six days.

"Mutual Trust" Stressed

In addition to the details of the pact, a separate communique stressed the "mutual trust and strict observances" of each other's sovereignty and government of internal affairs.

The coast artillery battery will be located near the northern tip of the peninsula that forms the gulf of Riga, Latvia's greatest harbor.

The mutual assistance pact provides against aggression against the sea frontiers of either party, or against any aggression from across the frontiers of Latvia's northern and southern neighbors, Estonia and Lithuania.

Should any power attack the Soviet's new bases in Latvia, Latvia is obliged by the treaty to aid in defending them.

New Russo-Reich Border Fixed

Russia and Germany, it was announced today, welded their new "frontier friendship agreement" by an additional protocol fixing a precise frontier between them in conquered and partitioned Poland.

The protocol, signed yesterday by Molotoff and German Ambassador Count Friedrich Werner von Der Schulenburg, provided that a mixed commission begin work October 9 placing frontier stones along the boundary of the Nazi and Communist "spheres of interest" in Poland.

The boundary was set previously in the treaty signed September 28 in Moscow, but was identified only by a map attached to the pact. There was no new announcement today of the demarcation line between the two zones.

Molotov gave a dinner tonight in honor of Munters, and Stalin and many Russian and Latvian officials attended.

"Molotov and Munters exchanged speeches and greetings, and the dinner was passed in a warm, friendly atmosphere," said Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

Munters and his retinue left tonight by train to return to Riga. The station was decorated with Latvian flags, and a guard of honor lined up to give a colorful sendoff.

Urbsys Tells Cabinet About His Moscow Trip

Kaunas, Lithuania, Oct. 5 (AP)—The Cabinet discussed today with Foreign Minister Jouzas Urbsys results of his recent Moscow conversations while public optimism was aroused by unconfirmed reports that Lithuania might regain from Russia her old capital of Wilno (Vilna).

That city, seized by the Poles from Lithuania in 1920, was occupied by the Russians in the recent partitioning of Poland.

The Cabinet was expected to send a delegation back to Moscow soon for further conferences, but official quarters maintained cautious silence on reports that Russia was demanding of the little country air and naval bases like those she already has obtained from neighboring Estonia.

Urbsys went to Moscow Tuesday and returned yesterday.

Rumania Says Russia Is Not Troubling Her

Asserts Turkish Official, at Moscow, Has Reported No Interest in Bessarabia

BUCHAREST, Oct. 5 (AP).—An authoritative Rumanian source asserted tonight that no demands had been made on Rumania by Soviet Russia in her moves to re-establish her once great influence in the Balkans.

This source reported that Sukru Saracoglu, Turkish Foreign Minister now in Moscow, was keeping the Rumanian Foreign Minister, Grigore Gafencu, fully informed of developments and had not yet reported any demands inimical to Rumania's interests.

It generally was taken for granted here that the Turkish Foreign Minister was representing Balkan interests in formulating a proposed pact designed to maintain the peace, neutrality and trade status quo in southeastern Europe. Saracoglu was expected to consult with Gafencu, probably at Constanza or Istanbul, when the conversations in Moscow were concluded.

Although Rumanian troops still patrolled the Dniester River marking the boundary between Russia and Rumania's Bessarabia province, Rumanians said they were confident the Soviet Union would not attempt to occupy that area. One report declared that Soviet Charge d'Affaires Kukuliev had given Gafencu assurances that Russia had no aggressive intention toward Bessarabia.

Since Hungary now [illegible] common [illegible] with [illegible] Russia, Rumanians believe the Hungarians now are more interested in maintaining the status quo than in making any attempt to recover Transylvania, Rumanian province which before the World War was incorporated in the Austro-Hungarian empire.

Rumanian sources also reported Bulgaria had shown no sign of aggravating the admittedly delicate situation by injecting claims for southern Dobrudja, another section of Rumania that has been passed back and forth as the result of many wars.

The Rumanian government continued, meantime, its strong internal measures by arresting a woman employed in the Army Technical Bureau and starting a new compaign against the pro-Nazi Iron Guard after the discovery of an Iron Guard manifesto attacking King Carol II and the Jews.

The woman arrested was Maria Clucer. Police said they found on her person the manifesto critical of the King and "Jewish and Freemason domination of the government."

In Cernauti, heavily populated by Austrians, a dozen young men and women were arrested and a druggist there, faced with arrest, committed suicide.

R., on one side, and the President of the Latvian Republic, on the other side, for the purpose of the development of friendly relations established by the peace treaty of Aug. 11, 1920, and based on recognition of independent state existence and non-intervention in the internal affairs of the other party;

For the protection of the Irben Straits, the Soviet Union is granted the right to establish on the same conditions a coastal artillery base on the coast between Ventspils and Pitrage. For the protection of the naval bases, aerodromes and the coastal artillery base, the Soviet Union has the right to maintain at its own expense, on the sites allotted for bases and aerodromes, Soviet land and sea armed forces of strictly limited strength, their maximum numbers to be determined by special agreement.

New Flag For Bohemia

Prague, Oct. 5 (AP)—A new flag for Bohemia and Moravia was authorized today by the Government of the protectorate which Germany carved out of the former Czecho-Slovak republic.

It will have three horizontal stripes of equal width, the top white, the middle red and the bottom blue. The colors are the same as those of the old Czecho-Slovak flag, which was red and white striped with a triangular blue field near the staff.

IRON GUARD ARRESTS RESUMED IN RUMANIA

Manifesto Assailing King Found on Worker in Army Bureau

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct 5 (AP)—The arrest of a woman employe in the army technical bureau and discovery of a manifesto by the pro-Nazi Iron Guard, attacking King Carol and the Jews, precipitated a new campaign against that outlawed organization today.

Arrests in [illegible] sections of the country followed questioning of the woman, Maria Clucer, on whose person police said they found the manifesto critical of the King, and Jewish and Freemason domination of the government."

A dozen young men and women were seized in Cernauti, a heavily Austrian-populated city in Bukovina. A druggist there committed suicide when faced with arrest.

While thirty-four Communists were reported arrested in Galatz, one of the chief cities of Bessarabia, in a general drive against all subversive elements, the Iron Guard was the principal object.

Stern measures of the late Premier Armand Calinescu and a drastic purge following his assassination by nine alleged members of the Iron Guard on Sept. 21 had supposedly almost wiped out the illegal movement.

Sweepstakes Held Undersea

Crew of Disabled British Submarine Bet on When Next Blast Would Come.

LONDON, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—An official "eyewitness" account of a British submarine lying at the bottom of the sea with her periscope blown off by German depth charges while her crew held a sweepstakes on when the next explosion would come was distributed to the British press today.

The submarine was said to have been rescued eventually by cruisers and an aircraft carrier just as enemy planes appeared. By that time the submarine had risen to the surface.

The account said finally when "all was ready for what they believed would be their last fight, they blew the tanks and rose to the surface."

The pressure inside the hull had been raised to a dangerous point and the captain guarded against being blown through the hatch when it was opened by having a 200-pound signalman hold him by his legs.

The crew emerged at night, with their wireless smashed, communication pipes crushed and engines disabled. Eventually they made sufficient repairs to sail slowly away and radio for help.

"An air attack by the enemy bombing planes crumbled under the anti-aircraft fire of the cruisers and the attacks of fighters sent up by the carrier," the report said.

The submarine was brought back to its base after the battle, said the official account, which withheld the vessel's name and the position and date of the adventure.

Churchill Will Be Asked If Dominicans Aid Nazis

Report Cutter Was Sunk While Refueling U-Boat Is Denied

LONDON, Oct. 5 (AP).—Rear Admiral Sir Murray Sueter, retired naval officer and a Conservative member of the House of Commons, gave notice today that he would ask Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, on Wednesday:

"If he will inquire whether mother ships are being used by the Dominican government to refuel German submarines operating in the Caribbean Sea, and what action is being taken to prevent the use of ex-rum-runners of the American coast, north Atlantic, to supply German submarines with oil, fuel and water."

Sinking of Cutter Denied

George Djamgaroff, of 630 Fifth Avenue, public relations counsel to the Dominican Republic, announced yesterday the receipt of a cable from the French Charge d'Affaires in Ciudad Trujillo, denying reports that a Dominican Coast Guard cutter had been sunk by a French destroyer while the cutter was refueling a German submarine.

It had been reported that Coast Guard Cutter No. 3, of the Dominican Navy, had been sunk by a French war vessel at Cape Engano, Santo Domingo.

The cable denied that any vessel pertaining to the Dominican Republic had been seen by [illegible] of the French Navy engaging in activities that "might compromise the neutrality" of Santo Domingo, and added: "It pleases the French Legation to acknowledge that the French government has had no opportunity to formulate any protest in relation with the neutrality of the Dominican government, whose sentiments of sympathy toward France are well known by the French people."

Turkish Army Mission Is Entertained in London

Visitors Meet Cabinet Leaders and M. P.s at Dinner

LONDON, Oct. 5 (AP).—High British military officials devoted their attention tonight to a military delegation from Turkey whose Dardanelles forts control maritime back door to eastern Europe. The mission, headed by Gen. Kiazim Orbay, was entertained at lunch, with Lord Chatfield, Minister for Co-ordination of Defense, presiding.

The Turkish officers saw R. A. Butler, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, a group of Parliament members and high army officers at a dinner tonight arranged by the government hospitality department. The dinner was held to enable the mission to meet members of both the House of Lords and the House of Commons.

Viscount Maugham Gets Post

LONDON, Oct. 5 (AP).—The reshuffling of official posts as a result of war organization continued today. Lord McMillan, Minister of Information, resigned his office as Lord of Appeal, member of the Court of Appeal. It is the highest tribunal with the exception of the House of Lords. King George VI appointed Viscount Maugham, brother of the novelist, Somerset Maugham, to the vacancy.

CHAMBERLAIN TO GIVE REVIEW WEDNESDAY

Will Continue Weekly Statement —Economic Plans Pushed

LONDON, Oct. 5 (AP)—Britain went ahead with diplomatic and economic war preparations tonight. Prime Minister Chamberlain announced that he would give his sixth weekly war review next Wednesday.

Officials worked to perfect financial and economic machinery for prosecution of the war. Food Minister W. S. Morrison met with a Danish trade delegation in line with Britain's attempt to keep the flow of dairy and meat products into this island kingdom uninterrupted.

The House of Commons threshed out details of the huge emergency war budget with Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer. Sir John assured the House that he would guard against "lavish expenditures."

In a drive to prevent profiteering, the government listed maximum retail food prices.

The list included sugar at 4 pence halfpenny [about 8 cents] a pound; butter, 1 shilling 7 pence [about 34 cents] a pound, and imported lard, 6 pence [about 11 cents] a pound. The maximum price on home-produced large eggs was set at 2 shillings 6 pence [about 54 cents] a dozen and dried fruits ranging up to 1 shilling 3 pence [27 cents] a pound. Meats, tea, margarine and other staples are to be included in a subsequent price list.

Meanwhile, public services, especially transportation, were beginning to work back toward a wartime normal after the first sharp curtailment. Railway officials announced that dining car service would be restored on principal long-distance trains beginning Oct. 16.

The government announced that the 240,000 men in the 21 to 22 age group who are being called under the Conscription Act to swell the total of those conscripted to 500,000 would be required to register Oct. 21.

In addition to the war review by Mr. Chamberlain next Wednesday, the government announced that Air Secretary Sir Kingsley Wood would make a statement [illegible] and War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha a similar statement Thursday outlining the work of their departments.

HUNGARY SENDS ENVOY TO MOSCOW

Diplomatic Relations Are Re-established.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Hungary, whose Government has maintained a policy of watchful silence with European war at the border, has completed a re-establishment of diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia.

The relations were broken on February 24, last, when Hungary signed the anti-Comintern pact (joining Germany, Italy, Japan and Spain).

It was announced officially that Jozef Cristoffy, former counselor of the Hungarian legation in Warsaw, had been designated as Minister to Moscow.

German eagerness to increase the flow of war supplies from Hungary, meanwhile, was seen in diplomatic quarters in the appointment of a permanent German consul at Szeged, in the heart of a rich Hungarian agricultural section.

With southeastern Europe anxious to preserve its [illegible] role in the European war, a general truce among all Rumanian political parties was proposed in an attempt to "get our own house in order for any eventuality."

Two Rumanian minority groups made new demands, however. A representative of 800,000 Germans complained to Premier Constantin Argetoianu about their treatment and was assured immediate steps would be taken.

The Hungarian minority of 1,900,000 made a new protest that it could not send its children to schools of its own selection.

Military preparations continued, nevertheless, Hungary announced public instruction in the use of gas masks and Rumania planned her first blackout next Monday.

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 5 (AP)—An unidentified submarine which apparently had spent part of the night in Valparaiso Bay was sighted heading out into the open sea at dawn Tuesday, it became known today.

The commander of the Chilean flet, Rear Admiral Julio Allard, said an officer aboard the Chilean cruiser Almirante Latorre sighted the submarine as she was leaving the bay about 5 A. M.

60,000 REFUGEES WORRY BRITAIN

Question Rises in Commons About Their Future.

LONDON, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Concern was expressed in the House of Commons today over whether Great Britain might be forced to give more than temporary shelter to thousands of Jewish and other refugees admitted here pending permission to enter the United States and other neutral countries.

The Home Secretary, Sir John Anderson, said that the outlook for re-emigration of refugees on a large scale had been changed by the war. His statement was in reply to a question whether steps were being taken to fulfill the Government's promise that refugees would be admitted only temporarily.

More than 60,000 refugees, hoping to reach another country, are now in London. The number in all of Great Britain was not given, but the Earl of Winterton stated on September 4 that about 150,000 had left Germany in one year and that of these 40,000 had already entered the United States.

"Before the outbreak of the war many of those admitted for temporary refuge emigrated," Sir John said. "There may still be individual cases in which it may be practicable and desirable to arrange for refugees to proceed overseas to countries which are willing to receive them.

"As regards many others whose ultimate destination cannot be settled at present, it is proposed in the meantime to utilize their services in ways advantageous to the national effort and not forgetting the interests of the British subjects."

Geoffrey L. Mander, Liberal, asked Sir John to keep in mind that "there are no people on this earth who are more anxious to oppose the Nazi regime than the unfortunate refugees."

Bremen Crew Reported Home

German Paper Says 900 Seamen Returned After Docking Ship at Neutral Port.

BERLIN, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The newspaper Frankfurter Zeitung reported today that the crew of the German liner Bremen—more than 900 men—returned to Bremerhaven last Friday after docking the ship in a neutral port.

The newspaper did not identify the neutral port but said the Bremen's company along with the crew of the steamship Iller reached Bremerhaven on the steamship Sierra Cordoba. The Iller and Sierra Cordoba are both German vessels.

The homecoming seamen received a cheering reception and the Bremen's captain, Adolf Ahrens, was promoted to commodore by order of Adolf Hitler.

Frankfurter Zeitung said the Bremen reached the neutral port safely. The newspaper added that numerous German ships on the high seas at the outbreak of the war tried either to reach their home ports or neutral harbors.

The latest report on the whereabouts of the 51,731-ton Bremen, $20,000,000 flagship of the German merchant fleet, was that carried to Oslo Tuesday by a sailor who said he saw her in Murmansk, Russian arctic port, along with the 22,337-ton New York, three smaller German liners and fifteen German freighters.

The sailor said 800 members of the Bremen's crew and 400 of the New York's had gone to Germany by way of Russia.

The Bremen sailed from New York on August 30, only 36 hours before war started in Poland and four days before Britain declared war on Germany. The New York sailed from New York on August 28.

Soviet Holds 17 Ships, Bound For England, At Murmansk, DNB Says

Berlin, Oct. 5 (AP)—The German official news agency, DNB, reported from Moscow today that twelve British and five Swedish freighters loaded with cellulose and ore for England are being held at Murmansk, Soviet Arctic port, on order of Russian authorities.

The Russians explained, the report said, that the measure was based on a decree issued September 9 authorizing the Commissar for Foreign Trade to prevent shipment of Soviet goods to countries where export restrictions created conditions harmful to Soviet trade.

The report recalled that the Moscow press recently announced that the Soviet had protested to England against the stopping of shipments to Russia and preventing Soviet ships from leaving English ports.

British Query Hull on Sea Zone

Lothian Asks Clarification of Safety Area Created at Panama.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador, asked Secretary Hull today for a clarification of the neutrality zone created around most of the New World by the Inter-American Conference at Panama.

OCT 6 1939

London Skeptical.

LONDON, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—In British naval quarters it was said today that the smaller American republics might find it impossible to establish effectively the safety zone project agreed upon in Panama. Only the United States, with a large and powerful navy, might be able to enforce the plan around its own coasts, a spokesman said.

Great Britain, he declared, would do everything in her power to aid the American republics' "ideas" but would not limit or abandon belligerent rights or access to the West Indies or [illegible] colonies.

The spokesman said that he could not make a definite statement on the legality of the safety zone, but that obviously it would have to be accepted by the belligerent Powers and enforced by the American "participating Powers" to have any effect.

To a question whether the zone idea might give Germany any advantage over the Allied Powers, the spokesman only reiterated that if the project were carried forward, it would have to be enforced.

Turning to the sinking on Saturday of the British freighter Clement by an "armed raider" off the coast of Brazil, the spokesman said that all three of Germany's pocket battleships "most certainly were in Germany at the outbreak of the war." Survivors have identified the raider as the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Admiral Scheer.

If any one of the three ships of this type was responsible for the attack on the Clement, the spokesman said, she must have succeeded in slipping through the British blockade of the North Sea.

Rear Admiral Sir Murray Sueter, a retired naval officer and Conservative member of the House of Commons, gave notice today that on Wednesday he would ask Winston Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty: "If he will inquire whether mother ships are being used by the Dominican Government to refuel German submarines operating in the Caribbean Sea, and what action is being taken to prevent the use of ex-rum runners of the American coast, North Atlantic, to supply German submarines with oil, fuel and water."

NAZI SPOKESMAN WARNS BELGIUM

But Says Neutrality Will Be Respected for Present.

BERLIN, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—A Nazi spokesman today said that Belgium "certainly has no reason to be concerned over the possibility Germany would cease to respect her neutrality.

"Belgium has used her planes to chase English flyers out of the country," the spokesman asserted. "That is evidence of her sincere effort to meet the obligations of her neutrality, which Germany respects."

If Belgium permitted aviators of Germany's enemies to fly over her territory she would cease to be neutral, he added, and observed the presumption would be that in such an event Germany would reserve the right to change her attitude.

"But it is a hypothetical question and there certainly is no present need to be concerned," the spokesman declared.

This comment was in reply to reports abroad that under certain circumstances Germany would cease to respect Belgium's neutrality.

Over-age U. S. Flyers Accepted by France

TORONTO, Oct. 5 (Canadian Press)—France accepted today six American citizens and nine other pilots who fought with the Royal Air Force in the world war for active duty as bombing plane aviators. They had been turned down by Great Britain and Canada as too old for active duty.

The men were just over the forty-year mark and each has had at least 500 hours in the air.

Among them were King White and Daniel C. Mangan of Cleveland, L. R. Sherman of Milford, Mass., J. B. Remington of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and J. B. O'Hara and W. N. Purvis of Detroit.

NEW PEACE APPEAL PLANNED BY POPE

First Encyclical Expected October 29.

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Vatican prelates said today that they expected that Pope Pius would issue the first encyclical of his reign for October 29, the festival of Christ the King, and that it would contain an appeal for peace.

It was said that the pontiff had been working on such a document since he went to Castel Gandolfo on July 24. Originally, prelates said, it was drafted for delivery in August, but its issuance was postponed because of international developments.

Some passages are understood to have been revised to meet the new situation created by the war.

LEAGUE HOME READY FOR RAID

White Palace of Peace in Geneva Prepares.

BUILDING WELL PROTECTED

Military Men Say Basement of Structure Is Bombproof.

Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The League of Nations' white Palace of Peace, which stands out like a target even on the darkest night, is ready for any possible air attack.

Permanent officials of the league have been told what to do in an air raid.

Sandbags have been piled along the long passageways under the palace and dark blue curtains already are hanging at its exits.

Military men who inspected the basement recently called it bombproof even though few members of the assembly dreamed of providing safe refuges against air warfare when they decided in 1934 to erect the building.

League Meets in December.

Now it is possible that the league assembly will meet in the shadow of war. After a postponement due to the conflict, informed sources said last night, a meeting will be called in December to consider the creation of a central committee for co-ordinating [illegible] social and economic activities.

Political questions would be barred, however, to avoid embarrassing neutral Switzerland, which permitted the league to remain at its Geneva palace on the understanding there would be no wartime political discussions.

The league's precautions are not mere formality. Belligerent France lies at the southern end of the Swiss Mittelland Valley, which some observers believe might be a logical path for invaders either from France or Germany trying to get around the Maginot or Siegfried lines.

Opens Park to Sheep.

The league and the Swiss Government yesterday opened the magnificent park of the palace to a herd of hungry sheep. Swiss authorities, pressing a nationwide campaign for co-operation in economy, urged all with available grazing lands to turn them over to herds whose usual pastures have been plowed.

Officials whose job it is to figure out where the money is coming from to keep the league going studied another problem resulting from the war.

Non-member Germany, which trimmed the league's budget before by absorbing Czecho-Slovakia and Austria—two paying members—now has cut into it again by teaming up with Soviet Russia to divide Poland.

What hurts the league's budgeters especially is the knowledge that Poland still owes more than $100,000 for her 1939 contribution.

COLD TO SOVIET SHIP REQUEST

Danes 'Not Interested' in Chartering Vessels.

RAISE ISSUE OF TORPEDOING

Doubt Germany Will Respect Russian Cargoes.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Danish shipowners turned a cold shoulder today to Russia's inquiry as to whether they would charter ships to transport timber from the White Sea to England and France.

Norway has replied that the Soviet can have as many ships as she wants, while Swedish and Finnish owners showed interest in the proposition, though they reserved a final decision.

Russia's gesture aroused speculation as to her position, inasmuch as Germany has notified neutral countries that she considers woodpulp contraband. Five Swedish ships, two loaded with woodpulp, were seized by the Germans yesterday.

Nazis See No Unfriendliness.

In Berlin authoritative circles said that Russia's reported inquiries of Scandinavian ship owners would not be considered an unfriendly act by Germany. Russia, as a neutral, has a right to sell to whom she wishes, it was said.

However, should wood products which fall within Germany's definition of contraband be shipped, then the shippers must run the risk of the cargo being sunk or captured by the German navy.

Neutral ships sunk since hostilities began include four Swedish, three Finnish and one Danish vessel, chiefly in Baltic waters.

The newspaper Berlingske Tidende, considered authoritative on shipping matters, quoted Danish shipowners as saying they "did not believe they were interested."

The newspaper said that shippers were unwilling to take the risks and added: "There is no reason to think there is any secret understanding between Russia and Germany to spare ships carrying Russian goods."

The Russians are trading on a "cash-and-carry" basis and receiving the money before the ship leaves port, the newspaper said, adding: "Naturally they will look upon the fate of neutral ships with English and French cargoes as irrelevant."

Danes expressed the belief that Norway and Sweden attached too much importance to Russia's inquiries. Similar requests for ships, they said, are made annually at this season before the White Sea becomes ice-blocked.

The newspaper Politiken quoted one shipowner as expressing the belief that Russia was afraid her own ships would be torpedoed.

Danish informants pointed out that timber was an important item in the Russo-German trade agreement in which the Soviet agreed to barter raw materials for the Reich's machinery and finished products.

Norwegian Ship Seized.

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The captain of the Norwegian steamship Kvernaas, in a message received here today, said that his ship had been seized by the Germans on Sunday and taken to Kiel. The ship was laden with wood en route from Sweden to Holland.

LONDON, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—The British Government and the press warned civilians today against failure to carry gas masks.

While transportation companies joined air raid precautions officials in checking up on gas mask slackers, the Daily Express reminded the public that "bombs or no bombs this war is on, full blast."

"Some folks need a bomb to tell them this war is being fought," the Express commented. "They expected ferocious and continued bombing—now they're puzzled. Don't worry, friends, the war is on, all right!"

72 ALLIED PLANES DOWNED, SAY NAZIS

D. N. B. Asserts 45 Were French and 27 British

BERLIN, Oct. 5 (AP).—D. N. B., official German news agency, said in a commnique today that during September German fighting planes and anti-aircraft batteries shot down forty-five French and twenty-seven British planes on the Western front.

D. N. B. said that German pursuit planes accounted for twenty-three enemy planes September 30, which was marked by air fighting throughout the day. German losses that day were said to have been five planes.

The agency said that of one group of thirty-seven French-British planes which flew over the Westwall, eight were destroyed and the rest were forced to turn back.

BERLIN, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Max Schmeling, former heavyweight boxing champion, arriving in Berlin today, disclosed that he had been "living the life of a country squire" since the war began and had not been called for military service.

"All this time I've been sending to my country place near Pomerania," Schmeling said. "I've neither been drafted nor even given notice of impending service."

He said he expected his bout with Walter Neusel, which was "put off on account of the war," would be staged next May "if peace comes soon."

"I'll remain in Berlin for a while," Schmeling added, "my wife will join me shortly to do another movie."

French War Commission To Explore U. S. Market

Embassy Spokesman Announces Arrival Of Supply Buyers In New York

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—A spokesman for the commercial counselor of the French Embassy said today that members of a French war supplies commission had arrived in the United States but were merely "exploring the possibilities of the American market" and had not been yet given orders to make any purchases. He declined further information concerning the commission.

At the British consulate general here it was said that no members or employes of a British purchasing commission are in New York. However, offices of a British war supplies commission have been opened in Ottawa. Usually reliable financial sources here said that they had heard unconfirmed rumors that advance agents of a British commission were in New York last week making preliminary arrangements.

The same sources said there has been as yet no indication of general buying of legally permissible war supplies by France and England, although inquiries have been numerous in volume.

NYE DEMANDS A DIVISION OF NEUTRAL BILL

Insists Cash-and-carry Plan Be Divorced From Embargo Repeal.

TOBEY ASKS FOR SEVERANCE

George Predicts Legislation's Authors Will Soon Consider Revising Ship Curbs.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (A. P.).—Senator Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, demanded today that the administration agree to divorce proposed repeal of the arms embargo from its "cash-and-carry" program of neutrality legislation.

Proponents of the administration legislation, he charged, are taking the position that repeal of the embargo must be effected before other provisions of the pending neutrality bill, which would restrict the nation's foreign trade, could be enacted.

That, he asserted, "misleads the people and jeopardizes the peace of the United States."

"There is no good reason," he told his colleagues, "why we should not have both the arms embargo and the cash-and-carry provision."

One of the leaders of the opposition to the bill in its present form, Senator Nye declared:

"There can be quick passage, through the Senate and through the House, of legislation to provide a cash-and-carry provision to cover all commerce which is not covered by the existing embargo law.

"I want that kind of law, have wanted it for a long time, have proposed and stood with others here in urging its enactment into law. I now stand ready to do anything possible to bring about the passage of that kind of legislation, but not if the repeal of the arms embargo is the price to be paid for it."

Tobey Presses for Severance.

Mr. Nye took the floor after Senator Tobey, Republican, of New Hampshire, had spoken in support of his proposal, first advanced yesterday, to split the present bill in agreed there would be little, if any, American trans-Atlantic shipping under terms of the bill as it now stands.

"We ought to be able to work out something, but I don't know yet what it will be," he said.

Denies Filibustering.

Senator Tobey told his colleagues that some members had suggested that his proposal to read newspaper excerpts in support of his demand to split the bill was filibustering.

"Nothing could be further from the truth," he asserted.

He argued that unless the procedure he suggested was adopted "there is extreme likelihood that our ships will be in danger of being sunk in the war zones at any time, and thus endanger the determination of this country to be kept out of the European war."

Under a Senate agreement, Mr. Tobey's motion will be voted upon Monday.

"I challenge any member of the Senate to point out an objection to the procedure that is set forth in my motion," he said. "Time is of the essence.

"I make this special plea—that we have a responsibility to the people to uphold Secretary Hull in his desire to get ships out of the war zones immediately.

Sees Hull's Hands Tied.

"His hands are now tied. He has gone as far as he can under the law, for there is no law which forbids our vessels from traveling in the war zones. He needs the legal power now to forbid these vessels to travel in the war zones."

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the majority leader, and Senator Pittman of Nevada, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, predicted that Mr. Tobey's motion would be defeated when it is argued on Monday.

The tall, scholarly New Hampshire Senator advanced his suggestion late yesterday after Senators Connally, Democrat, of Texas, and Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, had spoken for and against the administration measure which would repeal the arms embargo and substitute a title-and-carry system of sales to warring nations.

Wants Early Enactment.

Mr. Tobey argued that the title-and-carry provisions should be enacted immediately to avoid American ships being sunk, as they were before United States entry into the world war.

"Should the Senate refuse to adopt this motion," he said yesterday, "and during the next few weeks of debate on the arms embargo repeal clause there should be a repetition of our experiences in the war zones of 1917, I say that those members of this body who refused to put first things first will have a serious and tremendous responsibility."

Mr. Pittman said it was absurd to divide the bill and declared that even many opponents of repealing the embargo would not go along with Senator Tobey on the proposal.

Mr. Barkley, who left last night for Kentucky for the funeral of his colleague, Senator Logan, looked for a final vote on the bill in the third week of debate.

Vote Could Come Earlier.

He said there was a chance of its coming earlier, however, because most of the longer speeches were out of the way. Voting on amendments may be reached the middle of next week, he said.

In this connection, Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio, who advocates lifting the embargo, said he would offer an amendment to eliminate the section forbidding American ships to visit warring nations or their possessions. Instead he would have Congress declare a war zone around Europe.

"I don't see why we should let ships go to Holland and Belgium and at the same time forbid them to go to Jamaica," Mr. Taft said. "And we would be getting away from presidential discretion." The administration bill gives the President power to name combat zones.

Senator Pittman said Senator Taft's amendment might work hardships, as there might be some safe zones in Europe where American vessels could go without danger.

Criticize Johnson Plan.

As radio speeches continued last night to augment the Senate floor debate, Senators on both sides of the embargo controversy criticized the resolution offered yesterday by Senator Johnson, Democrat, of Colorado, asking the President to take the initiative in urging other neutrals to work for an armistice in the European war.

Senator Clark, Democrat, of Ohio, said that some might regard the proposal as pro-German "since Hitler is on top now and he would want an armistice now."

Senator Taft said that such moves were up to the President rather than to Congress, and added that "sometimes an appeal for peace is an unneutral act."

Favors Administration Bill.

Senator Johnson, in a radio talk last night, said that he favored the administration bill with two exceptions. It should be made a genuine cash-and-carry bill, he said, by eliminating the ninety-day credits allowed for belligerents' purchases in this country and by removing presidential authority to name combat zones.

Senator La Follette, Progressive, of Wisconsin, an opponent of repeal, told a radio audience:

"Once we have taken sides through action by our government in order to make [illegible] available to England and France, the pressure will be terrific to get us into the war."

Administration leaders said that the loss of one vote for repeal through Senator Logan's death had been made up by a decision of Senator Chavez, Democrat, of New Mexico, to support the bill.

STIMSON URGES REPEAL TO AID ALLIES WIN WAR

Asserts That If They Lose, The Conflict Will "Become Our Own Battle"

Ex-Secretary Of State Denies Action Would "Drag" U. S. In

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Oct. 5—Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of State, tonight urged repeal of the arms embargo in order to help France and Britain, lest the war "in case they are beaten . . . become our own battle."

He suggested that the embargo was somewhat unfair to the Allies because, after they had reduced their navies in cooperation with the United States in the cause of disarmament, the law "forbids them to resort to our markets in order to repair their consequent weakness."

In a national broadcast the former Hoover Cabinet officer discounted the theory that repeal would "drag us into war."

Cannot Be Dragged In

"So long as Great Britain and France are fighting and their forces command the seas, the people of the United States cannot be dragged into war except by their own deliberate volition," he said.

"The real time of danger will only come in case France and Britain are beaten down. . . . They are now fighting a battle which, in case they are beaten, will, whether we wish it or not, become our own battle; and in the interest of our own safety we should repeal this foolish and dangerous embargo"—which he described as a "dangerous and unwise" departure from a national policy "almost unbroken for 150 years."

Repeal, he said, "would not only materially assist and encourage the nations who are fighting for freedom, but it would aid in keeping those nations which are now wavering from joining the side of the dictators."

"Encourages" Invasion

Stimson said he thought the embargo had given foreign nations for four years the idea that we took no concern over events abroad and had "encouraged the present breach of the peace by Germany when she invaded Poland."

Those who oppose repeal on the contention that it amounts to changing national policy in the middle of a war, Stimson said, "do not hesitate to favor other changes in the law such as the new proposed restrictons on American shipping which may well have results adverse to France and Britain. But they would have us stand by our error of four years ago as to the embargo even if it endangered our own safety to do so, lest otherwise we might have mislead and done a wrong to Chancellor Hitler!"

"Such language seems like a voice from Mars. In the face of the present situation it is fantastic.

"These objectors base their objection upon precedents which have never applied to such a situation as faces the world today—a situation where the old rules of international law have been reduced to chaos by the action of Germany itself. . . .

"Just consider the absurdity of the situation which would be presented if Chancellor Hitler appeared before an international tribunal with a claim against the United States based upon our repeal of the embargo provision. He would have to say in substance:

To "Emphasize Absurdity"

"'The United States has wronged me by changing this law. I invaded Poland and destroyed her cities in the confident belief that America would not make this change and that I could carry out my aggression with impunity. Now she has changed and I have been visited with punishment by Poland's guarantors. I demand damages.'

"How far would he get?

"I put forward such details only to emphasize the absurdity that a grave measure of legislation for the purpose of promoting our national safety should be delayed by arguments like these."

Stimson termed the war "organized national aggression" running counter to a 400-year struggle by most nations for better international organization for peace.

Fuehrer's Speech Today Sixth in Historic Series

Austrian Crisis in February, '38, Marked Beginning of Epoch

Adolf Hitler is to deliver today his sixth address to the German Reichstag since Feb. 20, 1938. Each time he has described—and sometimes foretold—the emerging [illegible] of European history.

On Feb. 20, 1938, he defied foes of the "new Germany"—especially the British and the "blood-spattered" Russians—and made clear his intent to annex Austria.

On Sept. 26, 1938, Austria having been annexed and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain having made two trips to Germany to try to reach an agreement with Der Fuehrer on the Czecho-Slovak issue, Hitler presented an ultimatum to President Eduard Benes of Czecho-Slovakia. He announced he had "selected a frontier that is fair to Czecho-Slovakia."

On Jan. 30, 1939, after the pact of Munich had been signed and the Czechs had capitulated under Anglo-French pressure, Hitler made his memorable announcement that the Sudetenland was his "last territorial claim" in Europe.

On April 28, 1939, Czecho-Slovakia having been broken up, Hitler revealed his designs on Poland, declaring: "Danzig is a German city and wishes to belong to Germany."

On Sept. 1, 1939, the Poles having rejected his demands for Danzig and the Polish Corridor, Der Fuehrer announced that the invasion of Poland had begun and praised the newly concluded Soviet-German pact.

TELLS EFFECT OF CENSORSHIP

A. P. Says Main Result Is Merely to Delay News.

ONLY BRITAIN INTERPOSES BAR

American Reporters in Germany Are Practically Uncensored.

By Associated Press.

Europe's censors hinder, but fail to halt, the essentially truthful telling of the war news. The censors delay dispatches, delete phrases and suppress some dispatches altogether, but much of the important news originates where there is no real censorship. The American reporter usually gets his story and sends it.

On Friday, September 1, when Adolf Hitler went into Poland, the British censor marched into the cable, wireless, telegraph and telephone offices and created such confusion, however, that Prime Minister Chamberlain changed the mechanism last Monday. He replaced one set of censors with two, and the British newspapers voiced their unhappiness at the change.

The General Situation.

Relatively, the censorship situation is what it was on September 1. There remain these three forms in various countries: 1. Official censoring of local newspapers to control what the public shall know; 2. British official censorship of dispatches to the United States and other countries. (Elsewhere the American newspaper man in particular is trusted to use discretion on military information), and 3. A censorship of fear or patriotism among officials who wish to make news favorable to their countries or who are afraid of criticism.

London is the only important capital where American reporters submit all their copy to official censors, who suppress or delete what they do not approve. Under new regulations each Government office will have censors to approve what is issued to the public, but that censored matter must then go through other general censors.

Germany alone of the belligerents gives the American reporter practically normal peace-time facilities. The Associated Press men, like other well-known and established correspondents, file their news without censorship.

Responsible Afterward.

As formerly, they are held responsible afterward for what they send. The ordinary person's messages, however, and doubtless those of less well-known correspondents, pass through censorship in the telegraph and cable offices. It is said to be lenient.

In Paris, Rome and Moscow, the American reporter telephones his uncensored news abroad, but written dispatches theoretically pass through a censorship which seems to do little more than delay them while they are being read.

Budapest, central point for transmitting news from Hungary, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, is without censorship except for the Hungarian press. The four countries, like many others, have strict control of local newspapers but give full freedom to foreign correspondents.

Occasionally, all communications are temporarily cut in some countries. This happened in Rumania on September 21 when Premier Calinescu was assassinated, but not in time to prevent the news from going out promptly.

THE OFFICERS SAID THE PLIGHT OF THE CIVILIANS DURING THE TWO DAYS OF INTENSIVE BOMBARDMENT WAS DEPLORABLE.

MANY MAINS WERE BROKEN AND SOME SOURCES OF WATER BADLY CONTAMINATED.

LOOTING ADDED TO THE HORRORS OF THE HOURS BEFORE THE CITY'S SURRENDER, THE GERMANS SAID.

ONE GERMAN OFFICER SAID THE CIVIL AUTHORITIES ASKED THE NAZIS TO SPEED UP THEIR OCCUPATION SO AS TO PUT AN END TO LAWLESSNESS AND DESTRUCTION.

SIGNS OF THE POLISH EFFORT TO DEFEND THE CAPITAL COULD BE SEEN ON EVERY SIDE. NUMEROUS TRENCHES HAD BEEN DUG DOWNTOWN AND IN THE SUBURBS.

STREET CARS WERE OVERTURNED, BLOCKING MANY STREETS IN A VAIN EFFORT TO HALT THE RELENTLESS FORCE OF THE GERMAN INVASION. STREET CAR TRACKS WERE TORN UP AND TWISTED BY GERMAN SHELLS.

GREAT EXCAVATIONS WERE DUG BY AIR BOMBS.

MODERATE-SIZED BUILDINGS STRUCK BY 500 TO 1,000 POUND BOMBS HAD SIMPLY BLOWN TO PIECES.

AMONG THE BUILDINGS WRECKED AND LOOTED WAS THE ITALIAN EMBASSY. THE CORRESPONDENTS DIDN'T SEE THE GERMAN EMBASSY OR ASCERTAIN HOW IT FARED.

BEFORE RETURNING TO BERLIN HITLER VISITED BELVEDERE, MODEST RESIDENCE, WHERE THE LATE MARSHAL JOSEPH PILSUDSKI, POLAND'S HERO WHO WAS FRIENDLY TO GERMANY, LIVED AND DIED.

THE WAR TODAY

BY BENITT MACKENZIE

BY THIS TIME TOMORROW WE SHOULD HAVE HERR HITLER'S PEACE PROPOSALS AND KNOW WHETHER HE IS PREPARED TO MAKE THE FAR-REACHING CONCESSIONS NECESSARY TO INTEREST THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES IN ENDING THE WAR.

ALL GERMANY WAS A-HUSH TODAY IN ANTICIPATION OF THE NAZI CHIEFTAIN'S REICHSTAG SPEECH FRIDAY ON WHICH MAY TURN THE ENTIRE EUROPEAN UPHEAVAL.

WHAT DER FUEHRER MIGHT SAY WAS GUARDED AS A DEEP SECRET. OFFICIALDOM SAID POINTEDLY THAT SPECULATION WAS "HAZARDOUS AND A DISSERVICE TO EVERYONE." NEWSPAPERS ANNOUNCED THE MOMENTOUS SPEECH IN BLACK HEADLINES, BUT RAN FOR COVER WHEN IT CAME TO HAZARDING A GUESS ON ITS CONTENTS.

FROM THE UNDERCURRENT, HOWEVER, IT WAS CLEAR THAT GERMAN HOPES OF PEACE WERE CONFINED TO THE POSSIBILITY THAT HITLER MIGHT OUTLINE A BASIS ON WHICH HOSTILITIES COULD BE ENDED. THAT IS, IT WAS THOUGHT POSSIBLE HE MIGHT PRONOUNCE SOME NEW MAGE ATTITUDE TOWARD THE ALLIES.

IN APPROACHING THE QUESTION OF PEACE IT IS NECESSARY NOT TO GET LOST IN A FOREST OF HIGH-SOUNDING PHRASES AND LOSE SIGHT OF WHAT THIS WAR REALLY IS ABOUT. THE MAKING OF PEACE ISN'T AS EASY AS IT MIGHT SEEM.

FUNDAMENTALLY THIS IS A CONFLICT TO DETERMINE WHO IS BOSS OF EUROPE.

AND IF THAT SOUNDS LIKE A CRUDE WAY OF PUTTING IT WE MIGHT SAY THAT THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES CLAIM HITLER IS OUT FOR EUROPEAN DOMINATION BY AGGRESSION, WHILE DER FUEHRER MAINTAINS THAT ENGLAND--THE "POLICEMAN OF EUROPE"--IS TRYING TO ENCIRCLE GERMANY AND GARROTE IT PHYSICALLY, POLITICALLY AND ECONOMICALLY.

FRENCH PREMIER DALADIER YESTERDAY PUT HIS FINGER ON ONE OF THE GREATEST OBSTACLES TO PEACE WHEN HE SAID IN A SPEECH THAT "FRANCE DOES NOT WANT A TRUCE BETWEEN TWO AGGRESSIONS."

THAT WAS JUST ANOTHER WAY OF SAYING THAT THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES BELIEVE IF THEY DON'T "CRUSH HITLERISM" NOW THEY WILL HAVE TO DO IT LATER. THEY CLAIM TO THINK NOW IS THE APPOINTED TIME.

IN THIS CONNECTION, WHEN I WAS IN WARSAW JUST AFTER THE CZECHO-SLOVAK CRISIS LAST FALL, I HAD IT EMPHASIZED TO ME THAT IN 1933--THE YEAR HITLER CAME TO POWER--THE LATE MARSHAL PILSUDSKI ADDED TO HIS QUALIFICATIONS AS A MAJOR PROPHET. THE POLES CLAIM BY THE WAY, THAT THEIR HERO WAS PSYCHIC.

PILSUDSKI IS SAID TO HAVE URGED FRANCE AT THAT TIME TO WAGE A "PREVENTIVE" WAR AGAINST GERMANY, SAYING THAT THE FIGHT WOULD HAVE TO COME SOMETIME ANYWAY. THE POLISH LEADER INDICATE THAT PARIS

HITLER HAS MADE IT AMPLY CLEAR THAT HE DOESN'T WANT WAR WITH THE ALLIES. THE QUESTION NOW ARISES AS TO HOW FAR DOWN HE IS PREPARED TO CLIMB TO SECURE PEACE.

WHILE WE WAIT FOR THE VOICE FROM BERLIN, THE WAR ON THE WESTERN FRONT IS PRODUCING HUMAN INTEREST IF NO MAJOR OFFENSIVES.

THE DEPTH OF THE ATTACHMENT OF THE EUROPEAN PEASANT FOR HIS LITTLE HOMESTEAD, AND THE LAND WHICH HE AND HIS FAMILY HAVE TILLED WITH LOVING CARE, IS WELL ILLUSTRATED IN A DESPATCH FROM HENRY C.CASSIDY, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WHO HAS JUST VISITED THE FRENCH FRONT.

"A CASUAL GLANCE AT THE FRONT ITSELF GIVES THE IMPRESSION OF DESERTION," CASSIDY REPORTS. "ON CLOSE INSPECTION, HOWEVER, YOU SEE THAT BORDER VILLAGE HOUSES ARE FILLED WITH MEN AND THE BARNS WITH VEHICLES AND HORSES."

WE USED TO SEE A LOT OF THAT SORT OF THING IN FRANCE DURING THE WORLD WAR. MANY A TIME UP IN FLANDERS, "THE COCKPIT OF EUROPE," I HAVE SEEN PEASANTS--MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN--WORKING IN THEIR FIELDS ALMOST UP AGAINST THE ALLIED FIRING LINE, WHILE GREAT SHELLS EXPLODED NEAR THEM.

OCT 6 1939

THESE SIMPLE FOLK HAD BUT ONE THOUGHT--TO CLING TO THE ONLY HOME THEY KNEW, AND SHIELD IT AS WELL AS THEY COULD. OFTEN THEY GAVE THEIR LIVES FOR IT.

THE MILITARY USED TO TRY TO PERSUADE THEM TO GO AWAY TO SAFETY, BUT THEY MERELY SHOOK THEIR HEADS. ONLY WHEN THE AUTHORITIES COMPELLED THEM TO MOVE, OR AN ATTACK ACTUALLY SWEPT ACROSS THEIR TINY FARMS, WOULD THEY TRUDGE AWAY SAD-EYED FROM ALL THEY HELD DE-

INTO A STRANGE WORLD.

HITLER'S PROPOSALS

Berlin, Oct. 6 (A.P. Via Radio)—Adolf Hitler today told the Third Reich that it was clear to him a "certain Jewish capitalism and journalism is trying to bring about war."

"It is senseless that millions of lives should be sacrificed," Hitler said, "but if millions of lives are to be sacrificed to establish a new regime and destroy the present one, then millions of lives will be sacrificed.

"What are now the aims of the German Government? They are the creation of a boundary which will correspond to geographical and ethnological conditions and solution of the Jewish problem. These problems never can be solved over the conference table, and the nations of the world should be grateful that Germany and Russia have taken over their solution."

Berlin, Oct. 6—A "laying down of arms" in Europe through a broad conference designed to bring about disarmament and new economic treaties was proposed today by Adolf Hitler in a speech to the Reichstag.

His proposed conference, he said, must not, however, be held under a threat of force.

Hitler renounced further territorial claims, except for his old colonial demands; said Germany and Russia together would "relieve one of the acutest danger spots of Europe," and laid down a five-point program for fallen Poland.

In his long address there were some conciliatory touches, such as a statement that the greatest boon for Europe would be a British-German understanding, and he endeavored at great length to justify Germany's action in Poland.

He specifically assured the world that he had no designs on Rumania, the Ukraine, the Urals or Denmark, and said that in Eastern Europe generally, as well as in Scandinavia, his interests were wholly economic.

As to Germany's now close relations with Russia, he acknowledged that in the past he had declared that the U. S. S. R. was "organized on principles which differ from those held in Germany."

"If Stalin Can Be Friendly, So Can Reich"

But, he added: "Since it became clear that Stalin saw nothing in these Russian-Soviet principles which should prevent him from cultivating friendly relations with states of different political creeds, National Socialist Germany sees no reason why it should adopt another criterion."

The new German-Russian pact, he said, was not only one of peace, but also of constant, satisfactory cooperation for both states."

He put great stress on what he declared had been his efforts to "rid our relations with France of all trace of ill-will and to render them tolerable for both nations."

Balks At Peace "In Name Of Jewish Agitators"

Saying that peace could be had in the name of the world's peoples, but not in the name of "Jewish agitators," Hitler posed the question: "Why is there war in the West?"

In an address lasting an hour and twenty minutes, which some Nazis called the greatest speech for peace since the World War, Hitler coupled his suggestion for a general attempt to solve Europe's problems with a declaration that it could not be done "while cannons are thundering or mobilized armies are bringing pressure to bear upon it."

"If . . . these problems must be solved soon or late," he said, "then it would be more sensible to ackle their solution before millions of men are first uselessly sent to death and billions in riches are destroyed.

"A continuation of the present state of affairs in the West is unthinkable. Each day will soon demand increasing sacfices . . ."

Holds Arms Cut Essential To Security

Hitler introduced the subject of a peace conference by saying that the "most important condition" for a "real revival of economic life in and outside of Europe is the establishment of unconditionally guaranteed peace and of a sense of security on the part of individual nations."

"This security," he added, "will not only be rendered possible by a final sanctioning of the European status, but above all by a reduction of armaments to a reasonable and economically tolerable level.

"The essential part of this necessary sense of security, however, is a clear definition of the legitimate use and application of certain modern armaments which can at any given moment have such devastating effect on the pulsating life of every nation and hence create a permanent sense of insecurity. . . .

Wants Clear And Binding International Pacts

OCT 7 1939

"I believe, however, that a sense of national security will not return to Europe until clear and binding international agreements have provided a comprehensive definition of the legitimate and illegitimate use of armements. . . .

"It must surely be possible to emulate the Red Cross and draw up some universally valid international regulation. It is only when this is achieved that peace can reign, particularly in our densely populated continent—peace which, uncontaminated by suspicion or fear, will provide the only possible condition for real economic prosperity.

"To achieve this great end the leading nations of this continent will one day have to come together in order to draw up, accept and guarantee a statute on a comprehensive basis which will insure for them all a sense of security, of calm. In short of peace.

Draws Picture Of War's Spread

"Such conferences could not possibly be held without the most thorough preparation—that is, without exact elucidation of every point at issue. It is equally impossible that such a conference, which is to determine the fate of this continent for many years to come, could carry on its deliberations while cannons are thundering or mobilized armies are bringing pressure to bear upon it.

Referring, then, to the "unthinkable" state of affairs in the West, he added:

"From both sides (eventually) destruction will strike deeper, deeper, and, whatever cannot be reached by long-distance guns, will be destroyed from the air. . . . This battle of destruction won't be confined to the land. No, it will reach far out over the sea.

"Today there are no longer any islands. And the national wealth of Europe will be scattered in the form of shells, and the vigour of every nation will be sapped on the battlefields."

"Wish To Avoid Suffering"

"One day, however, there will again be a frontier between Germany and France, but instead of flourishing towns there will be ruins and endless graveyards.

"Mr. Churchill (Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty) and his companions may interpret these opinions of mine as weaknesses or cowardice if they like. I need not occupy myself with what they think; I make these statements simply because it goes without saying that I wish to spare my own people this suffering.

Last Peace Bid, He Says

"If, however, the opinions of Messrs. Churchill and followers shall prevail, this statement will have been my last. Then we shall fight. Neither force of arms nor lapse of time will conquer Germany. [illegible] ver will be another November [illegible] in German history. It is infantile to hope for the disintegration of our people.

"Mr. Churchill may be convinced that Great Britain will win. I do not doubt for a single moment that Germany will be victorious. Destiny will decide who is right. One thing only is certain. In the course of world history there have never been two victors, but very often only losers. This seems to me to have been the case in the last war. May those peoples and their leaders who are of the same mind now make their reply. And let those who consider war to be a better solution reject by outstretched hand."

Outlines Plans For Poland

Hitler outlined five "aims and tasks" resulting from the collapse of Poland "in so far as the German sphere of interest is concerned." These were:

1. Demarcation of a German border which "will do justice to the historical, ethnological and economic facts."
2. Pacification of the entire conquered territory "by restoring tolerable measures of peace and order."
3. A guarantee of security for Germany and its entire sphere of interest.
4. Reestablishment and reorganization of life, trade and transport.
5. Establishment of a "new order of ethnographic conditions, that is to say, resettlement of nationalities."

Expands On Fifth Point

Developing the fifth point, he declared this was not a problem restricted only "to this particular sphere, but a task with far wider implications, for the east and south of Europe is to a large extent filled with splinters of German nationality, whose existence cannot be main-

Expands On Fifth Point

Developing the fifth point, he declared this was not a problem restricted only "to this particular sphere, but a task with far wider implications, for the east and south of Europe is to a large extent filled with splinters of German nationality, whose existence cannot be maintained.

In the very existence of such splinters, he said, "lies the reason and cause for continual international disturbances . . . it is, therefore, essential for a far-sighted ordering of the life of Europe that resettlement should be undertaken here so as to remove at least part of the material for European conflicts."

Pictures Army's Deeds

DNB, the official news agency, sent out an "unofficial version" of the speech, from which the following is taken:

"We have again summoned you here to give you an insight into the present and, as far as possible, the future. This ringing of bells signifies that Germany is celebrating a great and historically unique victory." (Demonstrations were being held throughout the Reich as he spoke.)

"An army of about fifty infantry and cavalry divisions (in Poland) entered the lists against us. . . . Destruction of our German Reich was regarded as self-evident.

"Eight days after the outbreak of this fight the die had been cast."

Hitler then gave a glowing picture of deeds performed by the German army in Poland.

On Army's Achievements

Of the Polish operations he said, "German armies . . . covered distances and spaces for the achievement of which more than fourteen months would have been necessary twenty-five years ago."

During the first twenty minutes of his speech he described Germany's military successes in the war against Poland.

For the next twenty minutes he dwelt on the political side of that war, bringing out Gemany's friendship for Russia and asserting that Germany was not striving for world hegemony.

"All Humanity Benefitted"

During the next fifteen minutes, he discussed what he called his practical revision of the Versailles Treaty, declaring that what he had done was a happy event for all humanity.

He had revised the treaty bloodlessly, he said, except for the last phase—a reference to the Polish war.

"Our Cool Wisdom"

"That the last remnant of the Polish army was able to hold out in Warsaw, Modlin and Hela until October is attributable solely to our cool wisdom and feeling of responsibility," Hitler said.

"I had forbidden the sacrifice of more men than absolutely necessary. . . . Whatever it was absolutely essential to do was done without regard for sacrifice. What, however, could be avoided was left undone. . . .

"An attempt to persuade responsible Polish army leadership—in so far as there was any—concerning the purposelessness, yes, the madness of resistance especially in a city of a million inhabitants, proved vain.

"Pity For Women And Children"

"The generalissimo who himself fled in an inglorious manner compelled his country to a resistance which at best had to lead to its destruction. (Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz was the Polish commander.)

"The city (Warsaw) was converted into a fortress. . . . The entire population was called upon to participate in the fight.

"Out of pity for women and children I offered those in charge at Warsaw at least to permit the civil population to depart. I offered a truce. . . . The proud Polish city commandant did not even deign to reply. . . .

Tells of Surrender Demands

"Bombers and heavy artillery were directed to attack only objects which were military beyond peradventure of a doubt."

Hitler then related the history of the various additional attempts to persuade Warsaw to surrender and his efforts to get foreigners out of the city.

"I finally ordered the attack to begin September 25," he said. "The same defense (command) which first considered it beneath its dignity even entertained more humane proposals then and very quickly changed its attitude.

"May those peoples and their leaders who are of the same mind (as himself) now make their reply," he said in his hour and twenty-minute speech to the Reichstag and the world. "And let those who consider war to be the better solution reject my outstretched hand."

He said that his aim in making this statement was to spare his own people suffering.

Says Germany Will Win.

"Neither force of arms nor lapse of time will conquer Germany," he declared. "It is infantile to hope for the disintegration of our people."

These were among the other most material phases of his speech:

1. A renunciation of further territorial claims, save for his old colonial demands.

2. A declaration that Germany and Soviet Russia together would "relieve one of the acutest danger spots of Europe" by working for a peace zone in eastern Europe.

3. A specific assurance to the world that he had no designs on Rumania, the Ukraine, the Urals or Denmark, and an expression that in eastern Europe generally, and Scandinavia as well, his interests were wholly economic.

4. A declaration that one of Germany's tasks in dealing with fallen Poland was the establishment of a "new order of ethnographic conditions, that is to say resettlement of nationalities"—and a further declaration that it was a problem not restricted "to this particular sphere, but a task with far wider implications, for the east and south of Europe is to a large extent filled with splinters of German nationality, whose existence cannot be maintained."

Now Awaits Reply of Allies.

Collaborators said Hitler regarded his proposals as "formal" and that he would now wait for Great Britain and France to act on them.

Saying that if the present war was allowed to go on the "vigor of every nation will be sapped on the battlefields," Hitler added it would be a struggle in which "there are no longer any islands"—an obvious reference to Britain's vulnerability to air attack.

Such a war carried to the end, he added, would leave a frontier of "ruins and endless graves" between Germany and France.

Der Fuehrer began speaking at 12:06 P. M.—6:06 A. M. New York time.

During the speech he made conciliatory references to both Britain and France.

No Demand to Make.

Germany, he said, had no demand to make on England or France, and thus there was no reason for carrying on the struggle.

These were the prerequisities he listed as essential to European security:

Clarification of the foreign policies and aims of European States; reorganization of the internal economic system of individual States—along with organization of markets and currency regulation—to revive international trade; establishment of an "unconditionally guaranteed peace" and a sense of security on the part of individual nations by sanctioning Europe as remade and by reducing armaments.

"Why should this war in the West be fought?" he asked. "For the restoration of Poland? The Poland of the Versailles treaty will never rise again. This is guaranteed by two of the largest States in the world."

He ended his speech as follows:

"As Fuehrer of the German people and chancellor of the Reich I can only plead God at this moment that He has so wonderfully blessed us in our hard struggle for what is our right, and beg Him that we and all other nations may find the right way, so that not only the German people but all Europe may once more be granted the blessing of peace."

Reich's Relations to Russia.

As to Germany's currently close relations with Russia, he acknowledged that in the past he had declared that the U. S. S. R. was "organized on principles which differ from those held in Germany. But, he added:

"Since it became clear that (Joseph) Stalin saw nothing in these Russian-Soviet principles which should prevent him from initiating friendly relations with States of different political creeds, National Socialist Germany sees no reason why it should adopt another criterion."

The new German-Russian pact, he said, was not only one "of peace, but also of constant, satisfactory cooperation for both states."

In his address which some Nazis called the greatest speech for peace since the world war, Hitler coupled his suggestion for a general attempt to solve Europe's problems with a declaration that it could not be done "while cannons are thundering or mobilized armies are bringing pressure to bear upon it."

Urges Solution Now.

"If . . . these problems must be solved sooner or later," he said, "then it would be more sensible to tackle their solution before millions of men are first uselessly sent to death and billions in riches are destroyed.

"A continuation of the present state of affairs in the West is unthinkable. Each day will soon demand increasing sacrifices. . . ."

He introduced the subject of a peace conference by saying that the "most important condition" for a "real revival of economic life in and outside of Europe is the establishment of unconditionally guaranteed peace and of a sense of security on the part of individual nations."

"This security," he added, "will not only be rendered possible by a final sanctioning of the European status, but above all by a reduction of armaments to a reasonable and economically tolerable level.

Wants Arms Use Defined.

"The essential part of this necessary sense of security, however, is a clear definition of the legitimate use and application of certain modern armaments which can at any given moment have such devastating effect on the pulsating life of every nation and hence create a permanent sense of insecurity. . .

"I believe, however, that a sense of national security will not return to Europe until clear and binding international agreements have provided a comprehensive definition of the legitimate and illegitimate use of armaments.

. . . It must surely be possible to emulate the Red Cross and draw up some universally valid international regulation. It is only when this is achieved that peace can reign particularly in our densely populated continent—peace which, uncontaminated by suspicion or fear, will provide the only possible condition for real economic prosperity.

"To achieve this great end the leading nations of this Continent will one day have to come together in order to draw up, accept and guarantee a statute on a comprehensive basis which will insure for them all a sense of security, of calm, in short of peace.

Makes Plea for Armistice.

"Such a conference could not possibly be held without the most thorough preparation, that is, without exact elucidation of every point at issue. It is equally impossible that such a conference which is to determine the fate of this Continent for many years to come could carry on its deliberations while cannons are thundering or mobilized armies are bringing pressure to bear upon it.

Of the Polish operations he said, "German armies covered distances and spaces for the achievement of which more than fourteen months would have been necessary twenty-five years ago."

Der Fuehrer made more or less specific proposals for the erection of a Polish state provided that it "not be a center of intrigue" against Germany and Russia, and settlement of eastern Europe's minority trouble, including some regime for Jews.

During the first twenty minutes of his speech he described Germany's military successes in the war against Poland.

For the next twenty minutes he dwelt on the political side of the war in the East, bringing out Germany's friendship for Russia and asserting that Germany was not striving for world hegemony.

During the next fifteen minutes he discussed what he called his practical revision of the Versailles Treaty, declaring that what he had done was a happy event for all humanity.

He had revised the treaty bloodlessly, he said, with the exception of the last phase—a reference to the Polish war.

"That the last remnant of the Polish Army was able to hold out in Warsaw, Modlin and Hela until October is attributable solely to our cool wisdom and feeling of responsibility," Hitler said.

Der Fuehrer Bars Any Attempt to Restore Poland—Renews Colonial Demands —Urges Arms Conference

BERLIN, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler today proposed a European peace settlement "on a comprehensive basis," but added that if the allies rejected his "outstretched hand," "this statement will have been my last."

"Then we shall fight," he went on, and pictured the new war as one sure to bring unprecedented horror to the world.

at Warsaw at least to permit the civil population to depart. I offered a truce . . . the proud Polish city commandant did not even deign to reply . . .

"Bombers and heavy artillery were directed to attack only objects which were military beyond preadventure of a doubt."

Hitler then related the history of the various additional attempts to persuade Warsaw to surrender and his efforts to get foreigners out of the city.

Scores Polish Leadership.

"I finally ordered the attack to begin September 25," he said. "The same defense [command] which first considered it beneath its dignity even entertained more humane proposals then and very quickly changed its attitude.

"The German attack began September 25-27. It [the city] capitulated. With 120,000 men, it did not dare to make a bold sally but preferred to down its arms. No comparison with the Alcazar [the siege of Nationalists in a military citadel in the Spanish civil war] is in place here.

"The Polish soldier as an individual fought bravely in various places, but his leadership, beginning from the top, can only be characterized as irresponsible, conscienceless and incompetent.

"I make these assertions to anticipate the formulation of historic legends."

He narrated the plan of the Polish campaign, much along the lines of the German Army High Command's closing survey September 23.

Rise to Hear Death List.

"Now that I am about to give you the number of our dead and wounded," he continued, "I ask you to rise.

"Even if this number hardly totals a twentieth part of what we believed at the beginning of the campaign we might have to fear, yet let us not forget that every one who here gave his life made the greatest sacrifice that any man can make for his people.

"According to the casualty list of September 30, which will not change materially, total losses for the army, navy and air force, including officers, was the following: 10,572 killed, 30,322 wounded and 3,404 missing."

Hitler turned to Germany's new relations with Russia which, he said, grew out of the collapse of Poland.

Relations With Russia.

"If this step on Germany's part (steps to liquidate Poland) has resulted in a community of interests with Russia," Hitler declared, "that is due not only to a similarity of problems affecting the two States, but also to that conclusion which both States have arrived at with regard to their future relationships.

"In my speech at Danzig I already declared that Russia was organized on principles which differ from those held in Germany.

"However, since it became clear that Stalin saw nothing in these Russian-Soviet principles which should prevent him from cultivating friendly relations with States of different political creed, National Socialist Germany sees no reason why it should adopt another criterion.

"The Soviet Union is the Soviet Union, Nationalist Germany is Nationalist Germany. But one thing is certain: From the moment when the two States agreed to respect each other's distinctive regime and principles, every reason for a mutually hostile attitude has disappeared."

Tracing then the past relations between Russia and Germany, Hitler added:

"It is easy to understand that capitalist States of the west are interested today in playing of these two States and their principles against one another. For this purpose, and until it is realized, they would certainly regard the Soviet Union as a sufficiently respectable partner for conclusion of useful military pacts."

Hitler said the Western States regard it as a "peace" because their approaches to Russia were rejected and, instead, a rapprochement between Germany and Russia resulted.

He said the German-Russian agreement was the best refutation of assertions by "insolent journalists" that "Germany is aspiring to world domination."

Outlines Five Aims.

He then outlined five "aims and tasks" resulting from the collapse of Poland "in so far as the German sphere of interests is concerned."

These, he said, were:

1. Demarcation of a German border which "will do justice to the historical, ethnological and economic facts."

2. Pacification of the entire conquered territory "by restoring tolerable measures of peace and order."

3. A guaranty of security for Germany and its entire sphere of interest.

4. Re-establishment and re-organization of life, trade and transport.

5. Establishment of a "new order of ethnographic conditions, that is to say, resettlement of nationalities."

Developing the fifth point, Der Fuehrer declared that this was not a problem restricted only "to this particular sphere but a task with far wider implications, for the east and south of Europe is to a large extent filled with splinters of German nationality, whose existence cannot be maintained."

In the very existence of such splinters, he said, "lies the reason and cause for continual international disturbances. . . . It is, therefore, essential for a far-sighted ordering of the life of Europe that resettlement should be undertaken here so as to remove at least part of the material for European conflicts."

Analyzes Versailles.

Germany and Soviet Russia will support each other in attaining this end, Hitler said, and "never will allow a residual Polish State of the future to become a disturbing factor" for Germany or for good relations between Berlin and Moscow.

Der Fuehrer then launched into an analysis of the "methods of Versailles" and why they "proved an utter failure."

"Since the resurrection of the German people" through National Socialism (Nazism), he declared, relations existing between Germany and surrounding nations had been cleared up to a great extent.

"The uncertainty that today is weighing down the common life of nations is not due to German demands," Hitler asserted, "but to malignant insinuations published in the so-called democracies.

"German demands themselves were formulated in a very clear and precise way.

"They have, it is true, found their fulfillment not thanks to the insight of the League of Nations but thanks to the dynamics of natural development.

"The aim of German foreign policy as pursued by me has never been other than to guarantee the existence, that is to say, the life of the German people, to remove the injustice and nonsense contained in the treaty which not only destroyed Germany economically but has drawn victor nations into disaster as well."

Then Hitler expressed his conviction that it was "fortunate for humanity" that he had succeeded in removing the "craziest, most impossible" Versailles clauses without bloodshed in all cases but Poland and "without compromising foreign statesmen in the internal politics of their countries."

Summarizes His Efforts.

Hitler summarized under ten lations between ourselves and our points his efforts to "clear up reneighbors."

He mentioned non-aggression pacts with the Baltic States and Germany's endeavors to establish and continue friendly relations with countries such as The Netherlands, Belgium, Switzerland, Yugoslavia, Hungary and Italy.

He laid special stress on his efforts "to rid our relations with France of all trace of ill will and to render them tolerable for both nations . . . the return of the Saar territory was one demand which I regarded as an indispensable precondition of a French-German understanding. After France herself had found a just solution to this problem, Germany had no further claims against France.

"No such claim exists any longer and no such claim shall ever be put forward."

Cites Alsace-Lorraine.

Alsace-Lorraine, Hitler said, "does not constitute a problem which could even interfere with French-German relations" because, he said, it was of "slight" importance to Germany.

"It is impossible for a French statesman to get up and declare that I have ever made any demands on France, the fulfillment of which would have been incompatible with French honor or French interests," he maintained.

The Reichstag thundered with cheers when he added, "it is, however, true that instead of demands I have always expressed to France my desire to bury forever our ancient enmity."

Turning to Germany's other enemy in the west, Hitler declared he had devoted "no less effort" to achieve British-German friendship.

Wants British Friendship.

He [illegible] ever having acted contrary to British interests.

"Animosity on the part of certain British statesmen and journalists," he charged, had caused the failure of those endeavors.

Asserting that the aim of these men was "to seize the first opportunity in order to resume the fight with Germany," Hitler expressed belief that "there can only be real peace in Europe and throughout the world if Germany and England come to an understanding."

"Because of this conviction," he continued, "I have often shown the way to an understanding. If in the end there was not the desired result, it was not really my fault."

This source also said Hitler would accept it if proposed by the head of some other important neutral state.

The statements were given in an interpretation of the salient points of Hitler's speech today before the Reichstag.

Neutrals Cautioned

Hitler's address, this source said, essentially was an "appeal to neutrals to consider the present European situation as one of peaceful war in which their own vital interests would be seriously affected if the war continued, rather than one of conflict to be settled between two warring groups."

In other words, he said, Hitler would look favorably upon intervention by a neutral or neutrals to bring the war to an end.

Reaction "Optimistic"

The reaction of neutrals and Germany's friends such as Italy and Soviet Russia to Hitler's "[illegible] speech" was considered more important than the reaction of Britain and France, although the first reports as to how the British Government took the speech were regarded as "optimistic."

[Editor's Note: Britain promised a careful but wary examination of the speech. Premier Daladier of France said the war would continue until "the victory which alone will permit assurance of a regime of real justice and lasting peace in Europe."]

Peace Parley Possible

There was even a hint that the German Government might consent to the holding of a peace conference in Washington or somewhere else in the Americas far from the scene of the European strife.

problem likewise was considered a bid for the favor of Americans.

Failing a reply through neutrals or directly from Britain and France, the sinking of a submarine or a ship or the shelling of a city would be taken as a negative answer and the "expectable German reply would follow," the authorized source said.

Reich Ready For Either

If, however, he went on, it becomes clear that Hitler's "peace efforts" are taken as a sign of weakness his "reply" will come swift and fast. This source added that "our readiness for peace is just as great as our readiness for war."

Germany's present plan as stated by Hitler, it was said, includes proposals which [illegible] countries had been making for years but which Germany then felt she could not accept.

She rejected such proposals as collective security, freer trade, solution of minority problems and other ideals associated with the League of Nations' activities because, it was asserted, "the fundamental conditions which would permit Germany to have accepted them were not present."

Reversal Possible

Now, however, with revision of the Versailles treaty considered virtually accomplished, Germany was represented to be in a position to accept many of the things which Britain and France themselves formerly advocated.

It was stated flatly that Hitler did not intend to create a Polish protectorate, but beyond that it was asserted the Führer has not made up his mind as to the exact form the new Polish state would have.

The degree of independence the state would have, this source said, would depend largely on the attitude of the Polish people toward Germany.

Although Hitler said Germany and Russia alone would decide Poland's fate, this, however, does not eliminate the possibility of discussing the Polish [illegible]

Führer Said To Regard Reaction Of Non-Belligerents To His Speech As More Important Than That Of Britain And France

Berlin, Oct. 6—An authorized source said tonight that Adolf Hitler would accept an armistice if proposed by President Roosevelt with the view to a general European settlement.

Hitler was represented as willing to wait from eight to ten days—longer than originally expected—for world opinion on his peace plan to consolidate.

There has been a marked tendency since the beginning of the war to forget all the [illegible]story things said in Germany about Mr. Roosevelt. This ostensibly resulted from a desire to win his and the American people's sympathy by "correct" conduct of the war and scrupulous observance of prize laws on the part of submarine and other naval commanders.

Warning Also Evidence

Grand Admiral Erich Raeder's warning to the American naval attache here that conspirators had plotted the sinking of the United States liner Iroquois, now en route to New York with American refugees, was taken as further evidence of a desire to appease American public opinion.

Hitler Oers Europe Peace Or Nazi 'Victory'

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Oct. 6—"Adolph Hitler today offered peace in Europe or a fight in which "I do not doubt for a single moment that Germany will be victorious."

"Let those who consider war to be the better solution reject my outstretched hand," he said, and authoritative sources indicated he expected an answer in less than a week.

Outlining his stand in an address of one hour and twenty minutes before the Reichstag, the Reichsführer envisaged a conference of European nations to insure peace in the future.

"Why should this war in the west be fought?" he asked.

"For restoration of Poland? Poland of the Versailles treaty will never rise again."

Should it be fought to give Germany a new regime? Hitler further asked.

"Then millions of human lives will be sacrificed in vain," he said, "for neither will the German Reich go to pieces nor will a second Treaty of Versailles be made."

Warns Of Future

Continuing, he warned:

"And even should this come to pass after three, four or even eight years of war, then this second Versailles would once more become the source of French conflict in the future."

"The most important task," Hitler told the Reichstag, "is the creation of not only a belief in but also a sense of European security."

Aims in the foreign policy of European nations therefore "should be made perfectly clear," he said, and he sketched as cardinal points in Germany's policy:

1. The Treaty of Versailles is "obsolete" and without need of further revision "apart from demand for adequate colonial possessions justly due the Reich. . . . This is not a demand "backed by force" but a demand based on political justice and sane economic principles."
2. Reorganization of production in the various states, organization of markets and "a final currency regulation" for gradual removal of obstacles in the way or unrestricted trade.
3. "Establishment of an unconditionally guaranteed peace and of a sense of security on the part of the individual nations."

Would Reduce Armaments

For this security, he said, there must be "the final sanctioning of the European status," reduction of armaments "to a reasonable and economically tolerable level" and humanization of the use of war weapons.

To achieve prosperity, Hitler went on, "the leading nations of this continent will one day have to come together in order to draw up, accept and guarantee a statute on a comprehensive basis which will insure for them all a sense of security, of calm, in short, of peace."

But such a conference, he warned, could not be held without "thorough preparation and it could not 'carry on its deliberations while cannon are thundering' as mobilized armies are bringing pressure to bear upon it."

Paints Picture Of Death

Then, in contrasting this goal for the future with the possibilities of continued war on the Western front, he painted a picture of death and destruction by airplanes and artillery.

"And this battle of destruction will not be confined to the land," he said. "No, it will reach far out over the sea.

"Today there are no longer any islands. And the national wealth of Europe will be scattered in the form of shells and the vigor of every nation will be sapped on the battlefields."

"I make these statements," he declared, "simply because it goes without saying that I wish to spare my own people this suffering.

"If, however, the opinions of Messrs. Churchill (Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty) and followers should prevail, this statement will have been my last.

"Then we shall fight. Neither force of arms nor lapse of time will conquer Germany. There never will be another November, 1918, in German history. . . .

"Mr. Churchill may be convinced that Great Britain will win. I do not doubt for a single moment that Germany will be victorious.

"Destiny will decide who is right.

"One thing only is certain. In the course of world history, there have never been two victors, but very often only losers. This seems to me to have been the case in the last war.

"May those people and their leaders who are of the same mind now make their reply. And let those who consider war to be the better solution reject my outstretched hand."

Relations With Others

Points of the Führer's address devoted to Germany's relations with other states included:

SOVIET RUSSIA—The new pact of friendship and mutual interest . . . signed between Germany and the Soviet Union will insure not only peace but a constant satisfactory cooperation for both states.

SOUTHEASTERN EUROPE—Germany does not aim at domination of the Urals, the Ukraine, Rumania and other territories; frontiers with Yugoslavia and Hungary "are unalterable."

NORTHERN EUROPE—Germany's interests in the Baltic states are "exclusively economic"; with other northern states there is no conflict; friendship has been the goal in dealings with the Netherlands and Belgium as well as with Switzerland.

ITALY—Any possibility of a conflict of interests of a territorial nature has been removed. One-time enemies during the World War, they (Germany and Italy) have become sincere friends.

FRANCE—After the return of the Saar, "Germany had no further claims against France. . . . I have always expressed to France my desire to bury forever our ancient enmity and bring together these two nations, both of which have such glorious pasts."

GREAT BRITAIN—"I have devoted no less effort to the achievement of an Anglo-German understanding, nay, more than that, of an Anglo-German friendship. At no time have I ever acted contrary to British interests. . . . I actually considered it as one of my life aims to reconcile these two peoples . . ."

Only One Real Peace

"But I believe even today," Hitler said, "that there can only be real peace in Europe and throughout the world if Germany and England come to an understanding."

He asked the deputies to rise as he announced Germany's casualties:

"According to the casualty list of up to the thirtieth of September, 1939, which won't change materially, the total losses for the army, navy and air force, including officers, are as follows: 10,572 killed; 30,322 wounded; 3,404 missing". He announced the number of prisoners taken by the Germans as 694,000.

Assails Rise Of Poland

In explaining the "historically unprecedented collapse of a structure purported to be a state," he said Poland had been created at Versailles "in utter disregard of almost 500 years of experience, without consideration for the lesson of historical development during many centuries, without appreciation for ethnographic conditions and with no regard for all economic expediencies."

Hitler said Germany nevertheless attempted to negotiate with Poland but met only with refusals. These, he said, could be traced to boasts of the Polish army's power by its generals and to the guarantees of aid by France and Britain.

His scorn for the League of Nations remained unchanged, however, for he said: "The League of Nations isn't a living but an already dead thing," and "none of the revisions recognized (in the Versailles treaty) as necessary from the outset ever have been effected by the League of Nations."

Envisages Migrations

Hitler made it evident that an international conference, if called, cannot concern itself with the Polish conquest nor events in eastern Europe, but must accept as accomplished such rearrangements as the Nazi regime has achieved hitherto and Germany and Russia propose in the future to agree upon.

He did, however, envisage possible new migrations of Europe's multifarious peoples and races when he said in speaking of southeastern Europe:

"It is essential for farsighted ordering of the life of Europe that resettlement should be undertaken here so as to remove at least a part of the material for European conflicts."

He reiterated his conviction that Western democracies are causing all the trouble in Europe.

"The uncertainty that today is weighing down the common life of nations is not due to German demands, but to the malignant insinuations published in the so-called democracies," he opined.

Text of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's Address on His War Aims Before the German Reichstag

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 6—Following is the official translation of Chancellor Hitler's speech to the Reichstag today:

It was a fateful hour, on the first of September of this year, when you met here as representatives of the German people. I had to inform you then of serious decisions which had been forced upon us as a result of the intransigeant and provocative action of a certain State.

Since then five weeks have gone by. I have asked you to come here today in order to give you an account of what has passed, the necessary insight into what is happening at present and, so far as that is possible, into the future as well.

For the last two days our towns and villages have been decorated with flags and symbols of the new Reich. Bells are ringing to celebrate a great victory, which, of its kind, is unique in history. A State of no less than 36,000,000 inhabitants, with an army of almost fifty infantry and cavalry divisions, took up arms against us. Their arms were far reaching, their confidence in their ability to crush Germany knew no bounds.

After one week of fighting there could no longer be any doubt as to the outcome. Whenever Polish troops met German units, they were driven back or dispersed. Poland's ambitious strategy for a great offensive against the territory of the Reich collapsed within the first forty-eight hours of the campaign. Death-defying in attack, advancing at an unconquerable rate of progress, infantry, armored detachments, air force and units of the navy were soon dictating the course of events.

Masters Throughout Campaign

They were masters of the situation throughout the campaign. In a fortnight's time the major part of the Polish Army was either scattered, captured or surrounded. In the meantime, however, the German Army had covered distances and occupied regions which twenty-five years ago would have taken over fourteen months to conquer.

Even though a number of peculiarly gifted newspaper strategists in other parts of the world attempted to describe the pace at which this campaign progressed as not coming up to Germany's expectations, we ourselves all know that in all history there has scarcely been a comparable military achievement.

That the last remnants of the Polish Army were able to hold out in Warsaw, Modlin and on Hela Peninsula until Oct. 1 was not due to their prowess in arms, but only to our cool thinking and our sense of responsibility.

I forbade the sacrifice of more human lives than was absolutely necessary. That is to say, I deliberately released the German Supreme Command from adherence to a principle still observed in the Great War demanding that for the sake of prestige certain objectives must under all circumstances be reached within a certain time limit.

Everything which it is imperative to do will be done regardless of sacrifice, but what can be avoided will not be done.

There would have been no difficulty for us in breaking the resistance of Warsaw between the 10th and 12th of September, just as we finally broke it Sept. 25-27, only that in the first place I wanted to spare German lives and in the second place I still clung to the hope, misdirected though it was, that the Polish side might for once be guided by responsible common sense instead of by irresponsible lunacy. But in this instance we were once more confronted with the spectacle which we had witnessed before on the largest possible scale.

Warsaw Forced to Resist

The attempt to convince the responsible Polish command—in so far as it existed—that it was futile and in fact insane to attempt resistance, especially in a city of more than a million inhabitants, proved entirely fruitless. A "generalissimo," who himself took to inglorious flight, forced upon the capital of his country a resistance which could never lead to anything but its destruction.

Since it was realized that Warsaw's fortifications alone were not likely to withstand the German attack, the entire city was converted into a fortress and barricaded in every direction. Batteries were mounted in every square and great courtyard, thousands of machine-gun posts manned and the whole population called up to take part in the fighting.

Sheer sympathy for women and children caused me to make an offer to those in command of Warsaw at least to let civilian inhabitants leave the city. I declared a temporary armistice and safeguards necessary for evacuation, with the result that we all waited for emissaries just as fruitlessly as we had waited at the end of August for a Polish negotiator. The proud Polish commander of the city did not even condescend to reply.

To make sure, I extended the time limit and ordered bombers and heavy artillery to attack only military objectives, repeating my proposal in vain. I thereupon made an offer that the whole suburb of Praga would not be bombarded at all, but should be reserved for the civilian population in order to make it possible for them to take refuge there.

This proposal, too, was treated with contempt on the part of the Poles. Twice I attempted to evacuate at least the international colony from the city. In this I finally succeeded after great difficulties, in the case of the Russian colony, actually at the last moment. I then ordered a general attack on the city for Sept. 25.

The same defenders who at first considered it beneath their dignity even to reply to my humane proposals, made on grounds of humanity, then very rapidly changed face. The German attack opened on Sept. 25, and Warsaw capitulated on the 27th.

With 120,000 men the defenders did not even attempt to break through as our German General Litzmann once did at Brzesiny with a vastly inferior force, but, on the contrary, preferred to lay down arms.

No Comparison With Alcazar

Any comparison with the Alcazar is entirely out of place. There for weeks on end Spanish heroes defied the bitterest attacks and earned a right to lasting fame. Here, on the other hand, a great city was unscrupulously exposed to destruction, only to capitulate after [illegible]-eight-hour assault.

The [illegible] soldiers as individuals fought bravely [illegible] many occasions, but their officers, beginning with the command, can only be described as irresponsible, unconscientious and inefficient. Before the bombardment of Hela I had also given orders that not a single man should be sacrificed until the most careful preparation for action had been made. There, too, surrender came at the very moment when the Germans had at length announced their intention of attacking and had begun

...refusing to the assistance of the infantry. Men of our armored mechanized units who, with dauntless courage and heedless of counter-attacks and numerical superiority of the enemy, attacked again and again are worthy of this legend.

Such a legend should also immortalize the airmen who, fearless of death and knowing that if anti-aircraft fire did not kill them in the air, they would, if forced to make a parachute landing, inevitably suffer frightful death, continued with steadfast courage to carry out reconnoissance flights and attacks with bombs or machine-gun fire whenever they were commanded to do so and whenever they found objectives.

The same is true of the brave men of our submarine fleet. If, within four weeks, we totally annihilated a State with a population of 36,000,000 and corresponding military strength, and if during this whole period our victorious arms have not suffered a single setback, this cannot be ascribed simply to good luck but constituted certain proof of fine training, excellent leadership and indomitable courage.

Right to Laurel Proved

German soldiers have once more firmly established the right to wear the laurel wreath of which they were meanly deprived in 1918. We all owe a debt of deep, solemn gratitude to many unknown, unnamed heroes of our people. For the first time they came from every province of Germany to serve with the colors. But the blood which they shed in a common cause will form a closer bond of union than could be forged by the mere structure of a State.

Our knowledge of the strength of our fighting forces fills us all with a well of confidence, for they have not only proved that they are strong in attack, but also that they are strong in retaining what they have won. The excellent training received by the individual officers and men has been amply justified. It is this training which is responsible for the extremely few casualties which—hard as they are for the individual to bear—are on the whole far less than we ventured to expect.

Admittedly the total number of casualties gives no idea of the severity of the various encounters, for certain regiments and divisions suffered very heavy losses when they were attacked by Polish forces which were numerically superior or came into conflict with such forces when they themselves were attacking.

I believe I need refer to only two episodes which serve as examples for many in the long series of battles and encounters which followed each other in such rapid succession:

When, in order to cover the advance of Colonel General von Reichenau's armies toward the Vistula, divisions of Colonel General Blaskowitz's armies were moving in formation in the direction of Warsaw, with the objective of turning an attack launched by the Polish central army against General von Reichenau's flank, General Blaskowitz's army was suddenly attacked on the march by the Polish Army, the main section of which had been assumed to be retreating toward the Vistula.

This was a desperate attempt on the part of the Polish Army to break the ring which threatened to enclose them. Four Polish divisions and several cavalry contingents hurled themselves against one single German regular division, which being in extended formation had to defend a line nearly nineteen miles in length.

Outnumbered 6 to 1

Despite the fact that the enemy outnumbered them by five or six to one and that the men were overfatigued, having been fighting or on the march for several days, this division bore the brunt of the attack which it repulsed, partly fighting at close quarters, neither retreating nor wavering, until the necessary reinforcements were brought up.

And while the enemy was triumphantly broadcasting the news that they had [illegible] through to Lodz, the general [illegible] the division, his wounded [illegible] in splints, was reporting to me on the details of the attack, the failure of the attempt to break through our lines and the courageous behavior of his men. Of course, the losses on this occasion were heavy.

A German division composed of older ranks, along with other small contingents, had been instructed to drive the Poles into the northern part of the Polish Corridor, to take Gdynia and then advance in the direction of the Hela Peninsula.

This division was opposed by Polish picked troops, marines, ensigns and non-commissioned officers, the cadet corps, naval artillery and mounted troops.

With calm assurance, the German division set about its appointed task, the performance of which brought it into conflict with that enemy far superior in numbers. Within the space of a few days, however, the Poles were driven back from one position to another, 12,000 prisoners were taken, Gdynia was freed, Oxhoeft captured, and another 4,700 men driven out onto the peninsula of Hela and surrounded.

The scene when the prisoners were marched off was an impressive one. A majority of the victorious troops were middle-aged men, many of them wearing decorations won during the great war, while past them marched columns of prisoners, young men between the ages of 20 and 28.

House Asked to Rise

As I am now about to make known to you the number of our dead and wounded, I request that you rise from your seats. Though owing to the training given our troops, the effectiveness of our weapons and the command of our forces the figures do not amount to even one-twentieth of what our apprehensions had been at the outset of the campaign, we will never forget that every soldier who fell fighting brought for his people and our Reich the greatest sacrifice that man can bring.

According to the casualty list of up to the 30th of September, 1939, which will not change materially, the total losses for the army, navy and air force, including officers, are as follows: 10,572 killed; 30,322 wounded; 3,404 missing. Unfortunately, of those missing a certain number who fell into Polish hands will probably be found to have been massacred and killed.

All our gratitude is due to the victims of the campaign in Poland, while the wounded may be assured of our best attention and care, and the families of those killed of our sympathy and help.

By the capitulation of the fortress [illegible] Warsaw [illegible]odlin and the surrender of Hela, the Polish campaign has come to an end. The task of safeguarding the country against vagabonding marauders, gangs of robbers and individual groups of terrorists will be carried through with all energy.

The outcome of the war was the annihilation of all Polish armies, followed by the dissolution of the Polish State. Six hundred and ninety-four thousand prisoners have set out on their march to Berlin. The amount of war material captured cannot yet be estimated.

Since the outbreak of the war, the German forces have at the same time in calm preparedness taken up positions in the West ready to meet the enemy.

The naval forces of the Reich have fulfilled their duty in the attack on the Westerplatte, Gydnia, Oxhoeft and Hela, and in protecting the Baltic Sea and the German North Sea coast our submarines are fighting in a spirit worthy of the memory of our heroes in the last war.

Reason for Poland's Collapse

In the face of this historically unprecedented collapse of a structure purporting to be a State, the question in almost everybody's mind is as to the reason for such a phenomenon.

Versailles was the cradle of a Polish State which had emerged from the untold sacrifice of blood—not of Polish but of German and Russian blood. Poland, who for centuries past had proved herself incapable of existence, was in 1916 artificially begotten and in 1919 no less artificially born by a German government just as incapable of existence.

In utter disregard of almost 500 years of experience, without consideration for the lesson of historical development during many centuries, without appreciation for ethnographic conditions and with no regard for all economic expediencies, a State was constructed at Versailles which, according to its whole nature, was sooner or later bound to become the cause of a most serious crisis.

A man who, I am sorry to say, now ranks among our fiercest enemies, at that time clearly foresaw all this, I mean Mr. Lloyd George. Like so many others he sounded warning, not only at the time of the creation of that structure but also in the course of its subsequent expansion which had taken place in utter disregard of reason and right.

At that time he expressed apprehension that in that State an accumulation of conditions was being created containing the risk of conflicts which sooner or later might lead to great European complications.

As a matter of fact, conditions surrounding the structure of this new so-called State, as far as its nationalities were concerned, could not be clarified until now. It requires some knowledge of Polish census methods to realize how utterly alien to truth, and therefore irrelevant, statistics on the national composition of that territory were and [illegible]

In 1919 the Poles [illegible] claims to the territory where they pretended to have a majority of 95 per cent—in East Prussia, for instance—whereas a plebiscite later showed the Poles actually had reached a figure of 2 per cent.

Non-Poles Persecuted

In the State finally created, which contained parts of former Russia, Austria and Germany, non-Polish elements were so brutally illtreated, suppressed, tyrannized and tortured that any plebiscite depended entirely on the good-will of local administrative officials for producing such results as were desired or demanded.

Nor did indisputable Polish elements receive much better recognition. And when, on top of all this, statesmen of our Western Hemisphere spoke of this kind of creation as of democracy, such terms amounted to mockery of the fundamentals of their own system.

In that country there ruled a minority of aristocratic or non-aristocratic large, vast estate owners and wealthy intellectuals to whom under the most favorable circumstances their own Polish compatriots were nothing but mass man power. For that reason the regime was never backed by more than 15 per cent of the total population.

The economic distress and low cultural level corresponded with these conditions. In 1919 this State took over from Prussia and also from Austria provinces which had been developed through hundreds of years of hard toil, some of them being in a most flourishing condition. Today, after the elapse of twenty years, they are at a point of gradually turning into steppes again.

The Vistula, the river whose estuary has always been of such tremendous importance for the Polish Government, owing to the lack of any and all care is now already unsuitable for any real traffic and, depending on the season, is either an unruly stream or a driad-up rivulet.

Towns as well as villages are in a state of neglect. The roads, with very few exceptions, are badly out of repair and in a terrible condition. Any one who travels in that country for two or three weeks will get the proper idea of the classical German term "Polnische wirtschaft," meaning a "Polish state of affairs"!

Peaceful Relations Sought

In spite of the unbearable conditions prevailing in that country, Germany endeavored to establish peaceful relations with it. During the years 1933 and 1934 I endeavored to find some equitable compromise between our national interests and our desire for the maintenance of peace with that country. There was a time, when Marshal Pilsudski was still alive, when it seemed possible for this hope to materialize were it only to a modest extent.

Unlimited patience and still greater self-restraint were called for because many of the regional Polish administrative officials took the understanding between Germany and Poland to be merely a license for the persecution and annihilation of the Germans in Poland with even less risk. In the few years up to 1922 more than one-and-a-half million Germans had been forced to leave their homes. They were hunted out, often without being able to take even their most necessary clothing.

When, in 1938, the Olsa territory went to Poland, they used the same methods against the Czechs who lived there. Often within a few hours many thousands of these had to leave their working places, their homes, their villages and towns at the shortest notice without being allowed to take anything more with them than a suitcase or a little box with clothing.

Things like this went on for years, and for years we looked on, always striving to attain some improvement in the lot of the unhappy Germans living there by establishing closer relations. It was, however, impossible to overlook the fact that every German attempt thereby to secure the removal of these intolerable conditions was taken by the Polish rulers to be nothing more than a sign of weakness, if not of stupidity.

Issue of Danzig

When the Polish Government proceeded in a thousand ways gradually to subjugate Danzig as well, I endeavored, by means of practical proposals, to secure a solution whereby Danzig, in accordance with the wishes of its population, could be nationally and politically united with Germany without impairing the economic needs and so-called rights of Poland. If today any one alleges that these were ultimative demands, that allegation is a lie.

The proposals for a solution, as communicated to the Polish Government in March, 1939, were nothing but the suggestions and the ideas already discussed long ago between myself and Polish Foreign Minister Beck, except for the fact that in the Spring of 1939 I thought I would be able to facilitate the acceptance of these proposals by the Polish Government in the face of their own public opinion by the offer to concede to them an equivalent.

The fact that the Polish Government at that time refused to consider a discussion of these proposals was due to two reasons: for one thing, the inflamed chauvinist powers behind the government never intended to solve the problem of Danzig, but on the contrary already lived in the hope, expounded later in publications and speeches, of acquiring territory from the Reich far beyond the bounds of Danzig; in fact, they hoped to be in a position to attack and conquer.

These aims, far from stopping at East Prussia, were climaxed by a flood of publications and a continuous sequence of speeches, addresses, resolutions, etc., in addition to the incorporation of East Prussia, for the annexation of Pomerania and Silesia. The Oder represented the minimum of frontier claims and finally even the Elbe was described as the natural dividing line between Germany and Poland.

These demands, which today may appear crazy but which were then presented with fanatical seriousness, were based in a simply ridiculous manner on the assumption of a "Polish mission of civilization" and declared justified because they were supposed to be capable of fulfillment in view of the strength of the Polish Army.

"Boasts and Insults"

While I was inviting the then Polish Foreign Minister to take part in a conference for the discussion of our proposals, the Polish military generals were already writing about the inefficiency of the German Army, the cowardice of the German soldiers, the inferiority of the German weapons, the obvious superiority of the Polish forces and the certainty, in case of war, of defeating the Germans at the gates of Berlin and of annihilating the Reich.

The man, however, who intended, as he expressed it, to hack the German Army to pieces at the gates of Berlin, was not just an illiterate, insignificant Pole but their commander in chief, Rydz-Smigly, who at present resides in Rumania.

[This was a reference to Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, who some time ago changed his last name to Smigly-Rydz from Rydz-Smigly.]

Violations and insults which Germany and her armed forces had to put up with from these military dilletantes would never have been tolerated by any other State, just as they were not expected from any other nation. No French or English generals would ever have presumed to express a judgment of the German armed forces similar to that which we heard read from the Polish side for years, particularly since March, 1939; and on the other hand no German General would have spoken in that manner of English, French or Italian soldiers.

A great deal of self-control was needed to keep calm in face of these simply shameless insults, in spite of the fact that we knew that the German armed forces could destroy and sweep away the whole of this ridiculous State and its army within a few weeks.

But this attitude, for which the Polish leaders themselves were responsible, was the fundamental reason why the Polish Government refused even to discuss the German proposals.

Fatal Guarantee Promise

Another reason was that fatal promise of guarantee given to the State which, although not menaced at all, very rapidly became convinced it could afford to challenge a great power without risk once it was assured of the support of two great powers, perhaps even hoping this way to lay the foundation for realization of all its own insane ambitions.

For, as soon as Poland felt certain of that guarantee, minorities living in that country had to suffer what amounted to a reign of terror. I do not consider it my task to speak of the lot of the [illegible] Russian population, whose interests now lie in the hands of Russia.

However, I do feel it my duty to speak of the lot of those helpless thousands of Germans who carried on the tradition of those who first brought culture to that country centuries ago and whom the Polish now began to oppress and drive out. Since March, 1939, they had been victims of truly satanic terrorization. How many of them had been abducted and where they are cannot be stated even today.

Villages with hundreds of German inhabitants are now left without men because they all have been killed. In others women were violated and murdered, girls and children outraged and killed. In 1598 an Englishman—Sir George Carew—wrote in his diplomatic reports to the English Government that the outstanding features of Polish character were cruelty and lack of moral restraint.

Since that time this cruelty has not changed. Just as tens of thousands of Germans were slaughtered and sadistically tormented to death, so German soldiers captured in fighting were tortured and massacred.

This pet lapdog of the Western democracies cannot be considered a cultured nation at all.

For more than four years I fought in the great war in the Western Front, but such things did not happen on either side.

Poland's Creators Blamed

Things that have occurred in Poland, in the past few months, and especially the last four weeks, constitute flaming accusations against those responsible for the creation of a so-called State lacking every national, historical, cultural and moral foundation. Had only 1 per cent of these atrocities been committed in any part of the world against the English people I should be interested to see the indignation of those gentlemen who today in hypocritical horror condemn the German or Russian procedure.

No! To grant guarantees to this State and this government as was done could only lead to appalling disasters. Neither the Polish Government, nor the small cliques supporting it, nor the Polish nation as such were capable of measuring the responsibilities which were implied in such guarantees in Poland's favor by half of Europe.

The passionate sentiment thus aroused, together with the sense of that security which [illegible] unconditionally guaranteed to them, counted for the behavior of the Polish Government during the period between April and August this year.

It was also the cause of the attitude they adopted toward my conciliatory proposals. The government rejected these proposals because they felt themselves protected, or even encouraged, by public opinion and public opinion protected them and encouraged them on their way because it had been left in ignorance by its government and particularly because in its every action it felt itself sufficiently protected from without.

All this led to an increase in the number of appalling atrocities committed against German nationals in Poland and to the rejection of all proposals for a solution and in the end to the steadily growing encroachments on actual Reich territory. It was quite comprehensible that such a state of mind interpreted German long suffering as a weakness, that is, that every concession on Germany's part was regarded as proof of the possibility of some further aggressive steps.

His Warning Disregarded

A warning given Poland to refrain from sending Danzig any more notes amounting to ultimata and above all to desist from economic strangulation of that city did not ease the situation in the least; it resulted, in fact, in complete stoppage of all Danzig means of communication.

The warning to suspend or at least to take steps against the unceasing cases of murder, ill treatment and torture of German nationals in Poland had the effect of increasing these atrocities and of calling for more bloodthirsty harangues and provocative speeches from the Polish local administrative officials and military authorities.

The German proposals aiming at a last-minute agreement on a just and equitable basis were answered by a general mobilization. The German request that an intermediary should be sent, founded on a proposal made by Great Britain, was not complied with and on the second day was answered by an offensive declaration.

Under these circumstances it was obvious that if further incursions into the Reich's territory occurred, Germany's patience would be at an end. What the Poles had erroneously interpreted as weakness was in reality our sense of responsibility and my firm determination to come to an understanding if that at all was possible.

Since they believed that this patience and long suffering was a sign of weakness which would allow them to do anything, no other course remained than to show them their mistake by striking back with the weapons which they themselves had used for years.

Under these blows their State has crumbled to pieces in a few weeks and is now swept from the earth. One of the most senseless deeds perpetrated at Versailles is thus a thing of the past.

Accord With Russia

If this step on Germany's part has resulted in a community of interests with Russia, that is due not only to the similarity of the problems affecting the two States, but also to that of the conclusions which both States had arrived at with regard to their future relationship.

In my speech at Danzig I already declared that Russia was organized on principles which differ from those held in Germany. However, since it became clear that Stalin found nothing in the Russian-Soviet principles which should prevent him from cultivating friendly relations with States of a different political creed, National Socialist Germany sees no reason why she should adopt another criterion. The Soviet Union is the Soviet Union, National Socialist Germany is National Socialist Germany.

But one thing is certain: from the moment when the two States mutually agreed to respect each other's distinctive regime and principles, every reason for any mutually hostile attitude had disappeared. Long periods in the history of both nations have shown that the inhabitants of these two largest States in Europe were never happier than when they lived in friendship with each other. The Great War, which once made Germany and Russia enemies, was disastrous for both countries.

It is easy to understand that the capitalist States of the West are interested today in playing off these two States and their principles against each other. For this purpose, and until it is realized, they certainly regard the Soviet Union as a sufficiently respectable partner for the conclusion of a useful military pact. But they regard it as perfidy that their honorable approaches were rejected and in their place rapprochement took place between those two very powers who had every reason for seeking happiness for their respective peoples in developing their economic relationship along the lines of peaceful cooperation.

Foreign Policy Turning Point

Months ago I stated in the Reichstag that the conclusion of the German-Russian non-aggression pact marked the turning point in the whole German foreign policy. The new pact of friendship and mutual interest since signed between Germany and the Soviet Union will insure not only peace but a constant satisfactory cooperation for both states.

Germany and Russia together will relieve one of the most acute danger spots in Europe of its threatening character and will, each in her own sphere, contribute to the welfare of the peoples living there, thus aiding to European peace in general. If certain circles today see in this pact either the breakdown of Russia or Germany's results them best—I should [illegible] give them [illegible] answer.

For many years imaginary aims were attributed to Germany's foreign policy which at best might be taken to have arisen in the mind of a schoolboy.

At a moment when Germany is struggling to consolidate her own living space, which only consists of a few hundred thousand square kilometers, insolent journalists in countries which rule over 40,000,000 square kilometers state Germany is aspiring to world domination!

German-Russian agreements should prove immensely comforting to these worried sponsors of universal liberty, for do they not show most emphatically that their assertions as to Germany's aiming at domination of the Urals, the Ukraine, Rumania, etc., are only excrescences of their own unhealthy war-lord fantasy?

In one respect it is true Germany's decision is irrevocable, namely in her intention to see peaceful, stable and thus tolerable conditions introduced on her eastern frontiers; also it is precisely here that Germany's interests and desires correspond entirely with those of the Soviet Union. The two States are resolved to prevent problematic conditions arising between them which contain germs of internal unrest and thus also of external disorder and which might perhaps in any way unfavorable affect the relationship of these two great States with one another.

Germany and the Soviet Union have therefore clearly defined the boundaries of their own spheres of interest with the intention of being singly responsible for law and order and preventing everything which might cause injury to the other partner.

The aims and tasks which emerge from the collapse of the Polish State are, in so far as the German sphere of interest is concerned, roughly as follows:

1. Demarcation of the boundary for the Reich, which will do justice to historical, ethnographical and economic facts.
2. Pacification of the whole territory by restoring a tolerable measure of peace and order.
3. Absolute guarantees of security not only as far as Reich territory is concerned but for the entire sphere of interest.
4. Re-establishment and reorganization of economic life and of trade and transport, involving development of culture and civilization.
5. As the most important task, however, to establish a new order of ethnographic conditions, that is to say, resettlement of nationalities in such a manner that the process ultimately results in the obtaining of better dividing lines than is the case at present. In this sense, however, it is not a case of the problem being restricted to this particular sphere, but of a task with far wider implications, for the east and south of Europe are to a large extent filled with splinters of the German nationality, whose existence they cannot maintain.

In their very existence lie the reason and cause for continual international disturbances. In this age of the principle of nationalities and of racial ideals, it is utopian to believe that members of a highly developed people can be assimilated without trouble.

Resettlement to Be Made

It is therefore essential for a far-sighted ordering of the life of Europe that a resettlement should be undertaken here so as to remove at least part of the material for European conflict. Germany and the Union of Soviet Republics have come to an agreement to support each other in this matter.

The German Government will, therefore, never allow the residual Polish State of the future to become in any sense a disturbing factor for the Reich itself and still less a source of disturbance between the German Reich and Soviet Russia.

As Germany and Soviet Russia undertake this work of re-establishment, the two States are entitled to point out that the attempt to solve this problem by the methods of Versailles has proved an utter failure. In fact it had to fail because these tasks cannot be settled sitting around a table or by simple decrees. Most of the statesmen who in Versailles had to decide on these complicated problems did not possess the slightest historical training, indeed they often had not even the vaguest idea of the nature of the task with which they were faced.

Neither did they bear any responsibility for the consequences of their action. Recognition that their work might be faulty was of no significance because in practice there was no way for a real revision. It is true that in the Treaty of Versailles provision was made for keeping open the possibility of such revisions but in reality all attempts to attain such a revision miscarried and they were bound to miscarry because the League of Nations as the competent authority was no longer morally justified to carry out such a procedure.

After America had been first to refuse to ratify the Treaty of Versailles, or to join the League of Nations, and later when other countries also felt they could no longer reconcile their presence in this organization with the interests of their respective countries, the League degenerated more and more into a clique of parties interested in the Versailles dictate.

At any rate it is a fact that none of the revisions recognized from the outset as necessary had ever been effected by the League of Nations.

Since in our time it became customary to regard a refugee government as still existing even if it consists of three members, provided they have taken with them sufficient gold so as not to be an economic burden to the democratic countries suffering hospitality, it may be assumed that the League of Nations, too, will carry on bravely if but two nations sit there together. Perhaps even one will do!

But according to the government of the League any revision of the Versailles clauses would still be adjudicated exclusively by this illustrious organization—that is, in other words, revision would be practically impossible.

League a Dead Thing

The League of Nations is not a living but already a dead thing; nevertheless the peoples concerned are not dead but alive and they will uphold their vital interests however incapable the League of Nations may be of seeing, grasping or respecting those interests.

National Socialism is not a phenomenon which has grown up in Germany with the malicious intent of thwarting League efforts at revision, but a movement which arose because for fifteen years the most natural human and social rights of a great nation had been suppressed and denied redress.

And I personally take exception at seeing foreign statesmen stand up and call me guilty of having broken my word because I have now put these revisions through.

On the contrary I pledged my sacred word to the German people to do away with the Treaty of Versailles and to restore to them their natural and vital rights as a great nation.

The extent to which I am securing these vital rights is modest.

This I ask: If forty-six million Englishmen claim the right to rule over forty million square kilometers of the earth, it cannot be wrong for eighty-two million Germans to demand the right to live on 800,000 square kilometers, to till their fields and to follow their trades and callings, and if they further demand the restitution of those colonial possessions which formerly were their property, which they had not taken away from anybody by robbery or war but honestly acquired by purchase, exchange and treaties. Moreover, in all my demands, I always first tried to obtain revisions by way of negotiation.

I did, it is true, refuse to submit the question of German vital rights to some non-competent international body in the form of humble requests. Just as little as I suppose that Great Britain would plead for respect of her vital interests, so little ought one to expect the same of National Socialist Germany. I have, however, and I must emphasize this fact most solemnly, limited in the extreme the measure of these revisions of the Versailles Treaty.

Notably in all those cases where I did not see any menace to the natural, vital interests of my people, I have myself advised the German [illegible]tion to hold back. Yet these eighty mil[illegible] people must [illegible] somewhere [illegible]re exists a [illegible] that not even the Versailles Treaty has been able to destroy; although it has in the most unreasonable manner dissolved States, torn asunder regions economically connected, cut communication lines, etc., yet the people, the living substance of flesh and blood, has remained and will forever remain in the future.

It cannot be denied that since the German people has found its resurrection through National Socialism, the relation existing between Germany and the surrounding nations has been cleared up to a great extent.

The uncertainty that today is weighing down the common life of nations is not due to German demands, but to the malignant insinuations published in the so-called democracies.

The German demands themselves were formulated in a very clear and precise way. They have, it is true, found their fulfillment not thanks to the insight of the League of Nations but thanks to the dynamics of natural development.

The aim of the German foreign policy as pursued by me has never been other than to guarantee the existence—that is to say, the life—of the German people, to remove the injustice and nonsense contained in a treaty which not only destroyed Germany economically but has drawn the victor nations into disaster as well.

German Longing for Peace

For the rest, however, our whole work of rebuilding was concerned with the home affairs of the Reich and no country in the world had a greater longing for peace than the German people. It was fortunate for humanity and no misfortune at all that I succeeded in removing the craziest, most impossible clauses of the Versailles Treaty by peaceful methods and without compromising foreign statesmen in the internal politics of their countries.

That some details of this action may have been painful to certain interested parties is comprehensible. But the merit is all the greater for the fact that this reorganization was brought about without bloodshed in all cases but the last one.

The last revision of this treaty could have been brought about in exactly the same peaceful way had not two circumstances I have mentioned had the contrary effect. That is chiefly the fault of those who not only took no pleasure in the former peaceful revison, but on the contrary complained of the fact that by peaceful methods a new Central Europe was being built up; that is to say, a Central Europe that was able once more to give its inhabitants work and bread.

As I have already mentioned, it was one of the aims of the Government of the Reich to clear up the relation between ourselves and our neighbors. Allow me to point out some facts that cannot be refuted by the scribblings of international press liars.

First, Germany has concluded non-aggression p[illegible] with the Baltic States. Here [illegible] there are of an exclusively economic nature.

Second. In former times Germany never had any conflict of interests or indeed litigation points with the Northern States and she has none today either.

Friendly With Other States

Third. Germany has taken no steps in regard to the German territory handed over to Denmark under the terms of the Treaty of Versailles; she has, on the contrary, established local and friendly relations with Denmark. We have claimed no revision, but we have concluded a non-aggression pact with Denmark. Our relations with that country are thus directed toward unswervingly loyal and friendly cooperation.

Fourth. Holland: the new Reich has endeavored to continue the traditional friendship with Holland; it did not take over any differences between the two States nor did it create new ones.

Fifth. Belgium: immediately after I had taken over the government I tried to establish friendly relations with Belgium. I renounced any revision as well as any desire for revision. The Reich has put forward no claim which might in any way have been regarded as a threat to Belgium.

Sixth. Switzerland: Germany adopted the same attitude toward Switzerland. The Reich Government has never given the slightest cause for doubt regarding their desires to establish friendly relations with the country. Moreover, they themselves have never brought forward any complaint regarding the relations between the two countries.

Seventh. Immediately after the Anschluss [with Austria] became an accomplished fact I informed Yugoslavia that the frontier in common with that country would henceforth be regarded as unalterable by Germany and that we wished only to live in peace and friendship with that country.

Eighth. The bond which binds us to Hungary is old and traditional, one of close and sincere friendship. In this instance too our frontiers are unalterable.

Ninth. Slovakia appealed to Germany of her own accord for assistance in connection with her establishment as a state. Her independence is recognized and not infringed upon by the Reich.

Tenth. However, it is not only with these states but also with the Great Powers that Germany has improved and settled those relations which to a certain extent had been adversely affected by the Treaty of Versailles.

My first step was to bring about an alteration in the relations between Italy and the Reich. The existing frontiers between these two states have been formally recognized as unalterable by both countries. Any possibility of a clash of interests of a territorial nature has been removed. One-time enemies during the World War, they have in the meantime become sincere friends.

Establishment of friendly relations was not the final development, but, in the periods which followed, this led to the signing of a cordial pact based on our mutual philosophies and political interests which has proved itself to be an important factor in European cooperation.

My chief endeavor, however, has been to rid our relations with France of all trace of ill-will and render them tolerable for both nations. I once set forth with the utmost clarity Germany's claims in this domain and have never gone back on that declaration. Return of the Saar territory was one demand which I regarded as an indispensable pre-condition of Franco-German understandings.

After France herself had found a just solution of this problem, Germany had no further claims against France. No such claim exists any longer and no such claim shall ever be put forward. That is to say, I have refused even to mention the problem of Alsace-Lorraine not because I was forced to keep silent, but because this matter does not constitute a problem which could ever interfere with Franco-German relations.

I accepted the decision made in 1919 and refused to consider ever embarking upon war for the sake of a question which, comparatively speaking, is of slight importance for Germany's vital interests, but which is certainly likely to involve every second generation in a deadly war fear. France realized this.

It is impossible for any French statesman to get up and declare I have ever made any demands upon France the fulfillment of which would be incompatible with French honor or French interest. It is, however, true that instead of demands I have always expressed to France my desire to bury forever our ancient enmity and bring together these two nations, both of which have such glorious pasts.

Would Eradicate Enmity

Among the German people, I have done my utmost to eradicate the idea of everlasting enmity and to inculcate in its place a respect for the great achievements of the French nation and for its history, just as every German soldier has the greatest respect for the feats of the French Army. I have devoted no less effort to the achievement of an Anglo-German understanding, nay, more than that, of an Anglo-German friendship.

At no time and in no place have I ever acted contrary to British interests. Unfortunately I have only too often been forced to guard against instances of British interference in German affairs, even in cases which did not concern Great Britain in the least. I actually considered it as one of my life aims to reconcile these two peoples, not only through mutual understanding but through inner sympathy.

The German nation has gladly followed my lead in this respect. If my endeavors have been unsuccessful, it is only because of an animosity on the part of certain British statesmen and journalists, which has deeply affected me personally.

They made no secret of the fact that—for reasons which are unfathomable to us—their sole aim was to seize the first opportunity in order to resume the fight with Germany. The fewer reasons of substantial nature these men have for their schemes, the more they attempt to motivate their actions with empty phrases and assertions.

But I believe even today that there can only be real peace in Europe and throughout the world if Germany and England come to an understanding. Because of this conviction I have often shown the way to an understanding. If in the end there was not the desired result, it was really not my fault.

Finally, I now also attempted to bring the relations between the Reich and Soviet Russia to a normal and, in the end, to a friendly basis. Thanks to a similar trend of thought on the part of Mr. Stalin these endeavors have now been realized. Now with that State lasting and friendly relations have been established, the effect of which will be a blessing to both nations.

Thus, the revision of the Versailles Treaty carried through by me did not cause any chaos in Europe, but on the contrary produced the prerequisite of clear, stable and bearable conditions.

Only those who detest this order of things in Europe and wish for disorder can feel hostile to these actions. If, however, certain people think themselves obliged to reject with a hypocritical air the method by which a tolerable order of things was established in Central Europe, then my only reply to them is that in the end it is not so much the method but the useful result that counts.

Points to European Distress

Before I came into power Central Europe, that is to say not only Germany but also the surrounding States, were sinking into the hopeless distress of unemployment and production had decreased, involving an automatic jump in commodity consumption. The standard of living went down. Distress and misery were the result.

No criticizing foreign statesman can deny that not only in the old Reich but also in all the territory now merged with it, it has become possible to remove these indications of decay in the face of the most adverse conditions.

It has thus been proved that only as an entity is this Central European space capable of existence and that whoever breaks up that entity commits a crime against millions of people.

To have wiped out that crime does not amount to a breach of my word, but to me is honor itself; I am proud of it as my deed before history.

Neither the German people nor myself has taken an oath on the Treaty of Versailles; I have merely taken an oath on the welfare of my people, who gave me my mandate and on the welfare of those whom destiny has placed within our living space, thus inseparably binding them to our own welfare.

To guarantee the existence and thus the life of all of them is my sole concern.

Any attempt to criticize, judge or reject my actions from the rostrum of international presumption has no foundation before history and personally leaves me stone cold. I was called to my post by the confidence vested in me by the German people, whose attitude toward me is only strengthened by any such attempt at criticism or interference from abroad.

Moreover, previous to each single revision I have put forward proposals. I had attempted, by means of negotiations, to achieve and secure what was absolutely indispensable. In a certain number of cases I was successful. In other cases, I am sorry to say, my readiness to negotiate and perhaps also the small extent of my demands and the modesty of my proposals were interpreted as a sign of weakness and therefore rejected. Nobody could have regretted this more than I did.

There are, however, in the life of nations certain necessities which, if they are not brought about by peaceful methods, must be realized by force, however regrettable this appears, not only to the life of the individual citizen but also to the life of the community. It is undeniable that the greater interests common to all must never be impaired by the stubbornness or illwill of individuals and communities. To Poland, too, I made the most moderate proposals.

They were not only rejected, but on the contrary brought forth the general mobilization of that State, for which reasons were advanced which proved conclusively exactly that it was the very modesty of my proposals which was considered a confirmation of my weakness, nay, even of my fear. Really, such an experience is apt to make any one shrink from ever again making any reasonable and moderate proposals.

Also at present I once more read in certain newspapers that every attempt to bring about a peaceful settlement of relations between Germany on the one hand and France and England on the other was doomed to failure, and that any proposal in that direction only proved that I, filled with apprehension, wanted German collapse and that I only made such a proposal out of cowardice, or from a bad conscience.

When, irrespective of all this, I have expressed my ideas on this problem, I am prepared to appear in the eyes of these people as a coward or a finished man. I can afford to run that risk, because the judgment to be passed upon me by history will not, thank God, be written by these miserable scribblers, but is established by my life's work, and because I do not care very much about any judgment that may be passed upon me by these people at the time.

My prestige is sufficient for me to allow myself such an attitude, because the question of whether my following thoughts are actually dictated by fear or desperation will in any case be settled by the future course of events. Today I can only regret that those people, whose bloodthirstiness cannot have enough of war, unfortunately are not where the war is actually being fought, and never were at such places where people were shooting it out.

I can very well understand that there are interested parties, who profit more from war than from peace, and I also understand that for a certain variety of international journalist it is more interesting to report on war than on peaceful activities or cultural achievements, which they are incapable of either judging or understanding. And finally it is clear to me that there is a certain Jewish international capitalism and journalism that has no feeling at all in common with the people whose interests they pretend to represent, but who, like Herostrates of old, regard incendiarism as the greatest success of their lives. But there is still another reason why I feel obliged to voice my opinion.

Speaks for Men In Ranks

When reading certain international press publications, or listening to speeches of various capitalist glorifiers of war, I consider myself entitled to speak and reply in the name of those who are forced to serve as the living substance for the mental activities of these formulators of war aims, that living substance to which I myself belonged as an unknown soldier for more than four years during the great war.

It is, perhaps, a magnificent effect when a statesman or a journalist stands up and in enthusiastic words announces the necessity of removing the regime of another country in the name of democracy or something similar. Practical execution of these glorious slogans, however, has quite a different aspect.

Newspaper articles are being written today which are sure of an enthusiastic reception by the distinguished public. Realization of demands therein contained, however, is apt to arouse much less enthusiasm. I shall not deal with the powers of judgment or the gifts of such people. Whatever they may write has no bearing on the real nature of such a struggle.

These scribblers announced before the Polish campaign that German infantry perhaps was not bad, but that tanks and mechanized units in general were inferior and would be sure to break down in action.

Now, after the defeat of Poland, the same people brazenly assert that the Polish Armies have collapsed only because of German tank formations and other mechanized troops, but that, on the other hand, German infantry had deteriorated most remarkably and had got the worst of it in every clash with the Polish.

"In this fact," so one such writer actually says, "one has the free right to see a favorable symptom for the course of the war in the West, and the French soldier will know how to take advantage of this."

I think so, too, provided he has read that article and can remember it later on. He will then probably box the ears of these military soothsayers. But, unfortunately that will be impossible, since these people never will put their theories on inferiority of the German infantry to a personal test on the battlefields, but will merely describe these qualities from their editorial sanctums.

Six weeks—let us say fourteen days—of concentrated shellfire, and these war propagandists would soon think differently. They always are talking of the necessities of world politics, but they have no knowledge of military realities.

I do know them and for that reason I consider it my duty to speak here, even at risk of the warmonger again arising in my speech evidence of my anxiety and symptoms of the degree of my despair.

Why should this war in the West be fought? For restoration of Poland? Poland of the Versailles Treaty will never rise again. This is guaranteed by two of the largest States in the world. Final reorganization of this territory and the question of reestablishment of the Polish State are problems which will not be solved by a war in the West but exclusively by Russia on the one hand and Germany on the other. Furthermore, the elimination of the influence of these two powers within the territories concerned will not produce a new State but ter chaos.

The problems awaiting solution there will never be solved either at the conference table or in editorial offices, but by the work of decades. It is not enough that a few statesmen who are not really concerned with the fate of the people affected get together and pass resolutions. It is necessary that some one who has himself a share in the life of these territories takes over the task of restoring really enduring conditions there. The ability of the Western democracies to restore such ordered conditions has at least in recent times not been proved.

The example of Palestine shows it would be better to concentrate on the task at hand and solve these in a reasonable manner instead of meddling with problems which lie within the vital spheres of interest of other nations and could certainly be better solved by them. At any rate, Germany has in her Protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia not only established peace and order but, above all, has laid the foundation for a new economic prosperity and increasing understanding between the two nations. England still has much to accomplish before she can point to similar results in her protectorate in Palestine.

One also realizes that it would be senseless to annihilate millions of men and to destroy property worth millions in order to reconstruct a State which at its very birth was termed an abortion by all those not of Polish extraction.

What other reason exists? Has Germany made any demands of England which might threaten the British Empire or endanger its existence? On the contrary, Germany has made no such demands on either France or England.

But if this war is really to be waged only in order to give Germany a new regime, that is to say, in order to destroy the present Reich once more and thus to create a new Treaty of Versailles, then millions of human lives will be sacrificed in vain, for neither will the German Reich go to pieces nor will a second Treaty of Versailles be made. And even should this come to pass after three, four or even eight years of war, then this second Versailles would once more become the source of fresh conflict in the future.

In any event, a settlement of the world's problems carried out without consideration of the vital interests of its most powerful nations could not possibly, after the lapse of from five to ten years, end in any other way than that attempt made twenty years ago which is now ended. No, this war in the West cannot settle any problems except perhaps the ruined finances of certain armament manufacturers, newspaper owner or other international war profiteers.

Two problems are ripe for discussion today.

First, the settlement of the problems arising from the disintegration of Poland and, second, the problem of eliminating those international difficulties which endanger the political and economic existence of the nations.

What then are the aims of the Reich Government as regards the adjustment of conditions within the territory to the west of the German-Soviet line of demarcation which has been recognized as Germany's sphere of influence?

First, the creation of a Reich frontier which, as has already been emphasized, shall be in accordance with existing historical, ethnographical and economic conditions.

Second, the solution of the entire living space according to the various nationalities; that is to say, the solution of the problems affecting the minorities which concern not only this area but nearly all the States in the Southeast of Europe.

Third, in this connection: An attempt to reach a solution and settlement of the Jewish problem.

Fourth, reconstruction of transport facilities and economic life in the interest of all those living in this area.

Fifth, a guarantee for the security of this entire territory, and sixth, formation of a Polish State so constituted and governed as to prevent its becoming once again either a hotbed of anti-German activity or a center of intrigue against Germany and Russia.

In addition to this, an attempt must immediately be made to wipe out or at least to mitigate the ill effects of war; that is to say, the adoption of practical measures for alleviation of the terrible distress prevailing there.

These problems can, as I have already emphasized, perhaps be discussed but never solved at the conference table.

If Europe is really sincere in her desire for peace, then the States in Europe ought to be grateful that Russia and Germany are prepared to transform this hotbed into a zone of peaceful development and that these two countries will assume the responsibility and bear the burdens inevitably involved.

For the Reich this project, since it cannot be undertaken in an imperialistic spirit, is a task which will take fifty to 100 years to perform.

Justification for this activity on Germany's part lies in the political organizing of this territory as well as in its economic development. In the long run, of course, all Europe will benefit from it. Second, and in my opinion by far the most important task, is the creation of not only a belief in, but also a sense of European security.

For this it is necessary first that aims in the foreign policy of European States should be made perfectly clear.

As far as Germany is concerned the Reich Government is ready to give a thorough and exhaustive exposition of the aims of its foreign policy.

In so doing, they begin by stating that the Treaty of Versailles is now regarded by them as obsolete; in other words, that the government of the German Reich, and with them the whole German people, no longer see cause or reason for any further revision of the treaty, apart from the demand for adequate colonial possessions justly due to the Reich, namely, in the first instance for the return of German co[illegible].

This demand for c[illegible] is based not only on Germany's historical claim to German colonies but above all on her elementary right to a share of the world's resources of raw materials. This demand does not take the form of an ultimatum, nor is it a demand backed by force, but a demand based on political justice and sane economic principles.

Secondly, the demand for a real revival of international economic life, coupled with an extension of trade and commerce, presupposes a reorganization of the international economic system; in other words, of production in the individual States. In order to facilitate the exchange of goods thus produced, however, markets must be organized and a final currency regulation arrived at so that the obstacles in the way of unrestricted trade can be gradually removed.

Thirdly, the most important condition, however, for a real revival of economic life in and outside of Europe is the establishment of an unconditionally guaranteed peace and of a sense of security on the part of the individual nations.

Suggests New Disarmament

This security will not only be rendered possible by the final sanctioning of the European status, but above all by the reduction of armaments to a reasonable and economically tolerable level. An essential part of this necessary sense of security, however, is a clear definition of the legitimate use of an application of certain modern armaments which can, at any given moment, have such a devastating effect on the pulsating life of every nation and hence create a permanent sense of insecurity.

In my previous speeches in the Reichstag I made proposals with this end in view. At that time they were rejected—may be for the simple reason that they were made by me. I believe, however, that a sense of national security will not return to Europe until clear and binding international agreements have provided a comprehensive definition of the legitimate and illegitimate use of armaments.

A Geneva convention once succeeded in prohibiting, in civilized countries at least, the killing of wounded, ill-treatment of prisoners, war against noncombatants, et cetera, and just as it was possible gradually to achieve universal observance of this statute, a way must surely be found to regulate aerial warfare, use of poison gas and submarines, et cetera, and also so to define contraband that war will lose its terrible character of conflict waged against women and children and against noncombatants in general. A growing horror of certain methods of warfare will of its own accord lead to their abolition and thus they will become obsolete.

In the war with Poland I endeavored to restrict aerial warfare to objectives of so-called military importance, or only to employ it to combat active resistance at a given point. But it must surely be possible to emulate the Red Cross and to draw up some universally valid international regulations. It is only when this is achieved that peace can reign, particularly in our densely populated continent—a peace which, uncontaminated by suspicion and fear, will provide the only possible condition for real economic prosperity.

I do not believe that there is any responsible statesman in Europe who does not in his heart desire prosperity for his people. But such a desire can only be realized if all the nations inhabiting this continent decide to go to work together. To assist in assuring this cooperation must be the aim of every man who is sincerely struggling for the future of his own people.

Pictures Horrors of Conflict

To achieve this great end, the leading nations of this continent will one day have to come together in order to draw up, accept and guarantee a statute on a comprehensive basis which will insure for them all a sense of security, of calm—in short, of peace.

Such a conference could not possibly be held without the most thorough preparation; that is, without exact elucidation of every point at issue.

It is equally impossible that such a conference, which is to determine the fate of this continent for many years to come, could carry on its deliberations while cannon are thundering or mobilized armies are bringing pressure to bear upon it.

If, however, these problems must be solved sooner or later, then it would be more sensible to tackle the solution before millions of men are first uselessly sent to death and milliards of riches destroyed.

Continuation of the present state of affairs in the West is unthinkable. Each day will soon demand increasing sacrifices.

Perhaps the day will come when France will begin to bombard and demolish Saarbruecken. German artillery will in turn lay Mulhouse in ruins. France will retaliate by bombarding Karlsruhe and Germany in her turn will shell Strasbourg.

Then the French artillery will fire at Freiburg, and the German at Kolmar or Schlettstadt. Long-range guns will then be set up and from both sides will strike deeper and deeper and whatever cannot be reached by the long-distance guns will be destroyed from the air.

And that will be very interesting for certain international journalists and very profitable for the airplane, arms and munitions manufacturers, but appalling for the victims.

And this battle of destruction will not be confined to the land. No, it will reach far out over the sea.

Today there are no longer any islands. And the national wealth of Europe will be scattered in the form of shells and the vigor of every nation will be sapped on the battlefields.

One day, however, there will again be a frontier between Germany and France, but instead of flourishing towns there will be ruins and endless graveyards.

Mr. Churchill and his companions may interpret these opinions of mine as weakness or cowardice if they like. I need not occupy myself with what they think; I make these statements simply because it goes without saying that I wish to spare my own people this suffering.

If, however, the opinions of Messrs. Churchill and followers should prevail, this statement will have been my last.

Then we shall fight. Neither force of arms nor lapse of time will conquer Germany. There never will be another November, 1918, in German history. It is infantile to hope for the disintegration of our people.

Mr. Churchill may be convinced that Great Britain will win. I do not doubt for a single moment that Germany will be victorious.

Destiny will decide who is right.

One thing only is certain. In the course of world history, there have never been two victors, but very often only losers. This seems to me to have been the case in the last war.

May those peoples and their leaders who are of the same mind now make their reply. And let those who consider war to be the better solution reject my outstretched hand s Fuehrer of the German people and Chancellor of the Reich, I can thank God at this moment that he has so wonderfully blessed us in our hard struggle for what is our right, and beg Him that we and all other nations may find the right way, so that not only the German people but all Europe may once more be granted the blessing of peace.

Hitler's Offer---Reaction

[By the Associated Press]

What Hitler's speech offers:

Reestablishment of contact between warring Germany, Britain and France through third powers, to be followed by:

1. An armistice.
2. An international conference to seek to insu once and for all European security.

Such a conference, however, could not concern itself with the Polish conquest nor events in eastern Europe, but must accept as accomplished such rearrangements as the Nazi regime has achieved hitherto and what Germany and Russia propose in the future to agree upon.

Alternative:

A fight in which "I do not doubt for a single moment that Germany will be victorious."

What Britain says:

We'll give the proposals a careful examination, but no peace proposals are likely to be found acceptable which do not effectively free Europe from the menace of aggression."

What France says:

We will keep on fighting until we achieve "the victory which alone will permit assurance of a regime of real justice and lasting peace in Europe."

Britain's View of Speech

[By The Associated Press.]

LONDON, Oct. 6—The text of the British Government's comment on Chancellor Adolf Hitler's Reichstag speech today follows:

Herr Hitler's Reichstag speech in its full text was available in London only in the course of the afternoon, and it has therefore not been possible to give it more than a preliminary examination.

The speech is divided into two parts. The first, which is mainly a survey of past events, abounds in perversions of the truth which will be readily recognized by the people of this country and indeed of the whole world. Thus the claim that humane methods of warfare have been employed in Poland has been refuted by statements in Parliament and by the report of the United States Ambassador in Warsaw.

The world has already formed its own judgment about the alleged conduct of the Czechs to be incorporated in the Reich, while Herr Hitler's statement that he has never broken his promise only shows that words have for him a meaning totally different from that commonly attached to them.

Changed Views on Poles

Herr Hitler says that in the year 1933 an Englishman spoke of the cruelty and moral licentiousness of the Poles and claims that recent events show that the Polish State was lacking in any national historic cultural or moral foundation.

This was not Herr Hitler's view when he said in his Reichstag speech on May 21, 1935, "We recognize the Polish State as the home of a great patriotic nation with the understanding and cordial friendship of avowed nationalists."

In a further passage Herr Hitler complains that "for many years aims have been attributed to German foreign policy which at best might have been expected from the imagination of a schoolboy."

If misapprehension there has been, it can only be attributed to Herr Hitler's open aspirations for world domination in "Mein Kampf," to his utterances since he came into power and still more to his acts.

War Guilt Denied

Finally, the repeated suggestions that Great Britain is responsible for the war have no foundation in fact. On the contrary, the efforts of His Majesty's Government to preserve peace during the successive crises brought about by Germany during the last two years are well known and recognized by the whole world.

The second half of the speech contains what Herr Hitler describes as a few more proposals for peace. In their present form these proposals are in many respects vague and obscure, but it is noted that they contain no suggestion for reparation for the wrong done by Germany to other peoples.

Nevertheless they will, as has been declared by the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary, be subjected to careful examination in consultation with the governments of the Dominions and the French Republic.

But it is necessary to remember two things:

First, that no peace proposals are likely to be found acceptable which do not effectively free Europe from the menace of aggression:

And second, that assurances given by the German Government in the past have on so many occasions proved worthless that something more than words will be required today to establish the confidence which must be the essential basis of peace.

Press in Britain Given Hitler's Speech in Full

Censor Did Not Even Want It Submitted to Him

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—The British Press Association announced today that Adolf Hitler's speech to the Reichstag in which he proposed an all-inclusive peace conference was received by British newspapers "in full and uncensored."

The Association's statement said: "The censor did not even wish to have it submitted to him. When, in the House of Commons last Tuesday, Prime Minister Chamberlani reaffirmed Britain's determination to put an end to Nazi aggression, the German people were permitted to hear only an extremely condensed and strongly biased summary over the wireless at midnight."

"No!" Is Reply of the Press

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP)—A bold-faced, single-word "No!" captioning the main editorial of Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard sounded the keynote of early British reaction to Adolph Hitler's proposal for an all-inclusive peace conference.

"Hitler's speech changes nothing," said the Standard. "If he has made his last peace offer, he also has made his last war . . . The power of democracy in Britain and France has taken the decision from his hands.

"They have decided to finish with Hitler. He has spoken his own funeral oration."

The Star said: "In any discussion of Hitler's peace ideas, it is essential to remember how much weaker he is than he was on the first day of the war. There is plenty of evidence to show that Hitler is fighting blind."

London Weighing Formula.

LONDON, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—The British Government said tonight that Adolf Hitler's peace proposals would be "subjected to careful examination in consultation with the governments of the Dominions and the French Republic."

"But," the statement added, "it is necessary to remember two things:

"First, no peace proposal is likely to be accepted which does not effectively free Europe from the menace of aggression.

"Second, that something more than words would be required to establish confidence" in any peace proposals Germany might make.

The Government statement, read by a Foreign Office spokesman, said that Hitler's proposals "in their present form are in many respects vague and obscure, but it is noted that they contain no suggestion for reparations for the wrong done by Germany to other peoples."

British Press Says No.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, who previously has said he would give unhurried, careful consideration to any German peace plan, is to deliver his weekly war review before Parliament on Tuesday. It was considered possible he would then make his first formal reference to Hitler's proposals, consulting with the French Government before making an official reply.

Little Chance of Acceptance.

Observers in London gave the Hitler proposal an extremely remote chance of acceptance. They pointed out that any peace terms would be guaranteed only by Hitler's word, which is unacceptable to the British Government; questioned whether a [illegible] would remove the constant threat to Europe's security, and considered it unlikely that Great Britain and France would agree to Germany and Russia reconstituting some sort of Polish State between themselves.

Italy Is Not Optimistic.

ROME, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Italy was hopeful but not optimistic today that Adolf Hitler's proposal for an all-inclusive peace conference might open the way to peace.

There was no immediate official reaction to the Reichsfuehrer's speech. Those Fascists who usually explain the Government's point of view had not had time to study the address.

Premier Mussolini, however, was understood to have been familiar with the text before it was delivered. He received Ambassador von Mackensen shortly before Herr Hitler began to speak.

Stefani, the official Italian news agency, began to distribute the speech before Hitler was half way through.

Italy Awaits Allies' Move.

Well-informed Italians expected no move on Italy's part, either to accept or reject Hitler's proposal of a conference, until Great Britain and France have made their positions clear.

Some expressed the view that the offer could be accepted by the Allies only at the price of a drastic revision of the policy already announced in speeches by Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Daladier.

Italy's position, it was said, remained that she would take no initiative in a movement for peace, just as she is taking no military initiative. If Great Britain and France agreed to meet Hitler at a conference table, it is believed certain Italy then would agree to participate.

In Fascist quarters which have been most outspoken in their support of Germany, the view was expressed that Hitler's speech threw a heavy responsibility on Great Britain and France for continuation of the war.

Press Approves Moderately

ROME, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Italian newspapers published the full text of Hitler's speech with moderately approving headlines. "Il Giornale d'Italia's" headline described it as "an offer of peace, reason and justice." "Lavoro Fascista's" headline read, "Reaffirmation of Germany's will for peace."

All the afternoon papers used "great" in describing the speech in headlines. But [illegible] support was expected to halt at editorial approval, with Mussolini as intent as ever on keeping his country neutral as long as possible.

Moscow Maintains Silence.

MOSCOW, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Soviet official circles declined comment today on Hitler's Reichstag speech, but there were indications that it was received here with satisfaction, especially the assertions that peace was assured in Eastern Europe and that Germany and Russia alone would determine the fate of Poland.

The fact that Hitler made no reference to the possibility of Russia's aid in the European war was taken as another indication of Russia's determination to remain neutral if possible.

The Soviet radio early tonight had carried no reports of the speech.

President Believed Not Likely To Make Any Offer Of Truce

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Oct. 6 — President Roosevelt was represented in informed quarters tonight as unlikely to propose an armistice unless he had official assurances in advance from Great Britain and France that it would be accepted.

They indicated that the President would not lend himself to any move by Chancellor Hitler which would have the effect of throwing the onus for continuance of the war on Britain and France.

Received With Surprise

The readiness of Germany to accept a proposal of armistice if it came from President Roosevelt was received here with some surprise in view of the reaction from Chancellor Hitler to the President's previous appeals for peace.

In one year Mr. Roosevelt sent five appeals to Hitler and only the first and the last were answered through diplomatic channels.

The third appeal, in which the President offered himself last April as a transmitting agent for non-agression pledges between Germany and a number of European and Asiatic nations, was rejected by Hitler in a bitter public speech.

Assailed Roosevelt

Moreover, it was pointed out, the German press and some officials had been unrestrained in their utterances against the President and the Administration. They accused the President of war-mongering, alarmism, and unneutrality.

When the German charge d'affaires protested last year against a speech by Secretary Harold Ickes, his protest was rejected by [illegible] Welles, Undersecretary of State, on the ground, among others, that the Government-controlled German press was excoriating the American Government.

Congressmen Comment

Members of Congress questioned the sincerity of Hitler's peace talk to the Reichstag. Here are some of their comments:

Senator Norris (Ind., Neb.)—I don't have any confidence in him. He has lied so often.

Senator Nye (Rep., Ind.)—Hitler, like presidents, kings and premiers, talks for his folks back home.

Senator Capper (Rep., Kan.)—He was trying to frighten Britain and France into peace on German terms; also he was bolstering up the spirit of the German people."

Senator Herring (Dem., Iowa)—The plea of a guilty soul which is finally beginning to recognize its own crimes.

AMPLIFIERS ECHO THROUGHOUT REICH

80,000,000 Germans Are Tuned In on Hitler.

BERLIN, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Eighty million Germans and countless other persons throughout the world heard Adolf Hitler today as he addressed the Reichstag. Preparations assured the speech a record audience in enlarged Germany.

Almost every available electrician and technical expert had been pressed into service to set up loudspeakers even in the smallest German hamlet. In Berlin, no important thoroughfare lacked amplifier apparatus. Factories and offices were ordered to [illegible] operations, so that all workers could hear Der Fuehrer's message.

Stores and shops were told to shut their doors during his speech and in every school pupils were called to assemblies.

The Ministry of Posts announced a special cancellation stamp for the day bearing the inscription, "Greater German Reichstag, October 6, 1939."

Hitler Speaks Rapidly, But With Weaker Voice

BERLIN, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler read his eighty-minute speech to the Reichstag today more rapidly and in a slightly weaker voice than usual.

The pace changed from time to time as he spoke more slowly for emphasis. One such pause was his reminder to Great Britain that "there are no more islands."

Applause frequently halted him and his audience interjected vociferous "pfuis" at his mention of Marshal Edward Smygly-Rydz of Poland and Winston Churchill of England.

Deputies shouted "laughable" when Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, president of the Reichstag, referred in his closing remarks to Great Britain's "leaflet attempt" to drive a wedge between Hitler and the German people.

'We've Done Our Duty,' Nazi View of Iroquois

BERLIN, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Informed German comment on Grand Admiral Erich Raeder's warning of the possible sinking of the United States liner Iroquois was limited today to the following:

"Ask Britain—we have done our duty by giving the warning. It is now up to Britain to explain."

Authorized sources said they could not disclose how Raeder came into possession of the information, but they expressed the opinion that the German Admiralty might well have picked up a radio message which it had been able to decode.

Berlin Silent on Source of "Tip"

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 6—Grand Admiral Erich Raeder's warning to American authorities that the United States liner Iroquois might be sunk off the American coast was described by an authoritative spokesman today as merely "an act of comradeship."

The spokesman added that German authorities had received information which they had every reason to regard as reliable that such an attempt at sinking was being plotted.

Admiral Raeder informed the United States naval attaché, Commander A. E. Schrader, "as a friendly gesture so the United States could take measures to save the lives of Americans aboard," the spokesman asserted.

Admiral Raeder did not communicate with Washington directly and nothing was revealed as to his source of information.

The only other comment was limited to the following: [illegible]

"Ask Britain—we have done our duty by giving the warning. It is now up to Britain to explain."

Authorized sources said they could not disclose how Admiral Raeder came into possession of the information but they expressed the opinion that the German Admiralty might well have picked up a radio message which it had been able to decode.

Hitler's Sounding Board

Reichstag Has Been The Body To Hear Many Of His Pronouncements

[By the Associated Press]

Since Adolf Hitler became Chancellor in 1933 many of his important pronouncements have been before the Reichstag. Included were these:

May 18, 1933—Demanded equality of arms and said Germany was ready to join "every solemn non-aggression pact."

January 30, 1934—Promised that the security of Austria would not be violated.

July [illegible], 1934—Defended the Nazi blood purge as a move to prevent a revolt.

May 21, 1935—Said Germany had no "intention of arming to the skies" and pledged participation in arms limitation moves.

March 8, 1936—Announced movement of Nazis troops into demilitarized Rhineland.

February 31, 1937—Renounced any isolation of Germany and retracted Versailles treaty acknowledgement of war guilt.

February 20, 1938—Told Great Britain he had no differences with her "aside from our colonial desires," and promised "protection" to German minorities.

January 30, 1939—Assured the world that Germany and Italy were determined "to give common support to common interests."

April 28, 1939—Denounced British-German naval pact and non-aggression agreement with Poland, but offered reciprocal assurances to other countries which made "appropriate proposals." [illegible] September 1, pledged [illegible] until Polish Government yielding [illegible] was supplanted by a Government which would yield; disclaimed need of Italian war aid against Poland, but pitcured Russia as Germany's eternal friend.

"SURRENDER OF LAST POLES"

Berlin, Oct. 6 (AP)—The supreme command today issued the following communique:

"The Führer and supreme commander of the army (Hitler) yesterday visited troops of the Eighth Army at Warsaw and had units of divisions which participated in the conquering forces march past him.

"Near Kock, east of Lublin, the last remnants of the Polish [illegible], about 8,000 men, among whom was General Kleber, laid down arms at 10 o'clock this morning.

"East of the Vistula, a forward movement began yesterday for occupation of the region at the German-Russian border of limited spheres of interests.

"In the west, there was a litle artillery activity; otherwise the day passed quietly."

Program Embraced In Hitler Proposal

BERLIN, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler's proposal today for a European peace conference embraced these suggestions:

A "final sanctioning of the European status."

Reduction in armaments to a reasonable [illegible] economically tolerable level.

A "comprehensive definition of the legitimate and illegitimate use of armaments"; a "universally valid regulation," possibly in emulation of the Red Cross.

"Exact elucidation" at any such conference of "every point at issue."

Hitler Is Said to Favor Jewish Colony in Poland

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 6—Regarding a solution of the Jewish question, which Chancellor Hitler raised in his Reichstag speech, an authorized source asserted tonight that the Chancellor was thinking about a Jewish reservation within the Polish State where not only Polish and German Jews could live, but Jews from other lands.

It was pointed out that this reservation, which would be modeled somewhat after the American Indian reservations, would [illegible] Palestine and [illegible] at least 3,000,000 inhabitants [illegible] the beginning.

BRITISH ASSAIL NAZI WARNING

Express Their Surprise Over Raeder's Message.

SAY HE 'BEMEANS' UNIFORM

Berlin Calls Iroquois Report Act of Comradeship

LONDON, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Commenting on the German statement that the United States liner Iroquois might be sunk, the British Admiralty said that "it was surprising that an officer of the former imperial German navy like Admiral Raeder should bemean his uniform by lending himself to such 'baseness.'"

The text of the admiralty's communique follows:

"The attention of the Admiralty has been drawn to the suggestion emanating from Berlin that the United States ship Iroquois is to be sunk 'through a repetition of the circumstances which marked the loss of the steamship Athenia.' The Athenia was of course sunk by a German U-boat which was plainly seen by responsible survivors, no British submarine being within several hundred miles. The fact that such suggestions should be made by the German Government enables us once again to realize and measure the criminal mentality of Nazi party leaders, but it is surprising that an officer of the former Imperial German Navy like Admiral Raeder should bemean his uniform by lending himself to such baseness."

London Calls It Absurd.

LONDON, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Admiralty officials today brushed aside as "too absurd to deny" an official German tip to Washington implying that the United States liner Iroquois was to be sunk in fulfillment of a British plot.

The Iroquois sailed Tuesday from Cobh, in Cork Harbor, Ireland, where she picked up 548 Americans. Eighteen Americans had boarded the ship at Liverpool, making a total of 566 in addition to the crew of 212. The passengers were in flight from the hazards of European war.

Admiralty sources spoke unofficially. Official comment was deferred but naval officials were reported astonished by German Grand Admiral Erich Raeder's warning to the United States, through a naval attache at the Berlin embassy, that the Iroquois would be sunk "through a repetition of circumstances which marked the loss of the Athenia."

Germany has made repeated charges that the British liner Athenia was sunk by the British themselves. The British press has called these charges a stupid Nazi invention.

British officials have regarded the case as closed by the declaration of Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, in the House of Commons that the Athenia was torpedoed by a German submarine.

The Athenia was sunk on September 4 on a westward crossing of the Atlantic, bearing 1,400 passengers, including many Americans. Between fifty and sixty persons were lost.

The British press prominently displayed the announcement of the tip to Washington and captioned it "Amazing," but preferred to let the White House comment stand as its own.

United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy said he was keeping in closest touch with his and the British Governments regarding the reported threat to the Iroquois. The liner had been especially chartered to repatiate Americans.

Mr. Kennedy remained at his desk long past midnight after word of the warning had been received. One embassy official remarked: "All we can do now is to pray."

Some Prepare to Wait.

The worried embassy staff feared Admiral Raeder's warning would complicate the problem of repatriating some 4,000 Americans who are still in the United Kingdom.

About 2,500 of these Americans were said to have no urgent reasons for remaining, but have made no definite plans to go home. Many of them have told the embassy: "We'll wait and see."

Typically nonchalant was seventy-six-year-old John Willis Gardner of Quincy, Ill., who said he planned to continue his sightseeing tour of England, begun in 1935, before the war started.

Some Americans delaying their homeward departures expressed the opinion that they would just as soon risk air raids here as torpedoing on the Atlantic.

quoted an unidentified wounded Welsh air gunner, who said that the British were making a reconnaissance flight over the Siegfried Line when three formations each of six German Messerschmidts attacked a handful of R. A. F. planes, outnumbering them by more than three to one.

The gunner was quoted as saying that one German plane attached itself to his machine and a terrific duel began.

Hit Tail of Plane.

"I looked around and saw the observer in a crumpled heap in his seat," the gunner added. "He had been shot through the head."

The gunner said his plane started to catch fire and "just as my clothing began to smolder" he shot down a German plane which offered a "lovely target."

"If I hadn't been on fire, I could have easily shot down two more," he said.

Besides the one he hit, the gunner said:

"My pals accounted for three."

The gunner daringly pulled the string of his parachute in struggling from the cockpit and was jerked out of the plane. He said he fainted after hitting the tail of the plane and then recovered, only to hear bullets whistling about him.

'It Was a Near Thing.'

"I was above the German lines and they were shooting at me," he said.

He landed unhit, however, in no man's land and saw German soldiers leave their trenches and approach him, he related. Then French Algerian soldiers appeared from the other side and began to fire at the Germans.

"One man came running straight toward me as hard as he could," the gunner continued. "He picked me up, slung me over his shoulder and staggered with me into the woods. I was safe, but it was a near thing."

The Air Ministry issued a casualty list tonight of twenty killed, nineteen missing and two wounded on various dates.

Bails Out Into No Man's Land

Wounded Welsh Air Gunner Thrice Rescued Under Fire by Algerian Infantryman.

LONDON, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—The Ministry of Information released tonight an account of an air battle over the Siegfried Line in which the Germans lost four machines and a wounded Royal Air Force gunner landed in no man's land and was carried to safety by a French Algerian soldier under fire.

The ministry said that the dispatch came from an R. A. F. station "somewhere in France" and

CHURCHILL URGED FOR BIGGER TASK

London Times Declares He Needs Wider Scope.

LONDON, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—The London Times, cool to Winston Churchill before he became First Lord of the Admiralty at the beginning of the war, today urged editorially that he be given broader scope. Advocating a compact war cabinet, the newspaper said:

"Mr. Churchill, for instance, without whom no war Cabinet would be complete, might well be allowed to range over the whole field of war, and not merely over the oceans, with his fertile imagination and his inimitable powers of expression."

The Times approved a proposal that the war Cabinet be cut from nine members to six.

EMPIRE'S HELP HAILED BY EDEN

He Sees War Fought to Build New World.

LONDON, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Anthony Eden hailed the British Empire's wartime response tonight as "a determination shared by us all that the rule of violence must cease."

In a broadcast to thec ommonwealth the Dominions Secretary declared:

"The perpetual menace to the freedom of nations, small and great, must be removed, so that the peoples of the world may once more be able to live their own lives in security and peace.

"The rich and manifold resources of this commonwealth of free peoples are being gathered powerfully and swiftly together for a cause to which we have dedicated ourselves," said the former Foreign Secretary, who returned to the Cabinet at the outbreak of war.

"We are not fighting to preserve an old world, but to build a new. We are not straining our resources to foster the greatness of a State, but to win for men and women everywhere the first benefits of civilization. . . .

"We cannot live forever armed to the teeth, or at the mercy of the next act of robber violence."

LONDON, Oct. 6 (A. Panagos arrived in London from Dingle, Ireland, where he was landed from the submarine with his crew after nearly thirty-six hours in the undersea vessel.

"We numbered thirty-seven," he said, "and the submarine crew was twenty-eight. The food, which the Germans shared with us, was black bread, soup and fish. The commander spoke Greek, English, French and Spanish, in addition to German.

"The young German seamen were friendly, but there was no war talk. The air got pretty bad with so many extra men. During the long journey to Dingle we were all the time twisting and turning and I gathered the commander was nervous about Britisth airplane patrols."

BRITISH SEA DOG

[By the Associated Press]

The British navy's third critical period in twenty years finds it under the leadership of a man who played an important part in the other two.

He is Sir Alfred Dudley Pickman Rogers Pound—Admiral of the Fleet, First Sea Lord, professional sea dog, outspoken big-navy advocate, apostle of action and a warrior who had his closest call in a dentist's chair.

England knows blunt, energetic Dudley Pound as the "father" of Britain's modern naval strategy, based on taking the initiative in war. He has been preaching the idea for twenty years.

Fought At Jutland

Pound saw its value demonstrated during crisis No. 1, the World War. For the first two years Britain followed a policy of "passive" resistance to German attacks. Then, in 1916, all that changed. The British attacked the Germans off Jutland and sent them home for good. Pound took part in that famous battle as captain of H. M. S. Colossus. Facing destruction by German guns, he staggered his ship's speed so that the shells missed—by inches.

Crisis No. 2 began in 1935. War and bloodshed broke out in Ethiopia, Spain, Palestine—at both ends of the Mediterranean, Britain's lifeline. Pound was named admiral of the all-important Mediterranean fleet. It was up to him to do the right thing at the right time about such happenings as the machine-gunning and sinking of British ships by "pirate" submarines, blockades, sanctions. Experts say that Pound shouldered heavier burdens from 1935 to 1939 than any other man in the service.

The King of England rarely appoints an admiral of the fleet in peace time. But last July, when crisis No. 3—the new World War—was shaping up, Pound was so promoted by King George VI.

Weather-beaten and sharp-eyed, he looks like what he is, a man of action. But his forty-five years of service include not a little desk work. As Second Sea Lord, assistant chief of the naval staff and director of the plans division of the Admiralty, he gained administrative experience. As the Admiralty's representative to the League of Nations, he gained political experience.

He has managed to find time to write a standard textbook on ship organization, marry and raise a family, do a little yachting. He is 61.

British Force Moved Without a Casualty

Transporting Them to France Bigger Job Than in 1914

LONDON, Oct. 9 (CP).—The British expeditionary force, with all its vehicles, has been transported to France without a casualty, it was announced today. The War Office declined to give the numbers of the troops or vehicles transported.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, Secretary for War, when he reviews the situation in the House of Commons next Thursday is expected to say that more troops and machines of various sorts have been transported to France that was ever thought possible in the limited time since hostilities opened.

The task of transporting the expeditionary force to France has been of much greater magnitude than in 1914, because of vastly increased mechanization. The weight of equipment meant ships had to be reinforced to carry it.

The only incident during the whole operation was when one transport struck a boom and was forced to turn back. Even it did not produce a casualty.

British Officials to Study Peace Formula Offered by Reichsfuehrer.

ENGLISH PRESS CRIES 'NO!'

Italy Pessimistic Over Chance of Allies Yielding to German Conditions.

PARIS, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Premier Daladier in effect turned down Adolf Hitler's peace proposals today with a personal declaration that only a Franco-British victory would assure a "regime of real justice and lasting peace in Europe."

The blunt-spoken Premier's assertion was made in the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee only two hours after Herr Hitler had outlined his peace formula to the German Reichstag.

A communique issued after the meeting said that M. Daladier, referring to the Anglo-French conception of peace, declared:

"This peace excludes all domination in Europe. It can be founded only on the rights of peoples to life and liberty. France and Great Britain will never lay down their arms until that peace has been effectively assured."

M. Daladier, the communique said, made only passing reference to Hitler's speech as such. It was understood he had not yet had time to study the text of the address before meeting with the committee.

French Scorn Peace Formula.

Hitler's peace formula was scorned in semi-official French quarters where the proposal was described as "based on the exploitation of Central Eastern Europe."

These sources said that Hitler's inferential suggestion for creation of a small Polish buffer State, "with Germany and Russia gobbling up" the major portion of Poland, had been turned down by both British and French statesmen even before it was made.

The British and French have clearly defined as one of their war aims the recreation of a free Poland.

Semi-official sources said Hitler's speech followed the lines the French had expected.

Satirical Comment in Paris.

Semi-official French sources commented satirically on his speech, asserting that Der Fuehrer had advanced nothing new and had attempted to induce all other Powers to bow to every injunction and every desire of Germany.

These persons used the words "forced" and "demagogic" to describe the speech.

One said that Hitler's attacks against British ministers had become a personal matter as had his previous attacks on Chancellor Schuschnigg of Austria and President Benes of Czecho-Slovakia.

"Der Fuehrer seeks to present himself as the champion of European peace and liberty," said one commentator. "On one side he places Germany, whose superiority and love of peace are absolutely dogmatic, and on the other side the western Powers."

FRANCE SPURNS HITLER; SEEKS 'LASTING PEACE'

Daladier Says Allies Will Fight Until That Has Been Assured

By H. TAYLOR HENRY
Associated Press Correspondent

Paris, Oct. 6—Premier Daladier tonight gave France's answer to Adolf Hitler's peace proposal with a blunt declaration that the European war would be fought until "the victory which alone will permit assurance of a regime of real justice and lasting peace in Europe."

Only two hours after Hitler outlined his peace formula in his speech before the Reichstag, Daladier pounded out the assertion to the Senatorial Foreign Affairs Committee that:

"France and Great Britain will never lay down their arms until that peace has been effectively assured."

Gamelin And Ironside Meet

As though to give emphasis to the French-British determination to fight, Gen. Marie Gustave Gamelin, commander-in-chief of the French and British armies, conferred today with Maj. Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside, chief of the British imperial defense staff.

They were accompanied by their air commanders as well as Maj. Gen. Alphonse Joseph Georges, French army group commander who is in general charge of French operations on the northern flank of the Western front.

Fighting at the front today still was bogged down by bad weatner which hampered scouting planes and consequently artillery, which in modern warfare uses planes as target spotters.

Tonight's high command communique, however, showed a new stirring of activity on the front which has been relatively quiet for the past four days.

The communique said that light units such as infantry partols were skirmishing in numerous sectors of the northern flank.

One German operation which the communique thought worthy of being mentioned as an attack was reported repulsed west of Wissembourg in the Haardt Mountains where the French lines are scarcely over the frontier into German territory.

Daladier's Statement

A communique issued after the Foreign Affairs Committee meeting said Daladier in his remarks reiterated:

"France and Britain are waging war to put an end to a reign of aggression, to end the need of mobilizing every six months. They want a lasting peace which rests on respect of the pledged word and on honor, which guarantees the security of France and of all nations."

The report of the committee meeting behind closed doors then gave the conclusion of Daladier's speech in his own words:

"This peace excludes all domination in Europe. It can be founded only on the right of peoples to life and liberty. France and Great Britain never will lay down their arms until that peace has been assured effectively.

"Must Be Worthy Of Soldiers"

"Our duty is to be worthy of our soldiers who are waging war to defend our territory, our independence.

"They will carry on the war which has been imposed on us and will carry it on to the victory which alone will permit assurance of a regime of real justice and lasting peace in Europe."

FRANCO-BRITISH GENERALS HOLD STAFF MEETING

Paris Announces Attack by Nazis Was Repulsed Near Wissembourg.

PARIS, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, commander-in-chief of the allied forces, met today with Sir Edmund Ironside, chief of the British Imperial Staff, for a conference on the military situation.

It was not disclosed immediately whether the meeting was on French or British soil.

Gen. Gamelin was accompanied by Gen. Joseph Vuillemin, chief of staff of the French Air Force, and Gen. [illegible], commander of the northern group of armies on the western front.

Gen. Ironside was seconded by Air Marshal Sir Cyril Newall, commander of the Royal Air Force.

A communique said merely that the meeting was to consider current questions.

"This meeting showed once again," the communique added, "the complete identity of views which exists between the two commands."

French Communique.

The French high command issued the following communique at 9:15 P. M. (3:15 P. M. Eastern standard time) today:

"Activity of light elements in contact on numerous points of the front. An attack on one of our posts in the region west of Wissembourg has been repulsed."

NAZIS ON MOVE

[By the Associated Press]

Paris, Oct. 5—French troops dug in on the muddy Saarland front today in preparation against any large-scale German offensive.

French military circles reported large German troop movements. Older German soldiers were reported rapidly being replaced by younger ones from the armies that crushed Poland.

Last night was calm, however. The War Ministry's communique said only patrols were active in the sector southwest of Saarbrücken.

The strengthening of French vanguarsd was ascribed in political quarters of a belief that the Nazi "peace offensive" had become a dead issue even before Hitler addressed the Reichstag today.

Ramette was president and Bonte secretary-general of the Workers' and Farmers party, organized when the Communist party was banned. Police said that searches of both men's homes had disclosed evidence to justify charges of "being in communication with a foreign Power."

Deputies' Homes Raided.

Of forty-three Deputies who formed the Workers and Peasants party, five have responded to military summonses for questioning about the letter to Herriot and about their political connections. The ousting of communist mayors and municipal councillors continued, with sixty-seven removed in the Paris region and a total of 317 soon to be replaced elsewhere by appointees named by district police prefects.

The Socialist party, headed by former Premier Leon Blum, adopted a resolution condemning the communists for their indorsement of the Russian "betrayal" and denouncing Soviet diplomacy. Several Deputies of the outlawed Communist party disclosed they had resigned after the signing of the Soviet-German friendship pacts.

Raids on homes of others, suspected of threatening the security of the State, continued. If found guilty they would be liable to fines of from 100 to 500 francs ($2.29 to $11.45) and imprisonment of from one to five years.

Rains Bog Operations.

Heavy rains bogged military operations when the French sought to secure their left flank along the Luxemburg border and kept an alert watch at the other end of their lines, near Switzerland. Germans were reported concentrated in the Black Forest, near Switzerland, in the south.

French soldiers said that they had taken precautions against the possibility of an attempted German invasion through neutral countries to the north. France generally anticipated a lightning German offensive soon, following what was expected to be a Russian-indorsed German peace offer.

The press pictured Germany as isolated as a result of her pact with Russia. It said that Italy, Japan and Spain were remaining aloof and that Russia merely was out to gain everything possible while Germany was pre-occupied with war in the west.

Thorez, Head of Party Before Ban, Quits His Unit

PARIS, Oct. 6 (AP). — Maurice Thorez, who was secretary-general of the French Communist party before it was outlawed by the government on Sept. 26, was declared officially today to be a deserter from the Army.

Thorez, a thirty-nine-year-old member of the Chamber of Deputies, was said to have failed to rejoin his unit after a leave. It was during this period of leave that he joined the new "Workers' and Peasants' party" formed by former Communist Deputies. The new party's leaders have been ordered arrested.

Heavy Shelling Reported

PARIS, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Havas (French) News Agency published a dispatch today from Luxemburg reporting that heavy German artillery bombarded Rusdorf, near Sierck. (Sierck is in France at the southeastern tip of Luxemburg.)

The French high command issued the following communique tonight: "Activity of light elements in contact on numerous points of the front. An attack on one of our posts in the region west of Wissembourg was repulsed."

The Premier replied: "I am certain of it, Eminence."

MOSCOW, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Lithuania has been summoned as the next to sign on the dotted line as Soviet Russia today continued to march toward domination of eastern Europe. By concluding a ten-

Similar concessions from Estonia have given to Russia the right to establish naval bases in one mainland port and on two islands, along with air bases and garrisons for 25,000 soldiers in that country.

Finnish Reports.

Informed sources in Helsinki, Finland, said two additional Estonian ports might be allowed to Russia for conversion into naval bases. Reports there also said that Lithuanian Foreign Minister Juozas Urbsys would fly to Moscow today to complete Russo-Lithuanian discussions.

The decision was said to have followed a special cabinet meeting with Lithuanian President Antonas Smetona last night. Observers at Helsinki predicted that the proposals would call for Lithuania to surrender two areas for Russian air bases in a mutual assistance agreement and for a trade pact giving to Russia special privileges on Lithuanian railroads.

Both in Finland and at Stockholm, Lithuanians were said to hope that if the pact includes the return to Lithuania of Wilno of (Vilna), it will be signed on October 9. That day, next Monday, has been observed officially as the anniversary of the city's loss to Poland nineteen years ago. Wilno is within the Russian area of conquered Poland.

Observers speculated whether

Russo-Turkish talks lagged while Moscow drove home bargains with the Baltic States, but consultations were expected to be resumed today. Baffled diplomatic circles agreed that there was more to the talks than the question of Soviet rights in the Black Sea and the Dardanelles.

Latvia Signs Pact.

There was a belief in some quarters that Russia was trying to wean Turkey from too close a tie with Britain and France.

The pact with Latvia was signed in the Kremlin by Russian Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotov and Latvian Foreign Minister Wilhelm Munters in the presence of Joseph V. Stalin.

Its six articles, in addition to giving to Russia concessions for military bases, bound both nations to remain free from treaties directed against each other, pledged Russia to sell Latvia munitions at low prices and guaranteed that both would "observe strictly the sovereignty and social system of the other." In addition, a separate communique stressed the "mutual trust and strict observances" of each other's sovereignty and government.

Soviet Press Hails Latvian Pact

MOSCOW, Oct. 6 (AP).—Soviet newspapers today hailed the new treaty with Latvia as a great strategic defense step for Russia and an assurance for Latvia against aggression. They carefully emphasized that Russia's little neighbor would maintain her independence.

Workers' meetings throughout Russia adopted resolutions lauding the government's pacts with Estonia and Latvia.

MOSCOW, Oct. 6 (A. The convictions were principally in cities such as Moscow, Leningrad and Odessa, with numerous cases to be tried.

Flour, soap, textile goods, matches, kerosene and sugar were the principal commodities hoarded. Most defendants were denounced as kulaks.

Plot on Carol Frustrated

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 6 (AP)—A plot to assassinate King Carol and other government leaders was asserted by police to have been broken up today with the arrest of two men and two women alleged to be members of the outlawed Nazi-inclined Iron Guard.

Police declared they held a professor, his daughter and another woman, who had just returned from Berlin, and the nephew of a retired Chief Justice of Rumania's highest court.

With the arrests, the police declared, they found a prepared list of victims, including King Carol, Premier Constantin Argetoianu, Minister of War General Gabriel Marinescu and Victor Iamandi, the new Minister of Justice.

The group was not connected with the Iron Guard members executed after the assassination of former Premier Armand Calinescu on Sept. 21, the police announced. They added that they had evidence that indicated this second group had planned to poison M. Calinescu.

The judge's nephew, said the police, stole court documents concerning earlier Guardist arrests and the names of those who had denounced the Guard.

Police asserted the round-up of the alleged plotters resulted from the arrest of Maria Clucer, a woman employe in the army technical bureau, and her prolonged questioning.

She was arrested yesterday and police said they found on her a manifesto critical of the King and "Jewish and Freemason domination of the government."

Pro-Axis Envoy In Berlin Called Home by Japan

Oshima Meets Same Fate as His Colleague at Rome, Co-Sponsor of Military Pact

TOKIO, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Japanese government recalled today its Ambassador to Germany, Gen Hiroshi Oshima, lon gan advocate of a military alliance binding Japan, Germany and Italy.

No official reason was given, but the recall had been considered inevitable ever since Japan's foreign policy underwent drastic change as a sequel to Gernany's non-aggression pact with Soviet Russia.

Toshio Shiratori, who as Ambassador to Italy also worked for closer ties with the Rome-Berlin axis, had been recalled already. Eiji Amau, Minister to Switzerland, was named to the Rome post.

No successor to Oshima at Berlin has been designated.

Oshima and Shiratori had been accused of exceeding their instructions in their efforts to bring Japan into alliance with the axis powers.

The government veered away from such policies after Germany had joined hands with Russia, Japan's long-time rival.

The new Foreign Minister, Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, is reorganizing the foreign service in keeping with the change in policy.

Argentines Ask Court To Expel Count Luxburg

German Diplomat, 'Sunk Without Trace,' Caused '17 Row

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 6 (AP).—Efforts were started in Federal Court today to expel Count Karl von Luxburg, whose phrase "spurlos versenkt" (sunk without a trace) became a term of reproach against Germany during the World War.

Count Luxburg, then German Ambassador to Argentina, was handed his passport in 1917 when the Allies intercepted a message to his government advising that Argentine ships either be spared in the submarine campaign or sunk without a trace. This suggestion was blamed for increasing enmity toward Germany in neutral countries.

For some years Luxburg has been living quietly in a Buenos Aires suburb. Upon his return this week after a visit to Germany, the Liberal press opened a campaign against him. A citizen named Felipe Becher filed a formal request in Federal Court for his banishment on the ground that the 1917 order against him never had been revoked.

Naval Aid Rushed to Iroquois

566 Passengers Aboard Liner Reported by Germany to Be in Danger.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Navy and Coast Guard craft sped today toward a mid-Atlantic rendezvous with the American liner Iroquois, after the White House disclosed receipt of startling information that the refugee-laden steamship was to be sunk.

The tip came from the head of the German Navy, but it left unanswered the questions of how and why and by whom the sinking was to be done. Likewise, it offered no explanation of how the Reich acquired the information.

The White House disclaimed any belief in the report. Nevertheless, several naval ships and a Coast Guard cutter were rushed to accompany the Iroquois to New York, where she is due next Wednesday. The captain was ordered to search the ship for explosives and to double his lookouts and patrol watchmen.

Later officials here were notified by the captain that the search had been made and no explosives found.

The White House statement issued late yesterday said:

"Yesterday the head of the German Navy, Grand Admiral Raeder, officially informed the American Government, through the United States Naval Attache (Commander A. E. circumstances which marked the loss of the Athenia."

The British liner, Athenia, with many Americans on board, was sunk off the coast of Ireland the day England declared that a state of war existed with Germany. The British blamed a torpedo from a German submarine, but in Germany there were contentions that the Athenia had been sunk by foes of the Reich to arouse feeling in the United States.

Mention of the Athenia in Admiral Raeder's dispatch conveyed to many persons here the impression that Germany was, in effect, saying that Britain or France intended to sink the Iroquois, and then blame a Germn submarine.

Stephen T. Early, a presidential secretary, said the Cabinet devoted almost its entire session yesterday to the message before deciding to make it public. The latter was done, Mr. Early said, in order that the American people and the world would "know as much about it as the Government."

Mr. Early said that the White House was not putting out the warning for the purpose of creating any alarms.

"We don't believe, as a matter of fact," he added "that any people in the United States will believe the report is true or could be true. We can't imagine any British, or French or other ships would do such a thing as the dispatch states."

Secretary Hull said at his press conference today that the State Department was seeking the fullest available facts as to who was the author of what he termed the dastardly act of the sinking of the liner Athenia.

He said this in telling reporters he had no information with regard to the Iroquois in addition to that given out at the White House.

Mr. Early disclosed that Commander Schrader was required to sign a statement acknowledging the warning.

NO U. S. CONVOY BEING PLANNED

President Sees No Precedent in Iroquois Case.

SAYS MANY SHIPS ARE ON WAY

Roosevelt Denies Invitation Has Been Sent to Moscicki.

HYDE PARK, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt told reporters today that the dispatching of naval vessels and a Coast Guard cutter to guard the American steamship Iroquois was a very good illustration of the operation of the neutrality patrol in Atlantic waters.

Asked whether that action meant a precedent was being established and warships would accompany other American ships, the President replied in the negative.

The White House announced in Washington yesterday that the Government had received an official German warning that the Iroquois, bringing Americans back from Europe, would be sunk as she neared the United States coast. The implication was made that the French and British were planning to attack the liner and blame it on Germany.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had nothing to add to the White House statement when he was asked whether the fact that a squadron of war vessels had been sent to intercept the Iroquois should be interpreted as meaning this Government considered the German report true.

Patrol Ships on Duty.

The President said he did not know where the naval and Coast Guard craft would meet the Iroquois, and would not say if he did know.

With regard to the neutrality patrol, the Chief Executive remarked that the patrol vessels were at sea already and that makes the whole procedure much simpler.

The President sat in a White House touring car and chatted with newspapermen at nearby Highland, N. Y., after he had left a special train which had brought him from Washington. From Highland he drove to his country estate, where he planned to spend the week end checking up on his crop of spruce trees and the damage done it by drought.

Mr. Roosevelt had not had an opportunity to hear or read Adolf Hitler's speech proposing a general conference for the "laying down of arms."

Did Not Invite Moscicki.

Asked about reports that he or the Government had invited former President Ignace Moscicki of Poland to come to America to live, the President said he knew nothing about it.

Mr. Roosevelt said that he was not planting any additional trees on his estate this fall and that he was going to check up today as to what the final acreage to be replanted had to be, and determine where the new planting would be placed in the spring.

Because of the drought, he said he would have virtually two years' planting to put in. More than 30,0 of his trees were killed this year—slightly more than were set out earlier in the year.

Every year the President markets some of his spruce stand for Christmas trees.

SENATORS DECLARE HITLER INSINCERE

'He Has Lied So Often,' Says Norris, Independent.

OCT 7 1939

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Some Senators indicated today that they had little confidence in the sincerity of Adolf Hitler's speech to the Reichstag.

"I don't see how England and France can put any faith in Hitler's promises," said Senator Norris, Independent, of Nebraska. "I don't have any confidence in him. He has lied so often. Every time he takes a country he says he has no further territorial ambitions. But our part in all of this is merely that of a spectator. We should neither insist that peace terms be accepted nor insist that they be rejected."

Senator Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, a leader of the opposition to the administration neutrality bill, told reporters that Hitler, "like presidents, kings and premiers, talks for his folks back home."

He said Hitler's statement would not affect the neutrality fight in the Senate and aded "no matter what they do (in Europe) we must stay out of it."

"I think that we should beware of the Greeks when they come bearing gifts," said Senator King, Democrat, of Utah. "I don't believe in Hitler's sincerity. It is hardly to be expected that the allies will give serious consideration to his proposals until and unless he gives additional evidence that he will cease making war and will make some adequate amends to the cruel conquest of Poland."

Chairman Bloom, Democrat, of New York, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, described Hitler's speech as "just another threat." Bloom said he "heard nothing in it that would indicate there was any chance of the other nations getting together with Hitler to discuss peace."

Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas; Senator Herring, Democrat, of Iowa, and Representative Jarman, Democrat, of Alabama, listened to the speech by radio and then went on the air with comments including these:

Mr. Capper—"He was trying to frighten Britain and France into peace on German terms. Also he was bolstering up the spirit of the German people, but it is up to Britain and France and not to the United States to give the answer."

Mr. Herring—"The speech of Hitler impressed me as the plea of a guilty soul which is finally beginning to recognize its own crimes."

Mr. Jarman—"He reiterated his philosophy forcefully in the statement that in the final analysis it is not the method but results that count."

POLAND HAD HELIUM

Nazis Must Have Seized It, Is Banned by Ickes.

OCT 7 1939

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Has Germany finally obtained American helium, despite the opposition of Secretary Ickes?

The State Department authorized the export of 220,000 cubic feet to Poland last June for a stratosphere flight. It was shipped to Zakopane, one of the first regions occupied by German troops last month.

No word has been received here as to whether the Poles released the helium before they fled.

Germany asked last year for a supply for a new dirigible. Secretary Ickes intervened in the belief that it would be used for military purposes.

Eight million cubic feet are needed for the dirigible, but the amount sent to Poland would inflate several observation balloons.

listed as doubtful on the embargo issue, said he would vote for the Administration bill because he believed that it was less likely to get the United States into war.

States His Reasons

He gave these specific reasons:

"First, because it will help accelerate and develop our own very inadequate national defense;

"Second, because it forbids American ships and American citizens to enter the war zones;

"Third, because extension of credit to belligerents will be either eliminated or rigidly controlled;

"And, finally, because this procedure promotes as impartially as is possible this democracy's safety and peace, and does not deny arbitrarily to anyone the opportunity of obtaining such supplies as it has hitherto been customary for belligerents to obtain from neutrals in time of war.

Stimson Supports Bill

His announcement followed a radio speech in support of the Administration bill by Henry L. Stimson, Republican, former Secretary of State.

Barbour was the sixth of the twenty-three Republican Senators to advocate repeal. Along with them, fifty-one Democrats and one Independent are counted by the Administration as "sure" for the pending bill. Only forty-nine votes are needed for passage.

Contesting these figures, Senator Gerald P. Nye (Rep., N. D.), an opposition leader, said that the Administration had no more than thirty-nine or forty definitely pledged for repeal and that the embargo group had thirty-two, leaving "more than twenty who have not yet made up their minds."

Commenting on a statement by Senator Key Pittman (Dem., Nev.) that from sixty-four to sixty-eight Senators may vote for the bill, Nye said:

"They've got sixty-one votes for 'cash and carry' and if they come to me they can have one more. They haven't got sixty-one for embargo repeal."

It was Nye who disclosed that a substitute bill was being prepared to keep the embargo, change the Administration measure's ninety-day credit plan into a straight "cash and carry" system, and retain the rest of the proposal neutrality safeguards, such as banning American ships and citizens from war zones.

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Oct. 6—Advocates of repealing the arms embargo today gained another Republican vote—that of Senator W. Warren Barbour, of New Jersey—as opposition leaders continued to dispute claims of a "substantial majority" for the legislation.

The opponents also announced that a substitute neutrality bill, retaining the embargo and providing a strict "cash-and-carry" system for all other trade with belligerents, was being framed by uidentified Senators.

Today's Speakers

A final vote is not expected before two more weeks of debate, although some Administration lieutenants said it might come sooner. Floor speakers today included Senators Elbert Thomas (Dem., Utah) for repeal, and Shendan Downey (Dem., Cal.) and Bennett Clark (Dem., Mo.) against it.

Butler Views Embargo As Guard Against War

OCT 7 1939

Washington, Oct. 6 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler said tonight that "the way to get into this war is to raise the embargo on arms."

The retired marine officer, in an address prepared for broadcast, asserted:

"This war's in Europe. It isn't over here. Aand it won't come over here unless we invite it. But the way to invite it is to sell bombs and munitions. They'll have the stamp of American makers on them, and they'll have the R. S. V. P. that'll bring about acceptance of that invitation—an invitation to go over there and join the mess."

Butler said that "the boogey-boo is that somebody will come over here," then added:

"Don't you be alarmed. Nobody in Europe can afford to leave home. Why, if Hitler left Germany with a 1,000,000 soldiers to come over here, if he ever got back he'd find everybody speaking either French or Russian. Those babies would move in on him while he was gone."

Ronda Survivor, One Of 21 Saved After 60 Hours In Dinghy Built For Six, Got Aunt Reach U. S.

OCT 7 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Hoboken, N. J., Oct. 6—Miss Joy-Allan Duncan, 19-year-old student of Richmond, Va., returned from the war zone today with a gripping tale of how she and her aunt survived the sinking of the Swedish freighter Ronda in the North Sea September 13.

One of 591 passengers arriving on the Pennland, of the Holland-America Line, Miss Duncan said the Ronda apparently hit a mine and went down almost immediately, taking the captain and his wife with it.

250 Are Americans

Of the Pennland's passengers, 200 more than her normal complement, 250 were Americans. The liner, which sailed from Antwerp September 25, also brought Dr. Robert Wilhelm, a Viennese refugee, and his family, bound for Manila, in the Philippines.

Miss Duncan, a tall, attractive blonde, said she was thrown into the sea when the Ronda sank, and was sucked under water several times by eddying whirlpools.

The girl, who resides with her aunt, Mrs. John Etchison, at Richmond, had no life preserver and was barely able to flounder about until an empty barrel floated by. Two sailors swam to her and began making a raft from debris.

Finally, she said, the ship carpenter picked them up in a small dinghy into which twenty persons were hauled. Eighteen others were lost.

Miss Duncan and Mrs. Etchison, who arrived with her niece today, were the only women in the boat, which was built to hold six persons.

Hull Says Dominican Republic Is Neutral

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6 (A. P.).—Secretary Hull said today this Government had every reason to believe in the absolute neutrality of the Dominican Republic.

He made this comment at a press conference when asked if he thought Dominican vessels had been aiding in refueling German submarines.

The Secretary expressed appreciation for the hospitable treatment given by the Dominican authorities to visiting United States Navy vessels.

OCT 7 1939

He said also this Government had received no official communications regarding the views of European belligerents with respect to the neutral sea-zone proclaimed at the Panama inter-American conference.

BERLIN, OCT. 6-(AP)-THE HEAD OF ANY NEUTRAL STATE, PREFERABLY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, COULD ACHIEVE A LASTING PLACE IN HISTORY BY MEDIATING THE EUROPEAN WAR NOW, INFORMED SOURCES SAID TONIGHT AFTER ADOLF HITLER OFFERED PEACE OR A FIGHT TO A FINISH.

HITLER'S REICHSTAG SPEECH TODAY IN WHICH HE MADE HIS PEACE OVERTURE TO BRITAIN AND FRANCE, THESE SOURCES SAID, REALLY WAS INTENDED FOR NEUTRAL POWERS.

OCT 7 1939

HIS WORDS NEAR THE CLOSE OF HIS HOUR AND 20 MINUTE ADDRESS, "MAY THOSE PEOPLES AND THEIR LEADERS WHO ARE OF THE SAME MIND NOW MAKE THEIR REPLY--AND LET THOSE WHO CONSIDER WAR TO BE A BETTER SOLUTION REJECT MY OUTSTRETCHED HAND," WERE A DIRECT APPEAL TO NEUTRALS.

IT WAS EMPHASIZED TONIGHT THAT NOW IS THE TIME FOR ANY POTENTIAL PEACEMAKER TO STEP IN AND MEDIATE BEFORE, RATHER THAN AFTER WHAT PROMISES TO BECOME THE BLOODIEST CONTEST IN HISTORY HAS BEGUN IN EARNEST.

(INFORMED CIRCLES IN WASHINGTON SAID MR.ROOSEVELT WAS UNLIKELY TO PROPOSE AN ARMISTICE IN THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT UNLESS HE WAS ASSURED GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE WOULD ACCEPT.

(MR.ROOSEVELT HAS SENT FIVE APPEALS TO HITLER IN ONE YEAR, THE THIRD OF WHICH WAS REJECTED BY THE FUEHRER IN A BITTER SPEECH. IT WAS SAID IN WASHINGTON ALSO THAT THE GERMAN PRESS AND SOME NAZI OFFICIALS HAVE ACCUSED THE PRESIDENT OF WAR-MONGERING AND UN-NEUTRALITY.

THERE HAS BEEN A MARKED TENDENCY SINCE THE BEGINNING OF THE WAR TO FORGET ALL THE DEROGATORY THINGS SAID IN GERMANY ABOUT MR. ROOSEVELT. THIS OSTENSIBLY RESULTED FROM A DESIRE TO WIN HIS AND THE AMERICAN PEOPLES' SYMPATHY BY "CORRECT" CONDUCT OF THE WAR AND SCRUPULOUS OBSERVANCE OF PRIZE LAWS ON THE PART OF SUBMARINE AND OTHER NAVAL COMMANDERS.

GRAND ADMIRAL ERICH RAEDER'S WARNING TO THE AMERICAN NAVAL ATTACHE HERE THAT CONSPIRATORS HAD PLOTTED THE SINKING OF THE UNITED STATES LINER IROQUOIS, NOW ENROUTE TO NEW YORK WITH AMERICAN REFUGEES, WAS TAKEN AS FURTHER EVIDENCE OF A DESIRE TO APPEASE AMERICAN PUBLIC OPINION.

ALTHOUGH WARSAW WAS UNDER SIEGE FOR 20 DAYS BEFORE ITS CAPITULATION SEPT.27, GERMANS HAVE SAID THEY BEGAN THEIR GENERAL ASSAULT ON ITS DEFENSES ONLY IN THE LAST TWO DAYS.

HITLER'S UNSCHEDULED REMARKS TO THE CORRESPONDENTS FOLLOWED A REVIEW OF HIS TROOPS AT WHICH HE WAS SURROUNDED BY HIGH MILITARY AND CIVILIAN OFFICERS INCLUDING COL.-GEN. WILHELM KEITEL, CHIEF OF HIGH COMMAND OF THE ARMED FORCES, AND DR.HANS HEINRICH LAMMERS, CLOSE ASSOCIATE OF THE FUEHRER AND HIS LIAISON OFFICER WITH THE WARTIME MINISTERIAL COUNCIL.

IN AN ORDER OF THE DAY ISSUED TO THE ARMY LATER, HITLER SAID HIS POLISH CAMPAIGN WAS FINISHED AND HIS SOLDIERS WERE "READY FOR ANYTHING."

AD

HE SAID THE ARMY AROSE SEPT.1 "AT MY COMMAND TO DEFEND OUR COUNTRY FROM POLISH ATTACK" AND "IN THE BEST TRADITION OF GERMAN ARMS" HAD FULFILLED ITS TASK.

"WITH ME, THE GERMAN PEOPLE, FULL OF PRIDE, THANK YOU," HE SAID.

"THE NATION ONCE AGAIN THANKS YOU, LOOKS WITH UNSHAKABLE CONFIDENCE TO ITS MILITARY ORGANIZATION AND ITS LEADERSHIP."

SHOULD THE REACTION BE FAVORABLE, THE NEXT THREE STEPS AS SEEN HERE WILL BE:

1. REESTABLISHMENT OF CONTACT AMONG THE BELLIGERENTS-- GERMANY, FRANCE AND GREAT BRITAIN--THROUGH THIRD POWERS, EITHER ITALY OR THE SOVEREIGNS OF BELGIUM OR THE NETHERLANDS OR PERHAPS THROUGH POWERS LOOKING AFTER BELLIGERENTS' INTERESTS, SUCH AS THE UNITED STATES.

2. AN ARMISTICE IN THE WAR WHICH BEGAN SEPT. 3. OCT 7 1939

HITLER'S VOICE WAS SLIGHTLY WEAKER THAN USUAL AS HE ADDRESSED THE UNIFORMED DEPUTIES OF THE REICHSTAG.

IF THE WAR CONTINUES DESPITE HITLER'S "OUTSTRETCHED HAND," CERTAINLY THE GERMAN PEOPLE NO LESS THAN THE REICH'S ADVERSARIES KNOW WHAT "SCHRECKLICHKEIT" MAY BE IN STORE FOR HITLER GAVE A GRAPHIC PICTURE OF THE BOMBING AND SHELLING OF THRIVING TOWNS LIKE SAARBRUECKEN, KARLSRUHE, FRIEBURG IN GERMANY AND MULHOUSE, STRASBOURG AND COLMAR IN FRANCE.

HE DEVELOPED HOW WAR WILL BE CARRIED IN ON THE AIR, ON LAND AND FAR OUT AT SEA WITH THE RESULT THAT "THE NATIONAL WEALTH OF EUROPE WILL BE SCATTERED IN THE FORM OF SHELLS AND THE VIGOR OF EVERY NATION WILL BE SAPPED ON BATTLEFIELDS."

TO OBSERVERS IT SEEMED HITLER STILL WAS STRONGLY UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF WHAT HE SAW IN THE WAY OF DESTRUCTION AT WARSAW YESTERDAY.

OCT 7 1939

THE FUEHRER SPOKE IN TERMS OF GREAT CONTEMPT OF THE POLES, ESPECIALLY THEIR LEADERS. HE DENIED THE POLES WERE A PEOPLE CAPABLE OF SELF GOVERNMENT AND CLAIMED THEY WERE BY NATURE SADISTIC.

MUCH OF HIS SPEECH WAS DEVOTED TO A RECITATION OF DEEDS OF VALOR SHOWN BY THE GERMAN ARMIES, INTERSPERSED WITH THIS THEME WERE FREQUENT REFERENCES TO GERMANY'S INVINCIBILITY.

"NEITHER THE FORCE OF ARMS NOR LAPSE OF TIME WILL CONQUER GERMANY," HE SHOUTED TOWARD THE CONCLUSION OF HIS ADDRESS, WHICH FREQUENTLY WAS INTERRUPTED BY ECSTATIC SHOUTS OF HIS FOLLOWERS.

UNDATED HITLER REACTION

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ADOLF HITLER'S PROPOSAL FOR AN ALL-INCLUSIVE PEACE CONFERENCE WAS COLDLY RECEIVED IN UNOFFICIAL QUARTERS IN PARIS AND LONDON. ITALY WAS HOPEFUL, BUT NOT OPTIMISTIC.

KEYNOTE OF EARLY BRITISH REACTION WAS THE SINGLE WORD "NO" HEADING THE MAIN EDITORIAL OF LORD BEAVERBROOK'S EVENING STANDARD.

OCT 7 1939

"IF HE HAS MADE HIS LAST PEACE OFFER, HE ALSO HAS MADE HIS LAST WAR," THE STANDARD SAID..."HE HAS SPOKEN HIS OWN FUNERAL ORATION."

SATIRICAL COMMENT CAME FROM SEMIOFFICIAL FRENCH SOURCES. THEY AGREED WITH BRITISH COMMENTATORS HITLER HAD OFFERED NOTHING NEW. HITLER'S SPEECH WAS DESCRIBED IN THESE SOURCES AS "DEMOGOGIC" AND "FORCED."

FRENCH COMMENTATORS SAID HITLER HAD ATTEMPTED TO INDUCE ALL OTHER POWERS TO BOW "TO EVERY INJUNCTION AND EVERY DESIRE" OF GERMANY.

FASCIST QUARTERS IN ROME SAID ITALY WOULD NOT TAKE THE INITIATIVE IN PEACE IN LINE WITH HER POLICY OF NOT TAKING ANY MILITARY INITIATIVE IN EUROPE. OFFICIALS AWAITED OFFICIAL FRENCH AND BRITISH REACTION IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF FAINT HOPE.

FIRST MEMBERS OF CONGRESS TO COMMENT IN WASHINGTON INDICATED HITLER'S SPEECH WON NO SUPPORT FROM THEM. HIS SPEECH WAS CALLED THE "PLEA OF A GUILTY SOUL." BY SENTOR HERRING(D-IA.) AND AN ATTEMPT "TO FRIGHTEN BRITAIN AND FRANCE INTO PEACE ON GERMAN TERMS" BY SENATOR CAPPER (R-KANS.)

OCT 7 1939

ADOLF HITLER, AN AUTHORIZED SOURCE SAID LAST (FRIDAY) NIGHT, IS WILLING TO AGREE TO AN ARMISTICE IN EUROPE'S WAR IF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT PROPOSED SUCH A STEP FOR A GENERAL EUROPEAN SETTLEMENT.

WHILE ADVERSE REACTIONS TO HITLER'S PEACE FORMULA WERE REPORTED FROM FRANCE AND GREAT BRITAIN, THE AUTHORIZED GERMAN SOURCE ADDED THAT THE FUEHRER WOULD ACCEPT AN ARMISTICE IF PROPOSED BY THE HEAD

OF ANOTHER IMPORTANT NEUTRAL STATE.

IN OTHER WORDS, THE GERMAN AUTHORITY SAID, HITLER WOULD CONSIDER WITH FAVOR INTERVENTION BY A NEUTRAL OR NEUTRALS TO END THE WAR.

IN WASHINGTON, THE STATE DEPARTMENT DECLINED COMMENT ON THE BERLIN REPORTS.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT, MEANWHILE, SAID THE PEACE MOVE WOULD BE EXAMINED CAREFULLY IN CONSULTATION WITH THE BRITISH DOMINIONS AND FRANCE--BUT THE RECEPTION TO HITLER'S SPEECH IN PARIS AND LONDON WAS DISTINCTLY UNFAVORABLE.

PREMIER DALADIER IN EFFECT TURNED DOWN HITLER'S PROPOSAL WITH A PERSONAL DECLARATION THAT ONLY A FRENCH-BRITISH VICTORY WILL ASSURE A "REGIME OF REAL JUSTICE AND LASTING PEACE IN EUROPE."

THE FRENCH-BRITISH CONCEPTION OF PEACE, HE ADDED, EXCLUDES ALL DOMINATION IN EUROPE AND "CAN BE FOUNDED ONLY ON THE RIGHTS OF PEOPLES TO LIFE AND LIBERTY."

OCT 7 1939

"FRANCE AND BRITAIN WILL NEVER LAY DOWN THEIR ARMS UNTIL THAT PEACE IS EFFECTIVELY ASSURED," THE PREMIER SAID.

ITALY, FIRM IN HER RESOLVE AGAINST TAKING THE INITIATIVE IN MILITARY ACTION, WAS EQUALLY FIRM AGAINST TAKING THE INITIATIVE FOR PEACE. ITALIANS WERE HOPEFUL HITLER'S SPEECH MIGHT LEAD THE WAY TO PEACE, BUT THEY WERE NOT OPTIMISTIC.

IN WASHINGTON, SEVERAL SENATORS WHO WOULD COMMENT INDICATED THEY HAD LITTLE CONFIDENCE IN THE SINCERITY OF THE SPEECH. GENERALLY THEY AGREED IT WOULD HAVE NO EFFECT ON UNITED STATES NEUTRALITY AND THAT IT WAS UP TO FRANCE AND BRITAIN TO ANSWER--NOT THE UNITED STATES.

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT'S STATEMENT ASSERTED THAT NO PEACE PROPOSAL WAS LIKELY TO BE ACCEPTED WHICH DID NOT EFFECTIVELY FREE EUROPE FROM THE "MENACE OF AGGRESSION" AND THAT "SOMETHING MORE THAN WORDS WOULD BE REQUIRED TO ESTABLISH CONFIDENCE."

WIDE PUBLICITY WAS GIVEN THE SPEECH IN ITALY WHERE THE FASCIST PRESS TERMED IT "AN OFFER OF PEACE, REASON AND JUSTICE," AND A "REAFFIRMATION OF GERMANY'S WILL FOR PEACE."

LORD BEAVERBROOK'S LONDON EVENING STANDARD HEADED ITS LEADING EDITORIAL WITH A BOLD "NO" AND DECLARED THAT "HITLER'S PEACE WOULD MEAN A NAZI EUROPE."

SENATOR KING (D-UTAH) SAID HE DID NOT BELIEVE IN HITLER'S SINCERITY.

OCT 7 1939

THE FIRST BELGIAN COMMENT CAME IN THE SOCIALIST NEWSPAPER LE PEUPLE WHICH SAID IT APPEARED TO BE "THE DESPERATE EFFORT OF A MAN WHO IS PUSHED TO THE WALL AND WHOSE BLUFF WILL NOT IMPRESS ANYONE."

THE WAR TODAY -

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

HERR HITLER'S PEACE PROPOSALS CALL FOR A GENERAL CONFERENCE WHICH WOULD DEAL BROADLY WITH ALL EUROPE'S POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC ILLS AND ALSO WOULD PROVIDE FOR A MEASURE OF DISARMAMENT.

THERE WERE CONCILIATORY TOUCHES IN HIS LONG SPEECH, DELIVERED BEFORE THE REICHSTAG TODAY.

THE MOST NOTABLE WAS HIS DECLARATION THAT HIS PROPOSED CONFERENCE MUST NOT BE HELD UNDER A THREAT OF FORCE--PRESUMABLY AN ANSWER TO THE ANGLO-FRENCH REFUSAL TO CONSIDER TERMS ACCOMPANIED BY THREATS.

AGAIN THE FUEHRER MADE A SWEEPING RENOUNCEMENT OF ANY FURTHER TERRITORIAL CLAIMS, EXCEPTING FOR HIS OLD COLONIAL DEMANDS. AND HE SAID THE COLONIAL CLAIMS WEREN'T MADE IN THE FORM OF AN ULTIMATUM BUT WERE BASED ON POLITICAL JUSTICE.

IN FACT, HITLER SAID HIS INTERESTS IN BOTH EASTERN EUROPE AND SCANDINAVIA WERE WHOLLY ECONOMIC.

OCT 7 1939

ON THE WHOLE IT APPEARED THAT HE WAS STRIVING, WITHOUT GIVING WAY ON ANY VITAL POINTS, TO PRESENT A PROGRAM WHICH MIGHT ATTRACT FAVORABLE ATTENTION.

HIS PEACE PROPOSALS [redacted] SO THAT THEY WOULD CALL FOR FULL [redacted] BROTHERHOOD WERE IT NOT FOR THE FACT THAT [redacted] FUNDAMENTAL POINTS ON WHICH THE ALLIES HAVE TAKEN WHAT THEY CLAIM TO BE IRREVOCABLE STANDS. THESE BRIEFLY ARE:

1. THAT THEY WILL NOT MAKE PEACE WHILE GERMAN TROOPS OCCUPY POLAND, AND THAT POLAND MUST BE RESTORED.

2. THAT THEY WILL NO LONGER ACCEPT THE UNSUPPORTED WORD OF THE NAZI GOVERNMENT.

3. THAT THEY WILL NOT CEASE WAR UNTIL THEY HAVE "CRUSHED HITLERISM"--A DECLARATION WHICH SOME OBSERVERS HAVE THOUGHT TOOK IN A GOOD DEAL OF TERRITORY, TO SAY THE LEAST.

AS REGARDS POLAND, HITLER ASSERTED FINALLY THAT THE POLAND OF THE VERSAILLES TREATY CAN'T BE RECONSTRUCTED. INDEED, HE DECLARED THAT GERMANY AND RUSSIA ALONE WILL DETERMINE WHAT POLAND IS TO BECOME.

HE PROPOSED, AS A CONCESSION, THAT THERE BE ESTABLISHED, A POLISH STATE WITH BOUNDARIES WHICH SHALL "DO JUSTICE TO HISTORICAL, ETHNOLOGICAL AND ECONOMIC FACTS."

IF HITLER HAS SAID HIS last WORD (AND THAT IS WHAT HE SAID) IT IS PATENT THAT THE ALLIES CAN FIND NO BASIS IN HIS PROPOSALS FOR A CONFERENCE -- UNLESS THEY ARE PREPARED TO BACK WATER, AND A LOT OF IT.

JCAME933AES

SOME NAZIS CALLED HITLER'S ADDRESS THE GREATEST SPEECH FOR PEACE SINCE THE WORLD WAR. WHATEVER MAY BE THE ALLIED REACTION TO THAT CLAIM, AND TO THE SPECIFIC PROPOSALS, HE MAY HAVE ACHIEVED A VICTORY AT HOME, FOR HIS EFFORT CERTAINLY WAS CALCULATED TO FIX THE BLAME FOR CONTINUING THE WAR ON THE ALLIES.

WHILE HITLER APPEARED TO BE AVOIDING DIRECT THREATS TO THE ALLIES, HE TOOK PAINS TO DESCRIBE THE PROWESS OF THE GERMAN ARMY IN THE POLISH CAMPAIGN, AND PAINTED A TERRIBLE PICTURE OF THE HELL WHICH WOULD FOLLOW IF PEACE WEREN'T MADE. ALSO, THE ALLIES HAD BEFORE THEM THE STATEMENT WHICH HE MADE TO NEWSPAPERMEN YESTERDAY WHILE STANDING AMIDST THE RUINS OF WARSAW:

"YOU SEE FOR YOURSELVES WHAT CRIMINAL FOLLY IT WAS TO TRY TO DEFEND THIS CITY. I WISH CERTAIN STATESMEN WHO ARE TRYING TO TURN ALL EUROPE INTO ANOTHER WARSAW MIGHT HAVE SEEN WHAT YOU SAW TODAY."

30.24-3897

HITLER PRESUMABLY WAS TAKING ANOTHER FLING AT "MR.CHURCHILL (BRITAIN'S FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY) AND HIS COMPANIONS," WHOM HE ALSO GAVE A LITTLE RIDE IN TODAY'S SPEECH. THE FAMOUS WINSTON CHURCHILL IS ONE OF THE

WHILE WE ARE ON THE

"I DO NOT BELIEVE PEACE CAN EVER COME TO EUROPE UNTIL ENGLAND AND GERMANY DO ARRIVE AT AN UNDERSTANDING."

OCT 7 1939

THE PRESENT WAR LIES LARGELY BETWEEN THESE TWO GREAT POWERS, EACH OF WHICH ACCUSES THE OTHER OF SEEKING TO DOMINATE EUROPE. IT IS A QUARREL OF LONG STANDING.

NAZI OFFICIALS INDICATED THAT HITLER'S SPEECH WAS A FORMAL PEACE PROPOSAL TO WHICH HE EXPECTED ANSWER.

"AND LET THOSE WHO CONSIDER WAR TO BE THE BETTER SOLUTION REJECT MY OUTSTRETCHED HAND," HE DECLARED. "THEN WE SHALL FIGHT."

"FROM BOTH SIDES (EVENTUALLY," HE CRIED, "DESTRUCTION WILL STRIKE DEEPER, DEEPER AND WHATEVER CANNOT BE REACHED BY LONG DISTANCE GUNS WILL BE DESTROYED FROM THE AIR. X X X THIS BATTLE OF DESTRUCTION WON'T BE CONFINED TO THE LAND. NO, IT WILL REACH FAR OUT OVER THE SEA. X X X AND THE NATIONAL WEALTH OF EUROPE WILL BE SCATTERED IN FORM OF SHELLS, AND THE VIGOR OF EVERY NATION WILL BE SAPPED ON THE BATTLE-FIELDS."

WHICH IS ANOTHER WAY OF SAYING THAT THE CHIEF WINNERS IN WAR ARE THE PROFITEERS AND THE TRENCH-RATS.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS (BUDGET)

BY KIRKE L.SIMPSON

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A NEW ADOLF HITLER, STILL PROCLAIMING GERMANY'S MIGHT, YET ALMOST PLEADING FOR A PEACE OF APPEASEMENT IN EUROPE, STANDS REVEALED TO THE WORLD.

A YEAR AGO, AT MUNICH, SUCH A PEACE SEEMED WITHIN HIS GRASP. IF THE SPEECH HE DELIVERED YESTERDAY, VISIONING A ROUND-TABLE SOLUTION OF ALL WESTERN EUROPE'S PROBLEMS, HAD BEEN UTTERED IN SEPTEMBER, 1938, THERE IS NO DOUBT IT WOULD HAVE SENT WORLD PEACE HOPES BOUNDING HIGH.

OCT 7 1939

BUT NOW THAT ROAD TO PEACE SEEMS BARRED BY THE ALLIES' BITTER MEMORIES OF MUNICH AND ITS AFTERMATH IN CZECHO-SLOVAKIA AND POLAND.

IN VIVID PHRASES, HITLER DREW A PICTURE OF COMPLETE WAR AS THE GRIM ALTERNATIVE TO HIS OFFER. BUT THERE WAS NO SIGN THAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE WOULD ACCEPT THE OFFER. ON THE CONTRARY, PREMIER DALADIER DECLARED THAT ONLY A FRANCO-BRITISH VICTORY COULD ASSURE "REAL JUSTICE AND LASTING PEACE IN EUROPE."

IT HAS BEEN SAID IN BOTH BRITAIN AND FRANCE THAT HAVING SET THEIR HANDS TO THE WAR PLOW AGAINST HITLERISM IN EUROPE, THEY WILL NOT LOOK BACK UNTIL THE FURROW IS TURNED, WHATEVER THE COST.

YET FOR THE PEOPLES OF GERMANY, OF FRANCE AND OF ENGLAND--AND FOR THOSE OF ALL OTHER NATIONS LOOKING ON FEARFULLY AT THE STRUGGLE--THAT HITLER SPEECH DID FURNISH ANOTHER BREATHING SPELL IN WHICH PEACE HOPE STILL CAN FLOURISH. IT PUTS OFF ONCE MORE THE FULL SHOCK OF WAR ON THE WEST FRONT--FOR HOW LONG NONE CAN SAY. AND WHILE GERMAN AIR POWER IS WITHHELD FROM THE COMBAT--WHICH HITLER WARNED WOULD KNOW NO "ISLANDS" AND REACH FAR ACROSS THE SEA--PEACE HOPES WILL LIVE IN THE WORLD AGAINST ALL DISCOUR-

AGEMENT.

FOR TRANS-ATLANTIC OBSERVERS, THE ISSUE OF PEACE BY NEGOTIATION RAISED BY HITLER APPEARED TO TURN ON A SINGLE PHRASE OF THE THOUSANDS OF WORDS IN WHICH HE DRESSED IT. THAT IS THE PHRASE "UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED PEACE" WHICH HE SAID MUST BE THE ESSENTIAL ELEMENT TO BE SOUGHT BY SUCH A WESTERN EUROPEAN CONFERENCE HAS HE PROPOSED. THAT ALONE COULD GIVE INDIVIDUAL NATIONS THE "SENSE OF SECURITY" NECESSARY TO PERMIT REDUCTION OF ARMAMENTS TO "A REASONABLE AND ECONOMICALLY TOLERABLE LEVEL," HE SAID.

THAT COMES FROM HITLER AFTER PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN'S RECENT WARNING THAT NO "MERE ASSURANCES" FROM THE NAZI GOVERNMENT COULD BE ACCEPTED. IN THE LIGHT OF RECENT HISTORY, GERMAN COMMITMENTS WERE "WORTHLESS", CHAMBERLAIN SAID, AND ANY GERMAN PEACE PROPOSAL WOULD BE TESTED IN THAT LIGHT.

OCT 7 1939

DALADIER HAS ALREADY DISMISSED THE RUSSO-GERMAN PEACE MOVE AS MERELY A "TRUCE" PROPOSAL, DESIGNED TO PERMIT GERMANY TO CONSOLIDATE THE TERRITORY AND RESOURCES SHE HAS ABSORBED SINCE SHE BEGAN HER MARCH TO VIENNA, TO PRAGUE, TO WARSAW. IT SEEMS HARDLY POSSIBLE THAT HITLER'S DENIALS OF ANY LURKING DESIGNS ON FRANCE CAN SOOTH FRENCH FEARS OF THE EVER-EXPANDING NEIGHBOR ACROSS THE WEST FRONT.

OCT 7 1939

IT IS DIFFICULT TO IMAGINE WHAT GUARANTEES HE COULD INCUDE THE ALLIES TO ACCEPT, SHORT OF THE ELIMINATION OF HIMSELF AND MANY OF HIS CHIEF AIDES IN BERLIN. CERTAINLY THERE WAS NO OFFER TO RECONSIDER THE NEW MAP OF EASTERN EUROPE WHICH GERMAN MIGHT AND RUSSIAN COOPERATION HAVE DRAWN. ON THE CONTRARY, HITLER AGAIN SERVED NOTICE THAT THE PROBLEMS OF EASTERN AND SOUTHERN EUROPE WOULD BE DEALT WITH BY THE RUSSO-GERMAN PARTNERSHIP IN ITS OWN WAY.

THAT ISSUE SEEMS NOT OPEN TO CONSIDERATION BY THE EUROPEAN PEACE CONFERENCE HE SUGGESTED. YET LONDON AND PARIS STILL STAND PLEDGED TO THE POLISH GOVERNMENT-WITHOUT-A-COUNTRY. THEY ARE COMMITTED TO RESTORE POLAND, NOT IN THE FORM OF A "RESIDUARY" STATE WHICH HITLER AND STALIN MAY HAVE IN MIND, BUT AS SHE WAS.

FOR THESE REASONS, HITLER'S SPEECH CANNOT AS YET BE VIEWED AS OFFERING MUCH HOPE THAT THE NEW EUROPEAN CONFLICT CAN BE STEMMED BEFORE IT TAKES ITS FULL TOLL IN BLOOD AND TREASURE. IT DOES NOT CLOSE THE DOOR TO PEACE, BUT IT LEAVES IT SO SLIGHTLY AJAR AS TO DAUNT OPTIMISM ON THIS SIDE OF THE ATLANTIC.

ONE ELEMENT OF THAT SPEECH ATTRACTED SPECIAL ATTENTION. IT WAS THE LACK OF ANY INTIMATION THAT JOINT MILITARY ACTION BY THE RUSSO-GERMAN PARTNERS IS IMPENDING. THERE WAS NO WORD TO SHAKE THE CONFIDENCE EXPRESSED BY BRITISH AND FRENCH LEADERS THAT NO RUSSIAN TROOPS OR WAR BIRDS WILL APPEAR IN THE WEST.

IN SOME RESPECTS, THE SPEECH SEEMED A FINAL EFFORT TO BREAK DOWN FRENCH WILL TO FORCE THE CONFLICT TO COMPLETE WAR, AND TO DRIVE A WEDGE INTO BRITISH SOLIDARITY. HITLER SINGLED OUT WINSTON CHURCHILL, LONG HIS SPECIAL FOE, RATHER THAN PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN, AUTHOR OF THE NOW-ABANDONED APPEASEMENT POLICY, FOR CASTIGATION.

OCT 7 1939

THAT THE SPEECH WAS WORDED ALSO TO REACH THE EARS OF PEACE-ANXIOUS PEOPLES OF THE NEUTRAL WORLD IS AS OBVIOUS AS THAT IT WAS INTENDED TO STIMULATE GERMAN PUBLIC CONFIDENCE IN THE FUEHRER. YET HITLER DID NOT CONCEAL EVEN FROM HIS OWN PEOPLE THAT THERE MIGHT BE NO VICTORY FOR EITHER SIDE IN THE WAR, EVEN THOUGH ASSERTING HIS OWN CONFIDENCE OF ULTIMATE GERMAN TRIUMPH. IT IS A NEW, PERHAPS A SIGNIFICANT, NOTE FOR HIM TO SOUND.

AN EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT OF AN AIR BATTLE OVER THE SIEGFRIED LINE WAS RELEASED BY THE BRITISH MINISTRY OF INFORMATION.

THE STORY, WHICH GAVE NO DATES, SAID THE GERMANS LOST FOUR PLANES. A WOUNDED BRITISH AVIATOR WHO LANDED IN NO-MAN'S-LAND WAS CARRIED TO SAFETY BY A FRENCH ALGERIAN SOLDIER.

IMPLYING THAT THE UNITED STATES LINER IROQUOIS, NOW EN ROUTE TO NEW YORK, WOULD BE SUNK IN FULFILLMENT OF A BRITISH PLOT.

RPT--CDH--S28A

THE GERMAN FUEHRER, IN HIS REICHSTAG ADDRESS PRO-POSED AN ALL-INCLUSIVE CONFERENCE DESIGNED TO BRING ABOUT DISARMAMENT AND NEW ECONOMIC TREATIES.

HE DECLARED THE VERSAILLES TREATY WAS NON-EXISTENT
AND THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS DEAD.

OCT 7 1939

IN URGING A BROAD CONFERENCE, HITLER PICTURED THE NEW WAR AS ONE OF UNPRECEDENTED HORROR AND CHALLENGED THE ALLIES
"TO INTERPRET THESE OPINIONS OF MINE AS CHIVALRIC IF THEY DARE."
IF THEY ARE REJECTED, HE SAID, "WE SHALL FIGHT," AND ADDED THAT "THIS WAR MAY BE MY FINAL DECLARATION."

HITLER RENOUNCED FURTHER TERRITORIAL CLAIMS SAVE FOR HIS OLD COLONIAL DEMANDS; DECLARED GERMANY AND RUSSIA TOGETHER WOULD "RELIEVE ONE OF THE ACUTEST DANGER SPOTS OF EUROPE," AND LAID DOWN A FIVE-POINT PROGRAM FOR FALLEN POLAND.

HE INDICATED A DRASTIC RESETTLEMENT OF NATIONALITIES
WAS IN ORDER AND THAT THE PROBLEM WAS NOT RESTRICTED TO POLAND.

SIGNIFICANT WERE HIS REMARKS THAT THE EAST AND SOUTH OF EUROPE WAS FILLED "WITH SPLINTERS OF GERMAN NATIONALITY, WHOSE EXISTENCE CAN NOT BE MAINTAINED."

30.24-3901

30.24-3901

THERE WERE SOME CONCILIATORY TOUCHES IN THE 50-MINUTE SPEECH. HITLER HELD THE GREATEST BOON FOR EUROPE WOULD BE A BRITISH-GERMAN UNDERSTANDING.

HE ACKNOWLEDGED THAT HE IN THE PAST HE HAD DECLARED SOVIET RUSSIA HAS ORGANIZED ON PRINCIPLES DIFFERENT THAN THOSE HELD IN GERMANY.

OCT 7 1939

HITLER POSED THE QUESTION AS TO WHY THERE WAS WAR IN THE WEST. HE DECLARED PEACE COULD BE HAD IN THE NAME OF THE WORLD'S PEOPLE, BUT NOT IN THE NAME OF JEWISH AGITATORS.

MEANWHILE, IN MOSCOW, SOVIET RUSSIA ADDED TO HER SET-UP FOR CONTROL OF THE BALTIC. LITHUANIAN OFFICIALS WERE SUMMONED TO MOSCOW. A 10-YEAR NONAGGRESSION ACCORD WAS CONCLUDED WITH LATVIA, CLOSELY PARALLELING THE ONE SIGNED A WEEK AGO WITH ESTONIA.

REPORTS FROM BERLIN THAT ADOLF HITLER MIGHT AGREE TO A EUROPEAN ARMISTICE IF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT PROPOSED SUCH A STEP RECALLED THAT DER FUEHRER PREVIOUSLY REBUFFED SUCH PROPOSALS BY THE PRESIDENT.

IN A REPLY TO MR.ROOSEVELT'S APRIL 4 APPEAL TO GERMANY TO A 10-YEAR PEACE AGREEMENT, HITLER IN A SPEECH TO THE REICHSTAG APRIL 29 SAID:

"MR.ROOSEVELT, YOU DO NOT APPEAL FIRST TO ME AND GERMANY, BUT RATHER TO THE OTHERS; I HAVE A LONG LINE OF PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE BEHIND ME AND SHALL REMAIN SKEPTICALLY INCLINED UNTIL REALITY HAS TAUGHT ME TO KNOW BETTER."

TO MR.ROOSEVELT'S PROPOSALS FOR A DISCUSSION IN INTERNATIONAL TRADE, HITLER IN THE SAME SPEECH TOLD THE REICHSTAG:

"IT IS MY BELIEF, MR.ROOSEVELT, THAT IT WOULD BE A GREAT SERVICE IF YOU, WITH YOUR GREAT INFLUENCE, WOULD REMOVE THE BARRIERS TO A GENUINELY FREE WORLD TRADE BEGINNING WITH THE UNITED STATES."

LAST APRIL 12, PROPAGANDA MINISTER PAUL JOSEPH GOEBBELS' NEWSPAPER DER ANGRIFF CHARACTERIZED AS AN "IMPERTINENCE" THE REMARK OF THE PRESIDENT AT WARM SPRINGS, GA., THAT "I'LL BE BACK IN THE FALL IF WE DON'T HAVE A WAR."

THE NEWSPAPER SAID THE REMARK WAS "COARSE BARKING UP THE WRONG TREE AND IMPERTINENCE."

BEFORE ADDRESSING THE REICHSTAG APRIL 29 HITLER HAD ADDRESSED AN INQUIRY TO SMALLER EUROPEAN NATIONS, ASKING THEM, IN THE LIGHT OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S PEACE APPEAL, "DO YOU CONSIDER YOURSELF MENACED BY GERMANY? DID YOU ASK PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S INTERCESSION OR KNOW IN ADVANCE OF HIS PLEA FOR A MINIMUM OF TEN YEARS OF ASSURED NON-AGGRESSION?"

OCT 7 1939

RUMANIA REPLIED, "WHO CAN FEEL SAFE?" HITLER MADE PUBLIC A POLL OF THE OTHER SMALL NATIONS IN WHICH THE MAJORITY REPLIED THEY DID NOT FEEL MENACED. ROOSEVELT'S APPEAL, FOR "TEN YEARS AT LEAST --A QUARTER OF A CENTURY IF WE DARE LOOK THAT FAR AHEAD," WAS SENT IN BEHALF OF 31 NATIONS.

ON JULY 5 THE SEMI-OFFICIAL NAZI COMMENTARY, DEUTSCHE DIENST, TOOK THE PRESIDENT TO TASK IN AN ADDRESS TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE DECLARING, "THE INTENTION OF ROOSEVELT TO LINE UP AMERICA IN THE ENCIRCLEMENT FRONT DOES NOT LESSEN THE DANGER OF A WORLD WAR, BUT INCREASES IT."

THAT STATEMENT RESULTED FROM PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S COMMENT ON THE ACTION OF THE AMERICAN HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES IN WRITING IN A MODIFIED ARMS EMBARGO INTO THE AMERICAN NEUTRALITY BILL. MR.ROOSEVELT HAD SAID THE FIRST POLICY OF HIS ADMINISTRATION IS TO PREVENT WAR IN ANY PART OF THE WORLD AND ASSERTED PRESS DISPATCHES FROM FOUR MAJOR CAPITALS STATING HOUSE ACTION HAD BEEN WELCOMED IN FASCIST AND NAZI NATIONS WERE SUBSTANTIATED BY THE STATE DEPARTMENT.

DEUTSCHE DIENST SAID THAT TO MAINTAIN GERMANY WELCOMED THE ACTION WAS "BIASED FALSIFICATION" AND ADDED ROOSEVELT WAS PAINTING "WAR GHOSTS ON THE WALL."

OCT 7 1939

BY JULY 15 PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS AND SECRETARY OF STATE CORDELL HULL'S STATEMENT ON NEUTRALITY BROUGHT THE COMMENT FROM DEUTSCHE DIPLOMATISCHE-POLITISCHE KORRESPONDENZ, FOREIGN OFFICE MOUTHPIECE THAT UNITED STATES WAS SELECTED FROM THE BEGINNING AS THE "WARMS WORKSHOP OF A DEFINITE WAR PARTY."

ON JULY 27 ADOLF HITLER'S NEWSPAPER, VOEKISCHER BEOBACHTER, DECLARED THE UNITED STATES MODIFICATIO

AS THE "ARMS WORKSHOP OF A DEFINITE WAR PARTY."

ON JULY 27 ADOLF HITLER'S NEWSPAPER, VOEKISCHER BEOBACHTER, DECLARED THE UNITED STATES MODIFICATION OF TERMINATION OF ITS 1911 COMMERCIAL TREATY WITH JAPAN "IS ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF THE AUTOCRATIC RULE" OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S NEXT PEACE APPEAL, TO HITLER AND THE POLISH PRESIDENT IGNACE MOSCICKI, WHEN THE POLISH-GERMAN TENSION GREW GREAT ON AUG. 24, BROUGHT THE REACTION FROM HIGH NAZI SOURCES CLOSE TO HITLER THAT THE PLEA WAS "SENT TO THE WRONG ADDRESS IT SHOULD HAVE GONE TO ENGLAND."

OCT 7 1939

A112

THE FOLLOWING DAY, AUG. 25, AND AFTER HE HAD SOUGHT THE AID OF KING VITTORIO EMANUELE OF ITALY IN A PEACE MOVE, PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SENT HIS FOURTH PEACE APPEAL IN A YEAR TO ADOLF HITLER.

ROOSEVELT SAID HE HAD RECEIVED THE FAVORABLE REPLY OF THE POLISH PRESIDENT TO HIS PLEA FOR PEACE. THE FIELD IN WHICH A LAST-MINUTE COMPROMISE COULD BE MADE WAS LIMITED BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT WHO ADDED, "I SUGGEST EACH NATION WILL AGREE TO ACCORD COMPLETE RESPECT TO THE INDEPENDENCE AND TERRITORIAL INTEGRITY OF THE OTHER."

TO ONE OF HIS APPEALS TO HITLER PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT GOT A FAVORABLE REPLY.

THE DAY HIS ARMIES INVADED POLAND, SEPT. 1, THE FUEHRER AGREED TO MR.ROOSEVELT'S APPEAL THAT BELLIGERENTS IN A POSSIBLE EUROPEAN WAR NOT BOMB UNFORTIFIED TOWNS AND CITIES.

"I UNCONDITIONALLY ACCEPT THE PROPOSAL THAT THE GOVERNMENTS INVOLVED IN THE PRESENT HOSTILITIES MAKE PUBLIC DECLARATION TO THAT EFFECT," HE REPLIED.

"AS FAR AS I AM CONCERNED, I ALREADY IN TODAY'S REICHSTAG SPEECH HAVE PUBLICLY ANNOUNCED THAT GERMAN AIR FIGHTING FORCES HAVE RECEIVED A COMMAND TO LIMIT THEMSELVES TO MILITARY OBJECTS IN THEIR COMBATIVE

NIGHT LEAD BRITISH (BUDGET)

BY ROBERT E.BUNNELLE

LONDON, OCT. 6--(AP)--ADOLF HITLER'S PEACE PROPOSALS WERE PROMISED A CAREFUL BUT WARY EXAMINATION TONIGHT BY A BRITISH GOVERNMENT PROUD OF ITS NAVAL MIGHT AND THE QUICK DISPATCH OF EXPEDITIONARY FORCES TO FRANCE.

BRITAIN'S CAUTIOUSLY WORDED COMMENT ON HITLER'S REICHSTAG SPEECH COINCIDED WITH ACCOUNTS OF ACHIEVEMENTS OF ITS ARMED FORCES--THAT THE ROYAL NAVY "CONTINUES SUCCESSFULLY TO HOLD THE SEAS" AND THAT BRITISH EXPEDITIONARY FORCES WERE ARRIVING IN FRANCE "IN GREATER NUMBERS AND WITH A LARGER VOLUME OF MATERIAL THAN WAS THOUGHT POSSIBLE."

AN OFFICIAL BRITISH STATEMENT DISMISSED HITLER'S SURVEY OF PAST EVENTS WITH THE ASSERTION THAT IT "ABOUNDS IN PERVERSIONS OF THE TRUTH WHICH WILL BE READILY RECOGNIZED BY THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY AND INDEED OF THE WHOLE WORLD."

OF HIS "LAST" PEACE BID THE STATEMENT SAID:

1939

"IN THEIR PRESENT FORM THESE PROPOSALS ARE IN MANY RESPECTS VAGUE [illegible]

"IN THEIR PRESENT FORM THESE PROPOSALS ARE IN MANY RESPECTS VAGUE AND OBSCURE BUT IT IS NOTED THAT THEY CONTAIN NO SUGGESTION OF REPARATION FOR THE WRONGS DONE BY GERMANY TO OTHER PEOPLES. NEVERTHELESS, THEY WILL, AS HAS BEEN DECLARED BY THE PRIME MINISTER AND THE FOREIGN SECRETARY, BE SUBJECTED TO CAREFUL EXAMINATION IN CONSULTATION WITH THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE DOMINIONS AND THE FRENCH REPUBLIC."

OCT 7 1939

(PREMIER DALADIER GAVE THE FOREIGN AFFAIRS COMMITTEE OF THE FRENCH SENATE HIS PERSONAL DECLARATION THAT ONLY A FRENCH-BRITISH VICTORY WOULD ASSURE A "REGIME OF REAL JUSTICE AND LASTING PEACE IN EUROPE." THUS, IN EFFECT, HE TURNED DOWN HITLER'S PEACE PROPOSALS.)

"BUT IT IS NECESSARY TO REMEMBER TWO THINGS. FIRST, THAT NO PEACE PROPOSALS ARE LIKELY TO BE FOUND ACCEPTABLE WHICH DO NOT EFFECTIVELY FREE EUROPE FROM THE MENACE OF AGGRESSION; AND SECOND, THAT ASSURANCES GIVEN BY THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT IN THE PAST HAVE ON SO MANY OCCASIONS PROVED WORTHLESS THAT SOMETHING MORE THAN WORDS WILL BE REQUIRED TODAY TO ESTABLISH THE CONFIDENCE WHICH MUST BE THE ESSENTIAL BASIS OF PEACE."

THERE WAS NO UNOFFICIAL ELABORATION OF THE STATEMENT, AS OFTEN OCCURS IN THE CASE OF GOVERNMENT PRONOUNCEMENTS, BUT IT WAS SAID PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN WOULD MAKE A STATEMENT EARLY NEXT WEEK TO THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, "GIVING A MORE CONSIDERED VIEW OF THE GOVERNMENT."

CHAMBERLAIN REPEATEDLY HAS ASSERTED BRITAIN COULD NOT MAKE PEACE WITH HITLER'S NAZI REGIME.

THE BRITISH DISCLOSED TODAY THAT £5,000,000 ($20,000,000) THEY AGREED TO LEND POLAND FOR WAR PURPOSES WAS STILL IN THIS COUNTRY AND WOULD BE USED IN BRITAIN'S PROSECUTION OF THE CONFLICT.

ANOTHER BRITISH SHIP, THE 876-TON ELEN FARG, WAS REPORTED SUNK BY A SUBMARINE TODAY. THE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID ALL OF THE CREW WERE SAVED BUT ONE, WHO DIED OF WOUNDS. IT WAS THE FIRST BRITISH VESSEL SUNK IN A WEEK.

BRITISH PRESS REACTION

LONDON, OCT. 6-(AP)-THE AUTHORITATIVE TIMES, COMMENTING TONIGHT ON HITLER'S "PEACE PROPOSALS" ASSERTED THAT BRITISH STATESMEN "ARE CONCERNED, NOT WITH HITLER'S TERMS, BUT WITH HITLER HIMSELF AND HITLER'S RECORD."

OCT 7 1939

THE NEWSPAPER ADDED:

"THEY FULLY UNDERSTAND WHY IT WOULD BE ADVANTAGEOUS TO THE PRESENT RULER OF THE REICH TO END HITLER'S WAR TEMPORARILY WITH HITLER'S PEACE X X X.

"IT IS JUST BECAUSE HITLER AND HITLERISM--THE EMPLOYMENT OF FORCE AND FRAUD WITHOUT END IN INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS---ARE AN INSUPERABLE BAR TO THE NEGOTIATION OF A TRUE PEACE THAT THEY ARE NOW DETERMINED NOT TO REST UNTIL THE WAY OF PROGRESS BY CONCILIATION, JUSTICE AND GOOD FAITH HAS BEEN FINALLY CLEARED."

NEWSPAPERS PUBLISHED THE FULL TEXT WITH MODERATELY APPROVING HEADLINES.

IL GIORNALE D'ITALIA'S HEADLINE DESCRIBED THE SPEECH AS "AN OFFER OF PEACE, REASON AND JUSTICE."

OCT 7 1939

LAVORO FASCISTA'S HEADLINE READ "REAFFIRMATION OF GERMANY'S WILL FOR PEACE."

IT WAS BELIEVED IN INFORMED CIRCLES THAT ITALY'S POLICY OF TAKING NO INITIATIVE IN PEACE MOVES REMAINED UNCHANGED, AT LEAST UNTIL THERE

(A BRITISH GOVERNMENT STATEMENT SAID HITLER'S PROPOSALS WOULD BE GIVEN "CAREFUL EXAMINATION" IN CONSULTATIONS WITH FRANCE AND THE BRITISH DOMINIONS.)

LITTLE CONFIDENCE WAS EXPRESSED THAT THE SPEECH'S RECEPTION IN LONDON AND PARIS WOULD BE FAVORABLE, IN VIEW OF PREVIOUS DECLARATIONS BY BRITISH AND FRENCH GOVERNMENT LEADERS.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI AND FOREIGN MINISTER COUNT GALEAZZO CIANO RECEIVED A COPY OF THE SPEECH FROM THE GERMAN AMBASSADOR TWO HOURS BEFORE HITLER STARTED SPEAKING.

WELL INFORMED SOURCES SAID THAT IF THE WESTERN ALLIES AGREED TO A CONFERENCE WITH DER FUEHRER, ITALY PROBABLY WOULD AGREE TO PARTICIPATE.

SOME CIRCLES EXPRESSED DISAPPOINTMENT OVER HITLER'S FAILURE TO MAKE MORE CONCRETE PROPOSALS FOR A PEACE BASIS, BUT THE GOVERNMENT WAS BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN AWARE OF WHAT HITLER WOULD SAY EVER SINCE COUNT CIANO RETURNED FROM BERLIN MONDAY.

SOME OBSERVERS THOUGHT THAT MIGHT EXPLAIN MUSSOLINI'S AVOIDANCE OF ANY DIPLOMATIC INITIATIVE ON BEHALF OF HITLER'S MOVE.

RUSSIA WAS REPORTED TO BE DEMANDING TURKISH NEUTRALITY IN THE EUROPEAN WAR AND A MUTUAL ASSISTANCE PACT IN ADDITION TO ASSURANCE THAT WARSHIPS OTHER THAN THOSE OF RUSSIA AND TURKEY NOT BE ALLOWED TO ENTER THE BLACK SEA THROUGH THE DARDANELLES.

NO OFFICIAL COMMENT WAS FORTHCOMING ON ADOLF HITLER'S SPEECH TODAY TO THE REICHSTAG, BUT UNOFFICIALLY IT WAS REPORTED THE SPEECH WAS WELCOMED HERE.

OCT 7 1939

THERE WERE INDICATIONS, ESPECIALLY, THAT HITLER'S ASSERTIONS THAT PEACE WAS ASSURED IN EASTERN EUROPE AND THAT GERMANY AND RUSSIA ALONE WOULD DETERMINE THE FATE OF POLAND, CREATED CONSIDERABLE SATISFACTION AT THE KREMLIN.

IT WAS REGARDED THAT HITLER'S FAILURE TO MENTION THE POSSIBILITY OF RUSSIAN AID IN THE EUROPEAN WAR WAS A FURTHER BOLSTER TO THE RUSSIAN DETERMINATION TO REMAIN NEUTRAL.

DIPLOMATS DECLARED RUSSIA'S NEWLY-WON CONCESSIONS FROM HER BALTIC NEIGHBORS INCREASES TREMENDOUSLY HER STRATEGICAL DEFENSE POSITION AGAINST ANY POSSIBLE ATTACK BY BRITAIN--- OR GERMANY.

SOVIET NEWSPAPERS EMPHASIZED THAT THE "INDEPENDENCE" OF ESTONIA

WHILE DEBATE ON THE NEUTRALITY LEGISLATION CONTINUED, THE ADMINISTRATION PICKED UP TWO NEW COMMITMENTS FOR REPEAL OF THE EMBARGO. SENATORS BAILEY (D-NC) AND BARBOUR (R-NJ) JOINED THE REPEAL CAMP.

MEANWHILE A GROUP OF OPPOSITION SENATORS MET AND ISSUED A STATEMENT OFFERING TO SUPPORT COMPROMISE LEGISLATION WHICH WOULD CONTINUE THE PRESENT EMBARGO AND PUT ALL TRADE WITH WARRING COUNTRIES ON A STRICT "CASH AND CARRY" BASIS.

THE ADMINISTRATION MEASURE WOULD PROHIBIT TRANSPORTATION OF ANY GOODS TO BELLIGERENTS IN AMERICAN VESSELS AND WOULD REQUIRE THAT ALL PURCHASES BY BELLIGERENT GOVERNMENTS BE PAID FOR WITHIN 90 DAYS. ADMINISTRATION SUPPORTERS HAVE ARGUED THAT THE 90-DAY CREDITS ARE EQUIVALENT TO CASH, BUT SOME SENATORS HAVE DEMANDED AN ABSOLUTE "CASH ON THE BARREL HEAD" REQUIREMENT.

SOME ADMINISTRATION SUPPORTERS INTERPRETED TODAY'S DECLARATION BY THE OPPOSITION AS A SIGN OF WEAKNESS, SENATOR HILL (D-ALA) SAYING THAT "IT IS LIKE SUING FOR PEACE AFTER YOU KNOW YOU ARE LICKED."

OCT 7 1939

THE OPPOSITION STATEMENT, ISSUED BY SENATOR BORAH (R-IDA), SAID:

"WE STILL ARE WILLING, AS HAS BEEN OUR POSITION FROM THE FIRST, TO ACCEPT THE ADMINISTRATION BILL IF THE ADMINISTRATION WILL LEAVE IN THE LAW THE EMBARGO ON ARMS, AMMUNITION AND IMPLEMENTS OF WAR AND PROVIDE FOR CASH INSTEAD OF CREDIT ON OTHER COMMODITIES.

"BUT WE WILL NOT YIELD TO THE REPEAL OF THE ARMS EMBARGO, AND IT IS NOT NECESSARY IF NEUTRALITY IS THE SOLE OBJECTIVE."

JOINING BORAH IN THIS DECLARATION WERE SENATORS JOHNSON (R-CALIF), DOWNEY (D-CALIF), DANAHER (R-CONN), OVERTON (D-LA), BULOW (D-SD), LA FOLLETTE (PROG-WIS), VANDENBERG (R-MICH), MCCARRAN (D-NEV), NYE (R-ND), SHIPSTEAD (FL-MINN) AND HOLT (D-W VA).

OCT 7 1939

SENATOR VANDENBERG (R-MICH) SAID THE STATEMENT WAS DESIGNED TO CORRECT AN ERRONEOUS IMPRESSION THAT THE NEUTRALITY ISSUE LAY BETWEEN KEEPING THE EMBARGO AND HAVING NO OTHER PROVISIONS TO SAFEGUARD AMERICAN SECURITY, OR WIPING OUT THE EMBARGO AND ENACTING ADDITIONAL PROVISIONS.

SENATOR SCHWELLENBACH (D-WASH), AN ADMINISTRATION ADHERENT, SAID THE OPPOSITION DECLARATION WAS EITHER "A SIGN OF WEAKNESS" OR WAS "PURELY SUPERFLUOUS."

ANOTHER ADMINISTRATION SUPPORTER, SENATOR CONNALLY (D-TEX), ASSERTED THAT WHILE OPPONENTS OF EMBARGO REPEAL CONTENDED IT WOULD BE UNNEUTRAL "TO CHANGE THE RULES IN THE MIDDLE OF THE GAME" THEY WERE PERFECTLY WILLING "TO CHANGE SOME OF THE RULES."

IN TAKING HIS STAND FOR REPEAL, BAILEY SAID THAT THE ADMINISTRATION LEGISLATION "WILL TEND MORE TO MAKE FOR THE PEACE AND SECURITY OF OUR COUNTRY THAN THE EXISTING LAW."

HE ADDED THAT THE EXISTING LAW VIOLATES TRADITIONAL AMERICAN POLICY AND MAY AID GERMANY AND DISCRIMINATE AGAINST GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE.

BAILEY ADDED THAT THE UNITED STATES SHOULD "MAKE IT PLAIN BEYOND ALL QUESTION THAT UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES OR TEMPTATIONS WILL WE LEND MONEY TO ENGLAND OR FRANCE OR ENGAGE OUR COUNTRY OR ITS SONS IN THIS WAR."

(ADVANCE)...WASHINGTON,OCT. 6-(AP)-SENATOR THOMAS (D-UTAH) DECLARED TODAY THAT NO NATION COULD COMPLAIN AGAINST REPEAL OF THE ARMS EMBARGO, BECAUSE THE ADMINISTRATION NEUTRALITY BILL WOULD PREVENT AMERICAN SHIPS FROM CARRYING WAR SUPPLIES TO A BELLIGERENT.

THOMAS, WHO HELPED DRAFT THE EMBARGO REPEAL LEGISLATION, WAS THE DAY'S FIRST SPEAKER IN THE SENATE NEUTRALITY ISSUE.

"WE ARE CONSIDERING THIS LEGISLATION WITH BUT A SINGLE OBJECTIVE," HE DECLARED, "AND THAT IS TO KEEP THE UNITED STATES OUT OF WAR."

TAKING ISSUE WITH SENATOR BORAH (R-IDAHO), THOMAS CONTENDED THAT REPEAL OF THE EMBARGO WOULD NOT BE CONTRARY TO INTERNATIONAL LAW.

"WE ARE CONSIDERING TODAY DOMESTIC LAW," HE SAID. "THE PROPOSAL IS ONE OF ADDING RESTRAINTS TO AMERICAN CITIZENS AND AMERICAN PROPERTY AND AMERICAN SHIPS."

OCT 7 1939

(BESIDES REPEALING THE EMBARGO, THE LEGISLATION WOULD PROHIBIT AMERICAN SHIPS FROM CARRYING ANY GOODS TO BELLIGERENTS, WOULD BAR AMERICAN CITIZENS AND SHIPS FROM COMBAT ZONES, AND WOULD REQUIRE BELLIGERENTS TO OBTAIN TITLE IN THIS COUNTRY TO SUPPLIES BROUGHT HERE.)

THOMAS SAID THAT THERE WAS NO EXPERIENCE IN HISTORY IN WHICH A MAJOR NATION EVER HAD CREATED AN EMBARGO FOR THE SAME PURCHASE AS THAT APPROVED BY CONGRESS IN 1937.

BUT HE ADDED THAT HE DID NOT SEE HOW ANYONE COULD CONTEND, AS HE SAID BORAH HAD, THAT REPEAL WOULD CONSTITUTE INTERVENTION

"WHEN A NATION INTERVENES," THOMAS SAID, "IT MOVES AGAINST ANOTHER, NOT AGAINST ITSELF. IN INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS A NATION CANNOT BE CHARGED WITH 'INTERVENTION' WHEN THE ACTION WHICH IS TAKEN OPERATES AGAINST ITS OWN PEOPLE, WHEN THE RESTRAINT IS PUT UPON ITS OWN CITIZENS.

"HOW CAN A NATION BECOME AN INTERVENOR BY INSISTING THAT ITS CITIZENS DO NOT USE THE RIGHTS AND PRIVILEGES WHICH OTHER NEUTRAL NATIONS ENJOY?

"HOW, IN SHORT, COULD AMERICA BECOME AN INTERVENOR BY RELYING ON THE INTERNATIONAL LAW, ACCEPTED UNIVERSALLY FOR NEUTRAL NATIONS, AND EVEN THAT RESTRICTED AND LIMITED BY THE PROPOSED RESTRICTIONS OF THIS PROJECTED DOMESTIC LAW?"

WASHINGTON, OCT. 6-(AP)-SENATOR WHEELER (D-MONT) RETURNED TO THE CAPITOL FROM A CROSS-COUNTRY TRIP TODAY AND TOLD REPORTERS HE WOULD VOTE AGAINST REPEAL OF THE ARMS EMBARGO BECAUSE TO REMOVE IT WOULD BE "A STEP TOWARD GETTING THIS COUNTRY INTO WAR."

"I HAVE RECEIVED MANY LETTERS ASKING ME TO VOTE FOR REPEAL, SAYING DEFINITELY AND POSITIVELY WE OUGHT TO GET INTO THE WAR BECAUSE THIS IS OUR WAR AS MUCH AS THAT OF ENGLAND AND FRANCE AND WE HAVE GOT TO GET IN TO STAMP OUT NAZI-ISM AND IF WE DONT DO IT THEY'LL COME OVER HERE AND CRUSH US NEXT," WHEELER TOLD REPORTERS.

"IN 1916 AND 1917 THEY WERE SAYING WE HAD TO CRUSH KAISERISM TO SAVE THE WORLD FOR DEMOCRACY. TODAY THEY ARE SAYING THE SAME THING. THE WHOLE SENTIMENT OF THIS COUNTRY IS AGAINST OUR GOING AGAIN INTO

WASHINGTON,OCT.6-(AP)-SENATOR VANDENBERG (R-MICH) DESCRIBED AS "FORMIDABLE" TODAY A LIST OF LAWS WHICH ATTORNEY GENERAL MURPHY TOLD THE SENATE CONTAINED POWERS THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT MIGHT EXERCISE DURING WAR OR EMERGENCY.

"IT IS A CLEAR DEMONSTRATION OF THE FACT THAT THERE IS A VAST QUANTITY OF FLOATING POWER THAT MAY BE USED IN WAR OR EMERGENCY," VANDENBERG SAID.

THE MICHIGAN SENATOR AUTHOR OF A RESOLUTION WHICH REQUESTED MURPHY TO INFORM THE SENATE OF PRESIDENTIAL EMERGENCY POWERS, CONCEDED THAT MURPHY'S REFUSAL TO EXPRESS AN OPINION ON THEIR EXTENT WAS "PROBABLY SOUND UNDER THE PRECEDENTS."

MURPHY MERELY CITED TO THE SENATE THE TITLES OF ABOUT 100 STATUTES GRANTING POWERS TO THE PRESIDENT. HE SAID THE LIST WAS INCOMPLETE AND COULD NOT BE FINISHED EXCEPT BY LONG STUDY.

Legislators See Chance to [illegible] War in Europe

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP)—A strong wave of sentiment developed in the Senate today for President Roosevelt to step into the role of peacemaker in Europe.

Senators on both sides of the neutrality controversy expressed the opinion that the Chief Executive should take advantage of any clear opportunity afforded by overtures from Berlin to aid in ending the European war.

Administration quarters, however, remained silent. Secretary Hull declined comment on the dispatches from Berlin indicating that Chancellor Hitler would welcome a move by Mr. Roosevelt to effect a European settlement. At Hyde Park Mr. Roosevelt sent word to reporters that he had nothing to say.

APPROVED BY SENATORS

It was pointed out in authoritative circles that this Government has consistently taken the position that it was ready and willing to help Europe reach a general understanding on economic and disarmament questio

...ions, but had no intention of being drawn into its political disputes. This was the tenor of Mr. Roosevelt's peace appeals to Hitler prior to the beginning of the conflict.

Senate comment on the Berlin dispatches, almost without exception, was to the effect that there was no reason why Mr. Roosevelt should not endeavor to effect a peace and every reason why he should.

Senator Johnson (D., Col.), who has proposed previously that the Chief Executive join other neutrals in seeking an armistice, declared that it would be "a great honor for the President to mediate the European war."

He expressed the opinion that Mr. Roosevelt would have an opportunity to obtain an "honorable peace" and predicted the Chief Executive would take advantage of the opportunity.

Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) told reporters that the President "has the greatest opportunity of any American President in history to serve humanity and bring about a permanent peace in Europe while preventing the slaughter of millions of human beings."

"I believe," Wheeler added, "that democracy will be driven from the face of the earth if England and France persist in trying to restore the former government of Poland because that means war clear across the Eastern Hemisphere with incalculable damage to peoples and the democratic form of government.

"I believe the 99 percent of our people, who oppose our becoming involved in any European war, will not only support but welcome President Roosevelt in immediately taking the initiative in trying to arrange an armistice to end this senseless war."

PITTMAN IN ACCORD

Chairman Pittman (D., Nev.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee voiced the opinion that the President would not hesitate to "make any appropriate suggestions" for an European peace.

Declaring he had not consulted the White House, Pittman added that it would be "too much responsibility" for the Chief Executive to undertake the formal role of mediator or arbitrator.

Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) urged caution against a repetition of what he said was the "great mistake" of Woodrow Wilson made in taking an active part in the Versailles peace conference.

"Short of that," he said, "I see no reason why the President should not lend his good offices toward bringing about peace."

INDORSED BY THOMAS

Senator Thomas (D., Utah), a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said Mr. Roosevelt should consider "most seriously" the apparent Berlin desire for him to seek peace.

"No matter what happens peace-making has to be indulged in and there are only two techniques," Thomas said, adding:

"One is a forced peace where the victor writes the treaty and the other is negotiated peace. The quicker the nations of the world begin thinking about peace, the greater the chances for a negotiated peace tempered by the opinion of the neutral states."

Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) said he thought this country would be "justified in doing everything we can to bring about peace in Europe, but we can't be responsible for the terms of peace."

NYE BACKS MOVE

Senator Nye (R.-N.D.), a leader in the fight to retain the arms embargo, said:

"I would very much like to see the Chief Executive do tha job. I think now is he logical time to move. The President will be inclined, however, to wait to see what England and France want to do about it before he consents."

Another embargo advocate chieftain, Senator Borah (R.-Ida.), commented:

"I do not see any authoritative background for the statement in Berlin. I wouldn't have anything to say until a formal offer is made."

Senator Pittman predicted a final vote on the netrality bill by next weekend, but Senator La Follette (Prog.-Wis.), an opponent of the Administration measure, said that a tally would not come that soon.

PRESIDENT SAYS IT WAS SIGHTED 15 MILES AT SEA

This Would Put It Inside Neutrality Zone Set Up at Panama.

ROOSEVELT SILENT ON HITLER

Leaves Question Open Regarding Whether He Has Rejected Role of Mediator.

HYDE PARK, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—The temporary White House announced today that a submarine definitely identified as foreign had been sighted yesterday about fifteen miles off Miami, Fla.

The nationality of the submarine was not disclosed, nor was it learned how she was sighted.

The spot where the undersea craft appeared is well within the neutrality zone set up by the recent declaration of the American republics at Panama. That declaration, however, was aimed primarily at discouraging hostile acts within the zone.

William Hassett, a White House secretary, said that the President had authorized him to release the report on the submarine in accordance with the policy of telling of the presence of foreign warships in waters adjacent to our shores.

Two Previously Reported.

The submarine was the first reported officially in American waters since Mr. Roosevelt disclosed at a recent press conference that one had been sighted off southern Alaska and another off Boston.

Earlier in the day President Roosevelt sent word to reporters that there was nothing to say about Berlin dispatches reporting that Adolf Hitler would accept an armistice in the European war, if the President proposed it.

The question of whether the President was turning down the suggestion that he act as mediator or merely was awaiting further developments was left open.

In any event, it was regarded as unlikely that Mr. Roosevelt would make any overtures for peace, unless he felt they were assured of success.

After a consultation with the President, Mr. Hassett told the press:

"The President has specifically authorized me to say he will not have any comment on the dispatches from Berlin. There is nothing to say."

President Looks Over Trees.

While the world awaited any presidential reaction to the proposals that he take the lead in attempting to bring a cessation of hostilities in Europe, Mr. Roosevelt looked over the trees on his country estate and the work on a library to house his public and private papers.

He had no engagements for the day, but he was keeping in touch with Washington. White House officials said that he had no further word about the American steamship Iroquois, which is returning to this country with 584 Americans caught in Europe at the outbreak of the war.

American warships were sent racing to her side after the Government had received a warning that she would be sunk as she approached the coast of the United States. The warning carried the implication that Great Britain or France would sink the vessel to stir up anti-German sentiment here.

Back in Capital Monday.

With the President maintaining silence on the matter of an armistice, it was regarded as significant that Great Britain and France had shown no indications of willingness to jump at Hitler's proposal for a general European conference for the laying down of arms and settlement of all European problems.

Some observers considered it unlikely that the President would make any attempt to bring about an armistice, unless it seemed certain that England and France would view the procedure with favor.

The President, it was disclosed, will be back in Washington on Monday. He has scheduled a radio address that night at 10:30 P. M. as part of the conference for mobilization for human needs—a prelude to a drive for funds for community chests.

Pittman Doubts Quick Move.

WASHINGTON, Oct 7 (A. P.).—Senator Pittman, Democrat, of Nevada, an administration adviser on Foreign Affairs, expressed today the view that any peace move by President Roosevelt would have to be preceded by clear evidence that Europe's warring nations themselves already had made efforts toward peace.

Although he said he had not conferred with the President on the subject, Mr. Pittman stated that he believed that if, under such circumstances, it appeared his ideas might be accepted, Mr. Roosevelt would "not hesitate to make any appropriate suggestions."

Secretary Hull said at his press conference today that this Government had not been advised of the unofficial German proposal that the President act, and he smilingly remarked that he doubted newspapers would publish his remarks if he commented in advance of formal notice.

Mr. Roosevelt proposed mediation in peace appeals to the German Chancellor and former President Ignace Moscicki of Poland prior to the outbreak of the conflict, it was recalled, but Hitler did not reply until his troops had moved against the Poles. When he did reply, the German Chancellor said that Poland had created disturbances and an intolerable situation and that mediation had been out of the question.

The overture from Berlin has been thus far no more formal nor definite than a statement by informed sources to newspaper men that the head of any neutral State, preferably President Roosevelt, could achieve a lasting place in history by mediating the war.

Mr. Roosevelt proposed mediation in peace appeals to the German Chancellor and former President Moscicki of Poland prior to the outbreak of the conflict, it was recalled, but Hitler did not reply until his troops had moved against the Poles.

When he did reply, the German Chancellor said that Poland had created disturbances and an intolerable situation and that mediation had been out of the question.

The President was represented as being unwilling now to lend himself to any move by Hitler which would have the effect of throwing the onus for continuance of the war on Britain and France.

MAY WANT ASSURANCES

If Germany were to suggest more formally that Mr. Roosevelt offer to mediate the conflict, it was predicted in reliable quarters, he would not make the offer unless he had assurances in advance from the allies that they would accept.

PREFERS ROOSEVELT TO ACT AS MEDIATOR

German Foreign Office Is Not Expecting Immediate Action on Fuehrer's Peace Appeal to End War.

LOCHNER

BERLIN, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Colleagues of Adolf Hitler represented the Fuehrer today as serenely confident his peace appeal will be heeded.

His speech before the Reichstag yesterday was characterized authoritatively as a "political offer demanding a clear-cut political reply."

But persons close to him said he would refuse to give further elucidation of the speech as a preliminary to negotiations for an armistice.

Details, it was said, might be worked out later but for the present the only question is: shall war cease or go on?

Because Hitler's offer was regarded as a broad political gesture—not as a "narrow" diplomatic document—German officialdom saw no reason why President Roosevelt or any other neutral need assure himself of acceptance of an offer of mediation before making it.

"It is not necessary that the next step be made in full public view," one Foreign Office commentator said.

"The answers can be shouted or even broadcast but they can equally well be whispered. But they must be answers, not a set of counter-questions."

Not in Hurry for Reply.

The German Foreign Office, it was said, was in no hurry and does not expect immediate action.

It was said to recognize that Der Fuehrer's speech must be studied carefully abroad and to feel that only patience can find a solution.

The reaction of British Prime Minister Chamberlain was awaited. In the meantime, other unfavorable British reaction was regarded as unauthoritative.

Well informed persons said that Hitler looked preferably to President Roosevelt as a neutral who might start negotiations to end the European war.

In these quarters, the present situation was described as a great opportunity for the President, but it was appreciated that past offers of his good offices for the meditation of European quarrels had been rejected by Hitler, and that the rejections were followed by propaganda directed against the United States.

[Informed persons in Washington represented President Roosevelt as unlikely to propose an armistice unless he had advanced assurances from Great Britain and France that it would be accepted. These persons indicated the President chose not to lend himself to any move which might have the effect of placing on Britain and France responsibility for continuation of the war.]

The history of President Roosevelt's appeals gave rise to a general belief that the best qualified neutral in sight who might be persuaded to try mediation under the conditions Hitler laid down yesterday in his Reichstag speech was Premier Mussolini.

Expect Mussolini to Act.

There was no positive information or substantiation in Berlin, but the expectation in informed circles was that the Italian leader would make an address in the next few days to bring Hitler's offer a step nearer to realization.

[Rome offered no grounds for this possibility, but Mussolini's Milan newspaper, Il Popolo D'Italia, warned world leaders that their people were "listening and reasoning" because Hitler's statements were those of a "victorious leader who may reply upon the strong military preparation of his people and still invite other nations to a peaceful general settlement."]

It was acknowledged that Italy's military alliance with Germany somewhat compromised Mussolini's standing as the head of a neutral State, but it was emphasized that from the start of the war his attitude had been moderate. His efforts to localize the Polish conflict also were cited.

Some Look to Sweden.

Casting about for other neutral States which might attempt the delicate role of mediation, some German leaders looked to Sweden. There was even an unsubstantiated rumor that Sweden already had consulted other Scandinavian countries to see if a conference at Oslo might be acceptable.

But German leaders did not expect such a momentous matter to be determined overnight. It was said Hitler expected to wait at least a week and possibly longer, for world opinion to crystalize before judging for himself the general reaction to his Reichstag speech.

In it he offered a cessation of hostilities based upon an exclusive German-Soviet Russian determination of the future of Poland, or war from which he expressed certainty Germany would emerge unbeaten. He also envisaged an international conference aimed at establishment of European security.

In quarters close to the government it was said that if, during Hitler's waiting period, an enemy should go out of his way to make a hostile demonstration against Germany—for example, bomb a German city or sink a German ship—the Reich would conclude immediately that Hitler's "outstretched hand" had been rejected.

Would Set Machine in Motion.

Then, it was said, Germany would set her war machine into action in the West.

[The French Government, hav...

ing announced determination to carry on to victory, apparently was settling down for a long war. There was a growing French conviction that the war was about to enter a new phase, marked by large scale operations and the threat of a German air offensive. The British Cabinet was engaged in careful examination of the Reichstag speech with the likelihood that a judgment of it would be worked out in time for Prime Minister Chamberlain to reply in the House of Commons Monday.]

Germany was in the position of offering to end the conflict under certain conditions, but at the same time trying to convince the world she was equally ready to fight, if the conditioned peace offer were turned down.

Decision Expected Soon.

As regards Western powers, the heart of Hitler's speech was held generally in quarters close to the German Foreign Office to be the passage in which the Fuehrer observed that there were no real victors in any great war and appealed for neutral intervention with this:

"May those peoples and their leaders who are of the same mind (as himself) now make reply. And let those who consider war to be a better solution reject my outstretched hand."

Indecision is repugnant to Hitler and the energetic Nazi counselors who surround him.

"We will know soon," said the average Berliner, and he appeared unexcited at the impending decision between an end of hostilities and—as Germans expressed it—real war in the West.

END OF WAR BY CHRISTMAS, NAZI SLOGAN

Hitler Reported Confident His Peace Proposals Will Bear Fruit

Finland Gives No Hope Of German Aid Against Russ Encroachment

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER
Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Oct. 7—With Adolf Hitler represented as confidently expecting his peace proposals to bear fruit, the Nazi slogan tonight was "out of the Siegfried Line by Christmas."

Nazi leaders said they saw no reason why the trenches and cockpits could not be emptied by Christmas if powers desiring peace acted immediately upon the peace projects the Führer outlined yesterday in his Reichstag speech.

Hitler, it was reported authoritatively, would accept an immediate armistice if such were proposed by President Roosevelt or the head of some other big neutral power, with a view to forming the necessary basis for an all-inclusive conference to reach a general settlement of Europe's problems.

War Activity Negligible

War activity, as reported by the German high command, was negligible. One French scouting plane, the communique said, was shot down at Godesberg and another forced down at Euskirchen.

In the East, German troops were reported cleaning the woods and marshlands of a few scattered Polish forces and classifying Polish war booty which was said to be so great no near estimate could yet be given.

News of Soviet Russia's invitation to Finland to send representatives to Moscow to discuss political and economic matters greatly surprised Finnish circles here.

Helped Finns In World War

The belief had been expressed in these and in political quarters generally that the Finns would be given benevolent German protection because of the long-standing friendship between the two nations.

The Germans sent an expedition to help the Finns fight the Bolsheviks near the end of the World War and a number of Finnish citizens fought in the German army during that war.

There had been indications that Finland would not fall completely into the Soviet sphere of influence as have Latvia and Estonia, which have signed treaties giving Russia concessions and special privileges along the rim of the Baltic Sea, with Lithuania considered likely to follow.

Official quarters tonight, however, when asked for comment on the Russian invitation said there was no written or implied agreement that the Reich would protect Finland and Germany could "only welcome it if Russia and Finland should reach a friendly accord."

Impatience Over Turkey

The fact that Finland last spring declined to sign a non-aggression pact with Germany was pointed out as one item to Finland's detriment so far as the Reich was concerned.

The Nazis, meanwhile, were showing some impatience over Turkey's slowness in reaching an agreement with Russia in regard to Dardanelles and Black Sea matters.

(Turkey's Foreign Minister is in Moscow negotiating with Soviet leaders. At the same time a Turkish military mission is in London. Turkey concluded mutual aid pacts appliyng to the Mediterranean area with Britain and France last May and June, but these have yet to be put into long-term treaty form.)

Informed quarters asserted that "Turkey must soon decide which way she is going."

They privately intimated that if Turkey does not whole-heartedly climb aboard the Nazi-Soviet bandwagon, then Russia will occupy the strategic Dardanelles gateway to the Black Sea.

Nazis argued that Turkey leaned to Britain and France at a time when it was feared Italy would enter war and when it appeared Russia would join Britain and France.

But Russia emerged as a partner of Germany in the partition of Poland and in a non-aggression pact, while Italy remained neutral, causing a change in Turkey's [illegible] in the Near East.

In connection with Hitler's intention to redraw the minorities map of east and southeastern Europe, 100,000 Germans from the Baltic states and a like number from southeastern Poland were reported already liquidating their homes and starting back to Germany.

It was estimated that 3,000,000 Germans will be brought back to the Reich if Hitler's plan succeeds. Conversely, no Pole is to be permitted in Germany. Hence, all Poles in the western provinces of former Poland which has been added to the Reich, will be forced to move into the new Polish state which the German Führer intimated he would establish.

Jewish Reservation Considered

Nazis are discussing plans for a Jewish reservation within the proposed Polish state located in south Poland between the Vistula and San rivers.

While Nazi officials worked on the organization of conquered Poland, they indicated they did not expect the momentous matter of peace negotiations to be determined overnight.

It was understoood Hitler planned to wait a week and possibly longer for world opinion to crystallize before judging for himself the effect of his speech yesterday to the Reichstag and the world.

Germany, meanwhile, was looking to Russia for raw materials to offset effects of the British blockade. A delegation of economic experts and industrialists departed for Moscow to negotiate an agreement on the kinds and amounts of raw materials Russia will deliver to the Reich under their new trade agreement, and what manufactured goods Germany is to send to Russia in payment.

The new treaty, signed at Moscow Sept. 28, calls for increasing trade between the two nations to former level, which was about $440,000,000 annually. Dr. Karl Ritter, former Ambassador to Brazil, headed the delegation.

Paris Set for Large-scale War

Nation Settles Down for Long Fight With Vast Air Attacks Likely.

PARIS, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—France settled herself today for a long war, her announced determination to carry on to victory, apparently unshaken by Adolf Hitler's "last" offer to call off hostilities.

There were indications of a growing conviction [illegible] war was about to enter a [illegible] marked by large scale operations and the [illegible] threat of a German air offensive.

Military leaders indicated France was prepared for any surprises the Nazis might spring.

Latest information from the front said German troops were continuing to harry French outposts in the Saar and Palatinate sectors, apparently in an effort to test the French strength.

German reinforcements were reported moving up steadily behind the Siegfried Line. These reinforcements included large numbers of heavy tanks and airplanes, it was said.

A communique issued this morning by the French General Staff reported reconnoitering patrols were active in the region southwest of Saarbruecken during the night.

Military officials said that German activity had been more noticeable in the last twenty-four hours. Small forces of Nazi troops were reported operating in the Wissembourg and Saarbruecken sectors.

A young German pilot who lost his way and landed behind French lines was taken prisoner and his plane seized.

French and British military commanders met yesterday in a long conference, and it was believed they discussed probable Germany strategy in the light of Hitler's Reichstag speech.

Attending the conference were Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, Commander-in-Chief of the Allied forces; Major-Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside, Chief of the British Imperial Defense Staff; Major-Gen. Alphonse Joseph Georges, in charge of French operations on the northern flank, and the French and British air commanders.

It was announced that President Lebrun, accompanied by Gen. Gamelin, visited [illegible] Georges and Gen. Joseph Vuillemin, chief of the French air force, at their respective headquarters."

Hitler's address was the object of sharp attacks in the French press, which declared the speech had not altered the situation. Some commentators said Hitler had found it necessary to try to justify his political and military position in the eyes of the German people.

Says War Guilt Is Crushing.

L'Epoque declared: "In short, Hitler wants to tell us he is a sweet lamb that the Polish wolf wished to eat."

Le Figaro said Hitler's "war guilt is crushing him," and asserted he is trying to shift the blame to French and British shoulders.

Pertinax, writing in l'Ordre, said, "the whole speech lacked conviction, and Hitler doesn't know where he is going."

Fighting at the front was hampered yesterday and last night by bad weather, which limited operations of observation planes and cut down on artillery activity.

Meanwhile, former President Eduard Benes of Czecho-Slovakia arrived in Paris from London and was reported to be negotiating for establishment of a Czech Government in exile similar to that of Poland.

Dr. Benes was accompanied by Gen. Viest, one-time ranking commander in the Slovak Army under the German protectorate, who was said to have left the country to serve with the French-British forces.

Czech sources in London said Dr. Benes's trip to Paris was concerned with information of a Czech legion in France.

Increase Planes in France.

Sir Cyril Newall, British air commander, expressed appreciation today for the constant assistance given the Royal Air Force by French military authorities during the first month of the war.

He characterized the British flyers as a sort of advance guard of the British Expeditionary Corps and said the air force started establishing bases in France at the beginning of hostilities and was continuing to bring pursuit, scouting and bombing planes to the continent.

Allies Awaiting Winter's Aid in Starving Nazis

Put Off Offensive And Let Severe Weather Add to Effect of Blockade

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Oct. 7.—French and British sources indicated today that the Allies were playing a delaying game to prevent a start of major German operations on the western front, in order to let winter weather give full effect to the blockade of Germany.

These sources indicated that Allied leaders were convinced that if Germany had to face a winter siege to bolster morale, the Nazis would be much weaker when the weather cleared again for military operations in the spring.

[Other dispatches from Paris reported that British troops were continuing to proceed into the battle area and that some of them had taken position in the line beside the French.]

French military observers set the end of October as the cutside limit for the German offensive to start. While there often is "Indian summer" weather in Alsace-Lorraine through October, the weather turns bad with the beginning of November and stays bad through February.

Experienced French military men recalled that during the World War the weather in eastern France was such that there never were more than two weeks in December and January when it was possible for airplanes to take off, even for reconnaissance flights.

The French and British appeared to be taking full advantage of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's "peace lull," doing everything possible to prolong it until the end of October. After that, the war probably would settle down to a winter siege, with the western front stalemated and the British and French fleets drawing a sea cordon about Germany.

In this connection the French general staff's communique tonight said the French navy in the last week had intercepted 30,000 tons of merchandise destined for Germany.

The communique also reported artillery action by both sides between the Moselle and Saar Rivers and patrol operations also by both sides south of Zweibruecken.

The French high command, far from pressing an offensive against the German lines, seemed to be carefully strengthening its own advance positions against occasional attacks, which were reported repulsed.

During the last week the Germans have made perhaps ten or twelve of these small attacks against French lines established on German territory. Most of the German attacks were made during the night, the French indicated. In the largest, there was scarcely a platoon involved and in the majority the Germans used only a combat group or section—eight to twenty-five men.

These German night attacks of the last week seemed designed to test out French strength in the [illegible] the thinly [illegible] advanced farthest [illegible] the German [illegible]-man's-land separating the Maginot and Limes lines. French advance posts were kept in a constant state of alert, watching for shadows sliding over the ground, soaked by days of rain.

Aerial Activity Curtailed

Bad weather already has curtailed aerial activity. The French said German planes were noted occasionally flying behind the German lines, apparently trying distance spotting for the artillery, but barely did the Nazis venture over French territory.

French planes likewise were pinned down by the weather. Although the weather in the strictest sense was not too bad for flying, heavy fogs which lay over river valleys between the Rhine and the Moselle made flights almost useless, as it was impossible to see through the heavy curtain drawn over positions of both armies.

It was announced that President Albert Lebrun, accompanied by Gen. Maurice Gamelin, the allied generalissimo, visited Gen. Gaston Georges and Gen. Victor Vuillemin, chief of the French air force, "at their respective headquarters."

The general staff issued the following communique tonight: "Artillery action on [illegible] between the Moselle and Saar Rivers. Patrols on both sides of the region south of Deux-Ponts (Zweibruecken). During the first week of October, the French Navy has stopped 30,000 tons of merchandise destined for Germany."

The morning communique said: "Activity of reconnaissance elements on the front, notably in the region southwest of Saarbruecken."

CHAMBERLAIN MAY ANSWER NAZIS MONDAY

Britons Are Suspicious of Hitler as Formula Is Examined.

REFUSAL OF PEACE IS SEEN

Government Silent on Proposal That Roosevelt Act as a Mediator.

LONDON, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Britons looked with suspicion on Adolf Hitler's "outstretched hand" today as the Government analyzed the Fuehrer's "last chance" proposals to end the war.

It was expected the War Cabinet would complete promised careful examination of Hitler's Reichstag speech in time to permit Prime Minister Chamberlain to deliver his reply before the House of Commons Monday.

The Government was silent, meanwhile, on a news dispatch from Berlin suggesting that Hitler would agree to an armistice were it proposed by President Roosevelt or the head of any other important neutral Power.

Peace Refusal Is Seen.

The Ministry of Information announced that August Zaleski, Foreign Minister in the Polish Government set up in Paris last week, would visit London next week to confer with Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax and other members of the British War Cabinet. This was regarded in foreign circles as evidence of Great Britain's refusal to make peace at the price of Poland.

The London morning papers carried the dispatch in their late editions without comment.

The British press displayed prominently, however, stories reporting that Hitler's Reichstag address was regarded in the United States as offering little hope for cessation of hostilities.

The same view was taken editorially by most British newspapers. Only among the minority communist and pacifist groups was there a sympathetic response to the Fuehrer's proposals.

The London Times declared that British statesmen "are concerned not with Hitler's terms but with Hitler himself and Hitler's record."

Recalling Hitler's past pledges to Poland, the Times said:

"Against this background of falsity, France and Great Britain will view the invocations to themselves with which Hitler ended, and the peace proposals' with which they were supported."

The Times added that a settlement with Germany "neither can nor will be purchased at the price of other nation's freedom."

Ready for Real War.

Under the caption, "After Hitler," the Evening Standard editorialized: "We are now ready for real war.

He (Hitler) can now throw himself against the Maginot Line at the price of fearful slaughter. He can attempt to wheel through Holland and Belgium. Finally he can unleash an air assault on this island; for that we are ready. He hoped to make us cowards by his cunning. He has failed, and he is finished."

The Star, under a front-page streamer, wrote: "The Nazis have put out an armistice feeler.' Berlin looks to Roosevelt; the United States is silent."

In an editorial, the Star said "to show any indulgence to him (Hitler) now would be an unforgivable betrayal of all the decencies."

Whether Mr. Chamberlain would be able to announce the Government's view of Hitler's proposals Monday depended, it was said, largely upon how quickly consultations with the dominions and France were completed.

On Wednesday Mr. Chamberlain probably will go before Commons to deliver his sixth war bulletin and an account of the British expeditionary force in France is expected Thursday.

The Home Office, relaxing restrictions which had closed London theaters and moving picture houses in the evening, approved a plan to keep some West End theaters open until 11 P. M.

ITALY IS READY TO AID IN PEACE

Calls Hitler Offer Sound, Puts Next Move Up to Britain and France

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

ROME, Oct. 7 (AP).—Authoritative Italian sources described Premier Mussolini today as ready to help Adolf Hitler's proposals for ending the war, provided Great Britain and France signified their willingness.

The British reaction to the Fuehrer's speech yesterday was considered in responsible quarters as "not too bad," but optimism was tempered by the fact that a wider opening for negotiations still had not come from London or Paris.

Editorials in the Fascist press indicated the Government, however, was not stepping forward to push along the proposals. Newspapers merely advocated acceptance of Hitler's overtures as offering a "constructive basis for negotiations."

Await Move by Allies

If Great Britain and France should indicate their willingness to participate in a peace parley, informed sources said, the Italians gladly would lend their good offices for an exchange of ideas, or for communications between the warring nations.

Italian observers said Hitler had left it to Britain and France to "declare war or peace." They regarded the speech as providing the possibility, however slight, that the war might yet be halted.

Asserting the Hitler offer had made a favorable impression in Italy, a spokesman said the British and French reaction was being "awaited in Italy with great interest by reason of the possibility of a peaceful solution."

Warns of Bigger War

Premier Mussolini's Milan newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, said "Europe is living anxious and tormented between one war and another—a useless one just finished and a still more useless, enormously vaster and more terrible one which may break out."

Mussolini's paper told world leaders their peoples were "listening and reasoning," because "Hitler's word is the frank word of a victorious leader who may rely upon the strong military preparation of his people and still invite other nations to a peaceful general settlement."

Il Messaggero and Il Popolo di Roma said that Hitler's reference to German demands for the return of her former colonies was not an "ultimatum."

"No one," said Il Popolo di Roma, "will wish to deny that the tone used by Hitler was restrained and conciliatory."

The paper asserted Hitler had put forth "constructive" proposals for a "rapid peace after an armistice."

There was little doubt among observers here that Italy would participate in any conference of leading Powers for a war settlement.

Mussolini Avoids War Talk

ROME, Oct. 7 (AP).—Premier Mussolini ignored international problems tonight in his second talk to party leaders within two weeks, as he greeted delegates from Sardinia. Following a brief address on Sardinia to the delegation, Mussolini appeared three times from the balcony to salute a crowd at the Piazza Venezia, but he did not speak.

The Sardinian delegates told the Premier, a communique said, their country could offer "metal for good guns" through the development of island mines.

Addresing a similar delegation from Bologna Sept. 23, Musolini said Italians should "work in silence."

FINLAND CALLS RESERVES AMID SOVIET TENSION

Defense Ministry Seeking to Guard Neutrality With New Forts.

MOSCOW INVITES DELEGATE

Russians Want Conference for Discussing Political and Economic Treaties.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—The Finnish Defense Ministry announced that it had ordered some reserve divisions to the colors "to strengthen the national neutrality" while the Cabinet pondered a Russian invitation to send a special envoy to Moscow to discuss political and economic matters. Visits of such envoys from Estonia and Latvia have resulted in concessions by those small States greatly increasing Russian power around the Baltic.

The Defense Ministry's announcement in Helsinki said that additional troops might be used to build fortifications.

The Foreign Office in Helsinki acknowledged that Russia had suggested to Finland that she send a delegate to Moscow to discuss political and economic matters.

It said that the Finnish Government had not yet acted on the invitation. One report was that Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko had declined to go, but it was possible that some other representative might be sent.

Estonia was the first in the parade of small Baltic States to Moscow and she, like the second, Latvia, agreed to pacts which gave Russia the right to establish military bases on their soil. Activity in both nations to implement the accords was looked for next week.

Red Army Awaited.

Estonia, which granted the right to Russia to establish garrisons totaling 25,000 troops on her soil, heard that the first troops, mechanized and technical divisions, would arrive next week. The first contingent of 5,000 men was expected on Tuesday, to be followed by 15,000 men.

Latvia looked for the arrival next week of a military commission to plan bases to be established there and to arrange for the transport of Soviet troops. Lithuania, third of the Baltic States to confer with Russia, had a large delegation en route to Moscow.

In Helsinki, unofficial sources said that they considered it possible that England might be willing to grant Russia rights on one or two unstrategic islands in return for a proper reward. The latter, they said, probably would be the cession to Finland of certain parts of Karelia, frontier district at the southeastern corner of Finland, inhabited by Finnish-speaking persons.

No Mention of Finland.

Meanwhile, in the wake of Adolf Hitler's Reichstag speech yesterday, the Helsinki Sanomat noted that the Fuehrer failed to mention Finland in his discussion of the Baltic, and regarded as the absence of Foreign Minister Erkko, said:

"Undoubtedly the omission will have political repercussions and there is no reason for keeping the oversight secret at home, whatever it means."

It described the speech as a step in the direction of peace and welcomed his statement that Germany's interest in the Baltic was economic.

Lithuania Sends Agents.

It was believed Finland will seek assurance that previous agreements between the two countries will be respected and to consult on their joint attitude in view of recent developments in the Baltic.

A Lithuanian delegation which left for Moscow at 9:45 A. M. (3:45 A. M., Eastern standard time) was the largest ever sent there by a Baltic State.

Lithuanians still hoped that the final boundary with Russia, resulting from Russian occupation of part of Poland, would give them part of the province of Wilno (Vilna) which the Poles took from Lithuania in 1920.

Moscow Wants Talk.

HELSINKI, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—The Foreign Ministry announced today that the Russian Government had suggested that Finland send a delegate to Moscow to discuss political and economic matters of mutual concern. The Finnish Government has not yet acted on the invitation.

However, Finland's Minister to Moscow, Aarno Yrjoe-Koskinen, is conferring with Soviet officials concerning a trade agreement. Commerce between Finland and Russia has been very small since Finland obtained her independence in 1917, but the Finns for years have talked of a Russian trade agreement.

Early this year a special Finnish delegation visited Moscow seeking a trade agreement, but was unsuccessful because Moscow introduced extraneous questions, such as the status of certain Finnish islands. Russia objects to plans for fortification of the Aaland Islands, at the entrance to the Gulf of Bothnia.

The negotiations were resumed recently and the Finns are hopeful of obtaining a pact with the Soviet on a purely economic basis. The desire for a trade agreement is strengthened by wartime shipping difficulties in the Baltic Sea.

Two Objectives Realized.

MOSCOW, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Reliable though unofficial sources said today Soviet Russia, through her deal with Germany, apparently had realized two objectives for which she might have fought on the side of Great Britain and France.

These were assurances in the Baltic of the right to send her armies into the Polish Ukraine and White Russia, areas on the Soviet side of the German-Russian frontier drawn through conquered Poland.

A British-French plan to use Soviet Russia as a base of operations in defense of Poland, these sources said, failed because of a breakdown in military talks here last August as a result of the Russian demands.

Great Britain and France, they said, had proposed sending large supplies, warplanes and troops to Russia in preparation for going quickly to Poland's aid in the event of the war which then had not started.

Poland, they reported, had argued that British and French aircraft should not be shipped to Polish territory in peacetime lest Germany be provoked.

Russia Gains Objectives.

As an alternative, these sources declared, it was proposed that the airplanes be sent to Odessa, Soviet port on the Black Sea, and from Western border.

Russia, they said, wanted a guaranty that she would not have to fight on her own soil, and that she be permitted to send armies into White Russia and the Polish Ukraine, regions of former Poland that border on the U. S. S. R.

They said she also wanted concessions in the Baltic which Britain and France were unwilling to grant.

Now, through her treaty with Germany establishing a frontier in former Poland, she has regained White Russia and the Polish Ukraine. Through nonaggression treaties with Estonia and Latvia she has won concessions in the Baltic. Both have been accomplished without formal war.

Russia was expected to resume talks over the week end with Lithuania and Turkey, continuing her policy of spreading her influence in eastern Europe through negotiation and neutrality.

Seeking Transit Rights.

Diplomats foresaw quick agreement with Lithuania in which, they said, Russia probably would increase her defense strength in the north against any possible attack by Britain or Germany. Transit rights were said to be Russia's principal demand on Lithuania.

From Turkey, some diplomats said, Russia was demanding neutrality in the European war, a mutual assistance pact and assurances that warships other than those of Russia and Turkey would not be permitted to enter the Black Sea through the Dardanelles.

There still was no official comment on Adolf Hitler's speech to the Reichstag yesterday, but informed sources expressed belief Russia would throw her full weight behind the Fuehrer's peace proposals.

A German trade delegation was expected here tomorrow. Its visit was seen in some quarters as a sign that Berlin hopes to get large and varied quantities of Soviet goods—a hope which foreign trade experts here doubt can be realized. Among the German experts were expected to be technicians in agriculture, railways, oil, chemicals and transport.

New Army Reserves Called Up By Finland

Stockholm, Oct. 7 (AP).—Finland tonight announced the calling up of new army reserves while delaying a reply to a Russian invitation to a conference in Moscow.

Although the two developments were not linked officially, observers said they regarded as significant the timing of the call to the colors.

Invitations to Finland's small Baltic neighbors to send envoys to Moscow cost them sweeping concessions to Russia's expanding power. Northern European capitals were speculating on whether the summoning of reserves meant that Finland would attempt to stand against this trend.

For Neutrality Defense

The reserves were called for "defense of the national neutrality," the Defense Ministry announced, adding that since they crowded the regular barracks, "some troops have been sent to rural areas where they might also be used for work on fortifications."

The number of reserves was not disclosed.

At the same time it became known that the Finns have been strengthening their Russian border since last spring.

The Finnish Cabinet met today to discuss political and economic questions.

May Send Delegate

Reliable Helsinki quarters expected after the Cabinet meeting that a representative would be sent to Moscow in answer to the Soviet proposal, but it was believed almost certain it would not be Eljas Erkko, Foreign Minister.

The Government made no announcement concerning the Cabinet meeting but informed sources said the Russian invitation was the principal topic. These sources said it was possible the delegate would leave tomorrow.

The Finnish public took the news of the Soviet proposal quietly and seriously but without alarm.

Government Also Calm

Government circles likewise showed calmness with outward signs of determination.

It was emphasized that no demands accompanied the Moscow invitation and that Finland was prepared for a thorough discussion of trade possibilities.

The summoning of the army reserves was regarded purely as a precautionary measure.

Helsinki officials reiterated that, contrary to all reports, preparations were going forward for the 1940 Olympic games to be held in Finland.

In connection with Russia's moves to extend the Soviet sway through pacts with Estonia and Latvia and negotiations with Lithuania, the Helsinki Swedish language newspaper, Svenska Pressen, observed, "The new agreements seem like shackles."

Approaching New Fate

The paper, regarded as sympathetic to the strongest party in the Finnish Diet, the Social Democrats, noted that the Baltic States often have been termed by the Nazis as a "bulwark against Bolshevism," but that they now were "approaching a new fate."

"In the near future they no longer will be what they were during twenty years of independence," it declared.

"Communism has now got a better hold on the west than ever in the past. Communists now have made strategic and military conquests which ordinarily presuppose war."

Soviet To Predominate

It observed that Soviet forces to be stationed in Estonia and Latvia would be more than those countries' troops.

Estonians heard that the first of 25,000 Russian troops to be quartered there would arrive next week, 5,000 being due Tuesday and 15,000 a little latter.

Latvia was expecting a Russian military commission next week, and Lithuania had a large governmental delegation en route to the Russian capital.

In addition, Latvia received a request from Germany today for the removal of Germans in that country back to the Fatherland. It was understood the Government considered this possible only through a treaty, because such an emigration would be large and complicated.

Russians Cool To Lithuania's Plea for Wilno

Report Workers in Former Capital Prefer Soviet; Seek New Rights on Baltic

MOSCOW, Oct. 7 (AP).—Lithuania's hopes that she would regain her former capital, Wilno (Vilna), in return for concessions she was expected to make to Soviet Russia, received a setback tonight with reports that Wilno workers opposed such action.

Soviet broadcasts of reports of workers' meetings said that speeches and resolutions demanded annexation with Soviet White Russia. Wilno, historic Lithuanian capital, was seized in 1920 and added to Poland; it is in the Russian occupied part of the partitioned country.

Political observers said Lithuania—whose dpilomats returned here tonight after consultations at home—still might get part of the surrounding territory, but the tenor of the Wilno report indicated that Russia had no idea of turning that city over to the Baltic state.

Uuofficial reports said Lithuania would be asked to give Russia transit rights and possibly a port as a naval base. There were unconfirmed reports also that Lithuania's frontier with Germany would be strengthened.

Soviet sources hinted that a form of convention or a plebiscite might be called soon in nemly won Polish White Russia and Ukraine "to determine a form of government there." It was learned that V. Krushe, secretary of the Communist party of the Soviet Ukraine, in a recent speech, said a plebiscite would be ordered to enable the "liberated" brothers both in the Polish Ukraine and White Russia to decide whether they "want a bourgeois democratic republic or Communist state."

(...).—News of the reported Soviet invitation to Finland to send envoys to the Kremlin occasioned no surprise tonight in Moscow's foreign circles, where it had been anticipated Finland was "next on the list."

Having strengthened her naval position enormously on the southern side of the Gulf of Finland and the Baltic, Russia was known to want to complement this by bases on the northern sides, which are under Finland's control.

It was reported that Russia wanted a share in the control of the Finland was not expected to give in as readily as Estonia and Latvia. Finland was said to be in a stronger position than Latvia or Estonia, but observers said her position seemed hopeless, especially as Germany was not resisting the Russian thrust into the Baltic.

An air of mystery still surrounded the talks between the Kremlin and Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu, who has been here since Sept. 25. It was unknown what progress was being made or the exact nature of the Soviet proposals.

"Pravda," Communist party organ and the only newspaper published in Moscow today, gave prominence to a Berlin report of an interview that Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop had granted to a Japanese newspaperman, underlining Germany's hope of bringing Russia and Japan into closer harmony.

The paper at the same time attacked the French government's suppression of the Communist party, asserting the French people did not want to fight, but were helpless in the face of the government's stand.

"Pravda's" account of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's Reichstag speech emphasized that Germany had only an "economic interest" in the Baltic states, where Russia had been penetrating with military and economic concessions through treaties with Latvia and Estonia and one imminent with Lithuania.

A Tass (official Soviet news agency) dispatch from Riga said that Latvia, eager for closer relations with Russia, would display Soviet motion pictures and sell Russian newspapers and books.

Three Balkan Nations Agree To Reduce Their Armed Forces

Yugoslavia-Rumania-Hungary Pact Viewed As Neutrality Move Through Mutual Assistance Bloc

[By the Associated Press]

Bucharest, Oct. 7—Southeastern Europe witnessed a new trend in its post-World War history today with a simultaneous reduction in armed forces agreed upon bi Yugoslavia, Rumania and Hungary.

Particularly significant was this united move by the three Balkan states in view of the stand taken heretofore by Rumania and Yugoslavia against Hungary because of her claims to their World War gains.

Diplomats saw in the action a movement toward Balkan neutrality by means of a mutual assistance bloc to resist pressure from any of Europe's great powers.

Initiated By Yugoslavia

The partial demobilization, announced in communiques by the Rumanian and Hungarian governments, was started September 30. The two governments credited Yugoslavia with the suggestion.

Rumania and Yugoslavia were known to have had about 500,000 men under arms in the past month, and Hungary more than 300,000.

All the Balkan countries have been aware that concentration of hundreds of thousands of troops on the Rumanian-Hungarian borders has been one of the biggest dangers to peace in this part of Europe.

Both countries have viewed Yugoslavia as a friendly mediator of their differences, especially since southeastern states have become wary of inviting interference from the major powers.

Large-scale troop concentrations have been a heavy drain on national resources. Various countries at the same time have been under the strain of trade disruption due to the war in the west. For example, Hungary tonight doubled the price of tea and coffee in an effort to reduce consumption of these scanty commodities.

Balkan Bloc Seen In Demobilization

Rumania, Yugoslavia And Hungary Act

By the Associated Press.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 7.—The Rumanian government announced tonight that it had joined Yugoslavia and Hungary in simultaneous decrease of armed forces.

A communique disclosed that the three nations, at Yugoslavia's suggestion, began demobilization Sept. 30.

This united action marked a new trend in the post-World War history of southeastern Europe, where Rumania and Yugoslavia long have sided against Hungary because of her claims to their World War gains.

Behind the formal phrases of the Rumanian communique diplomats saw the step as the first aimed at solidification of a Balkan neutrality bloc and to provide mutual assistance against any pressure of the great powers.

Rumania is known to have had more than 500,000 men in her army for the last month, while Yugoslavia has had about 500,000 and Hungary more than 300,000.

BELGIUM RESTATES STAND AS NEUTRAL

At Same Time Confiscates French Warplane.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Premier Hubert Pierlot reaffirmed Belgium's neutrality today at a press conference at which he expressed a fervent hope that the country could remain at peace.

Reviewing the nation's position, he said that peace was "priceless, good and compatible with the pledges" made by Belgium. He referred to the country's withdrawal from her military pact with France in 1936 and the construction of a system of neutrality agreements with neighbors.

"Where would we be now if we had not changed our policy?" he asked. "People ask why are we not on the Allies side as in 1914. To this we answer, what would you do in our place?"

The Premier said that the army was six or seven times better than in 1914, indicating that there were about 600,000 men under arms for Belgium's defense.

"They are working day and night on fortifications," he said.

He added that Belgium made peace attempts before hostilities began, but as a small nation she has no ambition to be an arbitrator.

"The suggestions we made for peace will have to be considered again," he said, "if peace talks begin."

[Before war broke out King Leopold of Belgium and Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands offered their good offices in an attempt to settle the German-Polish quarrel.]

Meanwhile a French military plane which landed at Langemarck, near Ypres, was confiscated by Belgian authorities today. Two non-commissioned officers, who were arrested, said that they left Paris for Lilile with military documents and mail and lost their way in a mist.

German Request to Latvia

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 7 (AP)—The German Minister today presented a request that the Latvian Government consent to the removal of Germans from this country to German territory. It was understood Latvia would not refuse, but officials believed that realization of such an undertaking required a carefully-worked-out treaty to avoid complications.

(Latvia's 1939 census showed that about 33,000 Latvian citizens were racially German. The total population was 1,950,000.

(Hitler in his Reichstag speech suggested transfer of populations as a means of stabilizing Europe).

BULGAR-NAZI DEAL HALTED

German Desire for Huge Meat Shipment Is Reported Cause

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 7 (AP)—Last-minute difficulties have prevented the signing of a German-Bulgarian trade agreement for 1940, it was learned authoritatively today. The German trade delegation, therefore, is staying in Sofia for an indefinite period. It arrived here on Sept. 19.

The major reason for the breakdown of negotiations was attributed to the German desire to obtain huge quantities of meat, skins, hemp and other commodities, export of which has been forbidden since the outbreak of European hostilities.

Germany, it was reported, offered to take 40,000,000 litres (42,280,000 gallons) of wine against half that quantity last year and an unlimited quantity of vegetables, fruit, pulp, pork and other commodities.

Germany also offered to help speed up Bulgarian transportation. She already is supplying gratis 125 freight cars daily to Bulgaria. It was learned reliably that Germany promised to increase her Danube commercial fleet with her Rhine fleet, using icebreakers in the Winter to keep the Danube navigable.

TALLINN-BERLIN TRADE PACT

New Treaty Reported Approved By Estonian President

Berlin, Oct. 7 (AP)—DNB, German official news agency, said tonight that upon the Estonian Government's proposal, its President Konstantin Pats had approved the conclusion of a new trade treaty with Germany.

The President empowered Estonia's minister to Berlin, Karl Tofer, to sign the treaty, the news agency said. Details of the projected pact were not disclosed.

Mediation Offer Still Good

THE HAGUE, Oct. 7 (AP).—Informed quarters here said today that the offer to mediate the European war made by Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands and King Leopold of the Belgians before the outbreak of hostilities had no time limit and therefore still held good. It was stated authoritatively, however, that the first move must come from the belligerents.

Sweden Asks 12 Millions As Extra Defense Fund

Government Seeks 12 Mine-Sweepers and 102 Planes

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 7 (AP).—The Swedish government asked Parliament today for an additional appropriation of 51,000,000 crowns (about $12,000,000) for its defense fund to buy eleven minesweepers and 102 warplanes.

Major chief Fabian Tamm also requested four new destroyers and an additional twelve minesweepers, but this matter was referred to P. E. Skoldt, Minister of Defense, for recommendations.

Parliament already has provided 500,000,000 crowns (about $119,000,000), of which the sum of 330 million crowns was an extra appropriation, this year for defense.

Belgians Seize Two as Spies

BRUSSELS, Oct. 7 (AP).—Two foreigners in clerical garb were arrested near Antwerp today on charges of spying. Police said the pair had maps of Belgian defenses. No other details were announced.

Estonia Toasts Stalin

TALLINN, Oct. 7 (AP).—Toasts calculated to calm public excitement over signing of the Soviet-Russian-Estonian mutual assistance pact were exchanged last night at a dinner attended by members of a joint commission working out details of the accord.

Soviet Flag Commander Issakoff toasting President Konstantin Paets said the pact guarantees Estonia's continued independence while giving Russia new access to the Baltic.

The Estonian commander-in-chief, General Johan Laidoner, replying with a toast to Joseph Stalin, expressed hope the Russians would implement the pact in a manner to inspire the confidence of all elements in Estonia.

SOVIET EXECUTES POLISH OFFICER

MOSCOW, Oct. 7 (AP).—A Polish officer-landlord who was accused of entering Rovno, in the Soviet Ukraine, in an attempt to poison Soviet leaders, was sentenced to death before a firing squad by a military tribunal today.

An official statement asserted that the officer, named Bronislav, went into Rovno in civilian clothes and that a large quantity of poison was found in his possession.

2 Women Held In Plot to Kill Rumanian King

Bucharest, Oct. 7 (AP)—Four persons, two of them women, were held today by police on accusations of plotting to assassinate King Carol and a group of high government officials.

Police said the suspects, members of the Nazi-inclined Iron Guard, were traced through statements of Maria Clucer, woman employe in the army technical bureau, who was arrested Thursday and accused of possessing a manifesto critical of the King and "Jewish and Free Mason domination of the government."

The four were a professor, the nephew of a retired chief justice of Rumania's highest court, the professor's daughter and another woman.

Police declared the four had a list of intended victims, including the King, Premier Constantin Argetoianu, War Minister Gen. Gabriel Marinescu and Justice Minister Victor Iamandi.

They said the group had planned to poison former Premier Armand Calinescu, but were not connected with the Iron Guard members executed after Calinescu was assassinated Sept. 21.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA REVIVED IN PARIS

Benes Indicates Establishment Of Regime In Exile Similar To Polish

[By the Associated Press]

Paris, Oct. 7—Dr. Eduard Benes former President of Czecho-Slovakia indicated in an official statement today that France had agreed to the establishment of a Czecho-Slovak Government in exile similar to that formed by Polish leaders here.

Dr. Benes, whose war-born republic was dismembered by Germany last March, said a Czech army to fight with France was being raised by "the provisional Czecho-Slovak Government."

He cited an agreement reached October 2 between Premier Edouard Daladier and Stephan Osusky, Czech Minister to Paris, as authority for organizing an army.

Once Lived In Chicago

Osusky, former American mining engineer who once lived in Chicago, signed the accord "in the name of the provisional Czecho-Slovak Government," Dr. Benes said.

The former President, making his statement twenty-four hours after arriving here from London, recalled that in the World War France was the first to authorize the formation of an autonomous Czech army and "later recognized the first provisional Czecho-Slovak Government."

Dr. Benes, who resigned as President October 5, 1938, after the Munich accord gave Germany her first foothold in Czecho-Slovakia, declared that despite sacrifices made by his nation "the insatiable appetite of Hitlerism has launched this war."

Germans Report French Flight Over Rhine Meets Disaster

Berlin, Oct. 7 (AP)—A German Army communique today reported two French planes downed and the crew of one captured in attempts to cross the Rhine river.

The communique did not disclose how many planes were in the flight yesterday afternoon. It said German pursuit planes and aircraft guns forced back the French flyers without German casualties.

Lieutenant Prisoner

The French planes, the communique said, attempted to fly over the Rhine at Bonn, but one was shot down at Godesberg, another forced down at Euskirchen and the others chased back.

It said the four-man crew of one plane, including a first lieutenant of the French general staff, was captured.

The text of the communique follows:

East of the Vistula and in the region of Suwalki, the advance toward the German-Russian border continued without a hitch in union with Russian troops.

There were two divisional commanders and 100 officers among the last remnants of the Polish army which capitulated near Kock yesterday.

In the west local scouting and troop actions of the enemy were repulsed. Otherwise there was only a sporadic barrage of fire.

French scouting planes attempted to fly over Bonn in the afternoon. One of them was shot down in an airfight at Godesberg, a second was forced down at Euskirchen. The crew of four, among whom was one first leutenant of the General Staff, was taken prisoner. There were no losses on the German side.

PRISONER LIST EXCHANGED

Red Cross Transmits Names to Each Side in Conflict

GENEVA, Oct. 7 (AP)—The International Red Cross Committee reported today the first exchange of lists of prisoners between Germany and the British-French Allies.

Lists of French and British prisoners of war held in Germany were received first by the committee and sent immediately to the Allied governments. Similar lists from France and Britain were forwarded to Germany by the exchange. The number of prisoners involved was not announced.

The lists will be used not only to inform relatives but to form a basis for future exchange of prisoners.

The committee also announced that there were 24,000 Polish prisoners in Rumania, 45,000 in Hungary, 16,000 in Lithuania and 2,000 in Latvia. Aid is being sent them through the Red Cross organizations of the four countries.

REPORTERS TO SEE FRONT

Group of Americans Will Join British Army in France

LONDON, Oct. 7 (AP)—The first American newspaper correspondents officially accredited to the British Army exchanged business suits for khaki uniforms today and prepared to leave for "somewhere in France." This departure, within a few days, was been arranged by the War Office.

Five days after the war began Great Britain now agrees with the Allied commander, French General Maurice Gustave Gamelin, who said: "It is time to lift the silence which separates the front from the rest of the country."

The Associated Press will be represented in the first group by Drew Middleton of the London staff. Others include: Frank R. Kent Jr., The Baltimore Sun; William H. "A Damn Good Shot," Said He, Going Under

LONDON, Oct. 8 (AP).—St. John Ervine, dramatist and critic, related in the Times today that Captain William Makeig-Jones, who went down with the British aircraft carrier Courageous September 18, exclaimed when a German torpedo struck his ship:

"That was a damn good shot."

Ervine said the captain made his remark to the yeoman of signals, who was among the survivors.

"It does not surprise Bill Makeig-Jones' friends that his first word after being hit was to indicate it was a tribute to the enemy's skill," said Ervine.

Radio Repeats Hitler's Speech

PARIS, Oct 7 (AP).—Radio listeners tonight heard German radio stations rebroadcasting French and English translations of the text of Adolf Hitler's speech to the Reichstag yesterday.

The rebroadcasts emphasized the need of an armistice to end the war and general peace conference. The Stuttgart station broadcast the French version while a Cologne station gave the English translation.

Airing blooming geraniums, from the muzzles of their machine guns. Further north, at another frontier post, the exact location of which, like the first, remains a military secret, one of the mobilized men garrisoned on the Swiss side has a house in France with its back porch in Switzerland.

Strict orders of both the French and the Swiss armies closing the frontier at this point at the beginning of the war prevented the Swiss from going home on his day off.

As the tension of the first weeks relaxed, however, the French placed a table in the door to the porch, halfway across the frontier. The Swiss soldier now eats his Sunday dinner at home although he remains in Switzerland and his wife is in France.

Lake Leman, near Geneva, also provides an odd frontier, for the Swiss have banned all boats on the international lake save police boats and the regular lake steamers which now call only at Swiss ports.

Hundreds of fishermen, with their sport and in some cases their livelihood at stake, objected to the ban, but it was continued. Fishermen in French waters recently had bad luck. They decided the smart Lake Leman fish had moved to the neutral Swiss side and began to fish at night in Swiss Waters. French authorities this week put a stop to this, banning all traffic on the French side of the lake between sunset and sunrise.

Swiss anti-aircraft gunners stick to strict neutrality. No matter whether the plane which crosses accidentally into Swiss territory is French or German, it is greeted impartially with bursts of fire as a warning to go away.

On the French-Swiss Frontier, Oct. 7 (AP).—It's a funny frontier, this jagged line running between France and Switzerland. One country mobilized to get into the war, the other mobilized to keep out. And both have gone through the grim formalities of protecting themselves from theoretical attack from or through the other.

From the southern tip of Switzerland at Geneva to the northern tip at Basel, both nations have manned their frontier forts and other defenses. Yet between the guns of both sides the troops are friendly.

The French are doing everything possible to assure the Swiss they have no intention of violating Swiss neutrality and only want to protect themselves.

The Swiss are doing the same thing within the limits of their primary interest—to protect their neutral position.

Head of Peace Pledge Union Says Anglican Leaders 'Betray Master, Gospel'

MANCHESTER, England, Oct. 7 (AP).—Canon Stuart Morris, head of the Peace Pledge Union, announced at a meeting of the union today that he was renouncing his orders in the Anglican Church as a protest against the attitude of 'a great part of th Church of England" toward the European war.

"Even if our cause had been the most just of causes," he said, "it remains true that no cause, however righteous, can possibly be achieved by a resort to violence and a denial of all that we mean by righteousness."

The Rev. Mr. Morris, forty-nin years old, a member of the General purposes and Church Electorate subcommittee of the Church of England, became head of the Peace Pledge Union a year and a half ago, on the death of its founder, Dick Sheppard, a clergyman.

(Sheppard became head of the first English pacifist movement about 1919 when he advertised in a newspaper for all who conscientiously objected to war to get in touch with him. The large response led him to found the Peace Pledge Union.)

Morris said he was not prepared to be hampered by official attachment to a church which "had not only betrayed its Master and the Gospel it preached, but has betrayed the people to whom it preached."

Many English churchmen have offered prayers for a British victory.

Another churchman, C. G. Holland, vicar of Atwell, suggested in his October magazine, "Let us at least leave God as a neutral."

U.S. Set to Reject Nazi Protest if Arms Ban Ends

Hull Likely to Cite '15 Plea of Reich for Law Change; Action Begun Before War

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP).—A deep-rooted impression exists in official quarters here that the German government will protest any lifting of the embargo on arms as an unneutral act because it was made after the outbreak of war.

In this case the reply of the American government can be reliably forecast.

It will follow three main lines—according to excellent sources, one on international law, one on fact and one on precedent.

The first will paraphrase, if it does not quote, from the recent statement of Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, in which he maintained that:

Most of the progress in developing rules of neutrality has been made by acts taken during a war;

Belligerants change their rules frequently during a war—the World War was an example—and neutrals should have the same right;

If neutrals were required to establish their position in advance of war and stick to it while belligerents changed the rules, only the belligerents would determine the rights and duties of neutrals and belligerents;

Change Begun Before War

This would not be the case if the change were made at the request of one of the belligerents, but Britain and France have not asked the American administration or Congress to lift the embargo.

The second argument will follow the line that procedure for lifting the embargo actually began before the war. It started in the last session of Congress when the Administration sought to have a new neutrality bill passed which did not contain the embargo.

A bill finally passed the House of Representatives, and it is this bill which the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has amended and submitted to the Senate.

Before the last session closed, the President sent a special message to Congress inclosing a statement by Mr. Hull, in which he asked for legislation at that session.

When the legislation was not forthcoming, the President held a special meeting with Senate leaders in which they promised him that the next session would consider a bill based on the Administration's ideas.

Will Cite Reich Stand in '15

Consequently it is not true to say that the neutrality act was changed after the war started.

The third argument will hark back to 1915. By the spring of that year American manufacturers already had begun to supply large quantities of war materials to Britain and France. Germany was growing concerned over the assistance flowing to its enemies from this side. On April 4 of that year the German Embassy presented to the State Department a note asking that an embargo be placed on the exportation of such arms.

The German government argued then that international law permitted the protection of existing industries through continuance of arms exportation, but said this did not mean the building of new industries or the enlargement of existing ones for the same purpose.

The United States did not agree to the German viewpoint.

The precedent is important, in the view of official quarters, because it was Germany itself who was asking the United States to change its neutral position eight months after the war had begun.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP).—A navy spokesman's cryptic remark that "no news is good news" gave reason to believe today that the steamship Iroquois was proceeding unmolested on its voyage across the Atlantic with Americans fleeing the European war.

Captain Edward A. Chelton, the ship's master, wirelessed the Maritime Commission several times yesterday that the vessel was proceeding uneventfully and scheduled to reach New York at Wednesday.

The navy has sent warships to protect the Iroquois, but has not divulged whether they have reached the ship. President Roosevelt remarked at Hyde Park yesterday that it would be unwise to make public any information. The navy spokesman pursued this policy here last night, refusing to give out any news, but remarking that "no news is good news."

California Hears of Casualty —Los Angeles Leaves of Crew Canceled.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—The Los Angeles Examiner says persistent rumors are being circulated at Los Angeles harbor of sabotage aboard the battleship Arizona.

It says the reports deal with damage to the ship's machinery and water tanks.

Naval sources and the Federau Bureau of Investigation declined to comment.

The Arizona is in harbor after a week's battle practice at sea. Crew members were reported under surveillance.

The Arizona is flagship of Admiral Russell Willson's battleship Division 1.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—The Federal Bureau of Investigation is checking up on persistent rumors of sabotage aboard the battleship Arizona, now in Los Angeles harbor. J. Edgar Hoover, the bureau head, who is here to address a convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, said today that he would return to Los Angeles soon to pursue his investigation.

He was accompanied by five assistants. Mr. Hoover explained that his office received more than 200 espionage reports daily.

There was a rumor that the reported sabotage had resulted in a casualty aboard the Arizona. Leave to all members of the battleship's crew was declared to have been canceled.

Admiral Claude C. Bloch, commander-in-chief of the United States Fleet, declined to comment.

Navy Declines to Comment.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—The navy, following its policy of virtual silence, secretly refused comment today on Los Angeles rumors of sabotage aboard the battleship Arizona. Some naval men, however, were inclined to be doubtful.

The rumors, they said, probably resulted from a summons to crewmen to report aboard ship for reasons other than sabotage.

PROBING 'SABOTAGE' ON U. S. BATTLESHIP

F. B. I. Looking Into Rumors Of Damages Aboard Arizona

Hoover's Agents Also Keeping Close Watch On Iroquois, Due Wednesday

[By the Associated Press]

San Francisco, Oct. 7—J. Edgar Hoover's Federal Bureau of Investigation agents are looking into reported sabotage aboard the United States battleship Arizona. Its machinery and water tanks were rumored damaged during gunnery practice off Southern California.

Hoover also said his department is keeping close watch on the steamship Iroquois, en route to New York with American war refugees, because a German official advised that the vessel would be sunk before it reached this country.

The head of the F.B.I. said that what happened aboard the Arizona was [illegible] I can't discuss." One rumor told of damage and another mentioned a "casualty."

Investigation Ordered

Hoover did not say sabotage had been discovered but explained an investigation had been ordered to determine whether there had been any. The Arizona is flagship of Rear Admiral Russell Willson's Battleship Division 1.

Discussing the Iroquois, Hoover said the German report had been given him at Washington and he thought there were good grounds for investigating.

"It is a matter on which we could not afford to take a chance," he declared.

The implication of the German message, as announced by the White House, was that the Iroquois would be sunk by Britain or France and the blame placed on Germany.

Due In New York Wednesday

The Iroquois is expected to reach New York Wednesday.

Hoover came to the West Coast to investigate "sabotage, espionage and neutrality violation."

The Department of Justice has grouped these things as "general intelligence," with a resulting expansion of the bureau.

"We are getting an average of 214 complaints daily that fall into the 'general intelligence' classification," Hoover said. "There were only thirty-five such reports a year prior to last June.

"Sabotage is the most important—more important than espionage as far as our activities go.

Takes Precedence, He Says

"General intelligence, whatever its nature, takes precedence over all else. We prepared for the heavy increase of reports we received and we are still expanding. Four new offices in Hawaii, Alaska, Panama and Puerto Rico have been added to our previous forty-two offices.

"A survey we are making probably will result in offices in ten or twelve more places, which will have more than [illegible] coverage."

He added the F. B. I. was cooperating closely with the army and navy intelligence, particularly so on the Pacific Coast.

"There is no reason," Hoover said, "why civil liberties should be abridged. We will proceed with the espionage investigation with calmness and saneness and without hysteria. There won't be any so-called 'witch hunts' by vigilantes."

U. S. Plans Army of 280,000

U. S. Organizes Fighting Force For Defense

Army Mass Training Ordered—Plan to Ask Boost to Full Strength

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP)—In a new move to reinforce national defenses, the War Department today ordered unprecedented mass training this Winter for more than 70,000 troops—a procedure intended to weld new army divisions into a mobile fighting force.

At the same time an intention to ask Congress to expand the regular army by an additional 53,000 men to its full peacetime strength of 280,000 was indicated by disclosure of plans for additional divisions "when and if" increases are authorized.

Approved by President Roosevelt, the announcement for organization of the fighting force came from Secretary Woodring. It omitted reference to the European war or to earlier defense measures taken since Mr. Roosevelt's proclamation of a limited national emergency.

MOVE HELD ESSENTIAL

There was no hint whether the request for further army expansion would await the regular session or would be presented to the special session of Congress after conclusion of the neutrality debate.

The extraordinary Winter training was described by Woodring as "essential" in view of "the extremely limited numbers available for the defense of the United States as an initial protective force."

In the most extensive war game in army history, some 60,000 or more troops of five new "streamlined" divisions and special units are to be moved in the next few weeks from scattered posts, first to different concentration points in the South and Northwest, it was announced.

Then they will be massed late in the Winter at a central point—probably at Fort Benning, Ga., official thought—for training as the first actual American Army combat corps organized since the World War.

At the same time two calalry divisions of about 5,000 men each will be trained at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Texas. The intensive training in large scale "combat team" tactics will continue for months, officials said.

The National Guard is to share also in the extraordinary preparedness moves by training of higher command officers and some reserve officers with the regulars, and by extra drills of troops at their armories.

The proposed new units, including four more divisions and special corps troops, to be organized when Congress provides funds, are in turn to be dispatched to the Southern areas for training when the original divisions have been shifted back to their home stations.

SHIFT NEW YORK UNITS

The assignments for the initial concentrations were: First Division, Fort Benning; Second, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Third, Fort Lewis, Washington (there is no existing Fourth Division); Fifth, Camp McClellan, Alabama; Sixth, Camp Jackson, South Carolina; special corps troops, Fort Bragg, North Carolina, Fort Knox, Kentucky, and Camp Ord, California.

The first move, officials said, will be the transfer of the vanguard of the First Division by the Transports Hunter Liggett and Republic, starting Oct. 25 from New York.

Details for the program were worked out at a series of conferences between the President, Mr. Woodring and General George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff. Likewise consulted, officials said, was General John J. Pershing, the World War A. E. F. Commander.

"You are the men who build the best airplanes and engines in the world."

He said that with $300,000,000 the War Department last July swung into a two-year program to tighten America's aerial defense.

Already well on schedule, the plan will find the United States counting these formidable sky elements by June 30, 1941: 4,600 officers and 45,000 enlisted men. Three new major air bases and more than a dozen other first-line flying fields costing $68,0[illegible]5,500 of the world's best p[illegible]6,000 of them [illegible] and the remainder of the [illegible] spent on experimental laboratories and reserves.

"With increased money and research," Gen. Fickel told the engineers, "the United States can lead in the design of planes, and we can work fast. Within three months after bidding was opened, we let contracts to your companies. Your designs have exceeded expectations in every classification. The ships offer better characteristics than any types known today, anywhere."

AIRCRAFT EXPORTS ROSE

August Figure Was $12,136,845, Most to Britain and France

WASHINGTON, [illegible] (AP)—Aeronautic exports, the Department of Commerce reported today, reached a record monthly high of $12,136,845 in August.

More than 75 per cent of exported planes, engines, parts and accessories went to two countries, England and France, both of which had placed large military aircraft orders before the outbreak of war.

Exports for the first eight months of 1939 reached $70,186,620, which was 43 per cent above the same period in 1938 and 3 per cent above the total of $68,227,689 for the full year of 1938.

The August total was 14 per cent above the previous high mark of June, 34 per cent above July's figure and 126 per cent above that of August, 1938.

In August, France bought fifty-seven planes at a cost of $1,792,862; [illegible] engines [illegible],750 and parts and accessories [illegible] grand total of $3,601,260. Purchases by the United Kingdom totaled $5,221,926, including forty-four planes at $3,231,661 and fifty engines at $357,500. No other country purchased as much as a million dollars' worth of aircraft. Canada, third largest buyer, spent $698,016 in August.

WARNING IS ISSUED ON BUSINESS RISE

Hopkins Cautions Against Imprudent Inventories And Early Price Boosts

Effect Of War Still Is Doubtful, He Declares—Employment Shoots Up

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Oct. 7—Harry L. Hopkins, Secretary of Commerce, today coupled a report of accelerated business recovery with a warning against overaccumulation of inventories and premature price rises in anticipation of a war boom.

"The spurt in production," said a Department of Commerce statement, "has not been matched to date by greater consumption by the public or in capital expenditures by business for plant expansion and equipment.

"Furthermore, American business cannot be assured of an immediate expansion of exports as a result of the war. Price rises at this time undoubtedly would invite a reaction.

"Business statesmanship dictates policies aimed at higher profits based upon larger volume rather than the pursuit of ephemeral profits through price advances."

Increase In Employment

Underscoring the Federal Reserve Board's report this week that industrial activity in September reached the highest index level since the 1937 slump, Hopkins reported that by the month's end there was a major increase in production and in employment.

An advance in purchasing during the first week of the war, the report said, "was probably of record size for so short a period of time."

Hopkins noted, however, that buying fell off toward the end of the month.

His statement added that "extension of the current industrial advance after the existing backlog of orders is reduced to more usual proportions will depend on development of new dynamic demand factors, such as heavier exports or a pickup in business expenditures for durable products."

Signs Of Recovery

Reporting that the "most spectacular" reaction to the war was an upward spurt of basic commodity prices resulting from heavy buying in anticipation of rising prices and the possibility of restricted [illegible], Hopkins pointed out these signs of recovery:

Manufacturing output was the largest for any month since September, 1937.

Durable goods output also advanced.

Automobile production increased at the usual rapid rate for September with the change-over to new models.

The railroad-equipment industry showed a modest improvement.

Fuel output increased.

It also was cited that the war apparently did not deter awarding of construction contracts.

Chapman Warns Nation On Raiders of Resources

Ickes's Aid Assails 'Get-Rich-Quick Artists'

DENVER, Oct. 7 (AP).—Oscar L. Chapman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, criticized "get-rich-quick artists," who [illegible] said the country's natural resources for supplies to European belligerents, despite United States neutrality.

Here on his vacation, Mr. Chapman, in an interview, cautioned Americans to remain vigilant "lest a few money-minded individuals take from the rest of us those resources without which we cannot live."

"The casualties of war must not include our invaluable stands of timber, our petroleum reserves, our strategic minerals or the public grazing lands of the West," he said.

Russia Believed Unable to Meet Reich Oil Need

Italy as Active Ally Would Increase Fuel Shortage, Expert's Survey Reveals

GALVESTON, Oct. 7 (AP).—Doubt that Russia could supply Germany's [illegible]tal war-time oil needs was expressed today by V. R. Garfias, head of the foreign oil department of the Cities Service Company.

Italy's entrance into the war on Germany's side, he said, apparently would complicate the axis powers' fuel shortage for mechanized fighting machines.

He expressed the belief that, with an effective sea blockade by the Allies to cut off the oil flow from North and South America, "it is far more advantageous to Germany to have Italy as a neutral than an active ally."

Garfias presented the results of a study of war-time oil supply made in collaboration with his assistant, J. W. Ristori, at a meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers here.

Among the points raised in their conclusions were:

The oil blockade is "one of the most effective weapons of Great Britain and France";

Russia has no oil surplus for export sufficient to be of "much assistance" to Germany and transportation difficulties "appear insurmountable" if a supply were available;

Rumanian oil fields, even under complete German control, "could not furnish enough petroleum for Germany's war-time needs in 1940";

Italy's entrance into the war [illegible] German allies would increase the oil problem.

To avoid an oil shortage, the study suggested, Germany might make an early peace or seek control of Mediterranean shipping lines and the Irak petroleum fields, held by England and France.

Russian occupation of the Polish-Rumanian frontier, the study pointed out, eliminated German possession of Rumania's fields.

"Should Russia directly or indirectly deprive Germany of this oil during the war," Garfias said, "the results would be catastrophic.

"As shown in this study, Rumanian oil is absolutely vital to Germany even if it does not supply all her war-time needs."

Germany's 1940 oil consumption, including related fuels, was estimated at 90,000,000 barrels, compared with estimated output of 25,000,000. Italy's estimated 1940 output was put at 1,200,000 barrels, against a war-time demand of 40,000,000 barrels.

Germany's 1938-'39 oil imports were shown to have come largely from Venezuela and the United States, which also were the chief source of Italy's purchases.

Roosevelt Protected in Talks to Envoys By Radio 'Scrambling' to Foil Spies Abroad

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7—When President Roosevelt calls up Ambassador Kennedy in London, his transatlantic "Hello Joe" sound like "Olleh Eoj" on the radio.

All the rest of the conversation would sound like gibberish to any one with an ordinary radio set. Even if you could pick up the frequency on which the two men were talking it would suddenly fade completely.

The system is nothing new but particular caution is now being taken with the President's telephone calls across the ocean to representatives of the United States in foreign countries. Tense days abroad increase the calls from Washington to foreign capitals.

Such calls are "scrambled" at the station which broadcasts them by radio. Small vacuum tubes change the sound waves so that high notes in a voice are converted into low notes, or may be modified through the entire range of the voice. The result is that speech is made unintelligible.

At the receiving end, whether in London, Berlin, Paris, Copenhagen, Brussels or any one of a hundred other cities, similar vacuum tubes pick up the jumbled talk, convert it into normal conversation, amplify it and pass it on to the telephone receiver.

By prearranged signals, the radio operators at both the sending and receiving points adjust their instruments to run synchronously—like soldiers keeping step.

To insure further secrecy, in case some foreign spy might be listening in with [illegible] "unscrambling" devices, the sending station frequently changes from one radio channel to another. By predetermined signal, the receiving station switches at the same time, assuring an uninterrupted conversation.

"The radio lines" are occasionally interrupted, but seldom by any man-made interference signals intended to break them down. The principal interference comes from sunspots.

These spots throw off particles of atoms which, when they strike the earth's atmosphere, set up vibrations in the atoms of air. Normally, layers of air high in the stratosphere act like mirrors to reflect radio waves back to the earth. The sunspot particles break these mirrors into billions of fragments, and then a radio "fade-out" occurs, magnetic compasses are thrown off, true direction and even land telephone communication is disrupted.

NAVY RADIO GIVES ENVOYS NEWS DAILY

Digest of 2,500 Words Reaches Most Remote Vice Consul Within Seventy-two Hours

SHIPS ARE SEA STATIONS

Total Traffic of 182,810,098 Words, Including Relays, Is Reported for Last Year

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—American news as fresh as the breakfast eggs is delivered every day to our diplomats in thirteen embassies and legations abroad. Within three days a vice consul in the most remote city of China's interior will know whether Congress repealed the arms embargo and who won the world series.

A few years ago it would have taken three months for today's newspapers to reach the vice consul. Now a worldwide radio network gives him a 2,500-word daily digest of American news, a private daily newspaper.

Supplementing the commercial cable, wireless and telegraph services, the navy operates for the government a globe-girdling radio system which give immediate communication with diplomatic missions, army posts and ships at sea.

Upon the outbreak of Europe's war President Roosevelt proclaimed this nation's neutrality. Instructions to the navy went from the White House to the naval communications center, whose web of wires criss-crosses above the Navy Department Building here.

Forewarned, the navy had arranged radio relays from Washington through San Francisco to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and Cavite in the Philippines.

Crackling out from the giant sending station at Annapolis, the instructions were transmitted simultaneously to nearly every naval district commandant in the world and by broadcast to the fleet. Then, by local stations, they were sent to other scattered spots.

Under favorable conditions, any United States ship anywhere can be reached directly by radio. Any ship can repay through the new million-dollar receiving station at Cheltenham, Md.

Any government agency may use the navy service, and last year 48 per cent of its traffic was handled for other government agencies.

Contact with Ambassador Johnson in China is maintained through a gunboat at Chungking, where no other communication system is available.

Though most of the navy's administrative traffic is sent "in the clear," some official messages go out in code or cipher. The navy naturally is reticent about its codes, but here's a story:

During the World War, the then Secretary of the Navy, Josephus Daniels, has written, commanders of the sub-chaser squadrons in European waters developed their own code.

One commander named his boats in jingles or phrases. Soon, German commanders intercepting radiophone messages were baffled to hear something like this:

"Quack. Quack. Quack. Red-white-blue."

Nothing like it had been heard on the high seas before.

"Quack. Quack. Quack. High-low-jack. Quack. Quack. Quack. Corn-meal-mush."

Three "quacks" meant "operate at one." Boats were named "corn," "meal" and "mush," or "high," "low" and "jack." Navy flag signals were put into words. The alphabet started, "able, boy, cast, dog, easy," etc.' "Able-boy" was code for "take hunt formation; distance 500 yards."

Today the navy is hunting submarines and other belligerent craft again, not to make war on them but to make war keep its distance from American shores.

Instructions to the patrol and ports of its findings fill the air waves. A fishing smack reports a submarine riding the swell off Boston. Notified in a flash, a destroyer scoots out to investigate. It reports by radio, but its movements and its findings are kept secret.

The Naval Communication Service was established in 1916. There were fifty-five stations in operation Jan. 1, 1917. For the war's duration, the navy took over all stations of the infant commercial radio industry. In event of another war, radio stations may be taken over again, but army and navy policy is to disturb normal activity no more than necessary.

The law now prohibits the establishment in the United States of radio sending stations even one-fifth owned by aliens. Nor are there normally any American stations on foreign soil.

But the "first wireless message heard around the world" was sent from an American station on foreign soil, the huge Lafayette station near Bordeaux, France. Planned originally to provide contact with American troops in France, it broadcast for the first time Aug. 21, 1920. The station was turned over by the navy to the French.

Each year the volume of naval radio traffic increases. In its first years, the system transmitted 125,000 dispatches. In the twelve months after April 6, 1918, a million dispatches averaging thirty words were handled by the navy alone. The total was 71,347,000 words for all services.

Total traffic, including relays, in the last fiscal year was 182,810,098 words. The wordage filed from Washington was 26,782,730.

Every naval vessel, and there are more than 300, is a radio station. Besides, there are thirty-six land stations.

With a system like that, Andrew Jackson would never have fought the battle of New Orleans, which he started and finished after a peace treaty had been signed with Great Britain.

Head Of Legion Warns U. S. To "Stay Clear"

Entry In War Might Mean Loss Forever Of "Cherished Freedom," Kelly Says

Detroit, Oct. 7 (AP)—Raymond J. Kelly, commander of the American Legion, warned tonight that for America to enter the European war might mean the loss forever of her "cherished freedom," regardless of the conflict's outcome.

The Legion's new national commander, addressing a "home-coming" celebration honoring his recent election, said war would mean a virtual dictatorship for America and that the same condition might remain even after peace.

Asserting the "sole remaining hope son" for America to stay clear."

means to pay the exorbitant passenger rates charged by the company."

Denies Rate Increase

A spokesman for the U. S. Lines declared in reply, that "there has been no increase in our rates west-bound for Americans who want to come home."

"We have cabled to our offices in Europe to take any tickets, regardless of what was paid for them, and to bring all Americans home who wanted to come. If an American is destitute, we'll bring him back, too, if he wants to come, and take our chances of reimbursement from the State Department."

The union contended that the liner Shawnee, chartered by the United States Lines to bring Americans home, had sailed from Europe leaving "scores of stranded Americans who were refused passage because they could not meet, in advance, the full exorbitant rate now being charged by the company." The ship arrived Friday with 315 Americans.

Meanwhile, the United States Liner President Roosevelt and the Swedish-American vessel Gripsholm headed for Europe. The President Roosevelt sailed for Cobh and English Channel ports, and the Gripsholm for Gothenburg, Sweden. Only twelve Americans were aboard the two ships.

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Oct. 7—The National Maritime Union (CIO) today charged that scores of Americans had been stranded in Europe because of inability to pay "exorbitant" passage rates, but the charges were quickly denied by an official of the United States Lines.

The union made the allegations in a letter to President Roosevelt which asked that he "appoint a representative to meet with the union and the operators (U. S. Lines) and agree on a method for repatriating without delay Americans caught abroad without

Photographed Polish War

A professional photographer who remained in Warsaw until September 21, said on his return to the United States today he had "never seen a more deadly war" than the one he left in Poland.

"There were more dead by far than during the most hectic day of Verdun, when I served with the French Ambulance Corps," said Julien Bryan. "Civilians were much harder hit than the Polish military forces."

Bryan returned aboard the Swedish-American liner Bergensford with 500 still pictures and 6,000 feet of film showing the destruction of the Polish Capital.

"During the last two weeks I was the only American photographer left in Warsaw," he related. "I stayed there only because I coundn't get out."

Bryan's pictures showed two gaping shell holes in the American Consulate, wrecked hospitals, whole blocks razed by fire, hundreds of dead and injured and indescribable misery of the populace.

One of the scenes he recorded was that of a little girl imploring her dead sister to "tell me what's the matter."

"All the Polish citizens seemed to be made of fine stuff," he added.

"After two weeks under shells and bombs, they even could chuckle when German planes dropped leaflets warning: 'If you do not surrender we shall be obliged to drop bombs and shell you with artillery.'"

2 AMERICANS RUN BRITISH BLOCKADE

Students Back on Scanpenn After Close Call.

BOSTON, Oct. 7 (A. P.).—Two American students who ran the British blockade of the North Sea in the German freighter Ac... said today that the ship's officers declared they would "blow the ship up themselves if we met a British submarine."

M. C. Wicht, 23 years old, of Hattiesburg, Miss., and Lawrence T. McCarthy, 21, of Somerville, who had scholarships for the University of Berlin, returned with 260 passengers from Scandinavian ports on the freighter Scanpenn. Among the passengers were seventy-five Mormon missionaries and fourteen rabbis who had been studying in Poland.

"Everybody was calm on the Scanpenn during the trip," said William Hartman of St. Clair, Mich., "until we heard the report of a warning the Iroquois would be sunk. Most of us thought the report was hoax, but everybody was plenty nervous."

"I had given up all chance of returning alive," McCarthy said. "It was a miracle how the German captain got through the blockade."

He said that the German ship flew a Danish flag when war was declared while they were in mid-Atlantic en route to Germany, and that part of the vessel was painted dark gray during the trip.

"We were forbidden to listen to the radio, and for three nights I slept with all my clothes on and wore a life preserver," he said.

"There was sufficient food, but we were on water rations. The crew appeared resigned to the war and said little, although the chief officer told me they would blow up the ship if we were spotted by a British submarine."

Wicht and McCarthy, who said they had spent all but a few of the last fifty-four days on the water, were dropped at Bergen, Norway.

SOCIAL CRISIS

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Oct. 7—Once there was only one big international "mad" hovering ominously over White House diplomatic receptions ... declared war between Japan and China.

But this season the situation is much more complicated.

Invitations to the winter's most brilliant party will go—if it is not called off—to envoys from Germany, Great Britain, Russia and France, as well as Poland and Czecho Slovakia, which are still recognized by this Government.

Command Appearances

White House invitations usually are considered commands unless one is ill away. The order in which diplomatic guests walk past President and Mrs. Roosevelt is determined by the rank and length of service here of the delegation's head—no matter what one envoy's country thinks of another.

Last winter, the Chinese Ambassador was ill and the new Japanese Ambassador had not yet arrived. The year before, the Chinese Ambassador was surrounded almost constantly at the reception by friends. The Japanese Ambassador and his staff moved quickly in a very close formation and by a path which did not pass the Chinese envoy. They greeted acquaintances briefly and left almost immediately.

May Be Canceled

This year, there's a possibility annual reception may be cancel

Mrs. Roosevelt has said she will not know until the State Department makes up its mind.

If the diplomatic party is given, it is doubtful that Ambassadors and Ministers from warring countries will have to meet face to face—but not impossible.

Possibilities Listed

If they do, they may stare unseeingly, or bow, say good evening and walk away. They might even shake hands. There are precedents in diplomatic circles for all three possibilities.

There is neither a German nor a Russian Ambassador in the capital now, and their absence will ease the situation somewhat. Staffs or their embassies will fall in line according to the rank of the charge d'affaires for their countries. That will be far behind the Polish Ambassador, for instance, whose delegation will be among the first dozen received.

THERE WERE SUGGESTIONS THAT A REGION OF POLAND WOULD BE SET ASIDE FOR JEWS, PROBABLY IN GALICIA WHERE MANY JEWS ALREADY ARE CONCENTRATED. War Turns Life in Europe Topsy Turvey

No Gaiety in Paris —Can't Buy in Berlin —London Sandbagged

Paris, Oct. 7 (AP)—The character of this war is compatible with the spirit of a scientific age. It is cold, unemotional—behind the lines, at any rate.

No parades, no flag waving, no military bands, no prancing chargers, no gay dancing in the streets, no garlands in the hair. The adventure has gone out of it.

One day the citizen soldiers saw their notices of recall, the next they quietly disappeared toward the East. That was all.

Memories of the last war are too vivid in every one's mind for it to be any other way than this.

There is no hatred for the Germans. It is a war against one man. A banner in one of the papers catches your eye on the news stand. "Thirty-fifth day of the war against Hitlerism."

There have been few atrocity stories. It's not considered unpatriotic to play German music as in 1914.

Wiener schnitzel is still called wiener schnitzel on the French menus.

NEW DANGERS FROM THE AIR

Because of the new dangers from the air, the hysterical social life of a capital at war is not possible in 1939. No balls, no gala entertainments. Only a movie open here and there—which will be closed almost before you can finish your dinner. Large crowds dare not congregate now.

And the gaiety of soldiers home on leave—forced gaiety if you please but still a spark in the monotony of war—that, too, may be denied in the war of 1939. The soldiers may not come to Paris—it might invite an aerial attack.

So life drags on behind the front. To the folks who are keeping the home fires burning this new war is not only tragic but dull. Almost unbearably dull. All it has brought them is longer hours of work, higher taxes, higher cost of living. The air raid alarms broke the monotony at first. But now they, too, have become dull.

And they say it may last for three years!

Berlin, Oct. 7 (AP)—If you live in Germany-at-war and want to buy a pair of socks, don't think you can simply enter a men's furnishing store and buy socks at a price and color suited to your needs.

If you, Milady, feel you need an extra pair of "un[illegible]" don't expect the sales lady at a [illegible]oods store to serve you without further ado.

In either case you will be asked, "Where is your 'bezugschein'?" Bezugschein has become a magic word.

It is a certificate entitling the holder to buy a stated article. But the eloquence of a Demosthenes is sometimes necssary to persuade a hard-boiled official that you really and truly need new socks or ladies' underwear.

All over the country and in every city at numerous places, there are "war economy offices." Into the ears of the officials in charge there one must pour one's troubles.

TWO PAIRS TOPS

If the official can be persuaded of the inevitable need of the article in question, he will issue a "bezugschein," or authority to buy, which is taken up by the shopkeeper where the purchase is made.

So long as a man cal call two pairs his own, he must do some tall explaining before he is given the coveted permission to purchase still another pair.

Here is a man asking for permission to buy six new bedspreads. The official in charge looks up surprised and wonders at the daring of his compatriot to ask for six spreads in war-time. When he learns, however, that the man is the owner of a boarding house and that his business will go to pieces unless he can furnish clean sheets to his guests, the official relents and gives him a "bezugsschein" not for six sheets, but for four.

HOSPITALS SPECIAL

Owners of restaurants are also frequent visitors to the local or district war economy office. They must be able to demonstrate that despite unusual care, the wear and tear of their napkins and table cloths has been such that replacement is essential for keeping up the good name of the establishment.

Hospitals are in a preferred class. The authorities realize that in wartime it is more essential than ever that utmost cleanliness prevail. Hence hospitals find no difficulty in obtaining "bezugsschein" for all the textiles of various kinds they may need.

Movie producers must show ample cause for acquiring new materials for costumes, etc., for their casts. The assumption is that each theatrical concern, including film producers, has a vast wardrobe of costumes and materials from previous productions which can be made over. War-time is not considered a propitious time to increase the stock that afterwards lies idle.

LONDON SHOPS AS USUAL

London (AP) — Great Britain, so-called "nation of shopkeepers" has hung out the "business as usual" sign in spite of the exigencies of war.

But war measures like removal of big blocks of civilian population from urban danger areas, the mustering of family heads into military service, blackouts, sandbagged show windows and curtailed transportation have upset retail t[illegible] and children shave[illegible]

Approximately 1,[illegible] women, children and infirm have been hustled out of the big cities into rural England, theoretically safe from aerial bombs because it contains no military objective.

In addition thousands of families voluntarily moved into the country as a matter of personal precaution. Other thousands changed their homes because their firms transferred offices to rural hideouts.

Such a wholesale emigration of buyers from their normal trade areas naturally has disturbed business.

PRICES ARE UP

It is tougher on the little neighborhood shopkeeper. The stores that catered for "carriage trade" haven't suffered so much for many of their patrons, though they have moved miles away, still order by telephone or drive into town on shopping tours. Most of the neighborhood shopkeepers' customers don't have telephones and automobiles.

Prices are up but that isn't the trouble, the shopkeepers say.

Listen to the wail of the owner of a little east end London fruitery—the British version of the American fruit stand usually found in a hole in the wall near the subway entrance, the street car stop, the grammar school.

"Affected me?" he moaned, "Half my business was selling youngsters penny apples, tuppenny oranges. That's all gone now. Their mothers, them as are left, aren't buying either. Don't ask me what they eat, they don't buy it here. And look at them windows (they were closed and sandbagged so entrance to the store was like going in a dugout). How are you going to sell anything if it's hid like that?"

"BUT, IT COULD BE WORSE. I'M TAKING IN ABOUT ENOUGH TO PAY MY RATES (RENTS, TAXES) AND I'VE GOT A PART-TIME JOB WITH THE AXILIARY FIRE SERVICE UNDER THE A.R.P. THAT HELPS. SEE THAT SIGN? IT SAYS 'BUSINESS AS USUAL' AND THAT'S WHAT WE'RE GOING TO DO RIGHT ENOUGH EVEN THOUGH THINGS LOOK A LITTLE DARK FOR A WHILE."

ACROSS THE STREET WAS A SHOE REPAIR SHOP. IT WAS CLOSED. TACKED JAUNTILY ON THE BOARDED DOOR WAS THIS SIGN "'ARF A MO', GONE TO GET HITLER." A NEIGHBOR EXPLAINED THE OWNER HAD BEEN CALLED TO MILITARY DUTY FOR THE DURATION OF THE WAR.

IT WAS THE SAME STORY AT A DINGY LITTLE WORKMAN'S CAFE, ONE OF THOSE PLACES THAT SELL TEA AND A HAM-ROLL FOR FOURPENCE (LESS THAN AMERICA'S DIME). THERE WERE TWO WAITRESSES AND TWO CUSTOMERS ALTHOUGH IT WAS TEATIME. THAT ISN'T NORMAL FOR GREAT BRITAIN. THE OWNER EXPLAINED THE FACTORY FROM WHICH HE DREW MOST OF HIS TRADE HAD MOVED TO THE COUNTRY.

"WHY DON'T YOU MOVE TOO?"

OCT 9 1939

IN A COCKNEY ACCENT AS BRASSY AS BOW BELLS, HE EXPLAINED HIS FATHER AND HIS GRANDFATHER AND AN INTERMINABLE NUMBER OF PROGENITORS HAD DONE BUSINESS AT THIS LITTLE PLACE FOR INTERMINABLE YEARS AND A FELLOW COULDN'T JUST PICK UP AND LEAVE BECAUSE A WAR CAME ALONG. AND ALSO THERE WAS THE QUESTION OF A LEASE. THEY DON'T LEASE BY THE YEAR IN ENGLAND. A SEVEN-YEAR LEASE FOR AN APARTMENT, FOR INSTANCE, IS ABOUT USUAL.

BOARDING HOUSES, SMALL HOTELS, AND THE NURSING HOMES IN THE HARLEY STREET AREA WERE MOSTLY VACANT. A SERVANT'S EMPLOYMENT AGENCY SAID A LOT OF COOKS AND NURSEMAIDS WERE THROWN OUT OF JOBS BY FAMILIES MOVING AWAY BUT THAT ON THE WHOLE THE SLACK SEEMED TAKEN UP BY GIRLS RUSHING JOINING THE AUXILIARY FORCES. THEY LIKE IT BETTER THAN BEING DOMESTICS ANYWAY SAID THE AGENT. "YOU SEE, THERE'S THE UNIFORMS, AND THE BOYS---"

ON THE BRIGHTER SIDE OF THE BUSINESS PICTURE WAS A CHEMIST'S SHOP WHICH REPORTED GOOD TRADE IN AIR RAID PRECAUTIONS MATERIALS, FIRST AID EQUIPMENT, AND FOR SOME REASON A ROARING BUSINESS IN PHOTOGRAPHIC FINISHING.

A LAUNDRY TOO, REPORTED BUSINESS BOOMING AND DRY GOODS STORES SAID THEY WERE EXPERIENCING AT LEAST TEMPORARY PROSPERITY FROM THE SALE OF MATERIALS TO CURTAIN HOMES FOR AIRRAID PRECAUTION BLACKOUTS. FLASHLIGHTS WERE ANOTHER ITEM IN DEMAND. IT'S HARD TO GET AROUND AFTER NIGHTFALL WITHOUT ONE ON THE LIGHTLESS STREETS.

OCT 9 1939

BUT FLORISTS WERE MOANING BECAUSE HOSPITAL PATIENTS HAVE BEEN MOVED TO THE COUNTRY AND BECAUSE THERE AREN'T ANY FANCY WEDDINGS THESE DAYS. THE PAPERS ARE FULL OF ANNOUNCEMENTS THAT SO AND SO'S WEDDING SET FOR SUCH AND SUCH A DATE WAS HELD QUIETLY AT A REGISTRY OFFICE BECAUSE THE GROOM WAS CALLED UP FOR SERVICE.

THE AUTOMOBILE MEN AND FILLING STATION OPERATORS ARE WORRIED ABOUT THE EFFECTS OF RATIONING OF GASOLINE ON THEIR TRADE BUT THEY INTEND, THEY SAY, TO KEEP ON WITH "BUSINESS AS USUAL."

IN FACT SIGNS PROCLAIMING THIS DETERMINATION HAVE BEEN PLASTERED OVER STORES FROM MAYFAIR TO CHEAPSIDE.

THE GLAMOR SHOPS ALONG PICCADILLY AND REGENT STREETS LOOK ODD NOWADAYS WITH THEIR FRONTS SANDBAGGED. THOSE WHICH HAVEN'T

30.24-3931

THEIR WINDOWS FULLY SANDBAGGED HAVE THEM CRISS-CROSSED WITH ADHESIVE TAPE AGAINST SHATTERING BY BLAST--THE FORCE OF BOMB EXPLOSIONS.

THERE IS STILL ANOTHER ANGLE TO THIS WAR FROM THE BUSINESS STANDPOINT--ONE THAT'S PUTTING LINES IN THE FACES OF THE GOURMETS. ABOUT EIGHTY PERCENT OF THE MEMBERS OF THE ASSOCIATION CULINAIRE FRANCAISE HAVE GONE BACK TO FRANCE TO FIGHT FOR THEIR COUNTRY. THAT MEANS THAT EIGHTY PER CENT OF THE FRENCH COOKS WHO DELIGHTED THE PALATES OF HABITUES OF SUCH PLACES AS THE TROCADERO, THE CAFE DE PARIS, FRASCATIS AND THE RITZ, HAVE GONE.

IT'S GOING TO HURT THE RESTAURANT TRADE DESPITE THE FACT WAR WIDOWERS LEFT BEHIND BY WIVES TAKING THE CHILDREN TO SAFE AREAS OR JOINING IN NATIONAL SERVICE ACTIVITIES THAT KEEP THEM TOO BUSY TO PLAN MEALS, MUST EAT OUT SOMEWHERE.

THE DELICATESSENS SAY THEIR COLD MEAT AND CANNED SOUP SALES ARE UP.

Spain's Golden Harvest

OCT 9 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Madrid, Oct. 7—Neutral Spain is reaping a golden harvest from the war in Europe.

"Rivers of gold" are flowing over her frontiers.

Thousands of North and South Americans, Germans, English and French citizens who lived in Southern France during the Spanish civil war are seeking refuge in Spain.

By foot and by automobile, carrying all personal property possible, refugees daily are crowding the frontier at Irun and bringing with them huge stocks of currency that are swelling the banks of Spain.

Hundreds of the refugees are en route to the southern part of Spain, Seville and Gibraltar, or bound for Lisbon, hoping to board ships back to their homelands.

San Sebastian, first big city from the French frontier, is enjoying a full wartime boom. Every hotel and pension is packed, and daily scores of would-be guests are forced to seek a place to sleep and eat in villages farther south.

In San Sebastian alone, in the first three days after France and England declared war against Germany, the banks handled a flood of 24,000,000 French francs, $25,000 and £6,000. The average exchange for francs alone has been 8,000,000 daily.

Exchanges At Banks

Banks are exchanging francs at the rate of 30 pesetas to each 100. The American dollar brings 11.31 pesetas; the English pound, 53.05, and 3.45 pesetas for each reichsmark.

How long this rate, in view of the influx of foreign money, will prevail nobody knows, but so far the Finance Ministry has taken no steps to alter exchange figures. Informed sources say, if and when that is done, the pound and franc will show a drop and the American dollar will be stronger.

Travelers steered clear of Spain during the civil conflict. Now this country looks like a nice, quiet spot for one to settle down and await the outcome of the big war.

Refugees crossing the Irun frontier from Hendaye, France, express themselves as "amazed and surprised at the peace and tranquillity of Spain and the apparent abundance of food."

Spain, truly, has made a remarkable comeback after thirty-two months of the bloodiest, bitterest civil strife Europe ever has known.

The country's harvest of wheat, potatoes, rice and lentils, in addition to fruits and vegetables, has been excellent.

Enough Food Seen

Government agriculture experts say Spain should have enough food, without any importations, to meet normal demands this winter. Already there have been large exports of olive oils and fruits to England, Holland, Germany and Italy, and merchant ships are on their way to the Americas with big cargoes.

Additionally, Spain is starting full-time operations of her mines to pay back some of her war debts in the form of iron and other minerals.

Food prices still are way above the prewar levels, some items being 100 to 300 per cent higher. The Government constantly is waging a campaign to stamp out food profiteering, imposing individual fines that run as high as $30,000.

OCT 9 1939

With her immediate food problems apparently nearly solved, neutral Spain is pushing ahead with her own reconstruction with every Spaniard personally enjoined by Generalissimo Francisco Franco to maintain the "strictest neutrality" in the European war.

30.24-3931

THE MINISTRY OF PUBLIC WORKS SAYS THE NATION'S BOMB-BLASTED RAILWAY SYSTEM WILL BE REPAIRED AND MODERNIZED WITHIN FOUR YEARS.

TWENTY THOUSAND KILOMETERS OF NEW HIGHWAYS AND BRIDGES ARE UNDER CONSTRUCTION.

IN MADRID ALONE, 4,272 HOMES AND BUSINESS BUILDINGS HAVE BEEN REPAIRED AND RECONSTRUCTED SINCE NATIONALISTS ENTERED THE CITY ON MARCH 28, 1939.

OCT 9 1939

THOUSANDS OF FISHING BOATS AND MERCHANT VESSELS ARE BEING REPAIRED WITH LOANS SUPPLIED BY THE GOVERNMENT. A NEW $400,000,000 NAVAL REARMAMENT PROGRAM HAS JUST BEEN STARTED.

SEVEN HUNDRED THOUSAND DEMOBILIZED SOLDIERS OF FRANCO'S WARTIME ARMY OF OVER 1,000,000 ARE WORKING ALONGSIDE 600,000 REPUBLICAN WAR PRISONERS IN RECONSTRUCTION TASKS.

AND WHILE NEUTRAL SPAIN GOES ABOUT HER OWN TASKS, THE "RIVERS OF GOLD" POURING OVER HER FRONTIERS IS HELPING TO PROVIDE THE FOREIGN MONIES BADLY NEEDED TO SUPPLY THOSE RECONSTRUCTION MATERIALS WHICH SPAIN DOES NOT POSSESS.

(ADVANCE) BERNE, SWITZERLAND (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)- LANGUAGE HAS ASSUMED TREMENDOUS IMPORTANCE IN EUROPE WHERE EVERYBODY IS ON THE LOOKOUT FOR SPIES--INCLUDING THE SPIES THEMSELVES.

IN FRANCE, YOU CAN SPEAK NOTHING BUT FRENCH ON THE TELEPHONE. IN GERMANY, IT'S NOTHING BUT GERMAN.

IN SWITZERLAND, POLITE BUT FIRM OPERATORS FREQUENTLY BREAK IN ON TELEPHONE CONVERSATIONS BETWEEN ONE SWISS CITY AND ANOTHER SWISS CITY TO SAY "WILL YOU PLEASE SPEAK THE LANGUAGE OF THE COUNTRY?"

OCT 9 1939

THAT MEANS A CHOICE OF FOUR LANGUAGES--FRENCH, GERMAN, ITALIAN OR THE STRANGE ROMANSCH WHICH BELONGS TO THE ROMANTIC LANGUAGE GROUP AND IS SPOKEN ONLY IN SOUTHEASTERN SWITZERLAND. ALL FOUR ARE NATIONAL LANGUAGES AND RECOGNIZED AS SUCH.

PEOPLE OF FOREIGN DESCENT LIVING IN THE VARIOUS COUNTRIES ARE HAVING A TERRIBLE TIME, FOR THE EVER-PRESENT LISTENING EAR OF THE OPERATOR OR THE CONTROL BOARD TAKES NO CHANCES.

FREQUENTLY INTERNATIONAL TELEPHONE CONVERSATIONS ARE CUT OFF ABRUPTLY WHEN AN ANONYMOUS VOICE BREAKS IN. IT GOES SOMETHING LIKE THIS:

VOICE (INTERRUPTING): "M'SIEU, WILL YOU PLEASE TALK FRENCH!"

OTHER END: "BUT, MADEMOISELLE, I AM TALKING FRENCH."

VOICE (COLDLY): "IT DOESN'T SOUND LIKE FRENCH TO ME."

OTHER END: "LISTEN, MADEMOISELLE, I'M NOT A PROFESSOR OF LANGUAGES, I'M JUST A ....."

CLICK! THE CONNECTION IS CUT. MAYBE HE'LL GET THROUGH AGAIN AND MAYBE HE WON'T.

ONCE ON A CALL FROM BERNE TO GENEVA A CORRESPONDENT BEGAN TO TALK ENGLISH. MUCH TO [redacted] SURPRISE THE CONVERSATION WAS NOT CUT OFF. HE WAS WARNED [redacted] TO CONTINUE IN FRENCH, BUT A HAPPY LITTLE VOICE CUT IN.

"IT'S ALL RIGHT THIS TIME, M'SIEU. MY ENGLISH, SHE IS NOT VERY GOOD, BUT I UNDERSTAND - NO?"

THEN THERE WAS THE RUMANIAN BUSINESS MAN IN BERNE WHO TOOK CRUEL ADVANTAGE OF THE FACT THAT MANY A SWISS WHO SPEAKS FIVE OR SIX LANGUAGE DOES NOT KNOW THAT PECULIAR ROMANSCH WHICH IS ONE OF THE OFFICIALLY RECOGNIZED TONGUES OF HIS OWN COUNTRY.

THE RUMANIAN MANAGED TO GET THROUGH AN URGENT CALL TO BUCHAREST FROM BERNE AND BEGAN JABBERING AWAY IN HIS OWN TONGUE. "CLICK" AND IN CAME THE OPERATOR.

"PLEASE SPEAK THE NATIONAL LANGUAGE," SHE SAID TARTLY.

"BUT I AM," INSISTED THE RUMANIAN, THINKING FAST, "I'M TALKING ROMANSCH."

OCT 9 1939

"OH," SAID THE OPERATOR, "EXCUSE IT PLEASE."

AND THE CONVERSATION IN RUMANIAN WENT BLITHELY ON.

BICYCLES HAVE LARGELY REPLACED AUTOMOBILES IN THE STREETS OF ITALIAN CITIES, BECAUSE OF THE BAN ON PRIVATE MOTORING AND THE HIGH PRICE OF GASOLINE--ABOUT 95 CENTS A GALLON--TO CONSERVE THE PRECIOUS STOCKS.

MANY AUTOMOBILE OWNERS, WITH THEIR CARS LOCKED IN GARAGES, HAVE TAKEN TO CYCLING. EVEN MEN OF POSITION ARE AFFECTED. ONE OF THE ARCHITECTS WHO DESIGNED THE ITALIAN BUILDING AT THE NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR IS AN EXAMPLE. SPIES OVERRUN SWITZERLAND

BOTH ARMY AND CIVIL AUTHORITIES

IN CAMPAIGN TO WEED THEM OUT

OF COUNTRY (550)

OCT 9 1939

BY CHARLES FOLTZ,JR.

(ADVANCE) BERNE,SWITZERLAND (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS)-SPIES HAVE BEEN DRAWN TO SWITZERLAND IN LARGER NUMBERS.

MANY CAME WEEKS BEFORE WAR BEGAN, SENT BY THEIR GOVERNMENTS ON THE CONVICTION THAT THE CONFLICT WAS NOT FAR OFF.

SOME GOT IN JUST "UNDER THE WIRE," WHEN THE SWISS SLAPPED DOWN ORDERS THAT ALL FOREIGNERS MUST OBTAIN VISAS FROM SWISS CONSULATES AND TIGHTENED UP ON VISA RESTRICTIONS.

OTHERS HAVE COME IN WITH DIPLOMATIC CREDENTIALS--OR AT LEAST THAT'S WHAT THEIR DIPLOMATIC COLLEAGUES IN OTHER LEGATIONS SAY--IN ORDER TO GIVE THEM A CERTAIN ACCREDITED STATUS.

MANY HAVE LONG BEEN IN SWITZERLAND--ESTABLISHED WITH THE PERPETUAL THREAT OF WAR THAT HUNG SO LONG OVER EUROPE IT WAS IN ITSELF AN EXCELLENT REASON FOR PREPAREDNESS.

THERE ARE, OF COURSE, SPIES AND SPIES. SOME ARE COMPARATIVELY HARMLESS, POORLY PAID INDIVIDUALS WHO DO LITTLE MORE THAN TRANSLATE WHAT PUBLIC DOCUMENTS THEY CAN GET THEIR HANDS ON TO JUSTIFY THEIR EXISTENCE.

SOME ON THE OTHER HAND ARE OF THE TYPE LOVED SO WELL ON STAGE AND SCREEN--MYSTERIOUS FELLOWS WITH MYSTERIOUS OCCUPATIONS.

THE MAIN DIFFERENCE BETWEEN FICTION AND FACT, HOWEVER, IS THAT THE BEST SPIES DON'T LOOK LIKE SPIES. AS ONE SWISS OFFICIAL ONCE SAID "THE DUMBER AND MORE INNOCENT THEY LOOK THE MORE REASON THERE IS TO SUSPECT THAT THEY'RE NOT ONLY SPIES BUT GOOD ONES."

OCT 9 1939

GEOGRAPHICALLY SWITZERLAND, A NEUTRAL STATE WITH BELLIGERENT GERMANY ON ONE SIDE, BELLIGERENT FRANCE ON THE OTHER AND NEUTRAL ITALY ON THE SOUTH, IS IDEAL HUNTING GROUND FOR SPIES.

THE SWISS THEMSELVES ARE DOING THEIR BEST TO MAKE ESPIONAGE TOUGH FOR THE SPIES. ALL THEIR POLICEMEN HAVE BEEN TURNED INTO SPY HUNTERS THE FEDERAL POLICE AND THE MILITARY COUNTER-ESPIONAGE SERVICE HAVE BEEN AUGMENTED.

(ADVANCE FOR AMS OF SUNDAY, OCTOBER 8)

(ADVANCE)-XXXXX BERNE--FIRST ADD FOLTZ' SWISS SPY ADVANCE XXX HAVE BEEN AUGMENTED.

FURTHERMORE THE FEDERAL COUNCIL HAS FULL POWERS SELDOM GRANTED TO A GOVERNMENT IN DEMOCRATIC SWITZERLAND. THE ARMY, NOW AT ITS MOBILIZATION STRENGTH OF 500,000, ALSO HAS WIDE POWERS.

BETWEEN THEM THEY'RE OPERATING A "SPY-SWATTING" MACHINE THAT MAKES THE SPY'S LIFE IN SWITZERLAND NOT AN EASY ONE. PARTICULARLY SO BECAUSE, CONTRARY TO THE DIME NOVELS AND MOVIE ROMANCES, HONOR DOES NOT ALWAYS EXIST AMONG SPIES.

SPY FOR POWER "A" DISCOVERS THAT SO-AND-SO IS A SPY FOR POWER "B". THE SWISS AUTHORITIES GET AN ANONYMOUS LETTER AND THUS ENDETH THE CAREER OF THE SPY FOR POWER "B".

ESPIONAGE IN GENERAL IS A DELICATE SUBJECT IN SWITZERLAND. THE SWISS, WHOSE ECONOMY IS IN LARGE PART BASED ON THE HOTEL INDUSTRY AND ON FOREIGN TRADE, HAVE A KNACK FOR LANGUAGES. RARE IS THE SWISS WHO DOES NOT SPEAK AT LEAST TWO LANGUAGES. FURTHERMORE, THE SWISS ARE GREAT PATRIOTS, AND IT'S NOT MUCH OF AN EXAGGERATION TO SAY THAT EVERY SWISS CITIZEN IS AUTOMATICALLY A MEMBER OF THE SWISS COUNTER-ESPIONAGE SERVICE.

THEY'VE BEEN THROUGH ALL THIS BEFORE. EVERY SWISS REMEMBERS HIS COUNTRY'S TROUBLES WITH SPIES DURING THE WORLD WAR AND PROFITS THEREBY.

OCT 9 1939

DURING THE WORLD WAR THERE WERE TWO TREMENDOUS SCANDALS NOT LIKELY TO BE REPEATED THIS TIME.

ONE FORCED THE RESIGNATION OF ARTHUR HOFFMAN, FORMER PRESIDENT OF THE SWISS REPUBLIC AND AT THE TIME WHEN THE SCANDAL BROKE, SWISS

30.24-3935

FOREIGN MINISTER. HE TOOK PART IN AN INTRIGUE TO TRY AND DETACH RUSSIA FROM THE ALLIES.

THE OTHER SCANDAL BROKE OUT WHEN TWO COLONELS OF THE SWISS ARMY WERE FOUND TO BE DELIVERING COPIES OF THE REPORTS OF SWISS ARMY OBSERVERS ON THE FRONTIERS CONCERNING TROOP MOVEMENTS IN FRANCE TO THE GERMAN LEGATION AT BERNE.

THERE IS NO DIFFICULTY ABOUT OBTAINING FASCINATING INFORMATION IN SWITZERLAND THESE WAR DAYS. CAFES, HOTEL LOBBIES AND PUBLIC PLACES OF ALL SORTS LITERALLY DRIP WITH IT. THE ONLY DIFFICULTY IS TO ASCERTAIN WHAT SMALL PERCENTAGE OF SUCH INFORMATION IS TRUE.

ONCE THAT HAS BEEN DONE IT'S EASY ENOUGH TO GET IT OUT OF SWITZERLAND, FOR THE MAILS, THOUGH DELAYED, STILL FUNCTION. SWITZERLAND FURTHERMORE HAS EXCELLENT COMMUNICATIONS WITH ALL NEUTRAL CAPITALS--BY TELEPHONE, RADIO OR TELEGRAPH.

THE KNOWLEDGE THAT SPIES ARE AT WORK IN SWITZERLAND HAS LED TO A SORT OF "HUSH-HUSH" CAMPAIGN WHICH IS FREQUENTLY JUST PLAIN FUNNY. NICE OLD LADIES, OBVIOUSLY IN SWITZERLAND JUST TO STAY OUT OF DANGER, WHISPER MYSTERIOUSLY TO EACH OTHER BEHIND PERFUMED HANDKERCHIEFS.

FREQUENTLY PEOPLE FIND THAT THE PERSON THEY'VE BEEN SO SUSPICIOUS ABOUT IS NOTHING MORE NOR LESS THAN SOME PERFECTLY INNOCENT SWISS CITIZEN MINDING HIS OWN BUSINESS.

DENMARK, FOOD PANTRY OF EUROPE, FEELS PINCH
OF WAR AS FISHING FLEETS CLING TO SHORES AND SUGAR SHORTAGE LEAVES FRUIT HARVEST TO SPOIL. (550)

BY MILO M.THOMPSON

(ADVANCE) COPENHAGEN,DENMARK,OCT.7-(AP)-THE CYCLING NATION OF DENMARK, WHICH SUPPLIES PRODUCE BOTH OF LAND AND SEA FOR THE TABLES OF EUROPE, NOT TO MENTION ENTERTAINERS FOR CAFES AND THEATRES, WOKE UP THE SUNNY MONDAY AFTER WAR BEGAN TO FIND HER EXPORT BUSINESS PARTLY PARALYZED AND HER ENTERTAINERS FLOCKING HOME.

NERVOUSNESS WAS DUE TO THE FACT THAT THIS LAND OF DENMARK, WHICH POSSESSES BOTH MUGE GREENLAND AND THE FAROE ISLANDS AND WHOSE KING RULES ICELAND, DIVIDES THE BRITISH DOMINATED NORTH SEA FROM THE GERMAN DOMINATED BALTIC. CAUGHT BETWEEN TWO POWERFUL BELLIGERENTS, IT APPEARED LIKELY HER SHIPPING INDUSTRY WOULD BE CRIPPLED, HER FISHING FLEETS KEPT IN PORT AND HER FINE HARVESTS MADE PROFITLESS.

SOME OF THE FEARS WERE QUICKLY REALIZED. SHIPS BEGAN TO ARRIVE DAYS LATE OR NOT AT ALL, OR TO KEEP CAUTIOUSLY IN PORT. FEW OF THE SHIPS OF BELLIGERENT NATIONS CONTINUED TO CALL AT HER PORTS. THERE WERE MINE FIELDS ON BOTH SIDES OF HER AND, TO PROTECT HER HARBORS, SHE HAD LAID A FEW OF HER OWN.

THE FISHING FLEETS, AFTER A FEW DISASTERS AND NARROW ESCAPES FROM MINES, WENT OUT NO MORE. IT WAS ESTIMATED THAT AT ESBJERG ALONE, THE CITY DANES LIKE TO CALL THE CHICAGO OF DENMARK, 1500 FISHERMEN

OCT 9 1939

HAD BECOME UNEMPLOYED.

DENMARK HAS A COMMON BORDER WITH GERMANY. IN NORMAL TIMES SHE HAS FAST EXPRESS SERVICE BETWEEN COPENHAGEN AND BERLIN. WITH THE COMING OF WAR, THE FAST TRAICS DISAPPEARED IN ALL BUT NAME. COMMUNICATION CONTINUED, HOWEVER, ON A SLOWER SCHEDULE AND FROM THAT DIRECTION AND OTHERS CAME FLOCKING HOME DANISH ENTERTAINERS AND WITH THEM A FLOOD OF NATIONALS OF NEUTRAL COUNTRIES SEEKING TEMPORARY HAVEN. THERE WERE OVER A THOUSAND AMERICANS STILL IN COPENHAGEN WHEN THE WAR WAS TWO WEEKS OLD. MANY OF THESE AND OTHER NATIONALS WANTED SOMETHING TO DO. THE PROSPECTS OF THIS CONTINUING INDEFINITELY PRESENTED A PROBLEM.

DENMARK DID NOT TRY TO SOLVE IT, AS SWEDEN DID HER SIMILAR PROBLEM, BY LIMITING THE TIME FOREIGNERS MIGHT STAY ON HER SHORES BUT, FOR THE BENEFIT OF HER ENTERTAINERS, SHE DECREED THAT NO FOREIGN ENTERTAINERS COULD BE EMPLOYED.

OCT 9 1939

WAR BROUGHT OTHER RESTRICTIONS. WITH WAR SO CLOSE, IT BECAME NECESSARY TO CONSERVE GASOLINE. BUT THAT APPEARED TO BE NO GREAT HARDSHIP IN A LAND WHERE ONE IS LIKELY TO MEET KING CHRISTIAN X HIMSELF ON HIS BICYCLE WAITING FOR TRAFFIC LIGHTS TO CHANGE.

THE CHIEF PROBLEMS WHICH FACED THE GOVERNMENT OF DENMARK AFTER WAR BEGAN MAY HAVE BEEN THE PRESERVATION OF ITS NATIONAL ECONOMY, BUT SCARCELY SECOND TO THAT WAS THE PROBLEM OF PRESERVING A THREATENED NEUTRALITY. THIS WAS A LIVE CONCERN, SO CLOSE WAS SHE TO THE THEATRE OF WAR. THE PORT OF ESBJERG WAS BOMBED. EVIDENCE INDICATED A LOST BRITISH FLIER WAS RESPONSIBLE. HE HAD EITHER BEEN FORCED TO LIGHTEN HIS LOAD OVER WHAT HE THOUGHT WAS OPEN SEA OR HE HAD MISSED HIS WAY AND MISTAKEN ESBJERG FOR A GERMAN PORT. IT WAS OBVIOUSLY SUCH AN ERROR IN IDENTIFICATION WHICH MADE BRITISH FLIERS SHOWER LEAFLETS OVER THE DANISH BORDERLAND LATER.

BUT THE BRITISH WERE NOT THE ONLY ONES WHICH MADE MISTAKES. A GERMAN PLANE BROUGHT FIRE FROM A DANISH TORPEDO BOAT. IT WAS LATER EXPLAINED THAT IT WAS INSPECTING MINE FIELDS AND MADE AN ERROR.

THERE WERE IMPERSONAL REMINDERS OF WAR, TOO, IN ENGLISH ANTI-AIRRAID BARRAGE BALLOONS WHICH, HAVING BROKEN AWAY ACROSS THE SEA, DRIFTED HERE, THEIR STEEL CABLES DOING DAMAGE TO POWER LINES BEFORE THEY WERE BROUGHT DOWN.

MORE REGULAR, HOWEVER, WERE THE REMINDERS IN THE FORM OF STRANDED AND MINED OR TORPEDOED SHIPS SEEN IN DISTRESS OFFSHORE OR NOT SEEN AT ALL, AS IN THE CASE OF ONE WHICH BLEW UP SO FAR OUT ITS CREW HAD TO ROW 36 HOURS TO REACH SAFETY.

THE WAR MADE TELEPHONE CONNECTIONS SLOW AT FIRST, BUT A PATIENT WAITER WOULD USUALLY GET THROUGH TO THE PRINCIPAL GERMAN OR DUTCH CITIES.

COMES WAR, COMES FOOD TROUBLE. VISITORS IN DENMARK, ALWAYS INTERESTED IN THE PLENITUDE OF DANISH FARE, THE HUGE PORTIONS, THE THICK SAUCES, THE RICH PASTRIES, THE GREAT SERVINGS OF BUTTER AND LARD (WHICH MANY DANES USE LIKE BUTTER) LOOKED FOR SIGNS OF RESTRICTIONS THERE.

OCT 9 1939

THE MOST SERIOUS BLOW TO HOUSEWIVES SEEMED TO BE IN THE SCARCITY OF SUGAR. IN THIS LAND OF MILK AND JAM, THERE SEEMED TO BE TROUBLE IN THE JAM DEPARTMENT. THE FRUIT HARVEST HAS BEEN THE LARGEST IN YEARS BUT, WITHOUT PLENTY OF SUGAR FOR PRESERVING, IT IS SPOILing

30.24-3937

ING FAST. REFUGEES FROM OTHER LANDS WERE TEMPORARILY ELATED AND SET TO WORK TRYING TO SAVE THE FRUIT BY EATING IT. ONE COULD GORGE ONES SELF FOR THE EQUIVALENT OF AN AMERICAN NICKEL.

ALL THE SCANDINAVIAN COUNTRIES ARE FISH EXPORTERS BUT, WITH NO FISHING FLEETS OUT AND NO FISH COMING IN, THEY HAVE ALREADY HAD TO BEGIN CONSERVATION PROGRAMS TO BE SURE OF ENOUGH TO EAT THEMSELVES.

(ADVANCE) BERNE, SWITZERLAND (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS) --A HANDSOME, 65-YEAR-OLD GENTLEMAN FARMER IS GENERALISSIMO OF A STRONGHOLD OF DEMOCRATIC NEUTRALITY IN WAR TORN EUROPE.

GENERAL HENRI GUISAN WAS ELECTED. HE STOOD AS A COLONEL ON THE FLOOR OF THE SWISS PARLIAMENT AND WALKED OUT A GENERAL WITH THE CHEERS OF THE NATIONAL AND STATE COUNCILMEN RINGING IN HIS EARS.

OUTSIDE THE BUNDESHAUS, THOUSANDS OF BERNOIS MASSED IN THE SQUARE CHEERING THE SLIM, STRAIGHT, BLUE-EYED MAN WHO STOOD BEFORE THEM ON THE STEPS OF THE CAPITOL WITH BALD LITTLE PRESIDENT PILIPPE ETTER, STANDING BESIDE HIM.

IT WAS AUGUST 30. FRANCE HAD DECREED GENERAL MOBILIZATION. GERMANY WAS PREPARING TO MARCH INTO POLAND. BRITAIN STOOD WITH FRANCE. GERMANY MARCHED INTO POLAND TWO DAYS LATER AND FOUR DAYS LATER BRITAIN AND FRANCE WERE AT WAR.

GUISAN SALUTED THE CROWD AND BUZZED OFF TO HIS HEADQUARTERS. TWELVE HOURS LATER--AT NOON AUG. 31--SWISS RADIO STATIONS BROADCAST THE GENERAL MOBILIZATION ORDER.

OCT 9 1939

THE RESULT ASTOUNDED EVEN THE SWISS. MEN WERE TO REPORT AT THEIR STATIONS ON THE NEXT DAY, BUT WITHIN AN HOUR AFTER THE RADIO ANNOUNCEMENT CIVILIANS AT HOME FOR LUNCH HAD STEPPED INTO THEIR GREY-GREEN UNIFORMS, HAD TAKEN THEIR ARMY RIFLES OFF THE HOOK ON THE WALL AND WERE MOVING THROUGH THE STREETS OF THE CITIES AND DOWN THE SLOPES OF THE ALPINE COUNTRYSIDE.

WITHIN THIRTYSIX HOURS, MOBILIZATION WAS COMPLETE AND SWITZERLAND'S CITIZEN ARMY 500,000 STRONG IN A NATION OF ONLY FOUR MILLION INHABITANTS WERE AT THEIR MOBILIZATION CENTERS. ANOTHER DAY AND THEY WERE AT THEIR POSTS, RIDING ON THE CRACK ELECTRIC NETWORK OF FAST SWISS RAILWAYS.

GUISAN, GENERALISSIMO OF THIS CRACK ARMY OF SHARPSHOOTERS AND AN AIR FORCE TRAINED TO THE DANGEROUS FLYING THAT SWITZERLAND'S ALPS AFFORD, IS THE FOURTH MAN TO HOLD THE TITLE OF GENERAL SINCE THE SWISS CANTONS, UNITED UNDER WILLIAM TELL IN 1291, WERE FEDERATED IN 1815.

THE LAST GENERAL, ULRICH WILLE, SERVED DURING THE FOUR YEARS OF THE WORLD WAR. THEN, HOWEVER, SWITZERLAND WAS DIVIDED IN ITS SYMPATHIES AND WILLE, OF GERMAN EXTRACTION, WAS NOT POPULAR IN FRENCH AND ITALIAN SPEAKING SWITZERLAND.

NOW SWITZERLAND, NEUTRAL AS A COUNTRY BUT VIOLENTLY PARTISAN AS A PEOPLE, ARE ROOTING UNANIMOUSLY FOR A FRENCH-BRITISH VICTORY OVER NAZI GERMANY. THEIR HANDSOME, POPULAR, FRENCH SWISS GENERAL BECAME A HERO OVERNIGHT.

IN GERMAN SPEAKING, FRENCH SPEAKING, ITALIAN SPEAKING AND ROMANCHE SPEAKING SWITZERLAND PICTURES OF GUISAN ARE EVERYWHERE. EVERY TOBACCO AND STATIONARY STORE SELLS POSTCARD PICTURES OF THE GENERAL, MOST EVERY OFFICE AND HOME HAS A PICTURE OF HIM IN A PROMINENT PLACE.

ON HIS FIRST TOUR OF INSPECTION, HE WAS LITERALLY MOBBED BY SWISS IN BASEL, IN LAUSANNE, IN GENEVA, IN LUCERNE AND IN ZURICH. HIS SOUTHERN SWISS CHARM CAPTIVATED THEM, HIS EASY-GOING FAMILIARITY WITH COMMON SOLDIERS IN THE DEMOCRATIC ARMY HAS UNITED HIS FIGHTING MEN BEHIND HIM, HIS EFFORTS TO FREE CITIZEN SOLDIERS ESSENTIAL TO SWISS ECONOMIC LIFE HAS MADE HIM POPULAR WITH PEASANTS AND BUSINESS MEN ALIKE.

GUISAN IS NO HEEL-CLICKING PRODUCT OF EUROPE'S MILITARY COLLEGES, BUT A GENTLEMAN FARMER WITH A FLARE OF TACTICS, A KEEN JUDGMENT OF MEN AND A LOVE OF THE CAMARADERIE OF MILITARY LIFE.

HE WAS BORN IN THE JORAT REGION OF FRENCH SPEAKING VAUD CANTON BEHIND LAUSANNE NEAR LAKE LEMAN, ON OCTOBER 21, 1874. HIS FAMILY WAS OF OLD VAUDOIS STOCK; HIS FATHER WAS A WELL-TO-DO DOCTOR IN MEZIERES, CENTER OF THE JORAT WHERE THE WINTERS ARE LONG AND THE FORESTS AND FIELDS FAMED FOR THEIR BEAUTY.

HE WENT TO THE CLASSICAL SCHOOL OF NEARBY LAUSANNE AND TOOK AN ARTS DEGREE FROM LAUSANNE UNIVERSITY. AT BOTH SCHOOL AND UNIVERSITY, HE WAS A LEADER OF THE SEMI-MILITARY CADET FORMATIONS, WHICH ARE IN MOST SWISS EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS.

LIKE ALMOST EVERY SWISS HE SPOKE THE THREE NATIONAL LANGUAGES, FRENCH, GERMAN AND ITALIAN, BY THE TIME HE GRADUATED AT LAUSANNE. HE WAS NO GREAT SHAKES AS A CLASSICAL SCHOLAR AND HE DECIDED HE WANTED TO BE A FARMER. HIS FAMILY SENT HIM TO SEVERAL GERMAN AGRICULTURAL SCHOOLS AND HE RETURNED TO BECOME MANAGER AND PART OWNER OF A LARGE FARM NEAR THE CANTON OF FRIBOURG IN THE VAUD.

AT TWENTYSEVEN, HE MARRIED A CHILDHOOD SWEETHEART, MARY DOELKER, DAUGHTER OF A LAUSANNE MERCHANT. HE DID HIS SERVICE IN THE NATIONAL MILITIA FOR FIRST THE REQUIRED EIGHTY-EIGHT DAYS AND THEN FOR ELEVEN DAYS EACH YEAR.

BY 1901, GUISAN DECIDED HE PREFERRED ARMY LIFE TO FARMING. HE JOINED THE SMALL PERMANENT STAFF OF REGULAR ARMY OFFICERS AND THREE YEARS LATER HAD BEEN PROMOTED A CAPTAIN BY THE VAUD CANTONAL AUTHORITIES.

LIKE GUISAN, MOST SWISS OFFICERS HAD OUTSIDE INCOMES, BUT PREFERRED

TO DEVOTE THEIR MAIN WORK TO THE ARMY. LIKE GUISAN, THEY ALL ASPIRED TO THE TOP RANKS TO WHICH ONLY THE FEDERAL AUTHORITIES COULD PROMOTE THEM. THE SWISS FEDERAL AUTHORITIES ARE NOTORIOUSLY A HARD-HEADED LOT OF PRACTICAL MEN AND THEY'VE SELDOM BEEN ACCUSED OF FAVORITISM.

BY 1909, THEY HAD SIGNALED OUT GUISAN AND MADE HIM A MAJOR. HE WAS GIVEN COMMAND OF AN INFANTRY UNIT AND SUCCEEDED SO WELL IN TRAINING HIS TROOPS THAT HE WAS MADE A LIEUTENANT COLONEL ON THE GENERAL STAFF OF THE SECOND DIVISION. FINALLY, HE WAS NAMED A COLONEL, TOP RANK IN SWITZERLAND'S PEACE TIME ARMY, IN 1921, COMMANDING THE FIFTH BRIGADE OF INFANTRY.

BY 1933, HE COMMANDED THE SECOND ARMY CORPS AND TURNED IN SUCH A RECORD OF ACHIEVEMENT THAT HE WAS ONE OF FOUR COLONEL'S WHO DRAFTED THE SWISS ARMY REORGANIZATION PLANS, RAISING ITS EFFECTIVES FROM A POSSIBLE 260,000 TO 500,000, IN 1936.

WHEN SWITZERLAND NEEDED A GENERAL AS THE CRISIS SWELLED TOWARD WAR IN EUROPE THIS FALL, GUISAN WAS THE LOGICAL CHOICE. THE GOVERNMENT BACKED HIM AND THE ASSEMBLY OF THE TWO HOUSES OF PARLIAMENT ELECTED HIM BY A TOTAL OF 204 VOTES OUT OF A POSSIBLE 229.

A MOBILIZED NATION KEEPS GUISAN BUSY, BUT WHEN HE GETS TIME HE STILL GOES BACK TO HIS FARM IN THE VAUD WHERE HIS TWO CHILDREN, HENRI JUNIOR AND MYRIAM, BOTH GROWN UP NOW AND WITH CHILDREN OF THEIR OWN, FREQUENTLY VISIT THEIR PARENTS.

OCT 9 1939

THROUGHOUT HIS ARMY CAREER GUISAN HAS LAID THE EMPHASIS ON SPORTS TRAINING FOR YOUNG SWISS. HE IS HONORARY PRESIDENT OF A DOZEN SKIING CLUBS AND ACTIVE PRESIDENT OF SEVERAL MILITARY YOUTH SPORTS GROUPS.

HIS OFFICERS LIKE HIM BECAUSE HE IS ACCESSIBLE, OBLIGING AND YET QUICK TO MAKE HIS DECISIONS. HIS MEN LIKE HIM BECAUSE, AS A WRITER IN A BERNE PAPER SAID, HE "KNOWS HOW TO TALK OUR LANGUAGES--ALL OF THEM--WITH HONEST AND SIMPLE TALK ANYONE CAN UNDERSTAND."

THE SWISS, FAMED AS MARKSMEN, ARE QUICK TO TAKE EVERY OPPORTUNITY TO STUDY THE MILITARY METHODS OF THEIR NEIGHBORS IN EUROPE AND SWISS MILITARY OBSERVERS HAVE BEEN PRESENT AT ALMOST ALL THE ARMY MANEUVERS OF THE POWERS SINCE THE WORLD WAR.

GUISAN WAS NO EXCEPTION, AND HE'S SEEN THE FRENCH, THE GERMAN AND THE ITALIAN ARMIES ON MANEUVERS IN RECENT YEARS.

"WHEN OUR NEIGHBORS BEGIN FIGHTING THEY MIGHT TRY TO TAKE A SHORTCUT THROUGH SWITZERLAND," SAID AN OFFICER APPLAUDING THE CHOICE OF GUISAN, "SO IT'S JUST AS WELL THAT WE HAVE A MAN IN CHARGE WHO KNOWS ALL THEIR TRICKS."

NATIONS AGREE TO PUSH TRADE PROGRAM AT FAST PACE AND ON BIG SCALE

OCT 9 1939

Each To Begin At Once To Supply Other With Materials—Finland Seeks Swedish-German Aid In Blocking Soviet Demands

By WITT HANCOCK
Associated Press Correspondent

Moscow, Oct. 8—Germany and Soviet Russia have agreed to realize their program of economic collaboration "at rapid pace and on a large scale," a Soviet communique said tonight.

"In particular, agreement was reached that the U. S. S. R. should immediately begin supplying Germany materials and Germany filling orders for the U. S. S. R.," the announcement by Tass, official Soviet news agency, said.

Follows Conference

The communique was issued following a conference between Vyacheslaff Molotoff, Premier and Commissar of Foreign Affairs, and a special German trade delegation headed by Karl Ritter, former German Ambassador to Brazil.

"It was agreed in the course of conversations that the economic program, concerning which an understanding had been reached during the last visit of the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Joachim von Ribbentrop, to Moscow, would be realized by both parties at a rapid pace and on a large scale," Tass said.

Sequel To Agreement

FINLAND THREATENED

The conference followed the visit of Von Ribbentrop to Moscow September 28 and a friendship agreement announced September 29 to "consult each other as to necessary measures" to co-operate to restore peace and to work out an economic program so that "the volume of the German-Soviet exchange of goods will again attain a high peak."

(The semiofficial commentary Dienst aus Deutschland said on September 29 the day the new German-Russian trade agreement was announced, that it placed Germany in a position to wage a war of "optional length."

(Besides opening a new source for raw materials, the commentary said the pact made it possible for part of Germany's Far Eastern business to be handled over Russian railways.

BIG TRADE PREDICTED

(Authoritative Nazi sources said at that time German-Russian business likely would reach $440,000,000 annually under the new agreement. This almost would equal the 1931 figure, the best trade year for the two countries since the world war.)

Meanwhile, Soviet Russia pressed her expansion campaign in the Baltic.

Reliable reports tonight said Finland was seeking diplomatic aid of Sweden and Germany to forestall what she feared might be "excessive" demands from Soviet Russia.

(In Helsinki, however, the Finnish Prime Minister said Finland was "calm" and without "the slightest nervousness" over negotiations with the Soviet Union.)

FINNS SENDING ENVOY

The Finns yesterday accepted a Russian invitation for conversations in Moscow similar to those which have resulted in two Baltic nations, Estonia and Latvia, granting broad military and economic concessions to Russia.

Finland named her Minister to Sweden, Juhu Kusti Paasikivi, head of a delegation for the Moscow talks. He was expected to arrive soon.

The Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, Russia's Parliament, meanwhile ratified the Estonian-Soviet mutual assistance pact which was concluded October 5.

NAZIS IN MOSCOW

A German trade delegation arrived seeking new markets under terms of the Soviet-German trade agreement. Foreign observers were dubious of what aid Russia might be able to give the Germans except in wheat and timber.

The Foreign Ministers of Turkey and Lithuania were in Moscow on important missions.

It was expected an agreement would be reached quickly with the Lithuanian Foreign Minister, Juozas Urbsys, probably giving Russia military and naval concessions and rights of transit such as Estonia and Latvia yielded.

Thus Lithuania, which borders Germany, would become a virtual Russian protectorate as have the other small Baltic nations through treaties hastily negotiated while Germany was locked in war with Britain and France.

...s preliminary of ration ... cooking fat ... sugar.

The Turkish Foreign Minister, Sukru Saracoglu, attended a concert tonight as his talks with Soviet authorities lagged, apparently because a Turkish military mission ... is visiting London.

It was considered significant that Finland chose as her representative a man who is well informed on Swedish views. Paasikivi conducted peace negotiations with Russia in 1920.

Informed Moscow sources predicted Finland would not resist any "reasonable" Soviet demands, but that she might prove a tougher customer than the little Baltic states if the price asked was high.

Trade Talks Expected

Finnish dispatches said the choice of Paasikivi, who is president of the Foreign Trade Association, indicated that the negotiations would be largely commercial, but the Finns were represented as determined to preserve their national independence at all costs.

In Moscow belief was expressed that the Russians primarily want the Finnish-owned islands of Lanyansaari and Seiskar, in the Gulf of Finland, which are unfortified but could control the approaches to Leningrad.

If Russia should ask control of the Aland Islands, between Finland and Sweden, it was expected Sweden would join Finland in objecting and would try to get German support.

Islands Unfortified

These islands, too, are unfortified, but control the connection between the Gulf of Bothnia and the Baltic. Control of the islands would give Russia power over Swedish and ... shipping and might threaten Stockholm.

Germany would be affected, since Sweden ships her a huge amount of iron ore annually as well as timber and other products.

Russia has troops stationed along the Finnish frontier, but their strength was not known.

Already Discussed

Economic issues between Finland and Russia already have been under discussion through normal diplomatic channels and the two nations already have a non-aggression pact. The Finns now contend that, since Estonia has granted Russia naval bases on islands in the Gulf of Finland, Russia no longer has need of an island base to protect Leningrad.

Finland, which is strongly anti-Soviet, previously has relied on Germany to offset Soviet pressure, but since Germany has withdrawn from the Northern Baltic, Finland's position was seen as more difficult.

The Soviet press took on an increasingly anti-British tone today with articles attacking British aims and policy.

Finland Indicates Determination To Fight For Freedom

[By the Associated Press]

Stockholm, Oct. 8—Impending talks between Finland and Soviet Russia today brought the larger northern nations face to face with Russian expansion in the Baltic which came on the heels of German-Soviet collaboration in Poland.

Though accepting the Soviet invitation to important talks in Moscow, Finland indicated firm determination to fight for her independence if necessary since similar invitations to small Baltic states had resulted in sweeping concessions for Russia.

To Leave For Moscow

The Finnish Minister to Sweden, Juhu Kusti Paasikivi, who has been named head of the Finnish delegation for the parleys, was expected to leave shortly for Moscow.

Finns asserted the trip of their envoy would be different from the visits paid in the last two weeks by the foreign ministers of Estonia and Latvia, who came home with pacts allowing Soviet naval and air bases and troops on their soil and giving Russia trade concessions. A Lithuanian delegation is now in Moscow on a similar mission.

Finns said their barracks were overflowing with reservists ready to defend the independence of 4,000,000 Finns who lived under Russian rule before the World War.

Germans Repatriated

The extent of the Russian sweep in the Baltic, which formerly was the cockpit of a German-Soviet struggle for power, was indicated when it became known Germany was negotiating with Estonia and Latvia for the repatriation of Germans who live in those countries.

About 65,000 German in Latvia and 16,500 in Estonia were involved.

Finland decided to accept the Russian invitation for Moscow talks at a special Cabinet meeting yesterday and at the same time announced she had called up more military reservists to work on fortifications along the Soviet frontier.

Persons close to the Finnish Government said the Finns expected the talks to be on an "equal to equal" basis and that they planned to accept no compromising bargains.

Finnish Defense Cited

Finns declare that while their standing army was only 30,000 men, almost all adult Finns including women have had reservist training and furthermore that the nation's terrain, studded thickly with forests and lakes, was well adapted to defense.

In Helsinki denial was made of foreign reports that Moscow had made demands involving the strategic Aaland Islands, between Sweden and Finland. Finns said no demands of any kind had been advanced.

Finland and Sweden last spring sought to fortify the islands, but abandoned the project when Russia objected, apparently fearing Finnish-German collaboration.

Nation To Stand Fast

The Helsinki newspaper, Helsingin Sanomat, of which the Finnish Foreign Minister, Eljas Erkko, formerly was chief editor, today said the nation was "undivided and unshakeable" in her determination to defend her neutrality "with every conceivable means."

Apparently referring to Finnish fears of being absorbed by Soviet Russia, the paper declared "the Finnish nationality never was destined to merge with any other national group."

It was reported that 4,000 Soviet troops were concentrated on the Estonian frontier ready to March in Tuesday to man newly granted military bases. About 16,000 more troops were scheduled to follow and about 20,000 were to go to similar bases in Latvia.

An editorial in Stockholm's "Svenska Dagbladet" reflected the agitation caused in northern countries by the impending Finnish visit to Moscow. The newspaper said:

"Moscow's designs on Finland are followed with the greatest interest in Sweden. The nature and extent of the Soviet demands from Finland are not known, but the Moscow authorities must remember Finland is not a mere border state, but a northern country whose entire history, politics and culture belong to the West. If the Soviet thinks she can treat Finland as she has the Baltic countries recently, it will arouse . . . not only Scandinavia but the whole civilized world, and not least of all, the United States."

Latvia to Negotiate Pact With Reich on Emigration

Follows Hitler's Plan to Repatriate Minorities

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 8 (AP).—An official announcement from Riga, Latvia, today said Germany and Latvia would open negotiations Monday or Tuesday on a proposed treaty regulating emigration of Latvian citizens of German blood to the Reich.

Several German transports already had arrived at Libau (Liepaja) and Windau (Ventspils), Latvian ports, it was learned, to take back the prospective new citizens to the Reich.

Stress Put on Trade Talks

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 8 (AP)—The choice of Juhu Paasikivi as Finland's negotiator in talks with Russia was said by observers today to signify that the negotiations would concern commercial matters chiefly.

Mr. Paasikivi is president of the Foreign Trade Association and former president of the National Bank of Finland. He is an outstanding personage in the economic and political life of the entire North of Europe.

Some observers here believed that reports that the Soviet was making territorial demands on Finland were only rumors so far and that the Soviet had not forwarded any demands as yet.

The government said Moscow's invitation to send a delegation to the Kremlin was accepted at 10:30 o'clock last night. Premier Aimo Cajander said:

"The Finnish Government arrived at its decision unanimously. We are calm and feel not the slightest nervousness about the Moscow negotiations."

GERMANS SCAN PRO-MEDIATION SIGNS IN U. S.

Stirred By Reports Many Senators Favor Roosevelt Intervention

Hitler Believed Prepared To Listen Should President Step In

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER
Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Oct. 8—Germans evinced great interest today in the wave of sentiment in the United States Senate favoring mediation by President Roosevelt in the European war.

The German view was that Adolf Hitler's hand remained outstretched to anyone who would grasp it in peace.

Authorized officials here tried to leave no doubt that the Fuhrer would welcome a peace initiative from the President of the United States, and reports from Washington said many Senators, both proponents and opponents of the Administration neutrality bill, favored Mr. Roosevelt's stepping in now as a peacemaker.

Berlin Watching Washington

A good deal of attention is being given in Berlin these days to what goes on in Washington.

One result has been the adoption of an English term—"cash and carry"—into German speech. The Germans have learned to use it while studying Congressional debate on the Roosevelt Administration's neutrality proposals.

Long newspaper articles have appeared explaining that "cash and carry" means that supplies bought in the United States would have to be paid for with cash and be transported in non-American ships.

Scans Reaction To Speech

The German Government continued to scan world reaction to Hitler's Friday Reichstag speech, but today was the most peaceful Sunday since the war against Poland started September 1.

Government ministries were deserted as officials took their first days of rest in five weeks.

Hitler was in Berlin, but there was no sign of activity around his palace. Even customary press conferences in Government departments failed to occur.

Peace Believed Near

For two days the German press has been filled with reports from world capitals describing "the deep and favorable impression" made by Hitler's speech.

30.24-3941

Millions of Germans, therefore, seem convinced that peace is just around the corner.

There was nothing in today's army communique to give them an impression that major activity was planned on the Western front. The brief announcement said only that "there was artillery activity by both sides by day and occasional instances of harassing fire by night."

The communique reported that in conquered Poland two division commanders, "1,555 officers and 15,600 non-commissioned officers and men surrendered to German troops at Kock."

German and Soviet Russian troops, who collaborated in partitioning Poland, were reported to be taking their positions along the new frontier "according to plan."

More Polish Surrenders Claimed

BERLIN, Oct. 8 (AP).—The German supreme army command communique issued today said:

"Movements along the border marking the German and Russian regions of interest proceeded according to plan. According to last reports from the army, two Polish division commanders, 1,555 officers and 15,600 non-commissioned officers and men surrendered to German troops at Kock (sixty-five miles southeast of Warsaw).

"Among materials seized were 10,200 rifles and pistols, 205 machine guns, 90 cannon, more than 5,000 horses and numerous army cash chests.

"In the west, there was artillery activity by both sides by day and occasional instances of harassing fire by night."

POLES TO LEAVE MOSCOW

Diplomatic Group Still Unable to Find Missing Consul

MOSCOW, Oct. 8 (AP)—The staffs of the Polish Embassy and three consulates in Soviet Russia planned to leave late tomorrow night for Finland despite the fact that Jerzy Matusinski, Polish Consul in Kiev, and two chauffeurs still were reported missing.

M. Matusinski, former consul in New York, left the Kiev consulate last Sunday in an automobile with two chauffeurs, apparently in response to a request that he call on a Soviet department here. No word has been received of the three since.

There are 112 persons in the Polish party here, including officials, their families and servants. They decided to leave Russia when Soviet troops marched into Poland, but delayed their departure repeatedly. Now it was said they could wait no longer. From Finland they said they hoped to reach Britain or France.

Zaleski Will Cross to London

PARIS, Oct 8 (AP).—The Polish Embassy announced today that Polish Foreign Minister August Zaleski would leave Paris next Wednesday for London. He planned to remain there for several days.

OPEN SURPRISE ATTACKS IN MOSELLE AREA

French, However, Report Enemy Onslaughts Were Repulsed

Paris Announces Arrest Of 37 Former Communist Deputies

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Correspondent

Paris, Oct. 8—German troops increased their pressure today against French advance posts on the extreme northern flank of the Western front, where the French have established strong positions to cover the neutral frontier along the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg.

Behind the lines, meanwhile, the French War Council announced the arrest of thirty-seven former Communist members of the Chamber of Deputies who banded themselves into the Workers and Peasants party following dissolution of the Communist party.

The arrests were based on a letter sent to Edouard Herriot, President of the Chamber, urging convocation of Parliament for debate of "immediate peace." The War Council accused them of violating the decree which, in addition to dissolving their party, forbade Communist propaganda.

Sixteen Seized In Paris

Sixteen of the former Deputies were seized in Paris. The twenty-one arrested in the provinces were put aboard trains and started to the capital under guard.

Andre Marty, a leader of the former Deputies, and one of the organizers of the International Brigade which fought with the Republicans in the Spanish civil war, was reported to have fled to refuge in Moscow.

The French general staff, in a communique issued tonight, announced that a series of German "surprise attacks" had been repulsed in that sector east of the Moselle river.

French lines in the region form a salient at least two miles within German territory and circle around the hills of the Forest of Borg.

Heights Held Strategic

French military men consider the wooded heights, which command the Moselle Valley and a highway and railroad which parallel the river, one of the most strategic positions they have captured since the war was declared five weeks ago today.

With the weather clearing on the northern flank during last night, planes again were reported to have taken the air and artillery began shelling anew.

The heaviest artillery duels were located by the French communique to the south and southwest of Saarlouis, sector bordering that where French were reported raiding.

"Calm Night" Experienced

The day's activity followed what was officially announced as a "calm night" in which "enemy patrols were repulsed."

French raids were interpreted as a reply to Nazi peace overtures.

Military dispatches reported French operations were expanding, with infantry patrols penetrating deeper into Germany, artillery bombardments increasing in violence and scouting planes lengthening their flights over the Reich.

French army activity has been increasing steadily since Friday, the day Adolf Hitler put forth his plan for peace on German terms.

The French patrols were at work, particularly in the Hornbach salient south of Zweibrücken, pushing their raids deeper into Germany territory.

Big Guns Keep Up Fire

On the northern end of the German-French front big guns of both sides kept up a staccato fire in the Moselle Valley near Luxembourg.

The French air force was reported to have executed scouting flights over the important western German cities of Cologne and Bonn, which are on the Rhine opposite the Belgian and Netherlands frontier. Both cities are behind Aachen where the French have reported detecting German troop concentrations.

No Major Push Yet

One French scout plane failed to return to its base, it was announced, but the rest of the squadrons were said to have made their flights safely.

Although activity increased on the Western front, there still was no sign of a major offensive.

The French high command appeared content to stick to tactics used since the start of operations when they began filtering into Germany's Saar basin at a minimum expense of men and munitions.

Military observers said this fits into a general plan of harassing Germany on land and blockading her at sea until her forces should take the initiative during adverse winter weather or the French-British forces complete their armaments for a spring offensive.

To Continue Fighting

The stepping up of local attacks served a political purpose by apparently indicating the French-British Allies intended to continue fighting rather than accept peace on German terms.

Political sources said Premier Daladier had no plans at present for replying directly to Hitler's speech, since no formal peace proposal had been received either from Germany or through a neutral power.

The Premier told the Foreign Affairs committees of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies last week that his Government was determined to fight for "victory" and "lasting peace."

France looked to Prime Minister Chamberlain's address in the House of Commons Wednesday as the next Allied move.

PATROL PLANES ENGAGE ENEMY IN NORTH SEA

English Suffer No Casualties In Aerial Free-For-All

King George Decorates Airmen During Visit To Home Fleet

[By the Associated Press]

London, Oct. 8—The Air Ministry reported today that British planes shot down one of two German flying boats in a battle over the North Sea and then summoned a boat which rescued the Nazi flyers.

The ministry said the Royal Air Force flyers escaped without casualties, although one of the four patrol planes which took part in the fight was struck by German bullets.

A communique which told of the battle said that it began when a British reconnaisance plane clashed with a German flying boat.

While the battle was in progress, it added, a second German flying boat appeared and a free-for-all was on.

Flyers Send Ship To Rescue

"Shortly afterward two more British reconnaissance aircraft came on the scene," the communique said. "The British aircraft quickly gained the upper hand.

"The first enemy flying boat slipped out of the fight and fell into the sea. Its companion made off.

"After the combat the pilot of one of the Royal Air Force aircraft saw the German crew in the sea clinging to the wreckage of their flying boat. A ship in the vicinity was directed to the rescue and our aircraft resumed its patrol."

Photographs Siegfried Line

A story of three British planes flying over more than twenty miles of the Siegfried Line and taking pictures "at a height rarely exceeding one hundred feet" was told tonight by an official correspondent in France.

The planes were fired at only once—with an ordinary machine gun—the correspondent said, quoting the leader, a young flight lieutenant.

He gave the following story in the flyer's words:

"I was impressed by the obviously unfinished state of the Siegfried Line. It was absurdly easy to pick out, because the grass has not had time to grow again over the scarred earth.

"In many places we saw mounds of freshly thrown up earth and white patches where they had been burrowing in the chalky soil.

Right Over A Huge Gun

"In one place we flew right over a huge gun which a group of men were camouflaging. I could distinctly see them gaping up at us with their paint pots in their hands—apparently unable to move.

"We passed many villages, but I did not see a single civilian inhabitant. Nearly always the streets were quite deserted, though sometimes soldiers were strolling about looking up at us."

The flyer told of seeing "what might have been complete dummy villages" and gun emplacements showing on the fringe of a dense forest.

King Visits Home Fleet

The British press today gave considerable attention to a two-day visit by King George to the home fleet.

Besides visiting the fleet the King went to a fleet airdrome where he decorated airmen reported to have "recently achieved a certain northern sea triumph." He returned to London today.

"I have been much impressed by the keen and cheerful spirit that unites you in a determination to bring the war to a successful conclusion," an Admiralty announcement quoted the King as saying at the conclusion of his visit.

"Your task may be long and arduous," the Admiralty said the monarch added, "but I have every confidence in your ultimate success."

Details of the reported North Sea "triumph" were lacking.

Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood and Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, inspected a big Royal Air Force airdrome "somewhere in England" and pronounced the work there "very splendid indeed."

Margarine Requisitioned

August Zaleski, Foreign Minister in the newly organized Polish Government in exile in France, is expected here from Paris Wednesday on an official visit. He will remain for two days for talks with Foreign Minister Lord Halifax.

DUTCH FREIGHTER SUNK OFF ENGLAND

Binnendijk, Mine Or Torpedo Victim, Goes Down In Flames After Explosion

British Craft Rescues Crew Of Vessel Bound From N. Y. To Amsterdam

[By the Associated Press]

London, Oct. 8—The Holland-Amerika freighter Binnendijk, which sailed from New York for Amsterdam September 26, sank in flames in the English Channel early today after an explosion.

The crew of forty-one was rescued by a British examination ship, which answered rocket signals sent up by the 6,873-ton vessel as she went down near Weymouth, British contraband control port.

Capt. W. Moree, of Rotterdam, said he was on the bridge when a "terrific explosion" put the engines and wireless out of commission. He said he was unable to determine immediately whether the ship was sunk by a mine or torpedo. Authorities said there were no British mines in that area.

Reports Ship Struck Mine

The Holland-Amerika Line announced in Rotterdam it had been informed by the Binnendijk's captain that his vessel struck a mine. His message said the vessel went down about midnight Saturday, two hours after an explosion.

"The ship began to sink very slowly," Captain Moree said. "We fired rocket signals, which were answered. Later an examination vessel came alongside and, making fast to our ship, took us all off—the fort,-one officers and crew. We had no passengers.

"We were holed on the port side forward. There was an awful smoke all over the ship," the captain added. He said that until then the passage from New York had been uneventful and "we saw nothing nearing the English coast" for an inspection of the ship's general cargo.

Most Of Crew Asleep At Time

The explosion occurred as most of the men were asleep in their bunks, one member of the crew said. The freighter went down so fast that the last man was taken off, he added.

Seaman Aart Winkelkoff said:

"We felt two shocks or bumps and then there was an explosion. We got into our lifeboats ready to cast off, but an English war vessel took us off. While we were being taken ashore we saw our ship go down in flames."

Two members of the crew suffered leg fractures.

The sinking of the Binnendijk was the first reported since the 876-ton British freighter Glen Farg, which the British Admiralty said Friday had been sunk by a submarine. The Glen Farg's crew was saved but one seaman died later.

The Binnendijk operated between eastern United States coast ports and Rotterdam and Antwerp. The 400-foot craft was built in 1921.

Britain Calls Hitler's Offer Too Nebulous

'No Peace at the Price of Poland', Press Reiterates; Doubt Italy Will Mediate

LONDON, Oct. 8 (AP).—Great Britain, in close consultation with her dominions and with France, deliberated today on a reply to Adolf Hitler's peace offer, against the background of a press chorus of "No peace at the price of Poland."

"Hitler's proposals are so nebulous they must be greatly clarified before they can become even a basis for discussion," the authoritative British Press Association said in discussing the possibility of a British reply when Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain goes before the House of Commons on Wednesday for his weekly war review.

"One of Hitler's difficulties is to find a channel through which to submit amplification or clarification of his speech. Signor Mussolini does not seem willing to act as 'post-man.' Hints appear to have been dropped in Berlin that President Roosevelt might be asked to act as intermediary."

In a statement made public today, the deputy Labor party leader, Arthur Greenwood, asserted Britain "would gladly listen to any constructive and sincere proposals for peace, but the truth is that Hitler has offered nothing seriously."

The British press also gave considerable attention to a two-day visit by King George to the Home Fleet. The King went to a fleet air-drome, where he decorated airmen reported to have "recently achieved a certain North Sea triumph."

"I have been much impressed by the keen and cheerful spirit that unites you in a determination to bring the war to a successful conclusion," an Admiralty announcement quoted the King as saying. "Your task may be long and arduous, but I have every confidence in your ultimate success."

Fascists Urge Allies to Take Hitler's Peace

Terms After Bloody War Could Not Vary Much, Says Virginio Gayda

ROME, Oct. 8 (AP).—The Fascist press urged Great Britain and France today to accept Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's peace offer.

Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist journalist, writing in "La Voce d'Italia," said Italy "once again calls the people to face realities and dangers, in the hope they may draw back in time from a fateful precipitation."

"Peace which might be reached after a bloody war on the western front," Gayda continued, "could not be much different from that which Germany proposes today.

"At the end of the war, with millions dead and an incalculable destruction of riches, what would be recovered by the world would be only that which Hitler's speech already put forward as natural conditions of a true European peace."

The newspaper "Il Popolo di Roma" complained that Hitler's proposals had not been given the reception it said they deserved in London and Paris.

Moreover, "Il Messaggero" commented:

"Everything justifies the conclusion that France and Britain's unanimity in considering Hitler's proposals unacceptable is more formal than substantial."

"Il Messaggero" expressed the belief that British opposition was based on unwillingness to accept guaranties from the Hitler regime, but that France was concerned more over German demands for "vital space."

Hitler's arguments, the newspaper said, were "impeccably logical, because they are founded on reality."

ITALY BELIEVED FORMING NEW BALKAN BLOC

Reported Seeking To Offset German-Russian Influence There

Budapest Says Rome Is Helping To Relieve Danubian Tension

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Oct. 8—Italy was reported today to be working actively to protect her Balkan and Danubian interests against any extension of German and Russian influence in that area.

The Hungarian-Rumanian agreement to reduce their frontier forces, and conversations between Yugoslavia and Hungary, were regarded here as signs of progress in this effort.

In some quarters it was believed Italy was seeking to eliminate differences which have divided the Balkan countries preparatory to formation of a bloc under Italian leadership.

Bloc May Sign Pact

In these quarters it was suggested the bloc might take the form of a consultative pact and economic agreement similar to the Rome protocols which once bound Austria, Hungary and Italy.

Fascist circles gave Italy credit for promoting the agreement between Hungary, Yugoslavia and Rumania to reduce their armed forces.

Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist writer, said the move was the result of Italian effort to circumscribe the European War.

This development, he asserted, marked the fruition of plans put forward originally at the time of the conference between the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, and Foreign Minister Alksander Cincar-Markovic at Venice last April.

Would Settle Differences

Gayda added that under Italian auspices, accords were in prospect settling long-standing differences betwen the three Balkan nations. He said aggravation of the European situation had contributed to the delay in realizing this program.

Italy was believed by some observers to be putting her efforts more strongly than ever behind the project now to safeguard her interests in the Balkans and the Danubian basin against inroads by the German-Soviet Russian combination.

Balkan Nations See New Chance Of Avoiding War

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Correspondent

Budapest, Oct. 8—Italy was reported today to have offered new friendship pacts to Yugoslavia and Hungary, adding to the relief of tension which has dominated southeastern Europe since the war began.

Italian broadcasts received here said the negotiations, which many observers believed would offer mutual-assistance pacts to the two countries, were under way.

Reports of the negotiations were confirmed semi-officially in Belgrade and similar reports were heard in Bucharest.

Peace Chances Enhanced

With Italian diplomacy so far directed at preserving neutrality in the conflict, the small neutral nations of southeastern Europe saw their chances of staying out of the war heightened by these reported negotiations.

With Germany occupied on her Western front and with Soviet Russia's aims in the Balkans still unknown, diplomats of this section of Europe welcomed prospective collaboration between Italy, Yugoslavia and Hungary as a possible counteraction of the German-Soviet bid for domination in the Balkans.

Balkan diplomats said Adolf Hitler's speech Friday declaring Germany and Soviet Russia together would settle all southeastern Europe's problems had spurred Italy to action to establish her own position in a lebensraum (living space).

Adherents Expected

Since the small countries of this area dread war more than they relish the thought of getting revenge for some old or fancied wrong, diplomats believed Italy would win adherents on a promise to help maintain the peace and neutrality of the area.

An authoritative Yugoslav source said the current negotiations were "only the beginning of something much bigger than a mere treaty."

Should Yugoslavia and Hungary draw closer to Italy, diplomats said Rumania and Bulgaria might well agree to follow suit.

Yugoslavia and Bulgaria agreed last summer to pursue a common foreign policy, while Yugoslavia and Rumania are old Balkan allies, and neither so far has assumed foreign obligations without consulting the other.

Might Expand Quickly

Thus, with Hungary and Yugoslavia as a starter, an Italian-led Balkan front might expand quickly.

Moreover, Italy in recent weeks has taken steps to win the confidence of Turkey and Greece, withdrawing troops from the Greek frontier in Albania.

Other cheering news in the Balkans has been the decrease of armed forces by Rumania and Hungary along their common frontier.

It was disclosed tonight this action had been taken on the suggestion of Yugoslavia.

Doubly cheering to Rumania was the assurance—published in Rumanian newspapers for the first time today—from Moscow that the Soviet intended to make no demands upon Rumania in the negotiations at the Kremlin with the Turkish Foreign Minister, Sukru Saracoglu.

Rumania apparently was relieved of any immediate threat of a simultaneous invasion from Hungary and Soviet Russia to regain the former Russian province of Bessarabia and the former Hungarian province of Transylvania.

Moreover, Italy in recent weeks has taken steps to win the confidence of Turkey and Greece, withdrawing troops from the Greek frontier in Albania.

The Hungarian trend was shown by the newspapers which continued to publish Italian articles praising Italy for her "political clearsightedness."

One Italian dispatch said, "in Hungary as in Yugoslavia, Rumania and Greece, it is recognized that mainly owing to Italy no blood is being shed today in Southeastern Europe."

Vice-Consul Morton Calls Fate of 6,000 Citizens Fleeing Poland in Doubt

BUCHAREST, Oct. 8 (AP).—William Morton, of Watsonville, Calif., who served as United States Vice-Consul in Kiev, reached Bucharest today after having been detained by the Soviet Army for almost three weeks. Morton came here from Kiev, to which city he was taken by Soviet authorities after the Russian occupation of eastern Poland.

He said a guard was placed outside his door each night at Kiev, but he was well treated by the Russians, who promised to send along his auto which he abandoned in Zaleszczyki on the Rumanian-Polish frontier, when a Russian tank column took that town on Sept. 17.

When Morton left Zaleszczyki for interior Russia only three foreigners were left there, all of them European newspaper reporters.

Morton arranged for two Americans, Cyeslaw Agonis, of Shenandoah, Pa., and Bernard Mazur, of Buffalo, to go to Moscow for eventual departure from the country. They represent a religious organization with headquarters at 199 Clark Street, Buffalo. When the Russians took them into custody they had walked 200 miles from Lwow (Lemberg), Poland, toward the Rumanian frontier, seeking to escape the advancing Germans.

Morton was reticent about discussing conditions in Poland, but said he saw no widespread Polish-Soviet fighting during the occupation. He reported that long lines of exhausted Polish prisoners were marching into Russia.

The fate of about 6,000 Polish Americans, whom he was trying to get out of Poland when the war started, was unknown, Morton said. Morton had been assigned to Brest-Litovsk to work on the refugee problem, but German bombings scattered all the inhabitants of the city before he could send more than fifteen of them out of the country, he explained.

Morton said he believed many children of naturalized Americans, whose citizenship is in doubt, still were in Poland.

Count Albert Dzieduzyski, a Princeton-educated Pole who worked in the American Consulate in Warsaw, accompanied Morton to Bucharest.

2 Ships Sail for Europe Without Any Passengers

Port Lists No Arrivals From Overseas in Quiet Day

The Port of New York yesterday had one of its quietest days since the European war started, with no passengers arriving from Europe and none sailing for Europe. The United States liner American Importer sailed for Liverpool at 12:58 p. m. and the United States liner American Banker sailed for London at 1:19 p. m., both with full cargo but with no passengers. The two ships are prepared to bring about 150 passengers each on their return voyages.

The American Scantic liner Scanpenn docked at 3:30 p. m. at Pier 4, Jersey City, but was without passengers, as it had dropped its 260 passengers from Scandinavian ports in Boston on Saturday.

WAR ISSUE BARRED IN SWISS ELECTION

Commander Limits Campaign of Parties Within Army to Statements of Programs

MOST VOTERS IN SERVICE

Employers Who Threaten to Oust Workers Unless They Get Leaves Are Warned

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 8 (AP)—General Henri Guisan, head of the Swiss Army, today ordered that the European war issue be kept out of the impending political campaign. The election of the National Council is scheduled for Oct. 28 and 29, and will be decided almost entirely by 500,000 men under arms.

General Guisan permitted soldiers to vote as they pleased, but limited each political party's campaign within the army to an official declaration of its program. Nothing may be included in the declaration that attacks the army or is "incompatible with the correct relations between Switzerland and other States."

Political observers pointed out that the war issue was not likely to enter politics anyway, as the Swiss people were represented as giving an "amazing example" of national unity and determined to keep the State officially neutral. Switzerland has French, German and Italian-speaking voters.

The general censured employers who threatened to discharge workers unless they obtained leaves from the army and returned to their jobs. A communiqué said the high command "refuses to consider requests for leaves under pressure of such threats," and warned the army might find it necessary to take steps against such action.

The general successfully fought attempts by party leaders for partial demobilization to allow men to return to factories and farms. After the demobilization proposal was defeated, General Guisan freed some soldiers and their horses and wagons to aid in harvesting and industrial production.

The full strength of the army was maintained, however, at strategic defense points to block any possible German or French attempt to pass through the country.

Naval Vessels Reach Iroquois "Somewhere In The Atlantic"

Officials Silent As To Position Of Liner Which German Navy Head Said Was To Be Sunk

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Oct. 8—The navy announced today that the liner Iroquois now is under escort of naval vessels.

Officials would not disclose what vessels formed the escort, nor the position of the liner which the German naval command had advised would be sunk "through a repetition of the circumstances which caused the loss of the steamship Athenia."

OCT 9 1939

The 6,209-ton Iroquois left Cobh, Ireland, Tuesday with a crew of 275 and 584 passengers, virtually all of whom are Americans.

Naval ships were dispatched to meet her after the head of the German navy, Grand Admiral Raeder, informed the American naval attache in Berlin that, according to information on which he relied, the Iroquois would be sunk when it neared the American coast.

While Admiral Raeder did not say how the Iroquois would be sunk, his reference to the Athenia left the implication that Germany was laying the blame in advance on France or England. Germany has denied that a Nazi submarine torpedoed the Athenia, British liner sunk on the first day of the war.

Portland, Maine, Oct. 8 (AP)—Arthur Greenleaf, Maine Commissioner of Sea and Shore Fisheries, reported that he had "positively" sighted a partially submerged submarine early today five miles southeast of Portland lightship.

Officials at the Navy Yard at Kittery said there were no American submersibles in that vicinity.

Greenleaf, making a routine patrol of coastal waters, said he plainly saw the gray outlines of a sub at 2.40 A. M. from a motor boat and that the vessel, which he estimated was 150 feet long, came within fifty yards of his craft, half circled it, then headed out to sea.

Two sea and shore fisheries wardens, Fred Duplissy and Luther Greenleaf, who were with him, confirmed the report.

ENGLISH ASSERT RAIDING PLANES DID NO DAMAGE

Reveal That Reich Naval Squadron Has Escaped From British Patrol.

UNDER COVER OF DARKNESS

Chamberlain Says War Aims Are Unchanged—Will Join Paris in Any Restatement.

LONDON, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Repeated encounters between British warships and German planes in the northern areas of the North Sea were reported by the Admiralty to have occurred today.

The Admiralty announcement declared that the British had suffered no casualties, but that they did not know how the Germans had fared.

OCT 10 1939

At the same time, "Eyewitness," official correspondent with British forces in France, reported that four British planes had made successful daylight scouting flights along the German frontier from France to the North Sea.

One pair of planes was said to have flown safely through two anti-aircraft barrages.

The Admiralty also disclosed that a German naval squadron had escaped from the British naval patrol off the south coast of Norway yesterday.

"Our forces endeavored to engage it, but darkness enabled the enemy to escape," said an Admiralty communique.

Ships Declared Undamaged.

"During today repeated actions have taken place over the northeast areas of the North Sea between German bombing planes and British cruisers and destroyers," it continued. "No British ships were damaged. Casualties to the enemy are not known."

"Eye-witness" said the planes over Germany had investigated "reports received by headquarters" concerning "the evacuation of important cities, big troop movements near Aix-La-Chapelle (Aachen), significant concentrations of aircraft, and intensive building of fortifications near the Luxembourg frontier."

The correspondent did not disclose what were the findings of the flight, but said the scouting planes had landed in England with photographs taken.

Chamberlain Calls Aims Unchanged.

Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today that Great Britain and France were "in complete accord" as to the purposes of their participation in the European war, which they have frequently expressed, and that any more specific statement of their war aims would be arrived at only through consultation of the two Powers.

Formal peace proposals have not been presented to France, however, and in Berlin it was stated after Hitler's speech that his peace proposals would be given no more formal character.

Mr. Chamberlain's statement was in reply to a question by Arthur Henderson, Laborite, who asked "whether it is the policy of his Majesty's Government to publish in due course of time and jointly with the French Government a specific statement of war aims based on principles already enunciated."

"His Majesty's Government and the French Government are in complete accord as to the purposes for which they entered the war," Mr. Chamberlain replied.

"These purposes have more than once been stated by both governments," he added. "No doubt as time goes on, both governments will consider whether their war aims should be stated in more specific form."

OCT 10 1939

Mr. Chamberlain said that Mr. Henderson "may take it that any such statement will be made only by agreement between the two governments."

[The British Government has said repeatedly that the principal aims of the war are to "crush Hitlerism" and "to free Europe from the menace of aggression." The restoration of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia also has been listed.]

Miss Eleanor Rathbone, Independent, interposed in the discussion to inquire whether "the Prime Minister is aware that there is a strong and growing demand in the country for a more specific statement on the Government's war aims?".

There were several cries of "No." Mr. Chamberlain gave no answer.

Mr. Chamberlain also disclosed in the Commons today that Lord Stamp, noted economist and director of the Bank of England, has been advising the Government on its economic war plans. He said that Lord Stamp would be president of an inter-departmental committee co-ordinating the work of the various Ministers in planning the economic effort of the country.

No Peace at Price of Poland.

Meanwhile today Great Britain kept her war preparations geared to a high pace, and the press continued to assail Hitler's peace proposals as "nebulous" and to urge a policy barring peace "at the price of Poland."

Widely separated spheres of thought emphasized the reported American reaction as a strong argument against embracing the "peace overtures" which were advanced by the German Fuehrer in his address to the Reichstag on Friday.

'No Guaranties Offered.'

The Liberal Manchester Guardian declared editorially: "A false step now, giving the impression that we are either weak or insincere in our defense of the liberties of Europe, may make it exceedingly difficult to win the sympathy and help of the United States today or tomorrow."

In diplomatic circles speculation on the probable content of Mr. Chamberlain's speech was that he would assert that Great Britain's announced purpose of freeing Europe "from the fear of Nazi aggression" had not been changed by recent developments.

Some observers believed his reply to Hitler would be framed to offset what was considered here as a Nazi attempt to place the blame for a continuance of hostilities on Great Britain and France.

The London Times declared editorially that Hitler had offered no guaranties to keep the peace and concluded: "There is nothing left for Great Britain and France to do but strengthen their resolve to rid Europe of the man and the policy that are the essential obstacle to its peace."

Roosevelt's Past Efforts.

Dispatches from Berlin hinting that Hitler might welcome the intervention of President Roosevelt as a peace mediator were characterized by the press as a "Nazi trap for the United States."

Remarking that heads of the neutral European nations are making no move to intervene, the Times editorial said:

"President Roosevelt, who has made more than one vigorous attempt to substitute reason for force in the relations of the Nazi Government, is certainly not the man to abandon his efforts because of the discourtesy with which Hitler refused them. But he has made no response to the present move, and the American press, irrespective of divisions of opinion on the neutrality bill, shows by its unanimous condemnation of Hitler's speech that it finds no opportunity for his mediation."

The King's Address.

Meanwhile, the nation's armed forces heard King George assert that though "your task may be long and arduous, I have every confidence in your ultimate success."

The King, an Admiralty announcement said, paid a two-day visit to the Home Fleet and inspected a naval airdrome, where he decorated fliers reported to have "recently achieved a certain northern sea triumph." The nature of the "triumph" was not specified.

The Admiralty quoted the King as having told the fleet that he had been "much impressed by the keen and cheerful spirit which unites you in the determination to bring the war to a successful conclusion."

There was little actual news from the war front. An Air Ministry communique last night reported that British planes had shot down one of two German flying boats in a battle over the North Sea. The British flyers summoned a ship which rescued the Nazi airmen, the communique said.

An official "eyewitness" correspondent in France also told of three British observation planes flying over more than twenty miles of the Siegfried Line and taking pictures "at a height rarely exceeding 100 feet." The planes were fired at only once—by a machine-gun—the account said.

Troop Movements Go On.

The movement of British troops from England to France continued unabated in the face of possible peace talk.

There were no brass bands playing as the troops, loaded down with full war kit, proceeded toward secret destinations. In nearly every village, however, railway stations resounded with the singing of war songs as uniformed young Britons said goodby to families and sweethearts. Some of the songs were new, like the ditty, "We'll Hang Up Our Washing on the Siegfried Line," but more popular were the tunes to which another generation marched off to the war twenty-five years ago.

Girls' voices were raised with those of the soldiers in "Tipperary" and sentimental songs, like "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and "Irish Eyes are Smiling."

One truckload of troops, riding through an English village in a long column of artillery, lustily roared out the American civil war song, "John Brown's Body."

'Answer With Cannon.'

PARIS, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—The French newspapers continued today to reject Adolf Hitler's "peace" offer.

"There is only one reply to Hitler, and that is with cannon," declared Le Figaro.

Russia's move into Baltic affairs and reports that the Soviet Army planned to build a "Maginot Line" facing Germany along the frontier laid down by the two countries in conquered Poland were held up as examples of distrust underlying the Russo-German agreement.

French military informants said today that the principal passages of Hitler's Reichstag speech had been broadcast from the Nazi front-line trenches in both French and German. They described it as an effort to bolster the morale of the German troops and to influence the French soldiers for peace, but said that the French advance guard was "highly amused."

CHAMBERLAIN'S POLICY ON NAZIS REMAINS SAME

Premier Indicates Hitler's Proposals Have Made No Difference

Importance Of Opinion Of Neutral States Is Emphasized

[By the Associated Press]

London, Oct. 9—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain indicated today the nation's announced war policy—"smashing Hitlerism" and "ending the fear of German aggression in Europe"—remained unchanged by Hitler's peace proposals last Friday.

Chamberlain avoided a direct answer to a question in Commons on whether Britain and France would publish jointly a more specific outline of terms on which they would make peace.

He replied:

"These purposes have more than once been stated by both governments. No doubt as time goes on, both governments will consider whether their war aims should be stated in more specific form."

Importance Of Neutrals

Both press and official circles emphasized the importance of neutral opinion.

The influential London Times declared that neutrals would insist that "no possibility of conciliation be neglected."

It also said the only way in which Hitler could "prove his sincerity" would be to submit to the international conference he proposed the "whole subject matter in dispute," including the future of Czecho-Slovakia and Poland.

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard declared: "Let us by all means state our terms for a peace conference," and the Evening Star said the present situation "gives us an opportunity not for dickering with Hitler, but for stating our war aims to the world."

Governments Confer

The British and French governments were in consultation on a reply to Hitler's peace overtures. Chamberlain was expected to speak when he gives Parliament his weekly war report Wednesday.

The flow of troops to the front continued and the government intensified war economic efforts. Lord Stamp, noted economist, was appointed president of the Interdepartmental Committee on coordination and two other economists were named to assist him. They were Henry Clay, economic adviser to Bank of England, and H. D. Henderson, former secretary to the economic advisory council.

Lloyd George To Outline Peace Policy Thursday

London, Oct. 9 (AP) — David Lloyd George today called a private meeting of the Council of Action for Peace and Reconstruction for Thursday, when he is expected to outline his peace policy.

The Daily Mail commented that "the council has been revived after languishing for many months for Mr. Lloyd George to test the support for a national peace campaign."

V. H. Finney, secretary for the council, said that Lloyd George had called the meeting "to consider the further development of the stand he has taken in recent speeches and articles on the war situation."

No "Patched Up Peace"

Last Tuesday, Lloyd George warned against "a mere patched up peace," and said such problems as "the claims of Italy" would have to be considered. "We have nothing to fear and perhaps everything to gain by taking time," he said. He urged making Russia a "friendly neutral" and not a "hostile neutral."

His remarks provoked a heated argument in which Alfred Duff Cooper, former First Lord of the Admiralty, said they would "hold out to the world as a 'suggestion' surrender."

Nazi 'Tyranny' Called Foe

LONDON, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, today told an audience of 3,500 German Jewish refugees that Great Britain's aim in the war was to rid Germany of "tyranny."

NAZIS REPORTED BELIEVING PEACE AROUND CORNER

Look to Roosevelt to Act and Say Hitler's Hand Is Extended.

BERLIN, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Germany waited confidently today for the peace which many of her people believed to be "just around the corner."

The Nazis gave two reasons for their hope that the end of Polish resistance in the east forecast an end to European hostilities. First, they said, Adolf Hitler's hand was open to anyone who would clasp it in peace; and second, they looked to President Roosevelt for mediation.

Nazi news reports have declared that the proponents and opponents of revision of the American neutrality act have both expressed themselves in favor of Mr. Roosevelt's assuming the role of peacemaker for Europe.

[Mr. Roosevelt has let it be known he has nothing to say for the present. Authoritative Washington sources have indicated that the United States was continuing its policy of willingness to aid in a settlement of European economic and disarmament questions, but that it would not be drawn into Europe's political issues.]

'Favorable Impression.'

Nazi officials have emphasized Hitler's readiness to accept a peace initiative from the American President, and the press has been filled with accounts of "the deep and favorable impression" left throughout the world by the Fuehrer's address to the Reichstag on Friday, last

With no official answer yet from Great Britain or France, however, and army communiques still reporting only minor activity on the western front, German officialdom enjoyed its first week end of leisure in five weeks.

The Fuehrer, who has spent much time in travel, particularly on the eastern front, since the German forces invaded Poland on September 1, was still in Berlin.

There was no sign of activity within the Chancellery, however, and even customary Government press conferences were lacking.

Authorized persons said they had nothing new to add to the question of peace or war, that Hitler had made his statement and that now it was up to neutrals and the belligerents on the other side to make the next move.

The Supreme Army Command said in a communique this morning: "In the east, the advance toward the border separating the regions of interest was continued. In the west, there was local scouting troop activity and minor artillery on both sides. In the air there was only a little scouting plane activity.

RUSSIA TO SUPPLY REICH

But Doesn't Specify Goods It Will Ship—Finland Prepares to Face Soviet Demands.

MOSCOW, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Soviet Russia threw her weight behind Adolf Hitler's peace gestures today in an editorial in the Government newspaper Izvestia, accusing Great Britain and France of "returning to the Middle Ages" for waging war to "exterminate Hitlerism."

At the same time it was announced that Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov had reached a quick decision last night with leaders of a German trade delegation.

The delegation arrived only yesterday to expedite an increase in trade between Russia and Germany under the recent formal trade and credit agreement between the Nazi-communist partners. It was not specified what goods were involved.

Besides the German delegation, Russia was host to the Foreign Ministers of Turkey and Lithuania and expected a third guest, former Premier Juho Kusti Paasikivi of Finland within the next twenty-four hours as she pushed forward her bargain-driving campaign on Russian frontiers from the Gulf of Finland to the Black Sea.

Scores Allies' Stand.

Izvestia asserted that the Anglo-French arguments that the war must be prolonged to crush Hitlerism "makes us return to the gloomy middle ages when devastating religious wars were carried on for the purpose of the extermination of heretics and people of different religions.

"It is impossible," the newspaper declared, "to exterminate any idea or any opinion by fire and sword. One may respect or hate Hitlerism or any other system of political opinions. This is a matter of taste. But to begin a war for the 'extermination of Hitlerism' means to admit to criminal silliness in policy."

Izvestia said that the rapid "disintegration" of Poland was "irrefutable proof that its lack of vital power removes the causes for continuation of the war in western Europe."

It continued:

"Even the blind can now see that the Polish State cannot be restored to its former shape and on its former territory. Still the war by

Great Britain and France against Germany is being waged under the slogan of restoration of Poland.

Want War Ended.

"Therefore, continuation of the war cannot be justified by anything and constitutes a senseless slaughter. Termination of this war would meet the interests of the peoples of all countries."

Reichsfuehrer Hitler's speech last week was described as a "real, practical basis for negotiations for an early conclusion of peace."

Izvestia asserted, however, British and French newspapers "demand that Hitler's peace proposals be given no consideration, and that war be continued until the aims which Great Britain and France set for themselves when entering the war be fully accomplished."

The ruling classes of Great Britain and France, it said, "have never displayed too great readiness to shed blood or, which is the main thing, bear the expenses for any ideological purpose.

"Declarations of lofty principles and ideas usually served to camouflage mundane and material aspirations. Naturally the question suggests itself . . . whether the slogan of a struggle against 'Hitlerian spirit' and 'Hitlerian ideology' does not camouflage different aims suggested by the aspiration of ruling circles . . . for consolidation of their world domination."

Shaw is Quoted.

The editorial quoted an article by George Bernard Shaw as saying, "the war in Poland is over. As Poland's cause is lost we have no further excuse for continuing the war."

"One must admit that Bernard Shaw is right in many respects," it commented.

"But for whose benefit is this war being waged for domination of the world?

"In any case, it is not for the benefit of the working class. The working class can only suffer in such a war."

The editorial charged the British and French "ruling classes" with attempting "to protect their colonies against German claims and enjoy unshared control over the explicitation of hundreds of millions of colonial slaves."

Placing Blame on Allies.

It said "attempts to neglect the peaceful proposals of Germany" mean "to assume responsibility for further development of war, and in consequence, for the tremendous number of victims and the destruction connected with war."

Russian newspapers printed dispatches from Tallinn, Estonia, asserting Lithuania was eager for the agreement she is negotiating with Russia and for "Soviet protection against imperialist countries."

Helsinki dispatches saying Finland was taking "extraordinary" defense measures also were given prominence.

Diplomatic observers said Russia, partner with Germany in eastern Europe, apparently was striving to strengthen her position in all possible directions while Europe's other major Powers were occupied with war.

Interest centered on the impending Finnish negotiations. Like Estonia and Latvia, which already have granted Russia important concessions in non-aggression agreements, Finland is dwarfed by her huge neighbor. But the Finns were expected in diplomatic quarters to put up more of an argument than their neighbors in northern Europe.

Reported Seeking Backing.

Foreign circles said Finland was seeking the diplomatic backing of Sweden and Germany, and probably would be supported by Sweden. (In Stockholm, however, there was no confirmation of the report the Helsinki Government had requested Sweden's help.)

Informed Moscow sources foresaw Finnish acceptance of any reasonable Soviet proposals, but predicted Finland would balk at paying too high a price for an agreement.

Belief was expressed here that Russia might seek the unfortified islands of Lanvansaari and Seiskar, which control the approaches to Leningrad through the Gulf of Finland.

If, however, Russia should ask control of the Aaland Islands, it was believed Sweden would back Finnish objections and solicit German support. The islands, lying between Finland and Sweden, are unfortified, but their possession would give Russia power over Finnish and Swedish shipping and might threaten Stockholm. Germany's interest would be in her heavy imports of Swedish iron, timber and other products.

Pact Already Exists.

A Finnish-Russian nonaggression agreement already exists, and economic issues between the nations have been discussed previously through normal diplomatic channels.

A communique issued yesterday after the conference of the Russian Foreign Commissar with the German delegation, headed by Karl Ritter, former German Ambassador to Brazil, said that the Nazi-Communist partners had agreed to realize their program of economic collaboration "at rapid pace and on a large scale."

The announcement by Tass, official Soviet news agency, said "in particular, agreement was reached that the U. S. S. R. should immediately begin supplying Germany materials and Germany filling orders for the U. S. S. R.

"It was agreed in the course of conversation that the economic program concerning which an understanding had been reached during the last visit of the (German) Minister of Foreign Affairs, Joachim von Ribbentrop, to Moscow would be realized by both parties at rapid pace and on a large scale."

Mystery still enveloped the talks, or lack of talks, between Russia and Turkey. The Turks were believed to be moving carefully between Great Britain, on one hand, and Russia and Germany on the other, trying to offend neither. The Turks, courted by both sides, are in a different position from the smaller nations which have been summoned to Moscow.

Carries Finland's Hopes.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Dr. Juhu Paasikivi, Finland's heavy-set, stern-looking Minister to Sweden, was expected to carry the hopes of his freedom-loving countrymen to Moscow to meet the Soviet giant, which in less than a month has absorbed part of one European republic and brought dark hours to three others.

Dr. Paasikivi, who is 69 years old, who helped fix boundaries of the young Finnish republic in 1920 as chief delegate to the Russo-Finnish conference at Dorpet, will personify the determination for independence of 4,000,000 Finns.

It was said he would leave by train, accompanied by technical experts of the Finnish Foreign Office.

While Government officials insisted no demands had been received from Moscow and the invitation mentioned only "economic and political questions," many Finns were becoming uneasy.

The Finnish Foreign Minister, Eljas Erkko, reported as declining to make the trip, said in an interview with the Stockholm newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, the "only thing that happened is the Soviet Government asked if the Finnish Government was willing to exchange opinions about political and economic problems without mentioning what those problems are."

Mr. Erkko described this as "the normal procedure" and added the "Finnish Government could not but say yes."

"Finland has declared in many ways and has made it clear the country wants to stand as a neutral and does not want to be directly bound through a pact to any group of big Powers," the Foreign Minister was quoted as saying.

Dr. Paasikivi planned a last-minute consultation with Government leaders at Helsinki.

Informed circles at Helsinki said they feared demands would be made for the establishment of Soviet bases, since earlier trade discussions between the two governments broke up when Russia reportedly attempted to insert extraneous political matters.

Agitation caused in northern countries by Dr. Paasikivi's impending visit was shown in an editorial in the Stockholm Svenska Dagbladet.

The newspaper said:

"Moscow's designs on Finland are followed with the greatest interest in Sweden. The nature and extent of the Soviet demands from Finland are not known, but the Moscow authorities must remember Finland is not a mere border State, but a northern country whose entire history, politics and culture belong to the West. If the Soviet thinks she can treat Finland as she has the Baltic countries recently it will arouse . . . not only Scandinavia, but also the whole civilized world, and not least of all the United States."

Meanwhile, it was said here that 4,000 Russian troops were concentrated on the Estonian border, ready to march in Tuesday to man naval and air bases which Estonia recently granted the Soviet under a mutual assistance pact. Nearly 16,000 more troops were scheduled to follow, and 20,000 were to go to similar bases in Latvia.

Russian-Latvian Pact Will Be Ratified Today

Red Troops to Man Bases, but 'Mutuality' Is Stressed

RIGA, LATVIA, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Russian-Latvian pact, giving the Soviet Union air and naval bases in Latvian territory and bringing thousands of Red soldiers into Latvia, will be ratified tomorrow, Foreign Minister William Munters announced today.

Commenting on the pact, he said Russia and Latvia chose to embody their agreement in the form of a mutual assistance pact "because it expresses the will of both states to maintain peace and the status quo on the Baltic shore."

Munters declared the pact corresponded with the "political realities which Latvia under the circumstances must take into consideration."

Terming the agreement mutually advantageous, Munters said Latvia gets help in the form of armaments and war materials from Russia, while Latvia gives the Soviet Union "strategic privileges on its territory, such as naval bases, sites for coast defense batteries and a number of flying fields."

"These strategic privileges," Munters said, "will restrict in no way the normal life of Liepaja (Libau) and Ventspils (Windau), since the respective zones will be precisely defined by the agreement.

"Inasmuch as the military bases cannot remain unprotected, the Soviet Union also is permitted to maintain troops in the base areas and the vicinity of the flying fields, the strength of whose garrisons also is fixed by the agreement."

Recalling that European Russia has few outlets to the sea, Munters said: "The efforts of the Soviet Union to strengthen its position in the east Baltic coastal area are understandable."

Staff of Polish Embassy Quits Russia for Finland

Presence of Japanese Envoy at Farewell Stirs Comment

MOSCOW, Oct. 9 (AP).—The staffs of the Polish Embassy and of three consulates in Soviet Russia left here today for Finland, hoping eventually to reach Great Britain or France.

A large delegation from the foreign colony, diplomatic circles including the United States Ambassador, Laurence A. Steinhardt, and Japan's Ambassador, Shigenori Togo, bade them good by.

The presence of the Japanese envoy in the group of well-wishers caused comment, since representatives of Germany and Italy, anti-Commintern pact partners of Japan, were absent.

Pianist Pledges Support of Government in Exile.

PARIS, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—The Polish embassy announced tonight that Ignace Paderewski, former Polish Premier, had give his support to the new Polish Government in exile set up in France.

In a letter to Premier Wladyslaw Sikorsky, the famous pianist-patriot declared he joined in the "common and ardent desire to serve our glorious and unhappy country."

One of Gen. Sikorsky's first acts upon becoming Premier on September 30 was to write Mr. Paderewski, who is living quietly at Lausanne, Switzerland, asking him as the "most brilliant incarnation of the heart, spirit and genius of millions of Poles" to approve the new Government.

Mr. Paderewski, who is forbidden by the Swiss to take part in any political activities, sent the reply to Paris by a special messenger.

Sweden, Facing Baltic Threats, Braces Defense

100,000 Reserves Ordered Retained in Army; First Bomb Shelters Begun

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 9 (AP).—The first bomb-proof shelters in Sweden were under construction at Stockholm tonight and about 100,000 Swedish army reserves were orderec to remain in service as disquiet developed in northern Europe.

The neutral countries about the North Sea and Baltic are strengthened their ties in view of a threat to their Baltic trade, and showed sharp concern over the impending conversations at Moscow between Soviet Russia and Finland.

"Because of changes in the foreign situation, the government has ordered that those military men who should have left the service Oct. 15 shall remain in service until further notice," said a Swedish government communique tonight. The order concerns the class of 1938 and other men mobilized on Sept. 2. No official figure of the number involved was given out, but it was estimated by military observers that about 100,000 men would be affected.

Swedish authorities estimated they could place 600,000 men with different degrees of military training in the field if necessary. The regular army strength before the European crisis was estimated at 60,000 men.

The air raid shelters, ten or twelve of them ordered by Stockholm civil authorities, were the first ever started in Sweden.

On the Swedish-Finnish frontier tonight, the whole Torne Valley, an area of about 4,000 square miles, was blacked out in air-raid practice.

Reports from Haparanda, in northern Sweden, said Finnish aviation forces practiced bomb attacks and anti-aircraft exercises all day on the Finnish side of the frontier. The Swedish authorities followed suit in Haparanda and in scattered villages. The blackouts will continue until further notice, it was said.

In Copenhagen, the newspaper "Nationaltidende" asserted the Finnish-Russian negotiations were "not a problem for Finland only, but one for the whole north." It added: "The problem is so much more dangerous because negotiations with Moscow are only a link in a bigger process which is of greatest danger for the north and for the whole of Europe."

The paper said the Nordic people owed thanks to Finland because it once stopped a "Bolshevik expedition into Europe." Since then, the paper pointed out, political and economic ties between Finland and the Scandinavian countries have been strengthened. The paper added that a "blow against Finland would be felt as a blow against the whole north."

Three Nations Confer

As Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, Finland's Minister to Sweden, completed preparations for a journey to the Soviet capital to receive Russian proposals, delegates of Norway, Sweden and Denmark arrived at Helsingfors, the Finnish capital, to discuss ways of maintaining commerce. The delegates were seeking a way to circumvent war dangers to commerce in the Baltic and North Seas and to keep trade as nearly as possible at the normal level.

Lieut.-Col. Dryssen, the Swedish delegate, said: "Adoption of new trade routes offers considerable difficulty, since it obviously is harder to transport big shipments by rail than by boat, and that is why the northern nations must get together to solve the common problem."

The Finns were inclined to make a point of the fact that Dr. Paasikivi's plans called for a trip to Moscow by train rather than by plane. Airplanes were used by representatives of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania in their journeys to and from Moscow after they were invited by the Soviet government to engage in conferences. Traveling by train the Finnish party probably would not arrive at Moscow before Wednesday morning. Dr. Paasikivi was expected to make his return trip by the same comparatively slow means.

Observers here expected no early conclusion of the Russian-Finnish conversations such as marked those involving Estonia and Latvia. Finnish officials insisted that Russia had made no demands but merely had extended an invitation to exchange opinions about political and economic problems, which were not named.

The Finns pointed out that they were going ahead in the mean time with border fortifications. Finland called up additional reservists last week for "extraordinary service to strengthen the national neutrality."

Germany "Not Concerned"

BERLIN, Oct. 9 (AP).—Authorized sources here said today that Finland's relations with Russia were no concern of Germany. Questions raised by Russia's invitation to the Finnish government to send a plenipotentiary for negotiations were said to be solely "problems of neighborly relations, which really do not concern Germany."

(Reports from Moscow Sunday night said Finland was seeking diplomatic aid from both Sweden and Germany to forestall any "excessive" demands from Russia. Sweden denied receiving such a request.)

Procope Pledges Neutrality

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—Minister Hjalmar Procope said today that Finland "will stand firm behind its policy of neutrality, will refuse to join any bloc of large nations, but is willing to negotiate with Russia."

The Finnish envoy made this statement to reporters after conferring with R. Walton Moore, counselor of the Department of State. Asked what Finland would do if requested to make the same kind of military concessions to Russia as those made by Latvia and Estonia, Procope replied: "In that case, Finland would stand firm."

He added that there was no reason why Finland should not negotiate with Russia, since she had always sought to remain on good terms with the Soviet government.

German Beheaded As Foreign Spy

Vast German Migration Begun

Ships Arrive in Estonia to Move Minority —Talks Are Under Way in Balkans.

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—The steamships Oldenburg and Utlandshoern arrived here today to assist, it was reported, in transplanting German minorities now residing in Estonia.

A German commission was also said to be on route here to discuss details of the repatriation program.

Similar activity was reported with regard to the German populations in Latvia and Lithuania.

Planning in Berlin.

BERLIN, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—In line with one of Adolf Hitler's declarations in his Reichstag speech of last Friday, Germany was at work today on plans for negotiation with the smaller Baltic States for the immediate transfer of their German minorities to some section of the Reich.

The chief difficulty appeared to be the question of how to recompense these Germans for the property, especially real estate, which they would leave behind, and how to effect the transfer of their capital assets without embarrassing the economy and finance of the Baltic States on the one hand, and Germany on the other.

In his Reichstag speech on Friday Hitler said Germany's most important task in Poland was the establishment of "a new order of ethnographic conditions, that is to say, a resettlement of nationalities." The problem, however, was not restricted to Poland, he added in declaring that "the east and south of Europe is to a large extent filled with splinters of the German nationality, whose existence they cannot maintain."

Some May Not Wish to Move.

Reich officials estimated that there were 60,000 Germans in Latvia, from 15,000 to 20,000 in Estonia and 40,000 in Lithuania, the countries under immediate consideration for repatriation negotiations. Some German families were said to have moved to the Reich without waiting for an official settlement of the problems involved.

Latvia, it was understood, estimated the value of possessions in German hands there at 1,500,000,000 reichsmarks (about $600,000,000).

Another question to be settled was that of German families claiming to have lived in the same place for centuries and not desiring to migrate. There was no clear answer to the question whether Germany would disinterest herself in such persons or whether possible injury to them would still excite the wrath of Hitler as Protector of all the Germans.

All signs pointed to the fact that Germany and the Baltic States would act quickly and decisively on the matter of transfer of Germans and not wait for details which would only retard the operations. Some form of option would be granted these Germans, however, it was said.

The question of transferring Germans out of Soviet Russia would be taken up considerably later, it was intimated.

Out of the Balkans, Too.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Widely published Bucharest dispatches said today that the German Government has been conducting secret discussions for several weeks with the Balkan nations relative to transplanting southeastern European minorities to Germany.

These dispatches said that a plan had been advanced whereby Germany would pay the cost of transporting as many of the 2,000,000 Germans now living in Rumania, Yugoslavia and Hungary as wish to settle in what were western Poland and Czecho-Slovakia.

Soviet Russia was said to have informed Germany confidentally that to make room for repatriated Germans in these areas, she would admit Czechs and Slovaks who were willing to emigrate to Russian farms or industrial areas.

The latest census figures place the number of Germans in Rumania at nearly 800,000, of which 225,000 reside in Transylvania, 280,000 in Banat, 80,000 in Bukovina and 100,000 in Bessarabia.

Hungary's German population is placed at 600,000 and Yugoslavia's, from 600,000 to 700,000.

Italy Active.

Sharing attention with the Bucharest dispatches were reports that Italy had offered new friendship treaties to Hungary and Yugoslavia. These reports were confirmed semi-officially in Belgrade, while similar rumors were likewise heard in Bucharest. Italian radio broadcasts heard here also said that negotiations were under way.

In diplomatic circles it was said that Adolf Hitler's Reichstag speech last Friday declaring that Germany and Russia would settle jointly all of southeastern Europe's problems had speeded Italian action to protect her own Balkan and Danubian interests. Usually reliable Yugoslav informants said that the Italian negotiations were "only the beginning of something much bigger than a mere treaty."

[Associated Press dispatches from Rome contained no official confirmation of these reported negotiations. Some persons, however, advanced the belief that Italy was seeking to eliminate the differences which have divided the Balkans preparatory to forming a bloc under Italian leadership. This bloc, it was suggested, might take the form of a consultative pact and economic agreement similar to the Rome protocols which once bound Austria, Hungary and Italy.]

With Italian diplomacy thus far aimed at preserving neutrality, the small southeastern nations saw their chances of staying out of the war enhanced by the possibility of some sort of pact with Italy.

Grim-Faced Finns Chant Anthem As They See Envoy Off

OCT 10 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Helsinki, Finland, Oct. 9—Grim-faced citizens of this northern republic thronged Helsinki's railway station tonight to say farewell to the Finnish delegation, Moscow-bound for "economic and political negotiations."

When Juho Kusti Paasikivi, who heads the delegation, appeared on the platform, the crowd with bared heads began to sing.

Women with trembling lips clung to the arms of husbands, brothers, fathers and sons as the words of the Finnish patriotic hymn resounded under the high roof of the station.

"Never shall our land bow before the foreign tyrant," they sang.

Envoy Perturbed

Paasikivi, watching the efforts of his fellow-citizens to restrain their emotions, all but chewed his lips in an effort to govern his own.

A moment before leaving, Paasikivi, who led the nation as Premier through the period when it was establishing its independence from Russia in 1918-1920, clasped the hand of Premier Cajander, who stood nearby on the platform.

He then waved his hat to the crowd, which remained bareheaded and continued singing.

Looks For U. S. Aid

Premier Cajander, asked for comment, said: "It's hard to say anything at such moments as this," and then, after a long pause, he added:

"But we Finns hope that Americans will watch our coming negotiations closely. The sympathy and moral support of America has never gone unappreciated in Finland, and we trust that now, too, America will watch what happens and judge the results according to civilized standards of justice."

Paasikivi was accompanied by Col. A. A. Paasanen as technical adviser and by the political chief of the Foreign Office, J. A. Nykopp.

Exodus Is in Full Swing

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 9 (AP).—A great exodus of Germans from the Baltic states was in full swing tonight, with a big fleet of German vessels pressed into service to carry settlers from countries passing under Russian dominance to territories newly added to Adolf Hitler's reich.

Ten German steamers already were in Riga's harbor. Four others were at Liepaja (Libau) and Ventspils (Windau). All were loading emigrants from Latvia, with their belongings. Four other vessels arrived at Tallinn, Estonia, to take Germans from that country. Lithuania has a common border with Germany, and emigration from that country may be handled by rail.

Repatriation was obligatory only in the case of German citizens. In Latvia these number only 4,500. Latvian citizens of the German race, however, were estimated here to number 56,000, of whom 38,000 are residents of Riga. (The population of Riga in 1935 was 385,000.)

Latvia's largest newspaper estimated the value of German holdings in Latvia at 1,500,000,000 reichsmarks (nominally $600,000,000). It was said that some rich Germans apparently controlled much of the country's industry and had vast real estate holdings. It was generally believed in Riga that about half of the Latvian Germans, chiefly young people, would emigrate.

The semi-official newspaper "Rits" said that German wanted to establish clear relations with all neighbors to eliminate possible trouble over minorities. Some observers, however, said Hitler was thinking rather of ideological and social changes likely to follow Russia's increasing influence in the Baltic.

German organizations in Latvia were reported co-operating enthusiastically with Hitler's scheme to repatriate German settlers. One organization, the German Community in Latvia, in an announcement to its membership, said:

"Our group will leave the region it has called home. It regards with pride the four centuries of its development in this country. But the great homeland has now presented a new duty. Firmly bound together, we will settle and participate in the development of the eastern region won back by the Reich.

"This resettlement will take place in the closest co-operation between the Latvian and German governments. We gaze with proud anticipation on the new historic mission which has come to us and we want to measure up to the expectations placed in us."

Visitor to Prison Camps Says Poles Want to Work

Red Cross Official Saw Four Allied Flyers as Captives

GENEVA, Oct. 9 (AP).—Dr. Marcel Junod, International Red Cross official visitor to German prison camps, said in a report released here that all Polish prisoners in three camps he inspected had asked for work. He added that many prisoners already had been released for work on farms in Germany.

The first camp visited, Dr. Junod said, was Itzehoe, thirty-five miles from Hamburg, where he said he found 900 Polish officers, 200 orderlies, two British and two French aviators. The second was at Bromberg, with thirty-two officers, 600 soldiers and 2,500 civilians, all Polish. The third was at Harmenstein, near Neustettin, with 1,500 Polish prisoners of various ranks.

Dr. Junod said the German Red Cross and German military authorities had co-operated fully during his visits.

Balbo's Paper Bitterly Assails Friends of Reds

Asserts Fascists Were 'Born Anti-Communist'; Violent Against 'Living Monsters'

ROME, Oct. 9 (AP).—The newspaper "Il Corriere Padano," owned by Air Marshal Italo Balbo, Governor of Libya, declared today in an editorial that Fascists were "born anti-Communist and are determined so to remain."

While Balbo owns the paper, he takes no part in its active direction. The editorial, signed by Nello Guilici, director of the newspaper, was interpreted as a rebuke to some Italian papers which printed favorable articles about the Soviet Union after the development of the new German-Russian partnership.

"Il Corriere" demanded "not a gram of esteem, not an ounce of sympathy for the Bolsheviks."

"For us," the editorial said, "they are and always will be tragic clowns, professional frauds, models of coarse bestiality and living monsters in the service of the most lunatic, infamous degradation that universal history records."

"Il Corriere" said it objected especially to a sympathetic sketch of Marshal Klementi E. Voroshilov, Soviet War Commissar, published by a Rome magazine.

Labeling Voroshilov "a sinister personage," the newspaper accused him of complicity in "felonious massacres, executions and horrible, wholesale carnage in accordance with his own whims or those of his master."

"Naturally Voroshilov and his comrades, like all Russian Bolshevik carrion, don't mean anything to us," it went on. Whether they glorify or slaughter one another is their business. At most it would mean a few less criminals abroad in the world.

"But that in Italy a Voroshilov legend should be attempted which competes with the legend of Garibaldi—this positively cannot be." (Giuseppe Garibaldi was a famous Italian patriot of the nineteenth century.)

NAZIS FREE BRITONS

Would Arrange an Exchange of Nationals.

LONDON, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—The Ministry of Information announced tonight the receipt of word from Berlin authorities through the United States embassy that the release of three British consular officials had been ordered.

L. G. Bayliss, Vice-Consul at Hamburg, and two other consular employees were transferred from prison to hotels, but will be detained in Germany pending the arrangement of a reciprocal exchange.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Danish radio stations picked up an S O S at about noon (6 A. M. Eastern standard time) today from the 2,026-ton Finnish freighter Indra, owned by the Vastik Steamship Company, Ltd., of Aabo. The message said only "S O S mine," after which nothing was heard.

Danish Schools To Begin Later

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Because Denmark wants to economize on electric current and coal consumption, school children will get an extra hour of sleep during the 1939-40 school year.

Officials announced today schools will open at 9 A. M. instead of the customary 8 A. M. starting November 1. Denmark imports most of her coal supply.

French for First Time Report General Operations in West

Tell of Big Scale Activity of Patrols and Announce Successful Attack on U-Boat —Daladier Answers Hitler Tomorrow.

PARIS, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—For the first time since the war started five weeks ago, an official French communique today gave indications that more or less general operations were under way on the western front.

The communique described German patrol activity as "very great" and said it was taking place all the way from the Moselle River valley on the extreme end of the front to Saarbruecken, where the Saar River bends back from Germany into France.

A French patrol boat was reported by the communique to have attacked "an enemy submarine with success."

It did not say whether the undersea boat was sunk or captured.

The communique, also for the first time, reported artillery action along the whole northern flank.

Daladier to Address Nation.

The War Ministry announced that Premier Daladier had decided to broadcast a speech to the nation tomorrow as the result of Adolf Hitler's peace speech of last Friday.

M. Daladier's address will be broadcast on a nationwide French hookup at 8 P. M. (2 P. M. New York time).

Formal peace proposals have not been presented to France, it was said here, and in Berlin it was stated after Hitler's speech that his peace proposals would be given no more formal character.

Before the announcement of his speech, Mr. Daladier conferred today with Generalissimo Maurice Gustave Gamelin, Chief of the Franco-British land forces.

Germans Take Offensive.

French military dispatches declared that the German forces had taken the offensive in limited areas along the western front.

The action, it was said, was apparently designed to take prisoners to question for information concerning the French military strength and plans. German attacks were reported near Saarlouis, Saarbruecken and along the Nied River.

Units of the French tank corps were credited with turning back German attempts to retake captured positions inside Germany.

More Deputies Arrested.

In Paris, meanwhile, the War Council announced the arrest yesterday of twenty-six of the seventy-two former Communist members of the Chamber of Deputies on charges of violating the decree dissolving the Communist party and forbidding Communist propaganda. The arrests, it was said, were based on a letter sent to Edouard Herriot, President of the Chamber, urging a public session of Parliament for a debate on "immediate peace."

Sixteen of the Deputies were arrested in Paris. The others, taken into custody in the provinces, are being sent to the capital.

The arrest of two Alsatian Deputies, who long have advocated autonomy for the frontier facing Germany, was disclosed tonight. The Deputies were Joseph Rosse and Marcel Steurmel, both members of the Independent Popular Action party. They were reported to have been arrested at their Alsatian homes.

Rosse, forty-seven-year-old former school teacher and newspaper editor, was criticized by Nationalist Deputies last April for articles attacking Great Britain. He was censured at a meeting of the Foreign Affairs Committee on April 19 for alleged autonomist activities which Deputies said were exploited by a German propaganda service.

The official War Ministry communique issued at 10:10 A. M. today said:

"At the end of the day of the eighth (October 8) and during the night there was activity by elements in contact in the lower valley of the Nied and to the south of Saarbruecken."

German artillery fire and increased patrol skirmishes from Saarbruecken west to Luxemburg had led French military observers to predict earlier today a possible big-scale Nazi offensive soon against that section of the Maginot Line.

Nazi Offensive.

Observers said their predictions of an early Nazi offensive were strengthened by the let-up of heavy rains in the fighting zone and reports that German veterans of the Polish invasion were being stationed in great numbers in the Saarland facing the French line.

Most of the German artillery fire was south and southwest of Saarlouis, between Saarbruecken and Luxembourg. The French replied steadily. They asserted that their troops repulsed a series of German "surprise attacks" east of the Moselle River.

With the clearing weather, French planes were said to have made observation trips over the western German cities of Cologne and Bonn, which are on the Rhine opposite Germany's Belgian and Dutch frontiers.

One French scouting plane failed to return to its base, it was announced.

It was estimated that the allied blockade had brought about the seizure of 400,000 tons of commodities meant for Germany. A large part of this was said to have been oil, and French informers said that Germany had only a six-months' fuel reserve.

NAZIS ATTACK FRENCH ALONG 35-MILE FRONT

Open Extensive Drive All The Way From Moselle To Saarbrücken

Germans Reported Throwing Larger And Larger Units Into Fighting

By H. TAYLOR HENRY
Associated Press Correspondent

Paris, Oct. 9—The French high command reported tonight that the Germans were attacking all the way from the Moselle river to Saarbrücken on the most extensive front brought into simultaneous action since the war started five weeks ago.

Besides the fighting on the thirty-five-mile front, the night communique said an artillery duel covered the entire northern flank of the Western front, from the Moselle to Lauterbourg, where the French-German frontier joins the Rhine.

German Attacks Increasing

Shells screamed overhead as German patrols extended their contact with French advance guards from near the Luxembourg border to Saarbrücken, central key of Nazi defenses between the Moselle and the Rhine.

The German attacks obviously were increasing in strength day by day.

French official reports of the last few days have told of repulsing German patrols in surprise attacks against various sectors.

"Great Activity" Reported

Tonight the communique said there was "very great activity of enemy patrols between the Moselle and the Saar."

A French success in sea warfare was reported by the communique, which said a French patrol boat had attacked "an enemy submarine with success."

The Germans were believed by observers to be throwing larger and larger units into the fighting on the Western front.

Military observers reported twenty-four hours ago that the Germans were using units as large as companies, supported by machine gun and anti-tank units, for their advance patrol work.

French observers considered it too early to say whether a long-expected German offensive was yet underway, but the communique left little doubt that one of the heaviest actions of the war to date was in progress.

Study Troop Dispositions

French and British scouting planes were endeavoring to verify reports of German troop dispositions in order to determine the significance of the increasing German activity.

Changed tactics of German artillery caused some French observers to believe a limited German offensive might be starting. German batteries for the first time began trying to silence French artillery just behind the front lines.

This counter-battery work during the World War came to be expected as the preliminary to an attack.

Until now German artillery has been firing in front of its lines to prevent French advances, or training its fire on French communication lines and concentration points in the rear.

Bad Weather Coming

It was pointed out by military observers that a German offensive probaby would have to be undertaken within the next three weeks, for then the weather is likely to turn bad.

Such an offensive, they said, probably would be limited to objectives which the Germans would have a chance of taking quickly.

On the political front, Premier Daladier prepared to broadcast a reply at 8 P.M. (2 P.M. E.S.T.) tomorrow to Adolf Hitler's Danzig speech. Political circles expected the address would emphasize France's refusal to discuss any terms which involve recognition of Poland's partition.

The French meanwhile disclosed the Germans had "bombarded" their lines on the Western front with selected sections of Hitler's speech.

Verbal Bombardment

The Germans mixed words with bullets, the French said, by following up their verbal bombardment through loud speakers with a series of localized infantry attacks.

The Germans used the same technique perfected in the Spanish civil war, during which almost daily broadcasts from opposing lines became commonplace. French advance outposts reported the broadcasters concentrated on portions of Hitler's Reichstag speech, which stressed friendship for France.

"The Germans erected loud-speakers alongside machine guns and anti-tank cannon," French reports asserted.

Heavy German guns which had been shelling French positions stopping firing when the broadcasts in German and French began. The loud-speakers were so powerful the French reported they could be heard far behind the firing line.

Hunt For Reds Pressed

Meanwhile, French military police pressed a nationwide search for missing Communist leaders after the arrest of two Alsatian Deputies long known for advocating autonomy for their frontier province.

Those arrested were Joseph Rosse and Marcel Steurmel, members of the independent Popular Action party.

Rosse, 47, a former school teacher and newspaper editor, was criticized by Nationalist Deputies as long ago as April for articles attacking England. He was scored informally at a meeting of the Foreign Affairs Committee then for autonomist activities which certain deputies asserted were exploited by the German propaganda service.

Leaders Not Yet Caught

Although thirty-seven former Communist Deputies have been arrested for attempting to reform the outlawed party under the name of the Workers-Peasants party, the leaders have not yet been taken into custody.

A thorough search of the houses of relatives of Communists who fled from police today located Jean Duclos, brother of Jacques Duclos, Communist Vice-President of the Chamber of Deputies who fled with other outlawed party chiefs a few hours before an order for their arrest was issued.

BERLIN CALLS UP RESERVE CLASSES

Berlin, Oct. 10 (Tuesday) (AP).—Posters appeared on all billboards today signed by the Chief of Police stating that the classes of 1911 and 1912 had been called up "without public notification."

The posters said the call to those who had not received the order by today must nevertheless report immediately to police stations.

They further announced that all members of the Reserve (Ersatz-Reserve Zwei) and militia (Landwehr Zwei) may be used in labor battalions. These men largely are untrained and in most cases over the usual military age. They are requested to report at precinct police stations not later than Oct. 15.

3 Nazi Bombers Forced Down After Battle Over North Sea

Norwegian Admiralty Says German Planes And British Warships Fought Off Southern Norwegian Coast

[By the Associated Press]

Copenhagen, Oct. 9—The Norwegian admiralty said tonight that British warships and German bombing planes clashed today in an air-sea battle in the North Sea off the southern Norwegian coast.

Details of the fight were not given, but three German planes made forced landings in the North Sea area shortly after the engagement. The British said none of its warships was damaged.

The Norwegian admiralty said sounds of great cannonading were heard from the North Sea on the island of Utsira off Haugesund. The admiralty reported it had been informed by the British navy that the British ships and German planes were in a battle but no further report was made.

Tried To Sink Plane

The Oslo Aftenposten said a German bomber was forced to land off the south coast, where the crew was rescued by a Norwegian pilot boat and taken to Rekefjord, considerably south of where the cannonading was heard.

The Aftenposten reported the German flyers attempted to sink the plane but failed and it was towed to the coast. Later a Norwegian warship took the four flyers, all uninjured, to Egersund.

Two two-motored German bombers landed in the vicinity of Esbjerb on the southern Danish coast. Another was reported driven off by Danish anti-aircraft guns at Aabenras, near the German border.

Warships Sighted

The Bergen Morgenavisen reported warships were seen off Utsira during the battle. Cannonading also was heard at Haugesund but police there said they had no details.

Gunfire likewise was distinguishable by the inhabitants of Algory island, forty miles south of Bergen, where fishermen saw smoke on the horizon in the direction of the cannonading but did not see the ships.

BELGIAN BORDER LIKE WAR ZONE

Countryside Bristles With Defensive Armaments.

CONSTANT VIGIL BY PATROLS

Children at Play on Road Cross and Recross German Border.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—The Belgian-German frontier, which was the first theater of war in 1914, today is a scene of "armed peace" as the Belgians stand ready to resist any possible invader.

A tour from Liege to the frontier points near Aachen (Aix-La-Chappelle), Malmedy, Saint Vith and nearby posts produced a picture not unlike a country at war.

To protect itself, this neutral country, partly mobilized, must barricade roads, have tank traps and barbed wire ready, and must man forts. Guards and armed patrols must keep a steady watch in wooded areas, scouting many roads winding in and out of the twisting border.

Over on the German side, little can be seen beyond a peaceful countryside similar to the Belgian country. Although the Siegfried Line parallels the frontier it is a distance back and residents simply wave vaguely and say "It's back of the hills."

Children Ignore Frontiers.

A typical frontier scene was found at Tulje, Belgian customs post on the Liege Aachen road. The highway is obstructed by hastily erected barriers through which cars must weave slowly. Guards inspected passports, but asked for no special permits and permitted visitors to stroll at will up the road toward Germany.

Half a mile away hung a huge Belgian flag, and beyond it was a white line on the road guarded by two German soldiers in helmets, great coats and military boots. Rifles on shoulders, they stood across the highway and back of them flew a Nazi flag with its black swastika.

Many children who played unconcernedly on the road passed back and forth from country to country, stopping to chat with the guards. In one house situated between the frontier posts a little girl leaned over a window sill and sang at the top of her voice.

Although this is a strategically important military area, all homes here are occupied. Cows which grazed all through the district seemed more numerous than soldiers. Few automobiles passed the frontier although several bicyclists rode through without a challenge.

Farther south near Saint Vith, where the countryside is heavily wooded with pine and the terrain is hilly, the problem for a motorist strange to the region was to stay in Belgium without driving into Germany by mistake.

Farm Roads Guarded.

Near Shoenberg and Lommersweiler, little frontier posts on rough country roads, Belgian highways ran through German territory and German railroads into Belgium. There was ample evidence that Belgium was prepared against surprises in this area, as even little farm roads had frontier barriers and guards.

The German side at this point appeared deserted except for occasional military patrols which watched over the area, soldiers said.

Generally, Belgium appeared to be preparing to slow down any motorized advance along the frontier by obstructing and wiping out roads up to prepared lines of defense guarded by a miniature Maginot Line. Camouflaged underground forts with gun casements visible from the road in some areas marked the line Belgium has long prepared.

Frontier areas show advanced development of air-raid defense with trenches and underground shelters. No evidence was seen that civilians had been taken out of these areas.

FINNISH FREIGHTER IS VICTIM OF MINE

Crew Believed Saved by Nearby Vessels.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—Rescue boats from the Netherlands reported that the Finnish freighter Indra, 2,026 tons, sank today after striking a mine off the island of Terschelling.

Only wreckage of the sunken freighter was found, but the entire crew of the Indra was believed to have been rescued by nearby Finnish ships which proceeded on their way, Netherlands sailors said.

Blast Damages English Ship

LONDON, Oct. 9 (AP).—The British Press Association said tonight that the 9,462-ton Royal Mail Lines motorship Loch Goil, outward bound with cargo, "was damaged off the English coast as the result of an explosion" last Friday night. The agency said a skeleton crew was left in charge of the anchored vessel, and the remainder of the crew of sixty-four was taken ashore. There were no casualties.

Captain Of Greek Vesse Blames Accident On Absence Of Lights To Guide Craft

London, Oct. 9 (AP)—Twenty-nine members of the crew of the 5,210-ton Greek steamer Mount Ida, which went aground off the east coast of England, were rescued tonight by lifeboat from Cromer.

Shore searchlights stabbing the blackout aided the rescue in a heavy storm. The Mount Ida went aground thirty-two miles east of Cromer early Monday.

Capt. Nicholas Mavroleon, said the ship grounded because there were no lights to guide it.

Ships Stopped Three Times

BOSTON, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Swedish motorship Fidra reported that she had been stopped three times during the ocean crossing, twice after shots were fired across her bow, as she arrived today loaded with wood pulp.

Capt. H. O. Brink said German U-boats fired shots in order to stop the ship to halt on Sept. 14 off the coast of Sweden, and a day later in the North Sea. A British cruiser, he said, stopped the Fidra off the Shetland Islands. In each instance, he said, officers boarded the ship to examine her papers.

IROQUOIS LANE PATROLED

Coast Guard Plane Seeks Trace of Submarine Off Maine

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 9 (AP)—As the American refugee liner Iroquois neared the United States tonight, navy officials declined to say whether a search was under way for a strange submarine reported yesterday as sighted within striking distance of the vessel's normal course.

A Coast Guard plane from the airbase at Salem, Mass., flew over an area south of Portland where the undersea craft was reported seen by Arthur R. Greenleaf, Maine's Commissioner of Sea and Shore Fisheries, but Coast Guardsmen described the flight as a routine patrol.

The Iroquois is scheduled to reach her pier at West Eighteenth Street tomorrow afternoon, officials of the United States Lines said yesterday.

They pointed out, however, that since the statement was made in Germany that the vessel would be sunk, all communications between Captain Edgar A. Chelton, master of the Iroquois, and the United States Lines had to go through the Navy Department.

No message from Captain Chelton was received by the United States Lines during the day and if the vessel meets with bad weather or fog approaching the coast it may be delayed until Thursday. The vessel is carrying 566 Americans.

ANOTHER NAZI SHIP FLEES MONTEVIDEO

Freighter Sails Secretly and Without Permit.

MONTEVIDEO, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—The maritime authorities announced today that the 3,670-ton German freighter Borkum had sailed secretly from the outer harbor without a permit, an act which makes the vessel a pirate under international law.

The Borkum had been anchored in the outer harbor since the start of war in Europe. Another German ship, the Gonzenheim, departed similarly three weeks ago.

International law classifies as pirates all ships failing to obtain clearance permits.

WINDSOR'S CHATEAU

Duchess Offers It as Home for Convalescing Officers.

PARIS, Oct. 9 (A. P.).—The French Government was understood today to have approved a plan of the Duchess of Windsor to establish a convalescent home for British officers in her Riviera chateau at Cap d'Antibes.

The Windsors, it was said, will pay all expenses of equipping the home and will meet the operation costs, which are expected to amount to approximately $75,000.

The Duchess was believed to be planning to be hostess to the first group of British wounded. On a recent trip to the Riviere, she selected nurses for the home. The British army will supply the physicians.

Incidents in European Conflict

Danish Children Are Gainers

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Oct. 9 (AP)—Because Denmark wants to economize on electric current and coal consumption, school children will get an extra hour of sleep during the 1939-40 school year.

Officials announced today that schools would open at 9 A. M. instead of the customary 8 A. M., starting Nov. 1. Denmark imports most of her coal supply.

Moratorium in Bohemia

PRAGUE, Oct. 9 (AP)—A moratorium on foreclosure of mortgages to March 31, 1940, was decreed by the Protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia today, but it will not apply to Jews or Jewish firms.

Luxembourg Costs Down

LUXEMBOURG, Oct. 9 (AP)—While taxes and food prices soared in most of Europe, the Duchy of Luxembourg, which has no taxes, announced today that living costs for September were below the previous month. Reduced prices for potatoes and the stationary price of butter accounted for the drop, although some foods were slightly higher.

Vesuvius Is Blacked Out, Too

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 9 (AP)—How famous old Vesuvius, Italy's active volcano, was brought into line when it refused to cooperate during blackouts of Naples was told tonight by a Baltimorean just back from Europe.

When Naples was blacked out as a precaution just before the war started, he said, Vesuvius shot its flames skyward as usual, a beacon any airman might follow directly to the Naples area. The next time the air alarm sounded, Italian war planes zoomed up and laid a smoke screen around Vesuvius.

Basel International Bank To Function Despite War

Chief Worry Is Whether New U. S. Head Will Take Office

BASEL, Switzerland, Oct. 9 (AP).—The Bank for International Settlements, created to solve the financial chaos left by the World War, was described today as likely to continue actively in its function as a clearing house despite the present war and heavy withdrawals by various central banks.

One of the few things worrying the big international bank's president, Dr. G. W. Beyen, of the Netherlands, appeared to be whether his successor, T. H. McKittrick, an American banker, was coming to Europe to take over the job. McKittrick, former director of the National City Bank of New York and Genoa, Italy, has been named to take over the office in 1940.

The bank's last statement showed 493,410,000 Swiss gold francs (about $161,142,500) had been left on deposit by central banks, including the Reichsbank. "We are not a political institution interested in politics," Dr. Beyen said. "We are simply a gigantic clearing house for central banks of all nations and so long as two member banks continue to exist we will work."

30.24-3951

BASEL, OCT. 9.

DR. BEYEN SAID THE BANK CREATED TO HANDLE REPARATIONS PAYMENTS HAD NOW BECOME A CLEARING HOUSE FOR ALL LARGE CENTRAL EUROPEAN BANKS. HE SAID THE EUROPEAN WAR "SIMPLY MEANS WE HAVE A TREMENDOUS JOB OF WORLD-WIDE IMPORTANCE TO TEND TO AFTER THE WAR IS OVER."

ALTHOUGH GERMANY HAS OBTAINED FAR MORE THAN ITS ORIGINAL HOLDINGS OF SHARES IN THE INTERNATIONAL BANK BY TAKING OVER THOSE OF AUSTRIA, CZECHOSLOVAKIA AND THE FREE STATE OF DANZIG, DR. BEYEN SAID THERE WAS NO QUESTION OF THE REICHSBANK EITHER CONTROLLING OR DESIRING TO CONTROL THE BASEL INSTITUTION.

"GERMANY, LIKE OTHER MEMBERS, HAS EVERY REASON TO AID US FOR HER OWN BENEFIT," HE SAID.

THE PRESIDENT SAID GERMANY PROBABLY WOULD NOT RECEIVE 2,000 SHARES HELD BY THE POLISH CENTRAL BANKS SINCE THE POLISH GOVERNMENT-IN-EXILE ESTABLISHED AT PARIS WOULD OBJECT.

"THAT'S A CASE FOR THE WORLD COURT--NOT FOR ME," DR. BEYEN DECLARED.

HE SAID THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS WOULD MEET IN BASEL NEXT MONTH, BUT ADDED THAT DUE TO THE WAR PROBABLY ONLY THE HEADS OF CENTRAL BANKS OF NEUTRAL STATES WOULD ATTEND.

"EYEWITNESS" SAID FOUR BRITISH PLANES HAD MADE SUCCESSFUL DAYTIME FLIGHTS ALONG THE GERMAN FRONTIER FROM FRANCE TO THE NORTH SEA. ONE PAIR OF PLANES WAS SAID TO HAVE FLOWN SAFELY THROUGH TWO ANTI-AIRCRAFT BARRAGES.

THE PLANES SENT OVER GERMANY WERE SAID BY "EYEWITNESS" TO HAVE INVESTIGATED REPORTS RECEIVED AT HEADQUARTERS OF "THE EVACUATION OF IMPORTANT CITIES, BIG TROOP MOVEMENTS NEAR AIX-LA-CHAPELLE (AACHEN), SIGNIFICANT CONCENTRATIONS OF AIRCRAFT, AND INTENSIVE BUILDING OF FORTIFICATIONS NEAR THE LUXEMBOURG FRONTIER."

ALTHOUGH THE CORRESPONDENT SAID THE SCOUTING PLANES LANDED SAFELY IN ENGLAND WITH PHOTOGRAPHS TAKEN ON THEIR FLIGHTS, THERE WAS NO INDICATION OF THE NATURE OF THEIR FINDINGS.

ON THE HOME FRONT, BRITAIN MAINTAINED AN UNYIELDING STAND IN HER WAR OF WORDS WITH ADOLF HITLER AND WATCHED CAREFULLY THE EFFECT OF EACH MOVE ON OPINION IN THE UNITED STATES AND OTHER NEUTRAL COUNTRIES.

THE GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED IT WAS PURCHASING THE WHOLE OF STAPLE CROPS GROWN IN BRITAIN FOR NEXT YEAR'S HARVEST AT PRICES TO BE FIXED "IN THE LIGHT OF PREVAILING CIRCUMSTANCES." THE MINISTRY OF SUPPLY ANNOUNCED IT HAD BOUGHT ENOUGH SOLE LEATHER TO KEEP ARMY SHOD WELL INTO NEXT YEAR.

INCREASING GERMAN ACTIVITY LED ALLIED MILITARY OBSERVERS TO SAY THE NAZIS POSSIBLY WERE PREPARING TO LAUNCH A LIMITED OFFENSIVE TO RE-CAPTURE GERMAN TERRITORY NOW HELD BY THE FRENCH BEFORE WINTER STARTS.

FOR THE FIRST TIME, THE FRENCH SAID, GERMANY BEGAN COUNTER-BATTERY FIRE WHICH CAME TO BE EXPECTED DURING THE WORLD WAR AS A PRELIMINARY TO AN ATTACK.

SUCH FIRE IS DESIGNED TO DESTROY ENEMY ARTILLERY BATTERIES BEFORE THEY CAN FIRE ON ADVANCING INFANTRY."

UNTIL NOW GERMAN ARTILLERY HAS BEEN CARRYING OUT THREE ASSIGNMENTS:

(1) FIRE IN FRONT OF THEIR LINES TO PREVENT A FRENCH ADVANCE.

(2) FIRE ON FRENCH COMMUNICATION LINES TO PREVENT THE BRINGING UP OF SUPPLIES AND REINFORCEMENTS.

(3) HARRASSING FIRE BY HEAVY ARTILLERY AGAINST FRENCH CONCENTRATION CENTERS IN THE REAR.

THE CHANGE IN NAZI ARTILLERY FIRE, THE INCREASE IN SIZE OF PATROLS AND THE WIDENING OF SECTORS IN WHICH THEY WERE OPERATING WERE BEING CAREFULLY STUDIED BY THE FRENCH HIGH COMMAND FOR INDICATIONS OF GERMAN OFFENSIVE.

MILITARY OBSERVERS SAID IT WAS TOO EARLY, HOWEVER, TO DRAW ANY CONCLUSIONS. THEY POINTED OUT THERE WERE ONLY THREE WEEKS OF OCTOBER LEFT BEFORE WINTER SETTLES DOWN OVER THE SAARLAND AND PALATINATE AND IF THE GERMANS WERE CONSIDERING AN OFFENSIVE IT LIKELY WOULD BE LIMITED TO OBJECTIVES WHICH THEY MIGHT HAVE A CHANCE OF TAKING QUICKLY.

BERLIN, OCT 9-(AP)-THE NAZI GOVERNMENT HAD THREE LINES OUT IN THE EUROPEAN DIPLOMATIC WHIRL TONIGHT DURING A MILITARY AND POLITICAL LULL AS ADOLF HITLER AWAITED RESPONSE TO HIS PEACE APPEAL.

THESE LINES WERE:

(1) NEGOTIATIONS WITH MOSCOW FOR QUICK DELIVERY OF RAW MATERIALS.

(2) STARTING OF A GIGANTIC PLAN TO REPATRIATE HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF GERMANS LIVING IN EASTERN EUROPE.

(3) ENCOURAGING OF NEUTRALS TO STEP IN AND TAKE THE LEAD IN FORMING A PEACE BLOC TO HALT THE WAR.

MEANWHILE, THE ARMY HIGH COMMAND IN A COMMUNIQUE REPORTED ONLY MINOR ACTIVITY ON THE WESTERN FRONT AND CONTINUED CLEANING UP OF POLAND.

THE EMPHASIS NAZIS WERE PLACING ON THE POSSIBILITIES OF RECEIVING RAW MATERIALS FROM SOVIET RUSSIA WAS BROUGHT OUT IN TONIGHT'S PRESS IN CONNECTION WITH THE START OF DISCUSSIONS IN MOSCOW BY THE GERMAN TRADE MISSION.

NEWSPAPER HEADLINES REPORTED "IMMEDIATE DELIVERIES" WERE TO BE MADE BY THE RUSSIANS.

(AN ANNOUNCEMENT IN MOSCOW SUNDAY NIGHT SAID AGREEMENT HAD BEEN REACHED "THAT THE U.S.S.R. SHOULD IMMEDIATELY BEGIN SUPPLYING GERMANY MATERIALS AND GERMANY FILLING ORDERS FOR THE U.S.S.R.")

THE GOVERNMENT ALSO REVEALED IT WAS WORKING OUT DETAILS WITH ESTONIA AND LATVIA FOR INDEMNIFICATION OF SOME 80,000 PERSONS OF GERMAN EXTRACTION TO BE BROUGHT BACK AS A PART OF HITLER'S VAST

PLAN TO REPATRIATE GERMANS LIVING IN EASTERN AND SOUTHERN EUROPE.

(A REPORT FROM TALLINN, ESTONIA SAID GERMAN STEAMSHIPS ALREADY HAD ARRIVED TO ASSIST IN TRANSPLANTING GERMAN MINORITIES RESIDING IN ESTONIA. A GERMAN COMMISSION WAS REPORTED EN ROUTE TO DISCUSS DETAILS OF THE REPATRIATION PLAN.

(AN ANNOUNCEMENT FROM RIGA, LATVIA, SAID GERMANY WOULD OPEN NEGOTIATIONS SHORTLY FOR BRINGING BACK PERSONS OF GERMAN BLOOD RESIDING IN THAT COUNTRY.)

ALTHOUGH SOME GERMAN PEOPLE HAVE BEEN BROUGHT BACK FROM THE BALTIC STATES, SUCH A MASS MIGRATION RAISED FINANCIAL PROBLEMS WHICH THE REICH WAS ATTEMPTING TO SETTLE WITH THE SMALLER NATIONS.

LATVIA, IT WAS REPORTED, ESTIMATED THE VALUE OF POSSESSIONS OF GERMAN PEOPLE THERE AT 1,500,000,000 REICHSMARKS (ABOUT $600,000,000).

IT WAS UNDERSTOOD IN INFORMED QUARTERS THAT LITHUANIA, WHICH WAS ABOUT 40,000 GERMANS, WOULD BE DRAWN INTO THE PLAN LATER.

SPONSORS OF THE PROGRAM ALSO FORESAW THE RETURN EVENTUALLY OF GERMANS FROM RUMANIA, YUGOSLAVIA AND HUNGARY.

(REPORTS PUBLISHED IN BUDAPEST SAID SECRET DISCUSSIONS OF THE TRANSPLANTING OF SOUTHEASTERN EUROPEAN MINORITIES TO WESTERN POLAND AND CZECHO-SLOVAKIA HAD BEEN CONDUCTED BY GERMANY AND BALKAN NATIONS FOR SEVERAL WEEKS.)

THE NAZI VIEW OF THE MIGRATION WAS EXPRESSED BY THE SEMI-OFFICIAL DEUTSCHE DIPLOMATISCH POLITISCHE KORRESPONDENZ, WHICH SAID IT PROVES "GERMANY IS A LONG WAY FROM MISUSING GERMANS SETTLED FOR A LONG TIME IN MANY EASTERN EUROPEAN COUNTRIES FOR IMPERIALIST PURPOSES OR TO HELP CREATE POSSIBILITIES FOR INTERVENTION.

"IT SIMULTANEOUSLY ALLAYS FEAR AND CHARGES OF GERMAN HEGEMONY IN EUROPE.

"ON THE CONTRARY, IT UNDERSCORES GERMANY'S DESIRE VOLUNTARILY TO LIMIT HERSELF--A FACT BROUGHT OUT BY THE TREATY WITH RUSSIA."

SINCE HITLER'S ADDRESS TO THE REICHSTAG LAST FRIDAY, IN WHICH HE MADE HIS PEACE OFFER, THE NAZI GOVERNMENT HAS REMAINED QUIET, GIVING NEUTRAL COUNTRIES AN OPPORTUNITY TO STUDY THE PLEA AND POSSIBLY TAKE THE LEAD IN PROPOSING AN ARMISTICE.

(THE FRENCH WAR MINISTRY ANNOUNCED PREMIER DALADIER WOULD BROADCAST A SPEECH TUESDAY NIGHT IN ANSWER TO HITLER.)

COINCIDENT WITH THE MILITARY LULL, THE PUBLIC PRESS HAS PRINTED FEWER ATTACKS ON BRITAIN AND FRANCE. ITEMS WHICH MIGHT BE OFFENSIVE TO A NEUTRAL COUNTRY HAVE BEEN ELIMINATED.

IN THE FIRST COMMENT TO APPEAR IN RUSSIA ON ADOLF HITLER'S REICHSTAG SPEECH OF FRIDAY, THE GOVERNMENT NEWSPAPER IZVESTIA MADE A DEMAND FOR PEACE ON THE BASIS OF HITLER'S TERMS, WHICH THE PAPER CALLED "REAL" AND "PRACTICAL," AND ATTACKED BRITAIN AND FRANCE.

IZVESTIA ACCUSED THE ALLIES OF "RETURNING TO THE MIDDLE AGES" IN WAGING WAR TO "EXTERMINATE HITLERISM."

"IT IS IMPOSSIBLE," THE NEWSPAPER DECLARED, "TO EXTERMINATE ANY IDEA OR ANY OPINION BY FIRE AND SWORD. ONE MAY RESPECT OR HATE HITLERISM OR ANY OTHER SYSTEM OF POLITICAL OPINIONS. THIS IS A MATTER OF TASTE. BUT TO BEGIN A WAR FOR THE 'EXTERMINATION OF HITLERISM' MEANS TO ADMIT TO CRIMINAL SILLINESS IN POLICY."

THE "DISINTEGRATION" OF POLAND WAS CALLED "IRREFUTABLE PROOF THAT ITS LACK OF VITAL POWER" REMOVED THE CAUSES FOR FURTHER WAR.

STILL, IZVESTIA WENT ON, BRITISH AND FRENCH NEWSPAPERS "DEMAND THAT HITLER'S PEACE PROPOSALS BE GIVEN NO CONSIDERATION AND THAT WAR BE CONTINUED" UNTIL THE AIMS OF THE ALLIES WERE "FULLY ACCOMPLISHED."

THE STATUS OF RUSSIA'S FOUR-LINKED NEGOTIATIONS OR PROSPECTIVE NEGOTIATIONS WAS THIS:

1. A PACT WITH LITHUANIA, GIVING RUSSIA INCREASED NAVAL AND MILITARY BASES IN THE BALTIC AND TRANSIT PRIVILEGES THROUGH THAT COUNTRY WAS SEEN AS IMMINENT; THIS WAS EXPECTED TO FACILITATE THE U.S.S.R.'S SHIPMENT OF MATERIALS TO GERMANY. PART OF THE LITHUANIAN MISSION HAS RETURNED TO KAUNAS.

2. NEGOTIATIONS WITH TURKEY APPEARED TO HAVE BOGGED DOWN, SINCE MORE THAN A WEEK HAS PASSED SINCE THE TURKISH FOREIGN MINISTER SUKRI SARACOGLU HAS SEEN SOVIET PREMIER-FOREIGN COMMISSAR VYACHESLAFF MOLOTOFF.

3. A FINNISH DELEGATE, DR. JUHO KUSTI PAASIKIVI, WAS EXPECTED TO ARRIVE WEDNESDAY IN RESPONSE TO A SOVIET "INVITATION" TO DIPLOMATIC TALKS ON TOP OF THE ECONOMIC ONES ALREADY UNDER WAY. IT WAS UNDERSTOOD UNOFFICIALLY THAT FINLAND, BACKED BY THE MORAL SUPPORT OF THE SCANDINAVIAN COUNTRIES, ESPECIALLY SWEDEN, WOULD NOT SUBMIT AS READILY TO THE SOVIET DEMANDS AS HAD ESTONIA AND LATVIA. BOTH THESE BALTIC STATES HAVE GRANTED THE SOVIET AIR AND NAVAL BASES AND TRANSIT PRIVILEGES.

4. RUSSIA ANNOUNCED SPEEDY AGREEMENT WITH A GERMAN TRADE DELEGATION THAT ARRIVED ONLY YESTERDAY. FOREIGN CIRCLES, HOWEVER, REFUSED TFFBE IMPRESSED BY CLAIMS OF MAGNITUDE OF THE DEAL.

THEY SAID RUSSIA WAS OBVIOUSLY IN NO POSITION TO EXPORT GREAT QUANTITIES OF RAW MATERIALS WHICH SHE WAS LACKING AT HOME UNLESS SHE DID SO AT THE EXPENSE OF HOME CONSUMERS. AT MOST, THESE OBSERVERS BELIEVED, GERMANY COULD EXPECT SOME TIMBER AND WHEAT AND COMPARATIVELY

30.24-3957

SMALL QUANTITIES OF COTTON AND PETROLEUM.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE OFFICIAL NEWS AGENCY, TASS, SAID THE AGREEMENT PROVIDED THAT RUSSIA SHOULD IMMEDIATELY BEGIN SUPPLYING GERMANY WITH MATERIALS AND GERMANY BEGIN FILLING ORDERS FOR THE U.S.S.R.

OBSERVERS FELT RUSSIA'S PROBLEM OF TRANSPORT TO GERMANY WOULD BE GREATLY FACILITATED, HOWEVER, THROUGH THE SOVIET'S BARGAINS WITH THE BALTIC STATES, MOST OF WHOSE HARBORS ARE NOT ICE-LOCKED DURING THE WINTER, AN ADVANTAGE HER OWN NORTHERN PORTS DO NOT ENJOY.

WITH THE LITHUANIAN DELEGATION BACK HOME, AFTER CONVERSATIONS WHICH BEGAN LAST WEDNESDAY, RUSSIAN NEWSPAPERS PRINTED DISPATCHES FROM TALLINN, ESTONIA, DECLARING THAT LITHUANIA WAS EAGER FOR AN AGREEMENT WITH RUSSIA AND FOR "SOVIET PROTECTION AGAINST IMPERIALIST COUNTRIES."

DEPARTURE OF SOME OF THE LITHUANIAN DELEGATES CREATED ANOTHER OF MOSCOW'S CURRENT MYSTERIES. FOREIGN CIRCLES DIFFERED WHETHER IT MEANT A PACT ALREADY WAS SIGNED OR WHETHER FRESH INSTRUCTIONS WERE SOUGHT FROM THE LITHUANIAN GOVERNMENT.

(AT KAUNAS, LITHUANIAN CAPITAL, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TONIGHT THAT TWO MEMBERS OF THE LITHUANIAN DELEGATION, DEPUTY PREMIER KAZYA BIZAUKAS, AND GEN. STASYS RASTIKIS, CHIEF OF THE ARMY, WOULD RETURN AGAIN TOMORROW TO MOSCOW. THE DELEGATION ARRIVED AT NOON FROM MOSCOW FOR CONSULTATIONS WITH THE GOVERNMENT ON THE LITHUANIAN-RUSSIAN CONVERSATIONS.)

IT WAS UNDERSTOOD IN FOREIGN CIRCLES THAT RUSSIA MIGHT GRANT LITHUANIA PART OF HER FORMER POLISH TERRITORY CONTAINING A NUMBER OF LITHUANIANS, BUT IT WAS BELIEVED RUSSIA WOULD RETAIN THE CITY OF WILNO (VILNA) PROPER, WHICH ONCE WAS LITHUANIA'S CAPITAL.

NEITHER THE LITHUANIAN LEGATION NOR SOVIET OFFICIALS WOULD COMMENT ON THE NEGOTIATIONS.

IZVESTIA'S EDITORIAL QUOTED GEORGE BERNARD SHAW AS SAYING "THE WAR IN POLAND IS OVER. X X X WE HAVE NO FURTHER CAUSE FOR CONTINUING THE WAR."

"ONE MUST ADMIT THAT BERNARD SHAW IS RIGHT IN MANY PRESPECTS," IZVESTIA SAID. "BUT FOR WHOSE BENEFIT IS THIS WAR BEING WAGED FOR DOMINATION OF THE WORLD? IN ANY CASE, IT IS NOT FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE WORKING CLASS. THE WORKING CLASS CAN ONLY SUFFER IN SUCH A WAR."

THE BRITISH AND FRENCH "RULING CLASSES" WERE CHARGED BY THE PAPER WITH ATTEMPTING "TO PROTECT THEIR COLONIES AGAINST GERMAN CLAIMS AND ENJOY UNSHARED CONTROL OVER THE EXPLOITATION OF HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS OF COLONIAL SLAVES."

DEPUTY PREMIER KAZYS BIZAUSKAS HEADED THE RETURNING DELEGATION.

WASHINGTON, OCT.9-(AP)-ADMINISTRATION FORCES IN THE SENATE LINED UP TONIGHT AGAINST A PROPOSAL BY SENATOR JOHNSON (D-COLO) THAT THE CHAMBER RECESS FOR THREE DAYS SO THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT WOULD BE FREE TO UNDERTAKE THE ROLE OF EUROPEAN PEACE-MAKER.

SENATOR BARKLEY OF KENTUCKY, THE DEMOCRATIC LEADER, TOLD REPORTERS HE BELIEVED THERE WASN'T "A CHANCE IN THE WORLD" OF THE SENATE ADOPTING THE PROPOSAL, WHICH JOHNSON SAID HE MIGHT CALL UP FOR ACTION TOMORROW.

30.24-3961

30.24-3961

THE KENTUCKIAN SAID HE WAS OPPOSED TO THE SENATE TAKING THE INITIATIVE AND HALTING DEBATE OVER REPEAL OF THE ARMS EMBARGO. THE NEUTRALITY REVISION LEGISLATION WAS DESIGNED TO KEEP THE UNITED STATES OUT OF THE CONFLICT, HE ADDED, AND CONSIDERATION OF IT SHOULD GO FORWARD WITHOUT INTERRUPTION.

REPORTS FROM BERLIN HAVE SAID GERMANY WOULD LIKE THE UNITED STATES OR SOME OTHER NEUTRAL TO MEDIATE THE WAR. BARKLEY TOOK THE POSITION THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAD RECEIVED NO REQUEST TO TAKE A HAND IN THE MATTER, THAT THE DECISION WOULD BE UP TO HIM IF A REQUEST WERE RECEIVED AND THAT DEFEAT OF JOHNSON'S PROPOSAL WOULD NOT TIE THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE'S HANDS.

THE REPUBLICAN LEADER, SENATOR MCNARY OF OREGON, JOINED HIM IN PREDICTING DEFEAT OF BOTH THE JOHNSON MOTION AND A PROPOSAL BY SENATOR TOBEY (R-NH) THAT THE ADMINISTRATION'S NEUTRALITY REVISION BILL BE DEVIDED. THE TOBEY MEASURE, DESIGNED TO OBTAIN IMMEDIATE ACTION UPON THE BILL'S PROPOSED SHIPPING RESTRICTIONS AND TO DELAY CONSIDERATION OF ARMS EMBARGO REPEAL UNTIL LATER, IS SCHEDULED TO BE VOTED UPON BETWEEN NOON AND 2 P.M., E.S.T., TOMORROW.

THE DISCUSSION AS TO WHETHER PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SHOULD ATTEMPT TO EFFECT PEACE IN EUROPE AT THIS TIME SHARED ATTENTION WITH AN ANGRY ROW IN THE HOUSE. IT STARTED WHEN REP.WOODRUM (D-VA) PROPOSED THAT THE CHAMBER SET UP A SPECIAL SEVEN-MAN COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE "NATIONAL COMMITTEE TO KEEP AMERICA OUT OF FOREIGN WARS," WHICH HE SAID WAS HEADED BY REP.FISH (R-NY).

WOODRUM, WHO HAS BEEN A BITTER CRITIC OF ADMINISTRATION SPENDING POLICIES BUT WHO VIGOROUSLY DEFENDED THE PRESIDENT TODAY AGAINST CRITICS OF HIS FOREIGN POLICY, SAID THE GROUP LED BY FISH HAD BEEN SOLICITING CONTRIBUTIONS IN A "PROPAGANDA CAMPAIGN THAT MAKES THE UTILITIES AND DOC TOWNSEND LOOK LIKE PIKERS."

WASHINGTON,OCT. 9-(AP)-THE WHITE HOUSE SAID TODAY THAT NAVY PATROLS HAD OBSERVED A NON-AMERICAN SUBMARINE YESTERDAY ABOUT 20 MILES WEST OF KEY WEST, FLA.

STEPHEN EARLY, A PRESIDENTIAL SECRETARY, SAID IT POSSIBLY WAS THE SAME BOAT WHICH WAS REPORTED SATURDAY 15 MILES OFF MIAMI, FLA.

THE SUBMARINE, EARLY ADDED, WAS COMPARATIVELY SMALL. ALSO SEEN IN THE SAME VICINITY, HE SAID, WERE TWO NON-AMERICAN TANKERS.

HE DECLINED TO SAY, HOWEVER, WHETHER THE SUBMARINE AND THE TANKERS WERE OF THE SAME NATIONALITY.

"THIS INFORMATION IS STILL IN THE PROCESS OF BEING CHECKED," EARLY ASSERTED.

HE MADE THAT STATEMENT WHEN ASKED WHETHER OTHER GOVERNMENTS AND AMERICAN SHIPPING HAD BEEN NOTIFIED OF THE PRESENCE OF THE UNDER-SEA CRAFT.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DENITT MACKENZIE

NAZI FUEHRER HITLER BROUGHT STILL MORE HEAVY ARTILLERY INTO PLAY OVER THE WEEK-END IN AN EFFORT TO SECURE ANGLO-FRENCH ACCEPTANCE OF HIS PEACE PROPOSALS, BUT THUS FAR HAS FAILED TO EVOKE ANY FAVORABLE RESPONSE.

ANOTHER BIG GUN WAS FIRED FROM MOSCOW. AT THE CONCLUSION OF A CONFERENCE LAST NIGHT BETWEEN RUSSIAN PREMIER MOLOTOFF AND A LARGE GERMAN DELEGATION IT WAS ANNOUNCED THAT THE NAZI-COMMUNIST PARTNERS HAD AGREED TO MAKE THEIR PROGRAM OF ECONOMIC COLLABORATION EFFECTIVE "AT RAPID PACE AND ON A LARGE SCALE."

THE COMMUNIQUE AMPLIFIED THIS BY EXPLAINING THAT "IN PARTICULAR, AGREEMENT WAS REACHED THAT THE U.S.S.R. SHOULD IMMEDIATELY BEGIN SUPPLYING GERMANY WITH MATERIALS AND GERMANY FILLING ORDERS FOR THE U.S.S.R."

THIS MOVE WAS INTERPRETED BY MANY OBSERVERS AS CALCULATED TO PUT PRESSURE ON THE ALLIES TO ACCEPT THE HITLERIAN PEACE.

THE POINT IS, OF COURSE, THAT SHOULD RUSSIA PLACE ALL HER RESOURCES AT GERMANY'S DISPOSAL, IT WOULD GREATLY STRENGTHEN GERMANY IN THE WAR.

FURTHER SUPPORT WAS GIVEN HITLER IN THE OFFICIAL SOVIET NEWSPAPER IZVESTIA WHICH ACCUSED BRITAIN AND FRANCE OF "RETURNING TO THE MIDDLE AGES" FOR WAGING WAR TO "EXTERMINATE HITLERISM." THE PAPER DECLARED:

"IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO EXTERMINATE ANY IDEA OR ANY OPINION BY FIRE AND SWORD."

MEANTIME SOME SORT OF ALLIED REPLY WAS AWAITED, AND IT WAS SAID BRITISH PREMIER CHAMBERLAIN MIGHT GIVE THIS IN PARLIAMENT WEDNESDAY.

QUESTIONED IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS TODAY, THE PREMIER REPLIED THAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE ARE IN "COMPLETE ACCORD" AS TO THE FREQUENTLY EXPRESSED PURPOSES OF THEIR PARTICIPATION IN THE WAR. ANY MORE SPECIFIC STATEMENT OF THEIR WAR AIMS, HE ADDED, WOULD BE EVOLVED THROUGH CONSULTATION OF THE TWO POWERS.

THIS ADDED NOTHING TO WHAT HAD BEEN KNOWN BEFORE. SPECULATION IN DIPLOMATIC CIRCLES REGARDING A MORE FORMAL REPLY PREDICTED THE PREMIER WOULD ANNOUNCE THAT HITLER'S PROPOSALS HAVEN'T CHANGED BRITAIN'S PURPOSE OF FREEING EUROPE "FROM THE FEAR OF NAZI AGGRESSION.

THE PRESS OF BOTH ENGLAND AND FRANCE REJECTED THE NAZI TERMS. THE BRITISH URGED A POLICY BARRING PEACE "AT THE PRICE OF POLAND," AND THE PARIS FIGARO DECLARED THAT "THERE IS ONLY ONE REPLY TO HITLER. AND THAT IS WITH CANNON."

NAZIDOM, PROFESSING CONFIDENCE THAT PEACE WOULD COME FROM THE HITLER PROPOSALS, CONTINUED TO SUGGEST MEDIATION BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT. THE PRESIDENT, HOWEVER, HAS NOTHING TO SAY FOR THE PRESENT.

WHILE PEACE REMAINED ON THE WING, SOVIET LEADER STALIN PROCEEDED TO PULL BRIGHT AND SHINING NEEDLES OUT OF THE EASTERN EUROPEAN HAYSTACK.

HIS ANTEROOM OVER THE WEEK-END WAS AS FULL OF FOREIGN ENVOYS WAITING, HAT IN HAND, AS WAS EVER THE COURT OF ANY OF THE CZARS OF ALL THE RUSSIAS.

WHILE THE OTHER MAJOR EUROPEAN POWERS ARE BUSY WITH WAR, STALIN HAS BEEN RAPIDLY EXTENDING RUSSIAN INFLUENCE IN EASTERN EUROPE.

30.24-3963

30.24-3963

HE ALREADY HAS IN HIS POCKET VIRTUAL CONTROL OF THE EASTERN BALTIC THROUGH CONCESSIONS FOR MILITARY AND NAVAL BASES RELUCTANTLY GRANTED BY ESTONIA AND LATVIA SINCE POLAND FELL. A MISSION FROM THE THIRD BALTIC STATE, LITHUANIA, RETURNED FROM MOSCOW TODAY AFTER TRYING, PERHAPS, TO EVADE A SIMILAR CONCESSION.

FAR MORE IMPORTANT, AN ENVOY WAS EXPECTED IN MOSCOW TONIGHT FROM FINLAND TO LEARN WHAT RUSSIA WANTS FROM THAT IMPORTANT COUNTRY. DIPLOMATIC QUARTERS IN MOSCOW EXPRESSED THE BELIEF THAT RUSSIA MIGHT TRY TO GET THE UNFORTIFIED ISLANDS OF LAVANSAARI AND SEISKAR, CONTROLLING THE APPROACHES TO LENINGRAD THROUGH THE GULF OF FINLAND.

IT HAS BEEN WIDELY REPORTED THAT WHAT THE SOVIET REALLY WANTS FROM FINLAND IS A CONCESSION FOR FORTIFYING THE STRATEGIC AALAND ISLANDS WHICH LIE BETWEEN FINLAND AND SWEDEN AND WOULD PRETTY WELL MAKE RUSSIA MISTRESS OF THE WHOLE BALTIC.

FINLAND GAVE EVIDENCES, HOWEVER, OF INTENDING TO FIGHT TO A FINISH AGAINST ANY SUCH SCHEME AFFECTING THE AALANDS, AND IT IS SAID THAT SHE LIKELY WOULD HAVE THE DIPLOMATIC SUPPORT OF SWEDEN.

GERMANY WOULD GIVE MUCH FOR THE CONCESSIONS WHICH RUSSIA ALREADY HAS ACHIEVED IN THE BALTIC SINCE THE NAZI-COMMUNIST ANTI-AGGRESSION PACT WAS SIGNED, BUT THERE HAS BEEN NO INDICATION THAT SHE INTENDED TO RESIST THE RUSSIAN ADVANCE.

THE SUM AND SUBSTANCE OF ALL THIS BALTIC ACTIVITY IS, OF COURSE, THAT STALIN HAS SMILINGLY PULLED FROM THE BALTIC PIE THE BIG PLUM FOR WHICH HITLER HAS BEEN FISHING SO VIGOROUSLY WITH HIS NOW EMPTY THUMB.

WHILE RUSSIAN TROOPS WERE SAID TO BE READY TO MARCH INTO BOTH ESTONIA AND LATVIA IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE NEW PACTS, IT WAS ANNOUNCED IN RIGA THAT GERMANY IS OPENING NEGOTIATIONS WITH ESTONIA AND LATVIA FOR REPATRIATION OF PEOPLE OF GERMAN BLOOD RESIDING IN THOSE COUNTRIES. THERE ARE APPROXIMATELY 63,000 GERMANS IN LATVIA AND 16,500 IN ESTONIA.

COINCIDENTLY REPORTS FROM BUCHAREST STATE THAT GERMANY HAS BEEN CARRYING ON SECRET CONVERSATIONS WITH BALKAN STATES RELATIVE TO TRANSPLANTING SOUTHWESTERN GERMAN MINORITIES TO GERMANY.

THESE REPORTS SAY A PLAN HAS BEEN ADVANCED WHEREBY GERMANY WOULD PAY EXPENSES FOR MOVING AS MANY OF THE 2,000,000 GERMANS RESIDING IN RUMANIA, YUGOSLAVIA AND HUNGARY AS DESIRE TO SETTLE IN WHAT WAS WESTERN POLAND AND CZECHO-SLOVAKIA.

SUCH A SCHEME WOULD APPEAR TO HAVE A TWO-FOLD PURPOSE. IT WOULD FURTHER HITLER'S SCHEME OF BRINGING ALL GERMANS INTO THE REICH. AND WHAT IS PERHAPS MORE IMPORTANT, IT WOULD GERMANIZE BOTH WESTERN POLAND AND CZECHO-SLOVAKIA.

BUT STALIN WASN'T STOPPING WITH THE BALTIC. HIS MANEUVERS TO SECURE CONTROL OF THE REST OF EASTERN EUROPE AND THE BALKANS WERE CONTINUING, WITH TURKEY APPARENTLY STILL ONE OF HIS CHIEF CENTERS OF INTEREST.

OCT 10 1939

THE TURKISH FOREIGN MINISTER HAS BEEN IN MOSCOW FOR SOME TIME, AND IT HAS BEEN REPORTED THAT RUSSIA HAS BEEN FISHING VIGOROUSLY FOR A PACT WHICH WOULD IN EFFECT GIVE HER FULL ACCESS TO THE DARDANELLES, GATEWAY BETWEEN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND THE BLACK SEA, AND BAR THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES.

THE PROGRESS OF THE CONVERSATIONS REMAINS A MYSTERY, BUT THE TURKS ARE BELIEVED BY OBSERVERS TO BE TRYING TO WEAVE A NARROW COURSE BETWEEN THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES AND RUSSIA, SO AS NOT TO OFFEND EITHER.

DALADIER BARS PEACE ON NAZI TERMS; FINLAND MOBILIZES HER BALTIC FLEET, SENDS CIVILIANS FROM BORDER TOWNS

OCT 11 1939

Demands a Lasting Security in Europe and Claims Mastery of Seas by Allies Which Will Assure Victory.

PARIS, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Premier Daladier replied to Adolf Hitler's peace overtures today with a declaration that France and Great Britain will continue to fight to obtain a definite guaranty of security for the lasting peace of Europe.

The Premier's declaration, made in a nationwide broadcast, apparently closed the door to peace negotiations on the basis of the formula advanced by Hitler in his Reichstag speech last Friday.

Careful consultation with Great Britain preceded the address, in which M. Daladier said that the allies had entered the war because Germany wanted to impose her domination on Europe.

"We are resolved never to submit to dictation," he said, asserting that Great Britain and France had mastery of the seas, and that "those who hold the sea will succeed in winning victory."

First Conferred With U. S. Envoy.

Only a few hours earlier, in a Berlin speech, Hitler said that Germany would "fight it out" if German peace overtures were rejected by the allies.

Shortly before M. Daladier spoke, he conferred with the American Ambassador, William C. Bullitt.

The Premier told his radio listeners that France wants victory to end the constant German threat to lead Europe "to the German slave market."

The Anglo-Frech allies "always wanted and still want only sincere co-operation among peoples," he said, adding that the only way to achieve this was through "reciprocal guaranties against any attempt at domination."

M. Daladier accused Hitler of repeatedly breaking promises and added:

"The peace that Germany offers now is one of ruse and violence. There will, however, be a real peace in the future."

He reminded his audience of the German conquest of Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland. After each of these conquests, he declared, Hitler had asserted he had no more territorial demands.

M. Daladier's address was an answer to Hitler's peace proposals of last Friday.

"Every six months Germany makes new territorial demands and then says she is satisfied," said the French Premier.

"Far from bringing about a reduction of armament, this system makes other nations increase their armament. In order to bring about a lasting peace we must fight against the abuses of force.

War Brings Only Food Cards.

"A security of nations can come about only by mutual understanding devoid of all surprises. The time has passed when a territorial conquest brings happiness to people.

"Wars bring about bread cards and food cards, and our eating is limited. France holds in horror such servitude.

"I affirm again solemnly that we are fighting and will continue to fight until we obtain a guarantee of peace.

"If we demobilize now, again in six months we might have to face another aggression.

"If we called for peace now and then in six months send our men back to the lines under the bombardment of German planes, no Frenchman would pardon us.

"The German soldiers in the trenches must be saying to themselves perhaps our Government opposed Versailles, but our Government has also taken Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland.

"The cause which the French soldier is defending is a just cause, and one of which he may be proud.

"The French Government will show itself worthy of the confidence extended to it by all of its sons."

materials destined for Germany.

Britain and France are mistress of the ocean, and you know from the experience of history that those who finally hold the seas sooner or later succeed in carrying off victory.

But Britain does not confine herself to giving us the support of her fleet. She does not confine herself to sending more aviators daily to our front who give repeated proofs of their ability and valor. She also is sending rapidly to France her splendid youth, her robust material.

I was told the other day that in some French regions at the moment when the German radio was carrying on its vain campaign to separate France from Britain that it was repeated that Great Britain wanted to wage war with the blood of the French. The voice of the traitor of Stuttgart was covered by the uninterrupted rumbling of convoys which were taking soldiers and cannon of the British Army toward our frontiers.

Thus factual propaganda is stronger than that of lies. It is thus moreover in our national life, as you have certainly noticed, yourselves. There, also, events have wrecked many other undertakings of enemy propaganda.

Several weeks ago Communist leaders posed before you as fierce patriots. They were, according to themselves, new Jacobins. They had no words harsh enough or even insulting enough to scorn the peaceful efforts of the government.

They announced in meetings that they were ready to fight against Hitler and against his armies for liberty and the Father-

what we are: free, worthy beings respectful of their neighbors, capable of keeping their word and faithful to the great tradition of Western culture.

Neither France nor Britain entered the war to support a sort of ideological crusade. Neither France nor Britain entered the war any more with a spirit of conquest than that they were obliged to fight because Germany wanted to impose on them her domination over Europe.

Who could be made to believe now that it was a question of Danzig and the Corridor or of the fate of German minorities? Germany has taken upon herself to show that she wanted either to subject Poland by deceit or crush her by steel and fire.

After Austria came Czecho-Slovakia and after Czecho-Slovakia, Poland. All these undertakings were only steps on the path which would have brought France and Europe to the harshest of slaveries.

I know that they talk to you today of peace, of German peace, of peace which would only consecrate conquests by deceit or violence and would not prevent preparation for new ones.

What in fact does the latest speech before the Reichstag amount to? This: I (Hitler) destroyed Poland, I am satisfied; let's stop the combat; let's hold a conference to consecrate my conquests and organize peace.

The misfortune is that we already had heard such talk. At the annexation of Austria, Germany told the world: I have taken Austria; I ask nothing more. Several months later he claimed the Sudetens, and Ger-every six months, despite pledges against the annexation or partition of another people which had the right, like itself, to live independent and free?

And how can it fail to be understood that, far from making reduction of armaments possible, the subjecting of one nation can only force all other peoples continually to live and work only to arm?

If peace really is desired, a lasting peace which will give to all women, to all children, the joy of living and confidence in the future, it will be necessary first to calm the revolted consciences, correct abuses of force and conciliate honestly the rights and interests of all peoples.

They say that the fate of Poland concerns only two powers. We reply that it interests also, and first of all, the Poles. They want to make the map of Europe without taking any account of living realities of peoples, either their traditions or their needs. We reply that Europe is brought thus to revolutions and wars which plunged it into blood for centuries.

If peace is really desired, a lasting peace, it will be necessary to understand that security of nations can rest only on reciprocal guarantees excluding any surprise and erecting a barrier against any attempt at domination.

If peace is really desired, a lasting peace, it will be necessary to understand finally that the time has passed when territorial conquests bring well-being to the conquerors. After all these conquests Germany is beginning the war

Premier Daladier's Broadcast Replying to Hitler

OCT 11 1939

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 10—The text of Premier Daladier's broadcast to the nation tonight follows:

We are in war and you will understand that silence is necessary for success of our military operations.

You have rightly thought, and I am thoroughly in agreement with you, that it is only natural and legitimate that you be informed in general of the action of the government and the thoughts and decisions which animate it in the principal events of international politics. It is of that that I wish especially to speak to you today.

For a month our soldiers have advanced on enemy territory. In the air our aviators have multiplied the proofs of their courage. On the sea our sailors have assured free communications of France with her Empire, pursued enemy submarines, captured hundreds of thousands of tons of raw land. Yet it sufficed for the Bolshevists to find it to their interest to agree with the Nazis and partition Poland with them for these same great patriots to simply make their excuses for a peace of treason.

There are dictators who massacre Communist workers and reach agreement later with their chiefs, but we French never think of confusing the workers of France, whatever may be their political opinion, with men who wanted to abuse and betray them.

On the contrary it is with even more ardent faith in the people and the common Fatherland that we appeal to French fraternity which will permit us once more to overcome trials and vanquish peril.

For we are fighting not only for our soil and homes, but also for civilization which surpasses our frontiers and which made us many's chief told us at Munich that once this claim was satisfied he would ask for nothing more.

Several months afterward Germany seized all of Czecho-Slovakia. Then before the Reichstag the world was told: Germany asks nothing more.

After crushing Poland it is the same assurance that is given today.

Certainly we always wanted and still want only sincere cooperation and loyal understanding to be established among peoples, but we are determined not to submit to the dictates of violence.

We have taken up arms against aggression. We will lay them down only when we have certain guarantees of security which may not be put in doubt every six months.

How can this security exist either or us or for the world if nation is wiped off the map of Europe by force? What people would ever feel protected from gression if it appeared thus with bread card, meat card, milk card, sugar card.

We French have a horror of all this servitude. We want our victory to create only a Europe freed from all threats of aggression.

France, on whom war has been imposed, speaks in battle the same language she has always spoken. I affirm, then, that we are fighting, and will continue to fight, to obtain a definite guarantee of security.

The most modest soldier, as well as our greatest chiefs, understands what risks our Fatherland would run if, after having demobilized under vain promises, we had to face several months later an abrupt aggression. I know every one would fulfill once again his duty to the Fatherland. But then they would have to rejoin units under fire of the enemy and organize under aerial bombardments. No Frenchman would pardon us for having bared France thus.

In the minds of soldiers, all problems of which I have just spoken, moreover, are presented with clarity which leaves room for no uncertainty. In the trenches the German soldier must say to himself: "My Government protested against the Versailles Treaty in the name of the right of peoples to dispose of themselves. Now it has seized Vienna, Prague, Warsaw. This policy of violence has thrown me into a murderous war. These people had the same right to life as the German people. The cause I defend is not a just cause."

And the French soldier thinks on the contrary: "My country did everything to save peace. It oppressed no people. It wants to oppress none. I am here to defend my Fatherland and save it from the tragic fate which so grievously struck in Europe for two years millions of men, women and children. I want to end this. The cause I defend is a just cause. I will lead it to victory."

OCT 11 1939

What our soldiers think the people of all France think as well. And the Government in its daily action, in its unbreakable will, will show itself worthy of the faith which animates all sons of our Fatherland.

Hitler's Bid For Peace Rejected By Daladier

By H. TAYLOR HENRY

Associated Press Correspondent

Paris, Oct. 10—Premier Daladier tonight gave the signal for the European war to go on, with a refusal of Adolf Hitler's peace formula based on Russian--German partition of Poland.

In a nation-wide broadcast the French Premier made the first formal reply to the Friday Reichstag speech of Adolf Hitler by spurning the "German peace" as one which would not prevent preparation for new conquests.

OCT 11 1939

Consulted British

Daladier, who spoke after consulting with his British allies, declared France and Britain would "continue to fight" until they force Germany to give definite guarantees of security for a "lasting peace in Europe."

Speaking in measured tones at his desk in the War Ministry, Daladier did not repeat previous French and British declarations that Hitlerism must be destroyed, but left no doubt that unsupported promises such as he said Hitler had given in the past would be unacceptable as a basis for peace negotiations.

Fear New Conquests

He characterized the peace offered by Hitler as one "which would only consecrate conquests by deceit or violence and would not prevent preparation for new ones."

"What, in fact, does the latest speech before the Reichstag amount to?" he demanded.

"This: I destroyed Poland, I am satisfied; let's stop the combat; let's hold a conference to consecrate my conquests and organize peace."

The Premier suggested that if France accepted Hitler's present proposals and "demobilized under vain promises" in a few months time she would have to face "abrupt aggression."

Obliged To Fight

France and Britain, he said, were "obliged to fight because Germany wanted to impose on them her domination over Europe."

"We are determined not to submit to the dictates of violence," he shouted, adding:

"We have taken up arms against aggression. We lay them down only when we have certain guarantees of security—of security which may not be put into doubt every six months."

Daladier did not go beyond demanding "reciprocal guarantees excluding any surprise and erecting a barrier against any attempt at domination."

Paved Way For Chamberlain

Many diplomatic observers believe that he paved the way for a further exposition of the Allies' position by Prime Minister Chamberlain before the House of Commons Thursday.

He made it plain that he considered Hitler's past promises worthless.

The Premier also left the impression that any promises written into a future peace treaty would have to be based on physical control which would guarantee that the Germans would not seek to continue the path of conquest which crossed Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland.

These three countries, he asserted, were only steps "on the path which would have brought France and Europe to the harshest of slaveries."

Must Correct Abuses

If peace really is desired, he said, "it will be necessary first to calm the revolted consciences, correct abuses of force and conciliate honestly the rights and interests of all peoples."

"They say that the fate of Po... concerns only two powers. We t... that it interests also and first of all the Poles."

Turning to the progress of the war, Daladier declared:

"For a month our soldiers have advanced on enemy territory. In the air our aviators have multiplied the proofs of their courage.

"On the sea our sailors have assured free communications of France with her empire, pursued enemy submarines, captured hundreds of thousands of tons of raw materials destined for Germany."

"Britain and France are mistresses of the ocean," he added, "and you know from the experience of history that those who finally hold the seas soon or late succeed in carrying off victory."

The Premier referred derisively to Germany's radio propaganda campaign to try to separate Britain and France.

These broadcasts, he said, were drowned out by the "uninterrupted rumbling of convoys which were taking soldiers and cannon of the British army toward our frontiers."

Daladier spoke sarcastically of Communist leaders, whose party has been outlawed in France.

Reds "New Jacobins"

"They were, according to themselves, new Jacobins," he declared. "They had no words harsh enough or even insulting enough to scorn the peaceful efforts of the Government.

"They announced in meetings that they were ready to fight against Hitler and against his armies for liberty and the Fatherland.

"Yet it sufficed for the Bolsheviks to find it to their interests to agree with the Nazis and partition Poland with them for these same great patriots to simply make their excuses for a peace of treason.

"There are dictators who massacre Communist workers and reach agreement later with their chiefs, but we French never think of confusing the workers of France, whatever may be their political opinion, with men who wanted to abuse or betray them."

To Combat Nazi Rule

Daladier said Britain and France entered the war neither to support an ideological crusade nor with a spirit of conquest, but were impelled solely to combat Germany's desire for "domination over Europe."

"If peace really is desired," he asserted, "a lasting peace which will give to all women, to all children, the joy of living and confidence in the future, it will be necessary first to calm the revolted consciences, correct abuses of force and conciliate honestly the rights of all peoples. . . .

"If peace is really desired, a lasting peace, it will be necessary to understand finally that the time has passed when territorial conquests bring well-being to the conquerors."

German Attacks Are Intensified

French Report Greater Forces Are Being Employed Along Western Front.

OCT 11 1939

PARIS, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Almost as Premier Daladier was rejecting German peace terms in a radio address today, the French Army General Staff announced that German troops were attacking on the western front in constantly increasing force.

The French were said to have fought off the surprise attacks by German units along a thirty-five-mile sector of the front large enough to be described in an official communique as composed of "quite large numbers of men."

This sector, between the Moselle River Valley and the center of the northern flank of the western front at Saarbruecken, was cited as the scene of "very great" activity by enemy patrols.

The text of the evening communique read:

"Very great activity of enemy reconnaissance units between the Moselle and the Saar.

"In this region we repulsed several surprise attacks, some of which involved quite important numbers of men."

Earlier in the day it was reported that French troops had turned back numerous German assaults south of the strategic city of Saarbruecken with hand grenades and rifle fire. The attacks, these reports indicated, were apparently aimed at breaking the French lines, which are tightening on three sides of Saarbruecken.

German raiding parties also sought to take prisoners to obtain information on French advance positions, French dispatches said, and added that in both objectives the Germans failed. The Germans were said to have fought desperately before retiring under a raking fire.

Saarbruecken, the rich German industrial city around which the operations centered, is near the middle of the northern front.

Daladier Speaks Today.

Meanwhile today Premier Daladier was putting the finishing touches to the radio speech he will deliver tonight in reply to Adolf Hitler's peace gestures, and political informants said that the address, scheduled for 8 P. M. (2 P. M., New York time), would be a clear re-statement of the Franco-British war aims and a general review of the international situation.

[Prime Minister Chamberlain was expected to deliver a reply to Hitler when he goes before Parliament tomorrow for his sixth weekly war review.]

An investigating judge today accused former Air Minister Marcel Deat of having signed the "peace at any price" letter recently circulated in the Chamber of Deputies.

Mr. Deat, now a deputy, was not held although thirty-seven Communist deputies have already been arrested for signing the letter. He was one of the founders of the Socialist party. He told the court that his "good faith" had been taken by surprise when he was led to sign the letter.

The former Air Minister split with old line Socialists in 1935 to form a separate "United Socialist" group. He held the Air Ministry post in 1936 under the Sarraut Government.

Heavy Artillery Battle.

A heavy artillery battle, launched by the Germans on Sunday and answered by the French batteries on a ninety-mile front from the Luxembourg border to Lauterbourg, provided a background for the action south of Saarbruecken.

Terse reports of the fighting were contained in a communique issued this morning by the French General Staff, which said. ' 'Enemy patrols are still very active, notably east and west of the Saar. Reciprocal artillery action in the same regions."

Both the French and Germans were reported to be moving up additional munitions, men and equipment and while the front indicated the Germans were gradually employing larger units in assaults in the Saarbruecken sector, French observers said it was impossible to say whether the increased Nazi activity was a prelude to a major offensive.

Weather a Prime Factor.

These observers pointed out that if the Germans plan any large scale operations they must be undertaken swiftly, because little more than three weeks of good weather can be expected. On the other hand there was no indication that the French planned an attempt to push their lines further into Germany before the weather breaks.

The absence of any mass attacks by the Germans on the Western Front since the beginning of hostilities has given the French valuable time in which to collect war supplies, complete their mobilization and introduce thousands of soldiers to actual fighting conditions, it was said. To offset this, however, the Nazi lines were being rapidly cemented by troops which have already had a month of hard campaigning in Poland, observers pointed out.

From the general tone of the press it appeared that the French would be content to hold the gains they have already made and let winter and the British naval blockade run their courses.

There was apparently a wide belief that the Germans must score some sort of victory before winter sets in to bolster the morale of the troops and create a favorable impression at home.

Loud Speaker War.

French commentators seemed to feel that if the Germans could be enticed into an assault on the heavily fortified Maginot Line the result would be highly favorable to the French cause.

Henry de Kerillis, writing in L'Epouque, said that "the French do not fear an open country fight with the Germans, but seek it." He added his belief that French war equipment had shown a marked superiority in the early stages of fighting.

Semi-offiical French informants said that the French tanks had proved their sturdiness and maneuverability in combat, and that the losses thus far had been "extremely low."

French military experts said that the Germans had made extensive use of trench mortars along the Western Front.

The use of the loudspeaker for front line propaganda purposes, demonstrated for the first time in Spain, also was reported. The French said that the Germans had been directing virtual loudspeaker barrages against their positions.

OCT 11 1939

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Attacking behind "suicide squads" of hand grenade throwers, German troops were reported tonight striking at French advance lines on the western front with larger and larger units.

The French military headquarters reported all German attacks finally were repulsed. However, they said it was becoming harder each day to stop the advances of German patrols, which covered so much territory that they almost gave the impression of a co-ordinated feeler attack along a thirty-five-mile front.

The French night communique described the area of German activity in broad terms as between the Moselle and Saar Rivers, covering the line from the Luxemburg frontier to the German industrial city of Saarbruecken. The Germans have thrown their strongest advance posts around the Saar region's main city. The night communique said:

"Very great activity of enemy reconnaissance units between the Moselle and the Saar. In this region we repulsed several surprise attacks, some of which involved quite important numbers of men."

The morning communique said: "Enemy patrols are still very active, notably east and west of the Saar. Reciprocal action of artillery in the same regions."

French military reports declared the Germans were not thrown back by the first bursts of machine gun fire, as in the past, but sent new waves of men close enough to engage the French advance lines with hand grenades. The French described the fighting as "savage" and declared the Germans paid dearly for the thrust.

The German advance guards renewed operations Sunday with preliminary attacks against various French outposts in restricted sectors of German soil. During the last 24 hours they have been increasing the range of their operations to include all of the extreme northern half of the northern flank of the Western Front.

The fact that the French considered the German units big enough to describe them as composed of "quite important numbers of men" was interpreted by military observers to mean the Germans have put into action units larger than the companies with which they were known to have been operating since Sunday night.

Daladier "Naturally Disagrees" With Nazis

Berlin, Oct. 10 (AP)—Informed quarters tonight said Premier Daladier's radio address today "naturally disagrees with the German standpoint."

There was no immediate publication of Daladier's speech, but assurances were given that "essential points" would be carried fully by the German press.

Chamberlain Postpones Reply

Speaks Thursday After Consulting Dominions —Air Force Is Called Superior.

LONDON, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Chamberlain today postponed from tomorrow until Thursday his speech in the House of Commons in which it is expected he will reply to Adolf Hitler's peace overtures.

Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told Commons that the postponement had been decided on in order to allow fuller consultation with the Dominion governments.

The Prime Minister's speech thus is scheduled for the same day that David Lloyd George, Great Britain's Prime Minister during the world war, has called a meeting of his Council for Peace and Reconstruction. Mr. Lloyd George has advocated an international conference to settle European issues.

Air Mission on Its Way.

Immediately after Sir John's announcement, Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood announced the formulation of an empirewide plan to give Great Britain overwhelming strength in the air through aircraft production and training of pilots in the British Dominions and colonies.

OCT 11 1939

He said that the Dominions had shown a keen desire to play an effective part in air defenses and that a British mission, headed by Lord Riverdale, already was on its way to Canada to meet missions from Australia and New Zealand to arrange details.

Sir Kingsley declared that the Royal Air Force had made a complete photographic map of Germany's Siegfried Line.

Reporting further on British air activities, he said that submarines had been sighted on seventy-two occasions during the first four weeks of war and that thirty-four attacks had been made, some of which were "undoubtedly successful."

He asserted that the latest British fighting planes were "definitely better than German counterparts."

10,000 Men Accepted.

In the first two weeks of war 10,000 men were accepted for air force duty, he said, telling of the rapid expansion of the air arm of British defenses. More than 100 naval convoys were escorted by air force planes in the first four weeks.

Sir Kingsley mentioned "almost daily" clashes between German and British planes and said that a German Messerschmidt fighter had fallen intact into French hands, permitting the British to "test our convictions" that British fighters were better.

As evidence of British air power, he told of British planes covering "the whole length of Germany, from the Saar to the North Sea, all without serious interruption" on a scouting flight. The planes landed safely in England, he said, and photographs taken on the flight went into a map of the Siegfried Line.

The air minister referred scornfully to German comment in a British night flight over Berlin, which he quoted as saying that Berlin citizens "slept quietly during its progress."

"Our airmen, on their return, spoke of the firing and the searchlights that they encountered, so we can only conjecture that the people of Berlin must be very heavy sleepers," he asserted.

He added that he hoped Berliners were wakeful enough the next day to read British propaganda leaflets which "Hitler describes as these 'wretched leaflets.'"

Training Centered in Canada.

Reiterating British war aims as set forth by Mr. Chamberlain and other Government leaders, Sir Kingsley said the air force would be "inspired by the knowledge that the job is to beat the enemy and insure once and for all that aggression and tyranny are ended."

He said that the dominions had agreed to establishment of aircraft schools on their soil for the Royal Air Force, which he asserted has fully shown it is ready to strike and strike hard.

Under the plan advanced air training would be concentrated largely in Canada.

"The personnel from the elementary training schools in Australia and New Zealand, as well as a substantial proportion of the young men passing out of similar establishments" in Britain would go there, Sir Kingsley said.

Men thus trained would join either dominion air force squadrons or Royal Air Force units from England which get final training in Canada and "of course come back to join the R. A. F. squadrons in the field."

"The aim, in short, is to achieve by co-operative effort air forces of overwhelming strength," said Sir Kingsley.

Under the plan many thousands—possibly more than 25,000—pilots and airmen will be trained Canada.

Canadian production of bombers and fighters will be speeded up, Sir Kingsley said, and finished aircraft flown across the Atlantic for delivery in the theaters of war.

Each dominion will retain its separate air force which will work in co-operation with the R. A. F. under allied command.

Sir Kingsley said South Africa had not entered the plan, but will "expand their air force to the fullest extent of their resources."

Holland Raises Question.

Later, under questioning in Commons, Ronald H. Cross, Minister of Economic Warfare, announced that certain representations by the Netherlands regarding British detention and search of neutral ships were now under consideration. He argued, however, that Great Britain was doing its utmost to conform to generally accepted principles of international law in searching for contraband.

Mr. Chamberlain's refusal in the Commons yesterday to amplify his previous general statement of Great Britain's war aims met with a varied reception in the press today.

Chamberlain to Speak Again.

LONDON, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Chamberlain's refusal in the Commons yesterday to amplify his previous general statement of Great Britain's war aims met with a varied reception in the press today. On the other hand, the French and British governments were reported in close consultation on the subject of a reply to Hitler's peace overtures, and Mr. Chamberlain was expected to voice this reply when he delivers his sixth weekly war report tomorrow.

In his statement of yesterday Mr. Chamberlain said that France and Britain's war purposes "have more than once been stated by [illegible] ernments," and added: "No doubt as time goes on both governments will consider whether their war aims should be stated in more specific form."

OCT 11 1939

The London Times indicated approval of his stand, but the Liberal London News Chronicle termed his statement "not very satisfactory," adding: "It is vitally important that neutral opinion should be satisfied that our war aims are constructive and unselfish."

The world war Prime Minister, David Lloyd George, summoned his Council for Peace and Reconstruction to a private meeting on Thursday. This was described by the London Daily Mail as a move to "test the support for a national peace campaign."

Mr. Lloyd George, voicing fear that the war would prove long and costly, with Germany tapping Russia's vast supplies of raw materials, has advocated a conference "of all the great Powers" to settle European issues.

The Government announced it was purchasing the whole supply of staple crops grown in Britain for next year's harvest at prices to be fixed "in the light of prevailing circumstances."

GERMAN SEAPLANES ACTIVE

Berlin Spokesman Says Six Bombs Hit English Warship Off Norse Coast.

OCT 11 1939

LONDON, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—The threat of German naval activity in the North Sea, broadened by clashes between British warships and Nazi bombing planes, spurred the Royal Navy's "watchdogs" to new vigilance today.

Air and sea patrols stood guard against any surprise maneuver by the German fleet, now bottled up in the Kiel Canal and the Baltic.

The British press said that the fleet was taking every precaution to prevent the Germans from turning raiders loose upon the Atlantic to prey upon shipping.

Despite German claims to the contrary, British naval experts said that all enemy attempts to harass the North Sea patrol from the air had failed.

Attempted Sally.

Anti-aircraft guns, the Admiralty said in a communique last night, were successful again yesterday in turning back German bombers which made repeated attacks on British war vessels. The communique did not say whether any of the air raiders had been shot down.

The Admiralty also said that a German naval squadron of undisclosed strength had attempted a sally into the North Sea on Sunday. The squadron was spotted by British patrol planes, the communique said, off the southwest coast of Norway, not far from the scene of the famous world war battle of Jutland.

"Our forces endeavored to engage it," the Admiralty said, "but darkness enabled the enemy to escape."

An Additional Communique.

An Admiralty communique tonight amplified reports of German air attacks on the British North Sea fleet Sunday and Monday, with a statement that the Germans had failed to score a single hit, while several bombers were believed to have "failed to return to Germany."

The communique read:

"Although dispatches have not yet been received, a somewhat fuller account may now be given of the series of minor actions on the North Sea reported in yesterday's communique.

"An enemy squadron reported and shadowed by our patrol on Sunday afternoon, aware that its presence was known, appears to have turned back and in the night to have eluded our forces, which did not sight it.

"On Monday morning a British destroyer in a heavy sea sighted an enemy aircraft and turned stern-on to the sea to fire her guns.

"A level bombarding attack was made at 5,000 feet.

"Her bombs burst about 400 yards to starboard. A second and larger aircraft, making a similar attack, was probably hit by our guns.

No British Casualties.

"Three larger bombs were dropped, but again fell wide, about a half-mile from the ship. The first attacker came back and tried a dive bombing attack, but it was driven off by our fire. The aircraft may have been hit. Two bombs were dropped and missed by over 200 yards.

"The same afternoon, a British cruiser squadron was attacked by bombers and engaged them for over an hour.

"In returning toward her base, a British destroyer developed a main engine defect in no way connected with any enemy action. She reached port safely this morning.

"In none of these actions has any British ship been hit or damaged, and there have been no British casualties.

"Enemy casualties are still unknown, but reports from neutral countries indicate that several machines failed to return to Germany."

Nazis Claim Ship Was Hit.

BERLIN, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—The German High Command reported today that Nazi warplanes had scored hits on a British cruiser off the west coast of Norway yesterday.

"Six heavy bombs struck their mark," said a high command statement, "and two German planes were obliged to make emergency landings on Danish soil."

The announcement did not disclose whether the German planes had been hit by defensive fire from the cruiser.

German Plane Badly Damaged.

OSLO, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—A German bombing plane which made a forced landing near Regevig yesterday was so damaged, observers said, as to lead to a belief it had been engaged in an air battle.

A Norwegian Coat Guard ship towed the wreck, with the crew of four still aboard, to Egersund, where the airmen were held.

Details of an engagement between British warships and German bombers yesterday were still lacking here.

161 Lives Lost at Sea.

Associated Press dispatches from Esbjerg, Denmark, said two German warplanes had made forced landings yesterday off the coast and that the crews were interned. One of the crews was said to have set fire to its plane before abandoning it.

Reports from Bergen, Norway, said that sounds resembling heavy cannonading were heard from the North Sea twice yesterday by the inhabitants of Algroy Island, forty miles south of Bergen.

Stalled on land by impregnable defense lines, the war seems to be slowly approaching a similar stalemate on the high seas today.

Although sixty-five vessels with a total tonnage of 266,071 have been destroyed and 764 lives lost in slightly more than five weeks, an analysis of the losses shows they have been dropping steadily.

Twenty ships were sunk in the first week, seventeen in the second, eleven in the third, nine in the fourth and six in the fifth. Only two vessels, both of neutral countries, have been sunk so far in the sixth week. Both were victims of mines.

Great Britain, tightening her North Sea blockade patrols, has credited British and French naval vigilance with reducing the German submarine menace to commercial shipping. Some marine observers, however, believe the Nazi Government has relaxed its submarine campaign to facilitate its peace overtures.

Great Britain has lost thirty-three ships, Germany nine, France two and neutral nations twenty-one.

Denials, Counter-Denials, Counter-Counter-Denials Criticized in Commons

LONDON, Oct. 10 (AP). — Great Britain's propaganda policies were hauled over the coals in the House of Commons and the press again today. The latest blast of criticism was occasioned by the report on Sunday that King George VI had decorated the airmen who took part in "a North Sea triumph," denial of the report yesterday by the Admiralty, cancellation of the denial by the Ministry of Information, and finally cancellation of its cancellation.

"In view of the denials, counter-denials and counter counter-denials of the Ministry of Information by which we were confused yesterday," Liberal leader Sir Archibald Sinclair asked the Air Secretary, Sir Kingsley Wood, "whether officers and men who displayed such conspicuous gallantry and skill in the attack on the German fleet in Kiel Canal have been rewarded by the King?"

Wood replied: "Yes; I understand that an announcement is being made to that effect today."

Lord Beaverbrook's "Evening Standard," referring to the incident, said: "Thus do censors stop the good stories. What do they give us instead? We are told the whole thrilling tale of Sir Simon's visit to some camp cookhouse.

"We suggest, therefore, firstly, a Bloomsbury bonfire to make a total end of the present Verdun of bureaucracy; second, institution of a small panel of censors with power to say yes or no and brains not to say both at the same time, and, third, a propaganda department staffed only with journalists, except for one civilian servant to pay their wages, file the letters and cook the afternoon tea."

"The London Gazette" announced tonight that the King had awarded distinguished flying crosses to Flying Officers Kenneth Christopher Doran and Andrew McPherson "in recognition of gallantry in flying operations" against an enemy cruiser early in September. This presumably was the Kiel Canal raid of Sept. 4.

Clement R. Atlee, leader of the labor opposition, called upon Hitler to "show it by deeds" if he wants peace in western Europe.

"The people of this country are ready to take any opportunity of ending the present war provided we can get real and lasting peace without sacrificing the cause for which we entered it," Attlee said in a nation-wide broadcast.

Sir Kingsley disclosed that a British mission already is on its way to Canada to complete an Empire air reservoir setup with missions from Australia, New Zealand and the Canadian Government. It is headed by Lord Riverdale, the former Sir Arthur Balfour, British steel magnate.

BRITAIN MAKES CANADA CENTER OF AIR TRAINING

Pilots From All Empire To Get Final Instruction In Dominion

OCT 11 1939

Aim Is Said To Be To Build Up Force Of "Overwhelming Strength"

[By the Canadian Press]

Ottawa, Oct. 10—Canada bid fair tonight to become the wartime air capital of the British Empire.

The increasing importance of her place in Britain's war preparations was stressed today in the announcement of a cooperative air training program upon which she has agreed along with the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand.

The plan, announced simultaneously here and in London, calls for pilots, observers and gunners from the four empire countries to come to Canada for intermediate and advanced training.

To Give Out Early Training

Each country will conduct its own schools for preliminary training. A mission from London, headed by Lord Riverdale, is on the way to Canada and others will come shortly from New Zealand and Australia.

Figures on the number of airmen to be trained in this dominion were lacking, but more flying field, aircraft, instructors and living quarters will be provided.

"The aim, in short, is to achieve by cooperative effort air forces of overwhelming strength," Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in announcing the project.

Will Meet Requirements

"Its development would result in a great and rapid increase in the number of training schools, already large, and achieve an increased output of first-line pilots, observers and air gunners which, combined with the output in the United Kingdom, would insure greatly increased requirements in trained personnel being fully met."

Air personnel from New Zealand and Australia, with western Canadian volunteers, likely will be trained at new schools to be built in the West. Camps Borden and Trenton probably will be the main centers of training activities for eastern Canadian and United Kingdom flyers in the East. Camp Borden is ninety miles north of Toronto and Trenton is ninety miles east.

Upon completion of training courses in Canada, the airmen will join either the Royal Air Force or the squadrons maintained in the war by their own governments.

Expects Long War

Canada, meanwhile, based her preparations on the expectation of a long war. Besides training flyers, this country anticipates pouring large quantities of food and war supplies into England.

Uniforms on all sides, special taxes on various commodities and the organization of an infantry division for overseas services have brought home forcefully to Canadians that they are at war.

A month after the Canadian declaration of war on Germany, however, the Dominion's precise role in the conflict is yet to be determined. The length of the hostilities and the United States' final action on neutrality legislation, now being debated in Washington, probably will be major factors in guiding Canada's course.

determined.

The length of the war and the action of the United States on neutrality legislation probably will be the chief factors in guiding Canada's course.

All Canadian action so far has been based on the assumption that a long struggle is ahead and that this country will be called on to pour large quantities of supplies into England.

Special taxes on tea, coffee, beer, wine and whisky are reminders to Canadians that they are at war.

An infantry division for overseas service already has been organized. It is under the command of Major-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former chief of the general staff, who saw service in the world war.

The Canadian Navy is aiding in convoying ships across the Atlantic, in co-operaton with British convoys.

In the economic sphere, control bodies are functioning to prevent profiteering and hoarding, direct agricultural production, insure adequate supplies of commodities, control the movement of Canadian ships and protect the country's financial structure.

Canada declared war September 10 and a war appropriation of $100,000,000 was voted for the remainder of the fiscal year ending March 31.

Persons considered as dangerous aliens were arrested and some 300 are now interned.

Whole Empire Aids British Air Armada

LONDON, Oct. 10 (AP).—An Empire-wide air force building program centering in Canada was announced by the Government today as Britain noted Adolf Hitler's renewed challenge to choose war or peace and warily watched Russia's moves in the Baltic.

OCT 11 1939

While Hitler was declaring in Berlin that "no power on earth will again bring Germany to its knees," Air Minister Kingsley Wood told the House of Commons that the Empire was marshaling planes and fliers in a mighty plan to "beat the enemy and to ensure once and for all that aggression and tyranny are ended."

A direct answer by the Government to Hitler's peace proposals made last Friday was postponed from Wednesday to Thursday to give the Dominions full voice in added consultations. Then Prime Minister Chamberlain will state Britain's position in his weekly war report to Parliament.

The massing of Russian troops on the Finnish frontier and the concentration of Russian naval strength at Kronstadt naval base was stressed today in the announcement of a cooperative air training program upon which she has agreed along with the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand.

serschmidt's and said production plans envisaged doubling the "considerable" figure already reached.

"The Royal Airforce has every reason to be proud and satisfied on what it has accomplished during opening weeks of the war," Sir Kingsley said.

Listed as accomplishments were photographic mapping of the Siegfried Line from heights of only a few hundred feet, 34 attacks on submarines "some of which were undoubtedly successful," and distributing of propaganda leaflets, a number of which were "recently found in possession of German prisoners."

Sir Kingsley repeated his announcement in a broadcast to the empire tonight.

Hitler Pledges Finish Fight if Peace Bid Fails

Declaring Decision Now Lies 'With the Other Side,' He Asks Nazis to Show Unity

BERLIN, Oct. 10 (AP).—Fuehrer Adolf Hitler declared today that "Germany is determined to take up the battle and fight it through" if the western Allies rebuff "our readiness for peace."

If the war goes on, the western Allies will be to blame, he said in a speech opening the Nazi winter relief campaign, but they never will "see any sort of German capitulation."

OCT 11 1939

"In a few weeks the state which thought it could threaten German interests most insolently (Poland) has been demolished—thanks to our soldiers and our military strategy," Der Fuehrer declared.

"We do not know what the future will bring, but we are clear about one thing—no power on earth will again bring Germany to its knees. They will not defeat us militarily, nor break our spirit. Under no circumstances will they live to see any sort of German capitulation."

The decision regarding peace or continuance of the war, he said, "no longer lies with us, but with the other side. With us exists only the grim determination to abide by the decision, whatever it may be, and to fight through to the last end," he added.

Speaks in Angry Tones

In his twenty-one-minute speech, delivered in angry tones at the huge Sportspalast, which was packed with 25,000 winter relief workers, Hitler, asserting as he did in his Reichstag speech on Friday that Germany had no war aims against Great Britain and France, said:

"I have expressed our readiness for peace. In case this readiness on our part is declined, then Germany is determined to take up the battle and fight it through.

"Neither fright of the moment nor a proclamation of the length of this battle will be able to tire or even discourage us. Before us stands the eternal life of our people. No matter how long it may take to bring this life to realization, nothing can shake us, nothing can perplex us, nothing can bring us to despair—on the contrary, whatever the other world may choose, that it will get!"

Authoritative quarters said no response to Hitler's peace bid had come yet from responsible statesmen in Britain or France. These quarters declined to comment on any other reaction to Der Fuehrer's Reichstag speech, because "it would not be in the interests of peace."

Hitler said he was opening the annual relief drive, which this year will combine its work with that of the Red Cross, in a spirit that Germany, "without being interfered with by others, can within its living space mould its own destiny and partake of the goods of the world to which is has a right."

He appealed for joint efforts of the German people to make sacrifices to achieve greater results than ever in this year's campaign, because of war demands and a desire to show the world Germany was united.

Would Demonstrate Unity

"Let no one henceforth think of the greatness of his sacrifice, but of the sacrifices of those who gave their all," he urged. "Compared to their sacrifices, those at home are nothing.

"This year's relief must exceed everything hitherto achieved. We want to show peoples abroad that silly attempts to find evidence of a lack of unanimity among us are vain . . . we want to make them respect our constitution.

"We want to bring evidence of what we can endure and accomplish," Der Fuehrer declared, and then added sarcastically: "It is to be hoped that others can do as well."

Hitler received a great burst of cheers when he entered the hall soon before 4 p. m. Rudolf Hess, Hitler's deputy for Nazi party affairs, and Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, who opened the meeting with a long report extolling the previous year's work, accompanied him.

He said a total of 535,300,000 marks ($160,590,000) had been raised last year and that the total for six years of Nazi administration of winter relief work was 2,500,000,000 marks ($1,000,000,000). The relief funds, he said, had been used for the rebuilding of the Sudetenland and the Bohemia-Moravian protectorate, Hitler Youth Health, Red Cross and national welfare generally. Goebbels asserted that 1,185,145 German citizens "gave their time without remuneration to this gigantic task."

Hitler Renews Threat of War

OCT 11 1939

Asserts No Power Can Crush Reich and Calls on Nazis to Show Unity.

BERLIN Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler declared today that if Germany's "readiness for peace" was declined, Germany was determined "to take up the fight and fight it out one way or another."

"In a few weeks the State which thought it could threaten German interests most insolently (Poland) has been demolished—thanks to our soldiers and our military strategy," Der Fuehrer declared.

"What the future may bring we do not know. But of this we are certain: No power on earth ever again will be able to force Germany to her knees. They will not defeat us militarily, economically or psychically."

Speaks for 21 Minutes.

Hitler once more laid the responsibility for continuing the struggle on the Reich's adversaries in a twenty-one-minute speech in the Sportspalast here opening the Nazi winter relief campaign.

The winter relief work, he demanded, must attain results never before achieved, not only because great tasks lie ahead, created by the war, but also because the world must be shown, he said, that rumors of disunion within the Reich are unfounded.

Germans must make common cause, Der Fuehrer said, "in battle, in victory and finally in peace."

Must Convince the World.

"Germany must once and for all convince the world that it must be allowed to live undisturbed within its own living space," he declared.

"Before us stands the eternal life of our people. Nothing can shake us. Nothing can bring us to despair. On the contrary whatever the other world may choose that it will get.

"The way ahead of us cannot be more difficult than that behind us. In pursuing this way we are strengthened by the fact that we have achieved a community of spirit in our nation."

Referring to his Reichstag speech of last Friday, he said he had given "expression to our readiness for peace."

He said that the winter relief work would be devoted chiefly to the Red Cross, which would practically be merged with it.

"Let no one henceforth think of the greatness of his sacrifice, but of the sacrifices of those who gave their all," he said. "Compared to their sacrifices, those at home are nothing.

"This year's relief must exceed everything hitherto achieved. We want to show peoples abroad that silly attempts to find evidence of a lack of unanimity among us are vain. We want to make them respect our constitution.

Decision Lies With Others.

"We want to bring evidence of what we can endure and accomplish," Der Fuehrer continued and added sarcastically:

"It is to be hoped that others can do as well."

"The decision of peace or war lies with others," he added. "We simply have a grim determination to fight.

"The day must come when Germany, without being interfered with by others, can, within its living space, mold its own destiny and partake of the goods of the world to which it has a right.

"In this spirit I open winter relief work of 1939-1940."

Hitler, who began speaking at 4:20 P. M. (10:20 A. M. New York time), received a great burst of cheers when he entered the hall shortly before 4 o'clock.

Goebbels Cites Figures.

Hitler declared that "one reason for the jealousy of other nations lies in the fact that our achievements along social lines are such that they fear our socialistic ideas might cross our frontiers and knock at their doors."

Referring to his trips to the Eastern Front, he said he had seen vast regions where people suffered much more than the Germans as a people do.

He was accompanied by Rudolf Hess, his deputy for Nazi party affairs, and Propaganda Minister Joseph Paul Goebbels, who opened the meeting with a long report extolling the previous year's work of the winter relief organization.

Dr. Goebbels asserted that "figures of things actually achieved speak louder than the words of our opponents, especially in the warring democracies."

He said that a total of 535,300,000 marks (about $160,590,000) was raised last year and that the total for six years of Nazi administration of winter relief work was two and a half billion marks (about $1,000,000,000).

The relief funds, he said, had been used for the rebuilding of the Sudetenland and the Bohemia-Moravian protectorate, Hitler Youth Health, Red Cross and national welfare generally.

Dr. Goebbels asserted that 1,185,145 German citizens "gave their time without remuneration to this gigantic task."

Duties of Civil Population.

"The war places duties not only on the fighters at the front but also on the civil population at home," Dr. Goebbels said. "People at home don't want to be put to shame by the front fighters."

Announcement that Hitler would attend the meeting and speak was made only this morning.

Reich to Widen Repatriation

OCT 11 1939

Fateful Issue Posed For Nearly 2 Million Outside Germany

Berlin, Oct. 10 (AP) — Two new classes of Nazi reservists were called to the colors today while Adolf Hitler's sweeping plan of German repatriation posed a fateful question for nearly 2,000,000 persons outside the Reich.

The question was whether these people wanted to leave homes of long standing to come into the greater Germany which Hitler envisages.

The reservists—classes of 1911 and 1912—were ordered to report for service immediately through billboard posters which said there would be no "public notification."

Posters further announced that all members of the reserve (Ersatz-Reserve Zwei) and militia (Landwehr Zwei) were to report not later than Oct. 15 for possible service in labor battalions. Most of these men are untrained and are over the usual military age.

OVERSHADOWS WAR

The repatriation question, which in some cases involved German families which have been in foreign homes for as many as four and five centuries, was called by European observers the greatest resettlement project ever conceived with any serious intention of realization.

It drew more German attention today than the war, which the same observers believed depended on the reaction of western powers to Hitler's "peace" offer. Little activity was reported on the western front.

Transportation of Minorities.

A German Army communique today said that Nazi occupation of the region north of the Bug River and in the Suwalki sector in Poland was almost completed. It added that along the western front "there was a little reconnoitering, troop and artillery activity."

While Germany proposed to start with the resettlement of Germans from the Baltic States, it was acknowledged that the application of the plan to southeastern Europe, where German minorities are still more concentrated, was under consideration.

The proposal was that in agreement with the governments concerned, Germans from the Baltic States would be moved into old German territories wrested from Poland last month. Nazis have said that the German population of these territories had been driven out to a large extent by "Polish terror."

What degree of personal opinion would be given the German minorities to be transported, close questions of citizenship and the problem of what to do about the property of the "repatriates," were largely unsettled today.

Informed persons said that the governments concerned were approaching these problems "with good will" and that the difficulties would be overcome.

Eighteen Ships in Service.

Dispatches from Riga, Latvia, said that Germans were already being loaded on German steamships in Latvian and Estonian harbors. Ten ships were reported at Riga and four at Leipaja (Libau) and Ventspils (Windau). Four other vessels were reported at Tallinn, Estonia. Lithuania has a common border with Germany and emigration from that country may be by rail.

In Hungary and the Balkans the resettlement problem seemed to present even greater difficulties than in the Baltic States. In Rumania alone there were reported to be 750,000 persons regarded as Germans. More than half a million each were said to be in Hungary and Yugoslavia.

The German repatriation movement started last July in the South Tyrol province of Bolzano under an agreement with Italy. An article yesterday in Artesia Augusta by Giuseppe Mastromattei, prefect of the province, said that the transportation of Germans was well under way there.

RUMORS FLY IN BERLIN

Nazis Hear of Armistice, Then Find Report is False.

BERLIN, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Rumors that the western allies had asked for an armistice, that "the Chamberlain-Churchill government" in Britain had resigned and King George had abdicated caused excitement in Berlin for an hour this morning until they were denied by DNB, the official news agency.

DNB said the rumors were spread by certain "secret service agents." One persistent report was that a German radio station had broadcast news of an armistice—to be in effect until October 18—but the Propaganda Ministry vigorously denied this.

OCT 11 1939

The rumors caused numerous telephone inquiries to the Associated Press office, including one from the office of the former Crown Prince, others from Japanese and Italian correspondents, the American Chamber of Commerce, bankers and attorneys.

States.

Reports from the frontier said "military trains daily go to the Baltic area" while sailors are studying the geography of the Baltic States as well as the habits of the people.

Finnish Delegate on Way.

The impending arrival of representatives from Finland was disclosed in Moscow for the first time in a dispatch from Helsinki announcing the departure of a delegation headed by Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, Finnish minister of Stockholm, in response to the Kremlin's invitation. The Finnish delegation was expected here tomorrow to exchange opinions on unspecified political and economic problems.

Thus, Soviet Russia continued to be the center of European diplomatic activity with four-cornered negotiations under way or about to be started.

Talks with Finns Continue.

Conversations already were going on between Soviet leaders and representatives of Lithuania and Turkey who are here. A trade agreement with Germany is under discussion and talks with the Finns will be started, probably tomorrow.

Moscow newspapers reported that Sweden had purchased 102 warplanes and ten torpedo boats from Germany under an agreement made

Finnish Leaders on Way to Moscow for Conference--Swedish Defense Forces Are Strengthened.

OCT 11 1939

MOSCOW, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Reports of a concentration of Russian naval forces in the Gulf of Finland emphasized today the vigor of Soviet Russia's drive to regain the dominant position in the Baltic Sea she held before the world war.

Dispatches from Kronstadt, the big naval base near Leningrad, said that a "whole armada of battleships" was massed there and that naval and military activity was unceasing.

Kronstadt is only a few miles from Finland's territorial waters. a Finnish mission was en route to Moscow for one more in the series of Russian conferences with envoys of Baltic States in which Russia has been gaining sweeping concessions.

The naval mobilization also coincided with the massing of hundreds of thousands of Soviet troops along the frontiers facing the Baltic prior to the outbreak of war.

With Germany, France and Britain at war, Russia was making diplomatic moves concerning the whole sweep of her western frontiers from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

The Kremlin, however, remained a big enigma. Although the Russian press continued to attack Britain and France the Government's moves seemed intended to seize strategic advantages which would be of immense value if Russia ever went to war against Germany.

Swedes Build Raid Shelters.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Europe's northern neutrals anxiously watched the approaching showdown between Soviet Russia and Finland today for a further sign of the new order in the Baltic region.

Confronted by Russia's quest for supremacy in that part of Europe, the northern countries, which had not already signed on the Soviet dotted line, wondered how Finland would make out.

Finland, Sweden, Denmark and Norway were drawn together at Helsinki in a discussion of how to sidestep the war and carry on their vital commerce in the Baltic and North seas.

Sweden, aside from Finland, the most immediately concerned in the expansion of Soviet power, strengthened her defense forces and hastened construction of air raid shelters.

Finland herself practiced air defense while a delegation headed by Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, Minister to Stockholm, entrained last night for Moscow in response to the Kremlin's invitation—as Finnish officials put it—to exchange opinions about political and economic problems. The problems were not specified. The Finnish party was expected to reach Moscow tomorrow morning.

OCT 11 1939

Finns Show Deliberation.

The deliberation of the Finns' railway trip was contrasted with the speed of airplane travel adopted by representatives of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania in carrying out their negotiations at Moscow—negotiations which resulted in broad military, naval and trade concessions to the U. S. S. R.

"Never shall our land bow before the foreign tyrant," sang the crowd at Helsinki's station last night as the delegation set out. It was part of the national anthem of a people Russian-ruled until 1917.

Dr. Paasikivi, standing on the train platform, bit his lips to conceal his emotion. It was he who led the nation as Premier when Finland was establishing her independence from Russia, in 1918-1920.

Hundreds of patriotic Finns jammed the Helsinki station an hour before Dr. Paasikivi's departure. While they sang, Dr. Paasikivi shook hands with Premier A. K. Cajander and then waved his hat at the throng.

Hopes Americans Are Watching.

The Premier was asked for comment.

"It's hard to say anything at such moments as this. But we Finns hope that Americans will watch our coming negotiations closely.

"The sympathy and moral support of America has never gone unappreciated in Finland and we trust that now too America will watch what happens and judge the result according to civilized standards of justice."

OCT 11 1939

Dr. Paasikivi was accompanied by Col. A. A. Paasanen as technical adviser and J. A. Nykopp, political chief of the Foreign Office.

Backed by the presence of additional reservists called last week for "extraordinary service to strengthen the national neutrality," Finland was improving her Russian border fortifications and engaged in widespread blackout tests of air raid defenses.

[Finland's armed forces last year consisted of 2,012 officers and 31,000 men, including the air force, coast defense and territorial organization, according to the Statesman's Yearbook.]

Helsinki Plans Blackout.

The whole Torne Valley — about 4,000 square miles—along the Finnish-Swedish frontier, was blacked out last night and Helsinki itself will experiment with a blackout tonight.

Finnish airmen and anti-aircraft gunners practiced attack and defense all yesterday on the Finnish side of the Torne Valley frontier and the Swedes did likewise at Haparanda and scattered villages, it was reported.

The Swedish Government started construction of the first bomb-proof shelters in Stockholm yesterday and notified soldiers scheduled to leave service October 15 that they would have to remain at their posts. Swedish authorities estimated they could place 600,000 men of various degrees of military training in the field if necessary. The regular army strength before the European crisis was estimated at 60,000.

The Swedish Army announcement took note of a "change in the foreign situation" but expressed no alarm.

Thousands of Russian troops were lined up along Russia's borders with Estonia and Latvia, awaiting orders to march in and man recently granted naval and air bases, but Helsinki sources said they had not heard of any massing of Russians on their own frontier.

End Dispute Over Proofs

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Difficulties between Soviet Russia and Estonia over the prospective entry of 20,000 Red soldiers in fulfillment of the mutual assistance agreement of September 29 were reported solved overnight, making entry possible today.

Authoritative sources said that the date and route of the march into Estonia were incorporated in a supplementary agreement which might be signed at today's sitting of the Russian-Estonian commission.

In official quarters the only statement was that the Soviet forces would cross into Estonia at Narwa and proceed to the coastal points, probably by way of Haapsalu and Virtsu, avoiding Tallinn.

The mutual assistance agreement gave the U. S. S. R. the right to maintain naval bases and airdromes on the islands of Saare Maa (Oesel) and Hiiluma (Dagoe) and in the port city of Paldiski (Baltiskil).

No explanation was given for the change in the tempo of arrangements which informants had said yesterday might not be completed until late next week.

It was learned that the Soviet representatives sought to arrange for the entry of 20,000 men, including mechanized units, to travel by road under the supervision and escort of Estonian police.

Propaganda Minister Ants Oidermaa broadcast last night that the Russians were coming not as conquerors but as allies and friends.

Lithuanians to Ratify Pact.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—A dispatch from Kaunas by DNB, official German news agency, said today that the Lithuanian Government had decided to ratify the Soviet Russian-Lithuanian mutual assistance pact in the form proposed by Moscow.

Lithuanian Vice-President Kazys Bizauskas and General Stasys Rastikis, commander-in-chief of the Lithuanian Army, were reported to have returned today to Moscow to complete the talks started last Wednesday.

The pact would give back to the Lithuanians their anciet capital, Wilno (Vilna), which was seized by Poland in 1920, but not all of Wilno Province would go with it. Wilno Province fell within the Russian occupation zone in Poland. The territory involved in the projected transfer has between 500,000 and 600,000 inhabitants, it was said.

Will Regain Wilno.

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Informed Lithuanians said today their country would regain her ancient capital, Wilno (Vilna), by the Soviet Russian-Lithuanian mutual assistance pact which they expected to be signed tonight.

They asserted that in return for concessions to Russia Lithuania would get back about half the territory she would have received under the Soviet-Lithuanian treaty of 1920 if the Poles had not seized Wilno in that year.

All of Wilno province fell into Russian hands in the German-Soviet division of Poland.

Latvia Ratifies Accord Giving Russia 3 Bases

Riga, Latvia, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Government today ratified the Russian-Latvia pact giving Russia use of three Latvian ports as naval bases.

The pact, containing five major points, greatly strengthened the position of Soviet Russia in the Baltic.

The agreement provided:

Three Latvian ports are set aside as Russian naval bases.

Russia is to sell Latvia munitions at low cost.

Both parties are to extend military aid in case of aggression.

Neither party is to conclude a treaty directed against the other.

Each party will observe the sovereignty and social system of the other.

OCT 11 1939

To Discuss Trade Pact

A Latvian economic delegation left for Moscow tonight to negotiate a commercial treaty to complement the new Russian-Latvian mutual assistance pact.

The delegation was headed by Andrejs Berzins, president of the chamber of trade and industry, and M. Kampe, director of the department of treaties of the Foreign Office.

A German commission arrived here tonight to arrange for repatriation of Latvian Germans as a parallel to the Russian-Latvian agreement.

To Take Only Clothes

Latvian Germans were being permitted to take only their clothes and were advised that they first would live in camps and later would be spread among German districts, chiefly in Poland.

Repatriation is obligatory in Latvia for German citizens, numbering about 4,500. However, many others are expected to go. Latvia has a German population of about 60,000, some of whom are among the wealthiest residents, controlling important enterprises.

German emigration also is proceeding in Estonia, where Russia won a similar agreement for military bases. Estonia has about 18,000 German residents.

Sofia Pact Is Said to Provide Meat for Germany

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 10 (AP).—Trade negotiations between Germany and Russia designed to provide food products for Germany were indicated today, as a German agricultural products trade delegation which recently completed an agreement with Bulgaria prepared to leave for Moscow.

It was reported the conversations here resulted in an agreement for Bulgaria to sell meat, skins, hemp and other products to Germany. Exportation of these products was prohibited at the start of the war.

The agreement was said to have been on condition that the sales would be for cash and that Germany would supply gasoline to Bulgaria.

ASKS ABOUT RUSSIA

OCT 11 1939

Rome Paper Presses at Allied Silence on Poland.

ROME, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—The newspaper Il Messaggero said today in a front page editorial that British and French "silence" on Soviet Russian intervention in Poland "cannot be explained."

"Newspapers, politicians and men who want war at all costs," Il Messaggero said, "do not spare their words to deplore the destiny of Poland and to condemn Germany's action, but not a single voice is raised to ask Russia the reason for her sudden intervention.

"They ask that Poland be given back and demand reconstitution of Poland, but nobody mentions the Polish provinces occupied by Soviet troops."

The editorial said the Russians had immediately inaugurated a Bolshevist program in occupied Polish territory, while the Germans had reestablished order, reopened schools and aided suffering people.

Lithuania Wins Vilna; Russian Treaty Signed

Moscow Receives Military Bases in Third Pact With Small Baltic Neighbors

MOSCOW, Oct. 10 (AP).—Russia completed tonight a series of three mutual assistance pacts with the small Baltic states by signing a treaty with Lithuania which gave the Red Army the right to establish several garrisons at unspecified places within Lithuania to guard its frontiers. In return, the Soviet Union gave her little Baltic neighbor an important concession by agreeing to cede Vilna (Wilno) and a surrounding area.

OCT 11 1939

Vilna is the ancient capital of a once-powerful Lithuania. The Lithuanians never had ceased to regard the city as their capital, despite the fact it had been in Polish hands from 1920, when a "rebel" Polish general seized it for Warsaw, until the Russians took it in last month's partition of Poland.

The two previous pacts concluded by the Soviet Union were with Estonia and Latvia in which she won the right to station air, naval and land forces on their territories.

Pact for Fifteen Years

Delimitation of the Vilna territory was described in a supplementary protocol and map. The points at which Red Army, air and naval forces may be stationed for "protection of the state boundaries of Lithuania" are to be determined by "mutual agreement," as well as the strength of such forces at each point.

The term of the treaty is fifteen years, with a ten-year extension if not denounced by either party a year before its termination. A clause provides for consultation in event of the "menace of aggression" against Lithuania or against the U. S. S. R. from across the territory of Lithuania. Another clause provides for outright assistance in event of aggression without mention of consultation.

OCT 11 1939

In other details the treaty with Lithuania was of a pattern with the Estonian and Latvian pacts. Ratification is to be within six days; the Soviet Union is to provide Lithuania with military equipment; each binds itself not to conclude any alliances directed against the other, and Russia agrees not to interfere with the economic and social organization of Lithuania.

The concentration of naval strength at Kronstadt, only a few miles from Finnish territorial waters coincided with the impending arrival here tomorrow of a Finnish delegation to discuss unspecified economic and political problems. Previous conferences have resulted in sweeping naval and air base concessions by Estonia and Latvia as Russia vigorously pressed her campaign to regain the dominant position in the Baltic Sea she held before the World War.

Soviet leaders are in conference with representatives of Lithuania and Turkey, who are here. Other Soviet officials are discussing a trade agreement with German delegates who seek to reinforce the Reich's war-time economy, making Moscow the continued center of European diplomatic activity.

While Russia is concentrating on questions involving the Baltic, negotiations are still pending with Turkey regarding Dardanelles and Black Sea problems. Thus, diplomatic discussions involving the entire Russian frontier from the Baltic to the Black Sea are being carried on and are closely watched for results in foreign diplomatic circles.

Steady military and naval activity by the Soviet forces indicated the Kremlin's program in the north Baltic was not complete and that Finland would be next to hear Russian suggestions for her "protection"—and for the consolidating of Soviet strength in the north Baltic.

Hundreds of thousands of Red troops were concentrated along the frontiers facing the Baltic states and in the Leningrad area within twenty-five miles of the Finland border.

Military Trains Running

Sailors at Kronstadt were said to be studying the geographies of Finland and the Baltic states, as well as the habits of the people, and reports from the frontier said "military trains go daily to the Baltic Sea."

May Seize Opportunity

Foreign quarters saw the Soviets taking advantage of the preoccupation of Britain, France and Germany with war to strengthen her frontiers and solidify her position.

There was much speculation but no answer to the enigma of the Kremlin. Russia's objectives were as secretive as her diplomatic moves are manifold, and there was no indication of what the next move would be.

The Russian press reported that Sweden had purchased 102 warplanes and 10 torpedo boats from Germany under an agreement made prior to the outbreak of the war.

Press Attacks Allies

Moscow papers continued to attack Britain and France and indicate they were responsible for the continuance of hostilities.

At the same time, the Government's moves seemed to indicate she intended to seize any strategic advantages which would be of immense value in the event Russia ever went to war against Germany.

Germany and Russia have emerged as official partners in the partition of Poland and are now engaged in talks for conclusion of a trade agreement.

Yet some foreign quarters believed the Government's moves were directed at no other nation in its drive for Baltic dominance.

Three Beheaded in Berlin As Polish Spies

OCT 11 1939

BERLIN, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Three men convicted of disclosing German State secrets to the Polish Intelligence Service were beheaded today.

They were listed as Frank Rutkiewicz, 38 years old, and Johann Ruchaliski, 36, who were employees of the Polish State Railway at Danzig, and Victor Samerski, 56, of Insterburg.

The decapitations brought the year's total to 30.

FINNS WARNED TO QUIT CAPITAL AND GULF PORT

OCT 11 1939

Civilians Urged to Leave Helsinki and Viipuri Immediately.

HELSINKI, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—All civilians who can go were urged to make immediate preparations to leave the environs of Helsinki and Viipuri in a broadcast tonight by Minister of the Interior Urho Kekkonen. He said the measure was purely precautionary but the sooner carried out the better.

The warning was given as a Finnish mission was on its way to Moscow at the invitation of the Soviet Russian Government to discuss unspecified economic and political problems. Russia has gained sweeping concessions from similar missions from smaller Baltic States. The Finnish mission is expected to reach the Soviet capital tomorrow.

Viipuri is a port on the Gulf of Finland, almost directly north of Leningrad.

An official decree calling on civilians to leave is scheduled to be issued tomorrow, but the departures are being left on a voluntary basis.

The Government will give free railway transportation to all who cannot afford tickets and will otherwise give material aid.

Trains Are Crowded.

Even before the Interior Minister's broadcast trains and buses were crowded with women and children leaving Helsinki for the country and the railways added extra trains.

The radio and newspapers have been instructing the populace in air defense measures and volunteers have been flocking to the civil defense service. Gas mask sales are mounting. At intervals today the city resounded with the noise of giant air raid warning sirens being tested. A blackout test was scheduled for tonight.

Women And Children Flee To North From Helsinki

Helsinki, Oct. 10 (AP)—Thousands of Finnish women and children began leaving the nation's capital for the less populous northland country today as Soviet Russia massed thousands of troops and heavy naval forces on the frontiers of neighboring Baltic states.

The whole of Finland concentrated its attention on the forthcoming conversations between a Finnish delegation and Soviet Russian officials in Moscow. The delegation was expected in Moscow tomorrow.

Many Finns were asking whether the Russians, who ruled Finland in the days of the Czars, would demand military and economic concessions such as they have gained from Estonia and Latvia

OCT 11 1939

Prepared To Resist

If so, one responsible Finnish source said, the nation would resist, reluctantly but with determination. Thus a nation whose population was estimated in 1937 at 3,834,662 persons would be arrayed against the estimated 170,000,000 population o Russia.

The fleeing women and children crowded transportation lines in their voluntary exodus. At the same time, the Interior Minister, Urho Kekkonen, appealed to all who could do so to leave Helsinki and Viipuri, a port city, as soon as possible.

The Finnish delegation will discuss unannounced economic and political problems with the Russians. In similar conferences with Estonia and Latvia Russia has gained sweeping concessions of naval and military rights, and her troops were ready to march into those nations to make the agreements effective.

Reds Mass Warships

Russia also was massing warships at Kronstadt, huge naval base near Leningrad and less than one hundred miles from Viipuri. Leningrad is approximately 200 miles from Helsinki, straight across the upper tip of the Gulf of Finland.

Since Russia has shown an interest in Finland, the radio and newspapers in the tiny country have been instructing the people in air defense measures.

Snow, welcomed by the Finns as a major defense during winter, fell in flurries today and the city went through a practice blackout tonight.

Crowds Discuss Talks

Despite the snow and the blackout, however, Finns gathered by the thousands in city squares to discuss the Moscow missions.

Dispatches from Tallinn, Estonia, said a supplementary Estonian-Russian agreement had cleared the way for the march of 20,000 Red troops to their new bases in Estonia, but there was no report tonight of such troop movements.

It was said unofficially in Tallinn that Friday had been set for the entrance of the Red troops. Tallinn official quarters said the soldiers would cross the border at Narwa and march to the coast by way of Haapsalu and Virtsu, avoiding Tallinn.

The agreement was said to provide that the Soviet troops would march by road under escort of Estonian police and that Estonian police would remain in authority over the new bases.

Work On Olympic Grounds

In strange contrast to the warlike defense preparations, workmen kept busy on the grounds intended for the 1940 Olympics. Prominent in this work was Paavo Nurmi, the runner who, at 40, is still in trim. He is coaching Finnish athletes and acting in an advisory capacity to the Olympic officials.

The 74-year-old composer Jean Sibelius remained quietly in the home of his son-in-law in Helsinki but throughout the day and night his composition, "Finlandia," was included on most radio programs. Sibelius wrote the piece as a poetic protest against Russian rule at the end of the nineteenth century.

Found it necessary to conclude the following treaty on the transfer of the city of Vilna and the Vilna region to the Lithuanian Republic and on mutual assistance between the Soviet Union and Lithuania and appointed for this purpose their authorized representatives;

For the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U. S. S. R., Vyacheslaff Molotoff, chairman of the Council of People's Commissars and People's Commissar of Foreign Affairs; for the President of the Lithuanian Republic: Jouzas Urbsys, Minister of Foreign Affairs; and these authorized representatives, on mutual presentation of their credentials, found in due form and good order, agreed on the following:

Article I

The exact locations of these troops and the boundaries within which they may be quartered, their strength at each particular point and also all other questions, economic, administrative, questions of jurisdiction, and others arising in connection with the presence of Soviet armed forces on Lithuanian territory under the present treaty, shall be regulated by special agreements. The sites and buildings necessary for this purpose shall be allotted by the Lithuanian Government on lease terms at a reasonable price.

Article V

In the event of menace of aggression against Lithuania or against the U. S. S. R. over Lithuanian territory, the two contracting parties shall immediately discuss the resulting situation and take all measures found necessary by mutual agreement to secure the inviolability of the territories of the contracting parties.

Article VI

The two contracting parties undertake not to conclude any alliances nor participate in any coalitions directed against either of the contracting parties.

Article VII

Realization of this treaty sho not affect in any way the sovereign rights of the contracting parties, in particular their State organization, economic and social system, military measures and generally the principle of non-intervention in internal affairs. The locations of the Soviet land and air armed forces (in Article III of this treaty) under all circumstances remain a component part of the territory of the Lithuanian Republic.

Article VIII

Article IX

This treaty comes into force upon exchange of instruments of ratification. Exchange of these instruments shall take place in Kaunas within six days from the day of signature of this treaty. This treaty is made in two originals, in the Russian and Lithuanian languages, at Moscow, Oct. 10, 1939.

Hungary Trebles Coffee Prices

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 10 (AP)—Tea and coffee, withdrawn from the market two weeks ago, will go on sale again Friday at trebled prices under an order issued today by the Hungarian Government, which holds monopolies on both commodities.

The price rises, it was indicated, were imposed to reduce consumption, decrease importation and thus enable the government to use foreign credit to buy war supplies and other goods.

Under the new schedule the Hungarian housewife will pay from $2.32 to $3.85 a pound for coffee and $4.30 to $10.60 for tea. Barley water was suggested as a substitute for coffee and tea.

Britons Can Shoot Hitler for Sixpence

LONDON, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—For a sixpence—about a dime—Britishers now can obey that impulse to work off hate against a prominent Nazi.

WARNING TO SWISS

OCT 11 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Berne, Oct. 10—A Swiss army communique warned the public today to seek refuge in bomb shelters when motors are heard overhead—and not go sightseeing.

"Planes with or without bombs," the communique said, "may fall on our territory. Other planes may drop bombs or proceed to fire over our territory. Shells from anti-aircraft batteries also may do some damage by falling in our territory."

Ten Border Violations

To date there have been ten officially recognized violations of the Swiss border by aircraft of belligerents. Five of these were ascribed to the French and five to the Germans.

Swiss anti-aircraft gunners have strict orders to fire at any warplanes crossing the border from France or Germany.

In Basel, which is close to both the Frenc hand German frontiers, residents have rushed to rooftops or other vantage points at the sound of airplane motors or anti-aircraft guns. The communique warned particularly against this practice.

'One Pot' Is Rule Now; Nazis Rename Thrift Day

But How to Divide 'Sacrifice Sunday' Meal Is a Mystery

BERLIN, Oct. 10 (AP).—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels announced today the transition of "One Pot Sunday" into "Sacrifice Sunday." The reason, he said, was that the "one pot meal already has become a regular fare of the German people."

OCT 11 1939

He did not explain what additional "sacrifice" would be demanded on the designated Sundays.

During past winter relief campaingns, one Sunday was set aside monthly when restaurants served only simple stew or a similar dish, with a percentage of the price donated to the winter relief fund.

MOVE TO SPLIT NEUTRAL BILL LOSES, 65-26

Senate Bars Tobey Plan to Separate Embargo and Shipping Provisions.

LATTER MAY BE REDRAFTED

OCT 11 1939

Committee Meets Soon to Weigh Modification of Curbs on Commerce in Pacific.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—Administration forces in the Senate defeated today a motion to separate the shipping provisions of the neutrality bill from the arms embargo repeal issue.

The vote was announced as 65 against to 26 for the motion.

There was a division of opinion among leaders as to whether the administration's victory could be counted a test of strength on the neutrality bill itself—the most controversial section of which is that providing for repeal of the present embargo on arms.

Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky told reporters he regarded the vote as a measuring stick but Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, a leader of the opposition in the neutrality fight, said it could not be so considered.

The vote by which the Senate rejected Mr. Tobey's motion follows:

For Splitting the Bill—26.

Democrats—Bulow, Clark of Idaho, Clark of Missouri, Downey, Holt, McCarran, Overton, Walsh, Wheeler—9.

Republicans—Borah, Bridges, Capper, Danaher, Davis, Frazier, Holman, Johnson of California, Lodge, McNary, Nye, Reed, Tobey, Townsend, Vandenberg—15.

Farmer-Labor—Lundeen—1.

Progressive—La Follette—1.

Against Splitting the Bill—65.

Democrats — Adams, Andrews, Ashurst, Bailey, Bankhead, Barkley, Bilbo, Brown, Burke, Byrd, Byrnes, Caraway, Chandler, Chavez, Connally, Donahey, Ellender, George, Gerry, Gillette, Green, Guffey, Harrison, Hatch, Hayden, Herring, Hill, Hughes, Johnson of Colorado, King, Lee, Lucas, Maloney, Mead, Miller, Minton, McKellar, Murray, Neely, O'Mahoney, Pepper, Pittman, Radcliffe, Reynolds, Russell, Schwartz, Schwellenbach, Sheppard, Smathers, Stewart, Thomas of Oklahoma, Thomas of Utah, Truman, Tydings, Van Nuys, Wagner, Slattery—57.

Republicans — Austin, Barbour, Gibson, Gurney, Hale, Taft, White—7.

Independent—Norris—1.

The motion to split up the bill was made by Senator Tobey, Republican, of New Hampshire. He proposed to send the measure back to the Foreign Relations Committee with instruction to write two bills—one the embargo repealer, the other setting forth restrictions on American shipping and travel to belligerents.

Mr. Tobey wanted immediate action on the latter provisions, which would prohibit American vessels from carrying any goods to warring countries. He contended that the procedure would not forestall early action on repealing the arms embargo, a move recommended by President Roosevelt.

"Leaders in the Senate and the country have agreed that the causes which drew us into the last European conflict were the seizure and sinking of American merchant vessels carrying cargoes to belligerents," Senator Tobey asserted.

Would 'Put First Things First.'

"American merchant ships are at this moment in the midst of war zones and carrying cargoes destined for the belligerents. There is great danger that some of them will be sunk—perhaps by mistake.

"Thus, by extensive debate by the Congress on the arms embargo repeal section of the bill we are holding up passage of those sections designed to keep our ships out of the danger zone. . . .

"We should put first things first."

Senator Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, one fo the authors of the bill, said only delay would result from sending the measure back to committee, and that any Senator who wanted to strike out the arms embargo could move to do that at any time.

Senator Connally, Democrat, of Texas, asserted in arguing against the Tobey motion that "the country wants action on this bill and it wants action now."

Every day the arms embargo remains in effect we are un-neutral," he said. "We are aiding one nation against another."

Danaher's Argument.

Senator Danaher* Republican of Connecticut, contended that passage of the administration measure might leave a loophole through for belligirents to obtain unlimited credit in this country for war supplies purchased immediately.

If the administration bill were passed, he said, the present neutrality law would be repealed automatically. Then, he said, if the President failed to proclaim the new law in operation, or Congress failed to act, there would be no restrictions at all on credits.

Senators Danaher and Pittman argued spiritedly over presidential powers under the administration bill and over the purposes of this legislation.

"We are going to legislate, not for the peace and protection of the United States, but for a belligerent," the Connecticut Retpublican shoued after Mr. Pittman had declared that the present arms embargo operated unfairly between belligerents.

Mr. Pittman denied this.

"We don't even know in the Senate today what is the object of our foreign policy," Mr. Danaher said.

In his argument for splitting up the bill, Senator Tobey declared:

"There are subtle, unseen forces working constantly to draw us into this European war. No action that we can take will be more discouraging to such forces than the action which is contemplated in my motion, to take our ships out of the war zones immediately, thereby eliminating a recurrence of the causes which drew us into the world war."

May Moderate Shipping Curb.

Earlier Democratic members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said that they would meet soon to consider relaxation of the restrictions on shipping in the neutrality measure.

Senator George, Democrat, of Georgia, said an amendment probably would be proposed to permit American vessels to visit Australia, New Zealand and Canada. He added that "we may be able to ease the restrictions so that our ships can operate in zones which are not dangerous."

As now phrased, the bill would prohibit American ships from carrying goods to any belligerents or their possessions. Shipping interests have expressed vigorous opposition to that restriction.

Johnson Holds Up Recess Move.

Senator Johnson, Democrat, of Colorado, said that he would hold up for the time being his motion for a three-day recess of Congress to give the President a free hand to make a move toward bringing about peace in Europe.

"I don't think today is a good time to bring the motion up," Senator Johnson said. "We ought to wait to see what Chamberlain and other European statesmen have to say about the prospects of peace."

As the Senate convened, Senator Schwellenbach, Democrat, of Washington, put into the record a number of newspaper editorials discussing the relationship between Russia and Finland.

"I would like to ask the question," Senator Schwellenbach said, "whether or not Senators who propose retention of the arms embargo want to become an ally of communist Russia against Finland, Sweden and Norway?"

Wagner Backs Embargo Repeal.

Senator Wagner, Democrat, of Kentucky, told his colleagues this afternoon that no commercial sacrifice would be too great a price to pay to keep this nation out of the European war.

Arguing that it was a "delusion" to believe that the present embargo on the sale of arms would prevent involvement, Mr. Wagner advocated adoption of the administration neutrality bill repealing the embargo and placing restrictions on all trade with belligerents. He cited records to show that only 10 per cent of exports to belligerents during the time of unrestricted submarine warfare in the last conflict were arms. Shipping is endangered to the same extent, he said, whether American vessels carry arms or other materials.

"In such circumstances," Senator Wagner declared, "the only real embargo on war materials is an embargo on all trade with belligerents. Unless we are ready to adopt that proposal, let us cease to delude ourselves by placing an embargo on an insignificant and arbitrarily selected group of war materials."

He expressed the belief that the administration bill, which would prohibit American ships from transporting any material to a belligerent and would require belligerents to obtain title in this country to purchases made here, would remove all of the "obvious dangers" of American involvement in the war. He said. however, that this could be done only "at a tremendous sacrifice to our industries and our shiping."

Sees a Clear-cut Choice.

"These circumstances present us with a clear-cut choice," he said. "If we want to engage once more in the diplomatic protests and recriminations that marked our relations with the belligerents in the world war prior to our entry, if we propose to renew the claims we then made that complete freedom of the seas in trading with belligerents is among "the most sacred rights of our nation and our people,' then we should make no change in the neutrality act.

"But to permit that history to repeat itself is to generate the gravest menace to our national inerest inherent in the present European war. I, for one, refuse to follow any such negative program, the probable consequences of which are all too apparent within the memory of us all. No sacrifice of commercial advantage would be too great to avoid those consequences."

The New York Senator added:

"I advocate a policy that is consistent, all embracing, and in line with our own experience. We should eliminate all commerce with belligerents by placing all items of belligerent trade on a cash and carry basis. We should place an embargo, not upon a few arbitrarily selected commodities, but upon all American ships, seamen and passengers, whose entry into war zones may endanger our peace.

"We should place an embargo on the extension of credits that would give us a financial interest in the outcome of the war. And if we want to trade with belligerents at all, we should trade in all commodities they want to buy here, pay for here, and carry away without risk to us."

Austin for Embargo Repeal.

Senator Austin, Republican, of Vermont, described the administration neutrality bill today as "an act of self-defense because it is designed to aid Great Britain and France."

"We must do everything we can to hasten the victory of the Allies," he told reporters. "We do not need to ask whether this bill is neutral. We only need to know that it's an act of self-defense.

"In order to protect our interests we must make it possible for Great Britain and France to get supplies. That may be regarded as selfishness on our part, but at the same time it can be patriotic."

Senator Austin, assistant minority leader, is one of a half dozen Republican Senators supporting the administration measure. It would repeal the embargo on arms sales to warring countries, which would have to pay cash or get ninety-day credits for all American purchases. These would have to be transported in foreign ships.

Mr. Austin expressed his view shortly before the Senate began the sixth day of neutrality debate.

ROOSEVELT SAYS U. S. HAS RECEIVED NO PEACE OFFERS

Replies With Firm No to Query Whether There Have Been Overtures.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt told reporters today that no offers or overtures for peace in Europe had been received by this Government.

This was one of the questions posed at his press conference:

"Have any offers or overtures of peace been received?"

The President replied with a firm no.

OCT 11 1939

For the most part Mr. Roosevelt parried questions about prospects of an armistice in the European conflict, although reporters attempted to sound him out in view of intimations from Germany that Hitler would accept mediation if the President so proposed.

In that connection, the President said he had told his luncheon guest, Lord Beaverbrook, British publisher, a story which he described as an interesting parable with respect to current peace talk.

He said he had related this story:

There was an old farmer living in the country and he wanted to get his opinion on some matter, so he said: Pete, you have seen by the papers—

He quoted Pete as saying: Wait a minute, son, you know about your old friend Adam. He got in trouble. His wife told him to eat a nice, red, McIntosh apple and he would get wise.

Adam ate the apple and he and his wife were both thrown out of the Garden of Eden and spent an uncomfortable night in the fog.

The next day Eve was trying to make up for the discomfort she had caused them and snuggled up to Adam and remarked that she had seen something in the papers.

Adam stopped her by saying, wait a minute, honey, wait a minute, you see by the papers—but don't forget that since yesterday afternoon I'm wise.

Asked whether the story about Pete represented the extent to which he wished to discuss the peace question, the President said it did.

Questioned About Submarines.

A reporter inquired whether the moral of the story was that the President did not think much of mediation.

The President said in reply that he did not think much of the press story, referring to news reports that Hitler would welcome an armistice proposal.

Asked whether he had further information about operations of foreign submarines in the Caribbean area, the President said he had none for the press.

White House officials reported Saturday the sighting of a submarine fifteen miles off Miami, Fla. Yesterday they reported an undersea craft off Key West, Fla., although they said it might have been the same one noted Saturday.

Two foreign tankers also were said to have been observed in the same vicinity as the submarine near Key West.

Asked about the possibility that foreign vessels were handling oil for Mexico, Mr. Roosevelt declared he had no news on that.

He left the impression that the submarines had been identified definitely, but did not disclose their nationalities.

American Neutral Zone.

The question of the neutral zone set up off the American continents at the recent conference of American republics at Panama figured in the press conference when a reporter noted that a London newspaper (the Times) had said editorially that enforcement of the safety zone might constitute an act of war.

The trouble with such questions, Mr. Roosevelt said, is that they are essentially "if" questions. So he could not answer them.

Asked to clarify the facts about the neutrality belt, the President asserted that if reporters would just quit making guesses, they would see it work out all right. He said that the principles enunciated at the Panama conference would have to be observed.

ARMY TO BOOST STRENGTH TO 600,000 MEN

OCT 11 1939

Figure Will Include Regulars, National Guard And Reserves

President Reveals Plans Following Address By Aide To Woodring

OCT 11 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Oct. 10 — President Roosevelt disclosed today that the Administration aims at building up the army to approximately 600,000 men, including regular troops, the National Guard and reserve officers.

He hastened to note at his press conference, however, that the nation's armed forces already approach this figure. The three forces together will number 562,000 when the regulars and Guardsmen attain the augmented strength the President ordered a month ago in proclaiming a national emergency.

The War Department already had disclosed plans for further expansion by stating that four new divisions would be formed "when and if" a 53,000-man increase in the regular army's peacetime limit of 280,000 is authorized.

Johnson Address Noted

Mr. Roosevelt's comment was evoked by an address in which Louis Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War, said that the fate of Poland showed that the United States needed at least 600,000 trained men ready for quick mobilization. Asked about the figure, Mr. Roosevelt said it was not far from Administration aims.

Meanwhile, the War Department announced orders for 65,000 quick-firing semi-automatic rifles and for an undisclosed number of warplane motors described as among the most powerful in the world.

Officials also disclosed that National Guardsmen would drill twice a week instead of once weekly, as at present. The drills will be supplemented by week-end training in the field.

Foreign Plane Flights Over Canal Zone Curbed

Owner, Pilot and Passengers Must Be Listed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (AP).—The State Department issued tonight sweeping regulations for flights of foreign airplanes over the Panama Canal Zone.

The Department required that applications for authorization for such flights must be transmitted to the Secretary of State by Embassies or Legations.

The applications must give full information on the owner of the aircraft, the pilot, the aircraft itself, the passengers, itinerary, purpose of the flight, time of arrival and duration of the stop within the Canal Zone, and a statement as to firearms and cameras carried.

The regulations were designed to protect the Canal Zone from possible attack during the European war.

First Blackout for Canal Zone

BALBOA, C. Z., Oct. 10 (AP)—The first practice blackout of the Canal Zone apparently was successful tonight, although there was no official comment. The only lights allowed were the electrically controlled bouy lights in the channel of the canal.

Powers Accept Uniform Rules For Prisoners

Geneva Convention Backed by Germany, Britain and France in Notes to U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (AP).—Great Britain, Germany and France have promised the United States that they will abide by the rules for treatment of prisoners of war contained in a 1929 Geneva treaty.

The State Department sent notes to the three nations as a preliminary to undertaking the work of checking treatment of British and French prisoners in Germany. This is in line with the American agreement to look after Anglo-French interests in the Reich.

The notes asked for assurances that the powers would regard the rules of the Geneva Convention as applicable in the present war. Affirmative replies have been received from all. The State Department, therefore, is prepared to go ahead with inspection of German prison camps containing British or French officers and soldiers.

The rules that American diplomatic officials must see applied guarantee a prisoner of war against confiscation of his money and personal effects and against being mistreated in any way for refusal to give information regarding his army.

OCT 11 1939

He may be put to work, but his labors can have no direct connection with the prosecution of the war. He must be paid the same wage scale as civilian employees doing the same kind of work in the same district.

He must be given every medical attention and, if seriously ill or injured, must be sent back to his own country.

If he is charged with a criminal offense, he must be given a public trial.

Prisoners may appoint an agent for their camp to represent them with the power holding them prisoner and with the power assuming protection of their interests.

If the prisoner is an officer, he must be given special treatment. He cannot be confined in the same camp with private soldiers; his insignia of rank cannot be taken from him; he must be paid the same compensation received by equivalent officers of the detaining power. He cannot be made to work unless he asks for it, and then suitable work must be provided for him.

American diplomatic officials in Germany will make periodic inspections of the prison camps, attend trials, authenticate prisoners' wills and other documents.

DISCRIMINATE IN WAR SALES, HOOVER URGES

OCT 11 1939

Ex-President Calls On U. S. To Ban Buying Of Offense Weapons

But Would Permit Commerce In Equipment For Civilians' Defense

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Oct. 10—Former President Herbert Hoover tonight urged the United States to "raise a standard against barbarism" in warfare by prohibiting the sale of bombing planes, poison gas and submarines to any nation at any time, whether neutral or warring.

"Equally important, and from exactly the same reasoning, I am convinced that we should permit nations to buy from us the instruments by which they can defend themselves from such barbarities.

Would Sell Planes

"We should therefore permit the sale of pursuit airplanes, light observation planes, anti-aircraft guns, and any other instruments of defense against attacks on civilians."

The former President made known his views in a statement which he described as a response to requests for advice on the neutrality bill from several Senators and Congressmen.

"I do not like to think of the day when bombing planes, engaged in the killing of women and children, on both or either side in this war, will be identified as the product of American manufacture," the statement continued.

News Will Be Transmitted

"Whichever country it may be, the news will be transmitted to the American people that this killing has been done with the products of American industry."

Mr. Hoover said he suggested a ban on weapons which could be used to attack civilian populations as a third alternative to the "repeal" and "no-repeal" arms embargo proposals now being debated in Congress.

"After war itself, the threat of destruction of open cities and the killing of women and children is the greatest step to barbarism of a thousand years," he said. "And this is no emotional expression. We have seen it in horrible action in China, Spain, Ethiopia and Poland."

Fears Killing Of Civilians

Hoover declared the major purpose of bombing planes, poison gas and submarines was not to destroy the enemy's source of supplies, as he said might be argued, but "to terrify or kill civilians."

"I cannot bring myself to believe that the United States should ever sell this type of weapons to anybody. . . .

"Equally, I do not like to think of the time when civilian populations will have been attacked and we have deprived them of the weapons by which they could have defended their women and children from such barbarities.

Warns Of National Regret

"Should aerial catastrophe come to either side, we will see a national regret that we had either contributed to it or failed to aid in its prevention. And that is exactly the kind of explosive emotion that might lead us to enter into war."

"I know someone will split hairs on this differentiation between arms," Hoover said, "but it is less difficult than many borderlines in the present bill.

"This basis of action seems to me to meet many of the difficulties and dangers enunciated by both the opponents and supporters of the embargo. Its application can be tested by exploration of the major arguments put forward on each side.

Convictions Cited

"The advocates of retention of the embargo are convinced that shipment of arms in war supports war itself; that in repealing the embargo at this time we are taking sides in this war; that we are joining in European power politics; that it is one more step in a program the sum of which leads us towards war; that we are contributing the weapons of mass murder; that it would inflate American industry, with consequences in profiteering and the creation of industrial and financial pressure groups interested in going deeper into war; that the after-war collapse and unemployment would be increased by this inflated industry.

What Repealists Think

"The advocates of repeal are convinced that the embargo in war favors aggressive nations who have armed in advance; that it today arbitrarily favors Germany by depriving Great Britain and France; that it even allows Germany supplies from us through neutrals; that the jeopardy to Great Britain and France by Nazi ascendency in Europe will be increased by the embargo; that this jeopardy may be reflected to us; that we lose in preparedness by depriving ourselves of this expansion of our arms manufacturing capacity; that our unemployed will be deprived of jobs they would otherwise have.

"It is not my purpose in reciting these views to argue with these beliefs, but only to point out the deep conviction of most able men that dangers do exist either way which lead us nearer to war."

"I do not claim this alternative proposal answers every argument on either side of this question. It does avoid the extreme objections and dangers of either repeal or no repeal.

"We would not be participating in mass murder.' On the contrary, we would be contributing to prevent it. By such action, America would again be raising a standard against barbaric action."

NIGHT LEAD ARMISTICE RUMOR

BERLIN, OCT 10-(AP)-THE GERMAN POPULATION EXPERIENCED AN EMOTIONA LETWADOWN TONIGHT AFTER A DAY IN WHICH FALSE REPORTS OF AN ARMISTICE SWEPT THE NATION.

HOPES THAT THE WAR WAS ENDING, WHICH FOLLOWED RUMORS THAT THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT WAS CRUMBLING AND THAT THE WESTERN POWERS WANTED TO LAY DOWN THEIR ARMS, WERE DASHED WHEN IT WAS LEARNED THERE HAD BEEN NO APPARENT CHANGE IN THE WAR AIMS OF BRITAIN AND FRANCE.

THE CONVICTION THAT HOPES FOR PEACE WERE NO BETTER THAN BEFORE INCREASED TONIGHT AFTER PREMIER DALADIER'S BROADCAST TO THE FRENCH NATION WHICH SEEMED TO BE A REJECTION OF ADOLF HITLER'S PEACE PROPOSALS MADE IN HIS REICHSTAG ADDRESS LAST FRIDAY. MORNING NEWSPAPERS IN BERLIN MADE NO MENTION OF DALADIER'S SPEECH.

THE SOURCE OF THE ARMISTICE RUMOR, WHICH SPREAD LIKE WILDFIRE, REMAINED A PROFOUND MYSTERY. IT CIRCULATED FIRST IN BERLIN THEN THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY WITH INCREDIBLE SPEED.

WORK WAS INTERRUPTED IN MANY OFFICES. FRIENDS TELEPHONED EACH OTHER AND THERE EVEN WERE THE BEGINNINGS OF IMPROMPTU CELEBRATIONS.

OCT 11 1939

SOME INSISTED THEY HEARD THE REPORT FROM THE GERMAN RADIO. A WOMAN COMING FROM A SUBURBAN POLICE STATION SAID SHE HEARD IT FROM A POLICE OFFICIAL.

TO PUT THE BRAKES ON THE CONFUSION AND BRING THE PEOPLE BACK TO COLD REALITY, THE GERMAN RADIO EARLY THIS AFTERNOON DENIED THE REPORTS, AND GERMANS SOBERLY SETTLED BACK TO THEIR WAR DUTIES.

THE GERMAN PRESS IN AFTERNOON EDITIONS CHARGED THE HOAX WAS "A SHAMELESS, FRIVOLOUS TRICK OF THE BRITISH MINISTRY OF LIES" AIMED AT SPREADING CONFUSION. WHAT PRACTICAL BENEFIT BRITAIN COULD HAVE

ONE PLAUSIBLE EXPLANATION WAS THAT ILLEGAL, SO-CALLED RADIO SENDERS," WHICH HAVE BEEN BUTTING IN ON THE WAVE-LEN[illegible]F ESTABLISHED STATIONS, STARTED THE REPORT AND THAT IT ACTUALLY WAS HEARD BY SOME RADIO LISTENERS.

THERE IS ONE SUCH "BLIND SENDER" CALLING ITSELF THE "LIBERTY STATION" WHICH OCCASIONALLY ASSAILS THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT. TONIGHT ANOTHER SUCH STATION WAS BROADCASTING MUSIC WITH THE ANNOUNCER AT INTERVALS SHOUTING "HAIL AUSTRIA."

OCT 11 1939

AN IRONICAL ACCOUNT OF THE CELEBRATION WAS GIVEN BY THE BRITISH BROADCASTING CORPORATION. NEWSPAPERS CARRIED THE STORY UNDER SUCH CAPTIONS AS "JITTER DAY IN BERLIN".

SOME BRITISH OBSERVERS SAID THE READINESS WITH WHICH THE GERMAN PEOPLE APPARENTLY SEIZED UPON THE RUMORS INDICATED THEY ALREADY ARE WAR-WEARY. OTHERS EXPLAINED THE INCIDENT AS THE BACKFIRING OF NAZI PROPAGANDA EFFORTS TO CREATE A "PEACE ATMOSPHERE" IN THE WAKE OF ADOLF HITLER'S REICHSTAG SPEECH LAST FRIDAY.

THEY SAID LITHUANIA WOULD GET BACK ABOUT HALF THE TERRITORY SHE WOULD HAVE RECEIVED UNDER THE SOVIET-LITHUANIAN TREATY OF 1920 WHICH RECOGNIZED LITHUANIAN INDEPENDENCE, HAD THAT TREATY NOT BEEN UPSET BY POLAND'S SEIZURE OF THE AREA.

(IN HUNGARY AND THE BALKANS, HOWEVER, THE PROBLEM APPEARED TO PRESENT GREATER DIFFICULTIES THAN IN THE BALTIC STATES. IN RUMANIA ALONE THERE ARE ABOUT 750,000 PERSONS SAID TO BE REGARDED AS GERMANS; HUNGARY AND YUGOSLAVIA HAVE ABOUT 500,000 EACH.)

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE OCT 11 1939

WITH HERR HITLER DANGLING PEACE BEFORE THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES, AND THE WAR ON BOTH LAND AND SEA SUFFERING FROM DEPRESSION, THE CHIEF POINT OF INTEREST IN THE EUROPEAN IMBROGLIO CENTERED IN RUSSIA'S DRIVE FOR SUPREMACY IN THE BALTIC--ONE OF THE COVETED OBJECTIVES OF THE NAZI PROGRAM.

THE MUSCOVITES, HAVING ESTABLISHED VIRTUAL PROTECTORATES OVER THE LITTLE STATES OF LATVIA AND ESTONIA--THEREBY ASSURING CONTROL OF THE EASTERN BALTIC--APPEARED TODAY TO HAVE STRUCK A SNAG IN FINLAND.

THE RUSSIANS ARE SAID TO BE SEEKING HEAVY CONCESSIONS FROM FINLAND IN THE WAY OF NAVAL BASES WHICH WOULD MAKE THE SOVIET MASTER OF THE WHOLE BALTIC REGION.

THE FINNS HAVE SENT A DELEGATION TO MOSCOW TO DISCUSS THE COMMUNIST PROPOSALS, BUT AT THE SAME TIME THEY HAVE MOBILIZED THEIR ARMY ON THE RUSSIAN BORDER AND HAVE GIVEN EVERY INDICATION THAT THEY DON'T INTEND TO SURRENDER RIGHTS WHICH WOULD INFRINGE ON THEIR SOVEREIGNTY.

THE OTHER SCANDINAVIAN STATES NATURALLY ARE IN A STATE OF GREAT ANXIETY AS THE RESULT OF THIS TENSE SITUATION.

MEANWHILE, MOSCOW WAS CONTINUING NEGOTIATIONS WITH THE IDEA OF BRINGING THE LAST OF THE BALTIC STATES, LITHUANIA, INTO THE CLOSED CIRCLE. RUSSIAN TROOPS TOO WERE ADVANCING INTO LATVIA AND ESTONIA TO OCCUPY THE NEW MILITARY BASES.

IN THE FACE OF THIS COMMUNIST DRIVE, NAZIDOM WAS RUSHING TO [illegible] OUT ITS ASTONISHING SCHEME OF REPATRIATING GERMANS FROM LATVIA, ESTONIA AND LITHUANIA--A TOTAL OF SOME 115,000 PEOPLE.

WHETHER THIS RESETTLEMENT IS BEING CARRIED OUT AT THE REQUEST OF RUSSIA, OR IS MERELY A PART OF HERR HITLER'S GENERAL SCHEME OF REBUILDING THE REICH, HASN'T BEEN MADE CLEAR.

IT IS EVIDENT, HOWEVER, THAT THIS WITHDRAWAL IN THE FACE OF THE COMMUNIST ADVANCE INTO THE BALTIC STATES WILL CLEAR THE ROAD ENTIRELY FOR MOSCOW. SOVIET LEADER STALIN HAS WON A GREAT VICTO[illegible] HAVING TO GO TO WAR TO DO IT.

OCT 11 1939

MANY OF THE GERMANS BEING MOVED COME FROM FAMILIES WHICH HAVE LIVED IN THE BALTIC STATES FOR HUNDREDS OF YEARS. THE PLAN IS TO RESETTLE THEM IN THE TERRITORIES TAKEN FROM POLAND.

THIS NOT ONLY WILL BRING THESE PEOPLE BACK INTO THE FATHERLAND, BUT IT WILL GIVE AN OVER-NIGHT GERMANIZATION OF THE CONQUERED TERRITORIES.

WHILE MOSCOW THUS SHREWDLY PROFITED AT WHAT OBSERVERS GENERALLY TOOK TO BE THE EXPENSE OF GERMANY, HITLER'S PEACE PROPOSALS REMAINED UNANSWERED, EXCEPTING FOR UNOFFICIAL REJECTIONS BY THE PRESS OF ENGLAND AND FRANCE.

THE FRENCH AND BRITISH GOVERNMENTS, HOWEVER, WERE REPORTED TO BE IN CLOSE CONSULTATION REGARDING A REPLY. BRITISH PREMIER CHAMBERLAIN WAS EXPECTED TO GIVE THIS IN PARLIAMENT TOMORROW.

THUS FAR THERE HAS BEEN NO INDICATION OF CHANGE IN THE ALLIED ATTITUDE THAT THEY WON'T ACCEPT A HITLERIAN PEACE AND ARE OUT TO "CRUSH HITLERISM."

IF THE WAR DOESN'T DIE SOON THROUGH THE ACCEPTANCE OF HITLER'S TERMS, THE CONFLICT IS LIKELY TO GET GOING SHORTLY IN A REALLY BIG WAY.

OCT 11 1939

THAT BEING THE CASE WE SHALL BE WELL ADVISED TO PAUSE HERE TO GET ACQUAINTED WITH A GREAT NEW PERSONALITY--THAT IS, NEW AS REGARDS THIS PRESENT UPHEAVAL--WHO MAY EASILY BECOME THE DOMINANT FIGURE OF THE BELLIGERENTS, BARRING POSSIBLY HITLER HIMSELF.

I REFER TO WINSTON CHURCHILL, BRITAIN'S RECENTLY APPOINTED FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY--THE MAN WHOM MANY OBSERVERS BELIEVE HITLER FEARS MORE THAN ANY OTHER INDIVIDUAL AMONG THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES.

SINCE CHURCHILL LANDED IN THE CABINET THE OTHER DAY ON THE CREST OF A GREAT POPULAR WAVE OF DEMAND FOR EMPLOYMENT OF HIS SERVICES, HE HAS STOLEN THE SHOW. IT IS WIDELY PREDICTED IN ENGLAND THAT PREMIER CHAMBERLAIN WILL STEP DOWN SOON AND GIVE OVER TO HIS COLLEAGUE.

CHURCHILL HAS BEEN IN THE PUBLIC EYE MOST OF HIS LIFE, AND HE IS SIXTY-FIVE YEARS OLD.

HE HAS HELD MANY CABINET POSITIONS, INCLUDING THE SELF-SAME JOB OF FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY DURING THE WORLD WAR.

HOWEVER, CHURCHILL HAS SEEMED TO STICK IN CABINETS ONLY SO LONG AS PRIME MINISTERS HAVE FOUND HIS SERVICES TOO VALUABLE TO PART WITH. HE IS A LONE WOLF, UNFITTED BY TEMPERAMENT TO SERVE UNDER ANY MASTER, AND TOO MUCH OF AN INDIVIDUALIST TO MAKE A POPULAR LEADER OF MEN. HE HAS, BY THE WAY, ONE OF THE MOST CAUSTIC TONGUES IN BRITAIN, AND LIKES TO USE IT ON ALL AND SUNDRY. NATURALLY THAT DOESN'T LEND TO POPULARITY.

HOWEVER, CHURCHILL IS CREDITED EVEN BY HIS SEVEREST CRITICS WITH HAVING ONE OF THE MOST BRILLIANT MINDS OF ENGLISH HISTORY. HE IS A MAN OF SO MANY ACHIEVEMENTS THAT ONE HESITATES TO CATALOGUE THEM FOR FEAR OF BEING CHARGED WITH EXAGGERATION.

HE IS AT ONCE A GREAT ORATOR, ONE OF THE NOTABLE WRITERS OF GENERATIONS, A STATESMAN OF WIDE EXPERIENCE, A SOLDIER WHO KNOWS WAR FIRST HAND, AN EXPERT ON NAVAL AFFAIRS AND AN EXPERT ON AVIATION.

HE HAS THE INVENTIVE MIND OF GENIUS. AND WITH ALL THAT HE HAS A TREMENDOUS DRIVING FORCE.

CHURCHILL RENDERED GREAT SERVICE TO ENGLAND DURING THE WORLD WAR. UNFORTUNATELY FOR HIM, HOWEVER, ONE OR TWO OF HIS BIGGEST SCHEMES FOR WINNING THE WAR--NOTABLY THE CALLIPOLI CAMPAIGN--CAME CROPPERS. MANY HISTORIANS SAY THAT CHURCHILL'S PLAN WAS MAGNIFICENT BUT THAT IT WAS BUNGLED BY CIRCUMSTANCES OVER WHICH HE HAD NO CONTROL. BE THAT AS MAY, A GOOD MANY PEOPLE PROMPTLY BRANDED HIM AS BEING RASH AND UNSTABLE.

North Europe Looks to Nazis To Halt Russia

By WITT HANCOCK. OCT 12 1939

Moscow, Oct. 11 (AP).—Nervous Northern European states were reported tonight to be looking to Germany—if she could be released from her war with Great Britain and France—to aid them in halting Soviet Russia's bloodless military and diplomatic conquests.

These powers were described as urging the British and French Governments to end hostilities against Germany, believing that if Germany were at peace with the Western powers, she could prevent Russia from dominating Eastern Europe.

Finland, whose delegation arrived here today for talks with Soviet leaders, and Sweden were reported to be especially anxious over the turn of events in the Baltic and hopeful that France and England could see their way to an early peace.

Lithuania Third to Yield.

The arrival of the Finnish delegation, headed by Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, one-time Premier and now Minister to Sweden, came on the heels of the announcement of a Soviet pact with Lithuania.

This, added to previous accords with Estonia and Latvia, completed transformation of these three small Baltic states into virtual Soviet protectorates.

The Lithuanian pact provided for the return to Lithuania of her historic capital Wilno (Vilna) and the Wilno region, seized Oct. 9, 1920, by the "rebel" Polish Gen. Lucjan Zeligowski.

Allowed to Place Troops.

In exchange, however, the Soviets got the right to place an undetermined number of troops in the province, which foreign observers expected to be placed along the new frontier with Germany.

In the bargains Russia drove with the three small Baltic states, she gained points for the garrisoning of thousands of troops, bases for warships and warplanes, and trade and transport concessions.

The Finnish delegation arrived in Moscow at a time when Soviet troops were massed on Finland's border, and Russian men, warplanes and warships were concentrated elsewhere in the Baltic region.

Finns Appear Firm.

It was thought the Finnish-Soviet talks might open tonight. Dr. Paasikivi expected to learn just what Russia wants and then return to Finland to consult his Government.

"There was every indication that the Finns were refusing to be rushed into any pact, especially if it involves territorial concessions.

It was believed in foreign circles here that Finland was counting heavily on backing from Sweden. While the Finns were understood to be prepared to grant certain concessions, if worst comes to worst, they were believed ready to fight.

[The British Foreign Office declined last night to comment on the report that Sweden and Finland were urging peace.]

Obviously refusing to be hurried as were the representatives of other Baltic states, the Finnish delegation did not go to the Kremlin tonight, but will go there tomorrow. The delegation had been expected to start the talks this afternoon or tonight. The delegation will seek to find out just what the Soviet Union wants of Finland, and then go back to Helsingfors to report to the Cabinet.

OCT 12 1939

Finland, once a part of Old Russian Empire, like Estonia, Lithuania and Latvia, appeared to be next in line for Soviet "protection."

"Reds Got Lithuania"

One veteran foreign commentator summing up the announcement of the Soviet-Lithanian pact said "the Liths got Wilno while the Soviets got Lithuania."

The Communist party newspaper Pravda said, however, that by the treaty with Lithuania—as by the Es-tonian and Latvian pacts—"the Soviet Union assures the security of its frontiers and further consolidates its defense."

"Thus an iron belt of Soviet defense is being erected throughout the Baltic," Pravda added. "Thus stable peace is being created in eastern Europe."

The Wilno region was reported jammed with hundreds of thousands of Jewish refugees from other parts of Poland, creating additional problems for Lithuania.

Frontier Group Meets

The German-Soviet frontier commission met today to discuss problems arising out of new borders created by the partition of Poland.

A Latvian trade delegation was expected to arrive tomorrow to conclude an economic agreement with the Soviet.

That a number of Roman Catholic and Greek orthodox priests were killed in Russia's invasion of Poland was indicated by the Moscow newspaper Bezbozhnik (the Godless).

The paper asserted that many priests barricaded themselves "with capitalists and Polish officers in Catholic churches and met the Red Army with machine-gun fire."

Increasing indications that the U. S. S. R. intended to Sovietize the Baltic states were being received here. Following the announcement of the signing of the Russian-Lithuanian pact, a Moscow radio broadcast said in a report from Kaunas (Kouno) that enthusiastic and cheering crowds besieged the Soviet legation there demanding pictures of Josef V. Stalin, Foreign Commissar Viacheslav M. Molotov and War Commissar Klementi E. Voroshilov.

Tonight the Lithuanian delegation headed by Foreign Minister Jouzas Urbsys left Moscow by train. They were seen off at the sation by a large party of Soviet dignitaries. The station as decorated with Soviet and Lithuanian flags and a guard of honor was lined up. The Lithuanian delegates were entertained earlier at a dinner given in their honor by Molotov and attended by Stalin and numerous Soviet officials.

"The dinner passed in a warm and friendly atmosphere," reported Tass, official Soviet news agency.

Exodus From Helsinki and Viipuri Is Ordered As Delegation Arrives in Moscow for Talk Refusal of Bases Forecast as Baltic Nations Seek to End War in West.

LED BY SWEDEN AND FINLAND

Russian Capital Hears They Hope Berlin Then Would Halt Expansion by Soviet.

HELSINKI, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—An exodus of civilians from Helsinki and Viipuri was in full swing today as the Finns anxiously awaited developments in Moscow, where a delegation headed by a former Premier, Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, arrived for political and economic talks with Soviet leaders.

This exodus followed increased military activity on the part of Finland and an experimental blackout of this capital city last night.

Firm Refusal Is Forseen.

Responsible Finnish sources said that a firm refusal would be the nation's answer to any Russian requests for military and economic concessions, such as Russia obtained recently from Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

[Meanwhile an Associated Press dispatch from Moscow today stated that northern European States, especially Sweden and Finland, were reported unofficially to be urging Great Britain and France to end their war with Germany, so as to help halt Russia's military and diplomatic expansion. It was reported that the northern States believed that if Germany were at peace in the west, she could prevent the Soviets from dominating eastern Europe.

With many women and children having already left the city, in response to a radio appeal yesterday by Urho Kekkonen, Interior Minister, approximately 129,000 persons have signified their readiness to leave. Of these, 64,000 were children under 16, their nurses or guardians and adult invalids.

Railway and bus stations were crowded with persons leaving the cities, chiefly for the country. Long lines of women and children stood at ticket windows. All schools were closed.

People Grim, But Calm.

The Helsinki station was crowded at dawn and as the day wore on, the lines leading to the ticket windows stretched out a block long. The busiest windows were those distributing free tickets provided by the Government for those unable to afford the fares.

The population was grim, but calm.

In order to facilitate the exodus, the Government lifted the ban against private automobiles, and gasoline was placed on sale. The city council of Helsinki placed half of the municipal bus facilities at the disposal of those leaving the city.

[The Finnish steamship Wellamo arrived in Stockholm today from Helsinki carrying 200 passengers, mostly Finnish families with children and aged persons. The Wellamo normally carries 75 to 100 passengers. Many other persons have left Finland for Sweden.]

Says Finns Must Be Ready.

In his broadcast Mr. Kekkonen declared that he could "truthfully say that at the moment there is no reason to believe Finland is in immediate danger," but he added:

"We are in duty bound to contemplate what is happening in the world and we must be ready to meet any emergency."

Mr. Kekkonen also urged all who could do so to leave Viipuri, the capital of Eastern Finland.

Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko, in a newspaper article, emphasized the solidarity of the Scandinavian bloc, to which Finland is closely bound, and saw signs of unrest in western nations aroused by the "menace" from the east. He suggested the possibility of a radical change in the development of the war within the next few days.

Gas mask sales in both Helsinki and Viipuri rose in the wake of Kekkonen's warning.

Residents in rural sections near the Soviet border, along which Russian troops were reported massing, will not be asked to leave, it was explained. The territory is heavily wooded, with interlacing rivers and lakes, and transportation facilities are not suited to handle a mass exodus.

Boys Recruited for Guard.

Finnish boys of fourteen and fifteen were being recruited in a voluntary civic guard, which is carrying on large scale emergency preparations in co-operation with regular army reserves.

While no official estimates on the strength of Finland's military reserves were available, observers estimated the nation could put 600,000 men in the field. The best sources placed the present regular army strength at about 300,000.

The navy, it was said, had been preparing for a possible crisis since last spring, and no new emergency preparations were expected. The navy consists of two 3,900-ton coast defense vessels, five submarines, six gunboats, twenty-one minesweepers, six mine layers and nineteen patrol boats.

Uniformed women members of the Lotta Svard (an auxiliary corps) were preparing to assist the army behind the lines if their help is required.

The Bourse was ordered closed for an indefinite period.

In strange contrast to these activities were the continuing preparations for the 1940 Olympic games.

Criticized Meetings in Moscow.

MOSCOW, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—Russia turned today to what men described as political and economic talks with Finland in the drive to regain the Baltic dominance she enjoyed in the heyday of the czars.

Against a background of troops massed on Finland's border and concentrations of men, warplanes and warships elsewhere in the Baltic region, the Kremlin stage was set before the Finnish delegation arrived.

The Soviet Union has just concluded a series of military alliances with Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, three former segments of the Russian empire which broke away following the world war. They became, in effect, Soviet protectorates.

Finland, also once a part of the Tsarist empire, appeared next in line for this "protection."

Russia gained points for the garrisoning of thousands of troops and bases for warships and warplanes as well as trade and transport concessions through her bargains with the three little States to the south of Finland.

Finnish Delegation Arrives.

The Finnish mission, headed by Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, one-time Premier and now Minister to Sweden, reached Moscow by train and was greeted at the station by the Chief of Protocol of the Moscow Foreign Office and the Finnish and Scandinavian Ministers to Russia.

Concurrently with the coming of the Finns the Communist party newspaper Pravda declared editorially that Russia's policy of "peace, good neighborly relations and friendship with nations scores one success after another."

The newspaper said that by the treaty with Lithuania—as with the Estonian and Latvian pacts—"the Soviet Union assures the security of its frontiers and further consolidates its defense.

"The Soviet Union removes the menace on the part of imperialist powers toward the weakly defended States neighboring with the U. S. S. R.

"Thus an iron belt of Soviet defense is being erected throughout the Baltic. Thus stable peace is being created in eastern Europe.

Hails Pact With Lithuania.

"The peoples of our country will greet with tremendous satisfaction the conclusion of the new treaty (with Lithuania) consolidating the power of the Soviet Union, and creating a new barrier against all imperialist intrigues."

The third of the Baltic pacts, that with Lithuania, was concluded last night. Aside from its military features, it provided for return to Lithuania of her historic capital, Wilno (Vilna), and the Wilno region, seized Oct. 9, 1920, by a Polish general. The Lithuanians never have ceased to regard Wilno as their capital. The Russian Army captured it after a two-hour battle with Polish forces last month in the westward drive into Poland and last night's pact passed it on to the Lithuanians.

[A dispatch to the Associated Press from Kaunas, Lithuania, said that all public buildings were decorated with flags and bunting and schools were closed as Lithuanians celebrated the return of Wilno.]

Wilno, city and province, were reported jammed with thousands upon thousands of Jewish refugees from the German invasion of Poland. The normal population of the territory is between 500,000 and 600,000.

The U. S. S. R. was given the right to place a "limited number" of troops in Lithuania, their bases to be rented from the Lithuanian Government and to remain under Lithuanian sovereignty.

Pact Guarantees Sovereignty.

One article of the Russian-Lithuanian pact declared that it "should not affect in any way the sovereign rights of the contracting parties, in particular their State organization, economic and social system, military measures and generally the principle of non-intervention in internal affairs."

Moscow military observers expressed belief that the Lithuanian concessions would result in intensive manning and fortification of the frontier with Germany.

It appeared that the first Soviet troops to march in fulfillment of the Baltic pacts would be 20,000 assigned to garrisons, naval and air bases in Estonia proper and on her coastal islands of Saaremaa (Oesel) and Hiiumaa (Dagoe).

Critical of Polish Gentry.

The newspaper Pravda said:

"Conclusion of the Soviet-Lithuanian treaty forms a new and most important link in the policy of consolidation of friendly ties between the Soviets and Lithuania, which the Soviet Government began pursuing almost twenty years ago."

Critical of what it called "the Polish gentry," the newspaper said that "the valorous Red army liberated peoples which had been under the yoke of Polish predatory imperialists," including Wilno.

Izvestia, the Government newspaper, said of the Lithuanian pact:

"The policy of the great Socialist State and its role of reliable and just defender of the independence of small nations found in this treaty the most vivid and eloquent expression."

Says That Poland was not content with the capture of Wilno, in 1920, Izvestia declared:

"Throughout the subsequent period, Polish imperialists in their dreams saw Lithuania finally swallowed and incorporated within the patchwork Polish republic.

"Greedily grinding their teeth and rattling arms on the Lithuanian frontier, they menaced the Lithuanian people every day."

Citing the division of Poland and the return of Wilno to Lithuania, it commented:

"History knows of no other example when an army acted as a genuine liberator, the peoples' defender of justice, without pursuing aims of conquest and oppression."

Turkish Talks Deadlocked.

Meanwhile, conversationas with a Turkish delegation (reported to revolve about a Russian desire to share control in the Dardanelles, gateway of the Black Sea) continued in a stalemate.

Tass, official news agency, announced last night that the Polish Ukraine, now under Russian rule, would elect a national assembly October 22 to decide questions arising from the establishment of Soviet power in that region. One question was whether the western Ukraine would be incorporated with the Ukranian Soviet Socialist Republic, one of the units of the Soviet Union.

The assembly also would be called on to approve confiscation of landed estates and their division among the peasants and nationalization of banks and large industrial enterprises.

Estonian Cabinet Quits.

TALLINN, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—Premier Kaarel Eenpalu's Cabinet has resigned, it was formally announced today, to permit reorganization of the Government on a broader basis.

At the same time a joint Estonian-Soviet Russian commission announced that it had reached an agreement implementing the pact recently executed by the two countries represented.

The agreement, the announcement said, permits Soviet troops to enter Estonia October 18 to take stations at previously designated points where Russia has been granted the right to establish air and naval bases.

The negotiators said that General Johan Laidoner, Estonian Army chief, had been invited to visit Moscow.

Tallinn meanwhile watched for the arrival of four Russian warships en route here for what was announced as "a friendly visit."

Finnish Declaration Published.

GENEVA, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—The League of Nations with no explanation for the delay, published today Finland's declaration of neutrality, which was sent to the league on September 30 and relayed to member States on October 6.

The document, signed by Foreign Minister Rudolf Holsti, stated simply that Finland "will observe strict neutrality in the present war," and cited three declarations of neutrality made by the Finnish Government on September 1, 2, 3, and 15.

All referred back to the 1938 agreement among Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden whereby the northern countries set forth the rules of their neutrality.

Finns Prepare Defenses Against Red Domination

Helsinki, Finland, Oct. 11 (AP)—Liberty-loving Finns today proceeded calmly and methodically with preparations to defend their republic against any Soviet Russian move at domination which might come from impending Moscow negotiations.

Hoping for the best but fearing the worst, they started a mass exodus of civilians from Helsinki and Viipuri and increased military measures against the possibility of Finland taking her place along with Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania as virtual Soviet protectorates.

Talks To Start Today

A Finnish delegation arrived in Moscow today at Russia's "request" but Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko said the formal talks with Joseph Stalin's Government would not start until tomorrow afternoon.

Dispatches from Moscow had indicated the Russians had expected Juho Kusti Paasikivi, the Finnish delegate, to go to the Kremlin this afternoon or tonight.

Responsible Finnish sources emphasized that Finland would reject any Soviet demand for military and economic concessions similar to those gained in the three states across the Baltic and would resist if necessary.

Preparations Obvious

They backed up their determination by speeding up the task of getting the nation's affairs in order against any emergency. There has been no mobilization order as yet, but the preparations were obvious.

In the country, long lines of horses could be seen driven toward central points for the possible war-to-be. Carts piled high with hay also were moving towards these concentration centers.

Passing trains drew flat cars loaded with more hay wagons. Around the bases of the larger bridges long rows of barbed wire had been strung to catch any unwary marauder.

Ready To Resume Fight

The Finns, who have known centuries of struggle with Russia, of which their country once was a part, plainly were getting ready to resume the fight in defense of their independence if the necessity should arise.

In Helsinki itself, from which inhabitants were pouring into the countryside, there was little evidence of alarm except for the crowded railway and bus stations.

But on the city's postoffice, anti-aircraft guns pointed skyward. Defenses against aerial attack also were in readiness at other vantage points.

With all these preparations, there still was no authoritative word what Russia might ask, but Finns looked at Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania and felt that a hint to the wise is sufficient.

Trains Delayed Seven Hours

Long lines of women and children stood from dawn until late tonight awaiting transportation from Helsinki. The huge exodus caused a delay of as much as seven hours for trains on the main lines between Helsinki and Turku (Abo).

On the trip from Turku to Helsinki train after train with coaches packed could be seen traveling away from the capital.

Civil guards in khaki uniforms with rifles and fixed bayonets stood in front of every station along the line. Guards likewise were posted at every important bridge and tunnel.

Boys of 14 and 15 were recruited in a voluntary civic guard throughout Finland to augment the regular army reserves in carrying on large-scale emergency preparations.

The navy was said to have been getting in readiness for a possible crisis since spring. It consists of two 3,900-ton coast defense vessels, five submarines, six gunboats, twenty-one mine sweepers, six mine layers and nineteen patrol boats.

Uniformed women members of the Lotta Svard, an auxiliary corps, prepared to assist the army behind the lines if they should be needed.

Can Put 600,000 In Field

The regular army, whose strength was placed at about 300,000, already had advanced its preparations for active duty. Official estimates were lacking but observers said that with her reserves, Finland could put 600,000 men in the field.

Work has been in progress on border defenses since spring, and anti-aircraft units have been conducting exercises.

Russ Warships In Tallinn

The Danish radio reported in Copenhagen tonight that three Soviet Russian warships had arrived in Tallinn, Estonia, across the Baltic south of Helsinki, for what was described as a "friendly visit." A fourth Soviet ship was on the way there.

Meanwhile, Estonia's cabinet, headed by Premier Kaarel Eenpalu, resigned to permit reorganization of the Estonian Government on a broader basis.

It also was announced in Tallinn that a joint Estonian-Russian commission had reached an agreement permitting Soviet troops to enter Estonia October 18 to take stations at previously designated points where Russia was granted the right to establish air and naval bases.

Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko in a newspaper article suggested the possibility of a radical change in the development of the European war within the next few days. Erkko emphasized the solidarity of the Scandinavian nations, to which Finland is closely bound, and saw signs of unrest in Western nations aroused by the "menace" from the East.

With the exodus of civilians from Helsingfors and Viborg in full swing, approximately 129,000 persons reported themselves ready to depart from this city alone. Helsingfors has a population of 293,000, and Viborg 73,000.

The flight was in response to a radio appeal by Interior Minister Uhro Kekkonen, who told the nation: "At the moment there is no reason to believe Finland is in immediate danger, but we are duty-bound to contemplate what is happening in the world and we must be ready to meet any emergency."

Helsingfors railway and bus stations were crowded with civilians, mostly women and young children, and trains were delayed as long as seven hours. All schools were closed.

Many of those leaving Finland went to Sweden. The Finnish steamship Wellamo arrived in Stockholm today with 250 passengers in quarters which normally accommodate only 100.

Currency Conversion Prohibited In Latvia

Ban On Sale Or Purchase Of Gold, Platinum And Jewels Affects German Emigrants

Riga, Latvia, Oct. 11 (AP)—The sale or purchase of gold, platinum and jewels in Latvia, except by special permission, was prohibited today.

The order affected many German emigrants who were trying to convert Latvian currency into valuables easily transportable. Buying and selling of silver in amounts over a hundred grams also was forbidden.

In Estonia yesterday Germans preparing to return to the Reich were selling their property, changing money and buying merchandise believed unobtainable in their new homes in former Polish territory. The German legation gave instructions against this practice.

Lithuania Hails Return Of Vilna With a Holiday

Berlin Says Red Demonstrators in Kaunas Mar Celebration

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Oct. 11 (AP)—All public buildings were decorated with flags and bunting and schools were closed throughout the country today as Lithuanians celebrated the return of Vilna (Wilno), their historic capital.

The signing last night in Moscow of a Russian-Lithuanian pact climaxed a series of swift diplomatic moves which gave Russia military concessions in Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia. Lithuania was the only state to gain territory, being granted the City of Vilna and a part of the province containing it. The region had been in Polish hands from Oct. 9, 1920, until the Russians occupied it two weeks ago in the partition of Poland.

[Lithuanian independence from Russia was proclaimed at Vilna on Feb. 6, 1918, and the first Lithuanian government was constituted there on Nov. 11 of the same year. On Oct. 9, 1920, the Polish "rebel" Gen. Lucjan Zeligowski entered Vilna with an army and declared its annexation to Poland. The annexation subsequently was accepted by the powers, despite Lithuanian protests.]

Swedes Flee Helsinki, Return To Stockholm

Hope Situation In Finland Soon Will Permit Them To Go Back Next Week

Stockholm, Oct. 11 (AP)—Hundreds of Swedes and the families of several foreign diplomats came here today from Helsinki because of tension in the Finnish capital. They hoped, however, that the situation would permit their return next week.

Reports from Tallinn, meanwhile, said that areas largely populated by persons of Swedish blood would be the first districts of Estonia to be occupied by Soviet Russian troops under the Russian-Estonian agreement and that several Swedish schools, including the college town of Hapsal, had been requisitioned for barracks.

Finnish Foreign Minister To Broadcast to U. S.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 11 (A. P.)—The newspaper Berlingske Tidende reported today that the Finnish Foreign Minister, J. E. Erkko would make a radio broadcast to the United States tomorrow night from Stockholm.

Russians Slay Polish Priests

Soviet Paper Says They Joined Landowners and Took Up Arms Against Red Army.

MOSCOW, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—The Moscow newspaper Bezbozhnik—the Godless—organ of the anti-religious movement, indicated today that a large number of Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox priests had been liquidated when Soviet troops marched into White Russia and the western Ukraine in partitioned Poland.

The newspaper asserted that many priests barricaded themselves "with capitalists and Polish officers in Catholic churches and met the Red Army with machine-gun fire."

Bitter articles, assailing both Catholic and orthodox priests in the region, accused them of espionage and being in the pay of the Polish Government.

The paper praised a Red Army soldier who, it said, threw several hand grenades into a group of priests and Polish officers who refused to surrender, killing all of them.

The paper said that church and monastery lands had been divided and turned over to workers and peasants.

"When the priests saw the power of the Polish landowners coming to an end, they banded together with the landowners and gendarmes and took weapons into their hands," the paper declared.

"Everything that happened in Russia during the Revolution was repeated. They fought against the power of the toilers. The priests forgot their preachings of brotherly love and fought. Many Catholic priests with arms in hand tried to protect the capitalists' domination of the workers.

"Now, thanks to the help of the Soviet Union, priests are no longer landowners. Peasants and workers are sharing monastery and church lands. Everybody is entitled to believe or not in God—no compulsion exists."

The paper said that "priests gave anti-tank prayers, hoping to prevent Russian tanks from crossing the Dneister river, where the Poles blew up the bridge."

"But the tanks crossed despite the prayers and encircled obstacles which the priests had blessed and behind which the Poles had hidden," the paper continued. "When the tanks approached the priests fled into the forests."

—RED STAR RISING—

[By the Associated Press]

Soviet Russia, by her expansion in Poland and her diplomatic maneuvers along the Baltic and the Dardanelles, shows signs of resuming the forward march to territory and influence that was interrupted under the last Tsar.

For the first time since defeat by Japan in the war of 1904-05 reversed her 1,000-year record of growth, the Giant Bear is reaching out again.

Almost bloodlessly she has recovered much of the Polish territory that was lost in the World War, the Bolshevist revolution and the debacle of imperial Germany.

Out To Regain Dominance

Swiftly she has moved to regain the dominance of the north Baltic. Slowly she is working toward an understanding with Turkey on control of the Dardanelles.

From the ninth century until the early years of the twentieth century the history of Russia was mostly a story of growth, a steady reaching out in all directions.

Even during the Mongol invasions of the thirteenth century, the Russian princes managed by perseverance and shrewdness to solidify their position.

At Gates Of India

Down through the years—battles with the Ottoman Turks, the annexation of Ukrainia, wars against Sweden, the division of Poland, the reconquest of lands from Lithuania, strengthening of the empire under Peter the Great—the march gained impetus.

Ultimately Russia was knocking at the northern gates of India, reaching into Turkestan, and across the sea she held the new, undeveloped region of Alaska.

Sale of the latter to the United States in 1867 for $7,200,000 was a mere bagatelle to the all-powerful Tsars, although it embraced nearly 600,000 square miles, equal to one-fifth of the continental United States.

Great Russia stretched from the Baltic to the Pacific, a neighbor of Japan and a rival to Britain.

And here the star of Russian expansion began to wane. The disastrous clash with Japan cost her prestige and power. For the first time she lost territory, yielding the lower half of the island of Sakhalin off the Siberian coast to Japan, as she did strategic Port Arthur.

She withdrew from Manchuria, which had been almost a Russian dependency.

Revolt In 1904-05

At home, the workers and peasants rose in the abortive revolt of 1904-05. There was Russian blood on the snow before the Tsar's winter palace in St. Petersburg, and the homes of provincial aristocrats were burned.

The sporadic outbreaks were put down, and a weakened Russia went into the World War.

Out of it came the successful Bolshevist revolution of 1917, along with the partial loss of much Russian territory.

Finland Cut Away

Finland, a grand duchy of the Russian Empire, was declared independent in 1917; Estonia became a nation in 1918; Latvia was created; Lithuania became a republic; Poland got great reaches of White Russia and the Ukraine, and Bessarabia was joined to Rumania.

In all, Russia lost more than 15,000,000 population and more than 250,000 square miles of territory. The U.S.S.R. was left with 8,336,864 square miles. But, preoccupied with the Communist experiment, Russia apparently gave little heed to the losses.

The times have changed. Russia has rested, and many believe she has grown strong. With hardly more than a display of military might, she has regained much of what she lost to Poland.

Back Into The Baltic

While three great powers of Western Europe came to grips, Russia stepped back into her old Baltic lands. Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania have hastened to hand over what concessions were asked. And now Finland has plodded unhappily to the Kremlin Council chambers. A Turkish pact is under discussion.

In the east, virtual control of the People's Mongolian Republic has been acquired through a mutual-assistance pact. In Chinese Turkestan the story is said to be much the same.

Russia is reaching out again.

BERLIN DIRECTS PLANES TO PUSH ATTACKS AT SEA

Nazis Call Command Most Important Since Fall of Polish Capital.

DALADIER'S AIMS ANALYZED

Germans Profess to Discover No Clash With Terms Listed by Their Chancellor.

BERLIN, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—The German air force was ordered today to continue its attacks on British warships blockading the North Sea.

In official quarters the order was called one of the most important German announcements since the war on Poland ended with Warsaw's capitulation.

Aerial co-operation with seacraft in fighting the British North Sea fleet was launched on October 7 and officials said that the success of the first three days brought the new order to continue joint sea and air operations.

Conflicting Claims Made.

The fact that two German planes made forced landings in Denmark on Monday after having attacked British warships off the Norwegian coast apparently strengthened Nazi determination to carry through their bombing threat against the fleet. Germany reported six hits on British vessels during Monday's attack.

[The British Admiralty, however, declared that the German air raiders were driven off without having inflicted damage.]

Meanwhile authorized German sources said that official Germany sees no conflict between the war aims expressed yesterday by Premier Daladier of France—security, defense of his country, guaranties for European peace—provided those are France's real war aims—and the peace proposals contained in Reichsfuehrer Hitler's Reichstag speech.

The German Government apparently is willing to regard the French Premier's strictures on leading German personalities as intended for home consumption. Likewise his presentation of German aims are forgiven him, although sharply rejected from the German point of view, these sources said, provided his basic demands are for security and guaranties.

Britain Proves a Hitch.

German sources did not think that M. Daladier can [illegible] on the French Poilu to venture out from his Maginot Line and attack Germany, if the proclaimed French war aims are defense and security.

One trouble—in German eyes—about M. Daladier's speech, however, is France's alliance with Great Britain.

[British and French commentators say that one purpose of Hitler's speeches and other official German statements is to drive a wedge between the Anglo-French allies.]

Although Germany can decide for herself, neither France nor Great Britain can act without the other partner. Hence official Germany cannot take a final stand on the Daladier speech until Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain has been heard in the House of Commons tomorrow.

Authorized sources find M. Daladier much more vague than Herr Hitler, who addressed the Reichstag last Friday and spoke again in Berlin yesterday, but they believe considerations of domestic policy may have been responsible.

[Hitler said definitely that the Poland established by the Versailles Treaty would not be restored; Daladier did not specifically demand the restoration of Poland, but he countered Hitler's declaration that only Germany and Russia would decide Poland's future with the statement that the fate of Poland "interests also and first of all the Poles."]

If M. Daladier says he does not want six months hence to have new unrest, the authorized German sources insist, Germany replies that she, too, wants an end to interfering with Germany.

Says Aspersions Must End.

Official Germany, they continue, highly resents being doubted all the time. Hence she insists that aspersions on her intentions must cease as a part of the pacification process of Europe.

"All we did was liquidate Versailles," one informed source said. "We have again and again given binding declarations regarding our western boundaries. The world should at least recognize this. Daladier knows that that is true."

Summing up, one spokesman said that the Daladier speech marks progress. Germany, through her Fuehrer, has reiterated—from a feeling of strength rather than from weakness—the Reich's readiness for peace and again disavowed aggressive intentions. Hence Daladier's demand for security merely voices what Germany has been clamoring for for years.

The general impression of observers here was that [illegible] had been fully formulated.

Eyes On London.

A close watch was being kept on British political developments prior to the Chamberlain speech and in some quarters it was thought that the dominions were playing an important part in the formulation of policy. The German press emphasized the continued conferences with representatives of the dominions, expressing a belief that they were unenthusiastic about the war.

Delayed reaction to Hitler's proposals was apparently causing concern. One editor wrote that "four days ought to be enough" for some sign of "appreciation for Hitler's efforts to establish a lasting peace."

The German impatience, observers said, was attributable partly to false hopes aroused by rumors which flew through Germany yesterday that the western Powers were seeking an armistice. These hopes were dissipated by an official Nazi radio announcement calling the rumors products of the London "Ministry of Lies."

Poland and the West

This morning the Supreme High Command issued the following communique: "In the east German troops in central Poland are nearing the Russo-German border which runs along the Bug River. The west, after the night had passed quietly, there was minor artillery activity during the day."

The German news agency, DNB, announced that "since October 7 joint operations of heavy and light naval forces as well as air force units have been under way in the northern North Sea and along the Norwegian west coast."

It added that these air units "in the course of operations succeeded in locating the English naval forces and damaging them, as was previously reported. The agency said the operations were being continued.

Lloyd George Is in Favor.

Political leaders here looked with favor on the activities of David Lloyd George, Great Britain's world war Prime Minister, and head of the Council for Peace.

The Hamburger Fremdenblatt, a German shipping journal, said that Mr. Lloyd George had not changed his views concerning German national socialism, but that he favored peace because he believed British chances slim in an armed conflict, now that Russia was a partner of Germany. The newspaper added:

"Nobody is now able to say how the inner political struggle in England over the question of war or peace will end. Germany's economic agreements with Russia already bear fruit and the British blockade is bound to be futile. In addition to this tremendous power the Reich has its hands free in the west. What is at stake is Europe's civilization as a whole and the British Empire."

Meanwhile, as Germany was preparing today to receive thousands of Germans from Latvia and Estonia under Hitler's resettlement plan, Nazi reports said that "ninety-nine per cent" of the Germans living in Latvia had chosen to come under Reich direction and told of great excitement at Riga as they prepared to board a dozen Nazi steam[illegible] for transportation to German ports and then to the occupied sections of Poland.

Backfiring of Propaganda.

LONDON, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—The British Foreign Office dismissed as "fantastic" last night the German allegation that the British secret service had inspired the rumors which led to the short-lived "armistice" celebration in Berlin yesterday.

An ironical account of the celebration was given by the British Broadcasting Corporation. Newspapers carried the story under such captions as "Jitter Day in Berlin."

Some British observers said that the readiness with which the German people apparently seized upon the rumors indicated that they are already war-weary. Others explained the incident as the backfiring of Nazi propaganda efforts to create a "peace atmosphere" in the wake of Hitler's Reichstag speech last Friday.

NAZIS CLAIM FULL MASTERY IN NORTH SEA

Report Several British Warships Damaged In Battle With Planes

Admit Four Air Raiders Failed To Return Home After Clash Monday

By MELVILLE W. WHITELEATHER
Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Thursday, Oct. 10—Expert German naval observers asserted today that Germany controls the North Sea, both on the surface and in the air, and that the Reich's mastery over waters where British sea power previously had been unchallenged had been effectively demonstrated.

The comment of naval authorities was published by DNB, official German news agency, as squadrons of German warplanes stood ready to carry out new orders for continuation of extensive operations against blockading British warships.

Report British Ships Damaged

Naval authorities declared several British ships had been extensively damaged in a plane-warship battle in the North Sea Monday.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—The British Admiralty has consistently denied any damage had been suffered by the North Sea fleet in repeated air-naval encounters.]

At the same time, however, it was admitted that four of Field Marshal Hermann Goering's bombing planes which took part in the engagement off the Norwegian coast had failed to return to their home hangars. Two were reported to have made emergency landings in Denmark, while two were unaccounted for and possibly were lost.

Says Britain Is Vulnerable

In extended comment, DNB observed that "the time of unchallenged British mastery over the North Sea is past for all time," and added that it proved beyond question that all of the east and north coasts of the British Isles were easily within effective range of German bombers.

German authorities said the plane-cruiser battle resulted from a call for help sent out by German surface vessels.

According to the DNB account, the German Navy several days ago started intensive patrolling in the North sea to intercept contraband cargoes consigned to enemy countries.

Numerous ships were held up and naval vessels made their way far north into the North Sea without encountering enemy craft the account continued.

But on Monday morning, DNB said, scouting planes sent out from the ships in the latitude of the Shetland Islands spotted a strong flotilla of heavy British cruisers apparently heading for the German ships.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—A British communique Monday said a German naval squadron was sighted off the south coast of Norway Sunday but "darkness enabled it to get away to escape."]

Two Direct Hits Claimed

A radio call for help was sent and several squadrons of heavy bombers were started instantly from the German mainland, said DNB.

The bombers reportedly reached the British cruisers before they were in a position to attack the German fleet and in rainy, cloudy weather the planes circled and took turns at making power dives and dropping bombs, some weighing more than 1,000 pounds.

DNB reported that German observers counted six direct hits by the heaviest bombs and four by bombs of medium size.

Previously the Germans had said two hits were made on a warship and six on a cruiser. The British Admiralty, describing the action, said all bombs were wide of the mark.

Anti-Aircraft Fire Futile

Observers said there were "thunderous explosions," clouds of smoke rose from the ships and fire was plainly visible on others.

The ship's anti-aircraft guns fired ceaselessly, but completely without effect, the German account said.

All but four of the bombers returned after flights of from eight to ten hours, DNB continued. It said the four missing planes departed from the scene of battle, but apparently developed mechanical difficulties on the homestretch.

Claims North Sea Mastery

"Mastery of the North Sea and the air over it now lies in German hands," the agency's account concluded.

The order for the air force to throw its power against the British at sea was described by one official as "one of the most important announcements since the Polish war ended."

It was assumed that the success claimed by the Germans since their aerial war against the British fleet began October 7 occasioned the order to continue with the campaign.

The order was issued as disappointment over the failure of the Allies or neutral powers to take up the peace overtures of Adolf Hitler became evident in Germany.

For some time the Nazis have said that Field Marshal Goering's bombers would be let loose against the British warships "in a businesslike way" if the Allied powers decided to continue the war.

"Since October 7 joint operations of heavy and light naval forces as well as air-force units have been under way in the northern North Sea and along the Norwegian coast," an official announcement said.

"Air-force units in the course of these operations succeeding in locating the British naval forces and damaged them as previously reported."

The view was expressed in official quarters, meanwhile, that Premier Edouard Daladier's broadcast speech yesterday "through its lack of positive material changed nothing and neither bettered the situation nor worsened it."

Hull Speech Tops Daladier's

Nazi newspapers today gave more space to the speech of Cordell Hull, American Secretary of State, in New York last night than to Daladier's.

The press devoted a half column to the United States Cabinet official's address before the National Foreign Trade convention in which he said, "The sanest and safest course for America is true neutrality." This statement was underscored here.

At the same time Deutsche Algemeine Zeitung devoted more than a column to what it called a United States effort to replace Britain and Germany in South American markets.

Confident Over Latin America

Germany, the newspaper said, can look on this with "a certain amount of calmness" because the United States "will never be able to replace Germany in Central and South America."

Experience in financing such trade is lacking in the United States, it said, adding that "the United States is not equipped for really intensive trade with South America."

"In few countries," said the semi-official commentary service Dienst aus Deutschland, "has Hull's speech on economic neutrality and the constructive work which will be necessary after the war found such interest as in Germany.

Reaction To Hull's Speech

"And this despite the fact that Secretary Hull was one of the sharpest critics of German foreign trade and foreign exchange practice and is the spiritual father behind the surcharge duties placed on German goods last April.

OCT 12 1939

"German gets in the speech clear recognition of the benefits his country will reap if the United States refuses to participate in the war and maintains an impartial attitude toward each warring group."

Speeches Overshadow Fighting

The war on the Western front was all but forgotten in the comment on the Hull and Daladier speeches. The only mention of activity at the front was a brief communique which said minor artillery activity followed a quiet night.

Official quarters thought they read a "certain amount of restraint" between the lines of Daladier's speech. They awaited the declaration Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is scheduled to make to the House of Commons tomorrow in his weekly report on the war.

These quarters said they expected Chamberlain to give a definite clue to the Allied attitude toward Hitler's suggestion that the war end now.

Some of the French Premier's assertions were rejected sharply, however, such as his statement that France needed security which would not be disturbed every six months.

Reich's Need Of Security

Germany, it was maintained, had not threatened France and intended never to do so. It was pointed out that Germany also needed security—from western powers meddling in its vital needs.

"It is a great misunderstanding always to treat the need for security as a monopoly of the two western powers," said the Hamburger Fremdenblatt.

Looking toward Soviet Russia's increasing hold on the Baltic states, informed quarters said the new Lithuanian-Soviet treaty providing for the return of Wilno (Vilna) to Lithuania was "welcomed by Germany as rectifying a Polish act of force against Lithuania of the same type that Poland committed against the German peoples."

Wilno, Lithuania's former capital, was seized by the Poles in 1920 and in turn was taken by Russia in the German-Soviet partition of Poland.

Reich's Rumanian Oil Flow Slackened By Two Factors

Production Continues Normal; But Germany's Twin Problem Is Payment And Transportation

OCT 12 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Ploesti, Rumania, Oct. 11—Germany is still able to obtain vitally needed Rumanian oil, but production, sales and shipment statistics compiled here, in the center of the Rumanian oil fields, indicate the amounts supplied her have been reduced.

Production has continued normal in this area with no incidents to halt the normal flow of about 500,000 tons monthly.

But oil company officials emphasized that Germany's problem of obtaining oil and gas here for her planes and mechanized army units was not a question of Rumanian production, but rather one of payment and transportation.

Demanding And Getting Cash

Rumanian oil companies are demanding cash and Germany is still paying cash, according to a survey of interested foreign sources, although some barter deals have been made.

With the normal Black Sea-Hamburg route closed to German trade by the British Navy, Germany now is depending on Danube and rail transportation, which is inadequate under expanded war requirements.

Shipments of oil by way of the Danube river have amounted to 90,000 tons since the outbreak of the war, with half of that quantity destined for Yugoslavia and Hungary.

Reich Transshipping Barges

Germany was reported here to be transshipping barges from the Rhine to the Danube in an effort to increase shipments.

Efforts to speed up transportation are prompted by the fact that the Danube normally freezes in late November, halting navigation.

Oil shipments by rail through Hungary are continuing, and oil shipments to Italy have been resumed, but were reported less than normal due to clearing arrangements.

Italy herself was said to be short of oil, and it was considered doubtful by some oil men here whether any extensive shipments have been made to Germany by way of Italy.

Germans Make Deal To Get Bulgarian Food

Will Use Gold And Rumanian Oil In Plan To Obtain $19,200,000 Worth Of Produce

OCT 12 1939

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 11 (AP)—Germany has agreed to buy $19,200,000 worth of Bulgarian foodstuffs, paying for $12,000,000 worth of it by shipping Rumanian oil to Bulgaria and the rest in gold, it was learned from reliable sources tonight.

A government communique said only that three weeks of negotiations with Germany on trade relations had "ended satisfactorily."

The reported plan of Germany to ship to Bulgaria oil which she was believed to be vitally in need of herself was a puzzle to observers here who were unable to get an explanation immediately.

BRITISH OPINION FAVORS PUSHING WAR TO A FINISH

Worse Job in Six Months if Hitler Scores Now, Is Typical View.

ANTI-DEFEATIST DRIVE OPENS

Scotland Yard on Trail of Peace Pamphleteers—Lloyd George's Campaign Rebuffed

OCT 12 1939

LONDON, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—Great Britain tried to track down the sources of "defeatist propaganda" on the home front today amid indications of mounting sentiment against any talk of "appeasement."

While the press comment indicated a growing desire to "get on with the war," Scotland Yard submitted to the Home Office a report on the "Make-Peace-with-Hitler" pamphlets attributed to pacifist, Fascist and communist elements. Home Office legal experts, who have received complaints that such literature has been distributed from door to door and through the mails, studied means of combating this form of propaganda.

Public opinion in general was represented as insistent on flat rejection of proposals from Adolf Hitler for what the British regarded as peace at his own price—the partitionment of Poland.

Typical of the reaction of the London man in the street was the assertion that "if we don't do the job now we'll have a worse time six months from now."

The press gave almost unanimous approval to last night's radio address of the French Premier, M. Daladier, in which he declared that France would fight on until "guaranties of security" for "lasting peace" in Europe were assured.

Prime Minister Chamberlain's scheduled speech in Parliament tomorrow replying to Hitler's end-the-war gestures was expected to follow the general lines of Mr. Daladier's declaration.

In diplomatic circles significance was attached to the fact that Mr. Chamberlain had scheduled a meeting with August Zaleski, Poland's new Foreign Minister, on the eve of his appearance in the House of Commons. Lord Halifax, the British Foreign Secretary, will join in the conference.

The London Times, commenting on Mr. Zaleski's visit to London, said: "Whatever else may be said or not be said about the conditions for peace which would be acceptable to Great Britain and France, restoration of an independent Poland is, of course, an indispensable postulate."

Lloyd George's Campaign.

In Government quarters no concern was shown over reports that the world war Prime Minister, David Lloyd George, was preparing to test out peace sentiment through his Council for Peace and Reconstruction. Cabinet members were said to be ready to deliver "pep talks" in all important centers in the event any strongly organized campaign to embarrass the Government's war efforts should develop.

The Laborite London Daily Herald's political correspondent declared that Mr. Lloyd George's "stock has gone down with a hearty bump" as a result of his recent speeches and articles, which many interpreted as smacking of appeasement.

A British mission is now en route to Canada to confer with the Canadian Government and missions from New Zealand and Australia on details of the program. Under the plan most of the advanced air training will be centered in Canada, with all the Dominions contributing to plane production.

Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood's announcement yesterday of an empirewide air force building program centering in Canada brought favorable comment from the British press. The Daily Mail described the plan as a "truly grand conception," while the Times called it "imperial co-operation on the highest and largest scale."

The Government announced last night that 25,000 tons of contraband goods bound for Germany, including 13,800 tons of petroleum products, had been seized during the week ending last Saturday. This brought total war seizures to 315,000 tons.

ANGLO-SOVIET TRADE TREATY IS ANNOUNCED

Barter Arrangement Will Have 'Political Impact,' Britain Is Told.

158,000 TROOPS IN FRANCE

Size of Expeditionary Force at the End of Fifth Week Is Revealed to Parliament.

OCT 12 1939

LONDON, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—The British Ministry of Supply and a Soviet trade delegation concluded an agreement in London today for the exchange of Russian timber for British rubber and tin.

The barter agreement was called a commercial arrangement, but the authoritative Press Association declared it was expected to "have important political as well as trade impacts."

The amounts of timber, rubber and tin involved were not disclosed. It was said, however, that they would be about the same as are involved in normal peacetime trade between the two nations. The agreement was reached in an effort to facilitate the exchange of products before the White Sea ports, Russia's arctic outlets, freeze over, preventing export of timber.

158,000 Troops in France.

Just prior to this announcement, Leslie Hore-Belisha, Secretary of State for War, told the House of Commons today that Great Britain had sent an expeditionary force of 158,000 men to France during the first five weeks of the war.

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, declared that the balance now was in Great Britain's favor in the war on merchant shipping.

At the same time today the War Office announced that during the next week or two a large number of men who had received their calling-up notices would be "joining the colors" for military service; King George granted an audience at Buckingham Palace to Gen. Kiazin Orbay, head of the Turkish Military Mission to London, and Parliament still awaited the Government's reply to the peace proposals made by Adolf Hitler last Friday. Prime Minister Chamberlain was expected to state Great Britain's position tomorrow in his weekly war report to the Commons.

OCT 12 1939

On Nazi Contraband List.

In connection with the Anglo-Russian trade agreement, it was recalled here that timber is on the German list of contraband. Nazi warships are trying to prevent its reachong Britain where it might be used as cellulose for munitions manufacture.

When it was first learned two weeks ago that the Soviet Ambassador, Ivan Maisky, had indicated willingness to discuss trade questions with Great Britain, considerable importance was attached to his step, since the German Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, was in Moscow then for negotiations which led to the Russo-German trade pact.

It was also recalled that shipping officials of Norway and Denmark reported last week that they had received inquiries from Russia whether vessels would be available for shipping Soviet timber to England. The Norwegians expressed willingness to engage in the trade, but Danish shippers, whose sea outlets are close to German waters, turned a cold shoulder to the inquiries.

Numerous Scandinavian vessels carrying wood cargoes from Sweden to England have been intercepted by German sea patrols since the war started.

Better Than 1914 Record.

Mr. Hore-Belisha reported that in addition to the 158,000 men, 25,000 army vehicles had been transported to France, including many tanks, "some of them of enormous dimensions" and weighing fifteen tons or more.

He said that the British troops in France "at this minute are busily engaged in fortifying their positions in the line."

"We have created our base and lines of communication organization so as to assure a regular flow of supplies and ammunition of every kind, and to receive further contingents as, if and when we may decide to send them," Mr. Hore-Belisha said.

The transport of the expeditionary force compared favorably with Great Britain's 1914 war effort, he asserted, explaining that in the first six weeks of the world war only 148,000 British troops were sent to France.

Without [illegible]

OCT 12 1939

In addition to sending troops to France, the War Minister said, British garrisons in the Middle East have "been strongly re-enforced" as well as garrisons elsewhere "both in material and men."

"I am able to inform the House that we have fulfilled and more than fulfilled our undertaking recently given to France to dispatch to that country in the event of war a British expeditionary force of specified dimension within a specified time," he said. "Nor are the contingents at present across the channel the last that will arrive," he added. "The expeditionary force has been transported to France without a casualty to any of its personnel."

The War Secretary said that convoys to France averaged three a night.

Onward By Night

OCT 12 1939

"The press willingly observed a reticence which in itself was a safeguard to our contingents," he said. "There is no need for further silence, and a body of war correspondents has just arrived in France with the object of keeping us all informed of the day-to-day impressions and happenings."

Comparing Great Britain's task today with that of 1914, Mr. Hore-Belisha said that in those days there were only 800 mechanized vehicles in all, as against the 25,000 recently transported.

He said that a small group of specially selected officers, with seven confidential typists and clerks had secretly worked out every detail of the plan for moving the army and air force to France.

As a precaution against air attack, more devious internal routes to the embarkation points were taken than in 1914, he asserted. Vehicles and men were dispersed in small groups, halted in concealed areas by day and moved onward by night. Many remote landing places were selected in France, he said.

The mechanized army had fifty different types of vehicles at its disposal, he continued, most of them requiring different grades of fuel and lubricants.

While Poland Suffered.

"Only 20 per cent of the fighting troops were infantrymen," Mr. Hore-Belisha said, "compared with 60 per cent in 1914. Each battalion had fifty machine guns and sixteen anti-tank rifles.

"It will be seen by this one example how much more effectively armed with fire power is the present expeditionary force," he continued.

"There is, however, one respect," he added, "in which our army has not altered—its relations with our allies who have welcomed the men so generously are as good-humored.

"While the world was reading of the German advances into Poland, British soldiers, resolved to rectify this wrong, were passing silently and in an increasing sequence across the channel into France."

In April, he said, the original plan for sending nineteen divisions to France in time of war had become a plan for an expeditionary force of thirty-two divisions.

"This will not be the limit of our effort," he declared.

In addition to 500,000 men being trained or already on call in Great Britain's conscription plan, he said, some 50,000 volunteers had entered the army since the war started.

Mr. Churchill's Statement.

The report of the First Lord of the Admiralty followed that of the Secretary of State for War.

"From September 24 to October 9 we have lost by U-boat action 5,809 tons and we have taken from the enemy 13,615 tons, leaving a balance in our favor of 7,806 tons," Mr. Churchill said.

There have been no British shipping losses since October 9, he continued, so the figures actually cover sixteen days. During this period 50,000 tons of new merchant ships prepared before the war for such an emergency have entered trade, so "we are 58,000 tons better off," he declared.

Tin Export Quotas Are Boosted Again

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—The International Tin Control Committee announced today new increases in export quotas of the metal to meet wartime demand.

Quota for the third quarter was fixed at 120 per cent. of standard tonnages with retroactive effect. For the fourth quarter the export level now is fixed at 70 per cent. of standard tonnages.

This is the third boost in permissible output quotas since the start of the war. The previous jump, announced September 18, placed the third quarter allowable at 100 per cent. Earlier in that month it had been lifted to 80 per cent. from 60 per cent. of standard tonnages.

British to Buy Soviet Timber, Sell Rubber

By HUGH WAGNON.

London, Oct. 11 (AP).—Britain agreed today to trade rubber and tin to Soviet Russia for timber, and disclosed in the House of Commons that 158,000 British soldiers and 25,000 vehicles of war already were in France to fight Russia's friend, Germany.

The House still awaited the Government's reply to the peace proposal made by Adolf Hitler last Friday. Prime Minister Chamberlain, who postponed his sixth war report until tomorrow, was expected to state the British position then.

Firm "No" Predicted.

The British press predicted that Chamberlain would deliver a firm "no" to Hitler's offer to end the war now. Authoritative sources said "no peace proposals are likely to be found acceptable which do not effectively free Europe from the menace of aggression."

The barter agreement, announced by the Ministry of Supply, is expected to have "important political as well as trade impacts," said the authoritative Press Association. The amounts, not disclosed, were said to be about the same as in normal peacetime transactions.

Timber on Nazi Contraband List.

Timber, which as cellulose might be used in making munitions, is on the German list of contraband articles which the Nazis have been seeking to bar from England.

In the House of Commons, War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha drew repeated cheers as he disclosed Britain's vast movement of men and machines across the English Channel in the first five weeks of hostilities, at the rate of three troopships a night, "without a single casualty."

All troops have been placed "under French command," he said, their number exceeding pledges to France.

"The major operation is over," added Hore-Belisha in his full war report. "There is no need for further silence."

British Tanks in France.

Many of the war vehicles were tanks, he reported, "some of them of enormous dimensions," weighing 15 tons or more.

"We have created our base and lines of communication organization so as to assure a regular flow of supplies and ammunition of every kind and to receive further contingents as, if and when we may decide to send them," he said.

Chamberlain conferred today with August Zaleski, Foreign Minister of the Polish Government in exile in Paris, and informed him that Sir Howard Kennard, British Ambassador to Warsaw, would resume his duties shortly as envoy to the regime in Paris.

IN RESPONSE, R.A.BUTLER, UNDERSECRETARY FOR FOREIGN AFFAIRS, SAID THAT AFTER CAREFUL CONSIDERATION LORD HALIFAX, THE FOREIGN SECRETARY, HAD DECIDED AGAINST IMMEDIATE PUBLICATION OF DOCUMENTS CONCERNING RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA.

"IMMEDIATE TRADE QUESTIONS ARISING OUT OF WAR CONDITIONS ARE BEING ACTIVELY PURSUED WITH RUSSIA AT THIS VERY MOMENT," HE ADDED.

SHORTLY AFTERWARD THE SUPPLY MINISTRY ANNOUNCED THE RUBBER, TIN AND TIMBER BARTER AGREEMENT WITH THE SOVIETS.

COMPARING THE PRESENT MOVEMENT WITH THAT OF 1914, HORE-BELISHA SAID THERE THEN WERE ONLY 800 MERCHANIZED VEHICLES, AND THAT IN SIX WEEKS 148,000 MEN WERE SENT TO FRANCE, AS AGAINST THE 25,000 VEHICLES AND 158,000 MEN SENT IN THE PAST FIVE WEEKS.

Paris, Oct. 11—Pressure of the German Army and air force was reported increasing tonight along the whole line between the Rhine and Moselle rivers, the northwestern section of the Western front.

The high command's evening communique said "the activity of the enemy patrols continues and is increasing between the Moselle and Saar" rivers and added that artillery was active on both sides in the same region.

OCT 12 1939

Keeping Other Sectors Active

French dispatches said strong German patrols were concentrating their thrusts against French advanced positions south of Saarbrücken and Pirmasens while smaller patrols were keeping all other sectors of the Rhine-Moselle front active.

It is in the Saarbrücken and Pirmasens areas that the French have driven closest to the advance positions of the Siegfried Line.

French reports said the larger Nazi patrol attacks were broken by machine-gun fire which swept the entire line of zigzag barbed wire defenses in front of the French positions.

Photographing French Positions

Despite heavy fogs hanging over the valleys which cut the no-man's land between the Maginot and Siegfried Lines, activity of German scouting planes was reported to be increasing.

German planes were said to be staying mostly over their own lines, taking oblique-angle photographs of French positions a few hundred yards away.

The Germans appeared to be particularly interested in the way the French have consolidated their positions, how extensive trenches have been dug and how much wire has been strung during the last week.

Grenade-Throwers In Lead

French advices said that the German infantry first would send out an advance party of ten or twelve men, armed with hand grenades, who stole forward until French machine-gun fire showed that they had been observed.

While these took cover and engaged attention of the French, main Nazi raiding parties of 100 to 150 men would be brought up.

German machine guns in the rear then started firing and with automatic rifles in the advance skirmish line chattered away at the French post picked for the raid.

French said that the German grenade throwers were unable to advance beyond the barbed wire and that consequently in three days of such raids no French prisoners had been captured.

Heaviest At Dawn And Dusk

French sources said today's heaviest German thrusts came just before dawn and shortly after dusk when cold mists rise from rivers and streams, thus thickening the fogs which have been cloaking the forest-covered slopes since the beginning of early winter almost two weeks ago.

The French announced officially that up to yesterday the French blockading fleet had intercepted 150,000 tons of contraband consigned to Germany.

Among the contraband, they said, were 40,000 tons of minerals, including rare metals such as tungsten, antimony, nickel and mercury, which are essential to munitions making.

In addition, 40000 tons of food, 30,000 tons of gasoline and oil were seized and taken to French ports.

Partial Activity Increases

PARIS, Oct. 11 (AP).—French dispatches tonight said strong German patrols were concentrating their thrusts against advanced French positions south of Saarbruecken and Pirmasens, while smaller patrols were keeping all other sectors of the Rhine-Moselle front active.

The French night communique said: "The activity of the enemy patrols continues and is increasing between the Moselle and the Saar Rivers. Artillery fire on both sides in the same region."

The morning communique said: "Strong enemy patrols were repulsed anew during the night south of Saarbruecken and in the region south of Pirmasens."

Broadcaster in French Is 'Traitor of Stuttgart'

OCT 12 1939

Paris Explains Allusion by Daladier in Speech

PARIS, Oct. 11 (AP).—Informed French sources offered today an explanation of Premier Edouard Daladier's allusion to "the traitors of Stuttgart" during his radio broadcast to the nation last night.

Daladier, these sources said, referred to the speaker who has been broadcasting German propaganda in the French language from a radio station at Stuttgart.

[Premier Daladier referred to the "traitors of Stuttgart" when he attacked German radio propaganda to the effect that Britain intended to have French troops fight its war. The French Premier said that the "voice of the traitors of Stuttgart was covered by the uninterrupted rumbling of convoys which were taking soldiers and cannon of the British Army toward our frontiers."]

German Patrols More Active

OCT 12 1939

French Report Increased Movement Along Front Between Moselle and Saar.

PARIS, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—The French High Command reported tonight increased activity on the part of German patrols on the western front.

Tonight's communique read:

"The activity of the enemy patrols continues and is increasing between the Moselle and the Saar.

"Artillery fire on both sides in the same region."

Earlier the French announced that bad weather had hampered operations on the western front but that fresh attacks by "strong enemy patrols" had been repulsed during the night south of Saarbruecken in the region south of Pirmasens.

The attacks were apparently a continuation of the drive launched by the Germans on Sunday along a thirty-five mile front east of the Moselle River.

Reference to fighting in the region of Pirmasens, which is fifty-five miles east of the Moselle, was taken as an indication of the increasing scope of the German assaults.

'Suicide Squads.'

The German attacks, French dispatches said, were led by "suicide squads" of hand grenade throwers, supported by companies employing automatic arms. The extent of the fighting was such, the French declared, as to give the impression of a co-ordinated "feeler" attack along the entire line between the Luxemburg border and the German industrial city of Saarbreucken.

French military men attached significance to the fact that the activity followed closely Premier Daladier's radio speech refusing Adolf Hitler's peace formula based on the partitionment of Poland by Germany and Russia.

Some observers expressed a belief that German attacks were the prelude to a large scale offensive which might be expected before the end of the week.

This belief, they said, was supported by Hitler's speech of yesterday, in which the Fuehrer declared that Germany was "prepared to take up the battle and fight it through" if his peace overtures were rejected.

Savage Fighting.

French military headquarters last night described the fighting during the preceding twenty-four hours as "savage," and the Germans were said to have paid heavily. Although caught in a heavy cross-fire from machine guns, some of the Germans advanced close enough to hurl grenades into the French lines, it was said.

Meanwhile French troops which had previously occupied the Borg Forest, at the extreme northern end of the front, were reported keeping a wary eye on the Luxemburg border. The French were apparently not willing to disregard the possibility of a German attack through the neutral principality of Luxemburg, whose military strength is limited to an army of about ten officers and 400 men.

French newspaper comment asserted that "if Hitler remains faithful to his psychology, he will prefer a dynamic solution" to what was described as "a strange war."

"Hitler is not a man of immobility," one commentator declared.

OCT 12 1939

Premier's Address

The assertion of the French Premier, M. Daladier, in his radio address to the nation yesterday, that the mastery of the seas rests with the allies and that "those who hold the seas always succeed in carrying off the victory," was regarded by French observers as an indication of the Franco-British strategy. This, it was said, involved a waiting game. The French declared they had good reasons for adhering to this policy, while Germany needed quick victories "after the totalitarian manner."

In the absence of such victories, commentators said, there was nothing ahead for Germany save the prospect of dwindling civilian rations, blockaded war materials and the uncertainty of "voracious Russia."

Hunting Five Leftist Deputies

Meanwhile the French Government continued action against deputies of the former Communist party, who have urged peace talks with Germany. Of 49 of these deputies not mobilized with the French armed forces, 39 already were in jail.

Police still sought Maurice Theorez, Jacques Duclos, Andre Marty, Florimond Bonte and Arthur Ramette.

FEELER ATTACKS

OCT 12 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Paris, Oct. 11—German feeler attacks along the Western front led, the French said, by "suicide squads" of hand-grenade throwers supported by automatic arms companies, were reported today to have been repulsed after sharp fighting.

The attacks continued through the night with the sharpest skirmishing south of Saarbrücken and Pirmasens, apparently a continuation of thrusts which the Germans launched Sunday on a thirty-five-mile front east of the Moselle river.

Wider Battlefield

Military men said reference to fighting in the region of Pirmasens, which is thirty-five miles east of the Moselle, indicated the increasing scope of the German assaults.

Reports from the front, the French said, gave the impression of a co-ordinated feeler attack along the entire line between the Luxembourg border and the German industrial city of Saarbrücken.

The German thrusts appeared to be directed at French advance positions, although bad weather somewhat hampered operations.

Roosevelt Told Nazi Ships May Carry U-Boats

OCT 12 1939

Importer in Brazil Says German Captain Talked of 'Pocket Submarines'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—President Roosevelt received today an unofficial report that Germany has commercial ocean vessels capable of "planting" 100-ton "pocket submarines" across the Atlantic.

After calling on Mr. Roosevelt John Tazewell Jones, for twenty-two years an American importer in Brazil, told newspaper men he had related to the President the following incident:

Shortly before the outbreak of the war, Jones said, he had talked with a German ship captain who unloaded three sixty-eight-ton locomotives at Bahia. The locomotives were far too heavy for the cranes of the Brazilian port to handle.

Jones expressed amazement at the power of the ship's cranes. He was told, he continued, that the vessel could carry and lower overboard "pocket submarines" carrying twelve men each and with torpedo equipment capable of sinking large ships.

The German captain also told him, he said, that the ship could pick up the submarines afterward, before they ran short of fuel.

"If the report is false," Jones said, "the incorrectness is that of the ship captain. Italked with him in Portuguese, and he evidently thought I was a Brazilian. If it is true, perhaps that explains one reason why so many foreign submarines have been sighted in waters on this side of the Atlantic lately."

Jones, a former Harvard classmate of the President's, said most of his talk with Mr. Roosevelt had been about trade opportunities in Brazil due to the European war.

Britain to Return Pilot Who Fled From Iceland

OCT 12 1939

He'll Go Back for Detention, but London Keeps Plane

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 11 (AP).—The government announced today that Great Britain had apologized for the action of a British aviator who escaped from Iceland, where he was detained after having been forced down. The British said that the aviator was being returned to Iceland for detention until the war ended, but that the British were keeping his plane.

[The plane, bearing nine men, was forced down in northern Iceland on Sept. 27 and, with its occupants, was ordered interned. The following day the plane with its crew escaped and arrived in England. The foregoing dispatch from Copenhagen made no mention of the other eight men.]

Pilot Recalls No Promise

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP).—The British Air Ministry announced tonight that a Royal Air Force pilot accused of breaking his parole to Iceland authorities after a forced landing there September 26 would return "as soon as possible." The announcement said that the pilot on leaving Raufarhoefn was under the impression that he had not promised to stay, as the Icelandic authorities said he had.

Admiralty Silent On U-boats Off U. S.

OCT 12 1939

LONDON, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—Members of Parliament, seeking an Admiralty statement on whether German submarines were operating near American shores, failed to get an answer today.

Geoffrey Shakespeare, Parliamentary Under-Secretary to the Admiralty, said he would have to have advance notice before answering such a question.

To another query on "what action was being taken to prevent the use of ex-rum runners off the American coast, in supplying submarines with oil and water," Mr. Shakespeare said merely that he was certain that "the governments concerned are fully aware of the duties incumbent upon neutrals in regard to the fueling and provisioning of belligerent ships."

He described as without foundation reports that "mother ships were being used by the Dominican Government to refuel German submarines operating in the Caribbean Sea."

U.S. Move To Preserve Baltic Peace Reported In Prospect

Scandinavia Also Understood Considering Diplomatic Steps At Moscow In Finland's Behalf

OCT 12 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Oct. 11—Officials, carefully studying dispatches from Moscow tonight recounting negotiations between Russia and Finland, were prepared to throw the diplomatic weight of the United States, if necessary, into an effort to preserve peace in the Baltic.

It was reliably understood here that Norway, Sweden and Denmark were prepared to make similar moves.

First word as to the Russian demands on Finland was awaited. Officials did not seem to know as yet what demands Russia was making.

The Swedish, Norwegian and Finnish ministers said tonight that they had not received word from their capitals as to the possible action their governments were taking.

An official discounted reports that Sweden, Norway and Finland had asked the United States to join in simultaneous diplomatic steps at Moscow. He pointed out that Finland was already discussing the matter with Russia.

Officials seemed to want to wait until further word had come from Moscow before recommending diplomatic action by the United States. It was pointed out that it was difficult for this Government to interfere at this time while negotiations were in progress. But on the other hand, it was thought that breakdown of negotiations might lead immediately to conflict, so that if diplomatic action by outside nations were to be taken to avert war in the Baltic it would have to be done now.

The United States' attitude toward aggression already has been clearly stated, an official said, the most recent being the statement by Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, when refusing to recognize the conquest of Poland, whom he termed a victim of force used as an instrument of national policy. He had in mind both Germany and Russia. The State Department was prepared tonight to use the same expression toward the Kremlin in Moscow, if it became necessary, in regard to Finland.

Every effort was made in the Capital tonight to keep deliberations on Finland a secret. It was thought that more effective diplomatic pressure might be brought to bear upon Russia if the fact were kept secret than if it were made public. If the matter became public, then the question of prestige would enter into the picture and settlement become more difficult.

Says Mussolini Backed Out.

"The Berlin-Rome axis was to have annihilated us, but when Signor Mussolini realized what he was letting Italy in for at the hands of the French and British (air) aces and the Mediterranean fleet, he backed out. The anti-Comintern pact was to have rallied all capitalist Europe against the U. S. S. R., with the Fuehrer and Il Duce as saviours of the world from Communism; but what actually happened was that when all capitalist Europe, with Japan in the bargain, realized that the Red Army held the military balance they all sought an alliance with Russia.

"Stalin just pushed them out of the way and took what he wanted of Poland. . . . Herr Hitler seeing that the anti-Comintern pact had gone 'phut' quickly decided to claim Stalin as an ally and share the spoils with him.

Shaw Asks if Britain Plans To Order Bombing of Berlin

Says Chamberlain Should Join in Peace Conference if He Is Not Ready to Send Planes to Attack Nazi Capital.

OCT 16 1939

LONDON, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—George Bernard Shaw says it's up to Prime Minister Chamberlain to declare whether he is willing to pursue war by bombing Berlin, and if not, the sooner a peace conference is held the better.

"Our pledge . . . to Poland was explicit," Mr. Shaw wrote in a letter to the Manchester Guardian. "We were to come to her aid with all our resources, which meant that when the first German soldier crossed the Polish frontier, the R. A. F. would bomb Berlin, for in no other way could we help Poland, being unable to put a British soldier into Poland or a British ship into the Baltic before Poland was conquered.

"On the strength of that pledge Poland put up a desperate resistance . . . Now bombing Berlin meant the beginning of a series of retaliations in which our cities and German cities would be changed into rubbish heaps. And when it came to this point Mr. Chamberlain found simply that he could not bring himself to do it. Now this was only one instance of what was happening all around.

Asserts Hitler Recoiled Too.

"When we and the French attacked Hitler on his western front . . . and it was his business to raid London with his famous air force, he too recoiled from starting that ruinous game. . . .

"What Minister Chamberlain has to declare now is whether he is going to bomb Berlin or not. If he does the consequences will go far beyond our maddest intentions and be different from anything either we or Herr Hitler contemplate. If not, the sooner we stop the war and arrange for tabling of our respective grievances and those of the little States we have destroyed, the better. . . ."

French Labor Chief Urges Neutrals to Aid Allies

Says They Can Help Cause, Yet Remain Out Of War

OCT 13 1939

Jouhaux declared that neutral states could follow policies which "would help triumph the common ideal for which the allies are fighting" without being dragged into the war.

Like other speakers, including The Netherlands' delegate, E. Kupers, Jouhaux asked the labor office to concentrate now on a study of the economic and social problems bound to arise after the war.

The United States government delegate, Carter Goodrich, presided at the meeting.

The vessel, carrying passengers and a general cargo, was en route from Hamburg, Germany, to India when she was sighted by the British craft, the crew said.

Authorities inspected the ship and ordered it to depart within three days because it lacked papers for Argentine ports. The Ussukuma, built in 1920, is the property of the German East Africa Line.

Poland Not Dead, Says Hoover In Pulaski Memorial Address

No Peace Can Last So Long As "Oppression Of Great Race Continues," Ex-President Declares

OCT 1 3 1939

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Oct. 11—Herbert Hoover declared tonight that "no matter what may be signed on papers called peace, there can be no permanent stability and no permanent peace to either Germany or Russia so long as oppression of a great and independent race (the Poles) continues."

In a speech prepared for Pulaski Military Memorial Exercises for the Benefit of Polish War Victims' Relief, the former President said Poland "will rise again."

"The spirit of a great race," he added, "does not die from oppression.

Soul In A Great People

"Poland is not dead. . . . There is more to nations than their soil, their cities, their wealth, and even their Governments. There is a soul in a great people. That soul is forged in the instincts of their race, their traditions, their heroic struggles, their heroic men, and their genius in art, music and literature.

". . . The Polish people more than a thousand years ago settled on the plains between the two great military races of Germany and Russia. They have been overrun time and again. They have been partitioned time and again. But just as often they have fought for their freedom.

"And the indomitable spirit of the race has time and again led them out of oppression into independence."

Bolsheviks Driven Back

He said that at the time of the armistice, Poland was "in a state of total anarchy," with famine and typhus raging and a part of the nation "in the terrible grip of new Bolshevik invasion."

"Yet," he went on," out of the genius of their own race they (the Poles) quickly erected the whole mechanism of Government. . . . The Bolsheviks were driven back to their own lines. . . . A Parliament was set up. . . . A free-school system was created. . . . The typhus epidemic was stamped out. Food supplies were organized—and in half a year the children were again playing in the streets."

Then Hoover told of a visit to Poland of a little more than a year ago and how he found that in twenty years the Polish nation "under freedom had outdistanced in progress all the 150 years of her previous oppression."

OCT 12 1939

"But Poland Will Not Die"

"And again today," he added, "Poland is plunged into the depths by the clash of the same forces. But Poland will not die."

Jerzy Potocki, the Polish Ambassador to the United States, said in a prepared address that the work of Polish patriots lies "shattered in the ruins of their homes."

"Again, like at the end of the eighteenth century, Poland finds herself the victim of a cruel invasion by her ruthless enemies. But the torch of Polish liberty lit by Pulaski shines again and is handed to our own generation. We shall carry it high, fighting and believing that justice will prevail . . ."

Inventor of 'Death Ray' Won't Construct Another

OCT 12 1939

He Destroyed Machine, Says, Said Killed Pigeons at 4 Miles

CLEVELAND, Oct. 11 (AP).—Dr. Antonio Longoria, who in 1934 confirmed reports he had perfected a "death ray" machine, said today it was possible such rays would be used in the present European war, but that he would never reveal his secret or help recreate such an apparatus.

The Cleveland inventor, who built a machine in 1923 that he said killed pigeons on the wing at four miles, destroyed it because of its danger.

"It's quite possible that some one may stumble across the particular electric wave I used," he said. "I found it accidentally myself and I am certainly not proud of the discovery. The machine killed small animals, and it could kill human beings just as easily.

"The ray lies in one of the unexplored frequency bands in the vicinity of the X-ray. It kills painlessly without burning, by changing the blood to a useless substance—as light changes silver salts in photography."

Dr. Longoria said that in addition to a demonstration here of the rays' ability to kill pigeons, he showed a group of scientists in California that the ray could kill rabbits even when the animals were in a thick-walled aluminum case.

"I could assemble such a machine again," he declared, "but I never shall. My inventions have brought me wealth. I am interested now only in doing something to help civilization, which seems to be going backward instead of ahead."

The forty-nine-year-old physician-physicist, a native of Spain, sold the rights to three electric welding processes in 1936 for sums reported to have totaled $6,000,000. Dr. Longoria declined to comment on what he received. The inventions involved the welding of copper and other metals.

Believes Ray Could Stall Plane

DENVER, Oct. 11 (AP).—Alfred G. Burns, president of "Inventors of America," said on a visit here that he had seen demonstrations of Dr. Antonio Longoria's "death ray," and expressed belief "it could stall an airplane."

"I saw the apparatus destroy mice and rats and once saw a full-grown dog killed instantly by the invisible ray," Mr. Burns related. He explained the ray "has a demagnetizing effect on anything that is electrical or carries a coil."

IROQUOIS, SAFE AND SOUND, AT NEW YORK PIER

Liner, Which Nazis Said May Be Sunk, Brings 577 Americans

OCT 12 1939

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Oct. 11—With colored lights gleaming cheerfully on her little after-deck, the American liner Iroquois—which the German Admiralty had said would be sunk near the American coast—pulled safely into her dock tonight, bringing 577 Americans from warring Europe.

She was convoyed to the entrance of New York harbor by two navy destroyers, attached to her as a "purely precautionary measure" by the White House after the receipt of an assertion from Grand Admiral Raeder of the German fleet that she would be sunk under circumstances similar to the destruction of the British liner Athenia.

Passengers Informed

This was an implication that she would be sunk by the British or French, since the Germans disclaimed any responsibility for the Athenia disaster.

The Iroquois passengers had been told Monday by the liner's master, Captain E. A. Chelton, that a threat against her had been made, although they received none of the details until landing here.

They were called together by the captain and given a partial explanation after the destroyers had come alongside. In the resultant search for explosives aboard the Iroquois—a search ordered by the American Government—some aboard heard a rumor that a bomb had been planted and for a time, some passengers said, there was wide-spread fear.

2,000 At Pier

As the stout little Iroquois pulled into her pier, some 2,000 stood there to welcome her, shouting hoarsely across the water, and some sang "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Miss Minna Starr and her sister, Mrs. H. D. Bayley, both of the Tudor Arms Apartments, Baltimore, were returning from a trip to Ireland.

Miss Starr said she "would not have given up this experience for anything in the world."

"There was an air of mystery about the whole trip," she said, "with wild rumors floating about for days. It was exactly like a novel.

"I trusted in the Lord even more than in American ships. It was almost like Paul's experience through the perils of the sea."

OCT 12 1939

Storms Bad, She Says

The storms, she added, were even more terrifying than the rumors of sinking. Although she was not seasick, she said she had a "sympathetic seasickness" for the many who were.

Mrs. Bayley said she and her sister intended to stay in London until November but were in Killarney, Eire, and unable to return to London when war was declared.

"We had left much of our luggage in London," she added "and were unable to get back for it. It may be a long time before we can get it."

She asserted that during the storm, a 60-mile gale, she was sitting in a steamer chair and was thrown violently against the rail. At first she thought she was badly injured, but it developed to be nothing serious.

Returns From Tour

Mrs. Mary Stiegelman, 1636 St. Paul street, Baltimore, returned from a tour of England and Ireland.

"If ever there was a ship of horrors this was the ship," she said. "First they started searching our baggage, and wouldn't say what for. Then we had a storm, and everyone was ill. They made us go into the holds, dark, dirty holds, to identify our trunks. Some of us were so sick we couldn't go, and when we told them we couldn't go they told us they would smash our trunks open."

She said passengers were required to put all heavy baggage in holds and couldn't take anything but light luggage to staterooms.

Water Scarce, She Says

"There was little water," she added. "They gave us water for a half-hour period twice each day. We had one storm after another. Some of the officers said they expected the top of the boat to blow off."

The captain was up all the time, she said. He never changed his clothing after receiving the warning.

When the cutter arrived Sunday a German crew member played "The Star-Spangled Banner" on a bugle, she added.

"I'll never cross the sea again," she said.

Mrs. Marie Stiertz, 3413 Fairview avenue, Baltimore, said: "All in all, with the fright and excitement, I never enjoyed a trip so much in my life."

Mrs. Stiertz returned from Ireland, where she had been since August 1. She was one of the few aboard who was not ill.

She said she suffered no discomfort from the storm which caused many minor injuries to passengers, but her roommate, Miss Mary Clougherty, of New York city, suffered an eye injury when thrown against a porthole.

Reports "Pleasant Trip"

Thomas McCafferty 2512 Ellamont street, Baltimore, returned from his first trip to his birthplace in Ireland with a report of "a pleasant trip despite the war danger."

The 63-year-old stationary engineer traveled alone. He had been in Ballina, County Mayo. He said he heard "lots of rumors of danger on the boat but nothing definite."

Mr. McCafferty did not feel any bad effects of the storm, he said. He added, however, that many tables were overturned and many passengers had suffered minor injuries from falls.

Mr. McCafferty said he encountered no difficulty in obtaining transportation back to the United States. It had been forty-four years since he was in Ireland.

Thomas McCarthy, formerly of Baltimore, who had spent the last year and a half in County Cork, also returned and will go to Boston to visit relatives.

One of the radio operators, William McLaughlin, said the first intimation of possible danger to the ship came in a curt radio message from Washington, which announced, "your ship is to be sunk."

"When I got to that word 'sunk,' I was pretty scared," McLaughlin said.

From then on the ship's radio was tuned into German and British broadcasts, from which were gleaned further developments on the warning. Details were withheld from the passengers, however.

OCT 12 1939

Search Of All Baggage

An immediate search of all baggage, both below decks and in passengers' cabins and staterooms, was ordered by the master.

Each passenger was asked, "have you a package anybody gave you to hold during the voyage?" This was asked, explained Maurice Utter, baggage-master in charge of the search, on the theory that a time-bomb might have been handed to an innocent passenger.

Calm Group, Surgeon Says

Dr. Ernest Hoover, ship's surgeon, said he had "never seen such a calm group of people. Not one patient was treated for fright and there was no case of hysteria. They were a mighty fine bunch of people."

After the passengers had been told of the warning, lifeboat drills were held daily.

In addition to the American flags painted on either side of the ship, an illuminated American flag flew from the after-deck, and on the boat deck a large American flag had been spread to identify her to planes above.

Told By Captain

Captain Chelton said the information that the Iroquois might be sunk might have been incredible, but "I was told I had to believe it until it was proved otherwise."

He added that he received a warning from Washington at 8 A. M. Thursday.

"The first thing I did," he went on, "was to call the heads of the (ship) departments together and tell them about it, instructing them at the same time not to speak to the passengers about it.

"Then I had the ship searched for radios. We took off radio antennæ and removed tubes from several short-wave sets which the crew had. The passengers did not have radios.

"Of course, the crew knew and the passengers, too, that there was something up, but they didn't know what.

Says Passengers Cheered

"On Sunday morning when the cutter came up I told the passengers part of what had happened. I said I had information there would be other ships sunk as was the Athenia, but I didn't mention the Iroquois. The next day two United States destroyers came up, and then I gathered the passengers in the lounge and announced specifically what my information was.

"They all cheered."

Chelton said the destroyers came within 300 to 500 yards of the Iroquois and stayed approximately within that range until the ship reached Ambrose Light, outside the harbor, where the convoy dropped away.

456 Americans Crowd Acadia as She Sails

OCT 21 1939

Many Had Been Left Behind by Iroquois

CORK, Ireland, Oct. 11 (AP).—The Eastern Steamship liner Acadia sailed for the United States today with 456 American passengers. Many of them had been unable to get passage on the Iroquois Oct. 3 and after a long wait here had exhausted their funds.

John Cudahy, American Minister, passed the night aboard and remained until sailing time.

The Acadia was so crowded that cots were put aboard for men passengers. Apparently undisturbed by a German "tip" that the Iroquois was to have been the object of an attack, Acadia passengers said they did not worry about submarine scares as long as they had a chance to get home.

Critics of Censorship Keep Up Barrage of Complaint

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Sir Samuel Hoare, Lord Privy Seal, defending the much-criticized Ministry of Information in debate today, told the House of Commons the Ministry's job in the future would be publicity—"By publicity, I mean straight news"—in neutral countries and the empire.

"The last thing in the world we wish to do," he said, "is to embark upon any such plan, as in the totalitarian states, of propaganda either in this country or the Dominions or in the United States."

30.24-3993

30.24—3993

This was virtually his only point of agreement with critics led by Arthur Greenwood, Laborite, who said it was "Profoundly important, especially in neutral countries, that our case should be stated and restated clearly and effectively." Greenwood said: "The more news you suppress, the less you have to distribute. In my view, the new arrangements will make for greater mess and muddle."

Hoare replied: "We are anxious to have as much news as possible quickly and brightly, and wish to remove any obstacle that may present itself." He also promised "substantial changes" in the British Broadcasting Corporation broadcasts, which have been criticized as "gramphone programs."

The press barrage of complaint continued, with "The Evening News" declaring editorially: "People are beginning to think that the allowance of mistakes has been exceeded and that the army of bureaucrats is becoming an army of occupation."

MOSCOW - OCT-11

A SOVIET MIDNIGHT NEWS BROADCAST ANNOUNCED FROM TALLINN THAT THE CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE ESTONIAN ARMY HAD "ACCEPTED AN INVITATION TO COME TO MOSCOW."

OCT 12 1939

NO DETAILS WERE ADDED BUT PRESUMABLY QUESTIONS REGARDING THE PLACEMENT OF SOVIET TROOPS AND SHIPS IN ESTONIAN MILITARY AND NAVAL BASES WILL BE DISCUSSED. THE STATEMENT ADDED MANY DETAILS ALREADY WERE SETTLED TODAY IN DISCUSSIONS BETWEEN ESTONIAN AND SOVIET ARMY LEADERS.

KAUNAS, LITHUANIA, OCT.11-(AP)-THREE BALTIC SEGMENTS OF OLD RUSSIA, WHICH BROKE AWAY FROM THE EMPIRE FOLLOWING THE WORLD WAR, TODAY ARE VIRTUAL SOVIET "WARDS."

THE SIGNING LAST NIGHT IN MOSCOW OF A RUSSIAN-LITHUANIAN PACT CLIMAXED A SERIES OF SWIFT DIPLOMATIC MOVES WHICH GAVE RUSSIA MILITARY CONCESSIONS IN LITHUANIA, ESTONIA AND LATVIA.

LITHUANIA WAS THE ONLY STATE TO GAIN TERRITORY. WILNO (VILNA) HER FORMER CAPITAL, AND A PART OF THE PROVINCE CONTAINING IT, WERE RETURNED. THE REGION HAD BEEN IN POLISH HANDS SINCE OCT. 9, 1920.

THE LITHUANIANS HAD HOPED FOR WILNO'S RETURN TWO DAYS AGO SO THAT THE "ANNIVERSARY OF SORROW" MIGHT BE CHANGED INTO AN "ANNIVERSARY OF JOY."

MEMBERS OF THE DEFENSE LEAGUE, WHICH FOUGHT THE BOLSHEVISTS YEARS AGO, HAVE BEEN INSTRUCTED TO ACCOMPANY ALL RUSSIAN DETACHMENTS TO THE PLACES WHERE THEY WILL BE BILLETED. ABOUT 20,000 RUSSIAN TROOPS ARE EXPECTED TO ENTER ESTONIA.

IN LATVIA THE SOVIETS ARE TO ESTABLISH MARINE BASES AT LIBAU AND WINDAU AND HAVE THE RIGHT TO FORTIFY PART OF THE COAST.

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

WITH HERR HITLER DANGLING PEACE BEFORE THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES, AND THE WAR ON BOTH LAND AND SEA SUFFERING FROM DEPRESSION, THE CHIEF POINT OF INTEREST IN THE EUROPEAN IMBROGLIO CENTERED IN RUSSIA'S DRIVE FOR SUPREMACY IN THE BALTIC--ONE OF THE COVETED OBJECTIVES OF THE NAZI PROGRAM.

THE MUSCOVITES, HAVING ESTABLISHED VIRTUAL PROTECTORATES OVER THE LITTLE STATES OF LATVIA AND ESTONIA--THEREBY ASSURING CONTROL OF THE EASTERN BALTIC--APPEARED TODAY TO HAVE STRUCK A SNAG IN FINLAND.

THE RUSSIANS ARE SAID TO BE SEEKING HEAVY CONCESSIONS FROM FINLAND IN THE WAY OF NAVAL BASES WHICH WOULD MAKE THE SOVIET MASTER OF THE WHOLE BALTIC REGION.

OCT 12 1939

THE FINNS HAVE SENT A DELEGATION TO MOSCOW TO DISCUSS THE COMMUNIST PROPOSALS, BUT AT THE SAME TIME THEY HAVE MOBILIZED THEIR ARMY ON THE RUSSIAN BORDER AND HAVE GIVEN EVERY INDICATION THAT THEY DON'T INTEND TO SURRENDER RIGHTS WHICH WOULD INFRINGE ON THEIR SOVEREIGNTY.

THE OTHER SCANDINAVIAN STATES NATURALLY ARE IN A STATE OF GREAT ANXIETY AS THE RESULT OF THIS TENSE SITUATION.

MEANWHILE, MOSCOW WAS CONTINUING NEGOTIATIONS WITH THE IDEA OF BRINGING THE LAST OF THE BALTIC STATES, LITHUANIA, INTO THE CLOSED

3024-3997

3024—3997

CIRCLE. RUSSIAN TROOPS TOO WERE ADVANCING INTO LATVIA AND ESTONIA TO OCCUPY THE NEW MILITARY BASES.

IN THE FACE OF THIS COMMUNIST DRIVE, BERLIN WAS RUSHING TO CARRY OUT ITS ASTONISHING SCHEME OF REPATRIATING GERMANS FROM LATVIA, ESTONIA AND LITHUANIA--A TOTAL OF SOME 118,000 PEOPLE.

WHETHER THIS RESETTLEMENT IS BEING CARRIED OUT AT THE REQUEST OF RUSSIA, OR IS MERELY A PART OF HERR HITLER'S GENERAL SCHEME OF REBUILDING THE REICH, HASN'T BEEN MADE CLEAR.

IT IS EVIDENT, HOWEVER, THAT THIS WITHDRAWAL IN THE FACE OF THE COMMUNIST ADVANCE INTO THE BALTIC STATES WILL CLEAR THE ROAD ENTIRELY FOR MOSCOW. SOVIET LEADER STALIN HAS WON A GREAT VICTORY WITHOUT HAVING TO GO TO WAR TO DO IT.

MANY OF T[illegible] S[illegible] COME FROM FAMILIES WHICH HAVE LIVED IN THE BALTI[illegible] FATE[illegible] OS OF YEARS. THE PLAN IS TO RESETTLE THEM IN THE TERRITOR[illegible]ES [illegible]N FROM POLAND.

THIS NOT ONLY WILL BRING THESE PEOPLE BACK INTO THE FATHERLAND, BUT IT WILL GIVE AN OVER-NIGHT GERMANIZATION OF THE CONQUERED TERRITORIES.

OCT 12 1939

WHILE MOSCOW THUS SHREWDLY PROFITED AT WHAT OBSERVERS GENERALLY TOOK TO BE THE EXPENSE OF GERMANY, HITLER'S PEACE PROPOSALS REMAINED UNANSWERED, EXCEPTING FOR UNOFFICIAL REJECTIONS BY THE PRESS OF ENGLAND AND FRANCE.

THE FRENCH AND BRITISH GOVERNMENTS, HOWEVER, WERE REPORTED TO BE IN CLOSE CONSULTATION REGARDING A REPLY. BRITISH PREMIER CHAMBERLAIN WAS EXPECTED TO GIVE THIS IN PARLIAMENT TOMORROW.

THUS FAR THERE HAS BEEN NO INDICATION OF CHANGE IN THE ALLIED

ATTITUDE THAT THEY WON'T ACCEPT A HITLERIAN PEACE AND ARE OUT TO "CRUSH HITLERISM."

JG929AES

OCT 12 1939

IF THE WAR DOESN'T DIE SOON THROUGH THE ACCEPTANCE OF HITLER'S TERMS, THE CONFLICT IS LIKELY TO GET GOING SHORTLY IN A REALLY BIG WAY.

OCT 12 1939

THAT BEING THE CASE WE SHALL BE WELL ADVISED TO PAUSE HERE TO GET ACQUAINTED WITH A GREAT NEW PERSONALITY--THAT IS, NEW AS REGARDS THIS PRESENT UPHEAVAL--WHO MAY EASILY BECOME THE DOMINANT FIGURE OF THE BELLIGERENTS, BARRING POSSIBLY HITLER HIMSELF.

I REFER TO WINSTON CHURCHILL, BRITAIN'S RECENTLY APPOINTED FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY--THE MAN WHOM MANY OBSERVERS BELIEVE HITLER FEARS MORE THAN ANY OTHER INDIVIDUAL AMONG THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES.

SINCE CHURCHILL LANDED IN THE CABINET THE OTHER DAY ON THE CREST OF A GREAT POPULAR WAVE OF DEMAND FOR EMPLOYMENT OF HIS SERVICES, HE HAS STOLEN THE SHOW. IT IS WIDELY PREDICTED IN ENGLAND THAT PREMIER CHAMBERLAIN WILL STEP DOWN SOON AND GIVE OVER TO HIS COLLEAGUE.

CHURCHILL HAS BEEN IN THE PUBLIC EYE MOST OF HIS LIFE, AND HE IS SIXTY-FIVE YEARS OLD. HE HAS HELD MANY CABINET POSITIONS, INCLUDING THE SELF-SAME JOB OF FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY DURING THE WORLD WAR.

HOWEVER, CHURCHILL HAS SEEMED TO STICK IN CABINETS ONLY SO LONG AS PRIME MINISTERS HAVE FOUND HIS SERVICES TOO VALUABLE TO PART WITH. HE IS A LONE WOLF, UNFITTED BY TEMPERAMENT TO SERVE UNDER ANY MASTER, AND TOO MUCH OF AN INDIVIDUALIST TO MAKE A POPULAR LEADER OF MEN. HE HAS, BY THE WAY, ONE OF THE MOST CAUSTIC TONGUES IN BRITAIN, AND LIKES TO USE IT ON ALL AND SUNDRY. NATURALLY THAT DOESN'T LEND TO POPULARITY.

OCT 12 1939

HOWEVER, CHURCHILL IS CREDITED EVEN BY HIS SEVEREST CRITICS WITH HAVING ONE OF THE MOST BRILLIANT MINDS OF ENGLISH HISTORY. HE IS A MAN OF SO MANY ACHIEVEMENTS THAT ONE HESITATES TO CATALOGUE THEM FOR FEAR OF BEING CHARGED WITH EXAGGERATION.

HE IS AT ONCE A GREAT ORATOR, ONE OF THE NOTABLE WRITERS OF GENERATIONS, A STATESMAN OF WIDE EXPERIENCE, A SOLDIER WHO KNOWS WAR FIRST HAND, AN EXPERT ON NAVAL AFFAIRS AND AN EXPERT ON AVIATION.

HE HAS THE INVENTIVE MIND OF GENIUS. AND WITH ALL THAT HE HAS A TREMENDOUS DRIVING FORCE.

CHURCHILL RENDERED GREAT SERVICE TO ENGLAND DURING THE WORLD WAR. UNFORTUNATELY FOR HIM, HOWEVER, ONE OR TWO OF HIS BIGGEST SCHEMES FOR WINNING THE WAR--NOTABLY THE GALLIPOLI CAMPAIGN--CAME CROPPERS. MANY HISTORIANS SAY THAT CHURCHILL'S PLAN WAS MAGNIFICENT BUT THAT IT WAS BUNGLED BY CIRCUMSTANCES OVER WHICH HE HAD NO CONTROL. BE THAT AS MAY, A GOOD MANY PEOPLE PROMPTLY BRANDED HIM AS BEING RASH AND UNSTABLE.

OCT 12 1939

THE PROOF OF HIS STANDING WITH THE GENERAL PUBLIC CAME RECENTLY WHEN THERE WAS INSISTENCE THAT HE BE TAKEN INTO THE CABINET, ALTHOUGH HE HAD BEEN ONE OF THE GOVERNMENT'S FIERCEST CRITICS.

ALREADY CHURCHILL'S ENERGY IS BEING FELT. IF HE GETS INTO THE PREMIER'S CHAIR THERE IS NO DOUBT THAT THE FIREWORKS WILL START. HE WILL PUT BACKBONE INTO THE WAR.

KNOWLEDGE OF THIS PROBABLY INSPIRES THE CONSTANT ATTACKS ON CHURCHILL BY THE NAZI PRESS AND RADIO. TAKING THE CUE FROM HERR HITLER, WHO LONG HAS BEEN AFTER CHURCHILL'S SCALP, THE GERMAN PAPERS AND BROADCASTERS ARE ACCUSING THE FIRST LORD OF WAR-MONGERING AND MANY OTHER INIQUITIES.

UNDATED SOVIET PACTS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FINLAND, NOW SITTING IN AT THE SOVIET RUSSIAN TABLE, HAS FOR A GUIDE THE EXPERIENCES OF HER THREE LITTLE BALTIC NEIGHBORS, ESTONIA, LATVIA AND LITHUANIA, ALL OF WHOM HAVE CONCLUDED TREATIES MAKING THEM VIRTUAL PROTECTORATES OF THE KREMLIN.

ALL AGREED TO THE NEW RUSSIAN HEGEMONY IN THE BALTIC, BUT LITHUANIA, THE LAST TO SIGN, GOT IN RETURN HER OLD CAPITAL OF VILNA WITH SURROUNDING TERRITORY, AND A STRONGER GUARANTEE OF HER SOVEREIGNTY.

THE SOVIET PACTS WITH ESTONIA SEPT. 28 AND LATVIA OCT. 5 AGREE TO MUTUAL MILITARY ASSISTANCE, TO RUSSIAN AID IN ARMAMENT, AND TO ESTABLISHMENT OF SOVIET MILITARY, AIR AND NAVAL BASES IN THE TWO COUNTRIES.

OCT 12 1939

ONLY IN THE LOCATION OF THESE BASES DO THE TWO DOCUMENTS DIFFER.

ESTONIA LEASES TO RUSSIA SITES ON THE ISLANDS OF SAAREMA (OESEL) AND HIIUMAA (DAGOE) AND IN THE TOWN OF PALDISKI, A BALTIC SEAPORT.

LATVIA LEASES THE RUSSIANS BASES AT THE TOWNS OF LIEPAJA (LIBAU) AND VENTSPILS (WINDAU) AND SEVERAL AIRDROMES FOR WHICH SITES ARE TO BE CHOSEN, ALONG WITH A COAST ARTILLERY BASE BETWEEN VENTSPILS AND PITRAGE.

THE ESTONIAN PACT IS TO RUN FOR 10 YEARS, WITH A 5-YEAR EXTENSION IF NEITHER PARTY DENOUNCES IT ONE YEAR BEFORE EXPIRATION. THAT OF LATVIA, ALSO FOR 10 YEARS, HAS A 10-YEAR EXTENDER CLAUSE.

LITHUANIA, WHILE HAVING A LONGER AGREEMENT--15 YEARS WITH A 10-YEAR EXTENDER--MAKES FEWER CONCESSIONS AND TAKES TITLE TO VILNA AND ADJACENT TERRITORY.

THE NEW BOUNDARY IS TO BE SPECIFIED IN DETAIL IN A SUPPLEMENTARY PROTOCOL.

LITHUANIA GRANTS RUSSIA THE RIGHT TO ESTABLISH MILITARY LAND AND AIR BASES, HER SCANTY 15-MILE OUTLET TO THE BALTIC SEA NOT BEING MENTIONED. LOCATION OF THE RUSSIAN FORCES IS NOT SPECIFIED, AS IT IS IN THE OTHER TREATIES.

IN ADDITION, THE LITHUANIAN PACT CONTAINS A SPECIAL CONSULTATION ARTICLE STATING:

"IN THE EVENT OF MENACE OF AGGRESSION AGAINST LITHUANIA OR AGAINST THE U.S.S.R. OVER LITHUANIAN TERRITORY, THE TWO CONTRACTING PARTIES SHALL IMMEDIATELY DISCUSS THE RESULTING SITUATION AND TAKE ALL MEASURES FOUND NECESSARY BY MUTUAL AGREEMENT TO SECURE THE INVIOLABILITY OF THE TERRITORIES OF THE CONTRACTING PARTIES."

THIS RIGHT OF CONSULTATION IS NOT GRANTED ESTONIA OR LATVIA.

LITHUANIA ALSO GOT A MORE FAVORABLE WORDING OF ANOTHER ARTICLE, RELATING TO HER SOVEREIGNTY.

OCT 12 1939

THE OTHERS SAID: "REALIZATION OF THIS PACT SHOULD NOT AFFECT IN ANY EXTENT THE SOVEREIGN RIGHTS OF THE CONTRACTING PARTIES, IN PARTICULAR THEIR ECONOMIC SYSTEMS AND STATE ORGANIZATIONS."

THAT OF LITHUANIA SAID: "REALIZATION OF THIS TREATY SHOULD NOT AFFECT IN ANY WAY THE SOVEREIGN RIGHTS OF THE CONTRACTING PARTIES, IN PARTICULAR THEIR STATE ORGANIZATION, ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL SYSTEM, MILITARY MEASURES, AND GENERALLY THE PRINCIPLE OF NON-INTERVENTION IN INTERNAL AFFAIRS."

REPRESENTATIVES OF FINLAND NOW ARE VISITING THE KREMLIN'S COUNCIL

Chamberlain Tells Commons Unsupported Pledge by Nazis Is Worthless.

WANTS LASTING SETTLEMENT

Scorns Uneasy Truce Dictated by Force Rather Than by Discussion.

BERLIN, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler has decided to begin war in earnest against Great Britain and France, it was said tonight in informed quarters, after Der Fuehrer had conferred for more than three hours with his closest advisers on Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech today.

The British Prime Minister's address to the House of Commons failed to come up to the expectations of what Hitler believed his broad peace offer demanded, these sources said. Germany now believes, it was added, that further parleys are useless and that guns must speak.

Britain Rejects Terms.

LONDON, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today that it would be impossible for Great Britain to accept any such basis for peace as Adolf Hitler proposed "without forfeiting her honor."

The Prime Minister also said that by acceptance of such a basis Britain would "abandon her claim that international disputes should be settled by discussion and not by force."

He told Hitler that he could have peace if he wanted it, but it "must be a real and settled peace" and not that outlined by Der Fuehrer in the Reichstag last Friday.

Scorns an Uneasy Peace.

Replying to Hitler's peace overtures, Mr. Chamberlain, in his weekly war report to the House of Commons, scored "an uneasy truce interrupted by constant alarms and repeated threats."

He said that the proposals of Hitler's speech were "vague and uncertain and contain no suggestion for righting the wrongs done to Czecho-Slovakia and Poland."

Mr. Chamberlain added that even if they did "it would still be necessary to ask by what practical means the German Government intends to convince the world that aggressions will cease and that pledges will be kept."

"The German Government and Sinclair, Liberal leader, [redacted] expressed the hope that the Government soon would go further in defining war aims. He said that his own conditions for peace included the withdrawal of German troops from Czecho-Slovakia and Poland and letting Austria decide its destiny by plebiscite.

SIR ARCHIBALD

Meanwhile, David Lloyd George, Britain's world war Prime Minister, continued to urge the "door to peace" be left open and announced, that his major speech before the Council of Action for Peace and Reconstruction would be given tomorrow.

Discussion vs. Force.

The Prime Minister declared at the outset that by accepting peace on the terms Hitler proposed, Great Britain would "abandon her claim that international disputes should be settled by discussion and not by force."

Acceptance of the German-Soviet partition of Poland was a prior condition of Hitler's peace overtures.

Chamberlain's Speech Rejecting Hitler Peace

LONDON, Oct. 12 (AP).—The text of Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement to the House of Commons today, his sixth weekly war report, follows:

Last week in speaking of the announcement about the Russo-German pact, I observed that it contained a suggestion that some peace proposals were likely to be put forward and I said that if such proved to be the case we should examine them in consultation with the governments of the dominions and of the French republic in the light of certain relevant considerations. Since then the German Chancellor has made his speech and the consultations I referred to have taken place. I must now state the position of His Majesty's Government.

Before, however, I inform the House of the results of our examination of the speech I must ask the honorable members to recall for a few moments the background against which the proposals appear.

At the end of August His Majesty's Government were actively engaged in correspondence with the German government on the subject of Poland. It was evident that the situation was dangerous, but we believed that it should be possible to arrive at a peaceful solution if passions were not deliberately stimulated and we felt quite certain that the German government could, if they desired, influence their friends in Danzig in such a way as to bring about a relaxation of tension and so create conditions favorable to calm and sober negotiations.

Last Appeal to Hitler

It will be remembered that in the course of this correspondence the German Chancellor expressed his wish for improved relations between our two countries as soon as the Polish question was settled, to which His Majesty's Government replied that they fully shared the wish but that everything turned on the nature and method of settlement with Poland. We pointed out that a forcible solution would inevitably involve the fulfilment of our obligations to Poland and we begged the German Chancellor to enter into direct discussion with the Polish government in which the latter government had already expressed its willingness to take part. As everybody knows, these efforts on the part of His Majesty's Government to avoid war and the use of force were in vain.

In August last, the President of the United States made an appeal to Herr Hitler to settle his differences with Poland by pacific means in order to prevent war breaking out in Europe. At about the same time the King of the Belgians, the Queen of the Netherlands, His Holiness the Pope and Signor Mussolini all tendered their good offices, but equally in vain. It is evident now that Herr Hitler was determined to make war on Poland and whatever sincerity there may have been in his wish to come to an understanding with Great Britain it was not strong enough to induce him to postpone an attack upon his neighbor.

Slaughter of Polish Civilians

On Sept. 1 Herr Hitler violated the Polish frontier and invaded Poland, beating down by force of arms and machinery the resistance of the Polish nation and army. As attested by neutral observers, Polish towns and villages were bombed and shelled into ruins and civilians were slaughtered wholesale in contravention, at any rate in the later stages, of all the undertakings of which Herr Hitler now speaks with such unction as though he had fulfilled them.

It is after this wanton act of aggression, which has cost so many Polish and German lives sacrificed to satisfy his own insistence on the use of force, that the German Chancellor now puts forward his proposals. If there existed any expectation that in these proposals would be included some attempt to make amend for this grievous crime against humanity, following so soon upon the violation of the rights of the Czecho-Slovakian nation, it has been doomed to disappointment.

The Polish state and its leaders are covered with abuse. What the fate of that part of Poland which Herr Hitler described as the German sphere of interest is to be, does not clearly emerge from his speech, but it is evident that he regards it as a matter for the consideration of Germany alone, to be settled solely in accordance with German interests. The final shaping of this territory and the question of the restoration of a Polish state are, in Herr Hitler's view, problems which cannot be settled by war in the west but exclusively by Russia on the one side and Germany on the other.

Recognition of Conquests

We must take it, then, that the proposals which the German Chancellor puts forward for the establishment of what he calls "the certainty of European security" are to be based on recognition of his conquests and his right to do what he pleases with the conquered.

It would be impossible for Great Britain to accept any such basis without forfeiting her honor and abandoning her claim that international disputes should be settled by discussion and not by force.

The passages in the speech designed to give fresh assurances to Herr Hitler's neighbors I pass over, since they will know what value should be attached to them by reference to the similar assurances he has given in the past. It would be easy to quote sentences from his speeches in 1935, 1936 and 1938 stating in the most definite terms his determination not to annex Austria or conclude an Anschluss with her, not to fall upon Czecho-Slovakia and not to make any further territorial claims in Europe after the Sudetenland question had been settled in September, 1938.

Nor can we pass over Herr Hitler's radical departure from the long-professed principles of his policy and creed, as instanced by the inclusion in the German Reich of many millions of Poles and Czechs, despite his repeated professions to the contrary, and by the pact with the Soviet Union, concluded after repeated and violent denunciation of Bolshevism.

This repeated disregard of his word and these sudden reversals of policy bring me to the fundamental difficulty in dealing with the wider proposals in the German Chancellor's speech. The plain truth is that, after our past experience, it is no longer possible to rely upon the unsupported word of the present German government.

Confidence Among Nations

It is no part of our policy to exclude from her rightful place in Europe a Germany which will live in amity and confidence with other nations. On the contrary, we believe that no effective remedy can be found for the world's ills that does not take account of the just claims and needs of all countries, and whenever the time may come to draw the lines of a new peace settlement, His Majesty's Government would feel that the future would hold little hope unless such a settlement could be reached through the method of negotiation and agreement.

It was not, therefore, with any vindictive purpose that we embarked on war, but simply in defense of freedom. It is not alone the freedom of the small nations that is at stake; there is also in jeopardy the peaceful existence of Great Britain, the Dominions, India, the rest of the British Empire, France and indeed of all freedom-loving countries. Whatever may be the issue of the present struggle, and in whatever way it may be brought to a conclusion, the world will not be the same world that we have known before.

Looking to the future, we can see that deep changes will inevitably leave their mark on every field of men's thought and action, and if humanity is to guide aright the new forces that will be in operation, all nations will have their part to play.

His Majesty's Government know all too well that in modern war between great powers, victor and vanquished must alike suffer cruel loss. But surrender to wrongdoing would spell the extinction of all hope and the annihilation of all those values of life which have through centuries been at once the mark and the inspiration of human progress.

Looking Beyond Victory

We seek no material advantage for ourselves; we desire nothing from the German people which should offend their self-respect. We are not aiming only at victory, but rather looking beyond it to the laying of a foundation of a better international system which will mean that war is not to be the inevitable lot of every succeeding generation.

I am certain that all the peoples of Europe, including the people of Germany, long for peace—a peace which will enable them to live their lives without fear and to devote their energies and their gifts to the development of their culture, the pursuit of their ideals and the improvement of their material prosperity. The peace which we are determined to secure, however, must be a real and settled peace, not an uneasy truce interrupted by constant alarms and repeated threats.

What stands in the way of such a peace? It is the German government, and the German government alone, for it is they who by repeated acts of aggression have robbed all Europe of tranquility and implanted in the hearts of all their neighbors an ever-present sense of insecurity and fear.

I am glad to think that there is complete agreement between the views of His Majesty's Government and those of the French government. The honorable members will have read the speech which was broadcast by M. Daladier last Tuesday. "We have," he said, "taken up arms against aggression; we shall not lay them down until we have sure guaranties of security—a security which cannot be called in question every six months."

Advantage has also been taken of the presence of the Polish Foreign Minister—whom we have been glad to welcome to this country—to consult with the Polish government, and I am happy to say that we have found entire identity of view to exist between us.

The British Attitude

I would sum up the attitude of His Majesty's Government as follows:

Herr Hitler rejected all suggestions for peace until he had overwhelmed Poland, as he had previously overthrown Czecho-Slovakia. Peace conditions cannot be acceptable which begin by condoning aggression. The proposals in the German Chancellor's speech are vague and uncertain and contain no suggestion for righting the wrongs done to Czecho-Slovakia and to Poland.

Even if Herr Hitler's proposals were more closely defined and contained suggestions to right these wrongs, it would still be necessary to ask by what practical means the German government intend to convince the world that aggression will cease and that pledges will be kept. Past experience has shown that no reliance can be placed upon promises of the present German government. Accordingly, acts — not words alone—must be forthcoming before we, the British peoples, and France, our gallant and trusted ally, would be justified in ceasing to wage war to the utmost of our strength.

Only when world confidence is restored will it be possible to find —as we would wish to do with the aid of all who show good will— solutions of those questions which disturb the world, which stand in the way of disarmament, retard the restoration of trade and prevent the improvement of the well being of the peoples.

There is thus a primary condition to be satisfied. Only the German government can fulfill it. If they will not, there can as yet be no new or better world order of the kind for which all nations

"We must take it that the proposals which the German Chancellor puts forward for the establishment of what he calls 'the certainty of European security' are to be based on recognition of his conquests and his right to do what he pleases with the conquered," the Prime Minister said.

No Reliance on Word.

Asserting that Hitler's overtures had been examined by Great Britain "in consultation with the governments of the dominions and of the French republic," Mr. Chamberland declared:

"The plain truth is that, after our past experience, it is no longer possible to rely upon the unsupported word of the present German Government."

Mr. Chamberlain said that "acts—not words alone—must be forthcoming before we and France would be justified in ceasing to wage war to the utmost of our strength."

"The issue is plain," he continued. "Either the German Government must give convincing proof of the sincerity of their desire for peace by definite acts and by the provision of effective guaranties of their intention to fulfill their undertakings or we must persevere in our duty to the end.

"It is for Germany to make her choice."

"We are not aiming only at victory, but rather looking beyond it to laying the foundation of a better international system which will mean that war is not to be the lot of every succeeding generation.

No Plan to Exclude Reich.

"The peace which we are determined to secure, however, must be a real and settled peace and not an uneasy truce interrupted by constant alarms and repeated threats.

"What stands in the way of such a peace?

"It is the German Government and the German Government alone.

"Whatever may be the issue of the present struggle and in whatever way it may be brought to a conclusion, the world will not be the same world that we have known before.

"It is no part of our policy to exclude from her rightful place in Europe a Germany which will live in amity and confidence with other nations.

"On the contrary, we believe that no effective remedy can be found for the world's ills that does not take account of the just claims and needs of all countries.

"Whenever the time may come to draw the lines of a new peace settlement, his Majesty's Government would feel that the future would hold little hope unless such a settlement could be reached through the method of negotiation and agreement.

Stanhope Addresses Lords.

"It is not, therefore, with any vindictive purpose that we embarked on the war, but simply in defense of freedom.

"It is not alone the freedom of the small nations that is at stake; there is also in jeopardy the peaceful existence of Great Britain, the Dominions, India, the rest of the British Empire, France and all freedom loving countries."

When the Prime Minister finished speaking, Mr. Attlee made his denunciation of Hitler's proposals as "made by a man whose word was utterly worthless."

In the upper house, Lord Stanhope, Lord President of the Council, made a Government statement similar to that of Mr. Chamberlain.

The British press set the stage for the Prime Minister's address by calling for continued war upon "Hitlerism."

The conservative London Times declared: "The Germans had better understand once and for all that Great Britain and France intend to see this business through." The Daily Mail said that Mr. Chamberlain's reply undoubtedly "would effectively answer untraceable rumors, current in London last night, that a peace plan is being evolved."

The Prime Minister's speech was framed after long consultation with France and with the dominions; and Mr. Chamberlain also conferred yesterday with the Polish Foreign Minister, August Zaleski.

Indications that Great Britain was preparing for any eventuality were seen, meanwhile, in the announcement that public services commemorating Armistice Day on November 11 had been canceled in London and other large centers because of air raid dangers to large gatherings. Sunday, November 12, was chosen as a day of remembrance and dedication, with the approval of King George.

A brief British communique last night disclosed that an agreement had been reached with France on "still closer" measures of co-operation for continuing the naval blockade against Germany. The communique followed a two-day conference between George Pernot, the French Minister of Blockades, and Ronald Cross, the British Minister of Economic Warfare. M. Pernot and his advisers returned to Paris last night.

The barter agreement announced yesterday with Soviet Russia, under which Great Britain will exchange tin and rubber for timber, was described today in trade circles as "a purely commercial transaction." Lumber is on the German contraband list.

The press said, however, that the agreement was not entirely lacking in political significance. The London Daily Telegraph commented: "It may be welcomed as evidence that the Soviet cherishes no ambition to discard or even to discourage old customers in favor of her new found but needy friend (Germany). Some times a next door neighbor proves to be more of a sponge than a customer."

yearn.

The issue is, therefore, plain. Either the German government must give convincing proof of the sincerity of their desire for peace by definite acts and by the provision of effective guaranties of their intention to fulfil their undertakings, or we must persevere in our duty to the end. It is for Germany to make her choice.

FÜHRER IS READY TO STAY REAL BLOW IF ROOSEVELT MAKES BRITAIN NEGOTIATE

Indicates Failure Of President To Heed Indirect Bid To Intervene Will Force Him To Unleash "Most Gruesome" Conflict In History

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Friday, Oct. 13—A German suggestion that the United States advise Great Britain to meet Germany in conference found this capital apparently convinced that such steps were diplomatically impossible until and unless formal requests came from abroad.

There was reason to believe that even should Germany submit its suggestion through formal, diplomatic channels additional steps would be necessary before the United States would undertake mediation. It was assumed that this country would first sound out privately the British and French governments before accepting any peace-making role.

Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Friday, Oct. 13—Adolf Hitler early today indirectly asked President Roosevelt to intervene in the European war by advising Britain to meet Germany in conference.

Failure of the United States t do this, the Führer indicated, would result in his unleashing a "war in earnest" against Great Britain and France producing the "most gruesome bloodbath in history."

Views Given Out After Conference

The Führer's views were given to foreign correspondents by his trusted press chief, Dr. Otto Dietrich, after a conference of several hours which followed a word-by-word study by Hitler of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's rejection yesterday of Germany's peace terms.

In brief, Hitler's views were represented as being:

In view of Chamberlain's speech, Germany must wage a war on a gigantic scale against Britain and France.

The command for action even yet would be delayed if there should be any indication that President Roosevelt was likely to tell Chamberlain in no uncertain terms that he must express a willingness to meet with Germany in conference.

May Send Bombers To Britain

The clear implication at the conference was that lacking such indications, the German air force, with as many as 800 bombers, flying in waves, might be loosed against British ships and coastal points.

Russia is ready to support Germany, and Italy is willing either to remain neutral or fight, as the general staffs may decide, Dr. Dietrich said. He, thereofre, regards Germany as unbeatble.

Dr. Dietrich described the Chamberlain speech as "an insolent reply" to the Führer's peace terms as set forth in his Reichstag speech last Friday.

After studying the speech, Hitler late last night summoned his general staff in preparation for the "war in earnest." Then Dr. Dietrich was called in. Early today he met a small group of foreign correspondents to outline the situation as Hitler sees it.

Nearest To Direct Bid

Dietrich's invitation was the nearest to a direct invitation to President Roosevelt to attempt to solve the war that has coce from the Reich.

On October 6, after Hitler had made his Reichstag speech, informed sources said the head of any neutral state, preferably President Roosevelt, could win a lasting place in history by mediating the conflict.

The President later indicated that he had no inention of mediating by saying no formal proposals for peace had been communicated to the United States Government and intimated he could not act on the basis of newspaper reports frfom Germany.

Says Nazis Are Enraged

Every German, Dietrich said, was enraged that Chamberlain had nowhere indicated a willingness to sit down to talk things over with Germany.

Hitler, Dr. Dietrich said he felt sure, would even now delay giving the command for taking up the western campaign on a gigantic scale if there was any indication President Roosevelt was likely to tell Chamberlain in no uncertain terms that he must express his readiness to meet Germany in conference.

Chamberlain's speech, he said, indicated determination to annihilate the German people.

"Let's see who will be annihilated," the press chief added with a determined snap of his jaw.

Not Tried Air Might Get

Germany, in the opinion of other prominent Nazis who joined in the conference, thus far has not even attempted a display of her air powers in the West.

Never were more than two dozen planes massed for an attack, they said.

But before Modlin, in Poland, they said, 800 power diving bombers had been let loose.

A similar number unleashed against British ships and strategic coastal points, they declared, could do untold damage.

Holds Reich Unbeatable

Dietrich said that with Russia ready to support Germany and Italy willing to remain neutral or become belligerent—whatever might seem better to the general staffs—he considered Germany unbeatable.

It would be easier, he asserted, for Germany to blockade England than for England to starve out Germany.

Dietrich said he regarded Chamberlain's speech as one of the most stupid he had read from any statesman.

Void Of Vision, He Says

He declared it was totally void of vision or comprehension of the world situation.

The German people would be welded together more closely than ever because of the insolence of that speech and England's apparent determination to try to annihilate Germany, he concluded.

Earlier, as Hitler concluded his study of the Chamberlain speech in close consultation with his advisers, informed sources said he had decided his six-day peace efforts were hopeless.

Calls General Staff

Accordingly, he had dropped such efforts and summoned his general staff to take charge of the war in the West.

With his closest advisers, Hitler was said to have decided that the British Government was "determined to fight for the destruction of the Reich and the German people."

The Nazis said they had hoped until the last that some means of obtaining peace could be found, now that their war aims in the east have been fulfilled with the conquest of Poland.

Activity in the air, which Germany believes to be her best ace, was expected to be the first evidence that the war in the west has emerged from one of watchful waiting into a fight to the finish.

May Try To Break Blockade

This action was awaited against blockading British ships in an effort to establish what for the Nazis is one of their most important strategic problems at present, namely:

"Can the blockade be broken by the combined use of airplanes, submarines and surface craft?"

At any rate, Nazis said, those who interpreted Hitler's peace efforts as a sign of weakness soon would learn their mistake.

To Talk To Stalin, Duce

Diplomatically, it was said that consultations with Joseph Stalin of Soviet Russia and Premier Mussolini of Italy would be held immediately to determine what aid, if any, Germany may expect now that the die is considered cast with Britain and France.

The question of direct Russian military assistance will be raised, it was asserted. Vyacheslaff Molotoff, Soviet Premier-Foreign Commissar, is expected in Nazi quarters to visit Berlin some time this month.

Aided By Advisers

In coming to his decision Hitler was aided by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Göring and their advisers.

The first reaction to Chamberlain's speech by lesser officials was that the British leader had straddled the issue, but this, it was believed, would not be Germany's ultimate interpretation of his speech.

Wednesday's announcement that bombers had been ordered to attack the British fleet in the North Sea and the stepping up of the home war propaganda in last night's press were regarded by some observers as signs the German Government was beginning to take the view the war would continue.

Informed quarters had stated that propaganda at home had not started yet.

Opening Of Campaign

But the press was afire with headlines and stories that might be interpreted as the opening guns in a home campaign.

Stories were published accusing Great Britain of providing Poland with poison gas and proclaiming that Britain's mastery of the North Sea had given way to Germany through the use of airplanes.

"London impressed by our bomb attack on warships," one headline said, while Der Angriff, newspaper of Minister of Propaganda Paul Joseph Goebbels, said in large type:

"We show the world in pictures England's mustard-gas violation." It published a large picture of a partly bandaged man lying on a cot.

Beerlin's population on Saturday and Sunday will have a chance to see some of the material brought back by the army from Poland, where today's communique said the Bug River was reached at several points. Selected specimens will be on display in Unter Den Linden, in the heart of the city, as a part of the winter relief collection.

The authorities meanwhile were further restricting the private use of automobiles in order to save gasoline. Taxis and some automobile were being altered to use compressed gas while portions of the small fleet of cars which still were running have been ordered off the street.

Furthermore, taxis no longer may be used merely for convenience. Urgent necessity is the only reason accepted by the drivers.

Capital Doubts U. S. Will Call Peace Parley

Thinks Formal Request by Reich Is Needed; Even Then Action Would Lag

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (AP).—A German suggestion that the United States advise Great Britain to meet Germany in a conference found this capital apparently convinced that such steps were diplomatically impossible until and unless formal requests came from abroad.

It was recalled that only three days ago President Roosevelt had let it be known that he had received no such requests.

The fact that the German suggestion tonight was voiced by a Reich official, Dr. Otto Dietrich, press chief, instead of by the press, an indirect method of comment in the controlled German press, made little impression upon Washington officialdom.

There was reason to believe that even should Germany submit its suggestion through formal, diplomatic channels, additional steps would be necessary before the United States would undertake mediation. It was assumed that this country would first sound out privately the British and French governments before accepting any peace-making role.

Prime Minister Chamberlain's address to Parliament brought no immediate reaction today from the White House or State Department, but some Senators considering neutrality legislation said the speech has lessend chances for an armistice in Europe's war.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky, the majority leader, told reporters "Chamberlain made it clear he didn't want peace on Hitler's terms" and added that the Prime Minister's statement would lessen possibilities for a cessation of hostilities.

Senator Walter F. George, Democrat, of Georgia, commented that the British declaration "certainly means that any immediate truce is out."

"Chamberlain's flat rejection of Hitler's offer would seem to close the matter unless Hitler sees fit to modify his proposals," Senator George added.

30.24-4003

30.24-4003

Senator William H. King, Democrat, of Utah, said that prospects for peace now depended on the reaction of Hitler and Stalin to Chamberlain's address.

If Russia and Germany accepted the Prime Minister's statement as a determination to fight until "Hitlerism" is removed, Senator King said, that would amount to an "embargo upon any efforts by our government or other government immediately launching a peace offensive."

On the other hand, Senator King said, if Hitler or Stalin showed a desire to negotiate peace, this country and other nations might suggest a conference to work out a formula to end hostilities and pave the way for reductions of armaments and a sound peace.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Oct. 12—British diplomatic circles received calmly tonight reports from Berlin that Adolf Hitler had decided to begin war "in earnest" after studying Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's address to the House of Commons.

Informed observers said it had not been expected that the Führer would accept any offer to negotiate except on his own terms.

AMERICA AN INDEPENDENT

Orders Envoy to See Molotov as Delegates From Helsinki Confer in Moscow.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—The American Government, it was learned authoritatively today, is expressing to Soviet Russia its "earnest hope" that nothing may occur calculated "to affect injuriously" peaceful relations between Russia and Finland.

[Later an Associated Press dispatch from Copenhagen stated that Norway, Sweden and Denmark, in representations to Moscow, had expressed hope that Russian negotiations with Finland would bring no danger to that country's independence or neutrality in view of the European conflict.]

It was learned that the American move was an entirely independent action of the United States Government.

Instructions covering the representations were sent to American Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt at Moscow. An official statement by the department was expected to follow receipt of a report from Ambassador Steinhardt that he had delivered the representations to the Russian Government.

The American action apparently ruled out joint action by the United States, Norway, Sweden and Denmark on the Finnish situation. Dispatches from several Scandinavian capitals indicated that their governments were also contemplating diplomatic steps at Moscow.

The State Department had at first desired to wait until some definite results were learned of the conversations beginning today in Moscow between Russia and Finland. However, it was believed here that if the negotiations broke down, their collapse might be followed immediately by military action, so that if a diplomatic move were to be made it had better be made at this time while peace was still possible.

Second Move in Ten Days.

This is the second action taken by the State Department with regard to Soviet Russia in the last ten days.

The first was Secretary Hull's refusal to recognize the conquest of Poland. He termed that nation the "victim of force used as an instrument of national policy." Without specifically naming them, he was referring to both Germany and Russia.

Hjalmar Procope, Finnish Minister to the United States, talked with a White House secretary yesterday, but did not disclose the nature of their conversation.

Ordinarily the Finnish envoy has two major contacts with American officials each year—delivery of a note saying that Finland will make the semi-annual payment on her war debt to the United States. She is the only country which has not missed an installment.

Steinhardt at Kremlin.

MOSCOW, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt called at the Kremlin today for a talk which reliable sources said urged Soviet Russia to refrain from making excessive demands on Finland.

It was understood that Ambassador Steinhardt asked Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov not to aggravate the European war situation by such demands.

Mr. Steinhardt's visit came only two and a half hours before Finland's special envoy to Moscow, Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, entered the Kremlin for a conference at Russia's behest. The Finnish representative remained in the Kremlin an hour.

Finland was known to be hoping for American support, to ward off any demands such as made Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania virtual Soviet protectorates in the last two weeks.

Stalin Joins Parley

Josef Stalin, First Assistan Foreign Commissar Vladimi Potemkin and Vladimir Derevi anski, Russian Minister to Fin land, joined Molotoff in th opening conference with th Finnish delegation.

Besides Dr. Paasikivi, the Finnis conferees included Baron A. Yrjo-Koskinen, Finland's Minist to Moscow, and two experts fro the Finnish Foreign Office.

(Reports in Copenhagen said th the ministers representing the var ous Scandinavian countries in Mos cow followed Ambassador Stein hardt in urging the Soviet Govern ment to be moderate in any de mands on Finland.)

Headed by Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, one-time Premier of Finland and now Minister to Sweden, the Finnish delegation arrived yesterday by train and it was expected that Dr. Paasikivi would return to Helsinki after learning exactly what the Russians want and report to the Finnish Cabinet before giving any answer.

The staff of the talks had been expected yesterday.

It was unknown, of course, what proposals would be laid before the Finns when they retraced the recent steps of Estonian, Latvian and Lithuanian delegates to the conference table.

Pacts with Finland's three little neighbors gave the U. S. S. R. broad trade and transport concessions but also—more significantly—strategic footholds on their soil for Red air, sea and land forces.

There was every indication that the Finns would refuse to be pushed into any pact, especially one involving territorial concessions. Foreign quarters believed that while the Finns were prepared to grant certain concessions they would fight if worst came to worst.

Have Backing of Sweden.

Sweden apparently was backing the Finns and this support was seen as a possible softening influence on whatever plan the Russians broached to the Helsinki delegation.

Meanwhile unofficial sources here reported that Europe's nervous northern neutral nations were looking to Germany—if she could be released from her war in the west against France and Britain—to help them halt Russia's bloodless conquest in the Baltic region. The neutrals were said to be urging Britain and France to strike a peace with Adolf Hitler on the theory that Germany then might bar Russian domination of eastern Europe. (The British Foreign Office declined to comment on these reports.)

Russia's virtual protectorate over Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania was generally regarded as having put her in strong position to resist any possible future German advance on the Soviet's Baltic flank—strengthening the belief in Moscow foreign circles that Germany had paid a high price for her non-aggression pact with the Soviet Union.

There were indications that Soviet propaganda was following the inroads of Russia's influence in the three Baltic States already lined up by Moscow. A Moscow radio broadcast said that the announcement in Kaunas of the conclusion Tuesday night of the Russian-Lithuanian pact brought cheering crowds to the Soviet legation in Kaunas. The people were said to have demanded pictures of Joseph Stalin, Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov and War Commissar Kelementi Voroshilov.

A Beehive of Activity.

Moscow continued a beehive of international activity.

A Latvian trade delegation was expected to arrive today to supplement the recent mutual assistance pact with an economic agreement. Soviet trade experts continued commercial negotiations with German representatives.

A midnight news broadcast said that Gen. Johan Laidoner, chief of the Estonian army, would come to Moscow, presumably to discuss the placement of Soviet troops and ships at Estonian bases. Twenty thousand Red soldiers are scheduled to march to appointed garrison places in Estonia on October 18.

The Lithuanian delegation, having concluded a pact calling for mutual military assistance and returning the Wilno (Vilna) region of Poland to Lithuania, left for home last night. Joseph Stalin attended a farewell dinner given for the Lithuanians by Premier-Foreign Commissar Molotov.

Negotiations with a Turkish delegation (apparently connected with Russian desires for a hand in control of the aDrdanelles) were still at a standstill.

Tass, official news agency, announced that a mixed commission to carry out detailed demarcation of the Russian-German frontier in Poland had been formed in accordance with the partition protocol of October 4.

Another Tass announcement said that Russia's industrial output for the first nine months of this year amounted to 67,947,600,000 rubles (about $13,500,000,000)—a 15.6 per cent increase over the corresponding period last year. The output of the machine-building and defense industries was announced as 20,554,400,000 rubles (about $4,100,000,000)—an increase of 29.2 per cent. The defense industries include aviation, armament, munitions and shipbuilding.

HELSINKI, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko expressed the hope today that no difficulties would arise between Finland and Soviet Russia in their Moscow negotiations, but said there were "certain international rules which cannot be overlooked."

The Foreign Minister spoke in an interview a few hours before the conversations began in Moscow with Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi representing Finland.

"No demands have been put before us yet," he said. "We have been asked to exchange views and we have no reason to reject such a request. We would do the same for any other State."

He declined to discuss the diplomatic activity reported progressing in other capitals but said Finland, "of course," had communicated with friendly nations in regard to the situation. He said he had had long distance conversations with Washington, presumably with the Finnish Minister, yesterday.

The Foreign Minister said the length of the negotiations in Moscow depended "on the questions we discuss."

M. Erkko, a large, pleasant-faced man, who has been editor and publisher of one of Helsinki's newspapers, referred to the removal of women and children into the country and other actions as "precautionary measures" similar to what all neutral nations had taken."

Guards on Streets Increased.

There are increasing numbers of civil guards on the streets. Border fortifications have been strengthened and preparations have been made for air raid protection, including the construction of dugouts.

"Modern neutrality is active neutrality," he said. "If a neutral cannot defend itself against threats then it no longer is neutral and independent."

"I hope nothing will happen and I am convinced that the Russian Government does not want anything to happen any more than we do," Ekko said.

Blaming the war and the general European situation for Finland's unhappy position, the Foreign Minister said his country always wanted to remain clear of any European struggle and to develop along with the Scandinavian countries.

"The world today," he said, "was upside down."

The speed with which the nation's affairs were being put in order for a possible emergency supported the declarations in responsible Finnish sources that the nation would oppose military and economic agreements such as its Baltic neighbors yielded and, if necessary, would resist.

Commentators stressed Finland's membership in the so-called "neutrality bloc" of northern States and the Helsinki newspaper Uusi Suomi declared:

"Any attempt to force us to give up our neutral position and force us into some kind of new political scheme will receive absolute and uncompromising opposition. That sort of kowtowing positions which the Baltic countries have been put into is absolutely out of the question here."

Soviet Warships Across Gulf.

From across the Gulf of Finland came word that three Russian destroyers were anchored in Estonian ports, apparently waiting for Russia to occupy her new bases there.

Helsinki authorities announced sand would be put on sale today, freed all school children from classes so they might leave for the country, and aided the departure of others.

Officials disclosed that 1,300 free railroad and bus tickets were issued yesterday to those unable to pay, sixty additional buses had been ordered into service and that funds for an information service had been set aside.

The Government clamped heavy restrictions on the use of codes in sending messages to foreign countries—a precaution against possible espionage. It restricted the shipment of currency by mail and organized a voluntary defense organization. This group will begin supervising the cleaning of attics as a fire prevention safeguard in the event of air raids. Its workers, to be recruited from among college students and Boy Scouts, also will handle orders for gas masks and helmets.

Lithuanian Seim Called.

BERLIN, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—DNB, official German news agency, reported from Kaunas today that the Lithuanian Sejm (Parliament) had been called for Saturday to discuss ratification of the Soviet Russian-Lithuanian mutual assistance treaty. The Lithuanian Army, it said, is scheduled to begin occupation of the Wilno (Vilna) region, returned to Lithuania under the pact, beginning next week.

Garrisons totaling 20,000 Russian troops probably will be established in the Lithuanian towns of Keime, Wilkawischki and Kalschia-Dorys, DNB said.

Emigration Speeded Up.

RIGA, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—The Latvian Government announced today that it would speed up the emigration of Latvians of German blood despite a German request that they be given until next March 31 to choose citizenship. Dispatches from Tallinn, Estonia, reported sailing of the first ship bearing German repatriates. Nine thousand are scheduled to depart in the next few days, and 5,000 later, the dispatches said.

New Estonian Premier.

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Prof. Juri Uluots became Premier of Estonia today at the head of a Cabinet which political observers interpreted as marking a trend to the right.

Prof. Antonius Piip, former Minister to Washington, was named Foreign Minister.

Steinhardt Urges Molotoff Not To Jeopardize Baltic Peace

[By the Associated Press]

Copenhagen, Oct. 12—The newspaper Berlingsket Tidende reported in a dispatch from Stockholm tonight that the Finnish Government had closed all ports of the Gulf of Finland to Finnish ships as a precaution against "seizure" in the event of trouble.

Five ports, including Helsinki, were affected. Finnish ships can call at Abo and points northward on the Gulf of Bothnia. Foreign shipping was unaffected by the closure.

Moscow, Oct. 12—The United States threw its diplomatic weight behind the Scandinavian states today in urging Soviet Russia not to make any extreme demands upon Finland, which might endanger her peaceful relations with Moscow.

After United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt was closeted at the Kremlin for an hour with Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff today, it was reliably reported Denmark, Sweden and Norway had presented identical notes urging that Finland's independence and neutrality not be threatened.

Reliable sources said Ambassador Steinhardt, acting on instuctions from the United States Government, urged upon Molotoff the desirability of making no demands which would injuriously affect Finnish-Soviet relations.

Stalin Present At Interview

Ambassador Steinhardt's visit to the Kremlin was paid just before Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, the Finnish delegate, made his first formal call upon Molotoff to learn how the Soviet's Baltic plans affect Finland. Joseph Stalin was present at the conversation with Paasikivi, as was Vice-Foreign Commissar Vladimir Potemkin.

Finland was known to be hopeful that American moral support would help her escape such broad military concessions as Russia already has obtained from her little neighbors, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, which have become virtual protectorates of the Soviet.

Another conference was scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

It was believed that Dr. Paasikivi had no power to negotiate directly, but would fly back to Helsinki to report to the Finnish Cabinet as soon as he learned exactly what Russia wanted.

Many observers here expected Finland to resort to war if she found the Soviet demands too broad, although willing to accept any "reasonable" proposals.

German Trade "Settled"

The Soviet radio announced tonight that the German trade delegation now here had "settled the questions under discussion." No further details were given.

Foreign circles remained skeptical whether the Soviet Union could export goods to Germany in the desired quantities. According to official figures made public today, industrial production for the first nine months of the year was put at 67,947,600,000 rubles (about $13,500,000,000), a gain of 15.6 per cent over the corresponding period in 1938, but machine building and war industries accounted for the largest share. This item was put at 20,554,400,000 rubles (about $4,100,000,000), a 29.2 per cent gain over the 1938 period.

Meanwhile, the Turkish delegation in Moscow remained idle—at least ostensibly—and prolonged a stay which already has exceeded two weeks. It originally was expected to last three days.

Unofficial reports said the Germans were trying to bring pressure on neutral legations to halt the war asserting it was in the interest of Great Britain, France and the neutrals to see to it that Russia did not gain too strong a hand in either the Baltic or the Black Sea area.

The presidium of the Supreme Soviet (parliament) ratified today the Russian-Lithuanian mutual assistance treaty. The treaty, signed here last Tuesday, transfers the ancient Lithuanian capital of Wilno (Vilna) and the Wilno region to Lithuania and gives Russia the right to have air bases and troop stations in Lithuania. Wilno, which in 1923 became a part of the Polish Republic, was occupied by the Red Army last month.

Appeal by U. S. Cheers Finland, Ready to Fight

Helsingfors Delegates Meet Russians After American Intercession With Moscow

HELSINGFORS, Oct. 12 (AP).—Finland welcomed today reports of United States representations in her behalf at Moscow, as a Finnish delegation gathered around the Kremlin conference table at which Soviet Russia has obtained major concessions from three other Baltic states.

Officials here maintained silence, but well informed observers said the reports confirmed their belief that powerful outside forces were working to save Finland from demands such as those which have reduced Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania to the status of virtual Soviet protectorates.

Finland, meanwhile, continued preparations to fight for her independence in the event she should feel forced to resist the Soviet demands, concerning which Finns here have not thus far been enlightened.

Optimists remarked that the Russian demands at least had not seemed so unreasonable to the Finnish delegates at Moscow as to lack a basis for discussion.

On the other hand, those who watched long lines of women and children fleeing from Helsingfors to the safer countryside were less hopeful. Military activity everywhere evident also served as a reminder that Finland might be in danger.

Erkko Is Confident

In an interview today, Foreign Minister Elias Erkko expressed hope that the Finnish-Russian discussions would come to a favorable conclusion.

"I am convinced that Russian government does not want anything to happen, any more than we do," he said. "No demands have been put before us yet. We have been asked to exchange views and we have no reason to reject such a request. We would do the same for any other state."

The Foreign Minister, who has remained night and day at his office since Moscow's invitation to the parley, said that "of course" he had communicated with friendly nations. He held a long-distance conversation yesterday with Washington, presumably speaking with the Finnish Minister there, Hjalmar Procope.

The removal of some 120,000 residents from Helsingfors, the statesman-newspaper publisher said, was a "precautionary measure" similar to those taken by other neutral nations.

"Modern neutrality is active neutrality," he added. "If a neutral can not defend itself against threats, then it no longer is neutral and independent."

Defense Strengthened

Field Marshal Gustav Mannerheim, aged leader of Finland's army of about 300,000 men, issued a statement regarding the nation's defense forces, asserting: "Even if we are citizens of a small country, I think the world knows our attitude on the question regarding the country's freedom and defense. In recent years this attitude has brought about energetic work to strengthen our defense forces. Observers will find strength and steadfastness behind the calmness that is shown."

At Helsingfors, the hurry and bustle of persons leaving the city accompanied the intensive preparations for defense. Barracks to house Civil Guards were going up in some sections of the city.

Many women refused to join the exodus, remaining to do what work they could for the common cause. Some were employed as hod-carriers on the barracks-building projects.

Windows of a hospital opposite the barracks were taped heavily to prevent shattering in case of bomb explosions. The sick and injured were being removed from some hospitals.

Women and young girls in the cotton uniform of the women's division of the Civil Guards appeared on the streets in ever growing numbers.

Fortifications on the Russian border, where Soviet troops have been reported massing, were strengthened. In the more thickly populated centers, air-raid precautions are well under way, with some streets dotted with mounds of earth from freshly built dugouts.

By The Associated Press.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Friday, Oct. 13—Foreign Minister Elias Erkko early today reaffirmed to his Scandinavian neighbors Finland's "will to peace" in a radio broadcast that Germany refused to relay to the United States on the ground of its "political nature."

Russia, with whom Finland opened negotiations today in Moscow, was not mentioned by name in the five-minute address, in which Mr. Erkko praised the United States as a "great and free nation inspired by a sense of justice, protection and defense of democratic principles."

The cancellation of the relay of the broadcast to the United States was announced two hours before Mr. Erkko was to go on the air.

[Radio officials in New York said the German transmitter was the only one powerful enough to relay the speech from Helsingfors to New York.]

As late as 6 P. M., a government spokesman said, the German radio had agreed to relay the fifteen-minute program, consisting of a five-minute speech and ten minutes of music, to the United States. At 9:30 P. M., the spokesman said the National Broadcasting Company cabled a suggestion that the musical program not be broadcast.

Two hours later, the German radio informed the local station that since there would be no music the program was political and could not be relayed.

The Foreign Minister did not mention Russia by name in his speech. He said that it had been necessary to take "precautionary measures" but that "these measures, although they necessarily take so serious a shape, do not imply that Finland has given up her will to peace."

"Their purpose," Mr. Erkko added, "is to show that she cannot submit or comply with dictates of an outside factor that would result in her international and political activity being dependent on something other than her own free will.

"Finland is still—and unshakeably so—anxious to preserve her peaceful relations with other countries.

"We appreciate every token of good-will toward Finland and Finland is ready to give proof that she appreciates everything that can help to strengthen her neighbors' feeling of safety. While doing this, Finland has the full right, with all the more reason because she is a small country, to expect other nations to respect her integrity and not to threaten her safety.

"You in the United States are strengthening day by day your position as a decisive factor in the world among those who will be able to bring about a condition necessary for securing on the basis of morality and justice peace between nations."

He asserted Finland belonged to the Scandinavian group of nations that declared their neutrality at the beginning of the war "to save their people from the chaos and destruction that war inevitably brings."

"The policy and aims of the republic of Finland do not threaten any other country," he continued. "We always have tried to settle questions arising between us and other nations by peaceful and rational means.

"The war raging at present in Europe and its unexpected turns already in this short period have cast their shadows over this peaceful corner of Northern Europe."

3 Scandinavian States Present Plea to Russia

Identical Notes Ask Moscow Not to Threaten Finland's Freedom or Neutrality

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 12 (AP).—Norway, Sweden and Denmark, in representations at Moscow, have expressed the hope that Russia's negotiations with Finland will bring no danger to the latter country's independence or neutrality.

The ministers of the three countries presented separately at Moscow notes expressing their government's "interest in the negotiations between the Soviet government and Finland," it was announced here. The notes, identical in text, declared the three Scandinavian countries expected "nothing to occur which would prevent Finland from continuing independently to maintain her neutral position."

The text of the notes follows:

"All the northern governments follow with interest the negotiations begun between the Soviet government and Finland. They express the expectation that nothing will occur which would prevent Finland from continuing independently to maintain her neutral position, which she maintains with other northern countries, and we wish the negotiations to cement friendly relations between Finland and Soviet Russia."

The Scandinavian countries have followed with increasing concern Russia's entrance into the turbulent European picture and especially her growing dominance in the northern Baltic. Spokesmen first expressed their worries when Moscow opened negotiations with Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania and won air and naval bases which advanced Soviet armed power 250 miles closer to their shores.

The invitation to Finland to come to Moscow to talk over mutual interests greatly increased the concern, with the Swedish press declaring the question was of import not to Finland alone but to all the northern European countries.

One reason for disquiet had been the issue of the Aland Islands, which guard the junction of the Gulf of Bothnia with the Baltic. Sweden and Finland, last spring, sought jointly to fortify these islands. France and Great Britain assented, but Russia objected. The islands, if fortified by a hostile power, would control extensive commercial shipping of Finland and Sweden, not the least part of which involves ore shipments from Sweden.

The islands, once Russian along with Finland, have been under joint Finnish and Swedish jurisdiction since Finnish independence became effective in 1920. The possibility that Russia might want military and naval privileges there such as she has gained in Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania was acknowledged by Scandinavian commentators as being one cause of worry.

The Copenhagen newspaper, "Berlineske Aftenavis," noting the developments in the Baltic, declared the present policy of Soviet Russia seemed like the policy of old Russia under the Czars. "Domination of the Baltic" was the basis of that policy, the paper said.

Lithuania Is Reported Asking Rights In Memel

Riga Dispatch Declares Baltic Nation, Backed By Russia, Wants German Pact Revision

Stockholm, Friday, Oct. 13 (AP)—The newspaper Dags Nyheter reported today in a dispatch from Riga, Latvia, that the Lithuanian Government, with Soviet Russia's support, has determined to make representations to Berlin to change the German-Lithuanian pact which gave Memelland to Germany.

The dispatch reported that Lithuania, since obtaining her former capital Vilna (Wilno) through a pact with Soviet Russia, was unsatisfied with her limited rights in Memel and now claims extraterritorial rights in Memel harbor.

It was reported the Lithuanian Government also is planning to open diplomatic action in Berlin to regain the Suwalki district southeast of Memelland on the eastern border of East Prussia.

The Suwalki district once belonged to the Vilna district but now is German. The inhabitants are largely Lithuanian.

Lithuania's Minister to Berlin was reported to be commissioned to open negotiations with the German Government.

One of the largest vessels in the South American trade, the Cap Norte would have made a good raider if properly armed, shipping circles said.

[The Hamburg-South American liner Cap Norte was disclosed Sept. 22 to have sailed with the two other German vessels, but their destinations were not divulged. Shipping circles in Pernambuco said they understood the ships would try to reach Vladivostok, on Soviet Russia's Pacific coast. The Cap Norte carried about 2,500 tons of crude oil. Local companies had declined to supply the ships with fine fuel oils such as are used by submarines. The two accompanying vessels were the 5,918-ton Tijuca and the 4,969-ton Curityba.]

Caught Near Bahamas

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 12 (AP).—A reliable informant said today the German steamer Cap Norte, which British press reports declared had been captured and brought by British warships near the Bahamas, British-owned islands which at one point are no more than seventy-five miles from Florida, and well within the neutral safety zone established at the recent Panama Conference. The zone exempted territorial waters of possessions of European powers, however.

King Gustav of Sweden Urged as Peacemaker

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—The newspaper Aftonbladet suggested today King Gustav of Sweden as an intermediary in Europe's conflict.

The world awaits peace and anxiously expects an initiative, the paper said in an editorial, but "the situation is so delicate that nobody will risk an attempt which could fail."

King Gustav, the paper declared, could act without risking misinterpretation, for there is "no doubt in the world of his and his people's will for peace."

'Masters of the North Sea.'

BERLIN, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—The German naval authorities, not waiting for the slow processes of diplomacy to reach a conclusion in respect of Hitler's peace offer, pursued a campaign in the North Sea today with increasing confidence that the Nazi air and sea forces would be able to make matters uncomfortable for the British Navy.

DNB, the official German news agency, published a commentary by experts asserting that German warships are masters of the North Sea.

This followed an order for the air force to unleash its power against the British at sea, an order described by an official as "one of the most important announcements since the Polish war ended."

DNB, expanding on a report by the naval authorities that several British warships had been damaged in a North Sea battle on Monday between British surface craft and German airplanes, declared that no doubt remained that the east and north coasts of the British Isles were within range of German bombers.

The account of the sea battle acknowledged that four German planes had not returned to their bases, but declared that German observers had counted six direct hits on British warships by bombs weighing more than 1,000 pounds and four by lighter bombs.

German authorities said that the battle resulted from a call for help sent out by German warships when a strong flotilla of heavy British cruisers was sighted, apparently heading for the German ships.

Hitler Studies British Answer

Meanwhile Observers Term Chamberlain's Speech Neither Fish nor Flesh.

BERLIN, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Reichsfuehrer Hitler and his Foreign Minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, studied together tonight a translation of Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech in the House of Commons today.

The translation was rushed to them in the chancellery.

Germans anxiously awaited on Fuehrer's appraisal of the British reply to his peace offer of last Friday and a sign of the next move to be made in the European war.

The first German reaction to Mr. Chamberlain's speech was epitomized in the words of informed circles: "This statement, like Daladier's, is neither fish for flesh."

The reaction was based on the first British news broadcast of the speech, which started while Mr. Chamberlain was speaking. The commentator indicated that the final word had not been spoken on Hitler's Reichstag speech.

At the official press conference it was stated that there would be no official comment until the complete text of the Chamberlain speech had been studied.

Little U. S. Reaction.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Chamberlain's address to Parliament brought no immediate reaction today from the White House or State Department, but some Senators said the speech has lessened chances for an armistice.

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the majority leader, told reporters that "Chamberlain made it clear he didn't want peace on Hitler's terms," while Senator George of Georgia commented that the British declaration "certainly means that any immediate truce is out."

Senator King of Utah said that prospects for peace now depended on the reaction of Hitler and Stalin to Mr. Chamberlain's address. If Russia and Germany accepted the Prime Minister's statement as a determination to fight until "Hitlerism" is removed, Mr. King said, that would amount to an "embargo upon any efforts by our Government or other government immediately launching a peace offensive." On the other hand, King said, if Hitler and Stalin showed a desire to negotiate peace, this country and other nations might suggest a conference.

Craft Captured Within Established Neutral Safety Zone

13,615-Ton Cap Norte Sailed From Brazil Almost Month Ago

[By the Associated Press]

London, Oct. 12—The British Press Association reported today that the navy had captured the German liner Cap Norte in the South Atlantic.

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, hinted at the seizure yesterday when he told the House of Commons that, from September 24 to October 9, Great Britain had taken 13,615 tons of enemy shipping. This is the exact tonnage of the Cap Norte, which sailed from Pernambuco, Brazil, September 17 with a cargo believed to be of foodstuffs and petroleum products.

No Details Given

While the association's naval correspondent gave no details of the capture, a reliable informant in Rio de Janeiro said she was taken by British warships near the Bahamas, British-owned islands which at one point are no more than seventy-five miles from Florida, and well within the neutral safety zone established at the recent Panama conference. The zone, however, exempted territorial waters of possessions of European powers.

This safety zone probably will be allowed to lapse, British naval opinion said today, because of the great numbers of ships which would be necessary to enforce it. One naval authority

London Experts Hold Sea Control Project Too Vast.

LONDON, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—The belief was expressed in British naval circles today that the Pan-American proposal for a "safety zone" around the Americas would probably be allowed to lapse because of the difficulties of enforcing it.

Hundreds of thousands of ships would be needed for any effective control, said one naval authority.

The United States and Latin American countries at a recent conference in Panama City jointly provided for a neutral zone around the Americas extending hundreds of miles out to sea which would be patrolled to prevent belligerents from using it as a fighting zone.

REICH TAKES PRIDE IN IROQUOIS SAFETY

Says It Shows 'Fraternal' Attitude to U. S.

BERLIN, Oct. 12 (AP)—Authoritative German quarters said today they considered the fact that the refugee ship Iroquois reached New York safely was "proof that the German Navy's fraternal attitude toward America had yielded a 100 per cent success."

Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, Commander-in-Chief of the German Navy, had warned the United States Government that the Iroquois would be torpedoed.

LONDON, Oct. 12 (AP)—The British Government asserted today that the Admiralty had had its say on the German statement that the United States liner Iroquois might be sunk and had nothing to add following the steamer's safe arrival in New York.

One source said:

"The Iroquois is just one of many American ships making port safely, and the Admiralty already has commented on the Raeder story, which was subtle German propaganda, and will comment no further."

(On Oct. 6, after German Grand Admiral Erich Raeder's warning that the Iroquois would be sunk "through a repetition of circumstances which marked the loss of the Athenia," the Admiralty announced:

"* * * The Athenia was of course sunk by a German U-boat which was plainly seen by responsible survivors, no British submarine being within several hundred miles * * *")

The Iroquois, which docked Wednesday night at Pier 59, North River, after an exciting voyage across the Atlantic from Cobh, remained at her berth at Eighteenth Street and has not yet been turned over to the Clyde Mallory Line, owners of the vessel, by the charterers, the United States Lines.

The work of removing the equipment and stores put on board by the United States Lines will be started today. The Acadia, another steamship chartered by the United States Lines, sailed from Cobh Wednesday with 520 passengers.

Finland to Control News

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 12 (AP).—Swedish News Agency dispatches from Helsingfors said today that the government of Finland had established a Department of Information for the dissemination and control of news.

Moscow, Oct. 12—The Soviet radio announced tonight that the German trade delegation here had "settled the questions under discussion." No further details were given.

Foreign circles remained skeptical whether the Soviet could export goods to Germany in the desired quantities.

According to official figures released today, industrial production for the first nine months of the year was put at 67,947,600,000 rubles (about $13,500,000,000), a gain of 15.6 per cent. over the corresponding period in 1938, but machine building and war industries accounted for the largest share.

Turkish Mission Still Idle

This item was put at 20,554,400,000 rubles (about $4,100,000,000), a 29.2 per cent. gain over the 1938 period.

Meanwhile, the Turkish delegation in Moscow remained idle—at least on the surface—and prolonged a stay which already has exceeded two weeks. It originally was expected to be for but three days.

CHILDREN PROFITABLE

Hungary Studies Plan for Fathers in Wartime.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—The more children a man has the less risk he would be asked to take in wartime under a plan the Hungarian Government was disclosed today to be studying.

The plan was drawn up by Stefan Gyorffy, University of Budapest professor and president of the Hungarian Ethnographic Society, who, just before his death last week, offered it to Premier Count Paul Teleky.

It was proposed that bachelors, childless husbands and fathers of one child be assigned to front lines and other hazardous posts; fathers of two and three children to second lines; fathers of four and five to third lines and fathers of six or more to be exempt.

The inheritance tax similarly would be graduated so that the greater the number of a man's children the smaller the tax on his estate. In cases where there were none the tax would be 100 per cent and the money distributed among young married couples.

Gyorffy told the Premier the existence of Hungrary, which has one of the lowest birth rates in southeastern Europe, was threatened by the "one-child family system which is sweeping the country."

Drive to Keep Jobs Open For Soldiers Is Proposed

Geneva Labor Office to Seek Adequate Family Aid Also

GENEVA, Oct. 12 (AP).—The International Labor Office governing body, concentrating on plans for economic and social reorganization after the war, discussed plans today to obtain guaranties that jobs left by Europe's soldiers will be returned to them after hostilities end. A number of speakers who advocated such action at the final session were supported by John G. Winant, former Governor of New Hampshire, director of the office.

"In the past there has been a deliberate effort to divide the men in overalls and the men in khaki," Mr. Winant said, "yet the soldiers who are recruited from the countryside and factories are true representatives of the working people in the nations now at war.

"The idea that this office has a special task to see that families of soldiers get adequate allowances and that their jobs be kept for them despite the hiring of less skilled young men and women is obvious."

Delegates to the conference, including Carter Goodrich, chairman of the governing body, and the United States government delegate, John Gambs, said the labor office alone was equipped to plan the economic and social steps necessary for the reconstruction period.

WAR HURTS SWISS TRADE

Exports Drop 54% and Imports 34% in September

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 12 (AP).—Government statistics issued tonight showed a 54 per cent drop in exports, indicating Europe's war had drawn landlocked Switzerland into a desperate attempt to keep her national economy from floundering. Imports dropped 34 per cent.

Switzerland's per capita share of foreign trade is more than Great Britain's and almost three times that of the United States.

August exports totaled 119,500,000 Swiss francs, as compared with September's 52,500,000 francs. August imports were 149,500,000 francs as compared with 98,400,000 francs in September.

Plans had been in the making for years to meet this situation. Beginning in October ration cards were issued limiting each Swiss to three pounds of sugar a month and placing limits on rice, flour, vegetable oils, butter and other foods. Gasoline is rationed and private persons are forbidden to use pleasure cars on Sundays.

Soviet Starts Sending Wood To Great Britain

Norwegians Report Number Of Ships Are Moving From Harbor At Murmansk

Bergen, Norway, Oct. 12 (AP)—Norwegian shipping circles reported today a number of ships laden with Russian wood, held at Murmansk, Russian Arctic harbor, since the start of the European war, were proceeding to England as a result of the British-Soviet agreement to barter wood for tin and rubber.

This agreement was announced by the British Ministry of Supply yesterday. Freighters from the Netherlands, Norway and other countries left the port, the shippers said.

Norwegians said the ships would stay within Russian and Norwegian territorial waters to Bergen, where it was reported they would be met by a British convoy.

Uluots Becomes Premier As Estonia Turns to Right

Piip, Who Helped Him Draft Soviet Pact, in Foreign Post

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 12 (AP).—Professor Juri Uluots became Premier of Estonia today at the head of a Cabinet which political observers interpreted as marking a trend to the right. Professor Antonius Piip, a former minister at Washington, was named Foreign Minister.

Other new members were Nikolai Reek, Defense Minister; Ants Oidermaa, Propaganda Minister; M. Juerima, Home Minister, and Dr. Paul Kogerman, Minister of Education. (Dr. Kogerman was a research fellow in Harvard University.)

Other ministries remained unchanged.

Helped Draft Soviet Pact

Professor Uluots, long prominent in Estonia, has been president of the Chamber of Deputies.

Kaarel Eenpalu had been Premier and Karl Selter, Foreign Minister since April, 1938.

Uluots and Professor Piip, who in the past has served at various times as Premier, War Minister and Foreign Minister, are experts on international law and they attended the conference at Moscow which led to the Russian-Estonian mutual assistance pact of Sept. 28 which gave to Russia military, naval and trade concessions.

Cost of War

PLYMOUTH, England, Oct. 12 (AP).—The city of Plymouth was ordered to pay a fine of £2 (about $8) to itself today for failure to blackout the Guildhall.

The magistrate who imposed the fine said it was merely taking money out of one pocket and putting it into another, but the conviction would be on the record, at any rate.

Police had complained that the Guildhall, while being used for coal-rationing purposes, was brilliantly lighted. The city replied that the police had arrived only a few minutes after blackout time and that the work was nearly finished.

British See Finland As a U. S. 'Belgium'

LONDON, Oct. 12 (AP).—British newspapers featured today reports from the United States of sympathy for Finland. Newsboys' placards read: "America May Intervene."

One evening newspaper said: "If any nation could be a new 'brave little Belgium' for Americans, it would be Finland, which has earned much popularity by prompt debt payments."

Nazis and Fascists Hold Repatriation Discussion

MILAN, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Heinrich Himmler, head of all German police organizations, and Arturo Bocchini, Italy's police chief, continued today the talks at Tremezzo, Lake Como resort, begun yesterday.

With them were the prefects of Bolzano and Fiume and authoritative sources said that the talks were concerned with the repatriation of Germans now in Italy.

The presence of the prefect of Fiume led political circles to speculate on the possibility of some move in that former Austrian territory similar to the repatriation of Germans from Bolzano province begun last July.

Churchill Admits Error on U-boat

LONDON, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Winston Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, acknowledged today that he had erred in announcing the capture of the German submarine commander who had sent him a personal S O S on behalf of the torpedoed British ship Firby on September 11.

"I was informed by competent authorities," Mr. Churchill said, "that the facts were as stated by me in the House of Commons on September 26, and that the officer who sank the Firby had been made prisoner. Subsequent examination of the U-boat prisoners of war in our custody at the present time has not, however, confirmed this first assumption."

BRITISH DENY GAS CHARGE

Germans Had Accused Them of Supplying Vapor to Poles

LONDON, Oct. 12 (AP)—Great Britain today denied a German report she had supplied gas to Poland for use against German soldiers.

[In Berlin last night the Deutsche Nachrichtenbura, German official news agency, issued a 2,000-word statement charging Britain had delivered mustard gas to Poland.]

An authoritative British statement contradicted what it called "a report circulated from Berlin" that Polish troops used British gas in an explosion that killed four soldiers at Jaxlo.

LONDON, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Alfred Duff Cooper, former First Lord of the Admiralty, once called a war monger by Adolf Hitler, sailed today for a lecture tour in the United States.

He said the tour was arranged before the European war broke out, but added that "there is only one topic these days—the international situation."

LONDON, Oct. 12 (AP).—A government measure designed to stamp out war profiteering in food and everyday commodities by price regulation was introduced today in the House of Commons.

The Board of Trade would be empowered to set maximum prices, computed generally on prices in effect Aug. 1, plus normal increases due to the war. A central price regulation committee would enforce the legislation, which proposed fines up to £100 ($405) and jail terms of three months for violators.

Persistent violators, however, could be sent to jail for two years, fined £500 ($2,025) or prevented from carrying on business. The legislation would not apply to exports.

PROPAGANDA WAR FOUGHT IN SOUTH AMERICA

Allies And Nazis Cover Continent With Barrage Of Pro And Con Tales

Population And Commercial Interests Make Land Fertile For Conflict

[By the Associated Press]

Buenos Aires, Oct. 12—Europe's warring nations are conducting a battle of propaganda in South America which in intensity and bitterness compares with the actual fighting on the Western front.

A heavy foreign population and huge commercial interests of both factions in South America—particularly Argentina—make this continent fertile soil for such conflict.

Using every possible means of information from newspapers, radio broadcasters and signboards to common whispering campaigns, Allied and German propaganda workers daily hurl barrages of pro-Nazi and anti-Nazi stories at the people of the American republics.

Use "News" Releases

In Argentina the German and British governments carry on their battle of words openly through regular "news" releases. The British official wireless report in expanded form is translated into Spanish and distributed daily to anyone interested.

The German Embassy makes regular "releases" of news about the war to Argentine newspapers and other publications.

Buenos Aires, center of European shipping and the residence of thousands of Germans, English, Poles and other Europeans, became a hotbed of propaganda with the opening of war.

The city's two German-language newspapers—one pro, the other anti-Nazi—added Spanish sections to their editions. The anti-Hitler paper distributes pamphlets published in Spanish and English.

English Papers Active

The English-language newspapers, both strongly pro-Allied, are but slightly less active. Both print long dispatches from the British official wireless.

The most bitter of the English newspapers headlines the most recent session of the German Reichstag thus: "Liars in council." One pro-Nazi paper referred to the British as ladrones—Spanish for thieves.

Powerful European radio stations fill the air with steady barrages of colored dispatches about the war and its result. Argentine stations broadcast little of the propaganda because of governmental restrictions against too open discussions of the European situation from a biased point of view.

As yet the Government of Argentina has taken no steps to halt the free play of propaganda.

Crew Painted Craft Gray After Leaving New York—Mist Helped Her Escape.

Copyright, 1939, by Associated Press.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 12.—A Netherlands seaman on the German liner Bremen declared today that the vessel reached Murmansk, north Russian port, after a thrilling voyage during which she flew the Soviet flag and preparations were made to destroy her rather than allow her to fall in British hands.

E. Post, a cook and only Netherlands seaman on the Bremen when she sailed August 30 from New York, told his story in a copyrighted interview with the Amsterdam newspaper, Het Volk, after his return to his native country.

He said that Capt. Adolf Ahrens skirted the blockade of the British fleet with barrels of gasoline on deck ready for burning the vessel rather than allow her to be captured by the British.

The voyage was veiled in such secrecy, he said, that the crew did not know the liner's destination, all lights were extinguished during the north Atlantic crossing and the wireless answered no calls.

Post said that after some days at sea he realized the Bremen was sailing far to the north, because of the cold weather, but that he had no idea where she was going.

There were no passengers or cargo and every precaution was made to save the crew in event of an attack.

Painted Gray During Crossing.

The vessel was painted gray as she sped across the Atlantic. She traveled much of the time in heavy mist, which helped to conceal her from any ships near her course.

Post said the Bremen flew the Soviet flag and the flag of the North German-Lloyd Line, but carried no German colors.

He said Capt. Ahrens called the crew together September 3, the day Great Britain and France declared war, and told them the war had started.

"It doesn't look very good for us," he quoted the captain as saying, "for I've sworn that the English won't seize me and my ship while I'm alive. I would rather sink the Bremen."

Post brought back pictures of crew activity on the voyage, showing among other things how they painted the hull of the liner while suspended in lifeboats.

One picture showed a group in which Post was conspicuous as the only one not giving the Nazi salute.

"Sir, sir, what a journey we have had," the Hollander said in summing up the trip. "I can tell you I have sailed many seas in my life and have seen many ports, but I have experienced nothing like this.

"A load fell from my chest when we on the Bremen saw the coast of Murmansk appear out of the mist.

Praises Captain's Skill.

"The old man (Capt. Ahrens) brought us through and no matter what you might say about a Nazi captain, he, together with all these clever boys, outwitted the British Navy."

He told of delays in New York and how the vessel sailed August 30 with only a few officers knowing where she was going.

"Nobody knew what route would be taken," Post said.

"We were making fun of the fact that everybody in the world was asking 'where is the Bremen?' But the prospect of running the English blockade was not very cheering.

"The first morning out everybody who had nothing more urgent to do, including butchers, stewards and cooks, plus a few sailors, all got pots of gray paint. Lifeboats were swung out and the men applied the paint to the sides of the ship, wielding paint brushes with long handles.

Had to Paint or Drown.

"In no time the Bremen was not the Bremen any more. You may have heard 'pump or drown,' but we had to 'paint or drown.' In the mist at 200 meters (656 feet) distance you could not have seen the Bremen.

"The Bremen was called by radio from various stations, but of course kept silent. And you know the proverb, 'Be as silent as a German.' Among the almost 1,000 members of the crew there came a terrible tension, as nobody knew where we were going.

"Later, in the day of September 3, we were all called together in a large salon. The captain, standing in the center, said: 'Men, war in Europe has started. It doesn't look very good for us, for I've sworn that the English won't seize me and my ship while I'm alive. I would rather sink the Bremen.'

"Everybody gave the Nazi salute except myself, the only Hollander on board. For, to be frank, as a Hollander, the prospect of disappearing below the surface for good didn't attract me very much. But what could I do? I was in it and had to go on now, willingly or not.

"From the icy cold we concluded we were far up north, which proved to be the case afterward.

"We were again called together by the captain who told us that between England and Iceland there was a watch of English ships every ten miles; that they might not be men-o'-war, but anyhow they were ships ready to seize us and take us in.

Listened for Alarm Signals.

"Drills were conducted regularly to insure that we would be able to get into the lifeboats as quickly as possible in case of emergency. All day we were listening in for alarm signals which were set up everywhere in the ship.

"The cabins of the crew in the fore of the ship were left vacant so that in case of a collision the crew would be safer. Barrels of gasoline were on deck so that if English men-o'-war neared the Bremen could be set on fire.

"Everybody took a few things with him to carry in the lifeboats. Trunks and suitcases, of course, were not allowed. Under these circumstances we got very little sleep. We did not undress as at any moment we might come across a trawler or some other vessel which might seize us. Numb with cold, sailors were on the lookout in the crow's nest or on the foreship.

Sight Murmansk.

"At last we learned we were somewhere between Iceland and Spitzbergen. On the morning of September 6, three days after the outbreak of war, we sighted the coast of Murmansk. As we came near the shore we saw a man-o'-war which afterward appeared to be a Russian cruiser. I suppose the Bremen had never entered port under such conditions.

"At the foremast there was only the flag of the company and the Russian hammer and sickle and behind that the swastika flag Outside Murmansk we got a Russian pilot officer. He saluted in the ordinary way with hand at cap and not with a raised fist. Then we were anchored in the Bay of Murmansk.

"We were not allowed to go ashore, but that didn't matter, for during the daytime we were looking at snowy mountains and in evenings we were in a large assembly room looking at movies or listening to the ship's orchestra. After we had seen our films we borrowed others from other German ships, for every day more German freight and passenger ships entered port.

More Ships Come In.

"Everybody had to deliver his papers to the captain, also his part of $2,000 which was divided among the crew during the journey back. Seventy cooks on board had very little to do, as there were no passengers to look after.

"One day the German Ambassador came on board to discuss the situation with the captain. We heard that together with other crews we would go to Leningrad by train and from there in German ships to Kiel and then to Bremerhaven.

"We were not allowed to write letters and only hoped that the North German Lloyd would inform our relatives. The only news we heard from the German radio, for we were not allowed to listen to other stations."

Post said the crew of the Bremen left Murmansk on September 18 and reached Leningrad three days later—about twice the normal time. He explained that the delay was due to Soviet troop movements.

He said Kiel was reached September 26 and an overnight stop made before proceeding through the canal to Bremerhaven.

Delayed in New York.

The Bremen, a liner of 51,731 tons and the $20,000,000 flagship of the German merchant fleet, was delayed in New York while United States Customs Officials inspected her for possible arms.

She sailed only thirty-six hourse before Germany invaded Poland. Many sources subsequently reported she had reached Murmansk safely. Murmansk is above the arctic circle. The Frankfurter Zeitung reported on Oct. 5 that the crew—more than 900 men—returned to Bremerhaven, the Bremen's home port, on Sept. 29 and that Capt. Ahrens had been promoted to Commodore by Adolf Hitler.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 12.—A hasty disguise and the swirling mists of the North Atlantic helped the German merchant flagship Bremen, of the North German Lloyd Line, to make a perilous voyage through strange waters and reach safe harbor in the Russian Arctic port of Murmansk, a member of her crew related today.

The crewman was E. Post, tall, blond, seagoing cook, and the only Hollander aboard. In a copyrighted interview with the Amsterdam newspaper "Het Volk," Post told of the repainting of the ship at sea after her delayed departure from New York on Aug. 30, of the anxiety aboard, and finally of the Bremen's reaching Murmansk flying the hammer and sickle.

[The Bremen was held in New York two days while United States customs men searched her for possible armaments, and finally sailed thirty-six hours before Germany invaded Poland.]

Without passengers or cargo, but with 900 seamen, Capt. Adolf Ahrens was reported by Post to have dodged the British blockade with gasoline drums on the deck of his $20,000,000 ship, ready to burn and sink her if need be.

"It doesn't look very good for us,"

Post quoted the captain as telling the crew. "I've sworn that the English will not seize me and my ship while I'm alive. I would rather sink the Bremen."

Without slackening speed, the ship received a complete coat of dull gray paint. She refused to answer wireless calls, and at night she ran without lights.

"The first morning out," said the cook, "everybody who had nothing more urgent to do, including butchers, stewards and cooks, plus a few sailors, all got pots of gray paint. Lifeboats were swung out and the men applied the paint to the sides of the ship, wielding paint brushes with long handles.

"In no time the Bremen was not the Bremen any more. You may have heard of 'pump or drown,' but we had to 'paint or drown.'" graphs of this work, including one in which he alone was not giving the Nazi salute.

When the job was done, he said, "in the mist at 200 meters (656 feet) you could not have seen the Bremen."

Called frequently on the radio, the Bremen kept silent.

"Among the members of the crew there came a terrible tension," Post recalled, "as nobody knew where we were going. Later, on Sept. 3, we were all called together in a large salon. The captain, standing in the center, said: 'Men, war in Europe has started.'"

After the captain told of plans to sink the ship, should capture seem sure, "everybody gave the Nazi salute except myself, the only Hollander on board. For, to be frank, the prospect of disappearing below the surface for good didn't attract me very much."

Every precaution for the crew's safety was taken, however, and the men abandoned their usual quarters in the forecastle for fear of collision, Post related. Regular lifeboat drills were held.

After a few days in the murky weather, Post said, "from the icy cold, we concluded we were far up north, which proved to be the case afterward.

Aided by Russian Pilot

"We were again called together by the captain, who told us that between England and Iceland there was a watch of English ships every ten miles. All day we were listening for alarm signals which were set up everywhere in the ship. We were making fun of the fact that everybody in the world was asking, 'Where is the Bremen?' But the prospect of running the English blockade was not very cheering."

Every man selected a few personal possesssions to take with him in his lifeboat.

"Under these circumstances we got very little sleep," the cook related. "We did not undress, as at any moment we might come across a trawler or some vessel which might seize us. Numb with cold, sailors were on the lookout in the crow's nest or on the foreship.

"At last we learned we were somewhere between Iceland and Spitzbergen. On th morning of Sept. 6, three days after the outbreak of war, we sighted the coast of Murmansk.

"I suppose the Bremen had never entered port under such conditions. At the foremast there was only the flag of the company and the Russian hammer and sickle, and behind that the swastika flag."

Men Sent to Bremerhaven

The men were not allowed to go ashore, Post said, but added that he did not mind.

"A loa fell from my chest when we on the Bremen saw the coast of Murmansk appear out of the mist," he said. "The old man (Capt. Ahrens brought us through, and no matter what you might say about a Nazi captain, he, together with all these clever boys, outwitted the British Navy."

[The Frankfurter Zeitung" reported Oct. 5 that Capt. Ahrens had been promoted to commodore for his feat.]

In Murmansk, the crew was entertained by the ship's orchestra and at "moving" picture shows aboard.

"After we had seen our films, we borrowed others from other German ships," said the cook. "For every day more German freight and passenger ships entered port. Everybody had to deliver his papers to the captain, also his part of $2,000 which had been divided among the crew during the journey back."

Letter-writing was forbidden, and only German radio programs were permitted, Post said.

Finally, after the German Ambassador came aboard and conferred with the captain, the crew learned they were to be sent to Germany. Post said they left Murmansk Sept. 10, reaching Leningrad three days later by rail, the unusually long time being caused by Soviet troop movements. From Leningrad, German ships took the men to Kiel, through the Kiel Canal and to their home port of Bremerhaven.

"I can tell you, I have sailed many seas in my life, and have seen many ports, but I have experienced nothing like this," said the cook of his experience.

Fishing Boat Caught in Battle

Norse Skipper Says Neither Ships nor Planes Were Hit—Cap Norte Reported Captured.

ALESUND, Norway, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—A Norwegian fishing boat skipper asserted today that he had been trapped for an hour and a half on Monday afternoon in the midst of the North Sea naval battle between five British warships and about 150 German planes.

The captain of the fishing boat Kvaloy said that bombs dropped on all sides, and the crew, fearing that their ship would be sent to the bottom, prepared to take to the lifeboats.

He said his crew could see that neither ships nor planes were hit, but after the warships had steamed away they heard an explosion and saw a column of fire on the horizon.

[Both the German and British admiralties reported a North Sea engagement Monday between planes and warships. The Germans asserted their bombers scored ten direct hits, but the British contended there was no damage.]

Moving Net Explodes Bomb.

The fishermen were operating near the Viking Bank, the skipper reported, when suddenly a huge number of war planes approached from the west and five British warships from the east. He estimated the number of planes at 150.

They started dropping bombs and the ships answered with anti-aircraft fire. Soon the Kvaloy was in the midst of the battle.

The warships moved at full speed, following a zigzag course the whole time. The Kvaloy attempted to steer westward out of the battle zone, but the warships moved in the same direction. Finally the warships withdrew, while the bombing squadrons disappeared eastward.

The skipper said that the water was churned by a violent explosion as the crew attempted to pull up a net after the battle, and he said he thought a bomb must have been caught and exploded when it was moved.

Cap Norte Reported Seized.

LONDON, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—The British Navy was reported today to have captured the 13,615-ton German steamship Cap Norte.

The report, issued by the Press Association here, said that the Cap Norte had sailed from the Brazilian port of Pernambuco on September 17.

October 9, Great Britain had had a favorable sea-war balance of 7,806 tons of shipping, having lost 5,809 tons to German submarines and taken 13,615 tons—the exact figure of the Cap Norte's gross tonnage.

Suspected of Being Raider.

The Cap Norte was built at Hamburg in 1922 and was believed to have been carrying a cargo of foodstuffs and petroleum products.

[Shipping men at Buenos Aires, in speculating on the identity of the German raider that sank the 5,051-ton British freighter Clement in the South Atlantic early this month, were strongly of the opinion that it may have been the Cap Norte. When she sailed from Recife she was accompanied by two other German ships and it was understood that they would try to reach Vladivostok. The two accompanying vessels were the 5,916-ton Tijuca and the 4,969-ton Curityba. British cruisers had been reported operating on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of South America.]

Meanwhile today the Admiralty announced that the German bombers which raided British cruisers in the North Sea on Monday dropped more than 100 bombs in a five-hour attack without scoring a direct hit.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—A reliable informant said today that the Cap Norte was caught by British warships near the Bahamas.

Their nearest point is about seventy-five miles from the Florida coast.

FOR AN HOUR AND A HALF THE CAPTAIN SAID HIS STURDY LITTLE BOAT, THE KVALOY, WAS CAUGHT IN THE THUNDERING BATTLE PARTICIPATED IN BY FIVE BRITISH SHIPS AND ABOUT 150 GERMAN PLANES.

SO FAR AS HE AND HIS CREW COULD SEE, NEITHER SHIPS NOR PLANES SCORED HITS. THE CAPTAIN RELATED, HOWEVER, THAT AFTER THE WARSHIPS STEAMED AWAY THERE WAS A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION AND A COLUMN OF FIRE SPURTED SKYWARD.

CHAMBERLAIN'S SPEECH HAILED BY THE FRENCH

Daladier Calls Cabinet to Meet With Lebrun to Review War.

SESSION SET FOR TOMORROW

German Patrols Storm Outposts as Cannon Roar Along 100-mile Front.

PARIS, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Premier Daladier summoned his Cabinet today to meet tomorrow with President Lebrun for a general review of the war.

Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement in the House of Commons was welcomed here as new evidence of unity between Great Britain and France against Adolf Hitler's peace proposals.

The French press singled out for attention Mr. Chamberlain's stand that Germany must give more effective guaranties before peace could be considered.

Meanwhile German patrols attacked French outposts from the Moselle to the Rhine today, continuing a series of thrusts reported to have cost them "hundreds" of casualties in the last three days without gaining "an inch of ground."

French advices, which told of a "very hot" action in one unidentified sector during the night, said that the latest assaults had been repulsed despite heavy preparation by German artillery.

At no point had the Germans been successful in their attempts to take prisoners, according to these reports. The French, entrenched in positions from which they raked the advancing Germans with machine-gun fire, described their own losses as "slight."

As the fighting increased in scope, with artillery thundering along the 100-mile front, the weather—which has been foggy and rainy—suddenly turned cold.

The French reported that their reconnaissance planes had taken some "very interesting" photographs of German positions, but that no Nazi airmen had attempted to cross the lines since Tuesday, when one was shot down.

Declaring that the German attacks were steadily increasing in scope and intensity, semi-official persons said that the Nazis had definitely abandoned the "passive attitude" they have pursued until recently on the western front.

Seasoned Troops.

The extent of the operations was indicated by the General Staff's communique this morning which said: "Activity of first line elements during the night on several parts of the front between the Moselle and Rhine."

[At Berlin this morning the German High Command declared in a communique that a French plane had been shot down in an aerial fight south of Lauterburg, France; it also reported "minor reconnoitering, troop and artillery activity" on the western front and "a little air scouting activity over the North Sea and in the West."]

Tonight's French communique read:

"Ambushes and patrols on both sides.

"Activity of our advanced elements, notably in the region south of Saarbruecken."

The French declared that the Germans were now employing their most seasoned troops in place of the reservists who slowly retreated before the French during the first weeks of the war.

The scope of the German attacks and the boldness with which they have been executed, combined with heavy artillery fire and air force activity, put the French forces along the entire northeastern frontier on guard against a large scale offensive.

Despite the adverse weather, German observation planes were reported to be increasingly active, though they stayed behind their own lines, taking oblique-angle photographs of the French positions.

The heaviest German assaults, it was indicated, have occurred in the vicinity of Saarbruecken and Pirmasens, where the French have driven closest to the outer fortifications of the Siegfried Line. Bitter fighting was also reported in the area between the Moselle and the Saar on the French left wing.

At some points in these sectors there is a gap of from ten to fourteen miles between the French advance positions on German soil and the Maginot Line.

Most of the German attacks, the French said, have been launched shortly before dawn or just after dusk, when thickening fogs cloak the movements of their patrols. German raiders managed to reach the French trenches at some points, it was reported, but were wiped out by a sharp cross-fire.

Grenade Throwers.

Barbed wire erected in front of the French positions was said to have been effective at most points in halting the German hand grenade throwers, who have played a prominent part in recent thrusts.

The obvious purpose of the German assaults, French military men declared, was to test the fighting strength of the French line.

French artillery was reported to have crippled the mineral industry in the Saar by constant shelling of roads in the Saarbruecken area. Unconfirmed reports said that British batteries were participating in the action.

Some French military experts estimated that to attack the Maginot Line with any hope of success Germany would have to throw fifty divisions (about 750,000 men) into the assault, with the prospect of losing 500,000 men.

Negotiations under way between Finland and Soviet Russia caused considerable speculation in French circles. Some press commentators suggested that Adolf Hitler might have an understanding with Russia whereby the Soviet would force the hand of the neutral Scandinavian countries in an effort to compel them to cut off trade with the allies and divert their supplies to Germany. These commentators also raised the question of whether France and Great Britain could continue to treat Russia as a neutral if she clashes with Finland.

The French announced officially that their blockading fleet had intercepted to date 150,000 tons of contraband consigned to Germany. This was said to include 40,000 tons of minerals, 40,000 tons of food and 30,000 tons of gasoline and oil.

30,000 ENGLISHMEN REPORTED AT FRONT

Paris Says Troops Have Joined French In Northeastern Sector

Poilus Wrest Offensive From Nazis After Being On Defensive Five Days

[By the Associated Press]

Paris, Friday, Oct. 13—Thirty thousand British troops early today were reported to have joined the French forces on the northeastern German front.

The French resumed their attacks on German lines last night after five days of defensive action, but apparently the British had not yet been thrown into the actual fighting.

The French high command said German attacks at scattered points along the one hundred-mile front between the Moselle and the Rhine rivers had been repulsed.

Operations still fell short of a general offensive, but it was indicated the French had taken the initiative away from the Germans.

Activity Reported

The general staff's communique last night tersely referred to the renewed onslaught as "activity of our advance elements."

Military advices, however, said the French patrols edging through the woods and over the hills of no-man's land between the great fortified rival Maginot and Siegfried lines had engaged in several encounters with the German advance guard.

French reports said German patrols suffered "hundreds" of casualties when on the offensive, and the French very few.

Yesterday's major engagements took place south of Saarbrücken, on the east and west of which the French already have taken advanced positions.

Guarded By Fort

The southern approach to the city is guarded by the Winterberg Fort, one of the principal works of the Siegfried Line.

The first party of nine accredited English war correspondents to visit the Western front returned with word that the line between the Moselle and the Saar rivers was holding firm despite German counter-attacks, which started Sunday and continued until yesterday.

The correspondents entered German territory in the forest midway between the Moselle and the Saar, where the French are holding advanced positions and French artillery intermittently is shelling the opposing lines.

On the diplomatic and political fronts, the French received with gratification Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement before the British House of Commons that the Allies would refuse German peace offers in the absence of definite guarantees.

Premier Daladier summoned the Cabinet to meet with President Lebrun today for a general review of the war and of the situation arising from statements of Daladier and Chamberlain that the next move is up to Germany.

Cabinet To Meet

With the sixth week of the war drawing to a close, the French had yet to take any major objective. They had, however, maintained their positions in advanced posts in the Saar and Palatinate districts.

The general staff's morning communique said German attacks spread all along the front from the Moselle to the Rhine. The sharpest engagement reported was in the Moselle Valley around new French positions north of Perl.

Violence Increasing

Military advices said the German attacks were limited in extent, but increasing in violence.

The Moselle assault assumed the characteristics of a miniature offensive, these reports said, with brief artillery barrages, followed by a charge of infantry companies supported by automatic arms. The French reported the attack repulsed after one of the longest individual engagements yet undertaken.

Intermittent rain and cloudy weather contributed to the effectiveness of the defense.

French Divert Rhine's Waters Against Enemy

Dam Near Swiss Line Closed to Flood Nazi Outposts and Thwart Flank Attack

BASEL, Switzerland, Oct. 12 (AP).—French troops closed the Rhine River dam gates at Kembs, ten miles north of here, today, pushing flood waters high over the shoals opposite Germany's "Rhine gibraltar" at Istein.

The French acted after reports reached here that German forces were working in the shoals under cover of darkness, leading to the belief they might be preparing to cross the Rhine at this tip of the Maginot Line.

Closing of the gates coincided with reports of German attacks against the walled French town of Lauterbourg, 100 miles north along the river.

The series of dams on the Rhine below the great Istein rock, which is now one of the strongest forts of the Limes chain, serve two purposes —feeding the Alsace Canal on the French side which takes traffic around the rapids, and providing electric current for the regions on both sides of the French-German frontier.

The main power dam is operated by a Swiss concern from the French side of the river, but before the war started French Army engineers took over the plant and control of the gates.

German guns at Istein could easily smash open the dam, military advisers pointed out, but until they go into action French engineers can regulate the water flow above the fort. The flood tide not only made a German attack extremely difficult, military advices asid, but would aid the French troops in any surprise advance.

The combination of heavy rainfall and closing of the dam brought the Rhine level up seven and one-half feet within the last week, but had not endangered either the French or German fortifications along the bank.

France's Maginot forts have been adjusted to meet the highest levels the stream has ever attained, while Grman engineers made changes in their fortifications last May, when the Rhine rose more than eleven feet.

German troops made little progress in their Lauterbourg attack reports reaching here said, in the face of a heavy French counter-attack from the Wissembourg-Lauterbourg railroad line along a ridge paralleling the river.

PRESIDENT ASKS CO-ORDINATION OF WAR RELIEF

Roosevelt Urges Avoidance of Confusion and Waste in United States.

FULL STATEMENT IS ISSUED

Compliance With the Neutrality Act Requires Outline of Legal Policy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt urged today that relief agencies collecting funds in this country to aid European war victims co-ordinate their activities with the Red Cross. In a statement issued and drafted with the approval of Secretary Hull and Norman H. Davis, Red Cross chairman, the President said that he hoped that this would be done to "prevent duplication and confusion, avoid waste and promote the utmost efficiency."

Mr. Roosevelt said that in disasters "we naturally turn to the American Red Cross," but that as the war went on, there undoubtedly would be need for relief work in addition to that which comes within the scope of that organization.

"It is my hope," he said, "that in their activities these groups will supplement and not conflict with the work of agencies already established."

Text of Statement.

The text of President Roosevelt's statement on relief activities for European war victims follows:

"The Congress has provided in the act with regard to neutrality that, subject to such rules and regulations as the President shall prescribe, funds may be solicited in this country to be used for medical aid and assistance and for food and clothing to relieve human suffering resulting from war. With a view to safeguarding the public and national interests, the Secretary of State, acting in my behalf, has issued appropriate regulations to which all persons or agencies raising funds for relief, except the American Red Cross, shall be subject.

"While we, as a nation, are neutral in the present tragic war in Europe, I am sure we cannot be indifferent to the suffering inflicted upon the peoples of the war-torn countries, particularly upon the helpless women and children. It is traditional that the American people should wish, after providing in full measure for the support of our necessary charitable endeavors at home, to extend material aid to the helpless victims of war abroad.

"In disasters at home or great emergencies abroad, we naturally turn to the American Red Cross, which has been chartered by Congress as our national relief agency and which represents all of our people, both in war and in peace. We know from its remarkable record of service to humanity both at home and abroad that we can rely upon it to do its part as promptly and efficiently as conditions and its resources make possible.

Appeals Are Answered.

"Through its relationship to the International Red Cross and the League of Red Cross Societies, the American Red Cross has developed procedures of co-operation in the field of foreign relief. Since the beginning of the present European war it has been answering the most urgent appeals for aid, meeting the costs from contributions and its normal funds. It is now consulting with other Red Cross bodies and investigating as to how best to deal with some of the practical difficulties in order to formulate a co-ordinated program and, thus, to meet our share of relief as the needs develop.

"With the continuance of war, human suffering will become more appalling, and there will no doubt be need for relief work in addition to that which comes within the scope of Red Cross policy and responsibility. Groups desiring to carry on various kinds of relief work have, in fact, registered with the Secretary of State, as required by regulations issued pursuant to the neutrality act. It is my hope that in their activities these groups will supplement and not conflict with the work of agencies already established and that there will be a complete co-ordination of effort of all voluntary relief in order to prevent duplication and confusion, avoid waste and promote the utmost efficiency."

REFUGEE LISTS REDUCED

Majority of Americans Home From Europe, Sailings Show

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (AP)—The State Department announced today that "the great majority of American citizens in Europe who required transportation have been taken care of."

The department pointed out that the Acadia left Cobh, Ireland, yesterday with only 520 passengers, although she has a maximum capacity of 860.

The St. John will sail from England on Saturday and is waiting to obtain a full booking.

"These facts," it was stated, "confirm the department's information that each American citizen in belligerent countries desiring to come back has had an opportunity to return to the United States."

Passengers arriving in New York from Europe for the week ended Oct. 6 numbered 6,182. In the week which ended Sept. 29 the number was 6,149. These figures compare with an average of about 9,000 for each of the two preceding weeks.

Senate Debate Again Raises Issue of Aiding the Allies

Bulow Says Discussion Is Veering Away From Neutrality; La Follette Attacks War Boom, Fears for Domestic Problems.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Senator Bulow, Democrat, of South Dakota, opened the eighth day of debate on the neutrality bill today with the argument that a desire on the part of some people to profit on munitions sales was partly responsible for efforts to repeal the arms embargo.

"We cannot close our eyes to the fact that there are people in this country who are interested in making a profit," he said. "They want to sell guns to make a profit even if those guns bathe the earth in mothers' tears."

He asserted that the administration's bill was not likely to protect American neutrality. Many, he continued, had urged repeal of the embargo so this country could aid England and France.

"I decline to do that," he declared. "well and good, but that is not a neutrality bill."

Saying that Congress was called to act on a neutrality bill which would keep the United States out of foreign war, Senator Bulow observed that the debate appeared to be turning away from this purpose and toward aiding the Allies.

"I am wondering after all," he said, "if the main reason as to why we want to repeal the arms embargo is not so much that we want to remain neutral, but that we see an opportunity to make a profit for some of the people of this country if we repeal the embargo.

"It is being contended that some one is going to sell the warring nations arms and that we ought to get in on the ground and get our share of the profit."

Challenged by Burke.

At this point, Senator Burke, Democrat, of Nebraska, who announced yesterday that he was supporting the administration measure not as a neutrality bill but because he believed it was to the interests of this country to aid England and France, challenged Senator Bulow to name any Senator who might be influenced by the profit motive.

Mr. Bulow replied that he had no intention of reflecting on the motives of any Senator, but he insisted that some had contended in private conversations with him that this country should get its share of world trade.

Senator Burke, seeking to clarify his position, asserted that he agreed that the present law was not a neutrality act but one "wholly favorable" to Adolf Hitler. He added that if this country adopted a "do nothing" course in the matter it would be an unneutral act just as much as if the administration's program were enacted.

Senator Bulow contended that the question was whether the United States could stay out of war better by selling arms that will be used to prolong the war than by refusing to sell munitions.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, interjected that he could not believe that the American people "in their idealism" want to put bombs and powder in the hands of anybody "to kill other people."

He recalled that Mr. Burke had told the Senate yesterday that Germans were fine people and added their young men were "just as lovely" as ours.

"The American people don't want their boys to hang their washing on the Siegfried Line," Mr. Wheeler went on, "but they don't want any one else's boys to hang their bodies on the Siegfried Line."

As to 'Hanging Hitler.'

Senator Bulow commented that some people say "we ought to go over and hang Hitler and maybe Hitler ought to be hung."

"But before you can hang a horse thief you've got to catch him," he pointed out, "and we haven't got our hands on Hitler.

"We would have to kill off several million Germans before we could get our hands on him (Hitler)," Mr. Bulow said. "As it looks now, we would also have to kill about 10,000,000 Russians before they would let us hang him."

And, he added, several million American lives would have to be sacrificed.

Interrupting, Senator Reynolds, Democrat, of North Carolina, expressed agreement with Senator Bulow's views and shouted:

"Before we attempt to destroy Hitler and Stalin and Naziism and Communism over there we had better destroy Naziism, Fascism and Communism in the United States."

Senator Bulow then went on to say that the German people themselves would "destroy Hitler in due course of time," but contended that in the meantime it was their own business if they wanted to live under his domination. The same applied to the people of Italy and Russia, he said.

Discussing the plea that Poland ought to be restored, he asserted that that would not be accomplished by "the lords of Britain or the generals of France."

"It will not be the United States, Britain or France that will restore Poland," he said emphatically, "but the youth of Poland."

"I firmly believe," he added, "that France and England are responsible for the destruction of Poland."

Had it not been for the assurances of British and French aid, the Senator contended, Poland would have "patched up" peace with Germany.

Chavez Now Against Repeal.

After Bulow's speech Senator Chavez, Democrat, of New Mexico, told the Senate that propaganda agencies were at work, "furthering and supporting the cause—not of the United States and our peace—but of foreign governments and their war."

"The President has well said that we must be on our guard," Mr. Chavez added. "Do our fellow countrymen realize the grave exigencies of the situation? I doubt it.

The New Mexico Senator said he would discuss specific provisions of the neutrality bill later. For the present, he said, "I raise my voice in protest against any and all action that might bring upon us a war we do not want, we do not need—a war we can avoid."

Although Mr. Chavez previously had been accounted a supporter of embargo repeal, he told the Senate today that "as far as I am concerned I will vote to keep out of war and against repeal of the embargo."

La Follette Attacks Repeal.

Senator La Follette, Progressive, of Wisconsin, told the Senate that repeal of the arms embargo, as proposed in the administrations' neutrality bill, might cripple the American defense program.

The Wisconsin Senator, who usually supports Roosevelt legislation, asserted that complex domestic problems were being "relegated to the limbo of forgotten things" by what he described as a step toward partial participation in the European war.

Instead of taking this step, he argued, the United States should concentrate its efforts on building up in this hemisphere an economy which would provide the stimulus for a sound business recovery.

He asserted the records of the munitions investigation committee showed that when this country went into the world war it found its munitions plants tooled to turn out foreign products which the army considered inferior to our own.

"This experience will most likely be repeated today if the embargo is repealed," he declared. "When we ourselves need arms, our factories will be tooled to produce foreign types of arms and munitions. We may find our plane plants tooled to make airplanes a year or two old instead of the most modern type. In short, repeal of the arms embargo may mean a crippling of our own national defense program."

'Not the Real Reasons.'

He said that there were "widespread apprehensions that the reasons given by many for the repeal of the embargo are not the real reasons.

"There are several reasons for this apprehension," he said. "The administration's domestic policies have not been wholly successful. There were many causes for the partial failure of the administration's domestic program. Some of them were beyond its control.

"Congress had its share in the depression which began again in 1937. But the end result, for which the voters will generally hold the administration responsible, has not been wholly successful.

"There is a great temptation for people weary of the struggle against the domestic economic crisis to find escape in the war crisis in Europe.

"Unemployment, farm prices, mortgage foreclosures, idle capital, idle plant capacity are no longer topics of chief concern. There are ominous suggestions that a war boom would help to solve our problems. Even the President's message on the neutrality issue was not free from this taint. In this direction lies disaster. In large measure the problems we face today are due to the distortion of our entire economic life produced by the last war.

30-24-4011

30-24-4011

"I repudiate the idea that we cannot solve our problems here at home without resort to the stimulus to business brought about by the wholesale slaughter of human beings in Europe."

Proposes Alternative.

Senator La Follette proposed, as a "constructive alternative," that the United States devote some of its resources to raising the standard of living in Latin American countries.

"Our financial assistance for this purpose would make possible an increased demand for American exports, incidentally helping us to secure full employment," he predicted.

"I recognize that the difficulties of our trade with Latin America have centered around the fact that she produces raw materials and agricultural products. I do not favor our capital going down there to further development of those materials, of which both they and we have enough. I make exceptions for the development of rubber and tin, materials which we can both use more of.

"I am not recommending a policy of rash, quick loaning to buy favors. But I do think we can adjust the past debts with Latin America much as we adjusted our international debts when the banks went under."

Senator La Follette argued that there was a great distinction between supplying finished arms to belligerents, as would be possible under the administration's bill, and selling them only raw materials as permitted under the present law. He contended that the arms trade was largely instrumental in taking this country into the world war.

Fears Dictatorship Here.

He charged that "several discretionary loopholes" in the administration bill would be sufficient to allow incidents which might lead the United States into war.

Discussing the consequences of involvement of this country in the European conflict, he asserted that it would kill democracy here, bring about the conscription of labor, in a general suspension of civil liberties, ruin the nation's economy, and leave the United States in the grip of a permanent dictatorship.

"Our patriotic course is clear," he declared. "It is to stay out of Europe and the Far East, which would drain our blood, our manhood, and our wealth forever. It is to concentrate on making democracy function here in the last great industrial nation which has a chance of making it function in the modern machine world."

Bailey Offers Shipping Data.

Senator Bailey, Democrat, of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, declared today that the shipping provisions of the administration's neutrality bill would disrupt American commerce and "destroy much of the American merchant marine."

He made the assertion in a statement prepared from data supplied by the Maritime Commission.

Senator Pittman, Democrat, of Nevada, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, put the statement in the Senate record at the opening of today's session. Mr. Pittman said that although he did not agree with Mr. Bailey's estimate of potential losses to shipping, he considered it an able statement.

"Undoubtedly the most far-reaching provision of the pending bill," Mr. Bailey said, "is the prohibition against shipping any article or material in American vessels to a belligerent country. It appears that this provision will disrupt American commerce and will destroy much of the American merchant marine.

"No reason appears why our ships should keep off practically all the highways of the seas because a few sea-lanes are blocked, or purported to be blocked, by belligerent countries; nor why normal intercourse between nations at peace should be disrupted."

Forecasts Tie-up of Vessels.

He forecast these results as among those likely to come from enactment of the bill in its present form:

"Approximately 130 American dry cargo, combination, or passenger ships of about 860,000 gross tons would be withdrawn from service. The lines upon which the great majority of these ships operate would be abandoned.

"In addition to the 130 ships in foreign trade, sixteen American ships of approximately 80,000 gross tons (dry cargo and tank vessels usually considered a part of our coastwise fleet but principally engaged in trade between Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific ports of the United States and Canadian ports) could no longer operate as at present.

"Estimates indicate that between 165 and 170 American dry cargo, combination or passenger ships of about 1,100,000 gross tons could continue to operate in foreign trade, much as at present, although more than half of these (in number and tonnage) would be adversely affected, some seriously.

"The uncertainty as to the future of some of these operations, however, is illustrated by the fact that if it became necessary to enter a 'combat area' to serve Mediterranean ports, twenty vessels of 108,000 gross tons immediately would be withdrawn, and seven other vessels of 74,000 gross tons would have to be rerouted so drastically it is possible their continued operation might no longer be practicable."

Efforts to modify the shipping provisions came from half a dozen Senators on both sides of the arms embargo controversy. In conferences with Senator Pittman they proposed a variety of changes.

Effect on Business Feared.

In his statement, Mr. Bailey contended that besides directly injuring the merchant marine the shipping restrictions would have a damaging effect on business generally.

"It appears probable," he said, "that the net result of the proposed 'shipping to belligerents ban' will run the risk of a return to the conditions of 1914-1918 when American products of farm and factory were piled on wharves and in warehouses for want of adequate shipping facilities or for markets which could afford to absorb the shipping rates; also a return to scarcity and high cost of essential import materials.

"These results may be so damaging to our domestic economy that the proposed neutrality law, if enacted, will have to be changed. By that time, however, American industry, exporters and ship owners will have suffered enormous loss.

"The United States has invested large sums in the development of trade routes from which it is now proposed to withdraw our ships. No record is found of any such withdrawal by the Central country, whether strong or weak, in advance of actual danger.

"It is now proposed to write off this cost in the interest of neutrality on the assumption that American ships trading with certain so-called 'belligerents' will bring us nearer to war.

"Even if it be assumed that the presence of American ships in war zones contributed in some degree to our involvement in the world war, it cannot be claimed with justice that those trading to outlying 'belligerent' countries contributed to such involvement."

BY ROBERT ROBINSON

LONDON, OCT. 12-(AP)-BRITAIN STERNLY REFUSED TODAY TO MAKE ANY PEACE WITH ADOLF HITLER BASED ON "RECOGNITION OF HIS CONQUESTS AND HIS RIGHT TO DO WHAT HE PLEASES WITH THE CONQUERED."

GRIM-VOICED PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN OFFERED THE GERMAN FUEHRER A CHOICE BETWEEN A REAL AND LASTING PEACE BACKED BY "EFFECTIVE GUARANTEES" OR A WAR IN WHICH FRANCE AND BRITAIN "MUST PERSEVERE IN THEIR DUTY TO THE END."

ALMOST IN THE NEXT BREATH, HOWEVER, THE PRIME MINISTER EXPRESSED DOUBT HITLER COULD GIVE SUCH GUARANTEES, DECLARING TO THE HOUSE OF COMMONS:

"THE PLAIN TRUTH IS THAT, AFTER OUR PAST EXPERIENCE, IT IS NO LONGER POSSIBLE TO RELY UPON THE UNSUPPORTED WORD OF THE PRESENT GERMAN GOVERNMENT."

IT WAS CHAMBERLAIN'S FIRST SPEECH SINCE HITLER IN THE REICHSTAG LAST FRIDAY OUTLINED HIS IDEAS FOR A EUROPEAN PEACE AND, WITH PREMIER DALADIER'S TUESDAY BROADCAST, CONSTITUTED THE ALLIED REPLY TO THE FUEHRER'S PROPOSALS.

WITHOUT FIXING SPECIFIC CONDITIONS, CHAMBERLAIN SAID, "EITHER THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT MUST GIVE CONVINCING PROOF OF THE SINCERITY OF THEIR DESIRE FOR PEACE BY DEFINITE ACTS AND BY THE PROVISION OF EFFECTIVE GUARANTEES OF THEIR INTENTION TO FULFILL THEIR UNDERTAKINGS OR WE MUST PERSEVERE IN OUR DUTY TO THE END.

"IT IS FOR GERMANY TO MAKE THE CHOICE."

AS THE ROAR OF "HEAR, HEARS" DIED AWAY, MEMBERS OF THE OPPOSITION WERE ON THEIR FEET DEMANDING A MORE DEFINITE OUTLINE OF BRITAIN'S WAR AIMS.

CHAMBERLAIN INDICATED HE WOULD MAKE ANOTHER STATEMENT NEXT WEDNESDAY. BY THEN BRITAIN WILL HAVE HAD OPPORTUNITY TO RECEIVE [illegible] REPORTS FROM ROME SAID WAS BEARING AN AIDE MEMOIRE GIVING PREMIER MUSSOLINI'S VIEWS ON PEACE PROPOSALS AND AN INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE.

THE 70-YEAR-OLD PRIME MINISTER READ HIS ANSWER TO HITLER IN PRECISE EMPHATIC TONES--MORE VIGOROUS AND MORE DRAMATIC THAN THOSE HE USUALLY EMPLOYS.

HE SNAPPED HIS WORDS AS HE SAID THE PROPOSALS IN HITLER'S SPEECH WERE "VAGUE AND UNCERTAIN AND CONTAIN NO SUGGESTION FOR RIGHTING THE WRONGS DONE TO CZECHO-SLOVAKIA AND POLAND."

GRIPPING ONE HAND IN THE OTHER HE ADDED SHARPLY "WE MUST TAKE IT THEN THAT THE PROPOSALS WHICH THE GERMAN CHANCELLOR PUTS FORWARD FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF WHAT HE CALLS THE 'CERTAINTY OF EUROPEAN SECURITY' ARE TO BE BASED ON RECOGNITION OF HIS CONQUESTS AND HIS RIGHT TO DO WHAT HE PLEASES WITH THE CONQUERED."

"IT WOULD BE IMPOSSIBLE FOR GREAT BRITAIN TO ACCEPT ANY SUCH BASIS WITHOUT FORFEITING HER HONOR AND ABANDONING HER CLAIM THAT INTERNATIONAL DISPUTES SHOULD BE SETTLED BY DISCUSSION AND NOT BY FORCE."

CHAMBERLAIN'S VOICE SANK LOW AS HE PREDICTED "WHATEVER MAY BE THE ISSUE OF THE PRESENT STRUGGLE AND IN WHATEVER WAY IT MAY BE BROUGHT TO A CONCLUSION THE WORLD WILL NOT BE THE SAME WORLD THATVE HAVE KNOWN BEFORE."

QUESTIONS BY MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT FOR A MORE SPECIFIC DEFINITION OF BRITISH WAR AIMS DREW FROM FOREIGN SECRETARY LORD HALIFAX THE ASSERTION THAT WHEN THE MEMBERS WERE "ABLE TO STUDY THE STATEMENT

"WE BELIEVE THAT NO EFFECTIVE REMEDY CAN BE FOUND FOR THE WORLD'S ILLS THAT DOES NOT TAKE ACCOUNT OF THE JUST CLAIMS AND NEEDS OF ALL COUNTRIES," CHAMBERLAIN SAID.

"IT WAS NOT, THEREFORE, WITH ANY VINDICTIVE PURPOSE THAT WE EMBARKED ON WAR, BUT SIMPLY IN DEFENSE OF FREEDOM."

"HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT KNOW ALL TOO WELL THAT IN MODERN WAR BETWEEN GREAT POWERS, VICTOR AND VANQUISHED MUST ALIKE SUFFER CRUEL LOSS," HE CONTINUED. "BUT SURRENDER TO WRONG DOING WOULD SPELL THE EXTINCTION OF ALL HOPE AND THE ANNIHILATION OF ALL THOSE VALUES OF LIFE WHICH HAVE THROUGH CENTURES BEEN AT ONCE THE MARK AND THE INSPIRATION OF HUMAN PROGRESS."

"PAST EXPERIENCE HAS SHOWN THAT NO RELIANCE CAN BE PLACED UPON THE PROMISES OF THE PRESENT GERMAN GOVERNMENT," THE PRIME MINISTER DECLARED. "ACCORDINGLY, ACTS--NOT WORDS ALONE--MUST BE FORTHCOMING BEFORE, WE, THE BRITISH PEOPLES, AND FRANCE, OUR GALLANT AND TRUSTED ALLY, WOULD E JU TIFIED IN CEASING TO WAGE WAR TO THE UTMOST OF OUR [illegible]."

CLEMENT R.ATLEE, LABORITE LEADER, ASSERTED, "WE ARE ASKED TO CONDONE A CRIME AND TO TRUST THE CRIMINAL. NO BRITISH GOVERNMENT COULD MAKE ANSWER OTHER THAN THAT WHICH THE PRIME MINISTER HAS GIVEN."

LABORITE SIR STAFFORD CRIPPS SAID ONLY TWO FORMS OF INTERNATIONAL GUARANTEES WERE POSSIBLE:

"THE FIRST IS AN ALIGNMENT OF S RONG AND OVERWHELMING FORCE ON THE SIDE OF THE PERSON SEEKING THE GUARANTEE; THE SECOND IS THE SETTING UP OF SOME FORM OF FEDERATION OR LEAGUE IN WHICH THE INDIVIDUAL STATES RESIGNED SOME MEASURE OF THEIR NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY FOR THE SAKE OF PEACE."

BERLIN, OCT.12-(AP)-WHILE GERMANY'S WAR CHIEFS SHAPED THEIR PLANS TODAY ON THE PRESUMPTION THE WAR MUST RUN ITS COURSE, DIPLOMATIC CIRCLES WAITED FOR A HINT AND, POSSIBLY, A CONCLUSIVE ANSWER FROM LONDON ON ADOLF HITLER'S CONDITIONAL OFFER OF PEACE.

GERMANY MUST HAVE BRITISH PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN'S COMMENT TODAY TO THE HOUSE OF COMMONS, POLITICAL COMMENTATORS SAID, BEFORE DECIDING WHETHER HITLER'S OFFER SHOULD BE REGARDED AS ACCEPTED OR REJECTED.

UNLESS THE BRITISH PRIME MINISTER TAKES A FLAT AND EMPHATIC STAND AGAINST NEGOTIATIONS ALONG LINES SUGGESTED BY THE FUEHRER'S REICHSTAG SPEECH LAST FRIDAY, GERMANY'S DECISION MAY NOT BE KNOWN IMMEDIATELY, INFORMED SOURCES SAID.

IF THE BRITISH STATEMENT WERE CHARACTERIZED BY THE "VAGUENESS" WHICH GERMANS HAVE ATTRIBUTED TO FRENCH PREMIER DALADIER'S RADIO ADDRESS TUESDAY, THEY SAID, IT WOULD HAVE TO BE THE SUBJECT OF CLOSE SCRUTINY BY HITLER AND HIS ADVISERS.

THEY POINTED OUT THAT THERE HAD BEEN A CONSIDERABLE CHANGE IN THE GERMAN ATTITUDE TOWARD DALADIER'S DEMAND FOR A "GUARANTEE OF SECURITY." FIRST REACTIONS, THEY SAID, WERE MORE FAVORABLE THAN JUDGMENTS REACHED AFTER CAREFUL STUDY OF THE ADDRESS.

HITLER'S VOELKISCHER BEOBACHTER, COMMENTING ON THE FRENCH PREMIER'S ADDRESS, CALLED IT TOO GENERAL TO BE REGARDED AS A FINAL ANSWER TO THE FUEHRER.

THE NEWSPAPER AGREED WITH DALADIER, HOWEVER, THAT EUROPE "NEEDS A WELL PROTECTED PEACE" ALTHOUGH IT DECLARED "THE DARK ERA OF VERSAILLES WAS NO PEACE BUT A CONTINUATION OF WAR."

GERMAN NAVAL AUTHORITIES, MEANWHILE, WERE NOT WAITING FOR THE SLOW PROCESSES OF DIPLOMACY TO REACH A CONCLUSION.

INFORMED SOURCES, IN COMMENTING ON THE SITUATION IN THE BALTIC WHERE THE FINNISH-RUSSIAN NEGOTIATIONS HAVE CAUSED NERVOUSNESS AMONG THE NORTHERN COUNTRIES, SAID THAT THEY HAD HEARD THE SCANDINAVIAN STATES WOULD APPEAL TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TO INITIATE A PEACE MOVE, BUT THAT OFFICIALLY NOTHING WAS KNOWN.

IF THESE REPORTS WERE TRUE, HOWEVER, THEY SAID, THEN THAT WAS ONE POSITIVE REACTION TO HITLER'S REICHSTAG APPEAL OF LAST FRIDAY.

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, AN ARMY HIGH COMMAND COMMUNIQUE ASSERTED THERE WAS ONLY MINOR SCOUTING AND ARTILLERY ACTIVITY, WITH SOME AERIAL SCOUTING OVER THE NORTH SEA AND IN THE WEST. IT SAID ONE FRENCH PLANE HAD BEEN SHOT DOWN.

IN THE EAST, IT SAID, "THE BUG RIVER WAS REACHED AT SEVERAL POINTS IN CENTRAL POLAND."

KATOWICE PASSED FROM GERMANY TO POLAND IN 1922 AS THE RESULT OF THE SILESIAN PLEBISCITE.

BEFORE THE CITY HAD BEEN OCCUPIED BY GERMAN TROOPS FOR TWO WEEKS, IT LOOKED AND WAS BEGINNING TO ACT LIKE A NAZI TOWN. SWASTIKA FLAGS HUNG IN THE WINDOWS; A MAIN THOROUGHFARE WAS NAMED "ADOLF HITLERSTRASSE," AND THE WORK OF ERASING POLISH LETTERING FROM SHOPS AND WINDOWS WAS WELL UNDER WAY.

WITH THE PRESSURE ON THE INDUSTRIAL REGION TO MEET HIGH PRODUCTION LEVELS SET BY GERMANY'S ECONOMIC PLAN AND WAR REQUIREMENTS, LINES OF LABORERS WAIT AT FACTORY GATES ONLY LONG ENOUGH FOR FOREMEN TO TELL THEM WHERE THEY ARE TO GO TO WORK.

THIS REGION IS NOT GETTING THE VELVET GLOVE TREATMENT ACCORDED THE SUDETENLAND AND AUSTRIA THE FIRST FEW MONTHS AFTER THEIR INCORPORATION INTO THE REICH.

AT THAT TIME WHILE THE REST OF THE GERMANY WAS ON A BUTTER RATION AND HAD GIVEN UP CREAM, EXEMPTIONS WERE MADE IN THE SUDETENLAND AND AUSTRIA.

WASHINGTON, OCT. 12-(AP)-SWINGING INTO DIPLOMATIC ACTION IN BEHALF OF FINLAND, THE UNITED STATES URGED RUSSIA, IN EFFECT, TODAY NOT TO PRESS ANY DEMANDS WHICH WOULD LEAD TO STRIFE WITH HER LITTLE BALTIC NEIGHBOR.

OCT 13 1939

WHILE FINLAND PREPARED TO RESIST ANY DEMANDS SUCH AS HAVE MADE ESTONIA, LATVIA AND LITHUANIA VIRTUAL PROTECTORATES OF SOVIET RUSSIA, UNITED STATES AMBASSADOR LAURENCE STEINHARDT CALLED AT THE KREMLIN IN MOSCOW. LATER THE STATE DEPARTMENT HERE GAVE THIS EXPLANATION OF HIS MISSION:

"THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES HAS EXPRESSED TO THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS ITS EARNEST HOPE THAT NOTHING WOULD OCCUR THAT WOULD BE CALCULATED TO AFFECT INJURIOUSLY THE PEACEFUL RELATIONS BETWEEN SOVIET RUSSIA AND FINLAND.

"THIS IS A UNILATERAL AND ENTIRELY INDEPENDENT ACTION OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT."

30.24-4019

30.24-4019

THE LAST SENTENCE WAS APPARENTLY APPENDED TO MAKE CLEAR THAT THE AMERICAN MOVE HAD NO CONNECTION WITH SIMILAR STEPS TAKEN BY NORWAY, SWEDEN AND DENMARK. THOSE NATIONS EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT RUSSO-FINNISH NEGOTIATIONS NOW IN PROGRESS WOULD SPELL NO DANGER TO FINLAND'S INDEPENDENCE OR NEUTRALITY.

THE UNITED STATES ACTION TODAY WAS THE SECOND MOVE INVOLVING RUSSIA IN THE PAST FEW DAYS. THE FIRST WAS A STATEMENT OF SECRETARY OF STATE HULL THAT THIS GOVERNMENT REFUSED TO RECOGNIZE THE DISAPPEARANCE OF POLAND, DESPITE ITS PARTITION BY GERMANY AND RUSSIA.

ON CAPITOL HILL, WHERE FINLAND HAS CREATED MUCH GOOD WILL BY PAYING HER WAR DEBTS ON THE DOT, THE AVAILABLE COMMENT ON TODAY'S MOVE APPEARED FAVORABLE. SPEAKER BANKHEAD SAID HE CONSIDERED FINLAND "ADMIRABLE FROM A FISCAL STANDPOINT--SMALL BUT HONEST." HE SAID HE WAS FOR "PEACE IN THE WHOLE WORLD, OR IN PIECES OF THE WORLD, IF WE CAN GET IT WITHOUT INVOLVEMENT."

DISCUSSING THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S STAND IN THE FINNISH-RUSSIAN SITUATION, CHAIRMAN PITTMAN (D-NEV) OF THE SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE TOLD REPORTERS IT WAS "IN ACCORD WITH THE CUSTOMARY EXCHANGES BETWEEN FRIENDLY GOVERNMENTS."

"IT IS ENTIRELY APPROPRIATE TO TAKE SUCH A STEP BEFORE A WAR BEGINS," HE SAID. "IT MIGHT BE REGARDED AS INTERVENTION AFTER WAR HAD BEEN DECLARED."

PITTMAN ASSERTED THAT THIS NATION "HAS A HIGH REGARD FOR FINLAND BECAUSE OF THE HONORABLE WAY IN WHICH IT HAS PAID ITS DEBTS."

MEANTIME, IT SEEMED THAT PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN'S SPEECH TURNING DOWN CHANCELLOR HITLER'S PEACE TERMS HAD ELIMINATED ANY CHANCE THAT THE UNITED STATES WOULD INTERVENE AS A MEDIATOR SOON IN THE EUROPEAN WAR. BERLIN HAD INDICATED THAT IT WOULD WELCOME SUCH ACTION, BUT INFORMED PERSONS HERE HAD PREDICTED THAT THIS GOVERNMENT WOULD MAKE NO MOVE FOR AN ARMISTICE UNLESS ASSURED IN ADVANCE THAT IT WOULD BE ACCEPTABLE TO THE ALLIES.

SENATOR BARKLEY (D-KY), THE MAJORITY LEADER, SAID THE CHAMBERLAIN SPEECH HAD DECREASED CHANCES FOR AN ARMISTICE BECAUSE "CHAMBERLAIN MADE IT CLEAR HE DIDN'T WANT PEACE ON HITLER'S TERMS."

SENATOR KING (D-UTAH) SAID THAT IF RUSSIA AND GERMANY INTERPRETED THE CHAMBERLAIN SPEECH TO MEAN WAR TO THE DEATH ON "HITLERISM", A "PEACE OFFENSIVE" BY NEUTRALS WOULD BE USELESS, BUT THAT IF HITLER AND STALIN STILL SHOWED A DESIRE TO NEGOTIATE, NEUTRALS MIGHT PROPOSE A CONFERENCE TO "PAVE THE WAY FOR A REDUCTION OF ARMAMENTS AND A SOUND PEACE."

ATTORNEY GENERAL MURPHY HAS REQUESTED THAT ALL CITIZENS NOTIFY THE NEAREST FBI OFFICE OF SUSPECTED SPIES AND SABOTEURS.

J.EDGAR HOOVER, DIRECTOR OF THE FBI, SAID THAT THE HUNDREDS OF LETTERS OF SUGGESTIONS AND COMPLAINTS RECEIVED WOULD BE GIVEN "PROPER INVESTIGATIVE ATTENTION."

"THE NATION IS SAFER FROM SPIES AND SABOTEURS THAN IT HAS BEEN IN TIME OF WAR RAGING ON ANY CONTINENT," HOOVER SAID.

IN THE WORLD WAR, HE SAID, THE FBI HAD TO EXPAND OVERNIGHT TO 1,500 MEN, BUT NOW FOR SEVERAL YEARS, ARMY AND NAVY INTELLIGENCE OFFICERS AND THE FBI HAVE BEEN COOPERATING IN INVESTIGATIONS AND EXCHANGING INFORMATION.

BOTH HE AND MURPHY HAVE DECLARED THAT MANY WELL-KNOWN FOREIGN AGENTS ALREADY ARE UNDER OBSERVATION.

FIRST LEAD WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

BRITISH PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN REJECTED NAZI LEADER HITLER'S PEACE PROPOSALS TODAY, AS DID FRENCH PREMIER DALADIER ON TUESDAY.

MR.CHAMBERLAIN HOWEVER SAID IN EFFECT THAT GERMANY COULD HAVE PEACE IF IT MADE PROPER REPARATIONS WITH SUFFICIENT GUARANTEES FOR FUTURE GOOD CONDUCT.

IN OTHER WORDS, WHILE HE FOUND NO BASIS FOR PEACE DISCUSSIONS IN THE NAZI FUEHRER'S TERMS, THE DOOR WAS STILL OPEN IF HITLER WOULD CLIMB DOWN FAR ENOUGH.

THE PRIME MINISTER SPEAKS IN THE METICULOUS AND GUARDED MANNER OF A LONDON SOLICITOR DRAWING UP AN IMPORTANT WILL, AND IT ISN'T ALWAYS EASY TO PUT HIS WORDS INTO THE LANGUAGE OF THE MERE LAYMAN, BUT THESE WOULD SEEM TO BE THE ESSENTIAL POINTS HE MADE IN ADDRESSING THE HOUSE OF COMMONS:

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE FOR ENGLAND TO ACCEPT SUCH A BASIS FOR PEACE AS HITLER PROPOSED "WITHOUT FORFEITING HER HONOR." FOR ONE THING HITLER'S TERMS WERE PREMISED ON ALLIED ACCEPTANCE OF THE PARTITION OF POLAND.

"IT IS NO LONGER POSSIBLE TO RELY UPON THE UNSUPPORTED WORD OF THE PRESENT GERMAN GOVERNMENT."

"EITHER THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT MUST GIVE CONVINCING PROOF OF THE SINCERITY OF THEIR DESIRE FOR PEACE BY DEFINITE ACTS AND BY THE PROVISION OF EFFECTIVE GUARANTEES OF THEIR INTENTION TO FULFILL THEIR UNDERTAKINGS OR WE MUST PERSEVERE IN OUR DUTY TO THE END."

BY "DEFINITE ACTS" THE PREMIER PRESUMABLY WAS DEMANDING THAT GERMANY, FOR ONE THING, WITHDRAW FROM POLAND AS A FORERUNNER OF

30.24-4021

30.24-4021

PEACE DISCUSSIONS.

THERE WAS INDICATION, TOO, THAT HE HAD GERMAN REPARATIONS TO CZECHO-SLOVAKIA IN MIND, SINCE HE ASSERTED THAT HITLER'S PROPOSALS WERE "VAGUE AND UNCERTAIN AND CONTAIN NO SUGGESTIONS FOR RIGHTING THE WRONGS DONE TO CZECHO-SLOVAKIA AND POLAND."

BUT EVEN HAD HITLER MADE PROPOSALS FOR RIGHTING THE WRONGS OF THESE TWO COUNTRIES, CONTINUED CHAMBERLAIN, "IT WOULD STILL BE NECESSARY TO ASK BY WHAT PRACTICAL MEANS THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT INTENDS TO CONVINCE THE WORLD THAT AGGRESSIONS WILL CEASE AND THAT PLEDGES WILL BE KEPT."

THERE WAS NO INDICATION OF WHAT "PRACTICAL MEANS" MR.CHAMBERLAIN HAD IN MIND. IT MIGHT BE MANY THINGS, INCLUDING THE FORCED RETIREMENT OF HITLER, SINCE THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES HAVE REPEATEDLY SAID THAT THEY ARE OUT TO "CRUSH HITLERISM." THIS POINT MUST REMAIN UNANSWERED FOR THE MOMENT.

TO SUM UP:- THE ALLIES WON'T ACCEPT HITLER'S PRESENT TERMS. GERMANY CAN HAVE PEACE BUT IT WILL HAVE TO CLIMB DOWN A LONG WAY, MAKE REPARATIONS AND GIVE GUARANTEES WHICH WILL SATISFY THE ALLIES THAT ENDURING PEACE IS ENSURED.

OCT 13 1939

OTHERWISE THE WAR GOES ON.

WHILE CHAMBERLAIN WAS SPEAKING, GERMANY'S WAR CHIEFS WERE SHAPING THEIR PLANS ON THE ASSUMPTION THAT THE WAR MUST RUN ITS COURSE, SINCE THEY ANTICIPATED A NEGATIVE REPLY FROM LONDON TO THE PEACE PROPOSALS.

WZ12A2PEC

STORM CLOUDS HUNG OVER THE BALTIC TODAY AS THE FINNISH ENVOYS WENT INTO CONFERENCE WITH THE SOVIET AUTHORITIES AT MOSCOW TO LEARN WHAT IT IS THAT RUSSIA SEEKS FROM FINLAND AFTER HAVING ESTABLISHED VIRTUAL PROTECTORATES OVER NEIGHBORING ESTONIA, LATVIA AND LITHUANIA.

STURDY LITTLE FINLAND PREPARED TO FIGHT AGAINST TERRITORIAL DEMANDS. HER MENFOLK SENT THEIR WOMEN AND CHILDREN FROM THE CITIES INTO THE GREATER SAFETY OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, AND THEN STOOD BY THEIR ARMS.

SO SERIOUS WAS THE SITUATION REGARDED THAT THE POSSIBILITY OF AMERICAN DIPLOMATIC ACTION IN EVENT OF A RUSSO-FINNISH CRISIS WAS BEING DISCUSSED IN OFFICIAL QUARTERS IN WASHINGTON.

NORWAY, SWEDEN AND DENMARK ALSO WERE SAID TO BE PREPARED TO MOVE FOR PEACE IF THIS SEEMED ADVISABLE.

IN VIEW OF THE NEWS FROM WASHINGTON ONE CAN'T REFRAIN FROM MENTIONING HOW FINLAND RELIGIOUSLY PAID HER WAR-DEBT INSTALMENTS TO AMERICA EVEN IN THE HARDEST DAYS OF THE DEPRESSION--A HEROIC TASK FOR A COUNTRYTHAT IS SMALL AND WRESTS MUCH OF ITS LIVELIHOOD FROM A GRUDGING SOIL. MAYBE THOSE DEBT PAYMENTS WILL PROVE TO HAVE BEEN BREAD CAST UPON THE WATERS.

OCT 13 1939

THE CIRCUMSTANCES SURROUNDING THE RUSSO-FINNISH PARLEY CERTAINLY WERE NOT CALCULATED TO ALLAY THE FEARS OF THE VISITORS. RUSSIAN TROOPS WERE PREPARING TO TAKE OVER THE MILITARY BASES GRANTED BY THE THREE BALTIC STATES. AND IT WAS REPORTED THAT THE SOVIETIZING OF THE TRIO ALREADY WAS UNDER WAY.

THE ASTONISHING MANNER IN WHICH SOVIET RUSSIA IS EXTENDING ITS DOMINATION WESTWARD, INTO WHAT GERMANY HAD CONSIDERED HER PRESERVES, ENTITLES ONE TO WONDER JUST WHO INAUGURATED THE NAZI-COMMUNIST AMENITIES WHICH STARTED ALL THIS.

WAS IT NAZI FUEHRER HITLER WHO ASKED COMMUNIST LEADER STALIN TO HAV A DRINK, OR WAS IT STALIN WHO BECKONED HITLER TO REST HIS FOOT ON THE RAIL? AND WAS THE ONE WHO EXTENDED THE INVITATION WEARING A GUN?

THE ONLY THING WE KNOW IS THAT, WHOEVER ORDERED THE DRINKS, HITLER WOULD SEEM TO HAVE PAID FOR THEM THUS FAR. HE HAS THROWN THE PARTY.

THE QUESTION OF WHO MADE THE FIRST MOVE ISN'T TRIVIAL. IF WE COULD LEARN WHETHER BY ANY ODD CHANCE COMPULSION WAS USED BY EITHER SIDE TO CREATE THE RUSSO-GERMAN ANTI-AGGRESSION PACT WHICH PRECEDED THE PARTITION OF POLAND, THEN WE COULD MAKE A MUCH BETTER GUESS AS TO WHO (IF ANYBODY) WILL WIN THE WAR. IT CERTAINLY WOULD BE EASIER TO SEE WHERE GERMANY IS GOING TO WIND UP.

IN ANY EVENT, THE BIG WINNER UP TO THIS POINT IS STALIN.

APROPOS OF THIS, AN AUTHORITATIVE SOURCE IN ROME SAID THE OTHER DAY THAT ITALY WOULD SEEK TO LIMIT THE WAR BY EVERY POSSIBLE MEANS, WHILE WATCHING FOR A PRACTICABLE OPPORTUNITY TO PROMOTE PEACE. THIS POLICY, IT WAS SAID, WAS BASED ON THE CONVICTION THAT IN A PROLONGED WAR THE MOST LIKELY WINNER WOULD BE BOLSHEVISM.

THAT IS PRETTY STRONG MUSTARD, COMING AS IT DOES FROM THE SOUTHERN PARTNER IN THE BERLIN-ROME AXIS.

OCT 13 1939

THIS IDEA ISN'T UNIQUE TO ROME BY ANY MEANS. MANY OBSERVERS HAVE BEEN EXPRESSING THE BELIEF THAT STALIN HAS AT LEAST TEMPORARILY GAINED A BIG ADVANTAGE IN THE RUSSO-GERMAN HORSE-DEAL.

THEY FIGURE THAT HE WILL USE HIS GREATLY STRENGTHENED POSITION NOT ONLY TO EXTEND SOVIET INFLUENCE THROUGHOUT EASTERN EUROPE AND THE BALKANS, BUT TO PLAY GERMANY AND THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES AGAINST EACH OTHER TO THE ULTIMATE DISCOMFIT OF BOTH SIDES AND THE VAST GAIN OF THE SOVIET UNION.

IN THIS CONNECTION IT IS HIGHLY INTERESTING TO NOTE THE TRADE AGREEMENT ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY BETWEEN RUSSIA AND ENGLAND. WHETHER THIS IN ANY WAY SUPPORTS THE IDEA THAT MOSCOW IS PLAYING BOTH ENDS AGAINST THE MIDDLE REMAINS TO BE SEEN. CERTAINLY IT IS CLEAR THAT THE SOVIET IS DOING BUSINESS WITH BOTH SIDES, AS IS ITS UNDOUBTED PREROGATIVE.

THE ASSUMPTION IS WIDESPREAD THAT STALIN DESIRES TO PREVENT EITHER GERMANY OR THE ANGLO-FRENCH BROTHERHOOD FROM ESTABLISHING DOMINATION IN EUROPE. HE MAY RESERVE THAT ROLE FOR RUSSIA, OR IN ANY EVENT DESIRE TO OPEN THE WAY FOR EXPANSION OF COMMUNIST INFLUENCE IN WESTERN EUROPE.

OCT 13 1939

WITH THIS AS AN OBJECTIVE, SAY MANY OF THE PROPHETS, MOSCOW WILL GIVE GERMANY AND PERHAPS THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES SUFFICIENT SUPPORT TO KEEP THE WAR-BALL ROLLING UNTIL BOTH SIDES ARE EXHAUSTED. THAT IN THEORY WOULD LEAVE RUSSIA IN AN ENVIABLE POSITION OF STRENGTH AND PREPARED TO GLEAN ANY PROFIT WHICH MIGHT GROW OUT OF THE CONFLICT.

AS REGARDS THE UNDERLYING FEELING BETWEEN RUSSIA AND GERMANY--SO HOSTILE TO EACH OTHER UNTIL RECENTLY--THE CONSENSUS OF EUROPE, OUTSIDE OF THOSE TWO COUNTRIES, WOULD APPEAR TO FAVOR THE IDEA THAT THERE STILL IS NO LOVE LOST BETWEEN THEM DESPITE OUTWARD APPEARANCES. MANY OBSERVERS LOOK FOR A DECISIVE SHOWDOWN BETWEEN

30.24-4023

30.24-4023

THEM ULTIMATELY, POSSIBLY AT THE END OF THE WAR, THE TREND OF WHICH MOSCOW WILL BE ABLE TO INFLUENCE GREATLY, IF PRESENT SIGNS READ TRUE.

BRITISH SINK THREE U-BOATS IN DAY

REICH CONSULTS RUSSIA AND ITALY

FRIDAY, 13TH, 'UNLUCKY' DAY FOR U-BOATS, SAYS ADMIRALTY COMMUNIQUE

London Disputes Right Of Pan-American Conference To Establish Neutral Zone At Sea. Awaits War "In Confidence"

30.24 Robert Burnett OCT 14 1939

[By the Associated Press]

London, Oct. 13—Britain announced the sinking of three German submarines today as further proof that the undersea menace has been checked and declared that her armies in France "await attack in complete confidence—ready for anything."

The Admiralty also took exception to the American nations' rights to establish a safety zone around the Americas within which belligerent action would be forbidden. Whether this would be respected remained for the belligerents to decide, the Admiralty said.

Friday The 13th "Unlucky"

"Friday the thirteenth of October has proved an unlucky day for the U-boats," said the terse Admiralty communique, adding only that "the hunting craft were able to rescue some survivors." Further details of the sinkings or the rescues were not given.

Today's announcement was the first definite figure given on the submarine warfare since Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told Parliament September 26 that "six or seven" submarines at a conservative estimate had been destroyed.

Had Some "Fruitful" Days

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, told Parliament six days later that "since then we have had some fruitful and hopeful days," but when asked by a member of the House of Commons yesterday for figures he replied "that is a speculative account."

Churchill on September 26 estimated at least one-tenth of the German undersea fleet had been destroyed and confidently added Britain hoped to triple her hunting forces by the end of October.

Claims "First Round"

Britain claimed the "first round of the war" against Germany with the successful transportation of the British Expeditionary Force of 158,000 men to France and declared "we await attack in complete confidence."

The declaration came from a towering, wise-cracking staff general whom the War Office produced as a spokesman. He was introduced at a crowded press conference in the map-hung War Office by Leslie Hore-Belisha, War Secretary. The officer remained anonymous outside the conference.

Hore-Belisha asserted the successful mass movement of British troops to France was lauded by a Frenchman as "the greatest military feat since Trafalgar and the first victory we have had in the war."

Up To Belligerents

The Admiralty took notice of the Pan-American neutrality zone around the Americas by asserting that it must be for belligerents "to decide whether or not to accept restrictions which would limit their enjoyment of certain well-established rights."

Reports of the action regarding the neutral zone taken at the Panama conference of twenty-one American republics were said by Admiralty spokesmen to be "unofficial."

OCT 14 1939

Dispatched October 4

The "declaration of Panama," establishing a neutral zone at sea around the Americas, was dispatched officially October 4 to France, England and Germany.

An Admiralty statement said:

"It is understood the zone is in no way intended as an extension of territorial waters, but belligerents are to be invited to accept the limitation of their operations. . . . This is clearly the wisest way of proceeding, since while belligerents and, particularly, the Allies, may be anxious to assist all neutral countries in keeping war from the proximity of their coasts, it must be for them to decide whether or not to accept restrictions which would limit their enjoyment of certain well-established rights."

The Council for Action of Peace and Reconstruction, a liberal group headed by David Lloyd George, World War Prime Minister, criticized Prime Minister Chamberlain's rejection of Nazi peace overatures.

The council said Chamberlain's address to the House of Commons yesterday was "quite inadequate," and demanded that the Government display "willingness to negotiate a settlement."

OCT 14 1939

The complaint was in contrast to general praise for Chamberlain's stand.

The military spokesman hinted that Britain and France intend to sit tight and let Germany start the big offensive if one is to be launched this winter.

Late For Attack

"It is very late now for an attack," he said. "The weather is against the movement of big masses of troops, and any day the weather may make impossible the low-flying bombing attacks Germany used so successfully in Poland. If an attack comes now it will mean that Hitler doesn't dare wait until spring. But we can wait, and the weather is in our favor."

It was brought out also that Britain is concentrating on a carefully trained army of "rather young men—active-minded men"; that the first conscripts called up July 15 have "trained more quickly than we thought possible," and that troops are still moving to France in "small streams."

Russia Rules Baltic

With reference to Russia's moves in the Baltic the military spokesman asserted: "We have never penetrated the Baltic, that was Germany's sphere. Now the Baltic is dominated by Russia. We do regard the Mediterranean as our sphere, however, and we have not been threatened there." He said "guerrilla fighting" in Poland was predicted.

The general conducted his conference in give and take fashion, turning embarrassing questions into laughs.

OCT 14 1939

Correspondents inquired the position of the British Expeditionary forces in France. The expert grinned, "Hitler would like to know."

To Enlist Volunteers

Hore-Belisha told the same conference that foreign volunteers resident in the United Kingdom would be taken into the main British army along with British subjects as their age groups are called into the conscript militia.

He said there would be no separate legions as in France.

"We have only one British army," he added, "and there will be no distinction of any kind."

FAILURE TO STATE WAR AIMS SCORED BY LLOYD GEORGE

Prime Minister's Rebuff of German Peace Bid Is Called Inadequate.

LONDON, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—A dissident Liberal group headed by David Lloyd George today criticized Prime Minister Chamberlain's answer to Nazi peace overtures and demanded that the Government define its war aims and indicate a willingness to negotiate a war settlement.

The Council of Action for Peace and Reconstruction termed Mr. Chamberlain's speech in the House of Commons yesterday "quite inadequate," in that it did not state Great Britain's war aims nor mention the "far reaching consequences" of Russia's intervention.

The criticism of the council headed by Britain's world war Prime Minister stood almost alone amid a chorus of praise for Mr. Chamberlain's firm rejection of peace on Hitler's terms in the newspapers and by individual commentators.

Informed Britons said that they believed that the speech finally had convinced Germany that France and Britain were determined to fight to the bitter end, but the Council of Action asked the Government "to state its willingness" to negotiate a peace.

After a private meeting, originally scheduled to be open to reporters, the Council announced:

"The Council of Action, while welcoming the fact that the Prime Minister's statement does not finally close the door for peace negotiations, regards the statement as quite inadequate, alike as a statement of Britain's war aims and failing to contain any reference to the far-reaching consequences of the intervention of the U. S. S. R. (Soviet Russia).

"While agreeing to the full that no peace which recognizes and acquiesces in the results of aggression and no peace which does not give real security to the world can meet the needs of the situation, it nevertheless calls upon the Government to propose for the consideration of the House of Commons and the country a fuller and more precise statement of the aims it desires to achieve and to state its willingness to submit these aims to a conference of belligerents and neutrals for the purpose of negotiating an enduring peace."

Precisely how, if at all, Lloyd George and the council mean to press their views was not known. Meanwhile, competent British authorities regarded the reaction to Mr. Chamberlain's speech so favorably that they let it be known that the Prime Minister felt that he need not re-enforce his views with a proposed week end broadcast to the Empire.

Observers said that the political following of the Council of Action was relatively small, though the World War Prime Minister asserted that he had received thousands of favorable letters after his speech in the House. The House of Commons reconvenes on Tuesday and there probably will be open debate on Wednesday, after a war report by Mr. Chamberlain which will allow Lloyd George to continue his peace moves.

When Lloyd George on Oct. 3 first urged on the House of Commons the advantages of a general European settlement, he was vigorously attacked. Sir John Morrison-Jones, representing a neighboring Welsh constituency, said the statesman did not even represent Welsh feeling, and defied him to repeat his views in Wales.

The man in the street felt that following the Prime Minister's rejection of Hitler's peace terms, the only doors left open were those leading to air-raid shelters. British diplomacy appeared to observers to be centered on placing responsibility for continuation of the war on the German government.

CHARGES BRITAIN WOULD WIPE OUT GERMAN PEOPLE

Press Chief Says America Can Stop Annihilation by Refusing Aid to London

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER,
Associated Press Staff Correspondent.

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—Germany today called the possibility of United States mediation the last chance hope of saving Europe from "the most gruesome bloodbath in history."

This was the view of Adolf Hitler, given by Otto Dietrich, German press chief, after he and the Fuehrer had for three hours studied Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech in Commons yesterday rejecting Germany's peace proposals.

Meanwhile a government press release took the stand that Chamberlain's speech means "war against the German people, war against the German Reich unto annihilation."

Dietrich declared that Chamberlain had shattered all hopes of an armistice and indicated that Germany was prepared to unleash her full might against Great Britain and France unless the United States brought the Allies and Germany together at a conference table.

[In Washington it was indicated that the United States would want the advance assent of Britain and France before acting on any such proposal.]

Thus, indirectly, Adolf Hitler asked President Roosevelt to intervene and indicated there still might be a lull on the Western Front if there were any sign Mr. Roosevelt might comply.

Only the withheld order of the Fuehrer, it was indicated, kept the war in the West from becoming a fight to the finish.

Informed sources said his conference with his general staff last night after reading Chamberlain's speech meant he had come to the end of his effort to halt the war.

The official press release on Chamberlain's speech follows:

"Chamberlain's speech is an unheard of insult to Germany. Indulging in unbelievably insolent aspersions on the German Reich and its policy, Chamberlain in his speech rejected the hand of peace outstretched to him by the Fuehrer.

"Clique Desired War."

"Chamberlain evidently did not want to understand the Fuehrer's great action, springing from his consciousness of responsibility.

"While Germany wants peace, while the Fuehrer made constructive proposals for building up a peaceful, secure Europe, Chamberlain and his clique desired war.

"In his speech he did not represent the cause of the people, but the cause of a small clique which sees its task in war. This (yesterday) afternoon Chamberlain not only before the lower house (Commons), but before the entire world, rejected Germany's hand of peace and thereby gave an answer to the appeal which the Fuehrer made in his speech Oct. 6, when he said:

"'May those peoples and their leaders now speak up who are of a similar mind, and may those reject my hand who believe they must see war as a better solution.

"Chamberlain and his followers have decided in favor of the latter.

No Longer Any Doubt.

"After this speech by the English Prime Minister there can no longer exist any doubt among the German people that no matter what we do, what we say, what we offer, Chamberlain and the war inciters of great Britain are determined—at the same time that they utter hypocritical phrases—to annihilate the German people.

"Chamberlain's speech reveals the real meaning of England's war aims, and this meaning is: War against the German people, war against the German Reich unto annihilation. The speech of the English Premier is built upon lies and climaxed in a lie.

"And while charging German policy with breaking (Germany's) word, he forgets that the world knows that England's world empire is built solely on force and lie. England's wanted the war. To be sure, the English Prime Minister rejected all attempts in recent times to bring about peace.

"Although he knows better, he claims that, for instance, Germany declined Mussolini's offer of mediation. It is certain that after France accepted it, it was England which brought Mussolini's broad-minded action of mediation to a fall and thereby incited the French people into the most senseless war of all times.

Warns Not from Weakness.

"After Chamberlain's speech the German people know what its enmies want. From the experience of Versailles the German people know what England's will to annihilation can do and it therefore knows the path it must trod in order to foil this will of its enemies."

Dietrich emphasized that Germany was warning the world not from weakness, but in full awareness of her strength.

He stressed the support of Soviet Russia and declared Italy was willing to fight or stay neutral as Germany's best interests might demand.

Other prominent Nazis left the clear implication that the German air force might be loosed against British ships and coastal points, with as many as 800 bombers flying in waves.

Air activity at sea was expected to be the first evidence of full-scale war because of the Nazis' determination to try to break Britain's blockade.

High official sources appeared convinced that Great Britain never would have embarked on war with Germany had she not relied on United States aid.

U. S. Most Formidable.

Dietrich briefly developed how, as he saw it, Britain always had other nations do her fighting. In this struggle, he said, it was Poland who first bore the brunt of Britain's battle, then France.

But most formidable loomed the United States, he said, and if the United States made Britain understand she must come to the green table to talk things over with Germany she would change her "insolent" tone.

"An insolent reply," was Dietrich's description of Chamberlain's speech.

The Fuehrer summoned his general staff in preparation for the "war in earnest" after examining the speech, then called in the press chiefs to pass his views to the foreign correspondents.

It was Dietrich who gave the picture of the "most gruesome bloodbath in history" if further parleys prove impossible and German arms must speak.

He declared that every German was enraged that Chamberlain had nowhere indicated a willingness to sit down and talk things over.

Dietrich charged that the British Prime Minister's speech showed a determination to annihilate the German people. But, he declared, the German people will be welded more closely than ever by it and "let's see who will be annihilated."

Dietrich implied that Germany had some surprises in store.

Comparing this conflict with 1914, he said Germany then had to fight on two fronts, but now could center all her attention on one. High Nazis at the press conference called Germany's power in the air her ace.

It was said that consultations with Josef Stalin and Italian Premier Mussolini would be held immediately to determine what aid, if any, Germany might expect. Premier-Foreign Commissar Molotov was said to be expected in Berlin this month, when, Nazi sources said, the question of direct Russian military aid would be raised.

Earlier, authorized Nazis said Germany was through with Chamberlain and Premier Daladier, but still was waiting for a neutral response to Adolf Hitler's Reichstag speech of last Friday.

Any such action by neutral nations—they said the United States was the only one powerful enough to do something effective—must come from them, however, and not as a result of any diplomatic action or request by Germany, they reported.

(In Washington, the lack of a formal request for mediation was seen as one of the obstacles to any possible effort by the United States Government to bring peace.)

These interpretations of Germany's position were made after two developments:

Dr. Otto Dietrich, Germany's press chief and one of Hitler's closest advisers, told foreign correspondents he thought only the United States could intervene to prevent the most gruesome bloodbath in history.

An official press release on Chamberlain's speech yesterday said the Briton had "rejected the hand of peace stretched out to him by the Fuehrer" and Britain's war aims meant "war against the German people, war against the German Reich unto annihilation."

It was pointed out authoritatively that Germany, through Dr. Dietrich and others, once more had warned what would be in store for the world if Great Britain was not brought to the conference table.

NAZIS CONSULT SOVIET, ITALY ON BRITISH 'NO'

Next Move Expected to Follow Talks by Envoys

BERLIN, Oct. 13 (AP).—Informed quarters reported tonight that Germany was exchanging views with Soviet Russia and Italy through her Ambassadors, following Prime Minister Chamberlain's rejection of Adolf Hitler's peace proposals.

It was indicated Germany's next major war move would be taken after these consultations.

REAL WAR

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Oct. 13—The German Government took the stand today that British Prime Minister Chamberlain's rejection of Adolf Hitler's peace overtures means "war against the German people, war against the German Reich unto annihilation."

This statement was issued in the form of an official press release on Chamberlain's speech to the House of Commons yesterday. It was handed to foreign correspondents during the daily press conference.

"An Unheard-Of Insult"

It read as follows:

"Chamberlain's speech is an unheard of insult to Germany. Indulging in unbelievably insolent aspersions on the German Reich and its policy, Chamberlain in his speech rejected the hand of peace outstretched to him by the Führer.

"Chamberlain evidently did not want to understand the Führer's grea action, springing from his consciousness of responsibility.

"While Germany wants peace, while the Führer made constructive proposals for building up a peaceful, secure Europe, Chamberlain and his clique desired war.

"Didn't Represent People"

"In his speech, he did not represent the cause of the people but the cause of a small clique which sees its task in war. This (yesterday) afternoon, Chamberlain not only before the lower house (Commons), but before the entire world, rejected Germany's hand of peace and thereby gave an answer to the appeal which the Führer made in his speech October 6 when he said:

" 'May those peoples and their leaders now speak up who are of a similar mind and may those reject my hand who believe they must see war as a better solution.'

"Chamberlain and his followers have decided in favor of the latter.

"Out To Annihilate Us"

"After this speech by the English Prime Minister, there can no longer exist any doubt among the German people that, no matter what we do, what we say, what we offer, Chamberlain and the war inciters of Great Britain are determined—at the same time that they utter hypocritical phrases—to annihilate the German people.

"Chamberlain's speech reveals the real meaning of England's war aims, and this meaning is: War against the German people, war against the German Reich unto annihilation. The speech of the English Premier is built upon lies and climaxed in a lie.

"Most Senseless War"

"Although he knows better, he claims that, for instance, Germany declined Mussolini's offer of mediation. It is certain that after France accepted it, it was England which brought Mussolini's broad-minded action of mediation to a fall and thereby incited the French people into the most senseless war of all times.

"After Chamberlain's speech, the German people knows what its enemies want. From the experience of Versailles the German people knows what England's will to annihilation can do, and it therefore knows the path it must tread in order to foil this will of its enemies."

Minister Chamberlain finally had convinced Germany that if necessary Britain would fight to the bitter end.

There was no immediate reaction to a German statement to the foreign press in which Adolf Hitler was represented as inviting President Roosevelt to urge Britain to enter a peace conference with Germany. Britons said they were not reacting to every Berlin statement.

The Plain Man's View

The man in the street felt that following Chamberlain's rejecion of Hitler's peace terms yesterday, the only doors left open were those leading to air-raid shelters.

Chamberlain made ready to follow up his fighting speech with a broadcast to the empire, possibly tomorrow night. It was stated authoritatively that this plan was only tentative since it was believed Chamberlain's words were so well received that immediate amplification or a general statement might be unnecessary. If made, however, the broadcast is expected to hammer the point Chamberlain stressed yesterday, that "it is for Germany to make her choice."

Centering On Nazi Guilt

British diplomacy today appeared to be centered on placing responsibility for continuation of the war on the German Government.

The press unanimously approved Chamberlain's declaration that "acts—not words alone—must be forthcoming" from the Nazis before Britain and France would lay down their arms.

"Nazi Illusions Ruined"

Indorsing Chamberlain's reply to Hitler as "emphatic and unambiguous," the Daily Telegraph said:

"Before the war a conviction prevailed in high Nazi circles that whatever happened Britain would not fight. That illusion has now become untenable; but it has been succeeded by another illusion—that this country would be ready to snatch at the first excuse for laying down its arms and abandoning the cause which it has espoused . . . . That second illusion must now be abandoned like the first."

"Way Open For Genuine Offer"

The Times commented that the House of Commons "received the Prime Minister's speech with a unanimous approval reflecting the unity of the nation."

Saying Chamberlain "was careful to leave the way open for genuine offer," the Times said he was compelled to give, or repeat, a warning. There can no longer be any possibility of coming to terms unless the security for their fulfillment by Germany is something much better than Hitler's word."

"Can't Take Hitler's Word"

The Daily Mail spoke in a similar vein:

"If Germany wants to talk we shall listen, provided we do not have to accept the word of Hitler."

The Laborite Daily Herald said: "Britain will not accept an armistice that leaves Hitler still grasping the fruits of aggression."

The Daily Express declared, "No spurious proposals for an uneasy armistice, no glib promises from perjured lips, will deflect or move us from" a fight to the finish. This paper demanded "ten guns for every German gun, ten shells for every German shell, ten planes for every German plane, ten tanks for every German tank."

David Lloyd George today revised his plans for publicizing his views on the cultivation of a general European settlement. He had intended to invite newspapermen to hear him expound his position today before the Council of Action for Peace and Reconstruction, of which he is president. Instead, he decided to meet with this group privately and issue a statement later.

—UNITY IN BRITAIN—

[By the Associated Press]

London, Oct. 13—Informed Britons today voiced the belief that Prime Minister Chamberlain's reply to Hitler had united the British people behind the government's war policy as never before.

Chamberlain's speech, they said, had left no room for doubt that Britain was fighting for the preservation of her very existence as a free nation.

anxious to assist all neutral countries in keeping war from the proximity of their coasts, it must be for them to decide whether or not to accept restrictions which would limit their enjoyment of certain well-established rights.

Neutral States are entitled and bound to demand that belligerents shall abstain from hostilities in their territorial waters and it is not a hostile act if a neutral repels, even by force, an attack upon his neutrality. During the great war Norway, Sweden, Spain and Holland forbade belligerent submarines to enter their territorial waters except in case of distress.

In olden times many extravagant claims were put forward by the various nations as to the limit of their territorial waters, but since those days such claims have been drastically modified and it is now generally recognized that no country can properly claim jurisdiction over large areas of ocean nor the right to control or exclude the movements of foreign ships on the high seas. This applies equally to belligerent operations, though a belligerent can of course restrict his operations of his own free will if he so wishes.

Since the great war the importance of the limit of territorial of jurisdiction and sovereignty arise careful reference must be made to any agreements applicable to the particular case. The width of the general belt of territorial waters is now widely accepted as being three miles. Great Britain in common with many other countries has long refused to recognize claims to a territorial belt of great width.

BRITISH SHIP TORPEDOED, 36 RESCUED

U. S. Liner President Harding Saves Crew Of Doomed Freighter

Finds Big French Tanker

No trace of the crew could be found.

Its master, Capt. Robert Andarde, had made his will and sent it with other valuable papers to a sister in New York before the ship left Corpus Christi, Texas, September 17, with 160,000 barrels of casinghead gasoline blended with crude oil, a highly inflammable liquid. An oil expert said the liquid usually sold for $1.55 per barrel.

The Emile Miguet was equipped to carry four 6-inch guns in turrets fore and aft, but her Texas agents say she carried "only a couple of machine guns to satisfy the crew."

Built Two Years Ago

She was built two years ago at Dunkirk and was owned by the Compagnie Des Petroles, of Havre. She was 546 feet long and her tonnage exceeded by 534 that of the Athenia, the British liner sunk on the first day of the European conflict.

Although it missed the crew of the Emile Miguet, the President Harding, by strange coincidence, came upon and picked up the crew of thirty-six from the Heronspool—a chance rescue as the Harding had received no S O S from the British ship. The 5,202-ton Heronspool, the British Admiralty said, was sunk by a German submarine.

Captain Roberts sent the following message to the United States Lines in New York:

"At 2.10 P. M. (New York time) Thursday responded to S O S from French tanker Emile Miguet in latitude 50.08 north, longitude 14 west. At 1.50 A. M. sighted and rescued crew of thirty-six in boat from British steamer Heronspool. None missing. Reach Emile Miguet afire. No sign of crew. Proceeded at 3.37 A. M."

The Harding left Le Verdon October 11 for New York with 597 passengers aboard.

Sixty-Eight Ships In All Lost

The two merchant sinkings sent the known total of ships lost to sixty-eight vessels having a gross tonnage of 286,406. The Heronspool was England's thirty-fourth known loss and the Emile Miguet was the third for France. Germany, with most of her merchant fleet idle at home or in neutral harbors, has suffered only nine known losses. At least 773 lives have been lost at sea.

In elaborating on its belief the Emile Miguet crew was lost, the United States Lines said it was customary for ships making a rescue to inform other vessels proceeding to the scene.

Other marine sources said, however, the crew might have been rescued by a British ship which remained silent for fear of giving its position to enemy U-boats.

Marine circles theorized the French boat was sunk without warning because of her arms equipment. They expressed belief the same sub sank both vessels.

Admiralty Sees 'Safety Belt' Up To Belligerents

Warring Nations, It Is Said, Will Decide Limits of American Neutral Zone

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP).—British Admiralty spokesmen, commenting on the Pan-American "neutral zone," declared today that it was up to belligerents to decide "whether or not to accept restrictions which would limit their enjoyment of certain well established rights."

The Admiralty spokesmen termed the reports of the action taken by the United States and Latin-American countries at the Panama conference as "unofficial," but the following formal statement was issued:

"Several unofficial reports have been received recently of the important decisions reached at the Panama Conference of the Republics of America. These reports are to the effect that a neutral or safety zone of variously stated depth from the coast is to be established.

"It is understood that the zone is in no way intended as an extension of territorial waters, but belligerents are to be invited to accept the limitation of their operations which would be involved by the scheme. This is clearly the wisest way of proceeding, since while belligerents, and particularly the allies, may be anxious to assist all neutral countries in keeping war from the proximity of their coasts, it must be for them to decide whether or not to accept restrictions which would limit their enjoyment of certain well established rights.

British on Neutral Zone

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 13—Following is the text of the British Admiralty statement issued today in commenting on the establishment of a neutral zone at sea by the United States and Latin-American countries at the recent Panama conference:

Several unofficial reports have been received recently of the important decisions reached at the Panama conference of the republics of America. These reports are to the effect that a neutral or safety zone of variously stated depth from the coast is to be established.

It is understood that the zone is in no way intended as an extension of territorial waters, but belligerents are to be invited to accept the limitation of their operations which would be involved by the scheme. This is clearly the wisest way of proceeding, since while belligerents, and particularly the Allies, may be anxious to assist all neutral countries in keeping war from the proximity of their coasts, it must be for them to decide whether or not to accept restrictions which would limit their enjoyment of certain well-established rights.

This applies equally to belligerent operations, though a belligerent can of course restrict his operations of his own free will if he so wishes.

Since the great war the importance of the limit of territorial waters has been brought to the notice of the public in several ways, among others by reason of the national Prohibition Act of America. Resulting from discussions with Great Britain an agreement was reached in Washington in 1924 whereby the United States was given a right to board and examine any British vessel suspected of being engaged in liquor smuggling at a distance from the coast that could be traversed by that vessel in one hour.

By the same agreement Great Britain and America declared that it was their firm intention to uphold the principle that three marine miles extending from the coast line outward and measured from low-water mark should constitute the proper limits of territorial waters. Similar agreements were subsequently entered into by America with Germany and Sweden.

New York, Oct. 13—Britain's claim of sinking three U-boats, the torpedoing of the British freighter Heronspool and the destruction of the huge French oil tanker Emile Miguet, the largest merchant vessel lost so far in the war, indicated tonight that sea hostilities have been renewed in earnest.

The Emile Miguet, whose 14,115 gross tons made her one of the largest tankers in the world, was destroyed off the Irish coast, the United States Lines' President Harding wirelessed to New York.

The fate of her crew of forty was not definitely known, but United States Lines officials said they feared all had perished.

Limited Liberty Granted Von Rintelen In England

Restrictions Made German World War Captain Who Now Offers To Aid Britain

London, Oct. 13 (AP)—Liberty of movement in England, but certain restrictions was granted today to Capt. Franz von Rintleen, who directed German espionage in the United States at the start of the World War and later served four years in a United States prison for sabotaging munitions ships.

Von Rintelen told an Aliens Court he was anti-Nazi and offered Britain "all my experience, energy and capabilities in the ensuing struggle for the defense of her liberties."

He was accompanied into court by Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, who was responsible for his capture off Ramsgate on August 13, 1915. Returned to the United States after his capture, von Rintelen was tried and convicted on a sabotage charge. He was released from prison late in 1920.

EYE, England, Oct. 13 (AP).—Three bus loads of children who left their homes three weeks ago to be billeted here for safety in case of air raids have failed to arrive.

Gathered from Dagenham and other towns in Essex, they were seen off in their buses from Lowestoft. A search of the countryside has failed to locate them.

Perplexed billeting officers said they had heard a rumor that some of the seventy children wound up in the middle of Norfolk.

Blackout Rail Tragedy

London, Oct. 13 (AP)—Three persons were known dead and a number were feared trapped in wreckage tonight when the second section of the Scots Express crashed into the first section at Bletchley, forty-five miles northwest of London, during a blackout.

Blackout restrictions were lifted in the area of the wreck.

The Akwapim Give 3 Hoots for Hitler

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP).—The Omanhene of Akwapim, chief of an African Gold Coast tribe, has announced a judgment of "three hootings" against Fuehrer Adolf Hitler, the Ministry of Information said today.

A Ministry communique stated: "After the Omanhene had stated the case of Great Britain and Germany, all the linguists rose up and went into consultation, and on their return the chief linguist gave judgment — three cheers for the King and three hootings against Hitler, whose case was bad."

Evacuation Of Children, Mothers And Old People From Crowded Centers Brings Unusual Situation—Many Return

[By the Associated Press]

London, Oct. 13—England uprooted 1,500,000 crying babies, weeping mothers, scared youngsters and bewildered old folk from city homes and moved them to the country without much fuss just before the war began.

Now the headaches are starting.

"Hi cawn't hunderstand their blinkin' langwidge."

"Wot? No fish-and-chips shops?"

"Coo blimey! The pub's a mile away?"

Those are some of the complaints from "expatriates."

From the country folk on whom these temporary exiles have been billeted come exasperated cries that their enforced guests are "verminous," that they're damaging property and that they cost too much.

Almost all the kids from the East End of London, the warrens of the Liverpool docks and the mill districts of Manchester are having a wonderful time and are gaining tremendous physical benefits; that is the bright side of the picture.

On the other side are the immense sociological and physical problems created by breaking up families and moving women and children who had lived their whole lives amid the smoke of factories and the rumble of trucks to the strange hush of villages that might have been transplanted from a Tudor picture book.

Some In Stately Homes

Some of these people are being cared for in stately houses, others in humble cottages. The Government pays $2 a week for food and lodging for each school child; $1 for each mother, a bands, movies and the friendly warmth of corner "pubs."

Tongues Twisted

A room in somebody else's house, or a straw mattress on the floor, isn't fun, and it's hard when your Cockney tongue can't speak the strange Lancashire or South country accent of your hardworking hostess, or you don't like her kind of food, or her way of cooking it.

The Government promised to pay for damage to property. But the Government was stumped by stories like that of the mother who wailed: "I wished I'd never brought the little 'uns here; I'd almost rather have them bombed than bathe!"

Many authorities think conditions will improve when communal ways of living can be provided. The Government has empowered local authorities to take over empty houses and has suggested establishing day nurseries. It is urging rapid reopening of country schools, even if children have to attend in shifts and has suggested activities be organized to relieve householders of responsibility for children "from breakfast to teatime."

Back home, the lot of father is depressing. He must eat his own badly cooked meals, keep his clothes mended, sit in darkened silent rooms at night.

Some have suggested communal kitchens for these fathers. But they will have to take their turn—there are more urgent things just now.

Berlin, Oct. 13—The German high command announced today that French forces had dynamited Rhine river bridges at Wintersdorf, Breisach and Neuenburg.

A communique said the bridges, leading [illegible] Alsace sector into southern Germany, were blown up yesterday.

Otherwise, there was little war activity in the west, while in the east, German troop movements toward the new German-Soviet Russian border in partition Poland were reported nearing completion.

Consults Russia and Italy

BERLIN, Oct. 13 (AP).—Germany was reported tonight to have begun consultations with Soviet Russia and Italy as a preliminary to her next major move.

Consultation with Moscow over the situation created by Chamberlain's rejection of Hitler's peace offer is based on the Sept. 28 agreement. This said that should [illegible] efforts of the German and Russian governments fail to bring peace, "the fact would thereby be established that England and France will be responsible for continuation of the war, in which case the governments of Germany and the U. S. S. R. will consult each other as to necessary measures."

As for Italy, Dienst aus Deutschland, informed news commentary, said "Undoubtedly the last German-Italian conference in Berlin took into consideration the possibility of an unfavorable development."

Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano conferred on Oct. 2-3 in Berlin with Hitler and his Foreign Minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, on the German government's invitation. Italy and Germany have a military alliance.

Foreign reaction to Chamberlain's speech was presented to the German people through the press tonight as a straightforward recognition of Britain's intention to prosecute the war against Germany.

The semi-official "Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung" said: "Even before it was known in America, Russia, Japan and Italy that Germany had shown up Chamberlain, public opinion in these countries on its own accord was unanimous that England had rejected the Fuehrer's peace proposal. This impression was especially noteworthy in Washington, where the British war declaration on Germany was understood without any illusions."

The press in general told German readers that Chamberlain's speech was "a big disappointment everywhere." Some headlines read: "England Wants War."

The official statement released to the press was bitter. It said:

"Chamberlain's speech is an unheard-of insult to Germany. Indulging in unbelievably insolent aspersions on the German Reich and its policy, Chamberlain in his speech rejected the hand of peace outstretched by [illegible] Fuehrer.

"While Germany wants peace, while the Fuehrer made constructive proposals for building up a peaceful, secure Europe, Chamberlain and his clique desired war.

"In his speech, he did not represent the cause of the people, but the cause of a small clique which sees its task in war. This (Thursday) afternoon, Chamberlain not only before the lower house (Commons), but before the entire world, rejected Germany's hand of peace and thereby gave an answer to the appeal which the Fuehrer made in his speech Oct. 6 when he said:

"'May those peoples and their leaders now speak up who are of a similar mind, and may those reject my hand who believe they must see war as a better solution.'

"Chamberlain and his followers have decided in favor of the latter.

SUDDEN NAZI HALT

[By the Associated Press]

Paris, Oct. 13—German patrols were reported today to have suddenly abandoned attacks in which they had failed in five days to capture any French prisoners.

Military advices said the French Army was keeping a sharp watch, wondering why on "a magnificently clear night" the front was calm except in the Warndt Forest region where, a communique said, small enemy patrols were repulsed.

The reported halt in the German raids was ascribed to the possibility that they were too costly.

LEBRUN EMPHASIS

Paris, Oct. 13 (AP)—President Albert Lebrun today gave added emphasis to Premier Daladier's speech Tuesday rejecting peace on Adolf Hitler's terms.

The President thanked the Premier for "expressing so clearly and firmly the unanimous feeling and will of the French nation" at a cabinet meeting at the Elysee Palace where Daladier spoke at length on the diplomatic and military situation.

PARIS ANXIETY OVER FINNS

Paris, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Finnish-Russian tension caused anxiety here despite the expressed conviction of observers that Germany was [illegible] easy over expanding Russian power in the Baltic.

A Russian move against Finland was considered highly possible. French sources said that would mean widespread political repercussions, not only in the Scandinavian states, but, perhaps, as far south as Turkey.

Peggy Schulze And Refugee of Poland to Wed

Biddle's Stepdaughter Met Prince Alexander While Attending Warsaw School

PARIS, Oct. 13 (AP)—Miss Margaret (Peggy) Schulze, stepdaughter of the American Ambassador to Poland, Anthony J. Drexel Biddle jr., will be married to Prince Alexander Hohenlohe-Waldenburg-Schillingsfurst, a naturalized Pole, tomorrow at the American Embassy at Paris.

Miss Schulze, eighteen-year-old granddaughter of Mrs. William Boyce Thompson, of 29 Avenue George V, Paris; New York and Yonkers, N. Y., and the late Mr. Thompson, was with Biddle and his party when the ambassador left Poland last month after the German in sion. She and th twenty-one-year-o prince went to the same school in oland.

Prince Hohenlohe is the son of Prince Alfred Hohenlohe-Waldenburg-Schillingsfurst and the late Princess Catherine Britton Hohenlohe, who was born an American. He was born in Switzerland and was an Austrian subject until he became a Polish citizen.

William C. Bullitt, the American Ambassador to France, will be best man at tomorrow's wedding. Others who are expected to attend include Ambassador Biddle; Polish Foreign Minister August Zaleski; Gen. Casimir Sosnowski; Robert D. Murphy, the American Embassy's Counselor; Carmel Offie, Mr. Bullitt's secretary, and the American Embassy secretary, Douglas MacArthur 2d, and Mrs. MacArthur, who is the daughter of Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky.

Miss Schulze arrived in Paris on Sept. 9. She and her husband will visit the United States soon.

Granddaughter of Thompson

Miss Schulze's mother, Mrs. Biddle, is the former Margaret A. Thompson, only child of the late William Boyce Thompson, noted engineer, mining operator and banker who left an estate estimated at $85,000,000, when he died in 1930.

Mrs. Biddle was once the wife of Theodore Schulze, of St. Paul, a brother of Mrs. Jeremiah Milbank, of New York. They were married in 1916, and she obtained a divorce at Paris in 1926, with custody of their two children, Margaret and Theodore. She was married in 1931 at London to Mr. Biddle, whose previous marriage also had been terminated by divorce.

Prince Alexander is of Polish nationality because he and a brother were adopted several years ago by the head of another branch of the Hohenlohe family, Prince Karl Gottfreid of Hohenlohe-Ingelfingen.

Germans Deny Appeal

BERLIN, Oct. 13 (AP)—An official statement issued today by the Deutsche Nachrichtenburo read:

"In connection with The Associated Press report from Berlin that the Reich press chief, Dr. Dietrich, made a statement according to which only intervention by President Roosevelt could halt the war in the west, which has been interpreted in various quarters abroad as an appeal to President Roosevelt to intervene, we announce that no such appeal was made at all or intended.

"This is apparently due to a misunderstanding of the meaning of a private conversation which does not permit this interpretation."

ITALY BELIEVED READY TO JOIN FAIR NEXT YEAR

ROME, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—After conferences at the Ministry of Industry and Finance, Grover Whalen, president of the New York World's Fair, said today that "government officials are favorably inclined" toward Italian participation in the exposition next year.

Mr. Whalen added that they had thus far reached no definite decision.

He said his reception had been cordial in the other countries he has visited in connection with the fair's continuance.

Mr. Whalen plans to leave for Geneva on October 16 and will return to the United States about the end of November.

ROME WATCHES

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Oct. 13—The possibility of a prolonged European war confronted Premier Mussolini today with the prospect that Germany might press him for aid.

Foreign observers here, including some Nazis, agreed that Mussolini would try to keep Italy out as long as possible. But whether he would refuse his Axis partner all aid, economic as well as military, none would predict.

Some Italians considered that Britain's rejection of Hitler's overtures still had left the door open to negotiations, but hope for peace was faint.

The "Open Door" That's Seen

The newspaper Il Messaggero called Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech a "categoric refusal of peace on the base of German proposals."

But, it said, when Chamberlain declared Britain no longer could have faith in the present German Government he may have meant that he was not opposed to an international conference in which "pledges must be guaranteed in a bloc by those who take part."

Giuseppe Bastianini, the new Italian Ambassador to London, was expected to let the British know il Duce's attitude within a few days. That attitude has been that the powers should settle all quarrels in a conference, as Hiltr proposed.

Italy And Russia

Beyond that, it was considered unlikely that Mussolini would commit Italy to any course other than nonbelligerency within the next few weeks.

A large measure of foreign trade and shipping has fallen to Italy because she is the only big European power not involved in the war.

Mussolini also was believed to be reluctant to involve the nation too closely with Russia. Italians have been asking Britain to explain her attitude toward Russia, and Il Messaggero inquired whether the absence of mention of the U.S.S.R. in Chamberlain's speech meant that "Britain condoned the action of the Moscow Government."

Italy's Policy Still Wait-and-See; Rome Not Sure Peace Is Hopeless

Either Way, Mussolini Plans to Take No Initiatives and Officials Won't Discuss Nation's Course if Reich Should Demand Military Help

ROME, Oct. 13 (AP).—Authoritative sources said today that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's reply to Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's end-the-war proposals represented little or no progress toward peace, and they regarded the situation as unchanged.

There was no official reaction to Chamberlain's speech of yesterday, but Italy continued to pursue her "no initiative" policy, on both the military and the peace fronts.

With prolongation of the war considered likely, Premier Benito Mussolini was confronted with the possibility of Germany turning to obtain aid from her original axis partner. Authoritative sources would not comment on the possibility of Italy's refusing such aid, whether economic or military. Mussolini has repeatedly declared this country's neutrality.

The opinion was general that Italy would aid any move toward European peace if a definite basis was advanced with reasonable possibilities for success.

A responsible Fascist source said that, to avoid any appearance of initiative, Italy's new ambassador to London, Giuseppe Bastianini, had gone to the British capital with no message other than his credentials.

Bastianini, however, would be able to inform the British government orally of Il Duce's wait-and-see attitude, it was pointed out. That attitude included the feeling that the powers should meet, as Hitler proposed, and settle all outstanding quarrels around the conference table.

Italians expected the German government to consult with Italy and Russia, since Berlin has consultative pacts with each, but Italy, it was said, would in no case consult with Russia, as no such agreement exists between Rome and Moscow.

The newspaper "Il Messaggero" called Chamberlain's speech a "categoric refusal of peace on the base of German proposals."

But, it said, when Chamberlain declared Britain no longer could have faith in the present German government, he may have meant he was not opposed to an international conference in which "pledges must be guaranteed in a bloc by those who take part."

Italian Visit by Hitler Is Rumored in Milan

Trip by Goering or Der Fuehrer Considered as Possibility

MILAN, Oct. 13 (AP).—A possible visit to Italy by Air Marshall Hermann Wilhelm Goering or perhaps even Fuehrer Adolf Hitler was rumored today as the chief of all German police, Heinrich Himmler, left Milan after three days of conferences with Italian Police Chief Arturo Bocchini.

There were unconfirmed reports that the Villa Carlotta, on Lake Como, was being made ready as if for an important guest.

Arising around this, the rumor was heightened by a Berlin report that Hitler planned immediate diplomatic consultations with Italy on what aid this country might give in the war with France and Great Britain.

Himmler and Bocchini, previously reported to have met to arrange repatriation of Germans in Italian areas, maintained a close reserve on what they had discussed.

SOVIET-TURKISH PACT VIEWED AS IMMINENT

Agreement on War Policies, the Dardanelles and Black Sea Involved.

ENVOY LEAVES TOMORROW

Foreign Minister Saracoglu to Quit Moscow Soon After Call at Kremlin.

MOSCOW, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Amid reports that some form of agreement would be signed by Russia and Turkey within the next day or two, the Turkish Foreign Minister, Sukru Saracoglu, was received in the Kremlin today. In the absence of any official comment from either side, observers believed that the prospective pact would settle questions in relation to the Black Sea and the Dardanelles and would define the attitude of each nation toward the other in the current European war.

The impression grew in diplomatic circles here that an agreement was imminent. The Kremlin's talks with the Turks caused postponement of conversations with the Finns.

Meanwhile the Soviet Commissariat of the Fuel Industry was divided into oil and coal commissariats by a decree published today. The former Commissar for the Fuel Industry, I. M. Kaganovich, who also is railway chief, will head the oil commissariat.

The former Vice-Commissar for the Fuel Industry, V. V. Vakhrushev, was appointed to head the coal industry. Official data on the Soviet industrial output, released yesterday, indicated a lag in the fuel industry compared with the output of other commissariats. While the growth of the entire industrial output for the first nine months of 1939, compared with the similar period of 1938, was 15.6 per cent, the output of fuel rose only 6.7 per cent.

TERMS FOR FINNS

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Oct. 13—Finland's representatives went to the Kremlin today for a second conference over proposals being made by Russia.

Although the nature of these proposals continued to be an official secret a Scandinavian version of the opinions expressed in Moscow political quarters was in circulation.

Four Points Listed

According to this version, Russia was calling on Finland for:

1. Surrender of small islands on the route of the Russian Navy through the Gulf of Finland into the Baltic.

2. A military assistance pact not involving Russian occupation of any part of the Finnish mainland.

3. Tighter economic and political bonds.

4. Expulsion of Germans.

Aaland Islands Loom

This outline could not be confirmed in reliable quarters. Among the islands involved in this speculation are the Aalands, which guard the junction of the Gulf of Bothnia and the Baltic. Sweden and Finland sought jointly to fortify them last spring. France and Britain agreed, but Russia objected.

The Finns, it was reported, might be willing to give up some islands, but if the Russians submitted stronger territorial demands likely to make Finland a virtual protectorate—such as has been done with Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania—foreign observers were of the opinion that the Finns would fight.

Encouraged By Backing

Germany previously was Finland's virtual protector, but apparently had lost that status in the commitments to Russia which observers believe accompanied the Russian-German nonaggression treaty and the subsequent protocols for partition of Poland.

Finland's position for dickering with Russia has been improved by the diplomatic backing of the United States, Sweden, Denmark and Norway.

The Washington government and the three Scandinavian countries in effect urged Russia not to make demands upon Finland which might endanger Russian-Finnish relations.

Resuming Conversations

Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, Finnish Minister to Sweden, and his aides—here in response to a Soviet invitation to talk about political and economic matters—were ready to resume conversations with Soviet leaders.

The Finns had been closeted an hour at the Kremlin with Joseph Stalin, Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff, Assistant Foreign Commissar Vladimir Potemkin and Vladimir Derevianski, Russian Minister to Poland up to the time of the Russian-German partition of that nation.

Dr. Paasikivi and his two colleagues, Finnish Foreign Office experts, were invited to a second session at 5 P. M. today.

Others Reported Invited.

MOSCOW, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Scandinavian circles in Moscow refused today to confirm or deny rumors current here that Sweden, Norway and Denmark had been invited to send delegates to join the current negotiations between Russia and Finland.

The Finnish envoy, Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, who had planned to visit the Kremlin again this afternon, visited the Soviet agricultural exhibition instead. He may be asked to go to the Kremlin later tonight, for resuming the parley begun yesterday at Russian invitation, but the Finnish legation was not informed whether he was expected.

In some quarters Dr. Paasikivi was believed to be awaiting instructions from home before proceeding.

Soviet-Turkish Pact Is Drafted On Dardanelles

Accord Covering Black Sea Expected Also to Define Their Attitudes on War

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Oct. 13.—A Soviet-Turkish agreement on control of the Black Sea and the Dardanelles was reported imminent tonight as the Kremlin postponed further talks with Finland in order to confer with Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu. Lacking official comment, observers believed Russia and Turkey also would define in the pact their attitudes toward the European war. The pact was expected within a day or two.

Finland's emissary, Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, had a brief meeting yesterday with Josef V. Stalin and Soviet Premier-Foreign Commissar Viacheslav M. Molotov, and had expected to see them again today. Instead, he visited the Soviet agricultural exhibition. Resumption of the Soviet-Finnish parleys was deferred indefinitely.

Finland, summoned to confer with Russia and, presumably, to be drawn into the widening Soviet orbit around the Baltic Sea, has been placed in a better bargaining position by the diplomatic representations to Moscow by the United States, Sweden, Denmark and Norway urging Russia not to deal too sternly with Finland.

Dr. Paasikivi was believed to be awaiting further instructions from home before continuing the discussions with Russia.

Scandinavians at Moscow declined to discuss rumors that Sweden, Norway and Denmark had been invited to send delegates to the Russo-Finnish negotiations.

Leaving Tomorrow.

INSTANBUL, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Usually well-informed sources said today that Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu would start for home tomorrow from Moscow, where he has been since September 26. Reports that a Russo-Turkish pact had been signed could not be confirmed.

Political circles, however, expressed confidence that the pact is ready and may be signed at any moment. The announcement would be made at Moscow, it was believed.

Kallio Broadens Makeup Of Finnish Cabinet

Helsinki, Oct. 13 (AP) — Finland greeted with enthusiasm today the news that Sweden had called a conference of northern European states as President Kyoesti Kallio broadened the makeup of his Cabinet working for the preservation of Finnish neutrality and independence.

The President by decree also ordered Finnish civilians to hold themselves in readiness for non-military pursuits if required by the present emergency. Regulations previously drawn providing for wartime emergencies were put into effect by the decree. All citizens may be required to work directly or indirectly for the national defense.

Crews of volunteer workers already were going through the city clearing attics and alleyways of inflammables as a precaution against air raids.

Pessimism Over Postponement

With the second of the Soviet Russian-Finnish conferences in Moscow postponed, some observers speculated pessimistically on the nature of the proposals the U.S.S.R. may have made.

Kallio's addition of two members to the Cabinet increased the Government's parliamentary majority through their followers, from 145 to 163 out of 196 seats.

Dr. J. O. Soederhjlm, Helsinki attorney, was named Minister of Justice succeeding E. E. Rautavaara, and Ernst von Born, second vice-chairman of the Diet (Parliament), was named Minister without Portfolio.

A Government spokesman made no comment on the conversations at Moscow.

Evidence Of Solidarity

The Swedish King's invitation was welcomed as another evidence of the solidarity of the northern European states.

The three parties which hitherto stood behind the present Finnish Government in the Diet were the Social Democrats with eighty-three representatives, the Agrarians with fifty-six and the Progressives with six.

The naming of two members of the Swedish party to the Cabinet assured the support of eighteen representatives of the Swedish party.

Two remaining "opposition" parties, neither of which have been particularly critical of the Government's policies, are the conservatives with twenty-five members in the Diet and the patriotic People's party, of Fascist tinge, with eight.

HELSINKI HOPEFUL

[By the Associated Press]

Helsinki, Oct. 13—Finland stepped up her preparations today to fight, if necessary, for her independence as her Foreign Minister declared the nation would resist dictation.

A Government spokesman, however, said Finland was "still optimistic" of acceptable terms from Russia as the second day of Finnish-Russian talks in Moscow began.

Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko made his statement in a radio broadcast after Finland had learned of United States representations to the Soviet Government on her behalf.

The brief speech was diverted from the United States at the last moment after the German radio had refused to relay it allegedly on the ground that it was "political."

It was broadcast, however, to Finland's Scandinavian neighbors.

Erkko reaffirmed to them Finland's will to peace, but, he said, "she cannot submit or comply with the dictates of an outside factor which would result in her international and political activity being dependent on something other than her own free will."

Without mentioning Russia, he proclaimed Finland's "full right . . . to expect other nations to respect her integrity and not to threaten her safety."

Cabinet members, meanwhile, studied a "long message" received last night from Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, former Premier and head of the Finnish mission to Russia.

Finns thus far have not been enlightened on what Russia wants from Finland and there was no inkling of the contents.

Strengthening Frontiers

A Government spokesman disclosed further strengthening of the frontiers.

Optimists drew comfort from the absence of early reports on the Kremlin conversations, inferring that the Russian demands at least had not seemed so unreasonable that no basis could be found for discussions.

On the other hand, those who watched long lines of women and children leaving for the country and saw newly dug air raid shelters were mindful of the danger of invasion.

Barracks were going up in some sections of the city to house civil guards and patients were being removed from some hospitals.

Finns Warned to Be Ready.

HELSINKI, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—President Kyoesti Kallio issued a decree today ordering all Finnish civilians to hold themselves in readiness to aid the Government in non-military pursuits, if required by the present emergency.

The decree was issued as Finnish leaders continued to express optimism concerning their chances of receiving acceptance terms from Russia. They hoped that their country would fare better than Baltic neighbors which have become virtual Russian protectorates as a result of Kremlin parleys.

The decree put into effect regulations previously drawn providing for wartime emergencies. The services of all citizens may be required for work applied directly or indirectly in connection with national defense.

The departure of the populace from Helsinki was continued and authorities said that 70,000 persons had left in the last three days alone.

Defenses Strengthened.

Crews of volunteer workers poured through the streets, clearing attics and alleys of inflammables as a precaution against possible air raids. The strengthening of actual defense forces went forward and soldiers in full field equipment appeared more frequently on the streets.

E. von Born, Second Vice-Chairman of Finland's Diet, was named Minister Without Portfolio by President Kallio in a move interpreted by foreign quarters as designed to strengthen the Government during the emergency. The Minister of Justice, A. E. Rautavacera, who requested some time ago that he be permitted to retire, was replaced by Dr. J. O. Soederhjelm, prominent Helsinki attorney.

[DNB, German news agency, said that the Finnish Government had decreed a moratorium for all persons mobilized, including the payment of private taxes. The decree expires on July 1, 1940.]

Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko made his statement in a radio broadcast after Finland had learned of United States representations to the Soviet Government on her behalf. The brief speech was diverted from the United States at the last moment after the German radio had refused to relay it, allegedly on the ground that it was political.

It was broadcast, however, to Finland's Scandinavian neighbors.

[In Berlin, official sources said that the relay of the address was canceled under the German law which forbids radio transmission from a neutral or belligerent country during wartime. It is customary for the Finns to avail themselves of German relay stations when broadcasting to the United States.]

Preparations Are Pushed

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 13 (AP)—Finland's preparations for any emergency were apparent throughout Helsingfors tonight. In vacant lots were parked hundreds of trucks and automobiles commandeered by the government for service if needed. In the outskirts of the city large groups of men gathered for training.

Thousands of windows were decorated with criss-cross strips of paper to minimize shattering in the event of explosions. Sandbags were piled up in front of many buildings of the capital.

High piles of boxes and papers, the usual contents of attics, were heaped up after a day of collections by volunteers in a measure to cut down the danger of fires in the event of air attacks.

Men with full field equipment marched singly and in groups through the city. Art exhibits were moved from most museums and stored in safe places.

The President declared a moratorium on debts owed by those in military service. The Stock Exchange remained open and insurance companies announced a limited policy for soldiers.

Today's Cabinet appointments generally were accepted as meaning final elimination of any differences between the Swedish minority of about 350,000 in Finland and the Finns, although both Finns and Swedes pointed out there never has been a "minority problem" in the accepted sense of the phrase. The Swedes have their own schools and Swedish is one of two official languages.

Roosevelt Indicates America Will Not Intervene in War

Lacks Official Bid From Reich—Says Plea to Soviet Voiced a Peace Hope Merely and Was Not a Pressure Move.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt's press conference today produced strong indications that the American Government would not undertake to mediate the European war in response to Germany's recent informal invitations.

Although Mr. Roosevelt declined to discuss the subject directly, he reiterated in response to questions that he had received no official word from the German Government on its bids for peace and he declined to comment when asked whether he had anything to say about the latest peace moves in Berlin.

In informed quarters this Government's attitude has been understood to be that in the absence of any official invitation for American mediation no official notice need be taken here of informal bids. And, even with a formal bid, the Government would be unlikely to undertake mediation without some signs from Britain and France that they were interested, thus making positive results possible.

Thus far this week German officials, acting through press statements, have made two efforts apparently designed to interest Mr. Roosevelt in taking a hand to end the war. The first of these was an official interpretation in Berlin of Hitler's Reichstag speech to the effect that the Fuehrer had opened the way for action by a neutral leader, preferably the American President.

Explains Action for Finland.

After the British yesterday followed the French in rejection of Hitler's peace offer, the Germans made their second bid for neutral—preferably American—intervention, saying that only such action could prevent a complete and terrible war.

Turning to other war-born developments, Mr. Roosevelt told his press conference that American representations to Soviet Russia were merely an expression of interest and hope that nothing would be done to disturb peaceful relations in the Baltic or the independence of Finland.

This Government's action, he said, was not to be construed in any way as a pressure move.

For that reason, because he did not want any misunderstanding, the President said, he was withholding for the time being the text of the representation made at Moscow yesterday by Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt.

The note Mr. Steinhardt delivered undoubtedly would be acknowledged, he said.

Became Worried Over Baltic.

Mr. Roosevelt's remark that he had nothing to say about German peace talk came after a reporter had said that Hitler would like to see this country settle "the European hash" and asked whether the President intended to do anything about it.

Outlining the chronology of the Russian matter, the President said that on Monday of this week he began to worry about the situation in the Baltic because it looked as if it might be heading toward an extension of wars.

On Tuesday, he continued, diplomatic representatives of several Scandinavian nations called at the State Department and the White House and said they were very much concerned. There was no suggestion, however, of joint action.

On Wednesday the President drafted a personal message to President Kalinin of the U. S. S. R. and waited until Secretary Hull returned to the city that afternoon, when they edited it.

The message, Mr. Roosevelt said, expressed the hope that nothing would occur to disturb Baltic peace or Finland's independence. It was sent to Moscow that afternoon. It was not given to the press at that time, however, because action had not been completed. Not until yesterday was the message actually delivered by Ambassador Steinhardt.

The President said Ambassador Steinhardt's call at the Kremlin was for no other purpose than to present the message to the Soviet chief of State.

Mentions Italian Tankers.

Regarding war problems more close to home, the President said that the Government had received unverified rumors that Italian tankers had been refueling a foreign submarine in the South Atlantic, but the story had not been given out officially, he emphasized, because it was not in a verifiable form.

He made this comment in response to a question. He said it was a good example of the administration's honest efforts to tell the press everything that can properly be told.

It meant, he added, that he was not giving to the press unverified rumors of all kinds that come in every day.

Stories given out about foreign submarines in the past have been fully verified, he added. Stories not given out, he explained, were of the type brought in by fishermen who say they have just seen a submarine.

—MEDIATION BARS—

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Oct. 13—Adolf Hitler's indirect suggestion that President Roosevelt advise Great Britain to meet Germany in conference encountered two immediate obstacles today.

One was that no formal request has been made for American mediation or intervention in the war.

The other was a feeling in many quarters that even if Germany made a formal request, the United States would want the advance assent of Britain and France to any such proposal.

Move Suggested Before

Mr. Roosevelt was questioned about them Tuesday, he said he had received no request from abroad.

Previous suggestions of a similar nature have been made by the controlled press in Germany. When Mr. Hitler's views were given to foreign correspondents in Berlin today by Dr. Otto Dietrich, press chief. Dietrich said Germany would unleash a "war in earnest" unless there was an indication that Mr. Roosevelt would tell Prime Minister Chamberlain he must express a willingness to confer with Germany.

United States Position

Authoritative sources in Washington pointed out that the United States already has proclaimed its readiness to help Europe reach a general understanding on economic and disarmament questions, but with no intention of being drawn into European political disputes. Mr. Roosevelt's peace appeals to Hitler before the war began followed that line of thought.

Senators have differed on the wisdom of Mr. Roosevelt's meeting as mediator, but opposition to American involvement in the war has been voiced repeatedly by both sides in the arms embargo fight.

Joint Move Proposed

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem., Col.) recently proposed that Mr. Roosevelt join other neutrals in seeking an armistice.

Key Pittman (Dem., Nev.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, while saying he did not think Mr. Roosevelt would hesitate to make "any appropriate suggestions" for peace, asserted last week that it would be "too much responsibility" for him to accept the formal role of mediator or arbitrator.

30.24-4029-8

30.24-4029

Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Dem., Mont.), an opponent of the Administration neutrality bill, said at the same time that he believed "ninety-nine per cent. of our people" would support Mr. Roosevelt if he took the initiative in seeking an armistice.

—LATVIAN 'SECURITY'—

[By the Associated Press]

Riga, Latvia, Oct. 13—President Karlis Ulmanis of Latvia has assured the economic and cultural councils of state that the Latvian-Russian agreement "gives us security and keeps distant the war threat."

Speaking to the councils, President Ulmanis said "we have avoided being pulled into the German-Polish war and the German war against the Western Powers, but it is beyond our strength to stop the rapid, deep changes in international relations caused by war."

Terms "Remarkably Clear"

"The Soviet-Latvian pact is remarkably clear and precise, respecting the interests of both sides with true reciprocity,' he declared. "We are determined to fulfill the obligations imposed by the pact.

"We highly appreciate good neighborliness. Certain nations which neglected good relations with neighbors and sought friends far away paid an enormous price for the fact—they lost their independence."

The President of the tiny Baltic state, which has a population of 1,950,502, concluded that "we will spare no efforts to keep out of war, will continue strengthening our army and will reject all doubts concerning our internal security. None seeks to impose upon us a change in regime."

The councils addressed by Ulmanis give advice on important legislative measures and draft laws concerning their particular fields.

Russians Reach Latvia.

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—A Soviet military delegation headed by Vice-Admiral I. S. Isakov, Russian Vice-Commissar of the Navy, arrived today to implement military features of the Russo-Latvian pact. The delegation's arrival followed President Karlis Ulmanis's assertion that the pact "gives us security and keeps distant the war threat."

to Meet Oct. 18.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—King Gustaf today invited and received acceptances from the Kings of Denmark and Norway and the President of Finland to meet him in Stockholm on October 18, presumably to discuss the Russo-Finnish question. Foreign ministers of the Scandinavian nations will accompany their rulers.

The specific questions to be discussed were not immediately disclosed, but it was understood that the Finnish situation in the face of Russian expansion in the Baltic would predominate.

There was some speculation of the likelihood of a general peace move by the northern countries since King Gustaf had been suggested in some quarters as a possible mediator for a European peace. It was recalled, however, that a meeting of the three northern kings in 1914 developed no such move.

Frontier Strengened.

Meanwhile the Swedish Government tonight ordered the strengthening of military defenses in upper Norrland—northeast Sweden near the Finnish border.

There was no disclosure of the number of troops sent to the area, but it was understood that about 10,000 additional men had gone. Defensive preparations in upper Norrland previously were limited since the Finnish-Swedish border is comparable to the Canadian-United States line as a friendly frontier. The situation in which Finland presently finds herself, however, puts a different light on the matter.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 13 (AP).—The Swedish Government tonight ordered the strengthening of defenses in upper Norrland, in the northeast near the Finnish border.

3 Norse Kings To Confer With Finnish President

Stockholm, Oct. 13 (AP)—Sweden today called the Kings of Denmark and Norway and the President of Finland to confer here next Wednesday on their status in the European war and at the same time ordered strengthening of the Swedish-Finnish border, long a friendly frontier similar to that of Canada and the United States.

It was understood that about 10,000 additional men had been sent to the upper Norland border sector, in preparation for any eventuality between Finland and Russia.

The troop movement closely followed the conference invitation by Sweden's venerable King Gustaf V.

Ministers To Attend

The communique announcing acceptances by King Christian X of Denmark, King Haakon VII of Norway and President Kyosti Kallio of Finland said they would be accompanied by their Foreign Ministers.

It was not immediately disclosed what specific questions were to be discussed, but the fact that President Kallio's homeland is in a state of emergency—its capital deserted by many residents, its armed forces in readiness—makes it a foregone conclusion that Finland's situation in the face of Russian expansion in the Baltic will loom large in the conversations.

To Discuss Mutual Aid

The discussions also likely will deal with a program for mutual assistance in maintaining neutrality and how to lessen the economic hardship created by the war.

Some circles said they believed Sweden, with her gold reserves, might grant large loans to her neighbors to help defray expenses of the crisis.

Most sources discounted the likelihood of any common effort to urge the warring nations to negotiate peace, although one Swedish paper has suggested Gustaf could qualify as a disinterested intermediary.

Dr. Halvdan Koht, Norway's Foreign Minister, in a statement at Oslo said the meeting was called "both because of the general European situation and the special situation in connection with Finland. The meeting will express Scandinavia's feeling of unity."

A Finnish delegation is now in Moscow for conversations at the Kremlin with Soviet leaders.

Peace Move Hinted

Because King Gustaf already had been suggested in some quarters as a possible mediator of European peace, there has been some speculation over the likelihood of a general peace move by the northern countries.

It was recalled, however, that a meeting of the three northern kings in December, 1914, developed no such move, the conference being confined to a discussion of Scandinavian problems arising out of war.

The situation today, however, is far different from that of 1914. Finland then belonged to the Russian Empire, although with the status of an autonomous grand duchy. In postwar years, after Finland won her independence, she has drawn closer to her Scandinavian neighbors. She was regarded as one of the "northern countries" (Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Iceland and Finland), bound together by a common destiny and common ideals.

Pleaded For Finland

This was emphasized for all the world to see when Denmark, Norway and Sweden yesterday made representations at Moscow in behalf of Finland, and comments in the Scandinavian press stressed brotherly feeling and common anxiety.

Official quarters in Sweden still professed to be optimistic regarding the chances of a peaceful outcome of the Russian-Finnish negotiations. On the basis of information available here they expressed belief that Russia would not go beyond demands for control of three small islands in the Finnish Gulf and a guaranty that the Aland Islands at the mouth of the Gulf of Bothnia would not be fortified.

Earlier this year Moscow raised strong objections to plans of Finland and Sweden to fortify the Alands jointly. The islands are Finnish territory, but Sweden is interested in them because of their strategic situation.

Bridges French Blasted Become Nazi Gun Bases

Batteries Installed in Rhine in Sight of Maginot Line

BASEL, Switzerland, Oct 13 (AP).—German engineers, working literally under the guns of the Maginot line, calmly mounted anti-aircraft batteries today on huge granite pillars left standing in the Rhine River when the French blew up three railroad bridges. The bridges were destroyed yesterday. They connected Mulhouse and Muellheim, Colmar and Freiburg, and Haguenau and Rastatt. The spans were constructed by the Germans after the war of 1870.

The dynamiting left granite pillars sixty feet from the German side of the river. With only the pillars between them and the Maginot line, the engineers hollowed the top of each pillar and installed anti-aircraft guns and their crews. Military observers said the French would probably do the same thing with the pillars on their side of the river.

Destruction of the bridges left only two others across the Rhine. They are at Strasbourg, and are incorporated into the Maginot and Limes lines. Each bridgehead is a fort, hence both have been left standing, but no one has tried to cross them since the war began.

Blasting of the spans, observers said, indicated that the French fear a German attack across the Rhine or are planning to protect their own flanks for their own attack.

Scandinavians Apprehensive

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 13 (AP).—Apprehension in the neutrality-conscious Scandinavian countries was reflected today in newspaper and official utterances. Concern centered on the Finnish-Soviet talks at Moscow and the war in western Europe, which already has blighted Scandinavian shipping.

Swedish official circles greeted with gratitude the interest shown by the United States in Finland's position. The Swedes said Washington thus had helped secure the safety of the northern states, and this, they said, the people would never forget.

The Copenhagen newspaper "Politiken" said this was a "very severe hour" for the neutral countries.

"It is not less severe by reason of the fact that Russia has made her own revision in the Baltic," "Politiken" said. "The big powers have been released. Still more dangerous forces are about to be released. After civil war in Europe how will it look then and who will be the master?

"There is no reason to enter this black period of history with illusions. The small neutral states have a well founded hope of keeping neutrality but they have no hope of being able to avoid feeling the war very heavily."

Hungary Devotes Third Of Its Budget to Defense

$89,000,000 Allotted to Arms; Deficit Is $18,000,000

BUDAPEST, Oct. 13 (AP).—Military expenditures of 498,600,000 pengoes ($89,000,000) are included in the new Hungarian budget for the period from June 30, 1939, to Dec. 31, 1940. This represents an increase of about $35,000,000 over the previous eighteen-month period, and almost one-third of the entire budget of 1,732,000,000 pengoes ($311,000,000).

As submitted to the Chamber of Deputies, the budget anticipates revenue of 1,629,000,000 pengoes ($293,000,000), with a deficit of about $18,000,000. The budgeted revenue exceeds that of the last period by 311,000,000 pengoes ($56,000,000), attributed principally to income tax increases and greater profits from state enterprises.

The government announced a new internal loan of unspecified size be floated.

Kaunas, Lithuania, Oct. 13.—Official spokesmen said today that Lithuanian Government had decided to press for changes in the German-Lithuanian pact which gave Memelland to Germany.

The statement was so phrased, however, as to indicate the government was considering such a possibility.

Dispatches from Riga, Latvia, published in Stockholm, said Lithuania was unsatisfied with her limited rights in Memel and now wants extraterritorial rights in Memel harbor. The dispatches added she would have Russian support in making such a request.

Memelland was taken over by Germany last March 22.

It was reported also that the Lithuanian Government had planned to open negotiations in Berlin to regain the Suwalki district once belonged to Lithuania.

Belgium Plans $6,600,000 U.S. Plane Purchase

Mission Is Not Expected to Have Any Difficulty With the Neutrality Laws

BRUSSELS, Oct. 13 (AP).—Informed sources said today that a special Belgian mission to purchase airplanes in the United States would leave Rotterdam tomorrow.

The mission of four officers, headed by Major Theis, was expected to spend approximately 200,000,000 francs ($6,600,000) for a virtually complete new Belgian air force, aerial instruments, anti-aircraft machinery, and also army equipment. The mission was said to include a test pilot and an expert on engines.

[A dispatch from Naples said Georges Theunis, former Belgian Premier, was a passenger aboard the Italian liner Conte di Savoia bound for the United States to investigate possible sources of supplies. Theunis, army food administrator during the World War, was heading a special economic mission, the dispatch said.]

The aviation mission will report to the embassy in Washington and then make trips to American factories, staying five or six weeks in the United States, the informants said.

Belgium, a neutral country, was expected to have no difficulty with present American neutrality laws, and hoped to obtain quick delivery from American firms on all types of war planes.

The present Belgian air force, with a trained personnel, has been praised highly by neutral observers.

Lindbergh's Talk on Arms Embargo

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—Here is the text of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's radio address tonight on the arms embargo issue:

Tonight I speak again to the people of this country who are opposed to the United States entering the war which is now going on in Europe. We are faced with the need of deciding on a policy of American neutrality. The future of our nation and our civilization rests upon the wisdom and foresight we use.

Much as peace is to be desired, we should realize that behind a successful policy of neutrality must stand a policy of war. It is essential to define clearly those principles and circumstances for which a nation will fight.

Let us give no one the impression that America's love for peace means that she is afraid of war, or that we are not fully capable and willing to defend all that is vital to us. National life and influence depend upon national strength, both in character and in arms. A neutrality built on pacifism alone will eventually fail.

Before we can intelligently ... act regulations for the ... our armaments, our credit and our ships we must draw a sharp dividing line between neutrality and war; there must be no gradual encroachment on the defense of our nation. Up to this line we may adjust our affairs to gain the advantages of peace, but beyond it must lie all the armed might of America, coiled in readiness to spring if once this bond is cut.

Opposes Bluff in This Hemisphere

Let us make clear to all countries where this line lies. It must be both within our intent and our capabilities. There must be no question of trading or bluff in this hemisphere.

Let us give no promises we cannot keep, make no meaningless assurances to an Ethiopia, a Czecho-Slovakia or a Poland. The policy we decide upon should be as clear cut as our shore lines and as easily defended as our continent.

This Western Hemisphere is our domain. It is our right to trade freely within it. From Alaska to Labrador, from the Hawaiian Islands to Bermuda, from Canada to South America, we must allow no invading army to set foot.

These are the outposts of the United States. They form the essential outline of our geographical defense. We must be ready to wage war with all the resources of our nation if they are ever seriously threatened. Their defense is the mission of our army, our navy and our air corps—the minimum requirement of our military strength.

Around these places should lie our line between neutrality and war. Let there be no compromise about our right to defend or trade within this area. If it is challenged by any nation the answer must be war. Our policy of neutrality should have this as its foundation.

Pictures Duties of Sister Nations

We must protect our sister American nations from foreign invasion, both for their welfare and our own. But, in turn, they have a duty to us. They should not place us in the position of having to defend them in America while they engage in wars abroad.

Can we rightfully permit any country in America to give bases to foreign warships, or to send its army abroad to fight while it remains secure in our protection at home?

We desire the utmost friendship with the people of Canada. If their country is ever attacked, our navy will be defending their seas, our soldiers will fight on their battlefields, our fliers will die in their skies.

But have they the right to draw this hemisphere into a European war simply because they prefer the Crown of England to American independence?

Sooner or later we must demand the freedom of this continent and its surrounding islands from the dictates of European power. American history clearly indicates this need.

As long as European powers maintain their influence in our hemisphere we are likely to find ourselves involved in their troubles. And they will lose no opportunity to involve us.

Our Congress is now assembled to decide upon the best policy for this country to maintain during the war which is going on in Europe. The legislation under discussion involves three major issues—the embargo of arms, the restriction of shipping and the allowance of credit.

The action we take in regard to these issues will be an important indication to ourselves, and to the nations of Europe, whether or not we are likely to enter the conflict eventually, as we did in the last war. The entire world is watching us. The action we take in America may either stop or precipitate this war.

Let us take up these issues, one at a time, and examine them. First, the embargo of arms: It is argued that the repeal of this embargo would assist democracy in Europe, that it would let us make a profit for ourselves from the sale of munitions abroad, and, at the same time, help to build up our own arms industry.

I do not believe that repealing the arms embargo would assist democracy in Europe, because I do not believe this is a war for democracy. This is a war over the balance of power in Europe—a war brought about by the desire for strength on the part of Germany and the fear of strength on the part of England and France.

The more munitions the armies obtain, the longer the war goes on, and the more devastated Europe becomes, the less hope there is for democracy.

That is a lesson we should have learned from our participation in the last war. If democratic principles had been applied in Europe after that war, if the "democracies" of Europe had been willing to make some sacrifices to help democracy in Europe while it was fighting for its life, if England and France had offered a hand to the struggling republic of Germany, there would be no war today.

Deplores Profit Policy

If we repeal the arms embargo with the ideaf of assisting one of the warring sides to overcome the other, then why mislead ourselves by talk of neutrality?

Those who advance this argument should admit openly that repeal is a step toward war. The next step would be the extension of credit, and the next would be the sending of American troops.

To those who argue that we could make a profit and build up our own industry by selling munitions abroad I reply that we in America have not yet reached a point where we wish to capitalize on the destruction and death of war.

I do not believe that the material welfare of this country needs, or that our spiritual welfare could withstand, such a policy.

If our industry depends upon a commerce of arms for its strength then our industrial system should be changed. It is impossible for me to understand how America can contribute to civilization and humanity by sending offensive instruments of destruction to European battlefields. This would not only implicate us in the war, but it would also make us partly responsible for its devastation.

The fallacy of helping to defend a political ideology, even though it be somewhat similar to our own, was clearly demonstrated to us in the last war. Through our help that war was won, but neither the democracy nor the justice for which we fought grew in the peace that followed our victory.

Calls Racial Strength Vital

Our bond with Europe is a bond of race and not of political ideology. We had to fight a European army to establish democracy in this country. It is the European race we must preserve; political progress will follow.

Racial strength is vital—politics, a luxury. If the white race is ever seriously threatened, it may then be time for us to take our part in its protection, to fight side by side with the English, French and Germans, but not with one against the other for our mutual destruction.

Let us not dissipate our strength or help Europe to dissipate hers in these wars of politics and possession. For the benefit of Western civilization we should continue our embargo on offensive armaments.

As far as purely defensive arms are concerned, I, for one, am in favor of supplying European countries with as much as we can spare of the material called within this category.

There are technicians who will argue that offensive and defensive arms cannot be separated completely. That is true, but it is no more difficult to make a list of defensive weapons than it is to separate munitions of war from semi-manufactured articles, and we are faced with that problem today.

No one says that we should sell opium because it is difficult to make a list of narcotics. I would as soon see our country traffic in opium as in bombs.

Cites Cases of Bombers

There are certain border-line cases, but there are plenty of clear-cut examples: For instance, the bombing plane and the anti-aircraft cannon. I do not want to see American bombers dropping bombs which will kill and mutilate European children even if they are not flown by American pilots.

But I am perfectly willing to having financed a large portion of the expenditures of European countries.

And when the time came to pay us back, these countries simply refused to do so. They not only refused to pay the war-time loans we made, but they refused to pay back what we loaned them after the war was over.

As is so frequently the case, we found that loaning money eventually created animosity instead of gratitude. European countries felt insulted when we asked to be repaid.

They called us "Uncle Shylock."

Advises Ships to Stay Home

In modern naval warfare, torpedoes and bombs dropped on probabilities rather than on certainties of identification. The only safe course for neutral shipping at this time is to stay away from the warring countries and dangerous waters of Europe.

The third issue to be decided relates to the extension of credit. Here again we may draw from our experience in the last war. After that war was over, we found ourselves in the position of were developed during the surface era were not satisfactory to the submarine. Now, aircraft are unknown factors for consideration. It is simple enough for a battleship to identify the merchantman she captures. It is a more difficult problem for a submarine if the merchantman may carry cannon; it is safer to fire a torpedo than to come up and ask. For bombing planes flying at high altitudes and through conditions of poor visibility, identification of a surface vessel will be more difficult still.

new numerical anti-aircraft guns shooting American shells at invading bombers over any European country. And I believe that most of you who are listening tonight will agree with me.

The second major issue for which we must create a policy concerns the restrictions to be placed on our shipping. Naval blockades have long been accepted as an element of warfare. They began on the surface of the sea, followed the submarine beneath it, and now reach up into the sky with aircraft.

DEMANDS FREE RULE FOR U. S. ON CONTINENT

European powers, he says, must leave this hemisphere to increase U. S. security

CITES CANADIAN PEOPLE

Asks if they have right to drag U. S. into war because of their allegiance to crown

Washington, D .C., Oct. 13 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh called tonight for maintenance of an embargo on "offensive weapons" and virtually demanded that Great Britain and other European powers get out of this hemisphere lest they drag the United States into war.

"We desire the utmost friendship with the people of Canada," he said in a radio address. "If their country is ever attacked, our navy will be defending their seas, our soldiers will fight on their battlefields, our fliers will die in their skies.

Demand Seen Inevitable

"But have they the right to draw this hemisphere into a European war simply because they prefer the crown of England to American independence?

"Sooner or later we must demand the freedom of this continent and its surrounding islands from the dictates of European power. American history clearly indicates this need. As long as European powers maintain their influence in our hemisphere, we are likely to find ourselves involved in their troubles. And they will lose no opportunity to involve us."

Lindbergh's stand on whether this country should refuse to sell arms to warring nations was similar to one recently taken by Herbert Hoover. The flier advocated the following four-point program:

An embargo on offensive weapons and munitions.

The unrestricted sale of purely defensive armaments.

The prohibition of American shipping from the belligerent countries of Europe and their danger zones.

The refusal of credit to belligerent nations, or their agents.

Not War for Democracy

Repealing the present embargo on arms, he said, would not assist democracy in Europe "because I do not believe this is a war for democracy."

"This is a war over the balance of power in Europe—a war brought about by the desire [illegible] on that part of Germany and the fear of strength on the part of England and France. The more munitions the armies obtain the longer the war goes on, and the more devastated Europe becomes, the less hope there is for democracy."

If England and France had offered a hand to Germany when that country was democratic, he said, "there would be no war today."

"It is impossible for me to understand how America can contribute to civilization and humanity by sending offensive instruments of destruction to European battlefields," the aviator went on. "This would not only implicate us in the war but it would also make us partly responsible for its devastation."

Bond of Race

"A bond with Europe," he said, "is a bond of race and not of political ideology. . . . It is the European race we must preserve; political progress will follow. . . . If the white race is ever seriously threatened, it may then be time for us to take our part in its protection, to fight side by side with the English, French and Germans, but not with one against the other for our mutual destruction."

Advoating an embargo on offensive arms, he said:

"I do not want to see American bombers dropping bombs which will kill and mutilate European children . . . But I am perfectly willing to see American anti-aircraft guns shooting American shells at invading bombers over any European country."

As for shipping, he said the only safe course for neutral vessels "is to stay away from the warring countries and dangerous waters of Europe."

On the topic of credits, Lindbergh recalled how the European nations defaulted on their World War debts.

"Uncle Shylock"

"They called us Uncle Shylock," he said. "They were horrorstruck at the idea of turning over to us any of their islands in America to compensate for their debts, or for our help in winning their war. They seized all the [illegible] colonies and carved up Europe to suit their fancy. These were the 'fruits of war.' They took our money and they took our soldiers. But there was not the offer of one Caribbean island in return for the debts 'they could not afford to pay.'"

If loans are made to a belligerent, he asserted, "many interests will feel that it is more important for that country to win than for our own to avoid the war."

"It is unfortunate but true that there are interests in America who would rather lose American lives than their own dollars. We should give them no opportunity."

At the outset of his speech, Lindbergh declared that the Western Hemisphere "is our domain."

"It is our right to trade freely within it," he said. "From Alaska to Labrador, from the Hawaiian Islands to Bermuda, from Canada to South America, we must allow no invading army to set foot."

Duty of Americas

But he asserted that while we will protect "our sister American nations from foreign invasion," they have a duty to us; "they should not place us in the position of having to defend them in America while they engage in wars abroad.

"Can we rightfully permit any country in America to give bases to foreign warships, or to send its army aboard to fight while it remains secure in our protection at home."

This was [illegible] to Canada, which is a [illegible]nt. President Roosevelt has laid down the policy that the United States would not permit any foreign force to conquer Canada.

They were horror struck at the idea of turning over to us any of their islands in America to compensate for their debts, or for our help in winning their war. They seized all the German colonies and carved up Europe to suit their fancy. These were the "fruits of war." They took our money and they took our soldiers.

Holds Credit Step to War

But there was not the offer of one Caribbean island in return for the debts they "could not afford to pay." The extension of credit to a belligerent country is a long step toward war and it would leave us close to the edge.

If American industry loans money to a belligerent country, many interests will feel that it is more important for that country to win than for our own to avoid the war. It is unfortunate but true that there are interests in America who would rather lose American lives than their own dollars. We should give them no opportunity.

I believe that we should adopt as our program of American neutrality as our contribution to Western civilization—the following policy:

1. An embargo on offensive weapons and munitions.
2. The unrestricted sale of purely defensive armaments.
3. The prohibition of American shipping from the belligerent countries of Europe and their danger zones.
4. The refusal of credit to belligerent nations or their agents.

Whether or not this program is adopted depends upon the support of those of us who believe in it. The United States of America is a democracy. The policy of our country is still controlled by our people. It is time for us to take action. There has never been a greater test for the democratic principle of government.

possessions. Several Senators have contended that this would wipe the growing American merchant marine off the seas, since it would block trade with British colonies.

"Our ships can't lie idle," commented Senator William E. Borah (Rep., Idaho). "If we don't use them, I guess we will have to sell them to the British. That would give them control of commerce throughout the world."

Opposition Elated By Gain

Administration backers, still voicing confidence that the bill would be approved, told reporters that relaxation of the shipping provisions should generate even more support.

But opposition Senators, elated by the gain of two votes in the last two days, declared sentiment was swinging their way. The two votes were those of Senators Vic Donahey (Dem., Ohio) and Dennis Chavez (Dem., N. M.), who announced that they favored retaining the arms embargo.

Senator Borah said mass meetings in various sections showed that public sentiment against repeal was growing.

Taft And Nye Talking

Administration leaders still were claiming more than 60 of the 96 Senate votes. An Associated Press tabulation showed that fifty Senators have publicly voiced support of repeal, while twenty-two have voiced opposition.

Debate on the measure continued today, with Senator Robert A. Taft (Rep., Ohio) scheduled to speak first in support of repeal and Senator Gerald P. Nye (Rep., N. D.) listed to follow with an opposition address.

Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky called for a Saturday session. He and some of the opposition leaders predicted that voting on amendments would start next week and that the bill would be disposed of during the following week.

EMBARGO AND SHIPS

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Oct. 13—A bi-partisan agreement has been worked out in the Senate to relax stringent shipping provisions of the Administration's neutrality bill.

In general, influential Senators said today, the projected change would permit American merchant vessels to sail to all areas where they would not be in danger. It was said that these areas would be defined in the legislation, but might be changed by Presidential order if danger to shipping arose later.

What Bill Now Would Do

The neutrality bill as now phrased, besides repealing the arms embargo, would forbid American ships and citizens to visit belligerent nations or their

Nye Demands Safeguards

Against a War Boom— Taft Assails Embargo.

WASHINGTON, [illegible] (A. P.).—Vice-President Garner was reported authoritatively today to be exerting his influence to effect a compromise on the shipping provisions of the administration's neutrality legislation in an effort to bring the debate to an early close.

Mr. Garner, informed persons said, has urged administration leaders to accept one of three compromise proposals made by Senators Johnson, Republican, of California; White, Republican, of Maine, and Bailey, Democrat, of North Carolina, in order to clear away one obstacle lying ahead of a final vote on the arms embargo repeal bill.

The three proposed amendments were delivered today to Senator Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, for his study. Details were not revealed immediately but, among other things, exemption of shipping in belligerent nations in the Pacific is involved.

The administration bill now contains a clause which would prohibit any American vessels from carrying materials to belligerents in any part of the world.

Nye for Safeguard Against Boom.

Senator Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, told his colleagues today that the administration's neutrality bill should be remodeled both to retain the embargo on arms sales to belligerents and to provide other safeguards against what he called an "unlimited war-boom."

The North Dakota Senator took the floor to oppose the administration measure after Senator Taft, Republican, of Ohio, had supported it in a speech urging repeal of the arms embargo, which he described as favoring aggressor nations against peaceful nations.

Mr. Taft voiced approval of provisions which would prohibit American ships from carrying goods to warring countries, but he recommended elimination of a section permitting ninety-day credits on arms sales.

"We should prohibit our ships from going to Europe," he said. "That policy is no more cowardly than it is to keep people out of a burning house. It is simply good sense that we prevent American citizens not only from risking their own lives, but from plunging us into a war which may involve millions of other lives."

In support of his argument, Senator Nye "dared" the administration to put to fifty leading industrialists and members of President Roosevelt's Cabinet this question:

"Is the unlimited war-boom allowed in the present cash-and-carry bill a good thing for our national life?"

Doubts 'Dare' Will Be Accepted.

As soon as he uttered his "dare," Mr. Nye remarked that he did not think the administration would accept it; but he said that, if such an inquiry could be made by Senate committees, it would be found that not more than ten of the fifty persons questioned would wish to repeat the experience of the last war boom.

Possibly not a single member of the Cabinet, he continued, would say that "an unlimited war boom would be a good thing for our economy, for our nation's real good."

He then proceeded to name some industrialists who he believed should be [illegible] questioning could an inquiry be held. They included Edward R. Stettinius Jr., Henry Ford, Lammot du Pont, Eugene G. Grace, Walter S. Gifford, Owen D. Young, Ernest T. Weir, William S. Knudsen and Henry S. Dennison.

Mr. Nye said his contention was "that the cash-and-carry proposal as it now stands does not prevent a war boom, that it should be amended to hold trade down to normal, and that the arms embargo is, by itself, a way to hold one particular branch of the war boom down, for reasons particular to itself, having to do with our influence for peace."

He declared that if the arms embargo were repealed the United States would lose any force it might have in attempting to bring about world peace.

Proponents of repeal, he argued, were "almost entirely silent" as to how it would help keep the country out of war, and "the President himself, in his message to Congress, was content to rest his entire case in this vtial particular upon the undemonstrated assurance that the present law will embroil us in this war and that this proposed bill will avoid involvement."

Mr. Taft is one of a half dozen Republican Senators favoring repeal of the arms embargo. He told

AJE - Daily - Oct. 13

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE (PROG-WIS) HELD THE FLOOR MUCH OF YESTERDAY WITH A DEMAND THAT THE MEASURE BE AMENDED TO PREVENT "VALUABLE AND NECESSARY PRODUCTS" FROM BEING DRAINED AWAY TO WARRING COUNTRIES. HE SAID THAT IMPOSITION OF TRADE QUOTAS WOULD ACCOMPLISH THIS RESULT.

LA FOLLETTE TOLD THE CHAMBER THAT HE HAD STOOD ON THE SENATE FLOOR IN 1917 WHEN HIS FATHER, "OLD BOB" LA FOLLETTE, HAD OPPOSED THE HIGHLY CONTROVERSIAL BILL TO PERMIT ARMING OF AMERICAN MERCHANT SHIPS.

"I HAD HEARD RUMORS IN THE CLOAKROOMS," HE SHOUTED. "I KNEW the Senate repeatedly that he believed the United States could remain out of the European war.

"The President of the United States," Mr. Taft said, "would make a tremendous mistake if he regarded the passage of this bill as in any way a symbol of popular approval of interference in Europe.

"The popular opposition to this bill, as far as it exists, is based on suspicion of the President's tendency to interfere in the European war. He has publicly pledged his determination to keep America at peace, and we can surely accept that pledge."

Would Keep Congress On Job.

Mr. Taft, son of the pre-World War President, urged that Congress remain in session to act promptly "on any emergency which may arise." He declared that nothing would be so destructive to democratic government in the United States as war, and added:

"Those who control the present government believe in a planned economy under government control. A war policy of confiscation, dominated by that philosophy, would create a completely socialized form of life, from which we might never return to the liberty and freedom heretofore regarded as characteristic of America."

Senator Taft expressed the belief that repeal of the embargo would not result in any great demand for American munitions on the part of European belligerents. During the two and a half years before the United States entered the world war, he said, such goods constituted only 13 per cent of total American exports to the United Kingdom, France, Italy, Russia and Canada.

"Many of my correspondents apparently think that today we are not shipping anything of importance to Europe," he said, "but that when the embargo is repealed the flood-gates will be opened. Of course, they are greatly mistaken.

"Shipments of all kinds are going to England and France. Not guns, it is true, but the steel and machine tools with which to make guns."

Sees Warlike Nations Favored.

An arms embargo, Mr. Taft said, makes war more likely throughout the world.

"It favors warlike nations which build up their armaments in time of peace," he declared, "and it discriminates against those nations which, hoping for peace and relying on treaties, fail to pour vast sums into armament. In short, it favors the aggressor against the peaceful nation."

He took issue with the opponents' contention that it would be unneutral to repeal the embargo after war has begun.

"We are said to be changing the rules of the game after the game is started," he asserted. "In the first place, war is not a game; it is a deadly serious matter.

"In the second place, the imposing of an embargo on American products is strictly a domestic policy. We have the right to do it or not do it, as we see fit.

"It cannot be said that any nation went to war relying on laws which might be changed by Congress. Certainly Hitler did not do so. We did not mislead him. When he went to war, a bill repealing the arms embargo was pending in Congress, recommended by the President of the United States."

Wider Scope for Shipping.

A bi-partisan agreement has been worked out in the Senate to relax stringent shipping provisions of the administration's neutrality bill.

In general, influential Senators said today, the projected change would permit American merchant vessels to sail to all areas where they would not be in danger.

It was said that these areas would be defined in the legislation itself, but that they might be further restricted by presidential order if danger to shipping should arise later.

"Our ships can't lie idle," commented Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho. "If we don't use them, I guess we will have to sell them to the British. That would give them control of commerce throughout the world."

Administration backers, reiterating expressions of confidence that the bill would be approved, told reporters that relaxation of the shipping provisions should generate even more support.

But opposition Senators, elated by the gain of two votes in the last two days, declared that sentiment was swinging their way. The two votes were those of Senators Donahey, Democrat, of Ohio, and Chavez, Democrat, of New Mexico, who announced that they favored retaining the arms embargo.

Our Own War Of Words

295,000 Already Hurled In Senate Debate On Neutrality Measure

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP).—More than 295,00 words have been spoken in the Senate's neutrality debate and the Senators still are going strong.

The estimate was made by the official shorthand reporters, who take down every word for the Congressional Record.

Senator Tobey (Rep., N. H.), who can rattle along at 300 words a minute, has been the fastest talker. But Senato rDowney (Dem., Cal.) was credited with uttering the most words. He spoke for seven hours.

F. D. R. TO BE HOST TO REFUGEE BOARD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—President Roosevelt will receive members of the International Refugee Committee for a luncheon conference October 17.

After this meeting, the Chief Executive told reporters today, the delegates will go to the State Department to begin their conferences on the European refugee problem.

PLOT BY 'COL. HOUSE' MENTIONED IN NOTE

Texan Protests Putting Letter in Congressional Record

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—Representative Thorkelson (Rep., Mont) placed in the House record today a letter signed "Colonel E. M. House" which referred to a plan for "the peaceful return of the American colonies to the Dominion of the Crown" and indicated the author was involved in carrying it out.

Representative Thomason (Dem., Tex.) asked Thorkelson whether he had evidence that the late Colonel E. M. House, confidential secretary to President Wilson, had signed the missive.

"I don't know that positively," replied Thorkelson. "It came into my ahnds simply as a source of information." He understood, he said, that it was from the secret files of the British Consulate in New York.

"It is the rankest kind of injustice if it's not a bona fide letter and of that I have serious doubts," Thomason exclaimed.

U. S. Red Cross Sets War Fund At $1,000,000

Appropriation Announced by Davis for Immediate Relief Needs in Europe

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—Norman H. Davis, chairman, announced today that the American Red Cross had appropriated $1,000,000 for immediate relief needs in the European war.

"If the need develops, we will have to make a regular war fund drive," Mr. Davis said. "The Red Cross is ready to do everything practicable that the American people want it to do."

More than 3,700 chapters have been notified they may accept relief contributions, which may be designated for expenditure in any particular country.

Since the war started gifts of about $200,000 had been received, the largest being $150,000 from the Polish Alliance for the Relief of Poland, Mr. Davis said. Detailing war relief moves already made, Mr. Davis said requests for medicines, clothing, blankets and hospital and other supplies had come from the Polish, French, British and German Red Cross organizations.

Mr. Davis said "lots of supplies" already were at seaboard; ships were awaiting transport in New York and some supplies were purchased in Europe. He added that the Red Cross had ordered yesterday 30,000 suits of underwear and 5,000 blankets for Poland and Lithuania.

American Red Cross expenditures thus far approached $400,000, Mr. Davis noted. Outlays include $25,000 to aid victims of the torpedoed liner Athenia and to repatriate Americans stranded in Europe, $25,000 to remove patients in the American Hospital in Paris, $25,000 for the Red Cross of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania and $25,000 for the Polish Red Cross.

CARIBBEAN WAR ZONE

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Oct. 13—Representative J. Buell Snyder (Dem., Pa.) returned from an inspection of Caribbean fortifications today with a story of extensive foreign submarine operations near United States soil.

Snyder, chairman of the House military appropriations subcommittee, said Gov. Lawrence Cramer of the Virgin Islands had expressed the opinion to him that a fleet of foreign submarines had been in the Caribbean since early August.

Fleet And Mother Ship

Snyder said there was belief in the islands that the submarines belonged "to a power embittered against British shipping." He added: "Some were of the opinion that a big submarine was bringing fuel and other supplies to a number of submarines of a smaller type."

The Governor's reports, he explained, came from civilians living along the Virgin Islands coast, as well as from army and navy patrols.

Would Increase Air Force

Expressing enthusiasm for the state of American defenses after an 11,000-mile air tour of army posts on the mainland and Caribbean islands, Snyder said he believed that there should be further expansion in some branches.

He declared that he would advocate increasing the army's air force from the authorized 5,500 planes to 8,000, to be completed by January 1, 1943.

Armed British Vessel Docks At San Francisco

Motor Ship Arrives With Two Guns Mounted On Stern, Sandbags On Decks

San Francisco, Oct. 13 (AP)—The British motor ship Pacific President arrived today with two guns mounted on its stern and sandbags on its decks.

Secrecy shrouded the vessel's movements because the British shipping companies recently asked the Marine Exchange not to disclose such information.

The ship was the first armed merchant craft to enter the harbor since the war began.

Airplane Draftsman Arrested By FBI Agents

Suspect, Said To Belong To Prominent Family, Accused Of Theft Of U. S. Property

Los Angeles, Oct. 13 (AP)—E. R. McDonough, 28, described by his estranged wife as a member of a "very prominent Chicago family" was arrested by FBI agents today on a charge of theft of Government property.

McDonough, a draftsman for the Douglas Aircraft Company, Santa Monica, was accused of taking aircraft plans last June. Agents said the plans were found in his home. He was arraigned before a United States commissioner.

McDonough, who denied the plans were those of secret army planes, said he was discharged from the Douglas plant two weeks ago "for what they said was 'lack of interest in my work.'"

U. S. Playwright Aids Canadian Soldiers

Sherwood Giving Royalties From His Abe Lincoln Play To Red Cross

Toronto, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press)—Robert Sherwood, American playwright who served with the Canadian Black Watch Regiment in the World War, is not forgetting the Canadian soldiers this year.

He has directed that his royalties from the play, Abe Lincoln in Illinois, when it is presented in Toronto the week of November 13, be turned over to the Canadian Red Cross Society. It is estimated the gift may amount to $1,500 or $2,000.

Mr. Sherwood was 21 when he left Harvard in 1917 and went to Montreal to enlist in the Black Watch. He served with Canadian forces until 1919.

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN, OCT. 13-(AP)-REICHS PRESS CHIEF OTTO DIETRICH, CHATTING INFORMALLY WITH A GROUP OF FOREIGN CORRESPONDENTS AFTER HE AND THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT MINUTELY STUDIED PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN'S HOUSE OF COMMONS REPLY TO ADOLF HITLER'S REICHSTAG PEACE PROPOSALS, EXPRESSED THE OPINION THAT, AS HE SAW THE SITUATION, THE UNITED STATES ALONE HAD THE POSSIBILITY EVEN NOW OF PREVENTING THE MOST GRUESOME BLOOD BATH IN HISTORY.

OCT 14 1939

GREAT BRITAIN, HE FELT, WOULD NEVER HAVE ISSUED SO "INSOLENT" A REPLY AS SHE DID THROUGH CHAMBERLAIN EXCEPT FOR HER TAKING IT GRANTED THAT THE UNITED STATES STOOD BEHIND HER.

HENCE--SO DIETRICH SUGGESTED--BRITAIN MIGHT WELL BE TOLD BY AMERICA IN POSITIVE AND UNEQUIVOCAL TERMS THAT THE UNITED STATES INSISTS UPON BRITAIN'S MAKING THE ATTEMPT EVEN NOW TO [redacted], FOR PROBLEMS AT ISSUE BY MEETING GERMANY AT THE COUNCIL TABLE. SUCH AN ACTION, HE FELT, WOULD END THE WAR FOR AN AGREEMENT COULD CERTAINLY BE REACHED.

EVERY GERMAN, DIETRICH SAID, WAS ENRAGED THAT CHAMBERLAIN HAD NOWHERE INDICATED WILLINGNESS TO SIT DOWN AND TALK THINGS OVER WITH GERMANY.

SUCH INITIATIVE BY THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT, DIETRICH SAID, NEEDED NO INVITATION BY EITHER OR BOTH BELLIGERENT SIDES.

(WHEN THE LATTER ERRONEOUS INTERPRETATION WAS PUT UPON HIS SUGGESTION AS THOUGH HE HAD INVITED ROOSEVELT TO UNDERTAKE PEACE MEDIATION, HE ISSUED A FORMAL DENIAL OF SUCH INTENTION THROUGH DNB, GERMAN OFFICIAL NEWS AGENCY.)

THE UNITED STATES, AS THE MOST POWERFUL NEUTRAL, HAD A VITAL INTEREST IN THE ESTABLISHMENT OF PEACE AND SHOULD OF HER OWN INITIATIVE URGE BRITAIN TO MEET GERMANY AT THE GREEN TABLE.

HITLER, HE SAID, WAS "BROAD-MINDED MAN WHO IN [redacted] OF A CONFERENCE WOULD ACCEPT EVERY REASONABLE PROPOSAL.

IT WAS SHEER MADNESS, [redacted] IN DIETRICH'S OPINION, FOR THE WESTERN POWERS AND GERMANY TO TRY TO ANNIHILATE EACH OTHER WHEN THE POSSIBILITY OF A SETTLEMENT BY NEGOTIATION WAS STILL POSSIBLE.

OCT 14 1939

COMMUNIQUE

BERLIN, OCT. 13 - (12.40 P.M., 6.40 A.M., E.S.T.) --(AP) -- THE GERMAN SUPREME COMMAND TODAY ISSUED THE FOLLOWING COMMUNIQUE:

OCT 14 1939

"IN THE EAST, MOVEMENTS TOWARD THE GERMAN-RUSSIAN BORDER ARE NEARING COMPLETION.

"IN THE WEST, LOCAL SCOUTING TROOP AND ARTILLERY ACTIVITY AS DURING PRECEDING DAYS. THE FRENCH YESTERDAY BLEW UP RHINE BRIDGES AT WINTERSDORF, BREISAM AND NEUENBURG."

(END COMMUNIQUE)

All Berlin- Oct. 13

INDIGNATION OVER PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN'S REJECTION OF REICHSFUEHRER HITLER'S PROPOSALS FOR ENDING THE WAR SWEPT THROUGH NAZI RANKS.

OCT 14 1939

AN OFFICIAL PRESS RELEASE SAID THAT CHAMBERLAIN HAD "REJECTED THE HAND OF PEACE STRETCHED OUT TO HIM BY THE FUEHRER" AND THAT BRITAIN'S WAR AIMS MEANT "WAR AGAINST THE GERMAN PEOPLE, WAR AGAINST THE GERMAN REICH UNTO ANNIHILATION."

BUT OFFICIALDOM NEVERTHELESS EXPRESSED A HOPE SOME NEUTRAL POWERFUL ENOUGH, SUCH AS THE UNITED STATES, NAZIS SAID, "IN HER OWN INTEREST" WOULD BRING PRESSURE ON BRITAIN TO ACCEPT A PEACE CONFERENCE AS THE FUEHRER SUGGESTED IN HIS REICHSTAG SPEECH JUST A WEEK AGO.

(PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SAID IN WASHINGTON HE HAD NOTHING TO SAY WHEN ASKED ABOUT LATEST INFORMAL GERMAN PEACE TALK. HE ALSO SAID HE HAD RECEIVED NO OFFICIAL WORD FROM THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT.)

A COMMUNIQUE OF THE ARMY HIGH COMMAND SAID THE FRENCH YESTERDAY BLEW UP THREE GERMAN-BUILT BRIDGES OVER THE RHINE.

BUT FROM ASSERTIONS IN OFFICIAL QUARTERS IT APPEARED THAT SUCH ACTION WOULD NOT BE SEIZED UPON AS A SIGNAL FOR HEAVY RETALIATION, ALTHOUGH GERMANY, IT WAS SAID, "HAS MADE HER PEACE BID AND WILL NOT MAKE ANOTHER."

AUTHORITATIVE SOURCES SAID NEITHER THE UNITED STATES NOR ANY OTHER NEUTRAL WOULD BE ASKED FORMALLY TO INTERVENE IN THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT.

OCT 14 1939

THESE SOURCES SAID THAT FOLLOWING HITLER'S PEACE APPEAL OF LAST WEEK IT WAS UP TO NEUTRALS TO MAKE THEIR VOICES HEARD ON THEIR OWN INITIATIVE AND IN CONSCIOUSNESS OF THEIR RESPONSIBILITY--AND NOT BECAUSE HITLER OR ANY OTHER BELLIGERENT SHOULD ASK THEM.

DR. OTTO DIETRICH, GERMANY'S PRESS CHIEF, EARLY TODAY EXPRESSED HIS OPINION THAT THE UNITED STATES COULD PUT AN END TO THE WAR IF SHE UNEQUIVOCALLY TOLD BRITAIN SHE WOULD NOT SUPPORT HER UNLESS EFFORTS TO SETTLE THE PROBLEMS AT ISSUE FIRST WERE MADE AT THE COUNCIL TABLE.

DIETRICH SAID HE BASED HIS OPINION ON A BELIEF THAT BRITAIN REFUSED TO ACCEPT HITLER'S PEACE OVERTURES BECAUSE SHE WAS RELYING ON GETTING HELP FROM THE UNITED STATES.

IF BRITAIN WERE TOLD THIS HELP WOULD NOT BE FORTHCOMING, HE SAID, THEN THERE WOULD BE A CHANCE OF ENDING THE WAR NOW.

"AFTER THIS SPEECH BY THE ENGLISH PRIME MINISTER," IT SAID, "THERE CAN NO LONGER EXIST ANY DOUBT AMONG THE GERMAN PEOPLE THAT NO MATTER WHAT WE DO, WHAT WE SAY, WHAT WE OFFER, CHAMBERLAIN AND THE WAR INCITERS OF GREAT BRITAIN ARE DETERMINED--AT THE SAME TIME THAT THEY UTTER HYPOCRITICAL PHRASES--TO ANNIHILATE THE GERMAN PEOPLE."

1939

30.24-4035

OCT 14 1939

ACCOMPANYING THIS WAS AN ANTI-BRITISH CAMPAIGN WHICH WAS GROWING IN INTENSITY.

THE VOELKISCHER BEOBACHTER ARRANGED TO PUBLISH TOMORROW A THREE-COLUMN, PAGE ONE ATTACK ON "HOW THE BRITISH EMPIRE WAS CREATED: ROBBERS AND PIRATES PREACH MORALITY."

OCT 14 1939

"ENGLAND'S HISTORY IS A CHAIN OF ACTS OF FORCE AND BROKEN WORDS," ACCORDING TO THE ARTICLE.

THE COMMENTARY ADDED:

"GERMANY POSSESSES NOW THE FIRM DETERMINATION TO FIGHT THE WAR TO A VICTORIOUS END."

OCT 14 1939

INFORMED QUARTERS SAID THE EXCHANGES OF VIEWS WITH MOSCOW AND ROME WERE BEING CARRIED OUT THROUGH THE GERMAN AMBASSADORS IN THE TWO CAPITALS.

Wash Berlin - Oct. 13

HE INDICATED THAT GERMANY WAS PREPARED TO UNLEASH HER FULL MIGHT AGAINST GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE UNLESS THE UNITED STATES STEPPED IN TO BRING THE ALLIES AND GERMANY TOGETHER ACROSS THE CONFERENCE TABLE.

DIETRICH SAID HE THOUGHT NOW THAT THE UNITED STATES ALONE WAS ABLE TO PREVENT WAR ON A GIGANTIC SCALE.

OCT 14 1939

OTHERWISE, THE NAZI VIEW WAS THAT CHAMBERLAIN'S REJECTION OF HITLER'S PEACE OVERTURES MEANT GERMANY MUST FIGHT WITH ALL HER POWER.

(IN WASHINGTON, HOWEVER, SUCH STEPS WERE DEEMED DIPLOMATICALLY IMPOSSIBLE WITHOUT FORMAL REQUESTS FROM ABROAD.

(EVEN SHOULD GERMANY SUBMIT HER SUGGESTION THROUGH FORMAL DIPLOMATIC CHANNELS, THERE WAS REASON TO BELIEVE ADDITIONAL STEPS WOULD BE NECESSARY BEFORE THE UNITED STATES WOULD UNDERTAKE MEDIATION.

(FOR ONE, IT WAS ASSERTED THAT WASHINGTON WOULD FIRST SOUND OUT BRITISH AND FRENCH REACTION TOWARD THE UNITED STATES' TAKING ANY PEACE-MAKER'S ROLE.

OCT 14 1939

(AFTER HITLER MADE HIS REICHSTAG SPEECH LAST FRIDAY, INFORMED BERLIN SOURCES SAID THE HEAD OF ANY NEUTRAL STATE, PREFERABLY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, MIGHT INTERVENE. MR. ROOSEVELT, HOWEVER, INDICATED HE HAD NO INTENTION OF MEDIATING BY SAYING NO FORMAL PEACE PROPOSALS HAD BEEN RECEIVED BY THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AND BY INTIMATING HE COULD NOT ACT ON THE BASIS OF NEWSPAPER REPORTS FROM GERMANY.)

DIETRICH SAID RUSSIA'S VAST RESOURCES NOW WERE AT GERMANY'S DISPOSAL AND DECLARED THAT RUSSIA HAD FULFILLED EVERY OBLIGATION THUS FAR SINCE GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTER JOACHIM VON RIBBENTROP AND VYACHESLAFF MOLOTOFF, SOVIET PREMIER AND FOREIGN COMMISSAR, BOUND THE NAZIS AND COMMUNISTS IN TRADE AND FRIENDSHIP PACTS.

IT WAS BELIEVED TO BE STILL UNDECIDED WHETHER MUSSOLINI WOULD BE ASKED TO JOIN ACTIVELY AS THE GERMAN GENERAL STAFF APPARENTLY WAS NOT CERTAIN WHETHER ITALY COULD BE OF MORE USE AS A NEUTRAL THAN AS A BELLIGERENT.

OCT 14 1939

IN THE AIR, MEANWHILE, EXPERT NAZI OPINION WAS THAT GERMANY HAD MADE NO EFFORT THUS FAR TO STRIKE AGAINST BRITAIN AND FRANCE WITH HER FULL AIR POWER. NEVER, IT WAS SAID, WERE MORE THAN TWO DOZEN

PLANES MASSED FOR AN ATTACK IN THE WEST ALTHOUGH BEFORE WARSAW, IN POLAND, 600 POWER-DIVING BOMBERS HAD ATTACKED TOGETHER.

JH-FHAJAAES

Ndt Berlin Oct 13

BUT THERE IS NO REASON, NAZIS SAID, WHY GERMANY SHOULD GO AROUND TO NEUTRALS TO REQUEST THEM TO MEDIATE.

HITLER'S APPEAL LAST FRIDAY FOR PEACE THAT "THOSE PEOPLES AND THEIR LEADERS NOW SPEAK UP WHO ARE OF A SIMILAR (PEACEFUL) MIND" WAS SAID TO HAVE BEEN AN "OFFICIAL DOCUMENT" ADDRESSED ALIKE TO NEUTRALS AND BELLIGERENTS.

OCT 14 1939

NOW, AUTHORIZED SOURCES SAID, IT IS UP TO NEUTRALS TO MAKE THEIR VOICES HEARD ON THEIR OWN INITIATIVE AND IN CONSCIOUSNESS OF THEIR RESPONSIBILITY--AND NOT BECAUSE HITLER OR ANY OTHER BELLIGERENT SHOULD ASK THEM.

THE OFFICIAL PRESS RELEASE INDICATED HOW COMPLETELY "THROUGH" WITH CHAMBERLAIN GERMANY CONSIDERED HERSELF.

IT CALLED CHAMBERLAIN'S SPEECH "AN UNHEARD OF INSULT TO GERMANY" AND SAID THAT IN IT THE PRIME MINISTER "DID NOT REPRESENT THE CAUSE OF THE PEOPLE BUT THE CAUSE OF A SMALL CLIQUE WHICH SEES ITS TASK IN WAR."

"FROM THE EXPERIENCE OF VERSAILLES," THE STATEMENT CONCLUDED, "THE GERMAN PEOPLE KNOWS WHAT ENGLAND'S WILL TO ANNIHILATION CAN DO AND IT THEREFORE KNOWS THE PATH IT MUST TROD IN ORDER TO FOIL THIS WILL OF ITS ENEMIES." (EDS: ADDITIONAL QUOTES MAY BE TAKEN IN FROM STATEMENT MOVED SEPARATELY.)

DR.DIETRICH, WHO TALKED INFORMALLY WITH CORRESPONDENTS AFTER HE HAD BEEN WITH HITLER FOR SEVERAL HOURS, SAID HE FELT BRITAIN HAD RISKED WHAT HE CALLED "HER INSOLENT REPLY" THROUGH CHAMBERLAIN ONLY BECAUSE SHE RELIED UPON THE UNITED STATES TO SUPPORT HER.

DIETRICH DECLARED X X X ETC., 3RD GRAFH.

LONDON, OCT 13-(AP)-A WAR OFFICE SPOKESMAN DECLARED TODAY THAT BRITISH AND FRENCH MILITARY FORCES ARE "READY FOR ANYTHING" FROM GERMANY NOW THAT BRITAIN'S MAIN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE HAS MOVED ACROSS THE CHANNEL TO FRANCE.

HE INDICATED THE BRITISH-FRENCH STRATEGY WAS TO WAIT FOR THE GERMANS TO ATTACK. WITH THE APPROACH OF BAD WEATHER MAKING MILITARY OPERATIONS DIFFICULT UNTIL SPRING, THE SPOKESMAN SAID THE BRITISH AND FRENCH COULD AFFORD TO WAIT UNTIL THEN BUT "HITLER MAY NOT BE ABLE TO."

WAR SECRETARY LESLIE HORE-BELISHA TOLD THE SAME PRESS CONFERENCE THAT THE MOVEMENT OF THE BRITISH EXPEDITIONARY FORCE TO FRANCE CONSTITUTED A MAJOR MILITARY VICTORY. HE ANNOUNCED IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS WEDNESDAY THAT 158,000 MEN HAD BEEN TRANSPORTED ACROSS THE CHANNEL DURING THE FIRST FIVE WEEKS OF THE WAR WITHOUT ONE CASUALTY.

"A FRENCHMAN HAS JUST TOLD ME THAT THAT IS THE GREATEST MILITARY FEAT SINCE TRAFALGAR AND IS THE FIRST VICTORY THAT WE HAVE HAD IN THE WAR," HORE BELISHA SAID.

OCT 14 1939

HE ALSO DISCLOSED THAT FOREIGN VOLUNTEERS RESIDENT IN THE UNITED KINGDOM WOULD BE TAKEN INTO THE MAIN BRITISH ARMY ALONG WITH BRITISH SUBJECTS AS THEIR AGE GROUPS ARE CALLED INTO THE CONSCRIPT MILITIA.

THERE WILL BE NO SEPARATE LEGIONS AS IN FRANCE HE SAID.

"WE HAVE ONLY ONE BRITISH ARMY AND THERE WILL BE NO DISTINCTIONS OF ANY KIND" HE SAID.

THE SPOKESMAN DISCUSSING THE GENERAL MILITARY SITUATION SAID BRITISH TROOPS WOULD CONTINUE TO GO TO FRANCE, BUT THE MAJOR TRANSPORT JOB WAS COMPLETED. IT HAD BEEN WORKED OUT, HE SAID, TO PROVIDE FOR ANY CONTINGENCY SUCH AS HEAVY BOMBING ATTACKS WHICH HAD FAILED TO MATERIALIZE.

THERE ARE 158,000 BRITISH TROOPS NOW ON THE LINE. WHILE THE GUNS ARE SILENT, THIS HIGHLY-MECHANIZED FORCE CONTINUES TO POUR TROOPS, MUNITIONS AND SUPPLIES TOWARD THE FRONT.

WERE IT NOT FOR THE LONG LINES OF TRUCKS ON THE ROADS, IT WOULD BE HARD TO BELIEVE THAT ANYWHERE NEAR THESE PLEASANT FIELDS MEN WERE BEING KILLED AND WOUNDED. THE POPPIES BLOW SERENELY IN THE FIELDS UNDER THE BLUE FRENCH SKY.

WOMEN BRINGING IN THE HARVESTS WITH OLD MEN AND BOYS AS THEIR ONLY HELP--THE OTHER MEN ARE IN THE ARMY, OF COURSE--WAVE TO PASSING TRUCKS.

BRITISH DRIVERS EAT THEIR LUNCHES LIKE PICNIC PARTIES ON THE EDGE OF THE FIELDS.

IT IS SUCH A HIGHLY MECHANIZED ARMY THAT IN TWO DAYS OF TRAVEL THROUGH FRANCE I HAVE NOT SEEN A HORSE BEING USED FOR MILITARY PURPOSES. THE TINKLING SPURS OF FRENCH ALGERIAN CAVALRYMEN IN ONE TOWN SEEMED AS OUTWORN AND OUTDATED AS BREASTPLATES OR BEARSKIN SHAKOS.

NO ONE KNOWS WHEN THE FIRST GERMAN PUSH WILL COME, BUT EVERYONE SEEMS TO ACCEPT IT AS A FACT. GERMANY'S EASY TRIUMPH IN POLAND AND MEMORIES OF EARLY GERMAN SUCCESSES IN THE WORLD WAR HAVE CREATED THE IMPRESSION THAT BEFORE THE WINTER CLAMPS DOWN ON NORTHERN AND NORTHEASTERN FRANCE, GERMANY WILL STRIKE.

AT PRESENT, THE GENERAL MILITARY SITUATION ON THIS AND OTHER FRONTS MAY BE LIKENED TO TWO BOXERS IN THE EARLY ROUNDS OF AN IMPORTANT FIGHT. NEITHER WANTS TO LET HIS BEST PUNCH GO UNTIL HE HAS FELT OUT THE STRENGTH AND WEAKNESSES OF HIS OPPONENT. IT IS SPARRING OF A DEADLY SORT, AND IT MAY CONTINUE UNTIL THE WEATHER AND MARCHING ARMIES CHURN THE FIELDS AND ROADS TO MUD.

THE MORALE OF THE ARMY SEEMS HIGH. THERE IS A NOTICEABLE ABSENCE OF "PROFESSIONALISM" IN THE RELATIONS BETWEEN MEN AND OFFICERS. ONE OFFICER SAID, "WHEN A SENTRY SALUTES YOU, YOU FEEL AS THOUGH HE WANTED TO SMILE AT YOU. THE OLD FEELING OF CASTE, WHICH WAS DEEP IN 1914, IS GONE. MEN AND OFFICERS SEEM TO FEEL THAT WE'RE ALL IN IT TOGETHER."

THE WORK OF TRAINING GOES ON. ARTILLERYMEN DRILL INTERMINABLY AT THE MOTIONS OF LOADING AND FIRING. INFANTRYMEN HIKE LONG MILES ON THE ROADS. DAY AND NIGHT, TRUCKS RUMBLE TOWARD THE FRONT PAST FIELDS WHICH 25 YEARS AGO WERE BLOOD-STAINED.

THERE IS A QUIET SATISFACTION WITH MEN AND MACHINES NOTICEABLE AMONG THE OFFICERS. THEY FEEL THEY ARE BETTER PREPARED THAN THEY WERE IN 1914 AND 1915, THAT THE MEN ARE MORE COMPETENT WITH THEIR TECHNICAL TOOLS THAN THEY HAVE EVER BEEN.

THE TRIP TO FRANCE BY TROOPSHIP IS LIKE A JOURNEY IN A DISTURBING DREAM.

FROM THE MOMENT THE ANCHOR GOES UP IN THE ENGLISH PORT, AND THE LITTLE STEAMER MOVES INTO THE HEAVY SWELL OF THE CHANNEL, YOU ARE IN A MURKY WORLD.

PARIS, OCT.13-(AP)-MILITARY OBSERVERS SAID TODAY THAT A REPORTED CONCENTRATION OF 30,000 BRITISH TOMMIES ON THE NORTHEASTERN FRONT MEANT EITHER AN EARLY FRENCH-BRITISH OFFENSIVE OR A CONTINUANCE OF THE EFFORT TO PROVOKE A NAZI BIG SCALE ASSAULT ON HEAVILY FORTIFIED ALLIED POSITIONS.

OCT 14 1939

THE BRITISH APPARENTLY HAD NOT YET BEEN PUT IN ACTION. AFTER FIVE DAYS OF DEFENSIVE ACTION THE FRENCH LAST NIGHT WERE SAID TO HAVE RESUMED THEIR STABS AT THE GERMAN LINE.

MILITARY ADVICES SAID THAT GERMAN ATTACKS AT SCATTERED POINTS ALONG THE 100-MILE FRONT BETWEEN THE MOSELLE AND RHINE RIVERS HAD BEEN REPULSED.

THERE ARE NOW 158,000 BRITISH SOLDIERS IN FRANCE WITH MORE PROMISED, ACCORDING TO BRITISH WAR MINISTER LESLIE HORE-BELISHA. BEHIND-THE-LINES MUNITIONS STACKS WEIGH INTO THE MILLIONS OF TONS. TANKS ARE HIDDEN IN THE FORESTS AND THOUSANDS OF CAMOUFLAGED PLANES ARE READY FOR BATTLE.

A GENERAL STAFF COMMUNIQUE TODAY TOLD OF "A CALM NIGHT OVER THE WHOLE FRONT." IT ADDED THAT "ENEMY PATROLS WERE REPULSED IN THE REGION OF WARNDT."

(REPORTS FROM BASEL SAID FRENCH TROOPS CLOSED THE RHINE RIVER DAM GATES AT KEMBS, NEAR BASEL, LAST NIGHT, RAISING THE RIVER HIGH OVER THE SHOALS OPPOSITE GERMANY'S "RHINE GIBRALTAR" AT ISTEIN. THIS ACTION FOLLOWED REPORTS THAT THE GERMANS MIGHT BE PREPARING TO CROSS THE RHINE AT THIS TIP OF THE MAGINOT LINE.)

DIPLOMATIC MOVES TENDED TO OVERSHADOW THE FIGHTING.

THE FINNISH-SOVIET RUSSIAN TENSION CAUSED ANXIETY HERE DESPITE THE EXPRESSED CONVICTION OF OBSERVERS THAT GERMANY WAS ALSO UNEASY OVER EXPANDING RUSSIAN POWER IN THE BALTIC.

A RUSSIAN MOVE AGAINST FINLAND WAS CONSIDERED HIGHLY POSSIBLE. FRENCH SOURCES SAID THAT WOULD MEAN WIDESPREAD POLITICAL REPERCUSSIONS, NOT ONLY IN THE SCANDINAVIAN STATES, BUT PERHAPS AS FAR SOUTH AS TURKEY.

THE SUCCESSIVE STATEMENTS BY PREMIER DALADIER AND PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN REJECTING ADOLF HITLER'S END-THE-WAR PROPOSALS CHEERED MEMBERS OF THE EXILED POLISH GOVERNMENT AND CZECHS FORMING A PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT.

OCT 14 1939

TYPICAL OF FRENCH PRESS COMMENT CONCERNING THE STATEMENTS WAS: "GERMANY CAN NO LONGER HAVE THE LEAST ILLUSION ABOUT THE ANGLO-FRENCH DETERMINATION."

PARIS,OCT 13-(AP)-FRENCH ADVANCE POSTS ALONG THE NORTHERN FLANK OF THE WESTERN FRONT WERE ON THE ALERT TONIGHT AS THE ARMY SOUGHT THE MEANING OF A SUDDEN CALM.

GERMAN ATTACKS, WHICH HAD BEEN INCREASING IN STRENGTH FOR FIVE DAYS, HALTED ABRUPTLY YESTERDAY, THE FRENCH REPORTED. SUSPICIONS WERE AROUSED BECAUSE THE GERMANS HAD ATTACKED DURING BAD WEATHER THEN SUDDENLY LET UP AS THE SKIES CLEARED OVER THE WESTERN FRONT.

MILITARY REPORTS SAID THERE HAD BEEN NO MORE THAN EIGHT SMALL GERMAN PATROLS SEEN IN NO-MAN'S-LAND BETWEEN THE MAGINOT AND SIEGFRIED LINES IN 24 HOURS AND THESE WERE MADE UP OF ONLY FOUR OR FIVE MEN.

OCT 14 1939

DURING PREVIOUS ATTACKS, THESE UNITS WERE REPORTED AS LARGE AS 100 TO 150 MEN OPERATING ON ALL SECTORS.

A FEW SMALL FRENCH RECONNAISSANCE GROUPS WERE SENT INTO THE WOODS OF HARDT MOUNTAINS MIDWAY BETWEEN THE GERMAN TOWN OF ZWEIBRUECKEN AND THE FRENCH TOWN OF WISSEMBOURG, BUT THE FRENCH SAID THIS WAS THE ONLY ACTIVITY ALONG THE ENTIRE 100-MILE STRETCH OF THE NORTHERN FLANK.

GERMAN ARTILLERY WAS QUIET, FRENCH SOURCES SAID, WHILE GERMAN PLANES WERE GROUNDED DESPITE THE PREVAILING GOOD FLYING WEATHER.

FRENCH DISPATCHES DECLARED, HOWEVER, THAT ONE FRENCH PILOT SEVERAL DAYS AGO SHOT DOWN THREE GERMAN MESSERSCHMIDT PLANES IN A SINGLE COMBAT.

THE YOUNG PURSUIT PILOT FLYING ALONE HIGH ABOVE THE GERMAN LINES, DISPATCHES SAID, SPOTTED THREE MESSERSCHMIDTS NEAR SAARBRUECKEN.

DIVING, THE PILOT SPATTERED THE REAR GERMAN PLANE WITH BULLETS AT A DISTANCE OF ONLY 50 YARDS, THE DISPATCH SAID. MOMENTS LATER TWO OTHERS WERE BROUGHT DOWN IN THE COMBAT.

(A GERMAN SUPREME COMMAND COMMUNIQUE SAID THE FRENCH YESTERDAY BLEW UP RHINE RIVER BRIDGES AT WEISSENBURG, BREISACH AND NEUENBURG, LINKING ALSACE LORRAINE AND SOUTHERN GERMANY.)

WHILE THE MILITARY ACTION SLOWED DOWN, THE FRENCH WATCHED THE DIPLOMATIC SITUATION CLOSELY.

IN A LONG CABINET MEETING PRESIDENT ALBERT LEBRUN GAVE APPROVAL OF PREMIER DALADIER'S BROADCAST TUESDAY NIGHT IN WHICH HE DECLARED THE WAR WOULD CONTINUE UNTIL DEFINITE GUARANTEES WERE OBTAINED FOR A LASTING PEACE.

DALADIER GAVE THE CABINET AN HOUR-AND-A-HALF REVIEW OF THE DIPLOMATIC AND MILITARY SITUATIONS BUT WHAT WAS SAID WAS NOT DISCLOSED.

MOLOTOFF'S STATEMENT WAS IN A TELEGRAM REPLYING TO ONE FROM LITHUANIAN FOREIGN MINISTER JUOZAS URBSYS WHO SAID:

"ON MY RETURN HOME I HASTEN TO CONVEY TO YOU THE GRATITUDE OF THE LITHUANIAN DELEGATION FOR THE WARM HOSPITALITY ACCORDED US IN MOSCOW AND THE FRIENDLY NATURE OF THE NEGOTIATIONS LEADING TO THE CONCLUSION OF OUR TREATY OF OCT.10.

THE FINNS, IT WAS REPORTED, MIGHT BE WILLING TO GIVE UP SOME ISLANDS BUT IF THE RUSSIANS SUBMITTED STRONGER TERRITORIAL DEMANDS LIKELY TO MAKE FINLAND A VIRTUAL PROTECTORATE--SUCH AS HAS BEEN DONE WITH ESTONIA, LATVIA AND LITHUANIA--FOREIGN OBSERVERS WERE OF THE OPINION THAT THE FINNS WOULD FIGHT.

GERMANY PREVIOUSLY WAS FINLAND'S VIRTUAL PROTECTOR BUT APPARENTLY HAD LOST THAT STATUS IN THE COMMITMENTS TO RUSSIA WHICH OBSERVERS BELIEVE ACCOMPANIED THE RUSSIAN-GERMAN NONAGGRESSION TREATY AND THE SUBSEQUENT PROTOCOLS FOR PARTITION OF POLAND.

JUST BEFORE THE FINNS WENT TO THE KREMLIN YESTERDAY UNITED STATES AMBASSADOR LAURENCE A.STEINHARDT HAD A ONE-HOUR CONSULTATION WITH MOLOTOFF IN WHICH HE PRESENTED WASHINGTON'S REQUEST THAT RUSSIAN PROPOSALS TO FINLAND BE SO FRAMED AS NOT TO DISTURB PEACEFUL RELATIONS.

(A STATE DEPARTMENT EXPLANATION OF STEINHARDT'S ACTION SAID IT WAS "A UNILATERAL AND ENTIRELY INDEPENDENT ACTION OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT." APPARENTLY THIS WAS INTENDED TO MAKE CLEAR THAT THE MOVE WAS NOT CONDUCTED WITH THE SIMILAR STEPS OF SWEDEN, DENMARK AND NORWAY.

(THE NOTES OF THE SCANDINAVIAN COUNTRIES WERE IDENTICAL. THEY SAID THAT EACH GOVERNMENT EXPECTED "NOTHING WILL OCCUR WHICH WOULD PREVENT FINLAND FROM CONTINUING INDEPENDENTLY TO MAINTAIN HER NEUTRAL POSITION.")

ROME, OCT 13-(AP)-GOVERNMENT CIRCLES INDICATED TONIGHT THAT ITALY WOULD KEEP ALOOF FROM ANY EFFORT OF ADOLF HITLER TO OBTAIN ITALIAN AID FOR A WAR IN EARNEST NOW THAT PEACE HOPES HAVE BEEN MORE OR LESS DASHED.

WITHOUT COMMITTING THE GOVERNMENT TO ANY DEFINITE POSITION IN ADVANCE OF DIPLOMATIC CONSULTATIONS EXPECTED TO FOLLOW PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN'S REJECTION OF HITLER'S PEACE PLANS, AUTHORITATIVE FASCISTS SAID ITALY'S ATTITUDE REMAINED THAT OF MAKING NO MOVE--EITHER MILITARILY OR FOR PEACE.

(INFORMED QUARTERS IN BERLIN SAID GERMANY ALREADY HAD BEGUN CONSULTATIONS WITH ITALY AND RUSSIA.)

IF A PEACE MOVE WITH A DEFINITE BASIS THAT APPEARED TO HAVE POSSIBILITIES FOR SUCCESS WERE ADVANCED, HOWEVER, THE OPINION WAS WIDESPREAD THAT ITALY WOULD PARTICIPATE.

THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT WAS EXPECTED TO CONSULT SEPARATELY WITH ITALY AND SOVIET RUSSIA, IN ACCORDANCE WITH CONSULTATIVE PACTS, BUT ITALIANS SAID THERE WOULD BE NO ITALIAN-RUSSIAN CONFERENCES, INASMUCH AS THERE WERE NO SUCH AGREEMENTS BETWEEN ROME AND MOSCOW.

DECLARED WAR ON RUSSIA BECAUSE OF HER BALTIC EXPANSION.

OCT 14 1939

THEY RECALLED THAT HITLER MADE A SPEECH IN REPLY TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S APPEAL FOR PEACE TO HIM IN APRIL, AND THIS GOVERNMENT REFUSED TO CONSIDER THE SPEECH AS AN ANSWER.

IT IS REALIZED HERE THAT THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT MAY BE RELUCTANT TO PUT IN OFFICIAL FORM THE SUGGESTIONS EMANATING FROM BERLIN THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT OR SOME OTHER NEUTRAL LEADER TAKE THE INITIATIVE TOWARD PEACE. SUCH A STEP THROUGH FORMAL, DIPLOMATIC CHANNELS, MIGHT BE CONSIDERED AN ADMISSION OF WEAKNESS.

BUT IT WOULD BE DIFFICULT FOR THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT TO ACT UNLESS A FORMAL REQUEST WERE RECEIVED. EVEN IN THIS CASE BRITAIN AND FRANCE WOULD BE SOUNDED OUT QUIETLY BEFORE MEDIATION WERE PROFFERED, INFORMED OBSERVERS PREDICTED.

IT IS STILL THOUGHT POSSIBLE GERMANY MAY MAKE SUCH A REQUEST, REGARDLESS OF THE IMPLICATIONS THAT MAY ATTACH TO IT. OBSERVERS POINT OUT A CERTAIN GRADATION IN THE TWO SUGGESTIONS HAVE COME FROM BERLIN IN LESS THAN A WEEK.

THE FIRST WAS AN INFORMAL HINT, WITHOUT ANY DEFINITE SOURCE ATTACHED TO IT. THE SECOND CAME FROM DR.OTTO DIETRICH, GERMAN PRESS CHIEF. IF THERE IS A THIRD, IT MAY COME FROM THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT ITSELF.

OCT 14 1939

"WE SHOULD PROHIBIT OUR SHIPS FROM GOING TO EUROPE," HE SAID. "THAT POLICY IS NO MORE COWARDLY THAN IT IS TO KEEP PEOPLE OUT OF A BURNING HOUSE. IT IS SIMPLY GOOD SENSE THAT WE PREVENT AMERICAN CITIZENS NOT ONLY FROM RISKING THEIR OWN LIVES, BUT FROM PLUNGING

US INTO A WAR WHICH MAY INVOLVE MILLIONS OF OTHER LIVES."

TAFT, WHOSE FRIENDS ARE BACKING HIM FOR THE 1940 REPUBLICAN PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION, IS ONE OF A HALF DOZEN REPUBLICAN SENATORS FAVORING REPEAL OF THE ARMS EMBARGO. HE TOLD THE SENATE REPEATEDLY THAT HE BELIEVED THE UNITED STATES COULD REMAIN OUT OF THE EUROPEAN WAR.

OCT 14 1939

"THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES," TAFT SAID, "WOULD MAKE A TREMENDOUS MISTAKE IF HE REGARDED THE PASSAGE OF THIS BILL AS IN ANY WAY A SYMBOL OF POPULAR APPROVAL OF INTERFERENCE IN EUROPE.

"THE POPULAR OPPOSITION TO THIS BILL, AS FAR AS IT EXISTS, IS BASED ON SUSPICION OF THE PRESIDENT'S TENDENCY TO INTERFERE IN THE EUROPEAN WAR. HE HAS PUBLICLY PLEDGED HIS DETERMINATION TO KEEP AMERICA AT PEACE, AND WE CAN SURELY ACCEPT THAT PLEDGE."

TAFT, SON OF THE PRE-WORLD WAR PRESIDENT, URGED THAT CONGRESS REMAIN IN SESSION TO ACT PROMPTLY "ON ANY EMERGENCY WHICH MAY ARISE."

HE DECLARED THAT NOTHING WOULD BE SO DESTRUCTIVE TO DEMOCRATIC GOVERNMENT IN THE UNITED STATES AS WAR, AND ADDED:

"THOSE WHO CONTROL THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT BELIEVE IN A PLANNED ECONOMY UNDER GOVERNMENT CONTROL. A WAR POLICY OF CONFISCATION, DOMINATED BY THAT PHILOSOPHY, WOULD CREATE A COMPLETELY SOCIALIZED FORM OF LIFE, FROM WHICH WE MIGHT NEVER RETURN TO THE LIBERTY AND FREEDOM HERETOFORE REGARDED AS CHARACTERISTIC OF AMERICA."

A77WX

TAFT EXPRESSED THE BELIEF THAT REPEAL OF THE EMBARGO WOULD NOT RESULT IN ANY GREAT DEMAND FOR AMERICAN MUNITIONS ON THE PART OF EUROPEAN BELLIGERENTS. DURING THE TWO AND A HALF YEARS BEFORE THE UNITED STATES ENTERED THE WORLD WAR, HE SAID, SUCH GOODS CONSTITUTED ONLY 13 PERCENT OF TOTAL AMERICAN EXPORTS TO THE UNITED KINGDOM, FRANCE, ITALY, RUSSIA AND CANADA.

"MANY OF MY CORRESPONDENTS APPARENTLY THINK THAT TODAY WE ARE NOT SHIPPING ANYTHING OF IMPORTANCE TO EUROPE," HE SAID, "BUT THAT WHEN THE EMBARGO IS REPEALED, THE FLOOD-GATES WILL BE OPENED. OF COURSE, THEY ARE GREATLY MISTAKEN.

"SHIPMENTS OF ALL KINDS ARE GOING TO ENGLAND AND FRANCE. NOT GUNS, IT IS TRUE, BUT THE STEEL AND MACHINE TOOLS WITH WHICH TO MAKE GUNS."

AN ARMS EMBARGO, TAFT SAID, MAKES WAR MORE LIKELY THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

OCT 14 1939

"IT FAVORS WARLIKE NATIONS WHICH BUILD UP THEIR ARMAMENTS IN TIME OF PEACE," HE DECLARED, "AND IT DISCRIMINATES AGAINST THOSE NATIONS WHICH, HOPING FOR PEACE AND RELYING ON TREATIES, FAIL TO POUR VAST SUMS INTO ARMAMENT. IN SHORT, IT FAVORS THE AGGRESSOR AGAINST THE PEACEFUL NATION."

HE TOOK ISSUE WITH THE OPPONENTS' CONTENTION THAT IT WOULD BE UNNEUTRAL TO REPEAL THE EMBARGO AFTER WAR HAS BEGUN.

"WE ARE SAID TO BE CHANGING THE RULES OF THE GAME AFTER THE GAME IS STARTED," HE ASSERTED. "IN THE FIRST PLACE, WAR IS NOT A GAME; IT IS A DEADLY SERIOUS MATTER.

"IN THE SECOND PLACE, THE IMPOSING OF AN EMBARGO ON AMERICAN PRODUCTS IS STRICTLY A DOMESTIC POLICY. WE HAVE THE RIGHT TO DO IT OR NOT DO IT, AS WE SEE FIT.

"IT CANNOT BE SAID THAT ANY NATION WENT TO WAR RELYING ON LAWS WHICH MIGHT BE CHANGED BY CONGRESS. CERTAINLY HITLER DID NOT DO SO. WE DID NOT MISLEAD HIM. WHEN HE WENT TO WAR, A BILL REPEALING THE ARMS EMBARGO WAS PENDING IN CONGRESS, RECOMMENDED BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES."

(WX) INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS (BUDGET)

BY KIRKE L.SIMPSON

ASSOCIATED PRESS STAFF WRITER

OCT 14 1939

GERMANY'S ELEVENTH-HOUR ATTEMPT TO GET THE UNITED STATES TO STEP IN AND END THE WAR SEEMS ALMOST TO SOUND A NOTE OF DESPERATION.

APPARENTLY FROM THE LIPS OF CHANCELLOR HITLER HIMSELF, HAS COME THE DICTUM THAT THE ALLIES' RESPONSE TO HIS PROPOSALS HAS SLAMMED THE DOOR TO PEACE, UNLESS THE FOOT OF A POWERFUL NEUTRAL IS THRUST FORWARD TO HOLD IT AJAR.

IT WAS IMMEDIATELY AFTER A CONFERENCE WITH THE FUEHRER THAT DR. OTTO DIETRICH, NAZI PRESS CHIEF, VOICED HIS PLEA FOR AN AMERICAN ATTEMPT AT MEDIATION.

HIS SUGGESTION THAT, IN THE ABSENCE OF NEUTRAL INTERVENTION, THERE WAS NO ALTERNATIVE BUT "WAR IN EARNEST" AND "THE MOST GRUESOME BLOODBATH IN HISTORY" RECALLED THE GLOOMY PICTURE THAT HITLER RECENTLY DREW OF WHAT MUST BE THE RESULT OF "COMPLETE WAR" FOR VICTOR AND VANQUISHED ALIKE.

ALTOGETHER, IT ADDED UP TO WHAT IS A NEW NOTE FOR THE GERMAN LEADER, AND IN SOME EARS, A NOTE OF DESPERATION.

BY IMPLICATION TOO, THE GERMANS SEEK TO PLACE UPON NEUTRAL SHOULDERS, AND PARTICULARLY UPON THOSE OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, A HEAVY SHARE OF RESPONSIBILITY IF THEY FAIL TO ACT AND THERE IS "WAR IN EARNEST."

JUST WHAT THAT PHRASE MAY MEAN AS TO IMMEDIATE GERMAN WAR PLANS IS STILL UNCLEAR. CERTAINLY, HOWEVER, IT IS A NEW THREAT TO

30.24-4051

30.24 4051

RELEASE THE FULL FORCE OF GERMAN AIR POWER IN A RUTHLESS WAR UPON THE ALLIES.

YET THERE ARE MANY CIRCUMSTANCES WHICH MIGHT TEND TO DEFER GERMAN ATTEMPTS AT WHOLESALE BOMBING OF FRENCH OR BRITISH CITIES, OR EVEN OF MORE STRICTLY MILITARY OBJECTIVES. THAT WOULD BE THE LAST, NOT THE FIRST RESORT IN A "COMPLETE WAR." ONCE LAUNCHED, RUTHLESS AIR WARFARE MUST BRING PROMPT REPRISALS BY THE ALLIES.

IN THE JUDGMENT OF MILITARY STRATEGISTS, THE INDICATED GERMAN PURPOSE OF INTENSIFYING AIR ATTACK UPON BRITISH NAVAL FORCES AND UPON BRITISH CARGO CRAFT FAR AT SEA IS A NECESSARY PRELUDE TO WHATEVER MAY COME LATER.

OCT 14 1939

A1GWX

FOR THAT REASON, AND FROM THE DEDUCTION THAT FRANCO-BRITISH RELIANCE FOR VICTORY IS ON SEA POWER AND THE SLOW ECONOMIC THROTTLING OF GERMANY, THE DAY OF THE "BLOODBATH" IS DEEMED STILL INDEFINITE.

AMERICAN DIPLOMATIC PLEAS TO RUSSIA TO AVOID ACTION THAT MIGHT THREATEN THE SOVEREIGNTY OR PEACE OF FINLAND MAY HAVE SPURRED GERMAN HOPES THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT WOULD, ON HIS OWN MOTION, AGAIN SEEK TO BRING THE BELLIGERENTS TO A CONFERENCE TABLE ADJUSTMENT.

THERE IS, HOWEVER, THIS SHARP DISTINCTION: IN THE CASE OF RUSSIA AND FINLAND WASHINGTON WAS DEALING WITH FRIENDLY POWERS, STILL AT PEACE WITH EACH OTHER, AND WAS ENDEAVORING TO AVERT WAR. IF A NEUTRAL INTERVENED IN THE GERMAN-ANGLO-FRENCH CONFLICT IT WOULD BE STEPPING IN BETWEEN BELLIGERENTS. DIPLOMATIC HISTORY DISCLOSES NO PRECEDENTS FOR SUCH INTERVENTION UNLESS IT WAS FIRST BEEN ESTABLISHED THAT BOTH PARTIES TO THE CONFLICT DESIRE IT.

OCT 14 1939

GERMAN SPOKESMEN ARE AS WELL AWARE OF THAT AS ARE PRESIDENT ROOSE-

VELT AND HIS AIDES. THAT CREATES AN ASSUMPTION THAT THE MAJOR PURPOSE OF THE NAZIS WHO SUGGESTED INTERVENTION WAS TO REACH GERMAN PUBLIC SENTIMENT AND STIFFEN IT FOR THE CONTEST. THEY COULD HAVE HAD LITTLE REAL HOPE THAT WASHINGTON WOULD ATTEMPT A PEACE DEMARCHE, AS DIPLOMATS WOULD CALL IT.

THAT FRENCH TERM, DEMARCHE, MEANS A DIPLOMATIC FLANK ATTACK ON A DIFFICULT INTERNATIONAL SITUATION. AMONG CONSIDERATIONS WHICH THE WASHINGTON OR ANY OTHER NEUTRAL GOVERNMENT MUST WEIGH BEFORE TAKING ACTION OF THAT SORT, IS THE FACT THAT THE PEACE TERMS STATED BY HITLER AND THE ALLIES ARE POLES APART. THEY ARE UTTERLY IRRECONCILABLE.

AN AMERICAN PLEA OF ANY SORT TO LONDON AND PARIS TO RECONSIDER THEIR REJECTION OF HITLER PROPOSALS MIGHT BE CONSTRUED AS AMERICAN APPROVAL OF THE SORT OF PEACE HE OFFERED, BASED ON RUSSO-GERMAN PARTITION OF POLAND. AND WASHINGTON STILL TAKES THE POSITION THAT THE POLISH GOVERNMENT-WITHOUT-A-COUNTRY SET UP IN PARIS IS THE TRUE GOVERNMENT OF POLAND.

WASHINGTON,OCT 13-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SAID TODAY THAT PLANS TO USE PART OF THIS COUNTRY'S IDLE GOLD TO STABILIZE THE CREDIT FACILITIES OF LATIN AMERICAN FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS HAD BEEN UNDER STUDY FOR SOME TIME. OCT 14 1939

IN ONE OR TWO INSTANCES, HE TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE, SUCH PLANS WERE ALMOST IN THE NEGOTIATION STAGE.

HE MADE THIS STATEMENT WHEN ASKED TO COMMENT ON A SUGGESTION BY SENATOR LAFOLLETTE (P-WIS) THAT SOME OF THIS NATION'S GOLD SHOULD BE USED NOT ONLY FOR DIRECT INVESTMENTS BUT FOR ASSISTING THE LOCAL CREDIT FACILITIES OF LATIN AMERICAN COUNTRIES THROUGH STABILIZATION OF THEIR BANKS.

THE QUESTION HAD BEEN UNDER STUDY FOR SEVERAL YEARS, MR. ROOSEVELT SAID, AND WAS UNDER CONTINUED STUDY WITH A VIEW TO TAKING SOME DEFINITE ACTION. HE DID NOT NAME THE ONE OR TWO COUNTRIES WITH WHICH NEGOTIATIONS WERE ABOUT TO BEGIN.

FISCAL OFFICIALS LATER SUGGESTED, HOWEVER, THAT THE PRESIDENT PROBABLY WAS REFERRING TO BRAZIL AND PUERTO RICO. NEGOTIATIONS WITH THE FORMER REACHED A TENTATIVE PROMISE OF A $50,000,000 GOLD LOAN LAST SPRING, BUT BRAZIL HAS FAILED SINCE TO SET UP A PROPOSED CENTRAL BANK FOR WHICH THE GOLD WAS INTENDED, AND THE TREASURY, ACCORDINGLY, HAS DONE NOTHING FURTHER.

AT THE TIME OF THE TENTATIVE BRAZILIAN OFFER, SECRETARY MORGENTHAU ANNOUNCED THAT NO GOLD WOULD BE LOANED FROM THE TREASURY UNLESS CONGRESS SPECIFICALLY AUTHORIZED IT. CONGRESS HAS NOT BEEN ASKED FOR SUCH LEGISLATION. OCT 14 1939

HE SAID IN A STATEMENT THERE WERE OUTSTANDING $100,000,000 WORTH OF BONDS OF THE POLISH GOVERNMENT, THE PROVINCE OF SILESIA AND THE CITY OF WARSAW AND THAT THE REPUBLIC OF POLAND OWED THIS GOVERNMENT

$150,000,000 AND INTEREST FOR POST-WORLD WAR PURCHASES.

NIGHT LEAD HOUSE

WASHINGTON, OCT.13-(AP)-THE AUTHENTICITY OF A LETTER INVOLVING AN ALLEGED PLAN TO RETURN THE UNITED STATES TO THE BRITISH CROWN WAS CHALLENGED TODAY ON THE HOUSE FLOOR BY REP.THOMASON OF TEXAS, THE ACTING DEMOCRATIC LEADER.

OCT 14 1939

THE LETTER, WHICH WAS PLACED IN THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD OVER THE NAME "COL.E.M.HOUSE," WAS ADDRESSED TO "THE RIGHT HONORABLE DAVID LLOYD GEORGE" AND WAS CAPTIONED "BRITISH CONSULATE, NEW YORK CITY, JUNE 10, 1919." (LLOYD GEORGE WAS PRIME MINISTER OF BRITAIN IN 1919.)

REP.THORKELSON (R-MONT) HAD IT PUOLISHED IN THE RECORD'S APPENDIX SO THAT IT MIGHT BE READ BY SENATORS, CONGRESSMEN AND OTHERS TO WHOM THE DAILY CHRONICLE OF CONGRESS IS VAILABLE.

THOMASON, ASSERTING THAT IT WAS UNUSUAL FOR A MAN TO COMBINE HIS SIGNATURE WITH A TITLE LIKE "COL.", INSISTED THAT HORKELSON SAY WHETHER HE HAD EVIDENCE THAT HOUSE, A CONFIDENTIAL ADVISER TO PRESIDENT WILSON, HAD SIGNED THE LETTER.

"I DON'T KNOW THAT POSITIVELY," REPLIED THORKELSON. "IT CAME INTO MY HANDS SIMPLY AS A SOURCE OF INFORMATION."

HE DECLINED TO SAY WHO HAD SUPPLIED HIM WITH THE DOCUMENT BUT DECLARED THAT HE UNDERSTOOD IT WAS FROM "THE SECRET FILES OF THE BRITISH CONSULATE IN NEW YORK."

"IT IS THE RANKEST KIND OF INJUSTICE IF IT'S NOT A BONA FIDE LETTER AND OF THAT I HAVE SERIOUS DOUBTS," THOMASON ASSERTED.

HE DECLARED THAT HOUSE, NOW DEAD, WAS "A GREAT TEXAN" AND "A GREAT STATESMAN."

SOME EXCERPTS FROM THE LETTER:

"AS THE CAMPAIGN HAD BEEN UNDER WAY FOR A CONSIDERABLE TIME BEFORE YOU WERE CALLED TO DIRECT THE DESTINIES OF ENGLAND, I SHALL REVIEW IT FROM ITS COMMENCEMENT, AND, EMBOLDENED BY YOUR SANCTION, I SHALL MAKE FREELY WHATEVER SUGGESTIONS SEEM TO ME GOOD.

"FROM THE MOMENT OF MY ARRIVAL HERE, IT WAS EVIDENT TO ME THAT SUCH AN ANGLO-AMERICAN ALLIANCE AS WOULD ULTIMATELY RESULT IN THE PEACEFUL RETURN OF THE AMERICAN COLONIES TO THE DOMINION OF THE CROWN COULD BE BROUGHT ABOUT ONLY WITH THE CONSENT OF THE DOMINANT GROUP OF THE CONTROLLING CLANS. X X X

"I ANALYZED THE AMERICAN MENTALITY ON WHICH HOSTILITY TO ENGLAND DEPENDED, AND FOUND IT COMPARED (CORRECT) CHIEFLY OF COVETOUS PRIDE, FEAR AND TRADITIONAL IGNORANCE. I THEN SUGGESTED THE FORMATION THERE UNDER SIR GILBERT PARKER OF PROPAGANDA BUREAUS TO MODIFY THE PREVAILING IGNORANCE, AND REQUESTED POWER TO APPLY ADEQUATE SOCIAL AND FINANCIAL PRESSURE IN ORDER TO SATISFY AMERICAN AMBITION AND TO CATER TO THE WEAKNESSES WHICH CAN FEED IT."

THE LETTER WENT ON TO OUTLINE IN GREAT DETAIL--PRINTED IN FINE TYPE, IT FILLED NEARLY SIX PAGES OF THE BIG CONGRESSIONAL RECORD--A PROGRAM IN WHICH EDUCATORS, MINISTERS, LAWYERS, PATRIOTIC ORGANIZATIONS, THE PRESS, INDUSTRY, LABOR AND GOVERNMENT WERE TO BE USED TO ACCOMPLISH THE END.

FOR EXAMPLE: "WE ARE AT PRESENT ENGAGED IN A CAMPAIGN TO 'AMERICANIZE' THE SCHOOLS TO MAKE OBEDIENT LOYAL LITTLE BRITONS OUT OF THE UNDISCIPLINED YOUNG."

ONE STEP TOWARD THE BRITISH UNION WAS FOR THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS COUNCIL TO TAKE OVER "THE CARDINAL FUNCTIONS OF THE AMERICAN LEGISLUTURE."

PRESIDENT WILSON WAS PROPOSED AS FIRST PRESIDENT OF THE LEAGUE AND LEST HE PROVE UNRULY THE LETTER SUGGESTED THAT PROPER GIFTS BE SENT IM.

"THE ADULATORS, HOWEVER," SAID THE LETTER, "SHOULD BE INSTRUCTED TO CONSULT THE INVENTORIES I HAVE PREPARED (APPENDICES 45-83) WHICH SHOW THAT HE IS NOW SURFEITED WITH DIAMOND STOMACHERS, BROOCHES, AND BRACELETS, GOBELIN TAPESTRIES, MOSAICS, AND VASES, GOLD CASKETS, AND PLATES."

THE WAR TODAY

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

THIS IS INDEED FRIDAY THE 13TH FOR EUROPE, AS LATEST DEVELOPMENTS POINT TO THE PROSPECTS OF A WHOLLY NASTY WINTER FOR THE OLD WORLD.

BRITISH PREMIER CHAMBERLAIN'S REJECTION OF HERR HITLER'S PEACE PROPOSALS, WHILE APPARENTLY LEAVING THE DOOR OPEN A WEE CRACK FOR FURTHER GERMAN OVERTURES, PUT THE NAZI CHIEFTAIN IN THE POSITION OF TAKING IMMEDIATE ACTION ON THESE HARD ALTERNATIVES:

TO GET AHEAD AT ONCE WITH THE WAR AND TRY TO FIGHT HIS WAY THROUGH THE BRITISH NAVAL BLOCKADE WHICH IS CALCULATED TO STRANGLE HIM AND IS HIS GREATEST DANGER AT THE MOMENT, OR

TO TRY TO DO THE HAT-TRICK AND PULL OUT ANOTHER PEACE SCHEME WHICH MIGHT INTEREST THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES.

OCT 14 1939

HERR HITLER CHOSE THE LATTER COURSE, AND ADOPTED THE EXTREME MEASURE OF APPEALING TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TO OFFER MEDIATION.

THIS APPEAL WAS INDIRECT, TO BE SURE, BUT IT NEVERTHELESS BORE THE OFFICIAL STAMP SINCE IT WAS GIVEN OUT TO NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENTS BY DR.OTTO DIETRICH, GERMAN PRESS CHIEF, WHO IS ONE OF THE FUEHRER'S CLOSEST ADVISERS AND HAD BEEN CLOSETED WITH THE NAZI LEADER FOR A LONG CONFERENCE.

DR.DIETRICH, WHOM I ALWAYS HAVE FOUND MILD-MANNERED AND SUAVE, APPARENTLY WAS ALMOST FIERCE IN INDICATING THAT GERMANY HELD THE POSSIBILITY OF UNITED STATES MEDIATION TO BE THE LAST CHANCE OF SAVING EUROPE FROM "THE MOST GRUESOME BLOODBATH IN HISTORY." ONE VENTURES TO SAY THAT SUCH LANGUAGE SOUNDS MORE LIKE HERR HITLER SPEAKING THAN DR.DIETRICH.

IN CONSIDERING THE IMPLICATIONS OF THIS APPEAL, ONE GETS TWO DISTINCT IMPRESSIONS.

THE FIRST IS THAT HITLER REALLY IS EXCEEDINGLY ANXIOUS TO SECURE PEACE.

HE HAS INDICATED HIS REASONS ARE THAT HE WANTS TO PREVENT USELESS BLOODSHED AND DESTRUCTION. MANY OBSERVERS, HOWEVER, SAY THE THING CUTS DEEPER THAN THAT.

FOR ONE THING, THE BELIEF IS GROWING IN EUROPE THAT RUSSIA, WHILE COOPERATING NOW WITH GERMANY, REPRESENTS A VERY GRAVE DANGER TO THE REICH IN THE LONG RUN. HITLER HAS BOASTED THAT HE HAS TO CONTEND WITH WAR ON ONLY ONE FRONT--THE ANGLO-FRENCH. BUT SOME COMMENTATORS HAVE BEEN BOLD ENOUGH TO SUGGEST THAT ULTIMATELY GERMANY WOULD FIND THE SOVIET AS GREAT A PROBLEM AS THE ALLIES.

THE SECOND IMPRESSION IS THAT HITLER IS CONTINUING HIS EFFORT TO PLACE RESPONSIBILITY FOR CONTINUANCE OF THE WAR, AND THE "GRUESOME BLOODBATH" WHICH MUST FOLLOW, SQUARELY ON THE SHOULDERS OF THE BRITISH AND FRENCH--MAINLY THE BRITISH.

HITLER KNOWS FULL WELL THAT MR.ROOSEVELT, AS DIPLOMATIC QUARTERS IN WASHINGTON ALREADY HAVE INDICATED, IS WHOLLY UNLIKELY TO ACT WITHOUT A FORMAL REQUEST FROM ABROAD. AND EVEN SHOULD GERMANY MAKE A FORMAL REQUEST, THE PRESIDENT PRESUMABLY WOULD WANT TO KNOW BRITISH AND FRENCH REACTION TOE IDEA BEFORE EMBARKING ON IT.

HOWEVER, THE FACT THAT THIS APPEAL HAS BEEN MADE IS CALCULATED BY THE NAZI LEADER TO FIX THE WAR-GUILT. EQUALLY TO THE POINT, IT COULD BE USED AS JUSTIFICATION FOR INAUGURATION OF THE WAR-TO-THE-LIMIT WHICH HAS BEEN THREATENED.

OCT 14 1939

COINCIDENT WITH DR.DRIETRICH'S ANNOUNCEMENT, OTHER NAZI SOURCES TOOK PAINS TO IMPLY THAT THE GERMAN AIRFORCE MIGHT BE TURNED AGAINST

1939

BRITISH SHIPS AND COASTAL POINTS. THIS WAS EXPRESSED BY THE SUGGESTION THAT THEY MIGHT OPERATE WITH AS MANY AS 800 BOMBERS FLYING IN WAVES.

THIS SCHEME OF INTENSE BOMBING BY HUGE NUMBERS OF PLANES IN RELAYS IS THE ONE WHICH SOME EXPERTS CLAIM COULD CRUSH AN ENEMY ALMOST OVERNIGHT, IF APPLIED IN FULL FORCE AGAINST WHOLESALE OBJECTIVES WITHIN THE ENEMY COUNTRY.

FIRST ADD MACKENZIE'S WAR TODAY

X X X ENEMY COUNTRY.

THE ACTION OF THE UNIYED STATES--FOLLOWED BY SWEDEN, DENMARK AND NORWAY--IN INTERVENING DIPLOMATICALLY WITH RUSSIA ON BEHALF OF FINLAND IS REPORTED FROM MOSCOW TO HAVE EASED THE POSITION OF THE LITTLE REPUBLIC WHICH HAS BEEN FEARING AN ATTEMPT TO BRING HER UNDER SOVIET DOMINATION.

THE FINNISH DELEGATION, WHICH HAS BEEN WAITING ON THE PLEASURE OF THE SOVIET FOREIGN OFFICE TO ANNOUNCE ITS DESIRES, HAS BEEN AFRAID RUSSIA WOULD MAKE DEMANDS FOR MILITARY BASES THAT WOULD MAKE HER VIRTUALLY A PROTECTORATE OF MOSCOW, AS HAS JUST HAPPENED IN THE CASES OF ESTONIA, LATVIA AND LITHUANIA. THE POSITION HAS BEEN SO GRAVE THAT FINLAND HAS MOBILIZED HER ARMY AND IS STANDING AT ARMS TO DEFEND HER SOVEREIGNTY. OCT 14 1939

WITH THINGS LOOKING SO VERY DARK, THERE ARRIVED IN MOSCOW FROM WASHINGTON YESTERDAY A MESSAGE EXPRESSING THE HOPE THAT RUSSIA WOULDN'T MAKE DEMANDS ON FINLAND WHICH MIGHT ENDANGER RUSSO-FINNISH RELATIONS. THIS WAS FOLLOWED BY SIMILAR INDEPENDENT MESSAGES FROM NORWAY, SWEDEN AND DENMARK.

THE RESULT WAS THAT THE CLOUDS LIFTED, AT LEAST TEMPORARILY, AND THE FINNISH DELEGATION WENT THROUGH ITS FIRST CONFERENCE WITHOUT ANYTHING UNTOWARD HAPPENING.

CONTROL OF FINLAND WOULD GIVE RUSSIA VIRTUALLY COMPLETE DOMINATION OF THE BALTIC AND A POWERFUL STRATEGIC POSITION IN RELATION TO WESTERN EUROPE. OCT 14 1939

AMS WAR RAYS (BUDGET)

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

ASSOCIATED PRESS SCIENCE EDITOR

OCT 14 1939

NEW YORK, OCTOBER 13 --(AP)---LONDON AND PARIS HAVE REPORTS THAT HITLER POSSESSES A RAY TO STOP AIRPLANE ENGINES, AND THE DEATH RAY IS REVIVED IN THE UNITED STATES. STORY

BUT NONE OF THESE REPORTS, NOW OR IN THE PAST, HAS MENTIONED THE ONE SIGNIFICANT FACT THAT WOULD MAKE THE CLAIMS PLAUSIBLE TO SCIENTISTS.

NONE TELL HOW THEY PLAN TO AVOID NATURE'S INVERSE SQUARE LAW OF DISSIPATION OF ENERGY, WHICH INCLUDES RAYS OF ALL KINDS WHATSOEVER, WHEN TRAVELLING IN SPACE.

THIS LAW WAS EXPLAINED TODAY BY DR. ALFRED N. GOLDSMITH OF NEW YORK, WIDELY KNOWN RADIO AUTHORITY AND ENGINEER. HE DESCRIBED EXACTLY THE RAY WHICH WOULD BRING DOWN WARPLANES AND THE PROBABLE HANDICAPS

30.24-4057

30.24 4057

WHICH WOULD RENDER IT IMPRACTICABLE.

UNDER THE INVERSE SQUARE LAW ENERGY INCREASES IN INTENSITY IN INVERSE PROPORTION TO THE DISTANCE IT TRAVELS. IT IS LIKE GRAVITATION.

THE COMMONEST EXAMPLE IS THE SUN. ON THE PLANET MERCURY SUNRAYS WOULD MELT LEAD. ON EARTH, AT ABOUT THREE TIMES MERCURY'S DISTANCE FROM THE SUN, ONLY BUTTER. YET RAYS REACHING THE EARTH ARE INDIVIDUALLY EXACTLY AS STRONG AS ON MERCURY, OR AS AT THE INSTANT OF LEAVING THE SUN.

OCT 14 1939

THEY SPREAD AS THEY TRAVEL, AND THAT ACCOUNTS FOR THEIR EVER-GROWING WEAKNESS WITH DISTANCE. WHEN DISTANCE DOUBLES RAYS MUST SPREAD OVER FOUR TIMES MORE SPACE: WHEN IT TRIPLES, THROUGH NINE TIMES AS MUCH.

THIS IS TRUE ALSO WHEN LIGHT OR HEAT IS FOCUSSED IN A BEAM. BEAM RAYS ARE NEVER PARALLEL, NEVER THE ENDLESS PENCIL-BEAMS OF COMIC THRILLERS. THEY TRAVEL IN ALWAYS WIDENING CONES.

THIS CONE IS TRUE OF ALL OTHER KINDS OF RAYS, WHETHER X-RAYS, ULTRA-VIOLET, INFRA-RED, RADIO, ELECTRON OR LESS WELL KNOWN VARIETIES. THE PROBLEM, THEN, IS TO FIND WHAT RAYS CAN BE PROJECTED A MILITARY DISTANCE.

ELIMINATING ALL RAYS, EXCEPT A NARROW BAND OF RADIO, ARE RULED OUT BY TWO OTHER CONDITIONS. ONE IS THE ABSORPTION, OR BLANKETING EFFECT OF AIR ON ALL THE SHORT WAVE RAYS, WHICH MEANS ALL KINDS EXCEPT RADIO.

AIR DOES NOT STOP RADIO WAVES. BUT THE SHORT WAVE LENGTHS OF ALL BUT THE SHORTEST RADIO WAVES MAKE IT IMPRACTICABLE TO CONVERT THEM INTO BEAMS. A REFLECTOR WOULD HAVE TO BE MILES IN DIAMETER TO FOCUS EVEN OF THE COMMON RADIO WAVES.

OCT 14 1939

IN THE MICRO RADIO RANGE, WHICH IS ONE MILLIMETER TO ONE METER WAVE LENGTHS, REFLECTORS ARE POSSIBLE, WITH DIAMETERS OF TWO FEET TO TWO HUNDRED. A BEAM OF THESE COULD BE PROJECTED AGAINST A DISTANT PLANE.

THE BEAM WOULD HAVE TO BE STRONG ENOUGH TO CAUSE SPARKS OR TO MELT IGNITION WIRES. IT WOULD HAVE TO DO THIS AFTER PASSING THROUGH SHIELDING, ALREADY COMMON ON MOTORS.

ASSUME A REASONABLE THICKNESS OF SHIELDING, OF ONE-EIGHT OF AN INCH OF ALUMINUM. MAKE IT EFFECTIVE ON A PLANE DISTANT 21,000 FEET.

UNDER THE LOSSES OF THE INVERSE SQUARE LAW THIS RAY WOULD HAVE

TO START WITH ALMOST INCREDIBLE POWER. THE NECESSARY POWER WOULD BE ENOUGH TO PENETRATE 400 FEET OF ALUMINUM 100 FEET AWAY,

THIS APPARENTLY MEANS SEVERAL MEGAWAS OF POWER TO PROJECT A SINGLE EFFECTIVE RAY TO A GOOD MILITARY DISTANCE.

LEAVING OUT THE QUESTION OF WHERE TO OBTAIN SUCH POWER, THE RAY WOULD STILL BE IMPRACTICABLE. BECAUSE SOME OF THE POWER WOULD PENETRATE WHATEVER PROTECTIVE SHIELDING SURROUNDED THE GENERATOR AND MAKE IT IMPOSSIBLE FOR MEN TO BE ANYWHERE NEAR.

OCT 14 1939

ALL THE DEATH RAYS ARE UNDER A STILL WORSE HANDICAP. FOR THEY ARE ALL SHORT WAVE, AND SUBJECT NOT ONLY TO THE INVERSE SQUARE LAW, BUT TO THE BLANKETING EFFECT OF THE AIR.

REAL DEATH RAYS ARE COMMONPLACE. IT IS NOT NECESSARY TO LEAVE NEW YORK CITY TO FIND THEM. COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY, IN ITS CYCLOTRON, HAS ONE OF THE MOST POWERFUL KNOWN DEATH RAYS. THE SUBURB, TUXEDO PARK, IN NEW YORK , HAS A DEATH RAY OF SOUND WAVES. BUT FOR BOTH IT IS NECESSARY FOR THE VICTIM TO REMAIN CLOSE TO THE GENERATORS, AND IN THE CASE OF SOUND RAYS, PREFERABLY TO BE IN SOME LIQUID.

THE WESTINGHOUSE COMPANY HAS PROJECTED REAL POWER THROUGH AIR, BUT ONLY THE DISTANCE ACROSS A SMALL ROOM.

EVEN A LEAD BULLET WOULD LOSE MOST OF ITS DEADLINESS IF IT HAD TO TRAVEL IN THE SPREADING CONE OF ALL RAYS. AT 1000 FEET FROM THE MUZZLE, THE BULLET'S DENSITY WOULD BE .00008. THE DENSITY OF AIR IS .0012, SO THE BULLET AT ABOUT 300 YARDS WOULD BE LESS DESTRUCTIVE THAN A SLIGHT PUFF OF AIR.

UNDATED SEA WARFARE (BUDGET) OCT 14 1939

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

(NY)....BRITAIN'S CLAIM OF SINKING THREE GERMAN U-BOATS, THE TORPEDOING OF THE BRITISH FREIGHTER HERONSPOOL AND THE DESTRUCTION OF THE HUGE FRENCH OIL TANKER EMILE MIGUET, THE LARGEST MERCHANT VESSEL LOST THUS FAR IN THE WAR, INDICATED YESTERDAY (FRIDAY) THAT SEA HOSTILITIES HAVE BEEN RENEWED IN EARNEST.

THE EMILE MIGUET, WHOSE 14,115 GROSS TONS MADE HER ONE OF THE LARGEST TANKERS IN THE WORLD, WAS DESTROYED OFF THE IRISH COAST, THE UNITED STATES LINES' PRESIDENT HARDING WIRELESSED TO NEW YORK.

THE FATE OF HER CREW OF 40 WAS NOT DEFINITELY KNOWN BUT U.S. LINES OFFICIALS SAID THEY FEARED ALL HAD PERISHED.

THE HARDING'S CAPTAIN, JAMES E.ROBERTS, REPORTED THE TANKER SENT AN SOS THURSDAY AT 2:10 P.M. (EST). WHEN HE REACHED THE SCENE SOME 11 HOURS LATER, THE VESSEL WAS IN FLAMES. NO TRACE OF THE CREW COULD BE FOUND.

ITS MASTER, CAPTAIN ROBERT ANDARDE, HAD MADE HIS WILL AND SENT IT WITH OTHER VALUABLE PAPERS TO A SISTER IN NEW YORK BEFORE THE SHIP LEFT CORPUS CHRISTI, TEXAS, SEPT.17 WITH 160,000 (CORRECT) BARRELS OF CASINGHEAD GASOLINE BLENDED WITH CRUDE OIL, A HIGHLY INFLAMMABLE LIQUID. AN OIL EXPERT SAID THE LIQUID USUALLY SOLD FOR $1.55 PER BARREL.

THE EMILE MIGUET WAS EQUIPPED TO CARRY FOUR 6-INCH GUNS IN TURRETS FORE AND AFT BUT HER TEXAS AGENTS SAID SHE CARRIED "ONLY A COUPLE OF MACHINE GUNS TO SATISFY THE CREW."

SHE WAS BUILT TWO YEARS AGO AT DUNKIRK AND WAS OWNED BY THE COMPAGNIE DES PETROLES OF HAVRE. SHE WAS 546 FEET LONG AND HER TONNAGE EXCEEDED BY 534 THAT OF THE ATHENIA, THE BRITISH LINER SUNK ON THE FIRST DAY OF THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT.

ALTHOUGH IT MISSED THE CREW OF THE EMILE MIGUET, THE PRESIDENT HARDING, BY STRANGE COINCIDENCE, CAME UPON AND PICKED UP THE CREW OF 36 FROM THE HERONSPOOL--A CHANCE RESCUE AS THE HARDING HAD RECEIVED NO SOS FROM THE BRITISH SHIP. THE 5,202-TON HERONSPOOL, THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY SAID, WAS SUNK BY A GERMAN SUBMARINE.

THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY ANNOUNCED THE SINKING OF THE THREE U-BOATS, REMARKING THAT FRIDAY THE 13TH HAD "PROVED UNLUCKY" FOR THE UNDERSEA RAIDERS. NAVAL PATROLS, IT ASSERTED, WERE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE SUCCESSFUL ATTACKS AND "SOME SURVIVORS" OF THE SUBS WERE RESCUED.

OCT 14 1939

A32

THE TWO MERCHANT SINKINGS SENT THE KNOWN TOTAL OF SHIPS LOST TO 68 VESSELS HAVING A GROSS TONNAGE OF 286,406. THE HERONSPOOL WAS ENGLAND'S 34TH KNOWN LOSS AND THE EMILE MIGUET WAS THIRD FOR FRANCE. GERMANY, WITH MOST OF HER MERCHANT FLEET IDLE AT HOME OR IN NEUTRAL HARBORS, HAS SUFFERED ONLY 9 KNOWN LOSSES. AT LEAST 773 LIVES HAVE BEEN LOST AT SEA.

MEANWHILE THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY STATED THAT THE SPEEDY GERMAN LINER CAP NORTE, CAPTURED NEAR THE BAHAMAS, HAD 440 CASKS OF HORSEFLESH AND 3 BOXES OF CAVIAR IN HER CARGO.

COMMENTING ON THE PAN-AMERICAN NEUTRALITY ZONE, THE ADMIRALTY ASSERTED THAT IT MUST BE FOR BELLIGERENTS "TO DECIDE WHETHER OR NOT TO ACCEPT RESTRICTIONS WHICH WOULD LIMIT THEIR ENJOYMENT OF CERTAIN WELL-ESTABLISHED RIGHTS."

IN WASHINGTON, REP.SNYDER (D-PENNA), CHAIRMAN OF THE HOUSE MILITARY APPROPRIATIONS SUBCOMMITTEE, EXPRESSED BELIEF A FLOTILLA OF FOREIGN SUBMARINES HAD BEEN IN THE CARIBBEAN SEA SINCE EARLY AUGUST.

OCT 14 1939

IN ELABORATING ON ITS BELIEF THE EMILE MIGUET CREW WAS LOST, THE U.S. LINES SAID IT WAS CUSTOMARY FOR SHIPS MAKING A RESCUE TO INFORM OTHER VESSELS PROCEEDING TO THE SCENE.

OTHER MARINE SOURCES SAID, HOWEVER, THE CREW MIGHT HAVE BEEN RESCUED BY A BRITISH SHIP WHICH REMAINED SILENT FOR FEAR OF GIVING ITS POSITION TO ENEMY U-BOATS.

MARINE CIRCLES THEORIZED THE FRENCH BOAT WAS SUNK WITHOUT WARNING BECAUSE OF HER ARMS EQUIPMENT. THEY EXPRESSED BELIEF THE SAME SUB SANK BOTH VESSELS.

Set Royal Oak Deaths at 800; 396 Survivors

By J. C. STARK

OCT 15 1939

London, Oct. 14 (AP).—Sinking of the Royal Oak, one of Great Britain's twelve battleships, with perhaps 800 of her men, was announced today to a nation steeled for a German war in earnest.

It was the second major German stroke of the war against British sea power to be announced here and the indicated number of casualties far exceeded the 515 men lost when a German submarine sank the aircraft carrier Courageous on Sept. 17.

The British battleship Royal Oak was sunk by a German submarine with a heavy loss of life.

In disclosing the sinking of the $10,000,000 29,150-ton warship of Jutland fame, the Admiralty said only that "it was believed she was the victim of U-boat action."

Subsequently, in late afternoon, the Admiralty said the Royal Oak's complement approximated 1,200 officers and men and, as far as then was known, approximately 396 had been saved.

Lists of survivors were being given out from time to time. One of them contained the name of the Royal Oak's commander, Capt. W. G. Benn.

The first announcement said: "The Secretary of the Admiralty regrets to announce that H.M.S. Royal Oak is sunk, it is believed by U-boat action."

The next communique said: "The Secretary of the Admiralty announces that, so far as is at present known, the number of survivors from H. M. S. Royal Oak is approximately 370. As already stated, lists of survivors will be published as soon as the names have been received. The complement of the ship was approximately 1,200. The above figures include both officers and men."

(The British have denied any naval losses besides the Courageous and the Royal Oak. Germany has claimed the sinking of the aircraft carrier Ark Royal, but the American naval attache in London reported last week he had visited the Ark Royal and found her unharmed.)

Damage to Hood Denied

In a statement tonight the Admiralty said German reports that 86,000 tons of British warships had been sunk were incorrect. It reiterated that there was "no truth" in Nazi assertions that the battle cruiser Hood had been put out of commission through German-inflicted damages.

U-BOAT TORPEDOES BRITISH BATTLESHIP

29,150-ton Veteran of Jutland Destroyed—Carried a Crew of 1200 Men—Captain Among Survivors

OCT 15 1939

LONDON, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—The Admiralty announced today the sinking of the 29,150-ton battleship Royal Oak and placed at 370 the number of survivors known—so far—of the total crew of about 1,200.

The number missing—830—far exceeded the 515 who lost their lives in Germany's first major success in the sea warfare, the sinking on September 17 of the British aircraft carrier Courageous.

The Admiralty listed Capt. W. G. Benn, commander of the Royal Oak, as one of the survivors. The names were being given out a few at a time.

The first announcement of the disaster by the Admiralty concerning the $10,000,000 heavily armored warship read:

"The Secretary of the Admiralty regrets to announce that H. M. S. Royal Oak is sunk, it is believed by U-boat action."

Text of Second Communique.

A second Admiralty communique issued this afternoon said:

"The Secretary of the Admiralty announces that so far as is at present known, the number of survivors from H. M. S. Royal Oak is approximately 370.

"As already stated, lists of survivors will be published as soon as the names have been received. The complement of the ship was approximately 1,200. The above figures include both officers and men."

The Royal Oak was a veteran of the battle of Jutland in the world war. Where the sinking occurred was not disclosed immediately.

U-boat Captain Reports Torpedoing.

Neither did an announcement by the German Supreme Command of the sinking of the Royal Oak disclose where the ship went down, but Berlin officials said they had received a report from a U-boat commander, who said he had torpedoed the vessel.

The Admiralty first issued a list of fifteen survivors, including a lieutenant and three petty officers. All already had been brought ashore. None were injured gravely.

The Royal Oak's defensive armament included deep bulges extending almost to the gun batteries. Bulges are armored air spaces designed to explode torpedoes without fatal damage.

OCT 15 1939

Vessels of this class were fitted with special internal protection and, with the protective bulges, their defense against under-water attack had been considered strong. With the acknowledgment of the loss, responsible British naval sources amplified the Government's "Friday the thirteenth" announcement that three German submarines had been sunk yesterday.

They described two of the three as of the enemy's largest ocean-going type.

Normal Crew 1046.

Before the Royal Oak was recommissioned during the summer at Portsmouth. She was with the second battle squadron of the British home fleet.

Her normal complement of men was from 1,009 to 1,046, but in times past the ship's company had approached 1,150.

According to Jane's "Fighting Ships," a compendium of the world's warcraft, the Royal Oak mounted eight fifteen-inch guns and twelve six-inch guns, with four submerged torpedo tubes. She carried one catapult for aircraft.

Jane's "Fighting Ships" described the battleship's armor and defense against underwater attack as very good. The lighter armament of the Royal Oak included eight four-inch anti-aircraft guns, four three-pounders and one twelve-pounder.

First at Jutland.

The Royal Oak was 620 feet long over all, was capable of a speed of about twenty-two knots and displaced 29,150 tons. Her keel was laid down in January, 1914, and she was completed in May, 1916, at a cost of £2,468,269 (currently about $10,800,000)—somewhat below the average for the four other battleships of her class, the Royal Sovereign, Resolution, Ramillies and Revenge. All had been flagships.

The Royal Oak was first in line in the British fleet at Jutland after the flagship, the Iron Duke. Jutland was the world war's greatest naval encounter. Both Germany and Britain claimed the victory, but the German fleet did not challenge the British thereafter.

Ready for Next Move.

Whether the new blow at the British Navy marked the start of the total war threatened by Adolf Hitler following Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's rejection of German terms for peace remained to be seen. The landing of 158,000 British soldiers in France and British successes against German submarines had led London observers to declare that Britain was ready for Hitler's next move—whether in warfare or diplomacy.

The press also generally agreed that Britain could play a waiting game and ultimately crush the Nazi military machine at the strategic moment. British observers declared that Britain and France had "Hitler on the run" in both the military and diplomatic phases of the war.

The Nazi leaders, they said, were faced with continuing the war against what were regarded here as insuperable odds or making another peace offer which might mean the overthrow of the Nazi regime. It was disclosed also that three Polish destroyers have been operating with the British fleet against the submarines of the Power which conquered Poland.

OCT 15 1939

Finland Factor.

It was understood that the destroyers—the Blyskawica (Lightning), the Grom (Thunderbolt) and the Burza (Storm)—were to be fitted for winter service in the English Channel and the North Sea. With the transportation of 158,000 men to France without the loss of a life—acclaimed as a first-round victory—the War Office declared that Britain's "ready for anything."

Newspapers, publishing the first accounts of their correspondents with the expeditionary force in France, speculated at length on Germany's next move. Some observers predicted a Nazi push soon on the western front.

A War Office spokesman said yesterday that the allies would sit tight and wait, but that it was very late for an attack by land because of the approach of winter. "Hitler rages" and "he hopes to wiggle out" were newspaper headlines over British descriptions of the Nazi reaction to Prime Minister Chamberlain's rejection on Thursday of German end-the-war proposals.

View of Times.

The well-informed Times declared editorially that the Germans were in retreat from the Baltic and called the ascendency of Russia there "the second main defeat of Nazi policy since the war began." The first, it declared, was when the plan which it said the Germans had for a protectorate of Poland extending over the Galician oil fields miscarried and "when the States of southeastern Europe began with one accord to look for guidance to Moscow, rather than to Berlin."

The Times said that the small Baltic States, striving to maintain their independence, have in the Western Powers and the United States "friends whose sympathy and help will, in the long run, not be without effect."

OCT 15 1939

Finland Factor.

"In the case of Finland, which is somewhat different from theirs," the Times added, "western diplomatic help, together with the resolute attitude of the Finns themselves, is apparently having a considerable influence already. . . .

"Finland feels herself attached to the Scandinavian, rather than the Baltic, group of countries and has stanch friends in Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

"The representatives of these northern States have made joint representations at the Kremlin on Finland's behalf, their sovereigns and the President of Finland are to meet at Stockholm next week and the American Ambassador (to Moscow) was specially instructed by Washington to make a rare intervention in European affairs in the same cause.

"American civilization is partly Scandinavian in origin and Finland holds a special place in American hearts for having never failed to pay the debt incurred in the last war.

"It is the earnest hope of all the western democracies—and not the least of Great Britain—that nothing shall occur to disturb the good relations of Finland and the U. S. S. R."

The Admiralty did not disclose where or when the disaster came to the Royal Oak, which was completed in May, 1916, and was credited with sinking four German ships in the World War Battle of Jutland without damage to herself. However, she was attached at the outbreak of the war to the 2d Battle Squadron of the Home Fleet, and, thus, presumably was in the North Sea.

The Admiralty's announcement came only a few hours after it had asserted the British had destroyed three German submarines "on Friday the 13th." Of these, it was reported today that two were of the large, ocean-going type.

The naval correspondent of "The Evening News" called the loss of the Royal Oak "a bad blow for the navy," but "with the overwhelming supremacy in capital ships already in commission—nine new battleships are now building—not a crippling blow."

(With the Royal Oak gone, Britain has fourteen capital ships—eleven battleships and three battle cruisers—and France, seven. Germany has only five, including three "pocket battleships" of 10,000 tons each. The United States has fifteen capital ships.)

OCT 15 1939

The nation read the huge black headlines against the background of the week's diplomatic developments—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's rejection of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's peace proposals as a basis for a [illegible] and German [illegible] cations that war would be launched in earnest against the west.

The Royal Oak was heavily armored with a thirteen-inch belt of steel to protect her vital parts, and deep bulges extending almost up to the gun matteries as a protection against submarine attack.

How a submarine was able to reach her if she was shielded, as usual, by accompanying destroyers puzzled neutral naval observers. London naval correspondents suggested a week ago that the urgency of providing British convoys for merchant ships bearing vital supplies for Britain might require the navy to take heavy risks.

Numerous Losses Envisioned.

OCT 15 1939

One of these wrote in "The Sunday Times" of last Sunday that "it must be realized by the public that maintenance of such convoys will involve us in the risk of naval losses," and that "those losses may be numerous."

The sinking of the Royal Oak followed a period of comparative inaction by German submarines and Admiralty assertions that the submarine menace was rapidly being overcome. Other sources attributed the period of calm to the refueling requirements of the submarines.

The British press displayed prominently reports today that Turkey and Soviet Russia had reached agreement on a pact in harmony with Turkey's undertakings to Britain and France in the mutual-assistance agreements among the latter three.

Giuseppe Bastianini, new Italian Ambassador at London, arrived in a special car sent to Folkestone by Viscount Halifax, British Foreign Secretary. It was explained this act of diplomatic courtesy was to save the envoy "the delay which most cross-Channel passengers have to undergo in these times."

Commons Get Air Report.

OCT 15 1939

Chamberlain will make his next statement to Parliament on the progress of the war on Wednesday.

The Air Ministry issued a communique asserting that "all convoys arriving or leaving" Britain now "receive air protectino which may extend hundreds of miles out to sea."

The announcement said the Royal Air Force hunt for German submarines had continued during the last week, despite bad weather. It added: "Whenever a U-boat was sighted, the hunter became the quarry, being immediately bombed by the aircraft. Ships of the naval escort also dashed to the spot indicated by the pilot and dropped further depth charges."

The announcement said: "Under the protection of air anti-submarine patrols and naval escorts, thousands of tons of vital supplies were shipped safely ot these shores."

Besides the captain of the Royal Oak, the second in command, Commander R. F. Nicholls, and 36 other officers were among the survivors named in partial lists issued by the Admiralty.

A number of big merchant vessels are being fitted out as merchant cruisers to form a new defensive squadron for the Navy. One of the squadron is a 15,000-ton liner launched recently and now being transformed into an armed cruiser.

German Nation Is Jubilant Over Sinking Of Royal Oak

"England, Bend Or Break!" Is Slogan—86,000 Tons Of British Warships Sunk, Berlin Says

OCT 15 1939

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER
Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Oct. 14—Sinking of the British battleship Royal Oak brought official Nazi claims today that Germany had destroyed about 86,000 tons of British warships in the first six weeks of the war.

German officials asserted two airplane carriers (Courageous and Ark Royal), one battleship (Royal Oak), one unnamed heavy cruiser and one destroyer had been sunk and the battle cruiser Hood had been so seriously damaged it would be out of commission for several months.

Sinking of the Royal Oak brought smiles to the faces of Nazi officials and some adopted a slogan, "England, bend or break!"

Officials said the high command had received a brief message from a submarine commander stating that he had torpedoed the Royal Oak, but that a full report must await the submarine's return to its home base.

Submarine commanders normally avoid radioing details about successes lest the enemy hear and gain useful information. The German high command did not have a report from the submarine that sank the Courageous until two days after the loss was announced by the British.

News of the Royal Oak's destruction was first announced today by British Admiralty and soon thereafter confirmed by the German high command. So gleefully was the news received that the exhilaration almost took on the proportion of national rejoicing.

Everywhere Germans talked about it. It was the main theme among groups on the streets, where bands played and entertainment booths were erected to amuse people and get them to contribute to the war winter-relief drive.

Newspapers published extra editions giving full details of the Royal Oak's armament and history.

While official quarters did not say so, there was some indication Germans have developed a new torpedo that has little difficulty with the heavy steel plates on battleships.

Protection Failed

The Royal Oak, German quarters said, was equipped with special anti-torpedo protective devices which apparently failed.

The place where the Royal Oak was sunk was unknown in Berlin, officials said.

In comparing the success of German submarines during the World War and the present one, Nazi spokesmen said in 1914-1919 they succeeded in sinking a number of old British warships but failed to touch any modern or modernized ones such as the Royal Oak.

OCT 15 1939

Air Power Lauded

Semi-official circles lauded the role airplanes have given the German navy in locating British ships for submarine attack.

"This new big success," said the newspaper Boersen Zeitung, "is a further hard lesson to those English circles which thought they could wage a hunger war against the German people without great risk.

"Crews of German submarines already in the first weeks of the war have shown themselves equal to their World War forerunner. In their defense against a hunger war they not only have greatly damaged British imports but in conjunction with the German air force already have given the British war fleet something very serious to think about."

On land, the high command reported the war in the west was confined to "minor artillery activity" and occasional air battles.

Some sources indicated Germany's next important war move awaited the outcome of consultations with Russia and Italy.

Officials said negotiations with Italy and Russia were under way diplomatically and "in other ways."

Although they declined to elaborate, it was taken for granted this meant negotiations on military and economic questions.

Extras Issued in Germany.

BERLIN, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—The sinking of the Royal Oak was announced to the German people today by special editions of newspapers with big headlines reading, "Battleship Royal Oak Sunk by German U-boat."

OCT 15 1939

Officials said that the supreme command had received a brief message from the commander of a submarine, stating that he had torpedoed the Royal Oak, but giving no further details.

DNB, the official news agency, commenting on the British announcement that the Royal Oak was the second heavy loss, asked Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, whether he had forgotten the sinking of "a second British airplane carrier."

The Germans asserted that, besides the Courageous and the Royal Oak, the 22,000-ton aircraft carrier Ark Royal had been "destroyed" and one unnamed heavy cruiser and one destroyer sunk since the war began. They added that the battle cruiser Hood had been damaged so seriously as to be out of commission for several months.

[Britain has categorically denied all these claims, except the loss of the Courageous and the Royal Oak.]

DNB asked whether Mr. Churchill was "ready now to say where the Ark Royal is."

NAME ROYAL OAK CARRIES HOODOO

OCT 15 1939

British Sailors Attach Ill Omens to Ship.

LONDON, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—British sailors have attached an ill omen to the name Royal Oak since the Dutch sailed up the Medway in 1667 and burned the first ship of her line. The battleship sunk today was the eleventh Royal Oak in the British Navy—a commemoration of the oak at Boscobel, Shropshire, in which the fugitive King Charles II hid himself after the battle of Worcester in 1651.

Within a month of being commissioned in 1916, the dreadnought was in action at Jutland, next in line after the Iron Duke, flagship of the British fleet in the great world war battle. Other Royal Oaks have fared badly in war.

In 1778, a Royal Oak was one of the heaviest sufferers in a battle with Americans and the French. Three years later, British Vice-Admiral Arbuthnot, flying his flag in the Royal Oak, was censured for failing to give the signal for close action in a battle in American waters.

The recent Spanish war brought misfortune to the battleship just sunk. Five of her crew were injured when an anti-aircraft shell fell on her deck during a Spanish nationalist bombardment of Valencia on February 24, 1937.

In 1928, Rear Admiral Bernard St. G. Collard, Capt. Kenneth G. B. Dewar, then commander of the Royal Oak, and Commander H. M. Daniel of the same ship were suspended because of a jazz band episode which hinted at mutiny. Daniel and Dewar were found guilty of actions prejudicial to discipline after court-martials which echoed through England, and were dismissed from the ship.

Admiral Collard, censured for dealing with trivial causes in a manner unbecoming his position, was ordered to strike his flag and soon thereafter was retired.

The affair had its inception at a dance aboard the battleship at Malta, during which the admiral berated the bandmaster because of the playing of the ship's band. Testimony disclosed that Daniel had written a letter complaining against the actions of the admiral and that Dewar had accepted it and forwarded it to a superior.

A little more than a year later Dewar was raised to rear admiral and soon thereafter was retired. Daniel, believing that he never could advance in the navy, retired and joined the editorial staff of the London Daily Mail.

In December, 1935, a sabotage attempt was discovered during the refitting of the Royal Oak. Failure of her electric system caused a short circuit. A sailpin one eighth of an inch in diameter had pierced a two-inch cable connecting the control tower of the battleship and the dockyard station.

Royal Oak Loss Held Threat to Allied Blockade

OCT 15 1939

Washington Naval Experts See Battleship Sinking as Severe Blow to British

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—Naval experts here viewed the sinking of the battleship Royal Oak as a severe blow to British sea power, but with more serious implications for the future than for the present.

If German submarines should be able thus to trim further the Anglo-French six-to-one naval margin over the Nazi fleet, the sea blockade of Germany might be threatened with collapse, experts said.

They were as much interested in the manner in which the 29,150-ton battleship was sunk as in the loss itself. A battleship at sea normally is safeguarded by a protective screen of light cruisers and destroyers, as well as by her own armor and anti-torpedo "blisters" along the hull. Additional protection is provided by alert scouting planes.

Whether a U-boat actually sank the $10,000,000 battleship as indicated by the British Admiralty, and whether torpedoes were fired when the ship was at sea or at anchor, were questions of importance to the United States, along with all navies which consider the battleship the backbone of a fleet.

The twelve battleships with the American fleet in the Pacific are little more modern in design than the Royal Oak, though probably better protected.

The sinking underscored official testimony given to Congress last year that a battleship is not invulnerable. Admiral William D. Leahy, then Chief of Naval Operations, noted that a battleship could be sunk by torpedoes, armor-piercing shells or aerial bombs—"under conditions favorable to the attack, and provided it is hit often enough and in the right place."

Aside from its protective screen of other ships, it depends for safety on armor, water-tight subdivisions and well organized "fire control parties" trained to cope with damage quickly.

In the World War, Britain lost two dreadnoughts of the same general type as those now in service and eleven battleships of a pre-dreadnought type, aside from three battle cruisers and scores of lighter cruisers and destroyers. Torpedoes accounted for many, and mines and explosions caused other losses.

The British fleet has eleven battleships and three big battle cruisers, classed as capital ships, remaining. Four or five newer and faster battleships of the King George V class are expected to join the fleet possibly next year.

While Germany has only two new battleships and three 10,000-ton heavily armed and armored "pocket battleships," experts consider this force a definite threat to the British blockade in connection with submarine and aerial attacks. At sea they could play havoc with allied commerce and outspeed and outgun any but five fast new British and French vessels. Already the "pocket battleship" Admiral Scheer is believed to be operating in South American waters.

Sinking Of Royal Oak Also Gives America Edge in Total Tonnage

By the Associated Press

Sinking of the British battleship Royal Oak today gave the United States the lead over the world in the number and tonnage of capital ships (battleships, heavy cruisers and pocket battleships).

Britain, however, still retains a five-fold superiority over Germany in this category and also leads the United States in total naval strength including all types of craft.

Jane's Fighting Ships registry lists Britain's strength in capital ships at fifteen, totaling 473,700 tons—counting the Royal Oak, whose tonnage is listed at 29,150.

United States strength is reported at fifteen capital ships totaling 466,890 tons. Loss of the Royal Oak brings British strength down to fourteen ships and 444,550 tons.

However, most of the British battleships and heavy cruisers are of recent construction compared to many of the American ships.

Germany trails far behind the Allies in naval strength, with only five capital ships, totaling 82,000 tons, including three pocket-battleships of 10,000 tons each.

France also leads Germany with seven battleships, totaling 164,945 tons. Altogether, the Allies can muster twenty-one capital ships or 606,495 tons.

Britain has seven capital ships under construction, including two of 40,000 tons each and five of 35,000 tons, Jane's reports. The first of these will be completed near the end of this year.

The United States is building six 35,000-ton battleships, the first of which is expected to be completed in 1941.

Germany is known to be working on at least three 35,000-ton craft and possibly more. No launching date has been announced, but work on the first started in 1937.

France has four 35,000-ton battleships on the ways and expects to finish at least one this year, one next and two in 1941.

FRENCH FEEL NAZIS ARE PREPARING BIG WESTERN ASSAULT

OCT 15 1939

2,000,000 German Troops Mass in Region of Rhine-Moselle

PARIS, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—French military advices said today that the destruction by the French of three railway bridges over the Rhine River was to forestall any attempted German surprise offensive into French Alsace.

This action, which was announced by the Berlin High Command yesterday, was taken after heavy German troop concentrations were reported along the frontier from Lauterbourg to Switzerland, in an area heretofore relatively quiet.

The bridges destroyed were those connecting Haguenau and Rastadt, Colmar and Fribourg-en-Brisgau and Mulhouse and Mulheim. Only two bridges remain across this portion of the river, both at Strasbourg, where they are incorporated in the Maginot and Siegfried lines. It was indicated at least one of these would be spared for the time being.

North of the upper Rhine sector, the Germans were reported in French advices to have massed enough tanks and heavy artillery between the Rhine and the Moselle to launch a large-scale offensive at any moment. On this sector no natural barrier such as the Rhine separates the two armies.

The French said that the Nazi troops manning the 100-mile Rhine-Moselle front were veterans of the Polish campaign.

OCT 15 1939

2,000,000 Germans.

French officials estimated the total German strength on the two main fronts, upper Rhine and Rhine-Moselle, and in close reserve at 2,000,000 men.

The Rhine-Moselle concentrations, coupled with a sudden lull in persistent activity of German patrols, kept French outposts on the alert as rain and fog settled over the lines after a day of clear, crisp weather.

A brief period of inactivity after several days of intense skirmishing was said by military experts frequently to presage a heavy assault.

The region in which the bridges were destroyed is that which extends from the Swiss border to the apex jutting into Germany near Lauterbourg.

At both the German and French extremities of the bridges still standing, concrete barriers have been built with open rings through which the bridges can be swept from either side by machine guns.

To either side of the bridgeheads trenches have been dug, wire entanglements erected and the areas fully manned. Along the German side are three series of blockhouses, many equipped with anti-tank guns and artillery.

Calm at Present.

The morning communique of the general staff said that the night was "calm," but mentioned artillery activity on both sides in the region east of the Moselle. The unfavorable weather, it was indicated, sharply curtailed aerial activity.

The French High Command issued the following communique tonight:

"Enemy patrols have shown themselves active to the west of the Saar as well as to the south of Zweibruecken. They were repelled.

"Fairly active artillery fire to the southwest of Saarbruecken."

The French reported that their observation planes had taken advantage of the brief period of clear weather yesterday to take photographs of the German lines at several points.

Both the pilot and observer of one plane were found dead in their seats after the craft, riddled with bullets, had landed safely behind the French lines, it was said. A camera in the plane was undamaged and contained valuable photographs of German positions, the French declared.

The ship apparently had been engaged in a dog fight with a German plane, but the pilot, though fatally wounded, lived long enough to make a landing. With military action virtually at a standstill, the French watched the diplomatic situation closely.

Some quarters expressed the belief that Germany would continue the peace offensive through pressure on neutral States following the refusal of France and Britain to talk peace on Hitler's terms.

The evening communique, No. 82, said: "Enemy patrols have shown themselves active to the west of the Saar as well as to the south of Zweibruecken. They were repelled. Fairly active artillery fire to the southwest of Saarbruecken."

The morning communique, No. 81, had said: "A calm night. Artillery fire from both sides in the region east of the Mos[illegible]

During the afternoon, Premier Edouard Daladier conferred with Gen. Maurice Gamelin, Allied commander in chief at the War Ministry. The Foreign Ministry was watching developments in neutral countries carefully, particularly the negotiations between Russia and Finland. The Finnish Minister to France, Dr. Harri Holma, conferred late today at the Foreign Ministry with the French Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Auguste Champetier de Ribes.

Meanwhile British troops moved steadily toward the front and regi-flank.

The northern flank of the front between the Moselle and the Rhine has been suspiciously quiet since Thursday. It was along this sector that German patrols made sharp thrusts during the first part of the week—assaults which the French said were repulsed. The French, however, apparently decided to take no chances that German activity on the northern flank might be a feint to distract their attention from an attack in the south.

Military dispatches said French engineers dynamited three bridges on Wednesay after heavy concentrations of German troops were seen behind the Limes Line fortifications in the Black Forest and near Karlsruhe, farther north.

The only two railway bridges across this part of the Rhine now left are those between Strasbourg and Kehl, which is considered an outstanding architectural and engineering feat, and one at Huningue, where the French an German frontier meets at Switzerland. These bridges cover the two main lines of penetration for either a German or a French offensive, should either decide to try and force a Rhine crossing.

Military men said the French apparently decided to destroy the secondary bridges in order to concentrate on protection of the other two and at the same time preserve them for a possible oensive of their own. These two bridges have been closed by great fortifications of reinforced concrete, showing only narrow slits through which machine-guns are able to sweep the bridges with a deadly fire.

Two of the bridges blown up, those at Brisach and Npenburg, led directly to the Black Forest region where the heaviest German concentration of troops was reported. The other was at Wintersdorf, which Nazi troops assembled at Karlsruhe might be expected to use.

Hitler West Front Headquarters Reported Established at Aachen

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Oct. 14.—Sudden and unexplained inactivity on the German side of the front lines was followed today by reports from neutral countries that Fuehrer Adolf Hitler and Col. Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command of the German armed forces, were establishing headquarters on the western front.

The reports did not say the German Fuehrer and Gen. Keitel were at the front, but that Hitler's headquarters was being set up at Aachen (Aix-la-Chapelle), on the Belgian frontier, and that Gen. Keitel had taken personal command on the western front. Some military experts took these reports as an indication the long-expected German offensive might be in preparation.

The French high command communique tonight reported the only German patrols active were in two sectors on each side of the heavily fortified German industrial city of Saarbruecken. The communique said these patrols south of Zweibruecken, in the sector east of Saar-ments after regiment of French artillery took up positions against the possibility that Germany might try an offensive before winter sets in. The French said the advance of their troops early in the war gave commanders enough elbow room for the engineers to dig in and bring up heavy batteries without fear of German reprisals. The thoroughness of French preparations for an intended long winter vigil was indicated in all reports from the front.

These said that not only have the Allies taken air photographs of German emplacements and troop movements, but also of their own positions to determine the efficiency of their camouflage. The French assessed the value of their gains thus far as crippling the Saarland mineral deposits and industries, gaining maneuvering ground and favorable defensive positions and putting the next military move up to Germany.

As a precautionary move the French have destroyed three of the five railroad bridges over that section of the Rhine which forms the French-German boundary, particularly to guard against a surprise German attack on the southern

French Plane Lands With Pilots Dead

PARIS, Oct. 14 (AP).—Military authorities announced today that soldiers inspecting a French observation airplane which landed safely behind the lines found both the pilot and the observer dead. Both were riddled with bullets. Apparently, authorities asserted, the ship had been in a "dog fight," but the pilot lived long enough to make a landing.

A camera in the plane was undamaged. The French said it contained "valuable" photographs of German positions.

NEUTRAL MEDIATOR WANTED

Berlin Announces Occupation of Its Portion of Poland Is Complete.

BERLIN, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—The lull in military activity on the western front is expected here to continue a little while longer—at least until Italy and Russia have spoken. German conversations with these countries were said already to be under way.

Only a few high-ranking Nazis can predict Adolf Hitler's next step now that Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain has rejected his terms for ending the war. Informed German quarters said that nothing more may be expected from France or Britain, but they expressed the belief that the door is open for a neutral nation to step in as an intermediary.

The only official comment on the progress of hostilities in the west was a communique reporting that three enemy planes had been shot down near Coblenz The Supreme Army Command also noted "minor artillery activity."

Poland All Occupied.

In the east, the communique said, German occupation of the Nazi sphere of influence in Poland was completed as troops took over "the last sectors at the Bug River."

Meanwhile, the impression prevailed that Germany would launch vigorous attacks from the sea and from the air on the British Navy and coastal points—which some Nazi strategists apparently believe are vulnerable. As in world war days, Britain generally is regarded here as Germany's chief enemy and alone is responsible for continuation of hostilities.

Quarters close to the Government declared that it is "completely clear now that England wants war under any and all circumstances." Official comment, equally bitter, accused Britain of the determination to "annihilate the German people."

Newspapers unanimously placed the war guilt on Britain's shoulders.

The Frankfurter Zeitung said editorially that "Chamberlain declined to accept the big chance which the Führer offered in his Reichstag speech; he decided in favor of continuation of the war."

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, speaking of neutral nations, said: "They realize today that the desire for peace is on the German side and that the war guilt of England has been established beyond doubt."
